In the previous verse, Lord Krishna said: Niṣkāma Bhakthā will merge in Me by which Krishna implies that the sakāma bhaktha will not merge in Me. It is understood; when there are two people and you say this person is intelligent; what is the meaning; சொல்லாமல் சொல்லி sollammal solli; two people; just pick one; it often happens at home; when two children are there; mother or father says: this boy is very intelligent; never do that; the other boy gets terribly rejected. Similarly Krishna has said here: niṣkāma bhaktha merges into Me, which implies sakāma bhaktha will not merge; therefore a doubt can come; what is the doubt; Bhagavān is partial; because some people he takes unto himself; merges; embraces, etc. some bhakthas He takes unto himself; whereas other bhakthās He keeps safe distance; Isn't it partial; so this doubt may come; how come only some people get liberation; some people or many people do not get liberation; many songs are also there; Oh

Lord; why can't you take Me unto you; One bhakthā used to do that it seems; daily come to the temple; Oh Lord, take me unto you; I want to merge into you; he was continuously standing there and repeating; and the pūjāri got irritated, because he has to close the temple; and go home; he was not leaving; he tried all different methods; it was not working; so at last what he did; one day he stood behind the idol; and the bhaktha said: Oh Lord; please take Me; so then he said; the pūjāri behind: Oh dear Bhakthā; I am satisfied with your bhakthi; so I am going to fulfil your wish; when you come tomorrow I will take you unto me; you will not return back home; next day, no sight of the bhaktha anywhere around; All are blabbering; therefore, Krishna says: I am not the one who decide whether you should get mōkṣa or not; the problem is not with my readiness; I am ready to give Mōkṣa to anyone at any time; if he or she wants; but the problem is most of the people do not want. I told in one of the sādānā camps, I just sent one person; please go to every room; some context like this came; I said go to every room and say: Swamiji is willing to give mōkṣa to all of you; only condition is hereafter you should stay here itself in the āśrama thereafterwards; and I requested him to get me a list of all persons interested. Everyone gave one excuse or the other; I will go back and set right the accounts or I will set right that and come back, etc. I will come after 3 months; I will come after 1 month; No One; therefore Krishna says; the problem is not with Me; but you are really not interested; That is the fact. Therefore Krishna says: सर्वभूतेषु अहं समः sarvabhūteṣu ahaṁ samaḥ; I am the same with regard to every being; that means what: I am not partial to anyone; I am not going to give extra blessing to someone; and less blessing to someone else;

Śankara says in his Soundarya Lahari; the moonlight falls everywhere equally; whether it is a dirty point or a beautiful house. Therefore Krishna says My grace is equal for all. And in fact, I cannot give more to someone, I cannot even withdraw; just as sunlight is natural; sun cannot withdraw or give. Similarly grace of the Lord is equal to all; then where is the difference; how much we are willing to tap; Therefore our effort will determine the amount of grace that I am going to tap; So grace is already included in effort; when you are building a house; you are building the walls; and within the walls what is available; space is available. Primarily you are interested in what; in the wall or inside space; Primarily interested in the living room; you want the space only; but you need not work for the enclosed space; you have to work only for building the wall; After building the wall, you need not invite space separately, as even wall is built, enclosed space is available; similarly Īśvara kripa need not be separately invited you put forth your effort, the grace is automatically included in that.

And therefore Krishna says my grace is uniformly available to all; mama dveṣaḥ nāsti; there is no one who is hateful to me; whom I hate; dveṣaḥ nāsti.

Then what about favourite; na priyaḥ; there is no favourite also; no one is more dear; everyone is same; If everyone is same; how come some people only get liberation and some do not get; Krishna says the difference is not caused by Me; the difference is caused by the choice of the bhaktha. And that is why we say, mōkṣa is determined by your will and not God's grace; because God's grace is already available to all. So we need not work for that; the only differentiating factor is: is your will ready to choose Lord as the goal; Therefore Krishna says; yē mām bhakthya bhajanthi; So those vivekees, those sādānā catuṣṭaya sampanna adhikāri, who seek me as the goal.

In the 7th chapter, I said God can be used as a means for worldly goals or God can be used as an end in itself; the one for whom the God is the end; is called niṣkāma bhaktha; mumukṣu bhaktha, he is referred to here; those who worship Me with niṣkāma bhakthi; mumukṣu bhakthi; मयि ते mayi te; They are already existing in Me; तेषु चाप्यहं teṣu chapi aham; I am existing in them; which means both of us are one and the same; So I am in them; they are in Me; we are never separate; because they discover the fact that there is no distance at all and therefore mōkṣa is a puruṣārtaḥ; mōkṣa is something attained through your choice.

30. He who worships Me seeking nothing else should be considered a saint only, even if he has the worst conduct. For, he has resolved rightly.

With the previous verse, the comparison and contrast of sakāma bhakthi and niṣkāma bhakthi, that topic is over, which started from the 20th verse; up to 29th. What are the difference between sakāma and niṣkāma bhakthi. And now in the final portion of the 9th chapter, from 30th onwards and up to the end, 34th, Krishna is talking about the glory of bhakthi; And what is the greatest glory of bhakthi; bhakthi is a sādānā which can be started at any stage of life; unlike jñāna yōga; jñāna yōga cannot be started at any stage that you like; because it requires lot of preparatory disciplines; whereas to become a bhaktha; you do not require any qualification; And what is the reason; because bhakthi itself has got several stages and you can pick up from any stage; the first stage being, artha bhakthi itself; artha bhakthi do you remember; 7th bhakthi; What is artha bhakthi; when you are afraid, you use Bhagavān; especially before exam; bhakthi will overflow; because whenever a person is afraid or he needs some support, use Bhagavān and they have found that it works; It simply works; psychologically and statistically they have proved that a bhaktha has got more confidence that even in the case of terminal diseases, he is able to enjoy a better confidence; and because of the very confidence, his immunity is better and therefore the medicine works faster; Simple bhakthi; so thus an ārta bhaktha or a person in distress can start; and even a materialist person can start bhakthi. If he wants to start a factory, I say do a pūja, you will get more profit; he will do immediately. So even a materialist person can practice bhakthi; and of course a spiritual student is jijñāsu bhaktha; thus depending upon the spiritual evolution; everybody can start any one level of bhakthi; In fact in the 12th chapter, Krishna is going to divide bhakthi into five levels; and it starts from the highest level; If you cannot practice the 5th one, try fourth; try third, not possible try second; if not possible, try first if not possible; better luck next birth; because the first one is possible for all; that is how bhakthi has been designed and therefore Krishna says bhakthi can be started by anyone.

And if this intellect is not sharp enough Bhagavān is also defined according to the level of intellect; we will start with ēka rūpa bhakthi and if you are little bit mature, we will introduce anēka rūpa bhakthi and if you are finally ready for intellectual analysis; we will introduce arūpa īśvara also; Thus depending upon your level; you always have a slot; this is one point Krishna highlights here;

And there is one more point; that very important that is highlighted; and what is that; almost every human being suffers from the problem of mental guilt; guilt means what I have done lot of mistakes; I have done lot of pāpams; There is a conscience behind me; all the time judging my action; because, I know what is right and what is wrong; as Swami Dayananda swami says; what is right and what is wrong need not be taught; simple common sense is enough; even a thief knows thieving is wrong; Without being any education; how does he know; because of the simple reason; What I do not want others to do to me, I should not do to others; And because he knows it is wrong only; he is doing that action; in secret; The right if it is, he can straight away walk and take away whatever he wants; crorepathi he was watching and he lost whatever he had. Why should a thief come stealthily; because he knows that it is wrong; therefore conscience is common sense based right-wrong norm; if common sense based norm standard of what is right and wrong. And this conscience which is common sense based norm will always judge my action; eternal judgment; whether Bhagavān will come and judge you on the last day or not; judgment day, Our conscience is judging and not only constantly forming self-opinion and the most of the time, we are aware of only our mistakes that we have committed; and this produces lot of guilt; And that is why many people are afraid to go to the temple and even to the swamis; I do not have the eligibility they say; And that is why in every religion, there is confession; the confession is purely to neutralise the guilt; guilt can be a very very big problem.

And even in spiritual path, guilt can be a problem; I can always conclude, I cannot follow the spiritual path, even if I follow I will not succeed; I have concluded; because of what; guilt; That is why in the 6th chapter it is said that we require four kripas; do you remember; ātma kripa; grace of oneself; īśvara kripa is required; guru kripa is required; śāstra kripa is required; And what is ātma kripa; guilt free mind; which is confidence; Even if I have done mistake, I can correct and grow spiritually; because every saint has a past; and every sinner has a future. So why should I feel bad; and this mind has got atma kripa. So your grace is a mind which is confident; and therefore Krishna wants to pump confidence into every student. Do not say that you cannot do it; please say you can; therefore he says sudurācāra api, even the worst sinner can come to bhakthi with confidence; durācāra means what; a person of evil, corrupt context; su durachara means what; extremely corrupt person; who has done all the pāpams including pañcā maha pathakam. Even he need not be worried; what is the condition; bhajathe.

Suppose he comes to Me, भजते मामनन्यभाक् bhajatē māmananyabhāk; without any wavering in the mind; with ananya bhakthi; with total surrender, if that person comes, the day he has decided to change, Dayananda swami beautifully says: nobody can change another person. I can never change you. But if you have decided to change, nobody can stop it; it will happen; I can assist you, if you have decided to change; This is the principle. And therefore Krishna says a person who has decided, he is as good as a saint. Even though he has only decided; the very decision is a turning point in his life; as somebody nicely said; it is not where you stand that matters; it is in which direction you are standing; that matters. If you are closest to God also; if you are walking in the opposite direction; you are going farther; on the other hand, even if you are farthest, if you are towards, you are going towards Me. Therefore direction is more important; not the actual location; So never compare with others; be proud that you are in the right direction; Therefore साधुरेव स मन्तव्यः sādhurēva sa mantavyah; sāduḥ; not Tamil sadu, not a person not knowing anything; sāduḥ means a saintly person. Why, सम्यग्व्यवसितो हि सः samyagvyavasitō hi saḥ; because he has made the right resolve in life; he has reoriented his life; he has reshuffled the priorities in his life; and therefore be confident; start bhakthi; at any level depending upon your position.

Om

Lord Krishna completed the topic of the comparison of sakāma bhakthi and niṣkāma bhakthi with verse No.29 and now from the 30th verse, up to the end of this chapter, Krishna is talking about the glory of devotion. And we saw the 30th verse in the last class, wherein Lord Krishna mentioned that Bhakthi is glorious, because any person at any level of spirituality can start with bhakthi. Either he can start as a arta bhaktha, which is the beginning. Whenever there is problem, we can take recourse to the Lord. This is arta bhakthi. Whenever there are problems, a person is mentally weaker, he requires a support, and Lord is ever available support. In fact, one of the names of the Lord, arta thrāna parāyana; the one who is committed to helping the people who are in crisis.

And gradually you can graduate to arthārti bhakthi, and then jijñāsu bhakthi and jñāni bhakthi; thus whatever be your level of spirituality, you can start with bhakthi. And Lord Krishna says, the moment a person has decided to take the help of the Lord, then itself he can be called a sādhu puruṣaḥ; because it requires a little bit of humility; a little bit of understanding, that however great, we are, our freewill has its limitation. No doubt human being is very powerful. No doubt, human being can achieve lot of thing. But however great a human being is, he has his limitation. The moment I understand the limitation of my freewill, my wisdom helps me take the help of an external factor.

Dayananda Swami beautifully says: wisdom is seeking help when it is required; it is fool-hearty and arrogance not to take the help when it is required.

And this intelligent person has understood the limitation and therefore has decided to take the help of the Lord, even if it is meant for material purposes. That itself is great step. There is no rule that you have to surrender to the Lord only for spiritual help. The scriptures point out that it is intelligence to surrender to the Lord even for material help.

And once a person surrenders to the Lord; and then he will find there is an extra strength in his mind. As I told you the other day, they have statistically proved that religious people have got more emotional strength; and not only they have more emotional strength, they have statistically proved that they have got more immunity and resistance even in physical level. Therefore I do seek a transformation. Once I see a transformation and inner strength, my devotion will increase; when the devotion increases, naturally my strength will be more; thus you get into a cycle; not a vicious cycle; an auspicious cycle; more devotion; more strength; more strength, more devotion, so it becomes a healthy addiction; until then, he was addicted to unhealthy practices; now he is de-addicting himself from other inferior things and he is practising a positive addition; What is that: addiction to devotion; it is an addiction; but worth having; and soon we will get over even that addiction; Whether we should get over or not is a different question; but if you see as an addiction, we will get over that also; but he has got into a healthier addiction.

And therefore Krishna says साधुः एव सः मन्तव्यः sādhuḥ eva saḥ mantavyaḥ; you can call him a saint; like a Vālmiki, he is a saint; why, because he has taken the right resolve; सम्यक् व्यवसितः samyak vyavasitaḥ; vyavasitaḥ means what; one who has taken a niścaya; vyavasāya means niścaya; vyavasitaḥ means a person of niścaya. And what is the niścaya?: I am going to take the help of Lord only. Then what will happen to him or her; that is going to be said in the next verse.

कौन्तेय प्रतिजानीहि न मे भक्तः प्रणश्यति ॥ ९.३१ ॥

kṣipraṃ bhavati dharmātmā śaśvacchāntiṃ nigacchati |

kauntēya pratijānīhi na mē bhaktaḥ praṇaśyati || 9.31 ||

क्षिप्रं भवति kṣipraṃ bhavati soon he becomes धर्मात्मा dharmātmā a noble soul
निगच्छति nigacchati and certainly attains शश्वच्छान्तिम् śaśvacchāntim lasting peace कौन्तेय kaunteya oh! Arjuna प्रतिजानीहि pratijānīhi declare (to all) मे भक्तः me bhaktaḥ My devotee न प्रणश्यति na praṇśyati never perishes.

31. Soon he becomes a noble soul and certainly attains lasting peace. Oh ! Arjuna, declare (To all) – my devotee never perishes.

So what will happen to that person, who has decided to turn to the Lord for help. Krishna says: सः क्षिप्रं धर्मात्मा भवति saḥ kṣipraṃ dharmātmā bhavati; he will soon become a dharma pradhāna person. So dharma ātma, ātma means mind; dharmātmā, means a person whose mind values dharma more than arta kāma. Until then he was only considering arta and kāma, money and entertainment, as the primary things in life; Soon he become more mature and he grows out of the artha kāma delusion, not that he should reject them totally; but they are not primary thing; they are like pickle; you know pickle; you can take; nobody says that you should reject the pickle. But the question, whether you are taking the pickle for curd rice, or whether you are taking curd rice for pickle. If pickle becomes the main dish, and curd rice becomes the side dish; there is something wrong. Similarly, arta and kāma should not be primary; they should be like pickle; but the main pursuit in life is dharma; dharma means what; values and mōkṣa.

And therefore Krishna says kṣipraṃ, before long he will stop to be an arta bhaktha; he will stop to be an artārti bhaktha, he will gradually become a jijñāsu bhaktha; so dharmātmā means jijñāsu bhaktha; the one who uses devotion for inner growth.

And once he has become jijñāsu bhaktha, the next stage is very natural and what is the next stage, jñāni bhaktha he becomes; what is the meaning of the word jijñāsu bhakthaḥ jijñāsu bhakthaḥ means a devotee who is interested in knowing the nature of God; isvara jñāna icchāvān bhakthaḥ. And once there is an intense desire to know what exactly is God; because I have understood that God is the only source of peace, security and happiness; that is the background, the only source of peace security and happiness is God. In religion we call God; philosophy we call Brahman, once I know that I am interested in knowing Brahman; athatho brahma jijñāsā; And once I have that sincere desire, Krishna will tell in the 10th chapter, from somewhere śāstrām comes. Just as when the flowers bloom from somewhere; what comes; the bee comes; flower need not send post card, please come; once it has bloomed; naturally it comes; Similarly you bloom into a sadhana catuṣṭaya saṁpanna adhikaari; Gurus will come in search of you; Krishna will tell this in the 10th chapter,

dadāmi buddhiyōgam taṁ yēna māmupayānti tē || 10.10 ||

Because Bhagavān's law is any genuine desire should be fulfilled. If you have a thirst as a natural desire. Bhagavān has to provide with water in the creation; if hunger is there; Bhagavān has to provide food in the creation; if you have to breath oxygen; we will destroy oxygen that is a different thing; Bhagavān has to provide; similarly, if you have a thirst for Isvara jñānam, Bhagavān has to provide a guru; therefore Krishna says śāstrā will come, guru will come, ideal situations for learning will come; jñānam will come, you will be converted into jñāni bhakthaḥ.

Then what Krishna says शश्वच्छान्तिं निगच्छति śāśvacchāntiṁ nigacchati; the moment you become jñāni bhakthāḥ; you are a wise person; and what will wisdom give to you; Krishna has said in the beginning itself; ga gatāsūnagatāsūṁśca nānuśōcanti paṇḍitāḥ; wisdom means grief will go away from life.

And therefore Krishna says śāntiṁ nigacchati; such a bhaktha will attain peace of mind; and what type of peace, not a fleeting peace, śāśvat śāntiṁ; ever lasting peace of mind; a peace of mind, which will not be disturbed by the upheavals that happen in that person's life; śāśvat śāntiṁ nigacchati. So then Krishna thinks whether Arjuna will accept all these things? All these are a blind promise or is it all true? So Krishna therefore gives a promise; a very important oft quoted line, कौन्तेय प्रतिजानीहि kauntēya pratijānīhi; Arjuna take my promise, and not only you should take this promise from Me, you have to declare, publicise this promise through all the media; radio, TV, internet media; (now you have to include all the media), all over the world you publicise this promise of mine; and what is that promise, न मे भक्तः प्रणश्यति na mē bhaktaḥ praṇāśyati; a devotee of the Lord will never have a spiritual fall; very careful; he will never have a spiritual fall; material ups and downs are bound to come; through prārabhda; But he will never fall spiritually; only higher and higher and higher; therefore me bhaktaḥ na praṇāśyati; this is my promise and therefore become my devotee.

Continuing:

मां हि पार्थ व्यपाश्रित्य येऽपि स्युः पापयोनयः । attains परां गतिम् parāṃ gatim the supreme goal व्यपाश्रित्य vyapāśritya by taking refuge in माम् mām Me

33. Oh! Arjuna, Even women, vaiśyāḥ, sudras, and those who are of sinful birth certainly attain the supreme goal by taking refuge in Me.

So Krishna wants to point out that even those people who have got certain disadvantages or handicaps, even those people can take to bhakthi and attain liberation. So disadvantaged people also can take to bhakthi and attain liberation. By disadvantage we mean, any type of handicap; physical handicap or emotional handicap, or intellectual handicap; (nothing is understood Swamiji, if you say, it is intellectual handicap) or, environmental handicap or parental handicap; a person born to a parent who is a nāsthika; Or imagine even a Prahlada who is born to a Hiraṇyakaśipu; an asurā, who never has devotion; in fact he says: never say Nārayana Nāmāḥ; Hiraṇyakaśipave nāmāḥ only you should say: With is nāsthikya disadvantage also, a person through devotion can attain liberation.

Therefore Krishna says Pārthā: Hey Arjuna, हे पार्थ मां हि व्यपाश्रित्य तेऽपि परां गतिम् यान्ति hē pārtha mām hi vyapāśritya tē:'pi parāṃ gatim yānti; tē:'pi means what: Even the disadvantaged people, handicapped people, people with lot of spiritual obstacles; tē api; pratipāthāḥ api, parāṃ gatim yānti; parāṃ gatim means what; mōkṣa. So even those disadvantaged people, attain the highest goal of liberation; provided what, instead of depending on themselves alone; if they depend upon themselves; what is the problem; since they have the handicap, they will not be able to make up; but they have done an intelligent thing, what: माम् व्यपाश्रित्य mām vyapāśritya; if I cannot walk by myself; what do I do; you say walking stick; use a crutch; or hold on to somebody's hand. Similarly, these people depend upon Me; vyapāśrayaḥ means dependant;

Lakṣmi nṛsimha mama dēhi karāvalambam; Śankara wrote a set of slōkās: karāvalamba sthōthrāms; Śankarācārya did not have any disadvantage; he did have pūrva janma puṇya very much and he had every thing ideal; and he knew that everyone would not be like this; And therefore he wrote many sthōthrās; one is beautiful karāvalamba sthōtram; karāvalamba means what: support; so taking to karāvalamba, even those disadvantaged people attain liberation.

And the question is who are the disadvantaged people; Krishna wants to give four samples: I will just give you the running meaning; do not get angry with me; later I will explain it; this is a controversial line.

The first disadvantaged people is pāpa yōnaya; people of sinful birth; that means people who do not have a conducive atmosphere for spirituality; the ideal example being Prahlada himself; because the family advantage was not there; in spite having a spiritual family is a very very big advantage; otherwise for a child it is an नदीरु धीरु ethir neechal; (against the current) spirituality and religious life, we have to imbibe from early childhood. In fact we say in the śāstrā, that even from pregnancy the child imbibes that trait. So imagine the parents are nāsthikas; So that becomes an obstacle; Why I am born to such family; some pāpam I have done; thus papa yōnaya, people who do not have a conducive atmosphere; No.1.

Then the second example is स्त्रियाः striyāḥ; striyāḥ means women; do not say striyāḥ pāpa yōnayaḥ; it should not be taken like that; pāpa yōnayaḥ is one set of people who do not have conducive atmosphere; that is over; OK. Ladies careful; and the next group: striyāḥ; women; this second set of disadvantaged people, naturally the disadvantage I will tell later.

Then the next group is वैश्याः vaiśyāḥ; vaiśyāḥ means vaiśyās; so vaiśyās, from the brāhmaṇa, kṣatriya, vaiśyās, śūdra, group, vaiśyāḥ; and then शुद्राः śūdrāḥ; this is the fourth category; all these four are disadvantaged people in the sense, they have to do ethir neechal; they have the swim against the current.

Now why, Krishna enumerates striyāḥ; vaiśyāḥ; śudrāḥ; now the first thing we should understand is this: Vēdānta is primarily a pursuit of wisdom; and wisdom is something which is connected with your mind and intellect only; it is connected with the sūkṣma śarīram, it has nothing to do with the physical body. Physical body is not going to gain knowledge. Therefore whenever we are talking about qualifications or disqualification, we are not bothered about the physical personality; because physical personality has nothing to do with knowledge. That is why in Tatva Bodha, when we talked about qualification, we did not talk about height, we did not talk about weight, we did not male or female gender; it was only said sādānā catuṣṭaya sampathi and all the qualifications are connected with what; the subtle body or the mind. Therefore when we talk about striyāḥ; vaiśyāḥ; and śudrāḥ; we should remember, it has nothing to do with the physical stritvam; physical vaiśyatvam; or physical śudratvam; it is talking about three types of inner personality; we are not talking about whether a person is physically women or physically man.

Then we have to find out what type of personality is meant by stri; what type of personality is meant by vaisya; and what type of personality is meant by śudra; I will use the word svabhāva stritvam; svabhāva vaiśyatvam; and svabhāva śudratvam; not śarīra stritvam; śarīra vaiśyatvam and śarīra śudratvam. We are not bothered about the physical gender.

Now what is the svabhāva stritvam. It refers to an overwhelming emotional personality; which obstructs the rational thinking; a personality in whom emotions dominates over reason; manōmaya kōśa dominates over vijñānamaya kōśa; because according to sastra, vijñānamaya kōśa or rational thinking, should have control over over emotion. If emotions are going to control over reason, that person is an emotional person. And such an emotional personality will have lot of problem with Vēdāntic knowledge.

What is primary problem; an emotional personality always values personal relationships and attachment. It wants to be personally associated with someone, and personally someone should love me; there must be someone whom I can tell: I love you; and someone should regularly tell me: I love you; this need of emotional prop is very important; whereas in Vēdānta, we talk about growing out of saṅga or relationship; because we want to come to this knowledge that aham asaṅgam brahmasi; asaṅgōham; asaṅgōham; asaṅgōham puna punaḥ;

I am beyond all this saṅga; because saṅga means bondage. Therefore Vēdānta requires transcending saṅga. And an emotional mind clings on to saṅga; therefore such an emotional mind, even if it renounces all the worldly saṅga, it will hold on to Guru. Guru will become a physical security; That is equally dangerous; Guru will have problem; When he comes to God; an emotional mind always wants a personal God. Because personal God fulfils some of the emotional needs; adharam madhuram; vadanam maduram. So it wants again relationship with the Lord, as father, as mother, or child; Something or the other; therefore that emotional mind can hold on to saṅga personal God only; whereas climax of Vēdānta is what: God should be beyond even personal limitations; இமோஷனல் மனஸுக்கு நிற்குண ப்ரஹ்மனுக்கு வரவே முடியாது; emotional mind can never reach nirguṇa brahman and therefore Vēdānta becomes a problem; vairāgya becomes a problem; for an emotional mind. Therefore who ever got such a mind is called stri mind; even a male, if he has got such a mind, Vēdāntically that person is a stri; therefore what is the first type of mind; an emotional mind.

Then vaiśyāḥ; if you remember the fourth chapter analysis, we have defined vaiśyā svabhāva as a rājasic mind; an outgoing mind; which wants to earn, which wants to acquire; which wants to accomplish, which is a commercial mind; So even if it comes to religion, even if you come to Rishikesh; you will be interested in rudrākṣa vyāpāram and conclude that there is a good profit there; it is everywhere profit only; the commercial mind; that is vaisya mind; it has nothing to do with jāti or birth; even a mahā Brāhmaṇā by birth; if he is commercial minded, he will come under guṇa vaiśyāḥ. Here we are not talking about jāti vaiśyāḥ; we are talking about guṇa vaiśyāḥ; so guṇa stri over; guṇa vaiśyāḥ over;

Then what is the third one; śudrāḥ; śudrāḥ, we saw in the fourth chapter, as tamō guṇa pradhānaḥ; so one who is given to indolence, laziness; and animalistic living; who has got one philosophy; as we say in Hindi; kao, pio, maja karo; eat drink and be merry. So tamasic mind; very close to animals; so such a mind again guṇa śudrāḥ.

We are not talking about jāti śudrāḥ; a jāti śudrāḥ may be a guṇa Brāhmaṇā; a jāti Brāhmaṇā may be a guṇa śudrāḥ; I have given in the details in the fourth chapter; I do not want to get into the discussions; I hope you are satisfied with the explanations; OK; guṇa stri, guṇa vaiśyāḥ, guṇa śudrāḥ; guṇa stri means more emotional than rational; guṇa vaiśyāḥ is commercial minded; guṇa śudrāḥ is indolence; whoever has this personality, he or she is a disadvantaged person; And Krishna says even these disadvantaged people, if they surrender to God, they will be able to change their character. Even if he or she has got a womanish mind, they will be able to transcend attachment; and especially attachment the children for ladies, always difficult; others will get out; you will get out; but for women more strong biological call also, I do not know whether I told; a lady said: Should I be detached from my son to get mōkṣa: And she said: if I have to be detached from my son, I do not want mōkṣa; I will be better detached from what: mōkṣa. Like that smoker: he was regularly reading the book: cigarette smoking is injurious to health; it is injurious to health, etc. And he said at last I gave up: what if you ask: reading that magazine. Like that an emotional mind says, if mōkṣa requires detachment from one's near and dear ones, better I will be detached from mōkṣa: I want to say such a mind finds it difficult; Krishna says to such people my advice is; be attached to your children also and give Me; Bhagavān some attachment; then sooner or later, I will take you away from worldly attachment.

Therefore तेषु यान्ति परं गतिम् tē'pi yānti parāṃ gatim; so what is the essence of this verse: bhakthi will help advantaged people as well as disadvantaged or handicapped people.

किं पुनर्ब्राह्मणा भक्ता राजार्षयस्तथा ।

अनित्यमसुखं लोकम् इमं प्राप्य भजस्व माम् ॥ ९.३३ ॥

kiṃ punarbrāhmaṇāḥ puṇyā bhaktā rājarṣayastathā |

anityamasukhaṃ lōkamimam prāpya bhajasva mām || 9.33 ||

पुनः किम् punaḥ kim then what to talk of, पुण्या ब्राह्मणाः puṇyā brāhmaṇāḥ the virtuous brahmins तथा tathā and भक्ताः राजर्षयः bhaktāḥ rājarṣayaḥ devout Royal sages! प्राप्य इमम् prāpya imam having come to अनित्यम् anityam this impermanent असुखं लोकम् asukhaṁ lokam joyless world भजस्व माम् bhajasva mām worship Me

33. Then what to talk of the virtuous brahmins and devout royal sages ! Having come to this impermanent joyless world, worship Me.

So if guṇa sudras and guṇa vaiśyāḥ can attain liberation, in spite of their handicaps, mental inner handicap, what to talk of guṇa brāhmaṇa and guṇa kṣatriyaḥ, who have got advantage from birth;

And what is the definition of guṇa brāhmaṇa and guṇa kṣatriya; Do you remember? Guṇa brāhmaṇa is satva guṇa pradhāna; by birth he is spiritually oriented. There is no craving for arta kāma; he is a guṇa brāhmaṇa because of his pūrva janma sādānā. Guṇa kṣatriya is the one who is the rajasic person, extrovert alright, but there is a difference between guṇa kṣatriya and guṇa vaiśyāḥ: What is the difference; guṇa kṣatriya is selflessly active, whereas guṇa vaiśyāḥ is selfishly active; A selfish active person will not grow spiritually; A selfish active person will spiritually stagnate; he will grow materially because every pie, he takes to himself; every pie I earn, I will keep for myself only; Not a single pie dānam; Even if someone asks, he will direct to the neighbour saying that he is a great donor, etc. So selfishly active person, may materially grow, but he will spiritually stagnate, such a person is called guṇa vaiśyaḥ; But guṇa kṣatriyaḥ is also active, but he or she is selflessly active, therefore every action contributes to the external world. Therefore such a person will purify the mind very quickly and his life will become a karma yōga; guṇa vaiśyaḥ life is karma; guṇa kṣatriya life is karma yōgaḥ. Therefore sooner or later, he will come to jñānam and attain liberation.

And therefore guṇa brāhmaṇa and guṇa kṣatriya are advantaged people; certainly bhakthi will help with them quicker. Therefore Krishna asks the questions: किम् पुनः kim punaḥ, if the disadvantaged people themselves will get benefit; what to talk of advantaged people. The advantage in tennis you remember; once you have got the advantage, only point you need to win; but for the other person, he should get two. So these people are advantaged guṇa-brāhmaṇa and advantaged guṇa-kṣatriya. So पुण्या ब्राह्मणाः puṇyā brāhmaṇāḥ brāhmaṇaḥ puṇyaḥ; puṇyaḥ means what: those who are satvic minded; virtuously naturally dhārmic; adjective is brāhmaṇa; and brahmaṇa is remember, guṇa brāhmaṇa and jāti; and then राजर्षयः rājarṣayaḥ; and what to talk of guṇa kṣatriyāḥ; So rājarṣayaḥ means guṇa kṣatriya who are also bhakthaḥ; who are your devotees, should I talk about them: I need not talk, they will certainly attain liberation; Therefore what is the conclusion; whether you are advantaged or disadvantaged, do not bother: start bhakthi.

Therefore he says: Hey Arjuna: माम् भजस्व mām bhajasva; So may you worship Me; Even as an āṛta bhaktha it is OK. start somewhere; May you worship Me; and then we may say that I will start after retirement; Now I am too busy. Krishna says what is the guarantee that you will survive till then; better do not postpone; anityam lokam prāpya; you have come to an anitya lōkā; a world of finitude; world of mortality; you can never postpone good thing; Therefore start; if you do not have much time, start for 10 minutes; you sit there and chant a few prayers; even if you do not study Gītā, etc. Upaniṣads etc. It does not matter, start with a simple prayer; early morning get up; (not that I am telling do not come to the next class!!) talking about the other people, if they cannot do all those things, they need not, get up early, that itself is a big challenge; get up early in the morning, take a bath and before starting your day, before starting your coffee; just go in front of the Lord and do namaskara; and pray for all round growth; physical, emotional, intellectual and spiritual; You must start somewhere; one minute is enough; சுரண கமலாலயத்தில் ஒரு நிமிடம்; அரை நிமிடம் caraṇa kamalālayattil not even oru nimitam; arai nimitam; start somewhere; so anityam lōkam.

And not only it is अनित्यमसुखं लोकम् anityamasukhaṁ lōkam; it is full of problem; therefore do not postpone, because you do not know what all problems will crop up; health problems may come, if you want to read, eye problem may come; if you want to hear, ear problems may come. We do not know; therefore in this fleeting problem riddled world, the best thing that you can do is spend some time for spirituality; the rest will be taken care of; and Krishna concludes in the 34th verse:

मामेवैष्यसि युक्तवैवम् आत्मानं मत्परायणः ॥ ९.३४ ॥

manmanā bhava madbhaktō madyājī māṁ namaskuru |

māmēvaiṣyasi yuktvaivamātmānaṁ matparāyaṇaḥ || 9.34 ||

मन्मना भव manmanā bhava fix the mind on Me मद्भक्तः madbhaktaḥ (be) my devotee मत्परायणः matparāyaṇaḥ (keep) Me as the Supreme goal; मध्याजि madhyāji (be) My worshipper; नमस्कुरु माम् namaskuru mām surrender to Me युक्त्वा yuktvā fixing (the mind) एवम् evam in this manner एष्यसि eṣyasi you will reach माम् एव mām eva Me alone आत्मनम् ātmanam who am the self.

34. Fix the mind on Me; (be) My devotee; (keep) Me as the Supreme goal; (be) My worshipper; surrender to Me. Fixing the mind in this manner, you will reach Me alone who am the Self.

So the lifestyle of a bhaktha is beautifully delineated in this ślōkā. It is a beautiful verse; it is popular verse. If somebody asks: who is a bhaktha; what is the type of life that he leads; that is beautifully defined here.

So five factors are mentioned here; I will arrange the words for the sake of development.

मद्भक्तः भव madbhaktaḥ bhava; Develop devotion or love towards Me; develop bhakthi towards Me; and I have said before: that Lord can be looked upon as a means to worldly end or Lord can be looked upon as an end in itself. In the beginning stages; you need not look up God as a end; does not matter: Bhagavān is ready to accept that; you have your own worldly goals; dhānyam, danam, paśum, bahu putra lābhāam, sata samvatsaram, whatever that be. Therefore, you learn to love God at least as a means for the fulfilment of worldly ends; which we call as sakāma bhakthi; or ārta, artārthi bhakthi. And when you use Lord for worldly ends, certainly you will find it successful. As I told, even it has been statistically proved that a person who is religious, whatever be his concept of God; there is a general piece of mind; and therefore better resources for a bhaktha/ And that is why Krishna said, in whatever form you worship Me, I will fulfil your desire. So this is the first stage: use Bhagavān as an assistant; your assistant for worldly goal; this is madbhaktaḥ. In fact in all the puranas; that is predominantly presented.

Then next you have to graduate to मत्परायणः matparāyaṇaḥ; you understand that the worldly goals have their limitations; they cannot really give me peace; they cannot really give security; they cannot really give happiness; because they themselves are insecure in nature; how can an insecure human being give security; how can an insecure money give security; how long; How much time it takes for the earthquake to destroy everything; a few seconds only; not even one minute; a few seconds; what security we have; and all the documents themselves get lost or burned; who knows and therefore understand that peace, security and happiness have got only one source or one locus; that is called God or Brahman. Therefore may you take Brahman as the goal of life and when God is converted into your goal; you are called matparāyaṇaḥ; So param ayanam means what; ultimate goal of life. So from sādhanā, Bhagavān has become sādhyam, the goal.

Then what is the next stage; मन्मना भव manmanā bhava; once Bhagavān has become the primary goal; your mind does not or should not lose sight of the goal. It should keep the ultimate goal in your mind all the time; in your preoccupation with incidental goal of earning money, building house, getting married, getting children, getting grand children, you have so many commitments; nothing wrong; but in and through your pre-occupation, do not forget for what purpose I am living. And this is called manmanā bhava; keep me in your mind, in your sub-conscious mind, as the goal; just as a musician never loses sight of the tambura śṛuti. That does not mean he is all the time hearing tampura, therefore no music at all; what is he doing; listening to the tampura śṛuti carefully: who will sit in front of him; So you expect him to sing well; rāga; kalpana svaram; rāgam, tālam, pallavi, with difficult tāla; So the deliberate thinking is involved; but whatever the musician does; in the back of his mind; the tanpura śṛuti he does not miss; Similarly do not forget your destination; theevra mumukṣuhu bhava; this is the third stage; What is that; not forgetfulness of the goal;

Then what is the next one; मद्याजी भव madyājī bhava; convert everyone of your actions into worship of the Lord; contributing to spiritual growth; utilise every moment for spiritual growth; Whatever you do; remember, yat karośi; yad aśnasi; yad juhosi; dadasi yat; even eating can be converted into a purificatory right; very simple; what to do; you should not eat immediately what is served; So in some places, they start serving here and after serving the last leaf, and you turn, this first leaf is empty; They do not whether they have served or not; Do not do that; wait for a minute; do namaskara; and acknowledge that it is Lord gift and remember God; and eat; then eating becomes a spiritual sādānā; Convert everything into a spiritual sādānā, yajñā; Even sense pleasures can be converted into yajñā; We saw in the 4th chapter, dravya yajñā; tapō yajñāḥ; apanē juhvati prāṇam, etc. care of fourth chapter. Therefore madyājī bhava; worship Me through every action of yours; Become a karma yōgi; this is the 4th definition.

What is the fifth and final: Mām namaskuru; naturally you will progress spiritually; if you are following these four steps you will certainly grow spiritually; but remember, when you grow spiritually, do not become arrogant; Pride goes before a fall; therefore all the time: whatever growth I am getting is because of the grace of the Lord; and in future also; my success requires the grace of the Lord; Therefore Mām namaskuru; surrender to Me; under my shelter you follow all the spiritual sādānā; So thus madyājī indicates the use of freewill; Mām Namaskuru; indicates the importance of grace; Freewill is also important; Īśvara anugraha is important; both should go hand in hand.

So thus what are the five condition to be a bhaktha:

1. Develop devotion to Me.
2. Make Me as your ultimate goal;
3. Do not lose sight of Me as the goal;
4. Convert every moment of your life into a purificatory exercise; and
5. Always surrender to the Lord and do everything with Lord's blessings.

If these five conditions are fulfilled; what will happen to you: Krishna says; एवम् आत्मनम् युक्त्वा evam ātmanam yuktvā; thus engaging yourselves in this devotional life, religious life, vedic life, माम् एव एष्यसि mām eva eṣyasi; you will certainly attain Me alone; you will certainly attain mōkṣa. So thus bhakthi will take every person to Mōkṣa; whatever be the level of the person. Therefore let everyone start with devotion; and initial stages, the real nature of God need not be known, God can be imagined as a person; then gradually from ēka rūpa, you can go to an ēka rūpa, then you can go to arūpa; Start somewhere.

Om

I will give you a summary of the 9th chapter of the Gītā. The 9th chapter of the Gītā; is very similar to the 7th chapter and very much different from the 8th chapter; and therefore Lord Krishna wants to show the difference of the 9th chapter from the topic of the 8th chapter. In the eighth chapter, saguṇa īśvara upāsana was elaborately described. Saguṇa īśvara upāsana means meditation upon the Lord with various attributes; various virtues; and this saguṇa īśvara upāsana has the capacity to give liberation in an indirect manner. This method of getting liberation in an indirect manner is called kṛama mukthi; and this kṛama mukthi was discussed in the 8th chapter. And in this a person practices saguṇa īśvara upāsana throughout the life, without coming to the nirguṇa īśvara jñānam; without coming to Brahma jñānam; he avoids nirguṇa jñānam; and confines himself or herself to saguṇa upāsana; And we know that saguṇa upāsana cannot directly lead to liberation; and therefore it has to lead to liberation only in an indirect way. And what is that indirect method; as a result of saguṇa upāsana; a person travels after death; He will not merge in īśvara or Brahman, he will not get jīvan mukthi; he will not get vidēha mukthi also; but he will travel after death and go to Brahma lōkā. And how do we know, certainly we cannot see all these things; we come to know of these through scriptures. And scriptures point out that this saguṇa upāsaka will get all the ideal conditions for nirguṇa jñānam; in Brahma lōkā. What he successfully avoided here; he will have to face in Brahma lōkā, which means vēdānta śṛavana, manana, nidhidhyāsanam. He can convertibly do in Brahma lōkā, in very conducive circumstances, and that too given by not an ordinary ācārya; but by chaturmūka Brahma himself; and when the conditions are vēdānta ideal; and the teacher is wonderful; that upāsaka will get nirguṇa īśvara jñānam; in Brahma lōkā and as a result of that knowledge, he will become liberated. So this method of liberation is called kṛama mukthi. And what is the uniqueness of kṛama mukthi; a person will not come to jñāna yōga in manuṣya janma. A person will confine to only saguṇa upāsana throughout. And as I said before, Krishna is not interested in prescribing kṛama mukthi for us: Why he is not interested in prescribed kṛama mukthi: kṛama mukthi is postponement of the liberation to Brahma lōkā. As far as Krishna is concerned, he wants us to enjoy liberation in this janma itself; and therefore he wants to prescribe sadyō mukthi; as opposed to kṛama mukthi; he wants to prescribe sadyō mukthi; which means liberation here and now; jīvan eva mukthi is called sadyō mukthi; sadyaḥ, means instant; like instant idli; instant sambar; instant sevai; if you can have all these things instant; why not liberation? So like fast food restaurant; we have got fast liberation restaurant. And in this method what do we do; we practice saguṇa upāsana and having practised saguṇa upāsana for sometime, and having acquired enough qualifications or yōgyata; we switch over to nirguṇa jñānam in this janma itself; instead of postponing to Brahma lōkā. And switching over to nirguṇa jñānam is nothing but vēdānta vichāraḥ; Upaniṣad vichāraḥ; śṛavana manana nidhidhyāsanam; because in the Upaniṣad, the nature of the Lord discussed is nirguṇa nature;

यत् तदद्रेश्यमत्राह्यमगोत्रमवर्णमचक्षुः श्रोत्रं तदपाणीपादम् । Mundaka One.I. ६ ॥

yat tadadrēśyamatrāhyamagōtramavarṇamacakṣuḥ śrōtraṁ tadapāṇīpādām | Mundaka One.I. 6 ||

tathā:'rasaṁ nityamagandhavacca yat | || Part I. Canto III. 15||

Upaniṣad also discusses the nature of God; but not the saguṇa nature; but nirguṇa nature; studying the nirguṇa svarupām of Īśvara is: Īśvara jñānam; otherwise called jñāna yōgaha. And as a result of jñāna yōga; a person will attain what: nirguṇa Īśvara jñānam; the knowledge of the higher nature of God; saguṇa svarupām is considered lower nature; inferior nature.

In the 7th chapter, what was the word used, what was the name attributed to the saguṇa, inferior nature; aparā prakṛti. And for the nirguṇa higher nature of Lord, name given was parā prakṛti. And this parā prakṛti jñānam; a person attains here and now, and as a result of that; one enjoys jīvan mukthi; and later videha mukthi;

So thus in the seventh chapter, sadyō mukthi; in the 8th chapter, kṛama mukthi; and in the 9th chapter, again we come back to sadyō mukthi itself; that is why the 8th chapter is the odd chapter out; 7 and 9 both deal with nirguṇa īśvara jñānam; which is the liberating knowledge.

And when we talk about nirguṇa īśvara jñānam, a person may think that it is extremely difficult. Nirguṇa means too abstract, too subtle. Krishna says in the introduction, he talks about nirguṇa īśvara svarūpam and points out that it is easiest; it appears to be difficult for an unprepared mind, once you prepare your mind; nirguṇa īśvara jñānam is like swallowing peeled banana. In Tamil they say; உரிச்ச வாழ்ப்பழ் சாப்பிடறமாதிரி; uricca vālappaḷ cāppiṭaramātiri; naturally you will ask how should I prepare for nirguṇa īśvara jñānam; the preparation is saguṇa īśvara upāsana. And therefore the 9th chapter wants to deal with saguṇa īśvara upāsana, preparation of the mind, nirguṇa īśvara jñānam; liberation. This is the approach of the 9th chapter. With this background, you have to see the 9th chapter.

Now going to the text proper, the first three verses happen to be the introduction to the chapter and in the introduction Krishna mentions the subject matter of this chapter. And what is the subject matter; īśvara jñānam. And that too īśvara jñānam is the higher nature, parā prakṛti īśvara jñānam; nirguṇa svarupā jñānam; and since this knowledge is not available or accessible to the unprepared mind; this will remain a secret for the unprepared mind; like the theory of relativity; they say only a few people know; because it requires preparation. And therefore this knowledge; remains a secret for many, because many have not prepared the mind, therefore it is called rāja guhyam; the greatest secret, and at the same time, since this knowledge alone liberates a person, since this knowledge alone is the liberating knowledge; Krishna calls it rāja vidyā, the greatest knowledge. And this rāja vidyā rāja guhyam, otherwise known as nirguṇa īśvara jñānam is the subject matter of the 9th chapter; which he mentions in the first three verses.

And incidentally he mentions an important qualification which is also required. Among different preparations, one important preparation is śraddhaḥ; keeping an open mind, until I am able to understand; do not reject the teaching; do not reject the teacher; be patient, until you understand.

अप्राप्य मां निवर्तन्ते मृत्युसंसारवर्त्मनि ॥९.३॥

aśraddadhānāḥ puruṣā dharmasyāśya parantapa|
aprāpya māṃ nivartantē mṛtyusaṃsāravartmani||9.3||

If you reject the teaching; the loser is not the teaching; the loser is not the ṛiṣi; ṛiṣis are not going to lose. Anything if you do not study, and they are not going to study; you are the loser. Therefore if you want, you should have an open mind; this is the introduction in the first three verses.

Then from the 4th verse up to 10th verse, we get the central theme of the chapter, wherein Nirguṇa Īśvara svarūpam is revealed; the nature of the real God; the nature of the higher nature of God. And Nirguṇa Īśvaraḥ in Vēdānta is called Brahman; and therefore these seven verses deal with Brahma svarupām. And Krishna mentions a few important features or nature of Brahman extracted from the Upaniṣads. So nothing is Krishna's invention; everything is borrowed from the Upaniṣads; that is why at the end of each chapter, Bhagavad Gītāsu Upaniṣadsu.

What are the features mentioned, he will enumerate.

The first feature Krishna mentions is: Arjuna, the real I or real God is all-prevading; sarvagataḥ aham asmi; and therefore any personal God who is located in a place is not the real God; because real God does not have location; and therefore the idea that God is in Kailāsa, God is Vaikunta; God is in Brahma lōkā; Brahma is the Father in the heaven; all these are the inferior form of God; presented for the beginning of spirituality. We do not criticise that; we do not condemn that; we all require that; but that is not the ultimate; remember my statement, which is very important. Without saguṇa Īśvara, one cannot come to nirguṇa Īśvara; without nirguṇa Īśvara; remaining in saguṇa Īśvara is incomplete spirituality. And therefore, a sādakā has to go to saguṇa and then it has to culminate in nirguṇa. So therefore feature No.1: Īśvaraḥ sarvagataḥ;

And the second feature that Krishna mentions is that: avyakthaḥ aham; avyakthaḥ means indriya agōcara avyakthaḥ; not available for sensory perception; aśabdā, asparśam, arūpam, arasam, agandam Brahma. And therefore if anybody talks about seeing God with the eyes, Bhagavān's darśanam I saw with my eyes, we do not dismiss that darśanam; but what we say that the Lord of the darśanam of the aparā prakṛti nature. Why, if you have seen, it is not the real God; and therefore indriya agocharaha Īśvaraḥ; what is the word used here; avyaktham.

And the third feature that Krishna mentions is mithyā jagat adiṣṭānam; the Lord is the support of the world which has got only a lower order of reality; which is unreal, compared to the higher order. Just as the dream world is real from the standpoint of the dreaming individual; but the dream world is unreal from the standpoint of the waker. Similarly this world is real from the standpoint of the waking individual; but this world is unreal from the standpoint of the parā prakṛti; the higher nature. And therefore what is the third definition; Lord is the substratum of the unreal world, or the world of a lesser order of reality; In Sanskrit, mithyā jagat adiṣṭānam; If you remember Lalitha Sahasranamam, one of the nāma is

lasya priya layakari, lajja rambadhitha vanditha;

mithyā jagat adiṣṭānam; this is the third feature;

Then the fourth feature is Lord is asaṅga svarupāḥ; asaṅgaḥ means what; even though Lord is the support of this entire world; the impurities of the world do not sully the Lord, the āśraya. Because normally if a dirty object is kept over a pure cloth, what happens, the dirt of the object, will sully the cloth, because the āśrayaḥ is sullied by the aśṛita; the object. This is the normal convention; but in the case of Īśvara, Īśvara supports the whole world, but the impurities do not taint him; And therefore Lord is compared to ākāśaḥ; just as the space accommodates everything; without getting sullied by anything. Lord is ākāśavat asaṅga svarūpaḥ; this is the fourth feature.

Then the fifth feature that is mentioned is Īśvara is sṛṣṭi, sthithi, laya kāraṇam; jagatha; the higher nature of the Lord is the very cause of the origination; existence and the resolution of the creation;

यथाकाशस्थितो नित्यं वायुः सर्वत्रगो महान् । तथा सर्वाणि भूतानि मत्स्थानीत्युपधारय ॥९.६॥
yathā"kāśasthitō nityaṃ vāyuḥ sarvatragō mahān|
tathā sarvāṇi bhūtāni sthānītyupadhāraya || 9.6 ||

all Upaniṣadic ideas Bhagavān has dumped it here completely; this is jagat kāraṇatvatvam;

Then the next feature is this: If you say Īśvara is the creator of the universe; then it appears that Īśvara is also a kartā; because creator means He is doing something; He is doing a big job; He is creating the vast universe; preserving this universe, which means even the earthquakes, etc. must be his job; And because of that millions are dying; who must be responsible; Īśvara; He quakes the earth; we do not do it; So if Īśvara is doing all these work; Īśvara must become kartā, bhoktā; then if Īśvara kartā and bhoktā; He will have puṇyam, pāpam etc. such a doubt will come; And therefore Krishna says: I do not create anything; in my presence, sākṣi matrēṇa; the creation arises, exists and resolves.

Just as the light is only present in the hall, the light is not responsible for the type of activity that we do; One person may do noble activity in the light; another person may do an ignoble activity in the presence of light; but light did not get the good result or the bad result; Similarly Īśvara is sūrya alōkāvāt; sākṣi mātram; this is the next feature.

And the last one which is corollary of this; Since the Lord is only the witness; Lord does not have kartṛtvaṃ or bhōkṛtvaṃ; kartṛtva bhōkṛtva rahita; kartṛtvaṃ means doership; bhōkṛtvaṃ means enjoyership; both do not belong to Īśvara; So these are the features of the higher nature of the Lord; that is Brahman. This is the portion from verse No.4 to 10.

Then in the 11th verse, Krishna pointed out why there is samsāra; Why there is suffering in the world; samsāra kārānam kim? Krishna says: samsāra kārāna is ignorance of this Īśvara; This Īśvara means what: the higher Īśvara; nirguṇam Īśvara; ajñānam ēva; parā prakṛti ajñānam ēva; Brahma ajñānam ēva samsāra kārānam; Why do we say so; you cannot just say so; You have to give logic. Nirguṇam Brahma alone is beyond time and space. It is nirguṇam Brahma, only because it is beyond time and space.

What do you mean by Nirguṇam: attributeless. And anything other than nirguṇa Brahma, that is saṅguṇam Brahma, which comes under aparā prakṛti, is within time and space. The moment you come to properties, it is subject to change; there will be increase; there will be decrease; you will take your own physical properties; is it the same. in a few days it is suddenly changing to this side; and then to the other side; therefore increase is there; decrease is there; complexion changes, hair changes; changes or disappears; Can you tell any properties that is changeless;

Therefore saṅuṅa īśvara, aparā prakṛti means within time and space, which means it is subject to decay and it is subject to disappearance and it is subject to association and disassociation and whatever is subject to time cannot give you security. Whatever is subject to time cannot give you security; Why; because time will destroy.

हरति निमेषात्कालः सर्वम् |
mā kuru dhana jana yauvana garvaṁ
harati nimēṣātkālaḥ sarvaṁ |

And therefore if I do not know parā prakṛti; what will I do, I will seek security from aparā prakṛti; Parā prakṛti if I understand, you will know where you will get security; and once I do not know parā prakṛti; I will seek peace, I will seek happiness; I will seek permanance, I will seek security in the fluctuating, highly fleeting, ephermal aparā prakṛti and when hold on to aparā prakṛti; what happens; right under my nose. It disappears; if it does not disappear, I disappear; either one; aparā prakṛti is the caus of all our struggles; because expectation can never be fulfilled; we will be disappointed; we will be frustrated; and you will get angry with the Lord also.

So therefore what is the cause of samsāra; wrong expectation; and what wrong expectation is; permanance from aparā prakṛti; and why do we expect permanance from aparā prakṛti; because we do not know that parā prakṛti is the real permanant. So 11th verse points out that ignornace is the cause of samsāra.

Then from 12th verse up to 19th verse, the remedy is given; and what is the remedy; Bhakthi is given as the remedy; and when we say bhakthi, we should remember very very clearly; bhakthi is not a sadana, but bhakthi is a serious of sadana culminating in jñānam; Bhakthi should culminate in jñānam; Why, because the problem is ajñānam; if ignorance is the problem, the only solution is knowledge;

विद्याविद्यां निहन्त्येव तेजस्तिमिरसङ्घवत् ॥ ३॥
avirōdhitayā karma nāvidyāṁ vinivartayēt |
vidyāvīdyāṁ nihantyēva tējastimirasaṅghavat || 3||

Śankara beautifully says in Ātma bōdha; if darkness is the problem; what is the solution. You want to remove the darkness; and suppose you take a broomstick and sweep darkness; all together, collective endeavour; kara seva; You go on sweeping, 12 hours, What happens; you get tired; and another person does yōgasana; In this darkness, at the end of yōgasana, will darkness go: No; another person chants viṣṇu sahasranama; viṣṇu sahasranama is very good; but it cannot remove darkness, Very simple, light a lamp; similarly Krishna has pointed out nirguṇa Brahma; ajñānam is Brahma; therefore nirguṇa Brahma jñānam alone is the solution. Therefore, bhakthi must be a series of sādānā which should culminate in jñānam.

And this series of bhakthi sadana has three levels; which will be clearly discussed in the 12th chapter, but it is indicated in this chapter,

What are the three levels of bhakthi; karma rupā bhakthi; upāsana rupā bhakthi and vēdānta vicāraḥ rupā bhakthi;

first level of bhakthi should be in the form of karma yōga; wherein we dedicate every action to the Lord;

यत्करोषि यदश्नासि यज्जुहोषि ददासि यत् । यत्तपस्यसि कौन्तेय तत्कुरुष्व मदर्पणम् ॥९.२७॥
yat karōṣi yadaśnāsi yajjuhōṣi dadāsi yat|
yat tapasyasi kauntēya tat kuruṣva madarpaṇam||9.27||

be active; do a lot of karma; but convert every karma into a worship and this level of bhakthi is called karma rupā bhakthi; bhakthi in the form of action;

And thereafter we have to graduate to the next level of bhakthi called upāsana rupā bhakthi; because the extrovert mind has to be turned inward; karma has a knack of making me extrovert; whether it is selfish activity or selfless activity; many people who have been very active doing selfish activity, they cannot sit and study vēdānta; They will have to do something; because they are highly restless people; You can serve the society wonderful; but a time should come when we should turn away from that; Giving the service to the next generation; I do not say do not do it; but hand it over to the next generation; and then we have to train our mind to turn inward; antarmuka samarādhyā bahir muka sudurlabhaha; an extrovert mind cannot absorb vēdānta; And therefore how to turn the mind inwards; upāsana rupā bhakthi; bhakthi in the form of meditation; saguṇa meditation only; this is also bhakthi; but it is second stage.

And then we have to come to third and final stage of bhakthi; which is called vēdānta vichāraḥ rupā bhakthi; jñāna yōga rupā bhakthi; in which I study the scriptures; shravana manana nidhidhyasana. In fact when you are attending the class; you are only practising only jñāna rupā bhakthi only; In the fourth chapter, Krishna called it jñāna yajñāha; not only Krishna called this jñāna yajñā; Krishna even pointed out that jñāna yajñā is superior to all other forms of yajñā; Where did He say this;

सर्वं कर्माखिलं पार्थ ज्ञाने परिसमाप्यते ॥ ४.३३ ॥
śrēyān mayādyajñājñānayajñāḥ parantapa |
sarvaṃ karmākḥilaṃ pārtha jñānē parisamāpyatē || 4.33 ||

Therefore we have to come to jñāna lakṣaṇa bhakthi; and when a person has gone through all this three levels of bhakthi, he becomes what; jñāni bhakthaha; Jñāni bhakthaḥ, a devotee with the knowledge of īśvaraḥ; Which īśvara; aparā prakṛti or parā prakṛti; jñāni of parā prakṛti; nirguṇa Brahma jñānam and how will be that knowledge. We are seeing that on Saturday classes:

मय्येव सकलं जातं मति सर्वं पोरतिष्ठितम् ।
मयि सर्वं लयं याति तद्ब्रह्मादवयमस्म्यहम् ॥ Kaivalya. I. १९ ॥
mayyēva sakalaṃ jātaṃ mati sarvaṃ pōratīṣṭhitam |
mayi sarvaṃ layaṃ yāti tadbrahmādvayamasmyaham || Kaivalya. I. 19 ||

That is correct jñānam; we need not go to that now; we will see that later; nirguṇa īśvara jñāni bhakthaḥ;

So when I say bhakthi leads to liberation; we should remember bhakthi which consists of all the three levels of sādānā, If you do only bhajana; you will not get jñānam. That is only first stage of bhakthi; only meditation if you do, jñānam will not be there; you have to study the scriptures; under the guidance of a competent acharya; who says: do not say that I am promoting myself; Krishna tells this:

उपदेक्ष्यन्ति ते ज्ञानं ज्ञानिनस्तत्त्वदर्शिनः ॥ ४.३४ ॥

tadviddhi praṇipātēna paripraśnēna sēvayā |
upadēkṣyanti tē jñānaṃ jñāninastattvadarśinaḥ || 4.34 ||

Arjuna you have to necessarily go to an ācārya. And in the Upaniṣad, tad vijñāartham gurumevadi gacheed; api gachet;

samidpaani stothriyam Brahma nishtam;

Thus when bhakti consisting of all these three stages; is followed, then he becomes a jñāni; and such a jñāni; is liberated.

So thus bhakthi as a means of liberation was pointed out and Krishna said that to become a bhaktha; whatever be the level; to become a bhaktha, a person should have done lot of puṇyam; Those who do not have enough puṇyam; they will never like coming to any level of bhakthi; they will never come to karma, upāsana and they will never come to jñānam; they will be wandering.

rākṣasīmāsurim caiva prakṛtim mōhinim śritāḥ || 9. 12 ||

So they are confused, misguided people; whereas fortunate ones will come either to karma lakshana bhakthi; and if he is already advanced, he will come to upāsana lakshana bhakthi and suppose you still advance, lot a spiritual genius, they will directly come to jñāna rupā bhakthi. This is the topic from verse 12 to 19.

Then from 20 to 29, Krishna talks of two forms of bhakthi; based on the motive; previously we divided bhakthi into three levels; based on the type of sādhanā; so the previous one is sādhanā based division; the present one is motive based division; bhāvana based division;

sādanā based division: how much; three; karma, upāsana; jñānam;

bhāvana based division; two; one is called sakāma bhakthi; and another is called niṣkāma bhakthi;

And what is the difference in the motive; which is indicated by the sankalpa; mamopaatha, samasta, durikshya dvara, shree parameshvara preethyartham; (up to this common); Then afterwards, what list is he making; how does he fill up the blanks. So if a person is a indiscriminate, unintelligent manthāḥ; Kathopaniṣad beautifully says:

श्रेयश्च प्रेयश्च मनुष्यमेतः

तौ सम्परीत्य विविनक्ति धीरः ।

श्रेयो हि धीरोऽभि प्रेयसो वृणीते

प्रेयो मन्दो योगक्षेमाद्वृणीते ॥ Part I. Canto2. Mantra.२॥

śrēyaśca prēyaśca manuṣyamētaḥ

tau samparītya vivinakti dhīraḥ |

śrēyō hi dhīrō:'bhi prēyasō vṛṇītē

prēyō mandō yōgakṣēmādvṛṇītē || Part I. Canto2. Mantra.2||

Bhakthi can be used for infinite goal also; bhakthi can be used for finite goal also; Intelligent person will use bhakthi for infinite. These idiots, manthāḥ; they will use bhakthi for ephemeral ones; manthāḥ prēyaḥ vṛṇītē; Election is coming; therefore you should select and elect the proper one; Therefore sakāma bhakthas are the unintelligent ones; therefore they use the bhakthi for all the ephemeral goals; prēyaḥ; or dhamārta kāmaha;

But Krishna says, it only reveals their non-discrimination; but one thing even sakāma bhakthi will be valid and fruitful; because it is not a pāpa karma; it does not mean any pāpam; if a person takes to sakāma bhakthi, I will certainly fulfil his desires. But he will happen; he will enjoy the benefit; te tam bhuktvā svargalōkā visalam; kshine puṇyē martya lōkām viśanti. There life will be the snake and ladder game; will be climbing very very fast in the ladder and also come down faster through the snake mouth; and again go up and come down; endlessly this game goes on and on and on; this is sakama bhakthi; Whereas niṣkāma bhakthās are those people, who have understood nithya vastu alone can give lasting security; Parā prakṛti alone can give me peace, security and happiness; And therefore if at all he uses bhakthi; he will use the things connected with parā prakṛti jñānam;

So he if he does not have a prepared mind, he will utilise the mind for preparing the mind; Oh Lord; make my mind ready for the knowledge; It is inbuilt in sandyavandanam.

ओं आपो हि ष्टा मयो भुवः ॥ ता न ऊर्जे दधातन ॥ महे रणाय चक्षसे ॥ यो वः शिवतमो रसः ॥ तस्य
भाजयतेफ नः ॥ उश्तीरिव मातरः ॥ तस्यमा अरंगमाम वः ॥ यस्य क्षयाय जिन्वथ ॥ आपो जनयथा च नः ॥
ओं भूर्भुव सुवः ॥

om āpo hi ṣṭā mayō bhuvah || tā na ūrjē dadhātana || mahē raṇāya cakṣasē || yō vaḥ śivatamo
rasah || tasya bhājayatēfa nah || uśtīriva mātarah || tasyamā arāṅgamāma vah || yasya kṣayāya
jinvatha || āpo janayathā ca nah || om bhūrbhuva suvah ||

So mahē raṇāya cakṣasē means whatever I need for Brahma jñānam; I do not know; kindly fill up that; that is your job; and a beautifully example is given; Just as a mother decides what type of food should be given at the right age; the child does not know; even injections are there; So many are there; bcj; dtp. whatever the injections; the child does not know; mother gives the appropriate one; Similarly I do not know what qualifications are required; It is your job to choose the required qualifications and inject me; uśtīriva mātarah; What a mantrah; like the suckling mother; mother gives milk from her own body; which is ideally suited for the child's growth; not permanently milk; after some age, kuzham, rice, etc. just as a mother gives; Oh Lord, citta śuddhi; asking for citta śuddhi is also niṣkāma bhakthi; asking for a guru is niṣkāma bhakthi; asking for an appropriate opportunity to study is niṣkāma bhakthi; after coming to the class, asking for continuity is niṣkāma bhakthi; And if you do not understand the class; asking for Oh Lord I do not understand, that is niṣkāma bhakthi; After understanding, if you keep forgetting, asking for non-forgetfulness is niṣkāma bhakthi;

And having talked about niṣkāma bhakthi; Bhagavān says: sakāma bhakthi is very very difficult to practice and the result is finite; niṣkāma bhakthi is the highest result; and it is very easy to practice; So how unintelligent people should be; they practice difficult bhakthi; they pay more; and get less. whereas niṣkāma bhakthi pays less and gets what: not more but the infinite itself!

So bhakthi is full of rules and regulations; when should be the pūja be done; what dakshina must be given; what naivēdayam should be offered. And any mistake, you have to do prayascittam; mantra lōpē, tantra lōpē, kriya lōpē, that is prayascitta mantra; the prayascitta mantra says: If I have chanted any mantra wrongly, Oh Lord please forgive me; but the problem prayascitta mantra itself is chanted wrongly; mantra lōbhē, it is not mantra lōbham is: it is mantra lōpē, for prayascitta mantra you require another prayascittam; It is ad-infinitum problem. So sakama bhakthi all these things are very important; in niṣkāma bhakthi;

तदहं भक्त्युपहृतम् अश्नामि प्रयतात्मनः ॥९.२६॥
patraṃ puṣpaṃ phalaṃ tōyaṃ yō mē bhaktyā prayacchati |
tadahaṃ bhaktyupahr̥tamaśnāmi prayatātmanah||9.26||

So thus Krishna differentiated sakāma -niṣkāma bhakthi and he expects all intelligent people to follow niṣkāma bhakthi. And if you are not able to follow: Swamiji I have so many desires: OK; you are allowed to postpone; some more time you spent for the home; but your aim should be the proportion should gradually become lesser and lesser; Let it be a long-term target; and this is from verse No.20 and 29.

And from verse No.30 to 34; Krishna completes this teaching by glorifying bhakthi and what is the greatness of bhakthi; Since bhakthi has got several layers, it is like a flight of steps; it is like maadipadi, beginning from the lowest rung of the ladder; karma lakṣaṇa bhakthi; then upāsana lakṣaṇa bhakthi; and then jñāna lakṣaṇa; Since it has many rung, anybody can start bhakthi; according to his level; Not that you have to study nirguṇam Brahma; you need not start there; Start with karma yōga; very easy; even you can practice sakāma karma; but dedicate it to the Lord, We will see the details in the 12th chapter; thus anybody can start bhakthi; whatever be the level.

And Krishna goes one step further, even if a person has been a very very corrupt person, taking to all kinds of negative activities, even that person need not entertain guilt; because guilt is one of the most powerful obstacles; because guilt leads to diffidence; and diffidence is the greatest obstacle because if I am diffident; even if all others are confident; no use; on the other hand, if I am confident, even if all others are diffident, I will work; and therefore spiritual sadana requires self-confidence; and all others can only encourage; I have to be confident; in a running race, mother, father, brothers, etc. they can clap the hands; they can cheer you up; come on, etc. buy who has to run; the running has to be done only by the child only; Similarly the spiritual sādānā, I have to do; guru can encourage; śāstra can encourage, Bhagavān can encourage; and biggest obstacle to confidence is guilt; and therefore Krishna says never have guilt, once you have understood that your lifestyle has been unhealthy; decide to change; once you have turned a new leaf; and decided to change, the very decision makes you a saint;

साधुरेव स मन्तव्यः सम्यग्व्यवसितो हि सः ॥९.३०॥
api cēt sudurācārō bhajatē māmananyabhāk|
sādhurēva sa mantavyaḥ samyagvyavasitō hi saḥ||9.30||

And not only that, there may be some people who have got disadvantages because of their very birth; because of their parentage; because of their location, etc. There can be people with inherent disadvantages but even those disadvantaged people can practice bhakthi and attain liberation.

And therefore Arjuna: be a bhaktha and how to be a bhaktha, He said in the last verse; the definition of a bhaktha, beautifully presented.

First madbhaktā bhava; first you learn to love Me; at least for the sake of worldly goals; does not matter; that is first stage;

Then in due course, learn to love Me as the very goal itself; can you understand the difference between these two stages: in the first stage, Bhagavān is not the goal; through Bhagavān I want to achieve worldly ends; next stage is madparaayanaha; keep Me as the goal;

Then the third stage is never forget this goal; manmanā bhava;

Then the fourth stage is convert your very life into a form of worship, taking you towards the goal; madyājī bhava;

And then the first and final factor is even when you are progressing, remember the grace of the Lord is required; therefore be humble; Mām namaskuru; Never become arrogant because of your spiritual progress; Then the snake will take you down; therefore be humble; seek the grace of the Lord.

If these five factors are taken care of, you are My bhaktha; and sooner or later, you will certainly attain Me; mām ēva iṣyasi.

So with this glorification of bhakthi, Krishna concludes this particular discourse. And the since the subject matter is rāja vidyā rāja guhyam, the chapter is called rāja vidyā rāja guhya yōgaḥ.

CHAPTER - TEN

The Yōga of Divine Manifestation

अथ दशमोऽध्यायः | विभूतियोगः

In the chapters beginning from the 7th chapter of the Gītā, Lord Krishna has been primarily dealing with Īśvara svarūpam or the nature of God. It is a progressive topic; progressively developed by Krishna in these chapters. In the 7th chapter, he dealt with the nature of God; in the 8th and in the 9th chapter, also we discussed the same topic; and in the following chapters, 10, 11 and 12th also; this will be the central theme. In the preceding three chapters, Lord Krishna defined God as Jagat kāraṇam. Jagat kāraṇam means the cause of the universe. And Krishna also talked about the nature of God; pointing out that God consists of two aspects; one known as parā prakṛti, the higher nature; and the other known as aparā prakṛti, the lower nature. And we also saw parā prakṛti is of the nature of consciousness and the aparā prakṛti is of the nature of matter. Thus basic matter principle plus the Consciousness principle, this put together is God.

And we saw what are the common features of these two aspects and what are the un-common features also. What is the common feature we saw; Consciousness is also beginningless. Matter is also beginningless; consciousness therefore cannot be created; matter also cannot be also created. This uncreated-beginningless-consciousness-matter-unit or composite is called Īśvaraḥ.

And we also saw their differences. Parā prakṛti or consciousness is not subject to change; it is changeless principle, whereas the matter principle is subject to change, is subject to evolution to become this universe, Matter is capable of evolving; and not only it is subject to evolution; after sometime it is subject to involution also; Involution means folding back into again the fundamental form. Thus matter expands and contracts; it is subject to change; therefore aparā prakṛti, the matter is savikāram; the parā prakṛti, the consciousness is nirvikāram; Parā prakṛti the consciousness is nirguṇam; free from all attributes or properties and therefore not available for any type of study; all scientific studies are based on attributes and properties; consciousness is free from all attributes; therefore it is not available for an instrument of experimentation; Nirguṇam; whereas matter, the aparā prakṛti is full of attributes; therefore it is saguṇa satvam;

And then finally, we made one more point; which is not very much relevant here; but an aside note, that is consciousness is satyam; having independence; svatantram; whereas matter is mithya; it is parā tantram, depending on consciousness. Thus cētanam-acētanam; nirvikāram-savikāram; nirguṇam-saguṇam; satyam-mithya; such consciousness-matter mixture is called God.

And this alone is symbolically presented as the father principle and the mother principle. Do not ask me which is father and mother, I do not want to create problems for you; Since they are two inseparable principles, parā and aparā, we compare it to the inseparable made-for-each-other, really made for each other couple!!. Never taking to divorce. In fact, impossible.

जगतः पितरौ वन्दे पार्वतीपरमेश्वरौ॥ १-१ ॥

vāgarthāviva saṁpṛktau vāgarthapratipattaye |

jagataḥ pitarau vande pārvatīparameśvarau || 1-1 || Raghuvamsam – Prarthana Sloka

Kalidāsa says just as a word and its meaning can never be separated, vāgarthau iva. Like that parā and aparā prakṛti; are like the father and the mother principle. And this God is jagat kāraṇam; which means God is responsible for the emergence of this universe.

And the understanding of kāraṇam status is generally done in three stages; depending on the maturity of the student. For a beginner, God as the cause is presented in one way; and once a person is slightly mature; the presentation is modified to suit the intellectual capacity and then we have got a third level for the most advanced student, I have talked about this before; I am just reminding you.

For the first level of student; we say God creates this world; God is the creator of the world and comparison is given; just as a carpenter creates the furniture; just as goldsmith produces the ornaments; similarly God is the creator of the world; in Sanskrit we use the word nimitha kāraṇam. And at this level, when we say God is the creator; the students assumes God as a person; as a human being; because when you imagine a creator; the creator has to be an intelligent principle, skilled person and therefore God also is like a human being. And naturally you will like to know where is He; carpenter should have an address? what is the address of that creator God. In the beginning stage, we have to give an appropriate answer, I cannot give the local Adyar, Besant Nagar address; and therefore I give the address c/o vaikunthaḥ;

rukmiṇī satyabhāmābhyām sahitaṁ kṛṣṇamāśrayē || 7 ||

So where is the Lord; pārijāta vrikṣasya chāyāyām; In Vaikuntha; pārijāta vrikṣam is there; In the shade of that tree; chāyā means shade and not the tea as in Hindi; chāyāyām. And there also hēmasimhāsanōpari; swarna simhāsanam; āsīnam beautifully seated; ambudaśyāmam; dark like a cloud; āyatākṣam; means one who has a got a beautiful long eye; alaṅkṛtam; various ornaments; candrānanam; (some bharatha natya students are there; therefore looking at them I get inspired) candrānanam means having a beautiful moonlike face; caturbāhum; śrīvatsāṅkita vakṣasam; rukmiṇī satyabhāmābhyām sahitaṁ kṛṣṇamāśrayē.

This is the creator: Viṣṇū. How he creates; out of Viṣṇū's navel comes Brahmā; Viṣṇū does not directly, he only creates Brahmāji and thereafter hands over the creation job; employs Brahmāji; only one He creates; thereafter others should create; So this is the idea of God as a creator; for a beginner, wherein God is a person. And this will help a beginner; it is wonderful; it is useful for meditation also.

And once a person has remained in this state for sometime, when the mind is mature; when the mind begins to ask further questions; how can infinite God be located; questions will come; how can infinite God be located; and where did God find the materials for creating the world; when such questions come; we have the next stage of teaching. What is that; God creates the universe is equal to God himself manifests as the universe; because for God to create, there is no outside material; a carpenter has got a piece of wood outside; goldsmith has got a piece of gold outside, but when God has to create, where he will find the raw material. In fact even ākāśa itself is not there; even the pañca bhūtam is not there; where will the Lord find the material; the scriptures point out that the Lord finds the material also in himself. And the Upaniṣads gives the example; यथोर्णनाभिः सूजते गूह्यते च yathōrṇanābhiḥ sūjatē gūhṇtē ca (Mundaka One 1.7). Just as a spider finds the material in itself; for creating the web; Lord finds the material in his own body; because he consists of not only consciousness principle, He consists of matter principle also; Therefore Lord does not create the world. Lord himself manifests as the world; At this stage, in Sanskrit we use the word, Īśvaraḥ, jagat parināmi upādhana kāraṇam. That is the technical word. What is the Sanskrit word; nimitha kāraṇam; God is seen as a person somewhere.

The second stage we say God himself becomes God himself manifests as the universe; that once I know that God himself manifests as the universe, I will never ask the question, where is God; why I wont ask the question; God himself or herself is available in the form of the creation. Therefore ākāśa is the manifestation of God; Vāyu is manifestation of God; This we saw in the seventh chapter;

praṇavaḥ sarvavēdēṣu śabdaḥ khē pauruṣaṃ nṛṣu || 7.8 ||

Therefore the sunlight is not created by God; sunlight itself is the manifestation of God. Therefore I worship the rising Sun.

What a beautiful Rudra mantra; Lord Śiva is daily raising in the form of the colorful Sun; initially dark red; thereafterwards golden yellow; thereafterwards bright white; in the month of March, at 12 noon; look up. Do not look, you will lose your eyes; and the Rudra says that this Lord Rudra darṣanam is available for all the gōpis; all the gōpās, all the shepards also; without going to the temple, because they have no time; they have to take the cow and even they get the darṣanam; And the ladies who are carrying water: udahāryaḥ; you would have seen; they would have even three pots and they talking and even quarrelling they walk, the pot would not fall; in the village you see this; even those women who do not go to the temple, Bhagavān wants to give darṣanam to them; and what way they have darṣanam; in the form of Sūrya; And not only for the illiterate people; even for the most evolved dvija; who performs sandhyāvandanam by mistake; (if anyone does today, it seems to be a mistake!) even they worship, Therefore once you come to the second level; What is the second level; God has become the universe; for Me; God darṣanam is always available. And what is the body of the Lord; भूः पादौ यस्य नाभिविद्यदसुरनिलश्चन्द्र सूर्यो च नेत्रे bhūḥ pādau yasya nābhirviyadasuranilaścandra sūryau ca nētrē; the whole cosmos is the avathāra of the Lord; is the manifestation of the Lord; I need not stand in a big queue whether it is dharma darṣanam or special darṣanam. Dharma darṣanam or non-dharma darṣanam; I do not have to wait in queue, open the eyes, the Lord is there. This is called viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; for more mature people; This is the second stage. And it is the second stage that is elaborated in chapters 7, 9, 10 and 11; In all these chapters, for madhyama adhikāris Lord as viśvarūpam.

And if a person is able to dwell upon this remain in this appreciation for sufficiently long time; then we have the final stage, which cannot be easily accepted and what is that; God does not create the universe; God does not become the universe; because becoming means undergoing change. Then what is that; God apparently appears as the universe. Therefore the universe is a false manifestation of the Lord. In which stage alone we say the universe is unreal; Brahmā satyam, jagat mithya.

But to appreciate the universe as unreal; it requires tremendous intellectual and emotional maturity and therefore that is kept as the final stage; which we will see from the 13th chapter onwards; but in these chapters, what is the topic, God manifests as the universe. Therefore the whole universe is nothing but the Lord himself; sarvaṁ viśnū mayam jagath.

And once I am able to appreciate this; this is viśva rūpa darṣanam; divinisation of this world. In the first stage God is elsewhere; He is sitting there; world is elsewhere; both are in different places. And God is sacred and the world is secular or still worse; so we have a sacred-secular-dichotomy in the beginning stage; once you have come to the middle stage; I do not separate God and world; because God alone is in the form of world; just as Gold alone is in the form of ornaments; wood alone is in the form of furniture; I cannot say God and world; when you use "and" two things should be separate; "gold and ornaments" can you say: No. because there are no ornaments other than gold; you cannot say "wood and furniture" because there are no furniture other than wood. Similarly I cannot say God and world; because there is no world separate from, other than God. Therefore, to see the Bhagavān, I do not have to go to the temple or to close the eyes: pārtha idam yellām; pārkum idam yenga neekka; a beautiful Tamil line is there. Wherever you see, is nothing but Īśvaraḥ.

And once you have got this vision, whatever glory is there in the creation; any glory, the glory of the Sun, as the uninterrupted power supply, the original UPS is sūrya bhavan; Our UPS is not uninterrupted; the real UPS is Lord Surya; how long; for how many billions of years, it has been giving powers what is the amount of energy it sends; you will soon know in the month of March April in Chennai. Now we are under the roof; Sun has already set; but even now, you can see; what an energy; and we are trying to imitate the Sun; we have not been able to; still power is a problem. So Surya is a glorious thing and then you can take so many things in the creation; glory of earth; the glory of water, the most ingenious chemical ever made is water. And therefore Krishna wants to say that since God is everything, any glory found anywhere in the creation, that belongs to God alone.

What about my glory; a doubt will arise in that. First question is do you have glory; that itself is doubtful; let us assume we have some glory; Krishna wants to say that also belongs to God alone, because you are also a mixture of aparā prakṛti; the matter aspect and parā prakṛti, the consciousness aspect, aparā prakṛti belongs to the inferior aspect of the Lord; parā prakṛti belongs to the superior aspect of the Lord. Now tell me where are you; and therefore, give of all the glories to the Lord.

And this seeing of all the Vibhūthis as God's vibhūthi is Vibhūthi darśanam; and the greatest advantage is we will be humble; because we never claim any credit; if you remember morning class, Kenōpaniṣad, even dēvās became proud of their capacity and God had to teach a lesson even to dēvās. And similarly here also off and on, pride rises its hood, if you remember vibūthi yōgaḥ; I will be humble.

And not only that; when I see any glory in any other person, I will see that also as the glory of the Lord. And therefore there is no comparison of two people. Suppose I have some glory and you have some glory; then we have to fight; who is more glorious; I now I have no glory; no glory; means what my glory belongs to the Lord and I also know that your glory also belongs to God; there is only one source of all glories. Where is the question of jealousy; so for a real bhaktha, viśva rūpa bhaktha, arrogance will never come; jealousy will never come; because he sees Īśvara vibūthi everywhere. And it is this transformation that Lord Krishna wants to bring in our mind; What transformation, seeing the glory of the Lord everywhere and since this is the topic, sarvathra Īśvara vibūthi darṣanam is the topic. This chapter is called vibūthi yōgaḥ. With this background, we will enter into the chapter proper.

श्रीभगवान् उवाच śrībhagavān uvāca the Lord said महाबाहो mahābāho Oh ! Arjuna भूयः एव bhūyaḥ eva once again शृणु śrṇu may you listen to, मे परमं वचः me parāmaṃ vacaḥ My supreme words यद् अहम् yad aham which I हितकाम्यया hitakāmyayā wishing your welfare वक्ष्यामि ते vakṣyāmi te shall tell you, प्रियमाणाय priyamāṇāya who are delighted.

1. The Lord said --- Oh Arjuna! Once again may you listen to My supreme words which I, wishing your welfare, shall tell you who are delighted.

So in this chapter, we do not find any question from Arjuna, and therefore we come to know that Krishna himself volunteers to talk more about Īśvara svarūpam. Krishna gives the answer; Hey Arjuna you are very very dear student to Me. And it is very rare to get nice students; And now that you are here in front of Me, I want to make use of that opportunity. Just as śiṣyās are interested in good gurus; in the same way, gurus are also interested in good śiṣyās; because good śiṣyās inspire the guru and guru's creativity is activated when there is an inquisitive responding face. If the śiṣyā's face is Castrol one, of and on looking at the watch, Guru will forget what little he knows; In Kathōpaniṣad; Yamadharmarāja himself congratulates Nachiketas, and Yamadharmarāja offers prayers to the Lord: Oh Lord; May I get more disciples like Nachiketas; Svadrunno Bhuyaat Nachiketa braṣṭa. Like that Krishna has got a wonderful śiṣyā in Arjuna and therefore Krishna says Arjuna, I am inspired; therefore I am going to continue; Therefore Hē mahābāhō Arjuna, भूयः एव मे परमं वचः शृणु bhūyaḥ eva; mē paramaṃ vacaḥ śrṇu; may you once again listen to my supreme words.

What do you mean supreme words; words are always the same; how can you say words are supreme or not. So the here supreme words means words which are dealing with the supreme law. Therefore the words are called supreme words. So about the nature of God I want to tell more

And what is the reason, प्रियमाणाय ते priyamāṇāya tē; to you who are very very dear disciple of Me; priyamāṇāya means favourite disciple. Of course, guru should not have favourite and non-favourite disciple; here the idea is: that you are responding one; priyamāṇāya;

And not only I see you as a dear disciple with srāddha; I am teaching because this teaching is beneficial to you; hitakaamyaya vakṣyāmi; this topic is useful to you; this knowledge will help you in getting liberation; Therefore हितकाम्यया hitakāmyayā means hita iccayā; for your own benefit. The idea is Krishna is not going to get any benefit out of it; because Krishna does not require any benefit. Remember third chapter-

na mē pārthāsti kartavyaṃ triṣu lōkēṣu kiñcana |
nānavāptamavāptavyaṃ varta ēva ca karmaṇi ||3.22 ||

I have nothing to accomplish in this universe; still out of compassion for you, I am going to teach you more.

न मे विदुः सुरगणाः प्रभवं न महर्षयः । अहमादिर्हि देवानां महर्षीणां च सर्वशः ॥ १०.२ ॥
na mē viduḥ suragaṇāḥ prabhavaṃ na maharṣayaḥ |
ahamādirhi dēvānāṃ maharṣīṇāṃ ca sarvaśaḥ || 10.2 ||

न सुरगणाः na suragaṇāḥ neither the Gods न महर्षयः na maharṣayaḥ nor the great sages विदुः viduḥ know मे प्रभवम् me prabhavam My origin हि अहम् आदिः hi aham ādiḥ because I am the origin देवानाम् devānām of the gods च महर्षीणाम् ca maharṣīṇām and the great sages, सर्वशः sarvaśaḥ in all respects.

2. Neither the Gods nor the great sages know My origin, because I am the origin of the Gods and the great sages in all respects.

So these verses are introductory verses; wherein the subject matter is introduced from verse No.1 to 3. So Īśvara svarūpa jñānam; Īśvara vibūthi jñānam is the subject matter, which is being introduced. And in this verse, Krishna points out that Arjuna: Do not tell me that you will learn the same topic from other gurus; I will learn the very same thing from somebody else, you cannot tell me because, nobody else knows My glory in its entirety; I alone can know the glory in its full measure. Nobody else can know, because all others are born later; No.1; and all others are finite in nature; and how can a finite mind ever know the glory of the infinite Lord. Therefore Arjuna, you have to learn from only one source, only I know and therefore you have to learn from Me. So better continue to listen; So सुरगणाः मे प्रभवं न विदुः suragaṇāḥ mē prabhavaṃ na viduḥ; even Gods do not know my full glory.

And that is what we found in Kenōpaniṣad; when the dēvās were very proud, Lord appeared in a mysterious form and dēvās could understand what that form is: agni got humiliated; vayu dēvathā got humiliated; Indra dēvathā got humiliated; when Indra dēvathā prayed to the Lord; Parvathi dēvi: Umadēvi comes and teaches Indra. So thus though the Kenōpaniṣad story it is pointed out that even dēvathās cannot know the full nature of God.

Therefore suragaṇāḥ means dēvagaṇāḥ, na viduḥ; they do not know; mē prabhavaṃ; prabhavaṃ means My glory; my power, my origin, they never know.

And what about ṛiṣīs, महर्षयः अपि न विदुः maharṣayaḥ api na viduḥ; even great ṛiṣīs do not know my glory.

And what is the reason, He himself gives the reason, because aham eva Adih; I am their cause; I am their creator; they have come much later; and not only they have come later, they have got limited mind, limited intellect, limited instruments of knowledge.

So therefore अहम् आदिः हि aham ādiḥ hi means kāraṇam; I am the cause of dēvānām; all the dēvās, including Brahmāji; in the purāṇās, if you read, when Brahmāji appears from the navel, He sees darkness everywhere; He does not see a second thing; He does not know anything including his own nature; imagine suddenly you find yourselves surrounded by darkness; nothing is there; and Brahmāji got frightened also: So bhibhet; tasmāt ekāki bhibeti; saha api bhibhet; Brahmāji got frightened; then he did tapas, as a result of tapas, He acquires knowledge given by Viṣṇu, the original creator; yo Brahmāna vidhadati purvam; yovai vedamscha prahinoti tasmai; Viṣṇu creates Brahmādēva; Brahmāji is ignorant initially; then Viṣṇu himself and sends him all the knowledge; yo vai vedamscha prahinoti tasmai; And therefore how can anybody talk about My glory; because they themselves do not know; so I am the kāraṇam of everyone including Brahmāji;

Maharṣinām, I am the kāraṇam behind all the ṛiṣis also;

सर्वशः sarvaśaḥ in its total sense; and what do you mean sarvaśaḥ, I am not only the nimitha kāraṇam; I am also the upādāna kāraṇam; it is not that I create them; in fact I myself manifest as those people.

Continuing.

यो मामजमनादिं च वेत्ति लोकमहेश्वरम् ।

असंमूढः स मर्त्येषु सर्वपापैः प्रमुच्यते ॥ १०.३ ॥

yō māmajamanādiṃ ca vētti lōkamahēśvaram |

asammūḍhaḥ sa martyēṣu sarvapāpaiḥ pramucyate || 10.3 ||

मर्त्येषु martheṣu among the mortals, सः असंमूढः saḥ asaṃmūḍhaḥ that discriminative one यः वेत्ति yaḥ vetti who knows me माम् अजम् mām ajam to be birthless अनादिम् anādim beginingless च लोकमहेश्वरम् ca lokamaheśvaram and the great Lord of the universe प्रमुच्यते pramucyate becomes free सर्वपापैः sarvapāpaiḥ from all sins.

3. Among mortals, that discriminative ones who knows Me to be birthless, causeless, and the great Lord of the Universe, becomes freed from all sins.

And if a person is an intelligent one, he will certainly apply his mind to know the jagat kāraṇa Īśvaraḥ; it is only the inferior ordinary type of mind, which will be satisfied with knowing a few little things here; sufficient learning for earning food; that is why modern day education is based on what: one time it was CA, then it was computer, computer; So we are learning something not for knowing something and improving ourselves; which degree will fetch me a job in which I can work the least and get the most. So many people are satisfied with that knowledge, because their intellect is not mature; sufficiently developed; any developed intellect will always ask the question; from where did all these come; कस्त्वं कोऽहं कुत आयातः का मे जननी को मे तातः | kastvaṁ kō:'haṁ kuta āyātaḥ kā mē jananī kō mē tātaḥ. A developed intellect will certainly ask this question: Is there a cause; all the scientists are struggling to arrive at the one cause alone; they want the theory of everything. T... O... E.... They want to reduce everything to one basic principle, which alone evolves into the entire creation; which means what?; cause hunting is the job of a thinking intellect; when an apple falls, Newton asks the question; How; what will we do; in one second, the apple will be swallowed into our stomachs; we will never question why it came down and why it did not go up or to the side, etc. So why should we bother about all the things; this is the mediocre intellect; A thinking intellect will like to arrive at asmin vijñāte, sarvam idam vijñātam bhavathi. Such a mature intellect is called असंमूढः asammūḍhaḥ;

A mature intellect, a discriminate intellect is one; यः वेत्ति yaḥ vētti; which wants to know God, the cause of the universe. If you do not like the word God, you use any word; but the question is what: what is the cause of all these; and therefore yaḥ mām vētti; that intelligent person knows Me, the jagat kāraṇam;

And what type of God he is; अजम् अनादिम् च ajam anādiṁ ca; who is birthless; cause of the universe; ajam means what; birthless; why ajam; if God also has birth; then God will not be the ultimate cause of the universe, because God will have His cause; Then again the next question will come; God's creator, who is e; what about that; it has got a cause or not. Therefore an ultimate cause should be a causeless cause.

And therefore Krishna says, I am the beginningless God; And therefore anādiṁ cha; I am without a cause; so ajam birthless; anādiṁ means causeless; because birthless therefore causeless; because causeless, therefore birthless; both are interconnected; and if you read the puranas, they will put in a normal form; that is God is father and mother; they will be sitting in Kailāsa or Vaikuntha; and somebody will ask: who are your parents; and they will say that we do not have parents; here we say causeless; in purāṇās they will say that Parvathi does not have mother-in-law and father-in-law.

Parvathi is the luckiest daughter-in-law; one lady who does not have the problem from mother-in-law; because Lord Shiva does not have parents; this is puraṇa; it is put in the form of family, inlaws, etc. but if you scientifically analyse God is causeless and therefore only लोकमहेश्वरम् lokamaheśvaram; and I am the Lord the creator who is the controller of the whole universe.

Not only sṛiṣṭi kāraṇam, but also stiti kāraṇam; and such a sṛiṣṭi stiti laya kāraṇa Īśvara, this discriminate person comes to know; vētti; and saha martheyshu asaṃmūḍhaḥ; he is the most intelligent person among human beings; he has utilised his life for a worthy knowledge.

And such a great person, what benefit he gets; sarvapāpaiḥ pramucyatē; he becomes free from all the papas of the samsāra; he becomes liberated.

So when I say he will become liberated; you should be very careful, the Īśvara that we are describing now is only the second stage; we have to the third level of knowledge; and this person will sooner or later go to the third level also; and will get liberated; third level we will have to supply.

4 & 5. Intelligence, knowledge, non-delusion, patience, truthfulness, sense-control, mind – control, pleasure, pain, birth, death, fear, Fearlessness, non-violence, equanimity, contentment, austerity, generosity, fame, and ill-fame --- (all these) different dispositions of beings are born out of Me alone.

So with the third verse, introductory part is over; and in the introduction Lord Krishna pointed out that the subject matter is Īśvara svarūpam; Īśvara vibhuthiḥ; the glory of the Lord. Now Krishna presents the subject matter briefly in the following verses from verse No.4 up to verse no.11. He presents the subject matter briefly; then Arjuna will ask for elaboration; and Krishna will elaborate;

So in this portion Krishna points out that God alone has manifested in the form of the entire universe; because God is a mixture of consciousness plus matter; the universe is a mixture of consciousness plus matter and therefore Lord alone is a magnified himself, elaborated himself, in the form of this universe.

For the sake of convenience, the world is divided into two; one is the external world of objects, bāhya prapañcaḥ; and the internal world of thoughts; anthara prapañcaḥ; And Krishna says internal world is also born out of Me alone, the external world is also born out of Me alone; which means see God, you need not look at a special direction, if you open the eyes, Bhagavān, if you close the eyes, bhagavan. Therefore God is everywhere.

First the anthara prapañcaḥ is enumerated; What is there inside; varieties of thoughts; no पञ्चमं pancam; We have got any number of thoughts, Krishna gives a list; buddhihi. So this is the list of internal universe; buddhihi is intelligence; so we have intelligence; I hope; At least some, if not much; buddhihi intelligence, jñānam knowledge; असंमोहः asaṃmohaḥ means clarity of thinking; not delusion; saṃmohaḥ means delusion; asaṃmohaḥ non delusion; means clarity of thinking.

Then क्षमा kṣamā; you can understand kṣamā means patience, satyam, truthfulness, दमः damaḥ means sense control. Even though sense control is the property of the sense organs, but to control the sense organs the message should be given by what; the mind alone; because we have seen Kathōpaniṣad, sense organs are like the horses, mind is like the reins; and therefore if the sense organs are under control; it is because of the mind's controlling power; That is called here damaḥ; directing power of the mind;

Then शमः śamaḥ mind control; then सुखम् sukham; you can understand happiness; दुःखं duḥkham unhappiness, भवः bhavaḥ means birth, origin of these thoughts or emotions and अभावः abhāvaḥ; means dissolution or resolution of these thoughts, arrival and departure, भयं bhayaṃ You can understand, fear, अभयम् abhayaṃ; fearlessness.

Then in the next slōkā the list continues, these are all what; internal world, अहिंसा ahiṃsā; ahimsa means what; non-violence; that is that mental attitude of non-violence; ahiṃsā; समता samatā. samatā means equanimity poise, tranquility, any word, तुष्टिः tuṣṭiḥ contentment; तपः tapah; austerity, discipline or austerity, दानम् dānam; generosity, a charitable disposition; a generous disposition; यशः yaśaḥ, fame, the thought; अयशाः ayaśaḥ, ill-fame.

This is not an exhaustive list; Krishna has just given a list; you can fill it up with more.

भूतानाम् भावाः bhūtānām bhāvāḥ; these are all various inner conditions or dispositions of the living beings; so bhūtānām means the living beings.

And all these conditions originate from where; मत्तः एव भवन्ति mattaḥ eva bhavanti. They all are born out of Me alone; in their own distinct nature; पृथग्विधाः prthagvidhāḥ; in their distinct nature; they are all born out of Me alone; therefore I am the cause of the inner world of thoughts and later he will point out I am the cause of the outer world also; combining them together I am the cause of everything; and therefore I am everything; this is going to be the development; details of which we will see in the next class.

Om

We have entered into 10th chapter of the Gītā, and in the first three verses of this chapter, Lord Krishna has introduced the subject matter of the 10th chapter; and the subject matter is Īśvara svarūpam, the nature of God. And this is the main topic of all the chapters beginning from the 7th chapter. While in the first six chapters, Krishna dealt with jīva svarūpam, the nature of the individual. From the 7th chapter onwards, the Lord is dealing with Īśvara svarūpam, the nature of God. And this has been topic, in the 7th as well as in the 9th chapters.

In the 10th chapter also, the same topic is being continued. Krishna talked about the glory of Īśvara svarūpa jñānam in the first three verses and then from the fourth verse onwards, Krishna has entered into the nature of God topic. And in the previous chapters, God has been defined as jagat kāraṇam, the cause of the universe. In all the scriptural literature God is defined as the cause of the universe.

And this jagat kāraṇam status of the Lord itself is explained in the scriptures in three different ways, depending upon the intellectual level of the student. Jagat kāraṇam explanation level No.1; jagat kāraṇam explanation level No.2; jagat kāraṇam explanation level No.3; This explanation will depend upon the intellectual calibre of the listener.

In the beginning stages when we defined God as jagat kāraṇam, we translate this as God being the creator of the universe and as the creator of the universe; Lord is presented as the omniscient, the omnipotent creator, who creates the whole universe. And the moment we hear that description, we will imagine different creators we know; the creator of an ornament in the form of goldsmith; the creator of a desk, in the form of a carpenter; the creator of the building in the form of a mason or architect. Similarly we imagine an intelligent creator as a person. And the scriptures also feed our imagination and fancy and describe the omniscience of the Lord by providing many heads. How do you symbolise omniscience; we have got one head and therefore we have got limited knowledge, if the Lord should have limitless knowledge. How do you symbolise. Either four heads, chaturmukhaḥ or pañchamukhaḥ or shanmukhaḥ; or aṣṭamukhaḥ or sahasra śīriṣa puruṣa you describe.

And once you visualise the Lord as an intelligent being, your curiosity could further question about the residence of the Lord; we want the introduction card of the Lord. Similarly you want the God's card also; where does the Lord reside, what is his phone number, what is his email address; dot com; vaikuntha dot com; Because this is how we understand a creator. And the scriptures also describe the creator as a person residing in Vaikuntha, residing in kailasa; residing in Brahma lōka; this is the initial introduction to the Lord, the creator. And this satisfies most of the people.

And once we have grown up sufficiently; intellect is capable of thinking further, we will ask the next question, if God is the creator of the universe, where did he find the raw material out of which he created this world. Because we know carpenter requires a raw material; gold smith requires a raw material; mason requires cement and all those things. If the God is the intelligent creator, what is the raw material; Then the scriptures go to the second level of explanation; before the universe emerged, God alone was there; ēkam ēva advitīyam. Therefore, there is no raw material outside God. In fact there is no question of outside itself; because the very concept of outside comes, only after the emergence of space. We are talking about a situation, even before the concept of space arise. And therefore where is the question of a raw material outside God. There is no question and therefore scriptures point out that not only Lord is the creator, but Lord himself finds the raw material in himself; or herself; you can fill up the blank, as the case may be; Himself or herself; And therefore, there is no question of Lord creating the universe, Lord being the very raw material, Lord himself evolves into the universe. Just as the seed evolves into the tree, just as the wood itself manifests as the furniture; just as the gold itself manifests as ornaments; the Lord himself is ākāśa, vāyū, etc. and therefore we revise our statement; we do not say God creates the world, we say God himself evolves; becomes the world. And therefore what we are experiencing now is none other than the Lord himself manifesting in the form of this cosmos; and therefore ākāśa is Īśvara; vāyū is Īśvara; agni is Īśvaraḥ; this is the second level; for the slightly advanced intellect.

And once a person has remained in this stage for sometime, it is called madhyama avastha; the technically the first stage is called, nimitha kāraṇa Īśvaraḥ; second stage is called parināmi upādāna kāraṇa Īśvaraḥ; then in the third stage when the intellect is still sharper and finer, scriptures point out; since the Lord is infinite; and therefore beyond time and space, there is no question of the Lord becoming the Universe. Because the language of becoming indicates transformation and transformation indicates limitation by time; since God is dēśa kāla adithaḥ; there is no possibility of Lord transforming into the universe; then what happens Lord remaining changeless; the Lord appears as the universe:

ajāyamānō bahuda vijāyatē; ajāyamānaḥ; without really undergoing transformation, retaining his absolute nature, the Lord appears as this world, Just as we at the time of dreaming continue to remain as the waker on the bed, but in the dream, our mind gets transformed into what, the dream-time, the dream-space, the dream-object, the dream-transaction; the dream-nightmares, the dream-festivals; all are the waker himself; transforms without really undergoing any change.

If the waker really transforms into the dream world; what happens; he would not wake up; he will be out; Just as once the milk has transformed into curd, etc. you cannot retrieve the milk again; If Bhagavān has really transformed into the world; Bhagavān is gone for good; but it is not like that; remaining as Bhagavān; just as I continue to remain as waker, and seemingly become pluralistic, transact, enjoy or suffer the dream, and when I wake up what happens, the whole dream world is resolved. And again I can project another dream world and again I can resolve. Even if hundreds of dreams I project and resolve, I continue to be undisturbed and transformed and destroyed individual;

So this third stage of jagat kāraṇatvam is presented as the Lord appearing as the universe; and in Sanskrit, it is called vivartha upādāna kāraṇa Īśvaraḥ. So what are the three stages;

God creates the world, level No.1;
God becomes the world; level No.2;
God appears as the world; level No.3.

Of these three levels, Lord Krishna is discussing the second level in this chapter, and therefore the Lord says that I am the cause of the universe and therefore I myself project out of myself; I myself evolve into the entire universe; and this universe is divided into two; the internal universe of thoughts and the external universe of objects; ānthara prapañcaḥ; bāhya prapañcaḥ. Lord Krishna says the inner world also arises out of Me; the external world also arises out of Me;

Of this in the fourth and fifth verses, the internal universe was described; बुद्धिर्जानमसंमोहः क्षमा सत्यं दमः buddhirjñānamasammōhaḥ kṣamā satyaṃ damaḥ; etc. are the inner world of thoughts; they also are born out of Me; and later in the following verses, Lord Krishna will say that the external world of things and beings are also born out of Me. Therefore I alone become everything; so that we have to see now; verse No.6.

मद्भावा मानसा जाताः येषां लोक इमाः प्रजाः ॥ १०.६ ॥

maharṣayaḥ sapta pūrvē catvārō manavastathā |

madbhāvā mānasā jātā yeṣāṃ lōka imāḥ prajāḥ || 10.6 ||

सप्त महर्षयः sapta maharṣayaḥ the seven great sages पूर्वे चत्वारः pūrvē catvāraḥ the earlier four (sages), तथा मनवः tathā manavaḥ and the (fourteen) Manus मद्भावाः madbhāvāḥ who possess My nature येषां प्रजाः yeṣāṃ prajāḥ and whose progeny इमाः imāḥ are these लोके lōkē in the world जाताः jātāḥ are born मानसाः mānasāḥ of (My) mind

6. The seven great sages, the earlier four (sages) and the (fourteen) Manus, who possess My nature and whose progeny are these in the world, are born of (My) mind.

Now the creation of the external world is being talked about and before all the regular human being, animal etc. came, first the Lord created the sapta ṛiṣīs, as well as the sanakādi ṛiṣīs, and thereafter only all the other human being came; one set of ṛiṣīs indicating the grihastha ṛiṣīs; in pravṛitti mārga; other set of ṛiṣīs representing the nivṛitti mārga. So the sapta ṛiṣīs represent the grihastha parampara and sanakādi four ṛiṣīs represent the sanyāsi parampara; and out of these eleven; all the other beings came.

Therefore He says सप्त महर्षयः sapta maharṣayah, the seven great ṛiṣīs, these seven ṛiṣīs are described in the puraṇas. Of course in different purāṇās, the different names are mentioned; even in sandhyā vandanam; we have got sapta ṛiṣī; I do not know whether you remember, अत्रि-भृगु-कुत्स-वसिष्ठ-गौतम-काश्यप-आंगिरस ऋषयः atri-bhṛgu-kutsa-vasiṣṭa-gautama-kāśyapa-āṅgīrasa ṛṣayah; गायत्रि-उष्णिक्-अनुष्टुप्-बृहति-पंक्ति-तूष्णुप् जगत्यश्छन्दांसि gāyatri-uṣṇik-anuṣṭup-br̥hati-parṅkti-tūṣṭup jagatyaśchandaṅsi; seven meters; and अग्नि-वायु-अर्क-वांगीश-वरुण-इन्द्र-विश्वेदेवा देवताः agni-vāyu-arka-vāṅgīśa-varuṇa-indra-viśvādēvā dēvatāḥ; seven dēvatās; seven meters and seven ṛiṣīs are mentioned; those seven ṛiṣīs you can take;

Or there is another version also; brigum, marichim atrim cha, pulasthyam, pulaham krutum Vasiṣṭam cha mahātejāha so srujat mānasāḥ sutān; brigu, marichi, atri; pulasthya, pulaha and kratu, pulaha and then the seventh one Vasiṣṭa; Vasiṣṭam cha mahātejāha; mahātejāha means Brahmāji; First Brahmāji came out of the navel of Lord Viṣṇū, we know in the purāṇās; Lord Viṣṇū created only Brahmāji, the rest of creation, Viṣṇū transferred the job to Brahma. And Brahmāji created the initial one, through mere saṅkalpa; saṅkalpa mātreṇa saḥ mahātējāḥ;

मानसाः mānasāḥ; that is why they are called mānasa putrā; so there is no question of the regular creation; but saṅkalpa mātrēṇa; and suppose you ask the question, how is it possible to create all these by mere saṅkalpa; my answer will be we are doing it regularly; by saṅkalpa mātra, we do creation? When: at the time of dream; and do not say dream is unreal; vēdānta will say that this world is unreal; anyone you may say dream is unreal during the waking state; but remember dream is very very real at the time of dream; So such a real dream world which is capable of frightening you; just as you create by mere saṅkalpa, Brahmāji created the sapta ṛiṣīs; through saṅkalpa means what; by mere visualization.

And not only the sapta ṛiṣīs, these sapta ṛiṣīs represent the grihastha parampara or pravṛitti mārga; So even though they were ṛiṣīs, they were not sanyāsis, they were vanaprasthās; and therefore they had wife, children, like Vasiṣṭa, etc.

And before that there were earlier four ṛiṣīs, so purve chatvaaraha; purve means what; even before the sapta ṛiṣīs, there were four earlier ṛiṣīs, who are called Sanakādhi munayaḥ; Sanakā; Sanāntaḥ, and Sanatkumārāḥ; and Sanat Sujāthāḥ.

So why Brahmāji created the seven ṛiṣīs, four ṛiṣīs could have been sufficient; the reason is: Brahmāji created four ṛiṣīs and hoped that these four ṛiṣīs will get married and get children and the parampara will be protected; that was the intention of Brahmāji but what did these four do; they straightaway brahmacaryad-ēva sanyāsa; So all plans of Brahmāji failed; so even now sometimes when the child wants to take sanyāsa; many parents do not like; and if that child happens to be the only one; they are worried out kula parampara; who will do the srāddham; This problem Brahmāji himself faced; and Brahmāji was very angry with his children; disobedient children; and that is why nowadays we also get such children; because Brahmāji the original himself faced that problem; and they say Brahmāji got angry at that time; Therefore from Brahmāji eyebrows, the ekadaśa rudrās, came out of his eyes; because of his anger; That is why they are called rudrās; and how should they get anger, because of these four ṛiṣīs; because these four people took to nivṛitti mārga; Brahmāji had to create another seven for the pravṛitti mārga;

And all these eleven ṛiṣīs and not only that mānavaḥ; the fourteen manus who preside over a particular age, a particular era called manvantharam; a manvatharam is supposed to be consisting of 71 catūr yugas; and not 71 years; 71 catūr yūgas is a manvanthara and that is presided over by a Manu; like that 14 Manus are there; and that is why in the saṅkalpa also;

you will get that in upākarma mantra, the avaṇi avitta mantra; which comes in July; so they do that; we do not know all these, as they are difficult to pronounce; also we only say idli idli because of hunger; and who wants svāyambuva; sarōjisha etc. ṣatsu manuṣu; six manus are gone;

And now we are in which manvathantra; saptame, vaivastha manvanthare; this is the seventh manvanthara presided over by vaivasvatha.; And this manvanthara has got how many catur yūgas; 71 catur yūgas; and now this is howmanyeth chatur-yūgas. This is supposed to be the 28th catur yūga; aṣṭāvimśathi tame kaliyūge; and 28 minus 71; 43, still 43 chatur yūgas are more should be there; then the vaivasvatha manu will go away; Thereafter the 8th manu will come; and like that 14 manus will come and go; and Brahmāji's day time gets out; Brahmāji's one waking day, 12 hours time 14 Manus appear and disappears; therefore these manus were also created; and that is why we are called mānava; we are called manuṣya; and in English we are called Man; Man came from Manu; And why Manu; manute chintayati iti manuhu; the thinking human being, man is derived from the root man, to think, manute; manyate iti man. In English dictionary you do not get this derivation; it is our derivation.

All these are created and how are they created: manasāha jātha; they are born out of mere saṅkalpa or the will of the Brahmāji, the Lord; and matbhāvaḥ; and each one of them has got the same nature of mine; mat svarūpaḥ; So every one is satcidananda svarūpa, and that is why we are also happily able to say, Aham satcidananda svarūpaḥ asmi; aham Brahmāsmi; Just as every spark has got the same nature of the original fire, we all have the same nature; So मद्भावा madbhāvā;

And there is another meaning for the meaning bhāvaḥ; bhāvaḥ means bhakthi also; one meaning is nature; the second meaning is devotion; all these people have devotion towards me.

And thereafter what happens; out of these eleven ṛṣīs alone, not only eleven ṛṣīs; out of these 14 manus alone, all the later beings are born; येषां yēṣāṃ; yēṣāṃ means manunām; for the 14 manus alone, all the इमाः प्रजाः imāḥ prajāḥ; all these prajāḥs or living beings are born; Lōke in this world.

yujyate is blessed अविकम्पेन योगेन avikampena yōgena with unshaken knowledge न संशयः na saṁśayaḥ there is no doubt अत्र atra in this

7. He who really knows this glory and power of Mine, is blessed with unshaken knowledge. There is no doubt in this.

So in the previous verse it was pointed out that the Lord being the cause of the universe, the Lord has the potentiality to manifest as pots, etc. Just as the seed has the potentiality to manifest as the tree; similarly the Lord has the potential; which is called śaktiḥ to evolve as the universe. This power of manifestation; this śakti is called yōgaḥ; yōgaḥ śaktiḥ this is called or māya śaktiḥ it is called. Thus Lord has got this māya; so what is the definition of māya; the potential power is māya; and any potential is always in dormant form. Therefore it is invisible; just as the butter which is potentially there in the milk is very much there. But you cannot see the butter in the milk, you will have to extract and bring out; therefore any śakti is invisible; it is inferable; anumeyam; And this is called Īśvara yōgaḥ;

And later, when the potential comes to manifestation; the manifest form is always pratakṣam means what; visible; When the seed's potential has become kinetic; In science we talk about potential energy and kinetic energy; potential is hidden; kinetic is activated; it is actualised; when the seed has the potential; you do not see; when it has become a tree, that yōga has become what; visible; and the visible version is called vibhūthiḥ; the unmanifest power is called yōgaḥ; the manifest version of the same power is called vibhūthiḥ; So for example, I have got a particular knowledge and therefore I have the potential to give you a talk or discourse; and when I come and sit here; at 6 p.m. that lecture, today's talk is there in my brain; in what form; yōga form; you do not know, what I am going to talk; it is your prārabdha. You have to only hope that today will be useful. It is a big hope; sometime it may fail; sometimes it may succeed; so when I am sitting here at 6 p.m. the whole 1 hour's talk is there in my mind or not; If it is not there; anyone can come and talk; it is there but in what form; yōgarūpēṇa vartatē. It is unmanifest; but the moment I begin to express, that potential thought is converted into words, either in written form or recorded form; and when it has come out in manifest form; it is available for whom, for everyone it is available; at 6 p.m. it is available for anyone; it is called yōga form; At 7 p.m. it is available in vibhūthi form; and not only for you; if it is recorded, it can be heard by other people and if it is transcribed and printed; it is available for even generations. Śankarācārya's bhāṣyam after 1000 or 100s of years, we are reading and therefore the Bhāṣyam we read is what; vibhūthi; Similarly the universe that we seek is yōga or vibūthi; the universe that I see in vibūthi; but before the manifestation; at the time of pralayakale, it will be in yōga form. That is why we say the Lord is in yōga nidra; yōga nidra means what a stage in which the whole creation is in potential form; and therefore Krishna says, विभूतिं योगं च मम vibhūtiṃ yōgaṃ ca mama. I have got both the yōga which is inferable; and vibūthi, which is perceptible. I have got both the potential and kinetic energy. I have got both the avyaktha and vyaktha mahima; yaha vethi; suppose a person knows this glory of the Lord; what is that glory; yōga glory which is called kāraṇa shakthiḥ; vibūthi is otherwise called kāryam; yōga is kāraṇam, vibūthi is kārya; yōga is nirvikalpam; vibūthi is savikalpam; yōga is avyaktha, vibūthi is vyaktha; yōga is inferable; vibūthi is perceptible; Both these यह वेत्ति yah vetti; suppose a devotee knows;

तत्त्वतः tatvataḥ; comprehensively, completely, suppose a bhaktha, a scriptural student recognises this glory; For him what will be the advantage; Bhagavān is no more sitting in Vaikuntha; he need not travel to have Īśvara darśanam; for him where is God; for him where is God, if you ask, he will ask a counter question; tell me where is God not; And that is why an atheist wrote a statement; God is nowhere; a theist or a bhaktha came and put a comma, after Now, how will you spell nowhere; instead of no where; If you "W" along with No what will happen; Now Here; so sarvam viṣṇu mayam jagat;

And this darśanam is virāt Īśvara darśanam; viśva rūpa Īśvara darśanam; anēka rūpa Īśvara darśanam. Previously God was in Vaikuntha in one form; what is that one form.

Rugmini cannot go even beyond, because both sides they are sitting; Rukmiṇī satyabhāmābhyām; therefore sandwiched Bhagavān cannot even expand; there is nothing wrong; we have to start from there; but later; भूः पादौ यस्य नाभिरवियदसुरनिलश्चन्द्र सूर्यो च नेत्रे bhūḥ pādau yasya nābhirviyadasuranilaścandra sūryau ca nētrē; Then what will happen to him; so children when hear stories from our parents or grand parents, we go on saying: im im, im, etc. what next what next, like that; what next if you ask; Krishna says: सः sah; who understands that world is God's form; योगेन युज्यते yōgēna yujyatē; he will be taken to next level of Īśvara darśanam; because this is also only the middle level;

And what is the next level; as I told you; God does not transform himself to become the universe; God only appears to have all these forms; but the original God does not have anyone of these forms; from anekarupa Īśvara, he will go to what level; arūpa Īśvaraḥ; So yōgaha means arupa Īśvaraḥ jñānam; he will go to nirguna Īśvara jñānam; which is the third level; pariṇami upādānam to vivartha upādānam;

And not only he will get arūpa Īśvara jñānam; अविकम्पेन avikampena; and it will be a strong conviction for him; formless God is the real God; and that real formless God assumes either one form or many forms; depending upon the devotee's prayer; yoyo yām yām tanu bhakthā, in whichever form, he wants to have darśanam; Bhagavān assumes that form; but really speaking; the Lord is arupaḥ; And that arupa Īśvara; druda jñānam is called avikampa; avikampa means what; unshaken knowledge; which means conviction.

And that does not mean he will reject ēka rūpa Īśvara and anēkarūpa Īśvaraḥ; he has got all the three versions; all the three channels; previously it was only one channel; only one form; later he comes to two channels; one can change; Now he has got three channels; he can enjoy arūpa Īśvara whenever he wants; he come down to anēka Īśvaraḥ; when he enjoys nature; and he can come down to ēka rūpa Īśvara; If you read Śankarācārya's works; all these are there.

I will enjoy that also; bhavānīpatē; I can also see you as bhavānīpatiḥ; sambaśivaḥ; I enjoy all the three; I can talk to you as a person; I can admire you as the nature or creation; and I can close my eyes and enjoy you as aham brahmā asmi; युज्यते yujyate; all the three he will come to know;

मत्वा इति matvā iti knowing thus बुधाः budhāḥ the wise ones भावसमन्विताः bhāvasamanvitāḥ who are endowed with devotion भजन्ते माम् bhajante
mām worship Me

8. “I am the source of everything, everything proceeds from Me.” – knowing thus, the wise ones, who are endowed with devotion, worship Me.

With the previous verse, Īśvara svarūpam topic is over; which started from the 4th verse, 4th to 7th; Īśvara svarūpam topic; and now from the 8th onwards; Lord Krishna talks about anēka rūpa Īśvara bhakthaḥ; those devotees who are in the intermediary level; intermediary between what and what; the lowest level in which the Lord has only one iṣṭa dēvathā svarūpa; the highest level is what; God who does not have any form; between these two is what: aneka rūpa Īśvaraḥ; viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ;

This viśva rūpa bhakthi will give a lot of benefit to the student; viśva rūpa bhaktha himself enjoys lot of virtues; In fact, many values will come naturally when I have viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ because the greatest advantage is: rāgaḥ-dveṣaḥ will weaken; rāgaḥ-dveṣaḥ; likes and dislikes are purely because of my categorisation of the world as favourable and unfavourable, as good and bad, purely because I look at the world from my personal standpoint,

And once I know that the whole creation is the manifestation of the Lord, how can I dislike one part of God and how can I like another part of the God; Everything is divine; so the whole creation is divine; and therefore, everything is welcome to Me, No resistance to the experiences in my life; all our tension and stress are only because of mental resistance, I am willing accept certain forms of experience; I do not want to accept certain other forms of experience; And even I cannot imagine such experiences; even the very imagination gives me stress and strain. Like the imagination that I may fail; or the child may fail; the imagination that admission may not come; very imaginary thing I cannot accept; So much stress must be there; Krishna says for virāt bhaktha. There is nothing that is unwelcome; everything is welcome for him; why, because he sees every experience as originating from the Lord;

Therefore Krishna says अहं सर्वस्य प्रभवः aham sarvasya prabhavaḥ; for this virāt bhaktha, Lord is the source of everything; pleasure, pain, association, disassociation, birth, death, health, disease, success, failure, everything has got only one source, and that is aham, means viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; and therefore only sarvam mattaḥ pravartathe; everything proceeds from Me.

And therefore everything is Īśvara prasādaḥ; he will become an ideal karma yōgi; because what is the criterion to become a karma yōgi; primary criterion is willingness to accept everything as Īśvara prasādaḥ. Just as in a temple, we do not know what type of prasada going to come; it may be beautiful laddu, with all kalkaundu, raisin, cashews; All those things are; or it might be a little bit mud; in Subramanya Temple; there you get the mud from the snakepit as prasāda; you may get the mud, you may get leaf, you may get water, you may get payasam with lot of stone; but you have got only one attitude; prasāda bhavana; and therefore मत्तःसर्वम् प्रवर्तते इति मत्वा mattaḥ sarvaṃ pravartatē iti matvā with this prasāda buddhi; मां भजन्ते mām bhajantē; these viśva rūpa bhaktha, worship me and what type of bhakthas, they are, बुधा budhā; they are the learned bhakthas; they are informed bhakthas, what information they have, that Lord is both the intelligent and the material cause of the creation; And that is called here budhaah; not that they know the nirguṇa Īśvaraḥ; here budhā does not mean nirguna Īśvara jñānis; they are the knowers of viraat Īśvara jñānis;

And because of this attitude; भावसमन्विताः bhāvasamanvitāḥ; there mind is always soaked in devotion; so there is always the relaxation; there is no stress management course is not required separately; the greatest stress management course is what: this wisdom; I hope for the best; but I am prepared for the worst also; And the preparation is what: welcome:

Om

After giving the introduction in the first three verses, the Lord briefly presented Īśvara svarūpam from verse No.4 up to verse No.7; and while giving Īśvara svarūpam; He pointed out that Lord is both the intelligent cause of the creation; as well as the material cause of the creation, which means that Lord alone has evolved into this universe, because the Lord does not have any other external material to convert into the creation. And since there is no external raw material available for the Lord; the raw material also must be part of himself; and therefore the Lord himself has evolved into the universe, which means when I am looking into the universe, I should remember that what I am seeing is only the manifestation of the Lord. I need not put forth separate effort to have the darśan of the Lord. When I have got ornaments in my hand, I need not put forth separate effort to have the darśanam of the gold; because the very ornament that I am handling is the manifestation of gold. Gold darśanam does not require separate effort. Similarly when I have furniture in my hand; in front of me, I know that the wood alone is manifesting in the form of furniture, which means I need not put forth separate effort for wood darśanam, because the furniture darśanam is wood darśanam. Kārya darśanam is always kāraṇa darśanam; because there is no karyam other than the kāraṇam. And therefore for that person who has this wisdom, he does not feel like closing the eyes for getting the darśanam of the Lord.

Until we get this wisdom, we think Lord is somewhere else seated and I have to do tapas for the darśanam of the Lord but once I have this wisdom, I know I need not close my eyes to have Īśvara darśanam. Whatever I am seeing is Īśvara alone; When I see bangle, I am seeing gold; when I am seeing ring, I am seeing gold. Whatever I am seeing is Īśvara darśanam.

And this appreciation of the Lord, as the very manifest universe itself is called virāt bhakthiḥ; is called viśva rūpa bhakthiḥ. And for such a viśva rūpa bhaktha; a temple is not required for invoking devotion; an immature mind, an uninformed mind, a scripturally illiterate mind requires a temple to invoke devotion; but for a viśva rūpa bhaktha, whatever he sees can invoke devotion. And in fact, he will become the greatest karma yōgi because, whatever experience comes from any part of the world, is an experience given by the Lord only, because there is no world other than God. And therefore Krishna talked about or he is talking about the virāt bhaktha from verse No.8 up to verse No.11.

And how does a virāt bhaktha look at life's experiences. For a virāt bhaktha, every experience is coming from the world. And world is nothing but manifestation of God and therefore every experience is coming from the Lord alone. And therefore no experience he can reject. And therefore Krishna said ahaṃ sarvasya prabhavaḥ; mattaḥ sarvaṃ pravartatē; I am the source of everything; prabhavaḥ means source and therefore sarvaṃ; every experience, sukam, dukham, lābha alābha, jaya parājaya, māna apamāna; all pairs of opposites, they are all coming from the Lord alone; इति मत्वा iti matvā; with this awareness, they receive every experience and therefore there is no question of resistance with regard to any experience. So therefore इति मत्वा भजन्ते मां iti matvā bhajantē māṃ.

This non-resistance to experiences is called prasāda buddhiḥ; and this non-resistance is the healthiest attitude because, whatever experiences arrives is a choiceless situation. With regard to future I can try to change the experiences; but with regard to the present, I can never change the experiences because it has already arrived. Therefore past is choiceless; present is also choiceless; We have a choice only with regard to future. At this moment you are in this hall; you have no choice; but next minute, whether you are going to continue to sit in the hall; or you are going to walk out is your choice; future there is choice; past there is no choice; it has arrived and gone; present also no choice; because it has arrived.

And with regard to choiceless situations; we can do only one thing; what is that; accept this; and the only method of acceptance is look at it as the prasāda of the Lord; and therefore the greatest karma yōgi is a virāt bhaktha.

And therefore Krishna said mām bhajantē; they worship Me; not present in a particular temple, but Me who am present everywhere; bhajantē mām bhudhā;

And why they are able to do that; because they are informed people; and what is the information they have; the whole creation is the manifestation of the Lord; They are not wise with regard nirguṇa Īśvara; nirguṇa Īśvara they do not know; but viśva rūpa Īśvara they know and therefore they are called budhāḥ.

And not only that; भावसमन्विताः bhāvasamanvitāḥ; they are soaked in devotion; and how they get devotion, because they know that if the whole creation is the manifestation of the Lord; whatever glory is there in the creation; all of them must belong to the Īśvara only. So if there is a particular animal with an extra ordinary capacity; the glory belongs to the Lord; not the animal. If the human beings have got an extra-ordinary capacity; that also is the glory of the Lord; Thus they see Īśvara vibhūtiḥ; in everything; and therefore the devotion and appreciation is invoked in and through every experience.

So somebody sent me a paper cutting; a small article which had appeared in the Times of India. It is an article by an astronaut who went to the moon and who was an astronaut, gone to space several times, and he writes his experiences about when he was in the moon and he was looking at the glory of the earth; and it is a beautiful article; I just read only a portion of that article; which was highly impressive for me; so he writes; he is an astronaut; "There must a creator; a creator who stands far above all religions; a creator who put a small part of the universe together, that I was privileged to see"; small part of the universe, he means the earth; therefore we cannot objectify; but remaining in the moon, he could see that earth; that is what he is telling here; a small part of the universe together, that I was privileged to see; when I went back to the Moon on Apollo 17, I had a chance literally to challenge that theory; that theory that there is a creator; and he says: "and it came back loud and clear; there is no question in my mind that there is a creator of the universe; when you go to the moon, you have no other choice, than to believe in a creator; there is no other explanation".

And then he himself puts a question: after all he is himself in the moon; we have got enough worry; whether the rocket would go back; we could have worried about the family whether I will return and whether they will be safe; and of course as an astronaut, he would have so many duties also; he himself raises a question; "did all these distract me from my work"; Thus people think, to be a devotee of the Lord, you have to drop all the work and all the time do pūja; so here he asks the question; did all this distract me from my work; not really; but you keep wanting to steal a look at the earth and everything around you;

What he says is: To appreciate God you need not drop your duties and work; if only you have a sensitive mind; even when you see a small ant or when you read the book sometime there will be a very very small insect running inside the book; I do not know whether you have seen that; it would of the size of the tip of the needle; In fact, you cannot even brush that, because it will die; so small it is; now that small insect has got a mind, and it knows how to survive; how to procreate; how to eat; and if you put a hand in front of it, it will run away; within that dot, everything is available; Looking at that insect you can wonder at the glory of the Lord; Looking at a rose you can appreciate the Lord; Looking at the sky, you can appreciate the Lord; virāt bhakthi does not require dropping your career or profession; it requires only a sensitised and informed mind;

And such a virāt bhaktha is described by Krishna in these verses; therefore they are bhāvasamanvitāḥ; every plant, every insect, every star, every tree, every river, evokes devotion in their mind; and naturally if at all they want to talk with people, they do not want to talk about this and that; they would love to talk about only these higher things. Having enjoyed some higher things, the mind cannot come down; cannot discuss these mundane things; And therefore Krishna says virāt bhakthas cannot think of anything else other than this cosmic beauty and order and divinity. That is said in the next ślōkā;

कथयन्तश्च मां नित्यं तुष्यन्ति च रमन्ति च ॥ १०.९ ॥

kathayantaśca māṃ nityaṃ tuṣyanti ca ramanti ca || 10.9 ||

मच्चित्ताः maccittāḥ Fixing the mind मद्गतप्राणाः madgataprāṇāḥ and senses on Me परस्परं बोधयन्तः parasparam bodhayantaḥ mutually sharing the knowledge (about Me). च कथयन्तः माम् ca kathayantaḥ māṃ and speaking of Me, नित्यं

तुष्यन्ति च nityaṃ tuṣyanti ca they are always contented च रमन्ति ca ramanti and delighted.

9. Fixing the mind and senses on Me, mutually sharing the knowledge (about Me) and speaking of Me, they are always contented and delighted.

The virāt bhakthas see the Lord alone in and through all their experiences. Not through the physical eye; Physical eye will report only physical matter; like that astronaut; His eyes saw only the earth; but his sensitive mind saw the Lord. Seeing is not the physical perception; but through the eye of maturity; through the eye of wisdom, he was able to discern the invisible organising co-ordinating intelligent harmonising principle. So thus for a bhaktha; God vision is not at a particular time; but at all the time; and therefore मच्चित्ताः maccittāḥ; their mind is always fixed on Me; they cannot lose sight of Me; and मद्गतप्राणाः madgataprāṇāḥ; prāṇāḥ means sense organs; their sense organs also fixed on Me.

So in short they are never away from the presence of the Lord; and if at all they talk also; like the astronaut; he could have shared anything else; but he could share this and this sharing, परस्परं बोधयन्तः parasparaṃ bodhayantaḥ; mutually, they can never discuss the politics of fights, gossip, hatred, criticism, and jealousy etc. they are all so cheap for them; they do not spend their valuable time on such petty topics; they discuss only these higher things. Therefore parasparaṃ bodhayantaḥ; they share their divine experiences;

And कथयन्तः च kathayantaḥ ca; and if they want to educate their children; they would like to give such an education. So education should be 'elevating the mind to see what is not physically perceptible, but what can be appreciated by only a mature mind'. It is very easy to study chemistry and physics. I told you the other day; the wife was crying; the husband is a great chemical scientist; he does research of anything. anything he gets, he does immediately research. Then wife asking: I am crying; do not see my tears; then he says: I know what is tears; it is NaClH₂O. It is nothing but water with sodium chloride. So on chemical analysis, you can only see the physical part but no instrument can see the emotion behind the tears; That emotional pain or emotional deprivation for that you require a sensitive mind which can understand, a person is craving for company; that is the meaning of the tears; not NaClH₂O. a mind which can discern that; which no chemical analysis will reveal.

Similarly God is discerned not physically analysed and arrived at. And therefore kathayantaḥ ca; education is giving that mind which will discern the invisible God, behind the physical universe.

So kathayantaśca māṃ nityaṃ. And having enjoyed that, the mind does not like anything inferior, lower than that; therefore नित्यं nityaṃ; all the time, they enjoy this; not that they drop their duties and activities; remember, the astronaut did all his duties, in and through that, he appreciated. Similarly we can take care of family, we can bring up children, we can do everything, but still sensitise the mind to appreciate the viswarūpa; And what is the advantage of that; तुष्यन्ति च रमन्ति च tuṣyanti ca ramanti ca; here in this very appreciation, there is fulfilment. In family front, there may be failures; and in professional front there may be failures; but as long this appreciation is there, you never look upon your life as a failure; this will make the life a success; even if there are failures in other front; and therefore there is fulfilment, that I am able to appreciate the Lord.

And not only fulfilment; ramanti ca; they revel in that appreciate, they are grateful to the Lord; that they have got a sensitive mind to appreciate this. Then what will happen to them:

ददामि बुद्धियोगं तं येन मामुपयान्ति ते ॥१०.१०॥

dadāmi buddhiyōgam taṃ yēna māmupayānti tē | | 10.10 | |

तेषाम् teṣām to them सततयुक्तानाम् satatayuktānām who are ever steadfast भजताम् bhajatām and who worship (me), प्रीतिपूर्वकम् prītipūrvakam with devotion ददामि dadāmi I give, तं बुद्धियोगम् taṃ buddhiyōgam that yōga of wisdom येन yena by which ते tē they reach उपयान्ति माम् upayānti mām Me

10. To them who are ever steadfast and who worship (Me) with devotion, I give that Yōga of wisdom by which they reach Me.

And these bhakthas are सततयुक्तानाम् satatayuktānām, so their life is ever connected to Me; they never forget their relationship with Me; in and through their relationships with other people. I have told you before; a wave in the ocean is fundamentally related to the ocean alone; because wave is born out of ocean; it rests in ocean and it goes back into the ocean. Therefore the wave is primarily related to the ocean; therefore it is called the fundamental relationship. And imagine when a wave rises, in the neighbourhood there is another wave; and this wave looks at the other wave; and they like each other; fall in love; therefore this wave begins to love the other way; and they decided: why can't we get a wave; and was born a child wave; and whole wave-family is moving about; but we know that the relationship between one wave and the other wave is incidental and secondary, because two waves are not born simultaneously; and two waves do not disappear simultaneously; wave-wave relationship is incidental; wave-ocean relationship is fundamental.

A virāt bhaktha is one who has understood that I am like a wave and Lord is like the ocean; and all the other human beings are also like what: other waves only; So I might have and I do have several human relationships; they are all sacred alright; but much more profound, much more sacred, much more fundamental; and much more universal is my relationship with the Lord. The human relationships can last maximum for one life only. In the next life, same husband and same wife need not be husband-wife, even though some people tell; next janma also you should come as my wife; as my husband; (they did not enquire about the way to mōkṣa!) Anyway; that does not matter; next janma also I want also same wife; same husband; who knows both are going to be human beings; one may be cat, another may be rat; already in this janma it is happening; So therefore even the most sacred human relationship can last for only one life. So much more sacred is my relationship with the Lord; It does not mean we have to discard or disregard human relationship; but what scriptures say is human relationship should never be at the cost of relationship with the Lord; therefore that relationship should be revived of and on; that is why regular prayers; I should tell Lord; Oh Lord! let me not forget my relationship with you in my preoccupation with the incidental relationship; And therefore for a virāt bhaktha; there is a tamera sṛuti behind. Just as a musician, whatever song he sings; however complicated the song may be, he has got the sṛuti behind, he does not want to go out of that. If that is forgotten, apasṛuti; similarly, for a virāt bhaktha; Īśvara sambanda is the background sṛuti and all the other songs it will come and go; different rāgās will come and go.

And therefore virāt bhaktha is called सततयुक्ताः satatayuktāḥ; a very profound and significant word satatayuktata; one who never forgets the relationship with the macrochip; and again this relationship is not maintained as a duty forced by others; I cannot create devotion by force; you should start loving from today or tomorrow; It is something to be discovered by knowledge; and therefore प्रीतिपूर्वकम् भजताम् prītipūrvakam bhajatām;

And those who worship Me, who remember Me with love born out of understanding; love is always born out of understanding; you can never love someone whom you do not know at all; I introduce a person; tomorrow 7.35 onwards you should start loving; And then I put a gun also; if you do not I will shoot you; Love is not an action that you do; but it is something you discover as a result of understanding; The more you study the scriptures, the more you know the nature of God. The more you know the nature of God, devotion is automatic; no will is required; therefore bhajatām prītipūrvakam.

And this bhakthi also has got several levels; I have told you before; 7th chapter we saw; initially I look upon God as a means for worldly ends; that is the lowest form of love; it is called business love; contract love; you do this; I will do that; and that too you should do first; then only I will do; if I give and if you do not do; because that is our experience; and we do not want to feel cheated; give money to someone and he goes away; and we do not want to try with God; you complete the job; not even advance; you complete the job and I will do that; this is business love; so this is called mandha bhakthi;

The next one is learning to look upon God as an end in itself; because God represents pūrṇatvam; and once I know that pūrṇatvam, I understand that my goal of life is self-fulfilment; self-sufficiency; and this is called madhyama bhakthi; avyabhicārini bhakthi and that is the bhakthi that these people enjoy; so prītipūrvakam means they look upon the God as the goal itself;

And what I will do; Bhagavān will say: I will also help them; How will I help them: by taking them to the next stage of sādhanā; for the next stage of bhakthi; what is the next stage of bhakthi; they have progressed from ēkarūpa bhakthi and anēka rūpa bhakthi. I hope you remember; Lord with one form to Lord with many forms; this anēka rūpa bhakthi is also not the ultimate because the ultimate Īśvara is neither ēkarūpaḥ nor aneka rūpaḥ. Then what is this form; arūpa Īśvaraḥ. Therefore Krishna tells I will take them from anēka rūpa Īśvara to arūpa Īśvaraḥ; virāt Īśvara to nirguṇam Brahma; And how to arrive at nirguṇam Brahma; only by one method; and that is called jñāna yōgaḥ.

So nirguṇam Brahma can be discovered only through jñāna yōgaḥ; therefore Krishna tells I will promote them to jñāna yōga; ददामि बुद्धियोगं तं dadāmi buddhiyōgaṃ taṃ; buddhi yōgaḥ means jñāna yōgaḥ. And jñāna yōga means what?; discovery of the formless God; So buddhi yōgam aham dadāmi; vēdānta sṛavaṇa manana nidhidhyāsanam aham dadāmi.

And through that what will they accomplish; येन मामुपयान्ति ते yēna māmupayānti tē; through that jñāna yōga; they reach the ultimate Me; which is neither ēkarūpa nor anēka rūpa; the ultimate Me is nirguṇam Brahma;

So if a guru is required; Krishna says I will provide guru; I will provide saastram; I will provide opportunity to study the śāstram. I will provide the necessary qualification to gain. I will take the contract work; For what; convert this bhaktha into a nirguṇa jñāni. That Krishna tells in the next verse:

तेषामेवानुकम्पार्थम् अहमज्ञानजं तमः ।

नाशयाम्यात्मभावस्थः ज्ञानदीन भास्वता ॥ १०.११ ॥

tēṣāmēvānukampārtham ahamajñānajaṃ tamaḥ |

अनुकम्पार्थम् एव anukampārtham eva out of compassion तेषाम् teṣām for them

नाशयामि nāśayāmi destroy तमः tamaḥ the darkness अज्ञानजम् ajñānajaṃ born of ignorance भास्वता ज्ञानदीपेन bhāsvatā jñānadīpena by the brilliant light of knowledge.

11. Out of compassion for them, I remaining in their intellect, destroy the darkness born of ignorance by the brilliant light of knowledge.

Krishna says I will light the lamp of wisdom, in the mind of the virāt bhaktha. In the mind of viśva rūpa bhaktha, I will light the lamp of wisdom; wisdom means what jñānam; Jñānam of whom; Īśvara jñānam; And what type of Īśvara, not ēkarūpa or anēkarūpa; but arūpa nirguṇa Īśvara jñānam; or aham Brahmāsmi iti jñānam; advaita jñānam; that is the lamp; Advaita jñāna dīpam, I will light in their mind.

So how can Krishna light the lamp of wisdom; do you have a special match box; so that Bhagavān will come and invite each one separately and make a hole in your head and light the lamp within you by putting inside the head; Remember, the lighting the lamp of knowledge is not a physical job; lighting the lamp of knowledge is not a physical job; Not only this knowledge; imagine a physics professor has to light the lamp of physics knowledge, in the mind of the student; What will he do; what can he do; so can he light physically; he cannot do; can he call and touch his head; sparśa dīkṣai; darśana dīkṣai; he looks at him and suddenly light burns; Does it happen; or he touches, does it happen; Or he asks the śiṣya to do regular pāda pūja; physics teacharaya namaḥ. If the physics teacher has to light the lamp of physics knowledge, there is only one method; consistent, systematic teaching. Any knowledge is lighted only by consistent teaching; and if consistent teaching should be there; student should consistently listen; If the student is not there; what will the teacher do; And therefore systematic teaching is called lighting the lamp.

And how long teaching should go; until the student understands and every doubt is removed; And therefore when Krishna says I will light the lamp of wisdom; what Krishna means is I will provide the opportunity for systematic teaching of the scriptures and I have got many gurus like the security board; like that Bhagavān has got a guru board and he can send any guru for you; and if no guru is available, Bhagavānhimself will come.

For Arjuna when he was ready, Krishna himself became the teacher; and Krishna also did not use any other shortcut to give knowledge to Arjuna; what did he Krishna do; he did not strike a match stick; Krishna did not touch the head of Arjuna; in TV and all you can show. Krishna touching the head of Arjuna; and a ray coming from Krishna and entering Arjuna, etc. and then with background music; in TV you can do and not in real life. Krishna never found any short cut to give knowledge; there is only one cut; there is no short cut or long cut; And it is systematic communication; either I will do or I will provide you a guru;

And all because of what; my compassion; Krishna says; अनुकम्पार्थम् anukampārtham; anukampa means compassion; out of compassion for them, I will provide an ācārya; I will make the student learn systematically; I will make him go through, sṛavana manana nidhidhyāsana and thus light the lamp;

आत्मभावस्थः ātmabhāvasthaḥ; all these how will I do; remaining in his own mind; so ātmabhāvaḥ; the student's mind; that is not a problem for Bhagavān, because he is already everywhere; therefore remaining in the student's mind, I will make the knowledge happen;

And what type of light it is; भास्वता ज्ञानदीन bhāsvatā jñānadīpēna; because you light up a lamp; initially the flame is very feeble; And therefore one should be very careful; that is why when you strike the matchstick, the flame is very feeble; easily it will be put out. Therefore what you do; you protect the flame; and if you want to make it a conflagration; you have to slowly fan it; and so the flame becomes big; and once it becomes sufficiently big, you need not thereafter protect it; in fact, any fuel you add thereafter it will burn all of them; there is no fear. Similarly at the time of sṛavaṇam; the lamp is lit; but you should never stop with sṛavaṇam; if you stop with sṛavaṇam; your knowledge is so feeble; that one painful experience in life, vēdānta will be thrown out. Therefore sṛavaṇam should be followed by mananam; you should spend time, revising what you have learnt; and not only mananam; nidhidhyāsanam; also and once the knowledge becomes a conviction, whatever happens in your life, it does not hurt you; And therefore bhāsvatā jñānadīpēna; by the powerful lamp of knowledge.

What do I do; तमः नाशयामि tamaḥ nāśayāmi; I will remove the darkness in the mind which is born of ignorance; so ignorance born darkness; and that internal darkness alone appears as the external gloom in the face; Whether a person is a samsāri or not; he need not tell; you can discern from the face; there is an eternal castor oil in his face; And ask how are you; he will say: going on: that is shortest answer for samsāra; Then you sit and ask what is happening; then there is a serial; chithi, swantham, bandham and all will be smaller ones; he has got a huge serial of complaints; starting from 1915. Thus that is the gloom in the face; that will go away; and the face will bloom with joy; not the problems are gone; but the problems lose their capacity to disturb me;

And therefore tamaḥ; the gloom which is born of ignorance, I will destroy. In short, this virāt bhaktha will become a Brahma jñāni. And without becoming a Brahma jñāni, there is no question of mōkṣa at all. These verses are important because, many people think that without Brahma jñānam; that by going through a different bhakthi route, like the route to Amarnath, etc. and try to circumvent the jñāna route and try to reach the Lord through bhakthi only; Bhagavān clearly says; there is no short cut; you have to gain knowledge.

At the same time, you need not be frightened also; if you surrender to the Lord; Lord will provide the conditions for knowledge; Nothing to worry; so thus, virāt bhaktha becomes Brahma jñāni is the essence of these verses. And he becomes Brahma jñāni with the assistance and support of the Lord.

12 & 13. Arjuna asked --- You are the supreme Brahman, the supreme light, and supremely holy. All the sages (including) the divine sages, Narada, Asita, Devala, as well as Vyasa speak of you as the Self of all, eternal, divine, the primary God, birthless, and all- pervasive, You are also telling me (the same).

Krishna has talked about Īśvara svarūpam and Krishna has talked about viśva rūpa bhakthi or virāt bhakthi; and Krishna has talked about the benefit of virāt bhakthi; which is Brahma jñānam; which will lead to mōkṣa. So with this Krishna's teaching is over; If Arjuna had kept quiet, the 10th chapter would have been over. Om Tat Sat would have come. but Arjuna is raising a question here in the following verses beginning from 12th, up to 18th; 12-18 Arjuna praśnaḥ. This question is based on what Krishna said before.

What did Krishna say: I am the cause of the universe and therefore I alone am appearing as this universe and therefore every glory in the universe is my glory; No human being has any glory; but my glory is manifesting through every object in the creation. So Arjuna is interested in knowing the details of Bhagavān's glory because Krishna has said everything is My glory. In Sanskrit glory is vibhūthiḥ. So whether it is a microcosmic world with its glory or the macrocosmic creation with its glory. All are My glory. Krishna says. But Arjuna says: Do not give me a general statement. Do not just say that everything is Mine; What are your glories; please list it; I am interested in knowing the Īśvara vibhūthi.

So Arjuna introduces the topic: Hey Krishna: param Brahma You are none other than the highest Nirguṇam Brahma which is appearing as saguna Īśvara, because nirguṇa Brahma with vesham is saguṇa Īśvara; dressed Brahman is Īśvara; undressed Īśvara is Brahman. Therefore do not think that Īśvara and Brahman are two different things; Brahman plus vibhūthi is Īśvara;

Therefore Arjuna says: Originally you are परं ब्रह्म param Brahma; not only that परं धाम param dhāma, and you are the supreme light of consciousness. So dhāma has the meaning of light also; dhāma means abode also; both meanings are OK. You are the abode of the whole universe or you are the light of consciousness, caitanya svarūpaḥ.

And not only that, परमं पवित्रं paramaṃ pavitraṃ; And you are the most sacred one, the holiest of the holly; And why the Lord is the holiest of the holy; because anything else becomes holy; only because of the association with the Lord. Suppose a building is there like this; it does not have any holiness at all; brick and mortar; nobody is going to namaskara; but imagine you install a deity here; The moment a deity is installed, the wholeness of the deity gets pervaded into the entire hall, and the hall also becomes holy. And therefore everything else has got borrowed holiness; whereas Īśvara has got intrinsic holiness and therefore Īśvara is the holiest of the holy; and even a saint is holy; not because of his being a human being; he has become a saint because of what; because of discovering the Lord in himself. And therefore a saint is a saint; again because of the association is the law. And therefore you are the holiest of the wholly. And that is why when you buy a fruit from the shop, the moment you get the fruit, what is your first tendency; eat it; swallow; that is the tendency; as children we have done that; it continues. But the same fruit comes from the Lord; that fruit is given for the pooja and at the end of the pooja the fruit is given back. Now the fruit is associated with the Lord; therefore you do not put straight into the mouth; first it goes into the eyes; indicating your vision of the holiness; the invisible holiness you see with this eye; you discern and the next job is what; eat; That is afterwards; so thus, a fruit becomes holy because of association with lord; a place becomes holy, because of the association with the Lord; Lord becomes holy, because of association with? No. Lord never becomes holy; Lord is holy; and therefore paramaṃ pavitraṃ; pavithranam pavithram yo mangalaanam cha mangalam.

Not only that; पुरुषं puruṣaṃ; You are the indweller; You are the resident in human body; every human body is a temple, and every heart is the sanctum and you are there as the Sakshi chaitanyam; So deho devalaya prokatha; jeeva deva sanatana;

Since you are indwelling everybody, you are called puruṣaḥ; puru means body śaḥ means residing; or resident; puruṣaḥ means resident of the body.

Then शाश्वतं śāśvataṃ; You are the eternal one; because when we say Lord is residing in the body, we may conclude, when body goes, Lord also finished;!

because house is gone; No No No. Even if the residence goes; the resident never dies; śāśvataṃ; nityam ādidēvam ajam vibhūm.

Thus Arjuna gives a wonderful description of Īśvara to please Lord Krishna; because he is going to ask for a favour. Whenever you are going to ask for a favour; first maska you apply; it is taught in Bhagavad Gītā; Apply lot of maska and thereafter Krishna you do all these; these are all pleasing the Lord; of course not bluffing; talking about the real glory; the details we will in the next class.

Om

Lord Krishna has given the essence of vibhūthi yōga in the first eleven verses which we have already covered and the main points that Krishna discussed here is that Lord is the material cause of the universe, by which the Lord meant that Bhagavān alone is manifesting as the universe. Because the material cause alone expresses as the product. And by which Krishna indirectly points out that there is no thing called world; there is no substance called world; because there is no product at all; substantial, separate from the cause. Cause alone is the only substance, effect is nothing but nāma and rūpa; name and form added to the cause; which means since the world is a product of the Lord which has emerged from the Lord, Lord is the only substance and appearing as the world with varieties of nama rūpa. And appreciating the world, as the very manifestation of the Lord is called viśvarūpa darśanam; or virāt darśanam. Viśva rūpam means viśvam ēva rūpam śarīram yasya saḥ; the Lord whose body is nothing but the very universe itself. The universal Lord is called viśvarūpa and another name for viśvarūpa is virāt. Virāt means vividham rājate iti virāt; derived from the root "rāj"; to appear, to manifest; virāj; that or he who appears in manifold forms. In fact every material cause can be called virāt. Gold can be called virāt because, gold alone appears manifoldly as bangle, chain, ring, ityādhi, vividha rūpēna rājathe, prakāśathe. Similarly Bhagavān is called virāt because he himself appears as ākāśa; vāyu, agni, etc. And the one who appreciates this viśvarūpam is called virāt bhaktha. And Lord Krishna said, for a virāt bhaktha a special temple is not required to invoke devotion. In fact for him devotion is the basic thing which is there in and through all transactions. Because the Lord never goes out of his mind, out of his sight. And he appreciates the Lord everywhere, he has got satata bhakthi or nitya yuktha he is. And Lord Krishna pointed out for such a virāt bhaktha, nirguṇa Brahma jñānam is closer. For those people who are worshipping personal God, nirguṇa jñānam is farther. From personal God, nirguṇam Brahma, a person cannot directly reach; between personal God and nirguṇa Īśvara. There is an intermediary step and what is that step, learning to appreciate the universe, as the manifestation of the Lord; which means I have got an expanded mind. Only a mind which has expanded sufficiently to appreciate the universe as the Lord, only such a mind can discover I am the very substratum of the entire universe. I am the infinite nirguṇam Brahma. To discover I require an expanded mind. Therefore Krishna said for virāt bhaktha, viśvarūpa bhaktha, I will provide all the facilities for gaining nirguṇa jñānam; Thus ēkarūpa bhakthi to anēka rūpa bhakthi to arūpa bhakthi; all these three levels are indicated in the first eleven verses.

And with this 10th chapter is actually over, because everything is the glory of one Īśvara only, but Arjuna feels that he should get a list of an enumeration of the Lord's glories; available both here and elsewhere. And therefore in the following verses beginning from the 12th which I introduced in the last class; up to the 18th, Arjuna makes a special request: Hey Krishna! I know everything is your glory but I would like to have an exhaustive enumeration of your glory. And before seeking this favour, Arjuna wants to please Krishna. As I told you in the last class. Never go and ask for a favour directly; you go and apply Maska; remember that. And that is why in the Śiva temple also; we never start with chamakam, chamakam is never the beginning. Before chamakam, what do you do; rudram which is otherwise called namakam; rudra is called namakam; why it is called namaka, because you say namaḥ, namaḥ;

नमो नीलग्रीवाय च शितिकण्ठाय च
नमः कपर्दिने च व्युप्तकेशाय च || ५- १ ||
namō bhavāya ca rudrāya ca namaḥ śarvāya ca paśupatayē ca namō nīlāgrīvāya ca śitikaṅṭhāya ca
namaḥ kapardinē ca vyuptakēśāya ca || 5- 1 ||

namaḥ namaḥ namaḥ; How? you glorify Lord Śiva; and to such a wonderful I offer namaskāram and when Lord Śiva hears all these glorification; he is extremely happy and when he is in such a happy mood, before his mood goes out, because we are worried; because our mood does not stay for long; So we are worried Lord Śiva will also lose his mood. And therefore before that happy mood goes away; you want to present a list of demands. And therefore immediately after rudram will follow chamakam. And generally they will chant it in Rājadhāni express speed; because if you chant slowly, before you finish, Śiva may lose his mood; and therefore वाजश्च मे प्रसवश्च मे, vājaśca mē prasavaśca mē; kada pida you want to complete, because Lord Śiva, as even he says given given given; given. And then only he will think whether you deserve it or not; by that time you have got it; we have been manipulating like that; And Lord Śiva has not yet recognised this; our diplomacy; anyway that is aside; always stuthi and after sthuthi you ask for your boon; Arjuna knows this method and therefore first he glorifies Krishna and when Krishna is in a happy mood; he will ask for this vibhūthi varṇanam; And how does he glorify: Hey Krishna: Bhavān परं ब्रह्म param brahma; you are the supreme infinite nirguṇam Brahma and you are param dhaama; you are the supreme and infinite consciousness principle, supreme light of consciousness, and you are the supremely wholly principle; पवित्रं परमं pavitram paramam; everything else becomes sacred; because of your association, whereas you are sacred not because of somebody else's association; you are sacred because that is your nature.

And what is meant by holiness or sacredness? Ānanda is called holy; what is holy; whatever gives me ānanda is holy; therefore you are ānanda svarūpa.

Up to this we saw in the last class. We have to see the second line of verse No.12, therein Arjuna says पुरुषं शाश्वतं दिव्यम् puruṣam śāśvataṁ divyam. And here the interesting thing is Arjuna is not very sure what is Nirguṇam Brahma; because remember Arjuna is only in the process of learning; he has not yet become a pucca jñāni. And therefore what does Arjuna do; he enumerates all these things; and then he puts within quotes "thus people, the great people declare". What does it mean; it means I do not know for sure; they declare. So these are all put in quotes; the completion of this verse is in the next ślōka only; इति आहुः, सर्वे ऋषयः आहुः iti āhuḥ; sarvē ṛiṣayaḥ āhuḥ; All the great ṛiṣis declare like this; like what; puruṣam; so you are the indwelling principle, indwelling every living being as the very consciousness behind every organ;

śrotrasya śrōtram manasō manō yad vāco haḥ vācaṁ sa u prāṇasya prāṇaḥ | Kena. 1.2

Every organ is sentient because of the presence of the awareness and that awareness principle you are indwelling every inert body. So puru here refers to śarīram and षः ṣa means the resident, puruṣaḥ means the resident of the body. And that is why when we meet anyone, we do namaskāra; our Indian greeting is what; Not hi hi; hi high, is used for buffalos and cow, when they walk on the road; because they are obstructing your way. Therefore you have to drive away; in front of humanbeings, our greeting is not high high or low low, our greeting is namaskāra is namasthe and the namaskāra does not go to that person; because we are very doubtful whether the person deserves namaskāra; still we boldly do namaskāra, inside the body is the Lord.

And he also says Namasthe. And therefore पुरुषं, शाश्वतं puruṣam and śāśvataṁ and you are in the impermanent body and you yourselves are not impermanent; therefore śāśvataṁ; you are the eternal ātma tatvam;

एको बहूनां यो विदधाति कामान् । ...

Kathopanishad || Part II. Canto II. १३||

nityō:'nityānām cētanāścētanānām

ēkō bahūnām yō vidadhāti kāmān | ...

The nitya Īśvara is inside the anitya śarīram. Therefore you are the eternal one and दिव्यम् divyam; divyam means what: cetana tatvam, because body by itself is inert, made of matter, sense organs by themselves are inert, even mind according to our saastra is inert subtle matter or energy and if these inert organs are functioning, it is because of the caitanyam; and therefore the Lord is called divyaḥ; Divyaḥ, dyōthana svarūpa; svayam prakāśa svarūpaḥ; self-evident consciousness;

And आदिदेवं ādidēvaṁ and you are the primal God who was existent even before the dēvathās came into being. So even before Brahmāji was born, you were there; so first from the Lord Brahmāji arises, the purāṇa you know from the navel of Viṣṇu; Brahmāji comes and from Brahmāji all the other dēvathās like indra, varuṇa, etc. are born. And therefore you are a dēvathā; or the kāraṇa dēvathā; all others are kārya dēvathā. And being the kāraṇam; you are the आदि ādi; existing before all; so आदिदेवं ādidēvam.

And then who is the cause of the Lord; it is a natural question; when you say Lord is the parent of the universe; and even children will ask who is the parent of the Lord.

Because I know my parent has got his parent; and his parent has got his parent; this goes on and on; if the Lord is the universal parent, who is the parent of the Lord; If you ask; Krishna gives the answer; अजम् ajam; the Lord does not have a parent, because Lord was never born to have a parent; therefore ajam means unborn; birthless; And therefore only causeless cause; fatherless father; motherless mother, he is the Lord.

And where is he located; विभुम् vibhum; vibhum means the all-pervading one. All these descriptions how does Arjuna know; he says thus the ṛiṣīs declare; that will come in the next verse.

आसितो देवलो व्यासाः स्वयं चैव ब्रवीषि मे ॥ १०.१३ ॥ āhustvāmṛṣayaḥ sarvē dēvarṣirnāradastathā |
asitō dēvalō vyāsaḥ svayaṃ caiva bravīṣi mē || 10.13 ||

Arjuna says I have gathered all these information from the scriptures given out by the Ṛiṣīs; सर्वे ऋषयः आहुः sarvē ṛṣayaḥ āhuḥ. So all the ṛiṣīs declare thus; ṛiṣīs means a jñāni; ṛṣathi jñāthi iti Ṛiṣiḥ; so Ṛiṣī does not mean the one who should live in the forest only and one who should have lot of jata and one who should have a long beard; preferably white. So they are only the external thing, Ṛiṣī has nothing to do with external conditions, it relates to knowledge. So whoever has got knowledge, he is the real Ṛiṣī; even though he is coated, suited and booted. So those traditional jñānis declare so; you have to connect to previous slōkā; Whatever has been said in the previous slōkā, the ṛiṣīs declare;

And not only the ṛiṣīs of this world, this bhūlōka say so; देवर्षिर्नारदः dēvarṣirnāradaḥ; also the sages of the heaven; the heavenly sages; previously the word ṛiṣayaḥ means the earthly sages; bhūlōka ṛiṣayaha; dēvarṣi means dēva lōka ṛiṣayaḥ. And there are several ṛiṣīs and who is the most popular one, Nāradaḥ; Nāradaḥ means the one who gives knowledge to people; nāram means jñānam; da means giver; dadāthi iti daḥ; nāram is equal to jñānam; So Nāradaḥ means nāram jñānam dadāthi iti Nāradaḥ, the one who is a travelling teacher; mobile teacher. So he travels and educates people; Of course he uses different methods; generally some kalaḥa he starts; Nāradaḥ kalaḥa is well-known, Even if he starts some kalaḥa he starts; it is meant to educate people; therefore he is called Nāradaḥ; and not only Nāradaḥ, other sages also; असितो देवलो व्यासाः asitaḥ dēvalaḥ and vyāsaḥ. All these three are names of sages; asitaḥ is the name of a sage; dēvalaḥ is the name of his son; asita pūtraḥ dēvalaḥ.

Then the next one is Vyāsaḥ; and who is writing this. Remember Vyāsa alone is compiler; do not doubt how can Vyāsaḥ write his own name; Remember Vyāsa is only quoting what Arjuna has said; not Vyāsa's insertion; therefore all these sages say so; and even those ṛiṣīs I may doubt or may not doubt; but the ultimate authority is what; स्वयं चैव ब्रवीषि मे svayaṃ caiva braviṣi mē; you yourselves declare so; and I have got full śraddhaḥ in you; the other people may give the right knowledge or not; but you will never mislead me; and therefore you are Brahman, you are paraṃ brahma paraṃ dhāma pavithram, etc. All these are what; glorifying Krishna; not that Krishna is going to fall for the glorification; for Arjuna's tripti he is doing this.

न हि ते भगवन्व्यक्तिं विदुर्देवा न दानवाः ॥ १०.१४ ॥

sarvamētadṛtaṃ manyē yanmāṃ vadasi kēśava |

na hi tē Bhagavānvaktiṃ vidurdēvā na dānavāḥ || 10.14 ||

केशव keśava Oh Krishna! मन्ये manyē I consider सर्वम् एतत् sarvam etat all this, यद् वदसि माम् yad vadasi mām which You tell me ऋतम् ṛtam to be true हि hi because न देवाः na devāḥ neither the Gods न दानवाः na dānavāḥ nor the demons विदुः viduḥ know ते व्यक्तिम् te vyaktim your manifestation भगवन् Bhagavān oh Lord !

14. Oh Krishna! I consider all this which You tell me to be true, because neither the Gods nor the demons know Your manifestation, Oh, Lord.

Whatever glory has been enumerated, I accept all of them as truth; एतत् सर्वम् ऋतम् ētad sarvam ṛtaṃ; sarvamētadṛtaṃ is; it will be ētaḍ ṛtaṃ; ṛtaṃ means satyam; valid truth, authentic, reliable information they are. What information; remember that slōkā; which slōkā; the verse No.12, the glories are mentioned; all the glories mentioned in 12th verse, I accept as complete truth. Because यद् माम् वदसि केशव yad mām vadasi keśava; because you are saying so; and you will never bluff; you are never unreliable. You are pramāṇikāḥ and therefore I accept all of them; and I cannot cross check your teaching with the other local people because, the local people will never know your glories completely; because they all have got their own limitations. And therefore Arjuna says; nobody else knows this fact; you alone are the knower: Hey Bhagavān: Oh Lord; देवाः दानवाः ते व्यक्तित्म् न विदुः devāḥ dānavāḥ tē vyaktim na viduḥ; Even God's do not know your full glory; God means like Indra, Varūṇa, etc.

And this we have seen in Kēnōpaniṣad also; In Kēnōpaniṣad, when devas were celebrating victory over asūras, Lord wanted to reveal their limitations; therefore appeared in a mysterious Yakṣa form and all the devas could not know even who that Yakṣa is; and we saw in the story; Vāyu went and got humiliated; Agni went and got humiliated; Indra went and the Yakṣa itself disappeared; and all of them understood that we all have our own intellectual limitations. And thereafter Indra becomes humble and surrenders; I can never know the truth with the help of the limited intellect, because our intellects are meant to know only the finite thing, existing within time and space. In fact, our intellect is not even able to understand the big bang. And what was their before the big bang, you must be knowing big bang; I do not want to go into that; When we are not able to understand these things very clearly; how can we know the truth which is beyond time and space. And therefore Indra becomes humble; paurūṣeya pramāṇam useless paurūṣeya pramāṇam; our instruments of knowledge is useless; And therefore Indra surrenders; then Umadevi comes; Umadevi representing the scriptures; Sarasvati; so the same idea is conveyed here; dēvāḥ indra varūṇadāya; they can never you clearly; and dānavāḥ; if dēvās themselves cannot know, Asūrās know; because dēvās with purified mind; they are not able to know, then what to talk of Asūrā, with the impure mind; they also do not know; Therefore who knows your glory; there is only who knows your glory; and what is you; therefore I have got the right person; let me get straight from the horse's mouth; Let me get a description from you yourselves; So हि भगवान् ते व्यक्तित्म् Hē Bhagavān tē vyaktim; here means manifestations or glory.

the creator of all beings भूतेश bhūteśa the sustainer of all beings देवदेव dēvadēva the god of all gods, जगत्पते jagatpatē and the protector of the Universe ! त्वं स्वयं वेत्थ tvam svayaṃ vettha you alone know आत्मानम् ātmanam Yourself आत्मना एव ātmanā eva by yourself

15. Oh Krishna! The creator of all beings, the sustainer of all beings, the God of all gods, and the protector of the Universe! You alone know Yourself by Yourself.

Here interesting we find that Arjuna is increasing the number of different namās or names he uses for the Lord; so in previous slōkā, he said keśava and Bhagavān; and in this slōkā, it is increasing, hey puruṣōttama; hey bhūtabhāvana; Hey bhūteśa; a mini archana he is doing; hey bhūteśa; hey dēvadēva; hey jagatpatē, these are all different epithets of the Lord; revealing his glory.

And what are those glories; hey पुरुषोत्तम puruṣōttama; Puruṣōttama is a technical word; which will be explained in the 15th chapter, wherein Krishna divides the entire universe into three; kṣara puruṣa; akṣara puruṣa and uttama puruṣa;

kṣara puruṣa means manifest matter; or matter,

Akṣara puruṣa is unmanifest matter or energy, and Uttama puruṣa is the consciousness principle;

Thus the whole universe consists of only three; matter in tangible form; matter in intangible form, and the consciousness which is different from both tangible and intangible matter. Tangible matter is called kṣara puruṣa; intangible matter; Energy is intangible matter only, is Akṣara Puruṣa; and the consciousness is called Uttama Puruṣa; and Uttama Puruṣa reversed is what; Puruṣottama; Puruṣottama means the pure consciousness which is beyond matter.

And Oh Lord! you are not the physical body that I am seeing; your body is an incidental veshā; but the real You is nothing but pure consciousness; Hey Puruṣottama; caitanya svarūpa; chid rūpa;

And भूतभावन bhūtabhāvana; bhūta means all things and beings in the universe; bhāvana means creator; sṛiṣṭi kartā; therefore bhūta means sṛiṣṭi; bhāvana means kartā; bhūtabhāvana means sṛiṣṭi kartā; bhūtāni bhavāti udpādayathi ithi bhūtabhāvana. So you are the fundamental-consciousness principle from which alone the matter evolves and creation comes and ultimately the material creation devolves and dissolves in the consciousness. Therefore bhūtabhāvana.

And भूतेश bhūtēśa; not only you are the creator of the world, you are also the controller of the world. It is easy to create something; and thereafterwards you should know how to manage it; our own children; OK; we do, we do not know how to handle them; afterall we feel that we should not have had them.

Similarly so many things; when they are doing some genetic research. There are some people objecting this research because some new bacteria or germ may be created and which may prove to be a deadly disease of the germ and we may not know how to handle and there are some people who say that AIDS is born out of some misfired research. Of course this is the belief and not the truth. We are worried that we may produce something that we may not know how to handle. Therefore who is omnipotent one; omnipotent one is he or she who not only can create, but also can maintain or manage.

And therefore oh Lord; not only you are sṛiṣṭi kartā; you are also sthiti kartā; the great manager; then देवदेव dēvadēva; which word we have seen before; you are the primal god; the lord of all gods; the controller of even dēvathās; dēvathās meaning Indra, Varuna, Agni etc. they control our life; but they themselves are controlled by you; if you remember Kathōpaniṣad:

भयादस्याग्निस्तपति भयात्तपति सूर्यः ।

भयादिन्द्रश्च वायुश्च मृत्युर्धावति पञ्चमः ॥ Katha. Part II.Canto III.३ ॥

bhayādasyāgnistapati bhayāttapati sūryaḥ |

bhayādirāśca vāyuśca mṛtyurdhāvati pañcamaḥ || Katha. Part II.Canto III.3||

Even dēvathās are functioning because of your control; therefore you are dēvadēva; dēvānām dēvaḥ.

And जगत्पते jagatpatē; jagat pathi means the protector of the world from those people who try to destroy the world:

paritrāṇāya sādhanām vināśāya ca duṣkṛtām |

dharmasamsthāpanārthāya sambhavāmi yugē yugē|| 4.8 ||

Whenever there is a threat to this world, you yourselves find out methods of protecting this world; therefore jagatpatē;

And why I want to everything from you; the reason is given in the first line, स्वयमेवात्मनात्मानं वेत्थ svayamēva''tmanā''tmānaḥ vēttha; You alone know yourselves completely; The other people do not know your glory Oh Lord; only you know; so svayam vēttha;

And how did you come to know; who was your guru. If Lord requires another guru; then the next question will be what; who is his guru. Therefore Arjuna says here: atmanā vēttha; you know not because of any guru; but you know by yourselves. So Lord was never ignorant to become a jñāni. All the other people were ajñānis; were born ajñānis and they struggle, went to a guru; and studied repeatedly and at last somehow they become jñānis; but in the case of Lord; never become jñānis. So you are Sarvajñāha. Therefore you know yourselves by yourselves; and therefore you are the best person; tell me the details.

अर्हसि अशेषेण arhasi aśeṣeṇa you should completely वक्तुम् vaktum narrate
दिव्याः हि आत्मविभूतयः divyāḥ hi ātmavibhutayaḥ those divine glories, याभिः विभूतिभिः yābhiḥ vibhūtibhiḥ by which glories त्वं विष्टसि व्याप्य tvam viṣṭasi
vyāpya you remain pervading इमान् लोकान् imān lokān these worlds

16. You should completely narrate (those) divine glories of Yours by which glories you remain pervading these world.

Up to the previous verse is glorification. The Namakam part; now comes the Chamakam part; Chamakam part means asking favours. He says: वक्तुम् अर्हसि vaktum arhasi; You should teach me. Arhasi is a mild commandment; humble commandment; OK; arhasi.

You should teach me; what आत्मविभूतयः ātmavibhutayaḥ; all your glory; all your manifestation; ātma is reflexive pronoun of your own glory;

And that too what type of glories; दिव्याः divyāḥ, which are extra ordinary; because almost everything that we do is a glory; even walking is a glory that we enjoy; we will know only when we meet the people who are struggling to walk. Go to any place where physio therapy sessions are going. They are struggling to keep one step forward; similarly opening and closing a glory; we never know because it is working; All these glories are called loukika vibhūthi; it is great. Still since it is there; so commonly, we do not recognise; only when one organ fails to function. Suddenly when somebody said; I am very very poor; then this person too him to an organ transplant centre; where the cost of every organ for transplantation is mentioned; Kidney Rs.250000. Another kidney: Rs.250000. pancreases, If you have to put insulin, then only you will know the story; insulin; everybody enzyme; if you have to produce a few milligrams of enzymes, hundreds and thousands of rupees. Similarly skin, you take it lightly, you go to that burn centre, where they are culturing the skin; for each square inch, they charge so many. Then he calculated and he came to Rs.15 -20 lakhs; He said: you have one kidney or not; Rs.250000. add. and you have got two; Rs.5 lakhs. Then liver, brain, working or not; it is there!. It is there Brain; You are the richest man in the world; but we take them for granted because from birth it is there; and it is all money.

So Arjuna says I do not want to enumerate them because they have all got it free; I want to enumerate the divyā; divyā means aloukika vibhūthaya; extraordinary glories; the noticeable ones. You have to tell all of them; enlist all of them.

याभिः विभूतिभिः yābhiḥ vibhūtibhiḥ; with which glory; With those extra ordinary glories; इमान् लोकान् व्याप्य imān lokān vyāpya tiṣṭhasi; you are pervading the whole creation; in the form of these glories. So this glories are not found in one corner of the universe; take anything in the universe; you are present in one glory or the other.

So याभिः विभूतिभिः yābhiḥ vibhūtibhiḥ; with such extra ordinary glories; you pervade the whole creation and remain; And such a list of glories I want to get from you, So this is the favour, that Arjuna wants; And what is the purpose; why do I want it. Arjuna gives the purpose in the next verse.

केषु केषु च भावेषु चिन्त्योऽसि भगवन्मया ॥ १०.१७ ॥

katham vidyāmaham yōgiṁstvām sadā paricintayan |

kēṣu kēṣu ca bhāvēṣu cintyō'si Bhagavānmayā | | 10.17 | |

constantly thinking त्वाम् tvām of you कथम् अहं विद्याम् katham aham vidhyām how can I know (Your true nature)? केषु केषु च भावेषु keṣu keṣu ca bhāvēṣu in what all objects असि चिन्त्यः asi cintyaḥ are You to be meditated upon, मया mayā by me भगवन् Bhagavān oh Lord?

17. Oh Lord of all powers! Constantly thinking of you, how can I know ((your true nature)? In what all objects are you to be meditated upon by me, Oh Lord?

Arjuna says the purpose of this favour that I am asking from you is I will be able to take anyone of the enlisted glories. I can use that glory for dhyānam or meditation upon you. Because among the enlisted glories; anyone glory will be appealing to me. Some people love flowers; some people love sunrise; some people love the ocean; different things appeal to different people; I can take anyone of them; and use it as a symbol or alambanam for Īśvara dhyānam.

And thus every glorious object becomes an alambanam; alambanam means symbol for meditation upon the Lord. And that is why in our culture; we worship anything and everything in the creation; And when we worship anything, we do not worship the thing by itself; but the things symbolises the Lord is behind; whether we worship the Sun, or moon, or trees or snake or river, each one becomes a pratheekam.

Otherwise alambanam; therefore Arjuna says; केषु केषु च भावेषु keṣu keṣu ca bhāveṣu; in which all alambanam or glorious objects can you be meditated upon.

चिन्त्यः cintyaḥ; upāśyaḥ; So in what all glorious objects can you be meditated upon, I want that list; bhāvaḥ means what; a glorious object; which you are going to enumerate; out of which I can select one and I can invoke You in that; OK. and by practising such a meditation; what meditation, virāt meditation; meditation upon the total Īśvara; but symbol is what; an individual symbol; any glorious symbol; it can be even a cow; we worship cow; and you would have seen the picture on the cow; different dēvathās are there; indicating what. virāt, the total; what is the symbol we use; the cow; but what we meditate upon is the total.

Brihadāranyaka upaniṣad starts with meditation upon a horse; asvathanam; and there also Brihadārnyaka describes each limb of the horse and ask us to see that totality in that one part;

uṣā vā aśvasya mēdhyasya śiraḥ sūryaścaḥsur vātaḥ prāṇō vyāttamagnirvaiśvānaraḥ saṁvatsara ātmā:śvasya mēdhyasya. dyauḥ pṛṣṭham antarikṣamudaram pṛthivī pājasyam [1.i.2]

You take any glorious thing, whichever you like and see the totality in that.

And what is the benefit out of that virāt upasana. Arjuna says: सदा माम् परिचिन्तयन् sadā mām paricintayan; by visualising the viśva rūpa Īśvara, in any such glorious object, I will later come to know your higher nature; Even in Sandhyavandanam, first before they start, they have to take the water in the hands; and they have to look at the water; and chant the mantrās; and what is the mantras;

आपो वा इदं सर्वं विश्वा भूतान्यापः प्राणा वा आपः
पशव आपोऽन्न मापोऽमृत मापः सम्राडापो विराडापः
स्वराडाप श्छन्दोऽस्यापो ज्योतींष्यापो
यजूंष्यापस्स त्यमापस्सर्वा देवता आपो भूर्भुवस्सुवराप ओम्

āpō vā idam̐ sarvaṁ viśvā bhūtānyāpaḥ prāṇā vā āpaḥ paśava āpō:'nna māpō:'mṛta māpaḥ samrādāpō virādāpaḥ yajūṁṣyāpassa tyamāpassarvā dēvatā āpō bhūrbhuvassuvarāpa om̐

--Mahanarayana Upaniṣad 4.29

I do not know whether some of you feel familiar; Water is one of the glorious things is the creation; and Madras people know that very well; and you take that water in your hand and you say all the dēvathās and all the vedas, all the animals, all the insects; you superimpose on that water; and thereafter it is no more inert H2O, but it is Īśvara for me; Thereafter Aapo hishta mayo bhuva thana oorje dadha thana; ... So I invoke the grace of the Lord who has been invoked in that water; Thus anything can be taken to invoke the visvarūpa;

And by doing that; what will happen; त्वाम् अहं विध्याम् tvām ahaṁ vidhyām; I will come to know your higher nature; what is higher nature; higher to viśvarūpa Īśvara is what; arūpa Īśvara; nirguṇam Brahma I want to know ultimately; viśva rūpa Īśvara is saguṇa Brahma. From that saguṇa, I will come to know Nirguṇam; because remember without nirguṇa jñānam; no mōkṣa; you can never circumvent the nirguṇa jñānam; you can postpone if you do not like, but you can never avoid it.

And therefore Arjuna says, by meditating or visualising the viswarūpa in any glorious object, I will be able to come to nirguṇam jñānam later; therefore give me a list.

And the list should be as exhaustive as possible; when you want to buy some clothes, which departmental store we will go to; If there is a store with 2 options only green colour and red colour are there; there is another shop which has thousand varieties; in green itself 25,000 and in so many varieties and so many textures; and you will all go to that shop because you have variety. So give me a departmental store, where we have so many symbols of Lord to meditate upon. And other people criticise saying Hinduism is confusing; we say for them only there is a disadvantage. They have no form or one form; whether you like or not; you have to worship that. But in Hinduism you can take any form; and the Lord and prepare your mind and come to gain that knowledge and be free.

And therefore upāsanārtham, I want your glory. Upāsanā is for jñānartham; for taking up jñānam; the details we will see in the next class.

सदाशिव समारम्भां शङ्कराचार्यमध्यमाम्

अस्मद् आचार्य पर्यन्ताम् वन्दे गुरु परम्पराम्

In the first eleven verses of this chapter, Vibhūthi yōgaḥ, Lord Krishna talked about the unique nature of God, because of which God becomes both the intelligent cause of the creation and more importantly the material cause of the creation also. Since the Lord is the intelligent cause of this creation, we come to know that the cause is cētana tatvam, because the intelligence cause should have intelligence and to have a intelligence should be a sentient being, and therefore Lord being the intelligent cause, God has got the omniscience and also omnipotence or the skill to create this universe. So sarvajñātvam and sarvaśaktimatvam and the cētanatvam, etc. are revealed by that. And this aspect is said in all religious scriptures, whichever religion accepts God, they all point out that God is Omniscient, Omnipotent, Omnipresent; this is common.

But the second unique feature that Krishna pointed out that God himself is the material cause also because of which we come to know that God has the potentiality to manifest as the very Universe. Just as seed, the material cause of the tree has the potentiality to manifest as the tree; Similarly Lord has the potentiality to manifest as the universe. And this first power of Omnipotence and the Omniscience is technically called Yōgaśakti and the manifestation of the Lord in the form of the creation is called Vibhūthi. And thus God has called yōga and vibhūthi; yōga referring to the Omniscience and Omnipotence by which He is the intelligent cause, and Vibhūthi means the potentiality or the capacity by which the Lord manifests as the manifold universe.

And this was pointed out in the beginning part of the 10th chapter and thereafter Krishna said because of this reason a person need not make separate effort to have the vision of God, because once I understand that God alone is manifesting as this universe, everything in the universe is the manifestation of the Lord; therefore whatever I am seeing, I am seeing God only, So when I am seeing a bangle; I am having svaraṇa darśanam; When I seeing a chain, I am having svaraṇa darśanam; when I am seeing a ring, I am having svaraṇa darśanam, why because svaraṇa happens to be the material cause of all these three; extending the same principle, whatever effect in this creation I experience, whether it is ākāśa, agni or vāyu; or jalam or prithvi, I am having Īśvara darśanam; when I am seeing ākāśa, I am having Īśvara darśanam; whenever I am seeing vāyu, whenever I a seeing agni, In fact I am sarvada, sarvathra; sarvada means at every time, sarvathra means in every place. I am constantly having Īśvara darśanam only. If only I know this fact that Īśvara is the very substance behind this creation.

And this appreciation of Īśvara as the very universe was called virāt darśanam; or viśva rūpa darśanam, the details of which we will get in the 11th chapter. Krishna had indicated this viśva rūpa darśanam in the 7th chapter also; in the 9th chapter also; and in the 10th chapter also.

And then Krishna pointed out the one who is such a Virāt Bhaktha, for him a temple is not required to invoke the devotee in him; because for him every place is temple because temple is defined as a place where God is; temple is defined as a place where God is. And since God everywhere for him; every place is a temple; and since every place is a temple, he is a devotee in every place. And therefore the basic transformation that takes place in him is that he is not a devotee at a particular place and time, but he is a devotee at all times in all places. So this conversion of the temporary devotee into a permanent devotee is a very big transformation, which is result of viśva rūpa appreciation.

And once I am a permanent devotee, then my very response to situations in life will be different. Naturally raga and dvesha will be heavily neutralised and therefore mental disturbances also will come down. In fact such a virāt bhaktha will become sādānā catuṣṭaya sampannāḥ, effortlessly.

And once he has got that sādānā catuṣṭaya sampannāḥ, he will have only goal in life, which is to recognise the next higher stage of Īśvara; virāt Īśvara to nirguṇa Īśvara. To remember what I had told before, ēkarūpa Īśvara; anēka rūpa Īśvara to arūpa Īśvara. Both stages are very important transformation, not that easy; First conversion is over; ēkarūpa bhaktha to anēka rūpa bhaktha; From this to come to nirguṇa jñānam is not easy; but Krishna promises my assistance will be there; I will cooperate with you;

dadāmi buddhiyōgaṃ taṃ yēna māmupayānti tē || 10.10 ||

I will make sure that his mind is a pāthram; fit mind. And if guru is required, I will send one; if śāstram sṛavaṇam is required, I will provide the opportunity; every thing I will do, until the nirguṇa Īśvara jñānam takes place, which alone will give liberation.

tēṣāmēvānukampārtham ahamajñānaṃ tamaḥ|
nāśayāmyātmabhāvasthō jñānadīpēna bhāsvatā || 10.11 ||

So thus Krishna has comprehensively presented the entire journey, ēkarūpa bhakthi to anēka rūpa bhakthi to arūpa bhakthi.

And now Arjuna asks a question from verse No.12 up to verse No.18; which part we are seeing now; Arjuna is interested in knowing more about Viśvarūpa Īśvaraḥ. Of course Krishna has pointed out that everything in the creation is Bhagavān's manifestation; Lord plus nama rūpa is equal to creation; but even though everything is the manifestation of the Lord, certain things in the creation are more attractive. More appealing; so attractive manifestation of Īśvara; even among animals and insects also; if you see an elephant and that too a young elephant; you can go on watching; but you see a cockroach; are you at any time tempted to watch it; unless you are doing a research on cockroach; cockroach is wonderful. It is great, it has existed before us; and in the evolution ladder it has existed and if there is a huge atomic explosion we all will die but cockroach will survive; it has got a tremendous survival mechanism; so it is also there; it is also glory of Lord; but human mind finds it difficult to think of that.

Therefore Arjuna wants to know a list of glorious attractive beautiful things in the creation; in fact we ourselves can make a list; among the flowers we can take one flower, this is the most attractive flower and that is the lord; even though other flowers are the Lord, you say this is the Lord. And similarly among animals you can take, among trees you can take; among human beings you can take; among cricketers you can take; among chess players you can take, among teachers you can take; even though we can make our own list; even among Gītā chapters also; you can say which chapter is most appealing; suppose I ask; and ask everyone of you to write in a chit and drop, You will find each one will have a different chapter; it is always a difficult question; one will say 12 is great; another will say 10 is great; another will say 15 is great; for eating!; of course it has other reasons also. So take the attractive thing in the creation and what is the purpose, Arjuna says it is easier to focus the mind upon an attractive thing; the mind gravitates towards something beautiful; something glorious, something wonderful, and since the mind naturally gravitates, we can take that attractive object, as a symbol of the Lord; because even though Lord is everything, we can simultaneously meditate upon the totality; Because our mind has limitation; you can think of only one thing at a time; our eyes are limited, I cannot see all of you simultaneously; if I see here, I cannot see there; it is impossible to see everything at once. So how can I visualise the totality for meditation; it is impossible and therefore what do I do; I take a finite symbol to represent the infinite exactly like saluting a flag to represent the entire country; otherwise how will I salute India; I have to travel all over, keeping the hand like that; By the time I complete, the hand will be stuck on the head; it is not possible; therefore have a Bhāratmāta picture or have a flag and then you salute the flag; therefore you require a symbol to visualise and any attractive object can become such a symbol; we call it alambanam; In the upaniṣad classes, I have dealt with it in Kathōpaniṣad; ētat ālambanaṁ srēṣṭam, ētat ālambanaṁ param; ālambanaṁ means what; a finite concrete symbol to represent a limitless and abstract object.

And this ālambanaṁ is of two types and one is called prathimā ālambanaṁ and the another is called prathēka ālambanaṁ; prathimā means a ālambanaṁ which has got a human form; where all the limbs and organs are prominent; like Rāma, Krishna etc. head is there; hands are there; eyes are there; Just as we have got clear limbs, if Lord also is represented as a human being, with clean limbs, anthropomorphism, visualising God as a person. Even though the all-pervading cannot have a personal form; but you still represent; when you do like that, it is called prathimā;

But when you use a symbol, which is not like a human being or animal but it does not have all the limbs etc. like a sāligrama; which has no hands, legs, eyes, etc. it does not have limbs; therefore sāligrama will become prathēka ālambanaṁ; Śiva liṅga is prathika ālambanaṁ; if you take turmeric powder and make a lump, and call it vignesvara; it is prathēka ālambanaṁ. And in the lamp, when you do pūja, you take the flame and the flame does not have hands and legs; it is prathēka ālambanaṁ; Thus you can choose anything in the creation as a prathima or prathika ālambanaṁ;

In fact we can take human beings; and if we are attached to someone and if there is someone great; we can choose and worship; but better not to tell that person, because that person may develop ego; people are worshipping me. And therefore you can destroy a person by flattering him; and therefore since ego can be developed, we say we do not do that; but we worship matrudēvō bhava; mother is taken as a representative of God, father is taken; guru is taken, any jñāni is taken, Thus even a human being can be an ālambanaṁ; therefore Arjuna wants a list of ālambanaṁs. And therefore he says Hey Krishna: even though I can do the home work, I want you to help me by giving me the list;

केषु केषु च भावेषु चिन्त्योऽसि भगवन्मया ॥१०.१७॥
katham vidyāmaham yōgimstvām sadā paricintayan |
kēṣu kēṣu ca bhāvēṣu cintyō'si bhagavanmayā ||10.17||

kīdruṣu bhāvēṣu; ālambanaṁ bhāvēṣu; there bhāva represents what; any object which can serve as an ālambanaṁ; a symbol; an aide; not AIDS, aide, means help, support, Support for what, the mind, the mind needs the support of the concrete to visualise the abstract. For doing abstract dhyānam, we need the support of the concrete; and therefore it is called: ālambanaṁ;

And what is the benefit that I will get not mōkṣa directly; By this upāsana; my mind will expand, I will learn to see god everywhere; when I see a river; I do not jump into the river in attraction; I will first go and do namaskāra and I do prōkṣaṇam; and then prayerfully I enter the water; that transformation takes lot of assimilation; It is very easy jump into the river; especially for Madras people who do not see have even water, So when they see a river somewhere you get excited; he will be tempted; but I do not do; Similarly when you see something nice, eatable; it is very easy to gulp it putuk, immediately; but I do not do that; I remember the Lord. So this transformation Arjuna wants and therefore he asks for Krishna's assistance, and Krishna is going to help Arjuna.

18. Oh Krishna! Tell (me) again about Your power and manifestation in detail, because there is no satisfaction for me who is listening to the nectar (of words).

So before requesting as we saw in the last class, first Arjuna gloried Krishna so that Krishna is very happy. And when Krishna is very happy, Arjuna wanted to give the donation book; so that he can collect enough funds; Like that he wants to ask, after pleasing Lord Krishna; because Krishna is very happy, because he has been glorified param brahma param dhāma pavitraṃ, śāśvataṃ, ādidēvam, etc. a big archana;

Now he asks for the request; What is that: Hey जनार्दन janārdana; who is sought after by everyone; the most wanted person, not in the negative sense; wanted person (most wanted person is the Lord; jaihi arcayate yajyate iti janārdana; arj means what begging; jana arjana means, one who is begged by all the people; constantly for this and that; solve this or that; constant-petition-receiver is called janārdana.

And hey janārdana; कथयः kathayaḥ; may you enumerate, narrate, enlist, what ātmanaḥ yōgam; ātma here is reflective pronoun, your own yōga śakti, potentiality, what potentiality; the potentiality to become the universe; the mango seed has the potentiality, alright, but it has the potential to become only mango tree; it cannot become coconut tree; and if milk is there, it has the potentiality to give you only what you call butter; but it cannot give you oil. Thus everything in the creation; one has a limited potential; we also have our own potential; but what is the greatness of Bhagavān's potential; he has the potentiality to become the whole cosmos.

Ākāśa sambhūtaḥ; imagine Bhagavān becomes space itself; we do not even know what is space. we can see that later; Bhagavān manifests as space first; because anything is created; first you require what; space; to stay, then comes the food, clothing, etc. Therefore a Ākāsath vāyu; vāyōr agni; agnēr āpaḥ; So this potentiality is called yōga; I told you before; and this potentiality is never seen perceptually; any potential is inferred; Suppose you have got a singing potential; How do I know; if you keep silent; how do you I know; who can sing; who can sing tolerably and who can sing well; how do I know; I can only infer; I cannot know by looking at your face; Then what should I do; I have to ask you to sing; and from the song which I hear I can infer your potential; Therefore yōga is always anumēyam; inferred; Bhagavān has got infinite power; how do I know; because he has created this world; the world is the testimony; world is the signature of the Lord; so from the world I know Bhagavān's yōga; which is nothing but the maya śakti; yōga is nothing but the māya only;

Why māya is called yōgaḥ. Sankaracharya writes in his commentary; in this context, yōga means combination; ghatanam; and māya is called yōgaḥ because māya is a combination of three things; satva, rajas and tama guṇānām combination; like a three string stranded. Suppose you have got a string which is made up of three strands; exactly like that; māya is one thread and in that māya thread, three strands are there; which are known satva strand, raja strand and tama strand, Since it is a mixture of three, it is called yōga; guṇānām misraḥ ityārthaḥ; that māya potential you have.

And not only that; vibhūthiḥ; this also I have told you before, Vibhūthi is what; when the potential is expressed and becomes visible; that visible expressed manifest perceptible power is called vibhūthiḥ; So yōga is to be inferred; Vibhūthi is to be perceivēd; yōga is anumēyam; vibhūthiḥ is prathyakṣam; I have told you earlier; You should remember but one week gap has happened so you might have forgotten.

So yōgam vibhūthim cha kathaya; you please teach me. How, विस्तरेण vistareṇa; elaborately. Now Krishna feels bad; because Krishna has already enumerated his Vibhūthis in the seventh chapter. You know where;

praṇavaḥ sarvavēdēṣu śabdaḥ khē pauruṣam nṛṣu || 7.8 ||

I am the beautiful taste of water; I am the Omkara in the vēdas; I am the light in the sun and moon. Krishna has already enumerated in the seventh chapter; and again in the 9th chapter Krishna has enumerated;

ahaṃ kraturahaṃ yajñaḥ svadhā'hamahamaṣadham |
mantrō'hamahamēva"jyamahamagnirahaṃ hutam || 9.16 ||

pitā'hamasya jagatō mātā dhātā pitāmahaḥ | ... || 9.17 ||

Now imagine after the teacher teaches everything, the student asks the same thing; What will the teacher feel. Like Dayananda swami says: this musician has sung rang, tanam, pallavi in Mohanam ragam and very elaborately with all kalpana svaram and atani avarthanam; everything finished; and nobody was appreciating because it was kalyana kutcheri; wedding reception; only one person was appreciating, the musician was happy; and at the end of the whole, rāgam, tanam, pallavi and tani avarthanam also, this person says: I have only one request to make; please sing Mohana rāgam;

Now what he will feel; like that; he has already told the Vibhūthis the 7th and 9th chapters; and if Arjuna asks for the same, Krishna will feel, what is the use of teaching people like this; they come always with a fresh and clean mind. So therefore Arjuna knew that Krishna will be disappointed if the student does not remember. Therefore Arjuna says: भूयः कथय bhūyaḥ kathaya; Hey Krishna I remember you have taught it; do not mistake me; I am not asking this as a fresh topic; I am not asking as a fresh topic, as a very very new topic; but I know that you have already told. Therefore he says bhūyaḥ kathaya; I am also asking for repetition.

So in the olden days, in drama and all, they used to say: once more; so if MK Thyagaraja Bhagavathar, Kittapa or whoever, sings if it is wonderful, they will say once more; Then they will again sing; I do not know; I have heard; and in the drama if he falls dead very beautifully; they will say once more; you get up and again fall; because so realistically he dies; Like that, Arjuna is also telling; once more, it is so nice to hear, Īśvara's glory. bhūyaḥ kathaya.

Why I am asking; tripti me nāsthi; I never get up; I never get bored by listening to this topic; it is ever fresh; it is ever rejuvenating; it is ever enlivening; I never get satiated or fed up; therefore thriptiḥ nāsthi. Unlike the other thing; even the most tasty food; if you eat the laddu you enjoy; first one you enjoy; the second one you will enjoy; third, fourth, fifth, six; and then it will become nauseating; even a song; it was so nice to hear from the cassette in the first time , second time, etc. but after a time there is a saturation point, later it becomes unhearable; now how many cassettes are there in your house which have not been touched for years. Because over; so here Īśvara Vibhūthi sṛavaṇam is never like that; any amount you listen; it is enjoyable; therefore sṛuṇvathaḥ; trptiḥ nāsthi;

I am never saturated; why because amṛutham; because it is amṛutham; that is which I am listening; what I am listening is amṛutham; so amṛutham sṛuṇvantaḥ mama; sṛuṇvantaḥ is śaṣṭi vibhakthi; kakārānthāḥ pullingaḥ sṛuṇvan sṛuṇvath sabdhaḥ; śakti ēka vachanam; sṛuṇvan, sṛuṇvathau, sṛuṇvathaḥ, .. amṛutham sṛuṇvathaḥ mē; mē word is there; it should go with sṛuṇvataḥ; trptiḥ nāsthi; therefore May you repeat the topic and do not repeat as you did in two verses, previously he said in two verses. विस्तरेण vistarēṇa; now I want more elaborately. That is why several verses are going to come hereafter.

19 The Lord replied --- well, Oh Arjuna I shall tell you the main divine glories of Mine, because there is no limit to My manifestation.

So with the previous verse Arjuna's request for Vibhūthi varṇanam, the description of Īśvarā's glories; that request is over. Now Krishna is going to accept Arjuna's request and He is going to give a huge list; for which He gives introduction. And Bhagavān also will certainly accept Arjuna's request, Bhagavān has to talk about what; His own glory; who will not love to talk about himself or herself; we are waiting. Suppose I say please talk about yourselves; you will come immediately. Therefore I am not asking you at all; who will not talk about oneself; and that is why even if nobody asks, they will ask, I will like to introduce first; and then I will come to the topic; they will never come to the topic; the introduction takes 45 minutes; because I always love to talk about myself; even though I do not have any glories; that being so; why will not Bhagavān enjoy; and that is why everybody loves to take to vēdānta or listen to vēdānta; because vēdānta is talking about whose glory?; My glory; that is why I am also not tired; and that is why you are also not tired; because I will say that I am talking about my glory; and how will you listen or how are you supposed to listen?;

So when I am Satcidānanda; you can own up the same glory; when I say maieva sakalam jātham, mai sarvam pratiṣṭitham; you can also claim all these glories as yours; and therefore Krishna happily accepts to describe His glories; हन्त hanta; हन्त hanta means very well; OK.; fine; it is just a particle very well; आत्मविभूतयः ते कथयिष्यामि ātmavibhūtayah te kathayiṣyāmi. I shall certainly narrate; enumerate, enlist; ātmavibhūtayah; my glories; here also the word ātma is reflective pronoun; my own glory.

And what type of glory; दिव्याः divyāḥ; which are extra ordinary; because even ordinary things are Bhagavān's glories only; as I said, opening the mouth itself is the glory of Bhagavān; we will know only when we meet a person who has got a locked jaw; locked jaw means what; he opened and is not able to close; somewhere something got stuck; and similarly anything that we are regularly doing, when you see someone who is not able to do that; then you suddenly recognise hand movement is the glory given by the Lord; it is the Vibhūthi of the lord; but these are all what; loukika Vibhūthaya; and if I am going to enumerate all these ordinary glories like from winking onwards; why winking we do; eyes have to be kept wet; otherwise it will crack; so tear glands are there and at regular intervals, it is wiped; and somebody does not have tear glands; you know what you have to do; use the filler and constantly use the drops; imagine; so you have to all to sit with eyedrops and at regular intervals, start apply it in the eyes; how terrible it would be; but now these are all there automatically; loukika Vibhūthaya; Krishna says if I have to enumerate them; it would be endless and therefore only going to talk about; divyaḥ Vibhūthaya; extra ordinary glories of Mine; which can serve as a symbol.

And that is why in Taittiriya upaniṣad, we have got meditation on very limb of the body; so that we will not take any limb for granted; as we grow old only, we will know that;

य एवं वेद | क्षेम इति वाचि | योगक्षेम इति प्राणापानयोः |
कर्मति हस्तयोः | गतिरिति पादयोः | विमुक्तिरिति पायौ | || Bruhuvalli. 10.2 2||

ya ēvaṁ vēda | kṣēma iti vāci | yōgakṣēma iti prāṇāpānayoḥ |
karmēti hastayoḥ | gatiriti pādayoḥ | vimuktiriti pāyau | ... || Bruhuvalli. 10.2 2||

Even the meditation on the organ of evacuation; so which we think it is an unholy organ, because it is removing the waste; then how can I think of such an organ; Upaniṣad prescribes meditation on the organ of evacuation; You will know its value only when it does not function; or it over-functions; Swamiji I had to go 25 times to the bathroom; then only you know; or constipation problem; this and that problem;

So vēda prescribes meditation; in Kenōpaniṣad we saw even winking meditation;

tasyaiṣa ādeśo yadētaḍ vidyuto vyadyutaḍāu itinnyamīmiṣadāu ityadhidēvatam || Kena. IV. 4 ||

You do not even take even your winking faculty for granted; that is another beautiful gift; Everything I should see the glory; it requires a mind which can pay attention. Right mindfulness; minding everything; and therefore, everything is Bhagavān's glory; but we are going to take the extraordinary ones; but divyāḥ ātmavibhūṭayaḥ; kathayīṣyāmi.

And even a extra ordinary glories are innumerable; even though it will be less than ordinary; but even if you take extra ordinary glories, they will be innumerable; we can never complete; the 10th chapter; therefore, Krishna says प्राधान्यतः prādhānyataḥ; I am going only to choose a few samples; and what is the reason I am going to be selective; the reason is मम विस्तरस्य अन्तः न अस्ति mama vistarasya antaḥ na asti; there is no limit or end to my Vibhūthi vistarahaḥ means Vibhūthiḥ. So there is no end to my glories; because it consists of the whole universe; Not only bhūlōka, but all the 14 lokas are there; therefore there is no end; हे कुरुश्रेष्ठ kuruśreṣṭha; Hey Arjuna; here itself Krishna hints; among the kuru people also Arjuna, you are also glorious that you can become a symbol of meditation.

That is why when there is thunder and lightning; and a person is very frightened; they tell you remember Arjuna; therefore Arjuna has become a representative of Bhagavān's Vibhūthi; Krishna himself is going to tell this later; pāṇḍavānāṃ dhanañjayaḥ asmi. So He addresses appropriately; kuruśreṣṭha; the greatest among Kurus; Kuru family.

अहमादिश्च मध्यं च भूतानामन्त एव च ॥ १०.२० ॥
ahamātmā guḍākēśa sarvabhūtāśayasthitaḥ |
ahamādiśca madhyaṃ ca bhūtānāmanta ēva ca || 10.20 ||

गुडाकेश guḍākēśa Oh Arjuna अहम् आत्मा aham ātmā I am the Self सर्वभूताशयस्थितः sarvabhūtāśayasthitaḥ residing in the heart of all beings, अहम् आदिः च aham ādiḥ ca I am the beginning मध्यं च madhyaṃ ca the middle एव च eva ca as well as the end अन्तः भूतानाम् antaḥ bhūtānām of all beings

20. Oh Arjuna I am the Self residing in the heart of all beings. I am the beginning, the middle, as well as the end of all beings.

So the list begins here; verse No.20, the list of Bhagavān's glory and it goes up to verse No.38. Krishna gives a very elaborate list. And while enumerating Bhavagan's Vibhūthi, Krishna wants to first talk about the Vibhūthi of Bhagavān as Nirguṇam brahma, which is the subtlest and which is the highest order of reality. Among the three orders of reality; if you remember, Krishna wants to first enumerate the highest order of reality; Vibhūthi;

And what is that; caitanyam is the fundamental glory and nature of God; because that caitanyam alone makes the entire living beings species alive; If a plant is alive; animal is alive, if a human being is alive; and capable of discussing this topic, it is only because of caitanyam; श्रोत्रस्य श्रोत्रं मनसो मनो यद् śrotrasya śrōtraṁ manaso mano yad; every organ is an organ only because of sentiency; and that sentiency is my gift because I am caitanya svarūpaḥ; chidrūpaḥ; and that is why in Lalitha sahaśranama, viṣṇu sahaśranama, etc. various māya glories of mother is described; but in the list, we have got also the glory of nirguṇa mother; satcidānanda rūpiṇē; sat chit and ānanda that rūpam is also described; Krishna starts with caitanya Vibhūthi in this verse;

And so therefore what is our meditation now; that I am alive; that very life is the manifestation of Īśvara Vibhūthi; therefore respect life. So this is one of the fundamental principles, respect life and because of our respect for life alone, ahimsa becomes paramō dharmāḥ; because I see every living being as endowed with God's gift of life and therefore I revere life. Therefore my aim is to avoid himsa; or at least minimise himsa; even non-vegetarianism is condemned; and vegetarianism is glorified; because of the fundamental principle of reverence for any form of life. Therefore first glory is what; caitanyam;

And then the last glory; also is the nirguṇa Īśvara Vibhūthi; and you know what is that; satrūpam; or satta svarūpam; the very existence principle; because of which I am able to say, table is; chair is; pen is; book is; So when you say a pot IS, the very Is_ness of the pot is borrowed from where; can you guess; the very Is_ness or existence of the pot is borrowed from where; clay the material cause only; if you remove the clay from the pot; can there be pot; Therefore, an effect exists only by borrowing existence from the cause, an effect does not have its own existence; If an effect has got its own existence; then cause will be sitting there; gold will be sitting there; and bangle will be sitting there. Is it possible; Wherever bangle is; there gold must be there; because the very Is_ness of the bangle is the blessing of what: gold; And therefore cause is always manifest in the effect as the very existence. Cause manifests in the effect as the very existence; otherwise called Is_ness. Bhagavān being the cause, world being the effect, Bhagavān manifests in the world as what: as the very existence; Therefore space Is: when you say; Is_ness belongs to what:

Air Is: Is_ness belongs to god; and when the whole creation resolves; only the nama rūpas will resolve; the existence will go back to where; When the bangle chain and ring are melted; bangle is resolved; chain is resolved, ring is resolved, where does the existence go. The existence will go back to the very gold itself; so at the time of origination, bangle etc. take existence from gold and at the time of destruction, bangle etc. lends the existence back to the gold; and therefore Bhagavān is all over: தூணிலும் இருப்பார். எப்படி இருப்பார். இருப்பாக இருப்பார். இருப்பு என்ட்றால் "எக்ஸிஸ்டான்ஸ்" thunilim irrūpaar; eppadi iruppaar; irūpaaka irrūpaar; irupu means existence; அவர் இருக்கிறார்; இவர் இருக்கிறார். avar irukkilar; ivar irukkilar; common is what; இருப்பு தன்மை iruppu tanmai is the common; so in tunilum irrūpaga irrūpaar; turumbilum irrūpaaga irūpaar; தூணிலும் இருப்பாக இருப்பார்; துரும்பிலும் இரூபாக இருப்பார். यस्यैव स्फुरणं सदात्मकमसत्कल्पार्थकं भासते yasyaiva sphuraṇaṁ sadātmakamasatkalpārthakaṁ bhāsatē.

So the two main glories of Bhagavān is Cidrūpa Vibhūthi; and Sat rūpa Vibhūthi; so Krishna starts with cid rūpa Vibhūthi in verse No.20 and He concludes with sadrūpa Vibhūthi in verse No.39; in 39 He concludes with sadrūpa Vibhūthi; So best form of meditation is what; sat cid rūpēṇa see the Lord everywhere.

And that is in whom, existence and consciousness are there in which person; in which person it is there? what is the answer; you should not answer; you should ask a counter question; in which person that is not there; That is why every person starts with what; who are you when I ask, you start with what: I consciousness Am existent; I am is universal.

But Krishna finds when these glories are talked about many people raise their eyebrows; do not understand, because existence is an abstract concept; very difficult to conceive separate from the object; consciousness is an abstract concept and therefore Krishna comes down; he says ideal will be to mediate as sat and cit; and if you find that your intellect is not subtle enough, intellect is not sharp enough, I will come down to concrete objects of meditation; concrete glories; And therefore nirguṇa mahima in the beginning and end; saguṇa mahima in the middle; this is Krishna's approach.

Now look at the slōkā. हे गुडाकेश guḍākeśa; means Hey satvaguṇi; Hey Arjuna, I take you to be an advanced student; with a sharp and subtle intellect; And if you are such an intellect, then the ideal mediation will be what; as the consciousness which we have described often before.

Do you remember the description of consciousness; consciousness is not a part; property or product of the body, consciousness is an independent entity pervading the body and enlivening the body; (have you forgotten) consciousness is not limited by the boundaries of the body, and consciousness survives even when the body dissolves. Such an abstract-formless-colourless-dimensionless-consciousness I hope you can meditate upon.

And that is why I am giving you the title; guḍākeśaḥ, means sātvik one; guḍāka means tamō guṇaḥ; or nidra; guḍāka means tamō guṇa or nidra; or a dull intellect is called guḍāka; īsaḥ means the māster; the conqueror, the one who has conquered the dullness; the one who has conquered the tamō guṇa; which means the one who is sātвика in nature; And therefore Arjuna, you look upon Me as the very consciousness.

And where is that consciousness; सर्वभूताशयस्थितः sarvabhūtāśayasthitaḥ; which is there in the mind of every living being; āśaya means mind; sthitaḥ means abiding, indwelling, residing; in sarvabhūtāḥ; not even every human being; every living being, including animals and plants; Therefore in my mind also; in my mind also Bhagavān is there in the form of ātma, the witness consciousness; and what does it witness; it witnesses the presence of thoughts; and it also witnesses the absence of thoughts. When I say I have thoughts, I am aware of my thoughts; and when you say my mind is blank, that blankness is also aware because of that caitanyam. That very caitanyam I am; so sarvabhūtāśayasthitaḥ; so this is Cidrūpa Vibhūthi. More we will see in the next class.

Om

Arjuna requested Lord Krishna to enumerate all His glories so that we can take any one of the glories of the Lord as an ālambanaṁ or support for meditating upon the Lord. And Arjuna asks for a list of such glories, because according to our inclination, we can choose any one as the ālambanaṁ. And Lord Krishna accepts and he begins the enumeration of the glories from the 20th verse onwards and first he enumerates his glory as the very nirguṇa caitanyam itself. Caitanyam is the greatest glory because that alone makes every living being sentient. So minus caitanyam the body mind complex being made of pañca bhūthās or elements, they will be only material jada svarūpam; if this jada śarīram and jada manaḥ is sentient it is only because of the presence of chaitanyam. And therefore that is the greatest glory; and not only that caitanyam alone is pāramāthikam, the ultimate reality, whereas all other glories of the Lord to be enumerated; they are all born out of māya and therefore they are vyavahārika satyam, they are of a lower order of reality. And therefore first Lord Krishna enumerates pāramāthika Vibhūthis and thereafter all vyavahārika Vibhūthis are to be enumerated. Of course if a person has to appreciate the Lord as nirguṇa caitanyam; one should be jñāni; so without vēdantic knowledge, one cannot appreciate the nirguṇa vibhūthi and therefore for all the ajñānis, this upāsana or this meditation is not possible.

And therefore only Krishna is going to bring in saguṇa Vibhūthis from the second line onwards. So we completed the first line of verse No.20 in the previous class. Now we are seeing the second line wherein Krishna says अहमादिश्च च मध्यं च भूतानामन्त एव च ahamādīśca madhyaṁ ca bhūtānāmanta ēva ca. I am the beginning, the middle and the end of the creation; beginning means the śṛiṣṭi kāraṇam, middle means the stithi kāraṇam; end means the laya kāraṇam; I am the cause of the creation; which existed in the beginning; and I am the sustaining principle of the creation; because of which alone the world enjoys existence; and I am the cause into which the world resolves.

We can say the clay is the beginning, middle and end of all the pots. So before the origination of the pot; clay was, therefore clay is the ādhiḥ and when you destroy the pot, what will be there; again clay; in the middle also, when you are talking about pot, even though you do not use the word clay; whenever you are handling a pot; again the pot is essentially nothing but clay; And therefore clay was before the creation of the pot; clay is during the existence of pot; and clay will be after the destruction of pot; And therefore always, kāraṇam exists in the past; present and future. And therefore Krishna says I being jagat kāraṇam; I was, I am and I ever will be. People come and go; but I ever am; and this has got a practical psychological significance also; since Bhagavān alone is permanently there; if you want to security; You have to hold on to Bhagavān alone; if you hold to anything else other than Bhagavān; that will give way at some time, and we will lose our sense of security. So holding on to any created thing will not give me security and therefore the fundamental attitude of a religious person is in God alone. I am willing to love all the people, I am willing to share things with all the people, and if anybody asks who is your security; a devotee will never name anyone else; he will not say my son; he will not say my wife; she will not say my husband; he will not say parents; he will not say NSG, the black cats; none of them can give security. The only security is the permanent one; and that permanent one is the Lord alone.

That is the fundamental training required. If you hold on to anything else, we always have the fear whether the son will take care of in the future; my son is very good now. After that girl comes, what kind of girls she will be; she may pollute my son's mind; it is the thinking of all the people; therefore never hold on to anyone except the kāraṇam; and what is that kāraṇam, the anchor for the ship is the Lord alone, for the human being; so अहम् आदिः सृष्टि कारणम् मध्यं स्थिति कारणम् अन्तः लय कारणम्, aham ādiḥ sṛṣṭi kāraṇam madhyaṁ sthiti kāraṇam antaḥ laya kāraṇam. Of what, भूतानाम् bhūtānām; of all things and beings; the permanent ones.

अंशुमान् रविः aṃśumān raviḥ (I am) the radiant sun ज्योतिषाम् jyotiṣām among the luminaries अस्मि मरिचिः asmi mariciḥ | am Marichi मरुताम् marutām
among the Maruts अहं शशी ahaṃ śāśī | am the moon नक्षत्राणाम् nakṣatrāṇām among the luminaries of the night.

21. I am viṣṇuḥ among the Adityas, (I am) the radiant sun among the luminaries, I am mariciḥ among the Maruts, I am the moon among the luminaries of the night.

Now Krishna enumerates various things and beings in the creation; which are very well known to us as a great thing; and Krishna says all those glorious things of the creation are nothing but my own manifestation; and what is the first thing Krishna enumerates: आदित्यानामहं विष्णुः ādityānāmahaṃ viṣṇuḥ. And while enumeration some of them are the loukika vibūthis, the glories which are obtaining in the world; iha lōkā Vibhūthis; but many others are based on puraṇas; and the other scriptures; and in the scriptures they talk about various dēvathās in the heavenly world; and among the dēvathās; the most popular one is the ādityaḥ; dvādaśa āditya; And they say these twelve āditya, the heavenly dēvathās ; the 12 faces of the Sun God; So the Sun obtaining in the 12 months, even though the sun is one and the son, in each month, the Sun we experience varies; the January Sun is benign; but the Sun of May and Sun of June we know very well. Therefore dvādaśa āditya represent the dēvathās presiding over the 12 Suns obtaining in the 12 months; and they are considered to be important dēvathās; they enumerate 33 main dēvathās; dvādaśa ādityās; ekādaśa rudrāḥ; aśta vasavaḥ; 12 adityas; eleven rudrās and aśta vasus; 8 vasus; vasu, rudrā and ādityās.

In most the rituals, especially in śrāddha and all; vasu, rudrā ādityā rūpān pithṛus; vasu, rudrā ādityā they repeatedly enumerate and those people who followed vēdic karma kānda, for them these groups of dēvathās are known well. So if you add them how many you get; 12 + 8 = 20 + 11 = 31 and then Indra dēvathā and Prajapathi dēvathā; put together 33 dēvathās are supposed to be main dēvathās who receive oblations during rituals. Therefore they are called havirbhuk dēvathās; and they are well known in the karma kānda and in the purāṇās. And in fact the upaniṣad; the brihadaranya upaniṣad says that these 33 dēvathās alone multiply themselves into 33 crores dēvathās; முப்பத்தி முக்கோடி தேவதை; mupathi mukkodi dēvathāi; this is well known; And therefore Krishna takes them first; among the 12 aditya dēvathās, I am viṣṇuḥ; I am the viṣṇuḥ dēvathā.

And why are these dēvathās called Adithyās, because according to Puraṇas, they are all born to Aditi, which is the name of their mother; adithihi; and adithi putrāḥ; adithyas; and all the dēvās are supposed to be adithi putrāḥs. And among them I am viṣṇuḥ; because viṣṇuḥ in vamaṇa avathara was born as aditi putrāḥ; and therefore I am vamaṇa rūpi viṣṇuḥ among aditi putras; so आदित्यानामहं विष्णुः अहं विष्णुः ādityānāmahaṃ viṣṇuḥ; All these are based on mythology.

Then ज्योतिषां रविंशुमान् jyōtiṣāṃ raviraṃśumān; among the luminaries; jyōtis means luminaries in the sky, consisting of stars, planets and of course the Sun, I am the Sun God; therefore ravihi; Among the luminaries I am the ravi; what type of ravi; aṃśumān, with brilliant powreful rays of light; aṃśuhu means raśmi; aṃśumān means raśmimān.

पूजयस्व विवस्वन्तं भास्करं भुवनेश्वरम् ॥ ६ ॥ raśmimantaṃ samṛdhyantaṃ dēvāsuraṇamaskṛtam |
pūjayasva vivasvanta bhāskaraṃ bhuvanēśvaram || 6 ||

So Sun God is very much adored in our tradition. In fact in Sandhya vandanam, three times sandhya vandanam, we invoke the Lord in the Sun only; And even scientifically we know that without the Sun the planets will not survive; our survival is because of the glory of the sun; that we have got aditya hridayam; a special work in which the Sun God is glorified. It is considered to be a very glorious work, which is capable of giving all types of blessings. In Rāmayaṇam; Agastya ṛṣi came and taught aditya hridayam to Rāma for both material victory as well as spiritual victory. Therefore aditya hridayam is a wonderful prayer for materialistic people also; for getting health; for getting money; for getting victory in examinations children can chant that; and for spiritual students also; it is supposed to be a wonderful prayer.

Thus the Sun is glorified very much in tradition; and therefore Krishna says: I am the Sun; pratyakṣa Īśvara; And that is why in our tradition, when the Sun is rising; the pratyakṣa Īśvara is coming to bless us; and therefore when the Sun is coming to bless us; we should be fresh and ready to welcome the Lord; And that is why they say, we should wake up before the Sun rise. But unfortunately, now the philosophy is: not early to bed and early to rise; it is late to bed and late to rise; makes a man unhealthy, unwealthy and unwise. So therefore we are supposed to get up before sunrise and welcome the Sun, the prathyakṣa Īśvara. So I am Sun God; then मरीचिर्मरुतामस्मि marīcirmarutāmasmi; a group of dēvathās; are known as marut dēvathās. So they are different colonies in the heavenly world. So in the heaven; different types, different types of colonies are supposed to be there; in each one, different types of benefit; and depending upon the amount puṇyam we have done; we will be transported to one of the colonies. In one colony twenty-four hour water supply will be there; in other only 12 hour; in another air-conditioned room; different facilities; depending upon the puṇyam; you will become one of the dēvathās.

And among that, a set of dēvathās are called marut gaṇaḥ; 49 in number; sapta sapta; seven groups of maruts; in each group seven members are there; and they are supposed to preside over the vāyu tatvam. So there are different types of vāyu dēvathās; presiding over the wind. So among these 49 marut dēvathās; I am Marichihi; Marichi is the dēvathā; who presides over that beautiful breeze which will make us feel very pleasant; Marichi means that tender beautiful breeze; not the cyclonic storm; that cool breeze which you get in Courtalam and all that places; that cool, gentle pleasant air-conditioning breeze is presided over by marichi dēvathā; Therefore Krishna says I am the Marichihi; among the marut gaṇāḥ.

And नक्षत्राणामहं शशी nakṣatrāṇāmahaṃ śāśī; among the night luminaries; nakṣathram, the luminaries of the night; I am the moon; so what are the luminaries of the night; stars are there; planets are there; moon is there; among all of them, the most brilliant and attractive one is the moon; therefore I am in the form of Chandraḥ; And therefore we worship chandra dēvathā, as the manifestation of the Lord; māsi pauranami, we specially offer what you call neivēdhyams, palpayasam which will be nice; we do not remember the moon; that payasam is remembered; it is very very nice; so nakṣatrāṇām madhye, I am the moon.

22. I am Samavēda among the Vēdas, I am Indra among the Gods; I am the mind among the senses and I am the intelligence in all the beings.

वेदानाम् सामवेदः अस्मि vēdānām sāmavēdaḥ asmi. So the vēdas themselves are the most sacred literature, directly coming from the Lord himself. And therefore all the vēdās are glorious but among the vēdās themselves which one is the most glorious one; at least according to Krishna, sāma vēdaḥ is the most glorious. That means sāma vēdis remember this slōkā. Whether they know any other slōkā of the Gita or not; remember proudly because Krishna belongs or support our Vēda; and Why does Krishna choose sāma vēda; because sāma vēda is the only vēda which is musical in nature. So the other vēdas are chanted; but they have got only three svarās; but sama vēda has got all the svarās; and therefore being musical, it is more attractive; if it is chanted properly; or else one feels like running away. If a person chants the sāma vēda properly, is very very beautiful to listen and therefore Krishna claims I am the sāma vēda among the four vēdas.

Then देवानामस्मि वासवः dēvānāmasmi vāsavaḥ; among all the Gods or deities, so who have become because of their puṇya; so we should remember we use the word God in two contexts; one is God with capital letter which is only one; who is the Lord māya sahitha caitanyam; who is sarvajñāḥ; sarvēsvara; sṛṣṭi sthithi laya kartha; that Lord is only one and that is written with capital G. then we use the word Gods with small g, they do not come under Īśvara tatvam; all those Gods are also jīvās only; created jīvās they are; but occupying the heavenly world. And because of their puṇyam; they have got higher powers, but they do not come under God and these Gods also come under samsāris only. Because of the puṇyam, they have gone to heavenly lōkā and because of their puṇyam, they have some supernatural powers and they have got some enjoyment; but you should remember, once their puṇyam is exhausted. These Gods also will be born as human beings or animals. Therefore, the Gods with small g and that too in plural numbers, they come under jīvaḥs; but the Lord or God with capital G is not a jīvaḥ, is not ajñāni; and He is Īśvara not because of puṇyam or pāpam, He is puṇya-pāpa athitha Īśvaraḥ. So here when we write Devānām, we are talking about only the superior jīvaḥs, because of their puṇya pāpam; and among their Gods, celestials, I am Vāsavaḥ; means Indra dēvathā; so Indra dēvathā. Why Krishna claims I am Indra; because Indra is the controller of all the dēvathās and remember Indra also comes under a jīvā only and he has got the Indra post because of the puṇya karma he did as a human being; and he can continue to be an Indra until the puṇyam is exhausted and afterwards also Indra also will have to be born; and if he gains ātma jñānam, he will be liberated; But otherwise he is also subject to rebirth; and therefore Krishna says I am the Indra who is the controller of all the dēvathās .

Then इन्द्रियाणाम् अहम् मनः अस्मि indriyāṇām aham asmi manaḥ; among all the sense organs, I am the mind; and why Krishna claims I am the mind, because every sense organ is capable of functioning only in one particular field. So the eye can function only in the field of forms and colours; ear can function only in the field of sounds, whereas mind is the organ which is behind all the sense organs and therefore mind is capable of functioning in the field of śabdaḥ, sparśaḥ, rupa:, rasa:, gandhaḥ.

And therefore mind is superior to all the sense organs and therefore Krishna says I am the mind among all the sense organs and therefore if you want to invoke the Lord in any one of your organs mind is an ideal symbol; that is why Taitariya upaniṣad and in other Upaniṣads, mind meditation is very very prevalent. We will be seeing in Taittariya;

sa ya eṣō:'ntarahṛdaya ākāśaḥ | tasminnayam puruṣō manōmayaḥ ||1|| iti ṣaṣṭhō:'nuvākaḥ

So you visualise your mind and learn to see the mind itself as the greatest manifestation of the Lord. The more you think of the capacity of the mind, the more we have to wonder at the glory of the Lord. And therefore I am the mind in everyone; then भूतानामस्मि चेतना bhūtānāmasmi cētanā.

And in every living being, I am in the form of the very life, the very sentiency; which is the most mysterious thing in the creation; scientists of all hues and colors have tried to find out what exactly is life. And what exactly is death; they are yet to understand these two; even though they claim to understand all the rest; what more is there other than these two! Neither we know exactly what is life; nor do we know exactly what is death; this mysterious life because of which every living being and especially if you see a minutest prāni; Always I wonder, sometimes when you read the book, between two lines, small insect, pūchi, but if you keep your finger, it will run away; and within that dot, there is digestive system and there is reproductive system and it has got a security system. Everything is there in that dot; and we have not been able to create even that micro organism; We can easily kill an insect but we are not able to create one unicellular organism and that mysterious life is the manifestation of the Lord and that is why for us ahimsa paramōdharmah.

Our aim is not to destroy life and that is why we prescribe vegetarians; because in vegetarianism the destruction of life is minimum; अद्रोहच भूतानम्पु व द्रोहेन अल्प ;नः adrōhaca bhūtānam; alpa drohēna va punaḥ ;avoid hiṁsa; or at least if it is inevitable, reduce it to the minimum. When you are taking vegetable, plants are not destroyed or killed; Therefore the injury is minimum; and there are some ṛiṣis who do not want to practice even that, That is why they do not eat the regular vegetable; whatever is fallen on the ground, they eat that. So why do we value life; because Krishna says I am the very life in every living being; so bhūtānām aham cētanā asmi; cidabhāsaḥ aham asmi.

अस्मि शङ्करः asmi śaṅkaraḥ | I am śaṅkaraḥ रुद्राणाम् rudrāṇām among the Rudras वित्तेशः vittēśaḥ (I am) Kubera यक्षरक्षसाम् yakṣarakṣasām among the Yakshas and Rakshasas, अस्मि च पावकः asmi ca pāvakaḥ | I am the Agni, वसूनाम्

vasūnām among the Vasus च अहं मेरुः ca aham meruḥ and I am the Meru शिखरिणाम् śikhariṇām among the peaked mountains .

23. I am Śaṅkaraḥ among the Rudras; (I am) Kubera among the Yakshas and Rakshasas; I am Agni among the Vasus and I am the Meru among the peaked mountains.

So dvadasa aditya have been mentioned; that is why in Surya namaskara also they do twelve namaskaras; mitra ravi sūrya bhanu, khaga, pūṣa, hiraṇyagarbha maricha aditya savithra arka bhaskarebhyo namo namah;

So dvadasa adityas are worshipped everyday and now Krishna comes to ekadasa rudraaha; 11 rudras are enumerated in the scriptures; and that is why when we have got rudra ekadaśini; eleven times chanting of Rudra is done. So they invoke the eka dasa rudra in the eleven pots; and all of them are rudras; but among them also, who is the most important one; शङ्करः अहम् अस्मि śaṅkaraḥ aham asmi. I am śaṅkaraḥ. So they enumerate all the names; nilalōhita etc. in each one, middle one is kept and 10 around. And then pooja is done; among them I am śaṅkaraḥ; why śaṅkaraḥ. From the meaning itself you will know, śaṅkaraḥ means the most auspicious one; śam maṅgalam karōti iti śaṅkaraḥ.

We saw in the Upanisad class; sam no mitra sam varunaha; sam means maṅgalam; and therefore śaṅkaraḥ means the mangala kartā rudraaha aham asmi; and what do you mean by maṅgala kartā; maṅgalam means ānanda; remember; maṅgalam means ānanda; and that is why the very word rudraḥ means the one who removes sorrow; ruth duḥkham dravyati iti rudraḥ; ruth means duḥkham; sorrow; crying. In some houses, always somebody or the other would be always crying; that is amaṅgalam; and Rudra removes the crying from the family; wherever rudra pārāyaṇam takes place, crying goes; grief goes away; and therefore He is called duḥkha nāśakaḥ; rudraḥ; and by way of that, he brings in Ānanda; and therefore I am śaṅkaraḥ.

And वित्तेशः यक्षरक्षसाम् vitteśaḥ yakṣarakṣasām; another group of dēvathās called yakṣa and rakṣasā; யக்ஷர்கள்; ராக்ஷஸர்கள் yakṣargal; rakṣasargal; yakṣa kinnara gandārva. In the slōkā they say; they are all various types of dēvathās; citizens of the heavenly world; so many varieties; colonies; and among these people, aham vitteśaḥ; vitteśaḥ means Kubēraḥ; I am Kubēraḥ; the one who proceeds over wealth. Kubēraḥ everyone knows. I have told you know. In Badrinath, there is a place for Kubēraḥ. And there is a belief that if you keep a coin in Kubera's hand and take, and keep that coin in your safe, it will multiply. Therefore the moment you say Badrinath; nobody remembers Badri Narayana; they remember Kubēraḥ. I never knew that; when I took students to Badri and Kedarnath; somebody came and gave me some coin; I thought that it is for me; but they said that I have to keep it in Kubēra's hand and bring them back to them; I want to preserve it; then only I knew Kubēraḥ is so important. Therefore, vithānam īsaḥ; the Lord of wealth. And of course we do not condemn wealth; Kubēraḥ is also important;

Then वसूनाम् पावकः अस्मि pāvakaḥ vasūnām asmi; the next important group of dēvathās is aṣṭa vasavaḥ; So vasū rudra adithya; I told you; vasūs are eight, presiding over the eight directions; So among the aṣṭa vasūs, I am agni dēvathā; So pāvakaḥ is agni; agni is called pāvakaḥ because he is the greatest purifier; punāthi or pāvayathi iti pāvakaḥ; In the relative sense also; if you want to purify anything it has to be heated; including food. If you have to remove all the impurities; why food; water, so the best way even now of purification is what; boil the water; and the surgeon if they want to purify their instruments, again they have to eat; and if you have to dispose of the dead body, even now cremation, fire is the best method of purification; and if you want to purify the various clothes and other things, putting in the sun is the best method; so loukika driṣṭya; agni is the purifier; And from the saastric angle also, agni is supposed to be the purifier of the mind; and that is why we worship agni; and therefore Krishna says, I am the fire principle; the greatest vēda, the rig vēda; its maximum number of mantrās begins with अग्निं ईडे पुरोहितम् agniṁ īḍē purōhitam; Agni is very important for us; we start our day with lighting of lamp; I think we use to start our day, I think I have to say that way. Start our day because outside the light is the Sun. And not only that, when they light the lamp, they show to the sun; the idea is that the Sun is the celestial light which represents the Lord is invoked in the flame and I keep the flame in my house; And therefore flame is worshipped; agni is worshipped; and therefore Krishna says I am agni tatvam;

And मेरुः शिखरिणामहम् mēruḥ śikhariṇāmaham. So among all the mountains with peaks, peaked mountains, I am the mēru parvatham. So mēruḥ is a parvatham described in the purāṇās; not only purāṇās, even in the vēdas; they mention of mēruḥ is there; but people have got different opinions regarding the mēruḥ parvatham; Some people say the Himalayas are called the meru; there are some other people say that in the north pole there is a mountain; and that is the mēruḥ parvatham; because when they describe the mēru in the scriptures they say the Sun goes round that parvatham; if you take only the north pole mountain; the Sun will be going round; in a particular time, six time, in Norway-Denmark, you do not have Sunrise and sunset; because the Sun will be going round; and therefore they say the polar mountain is mēruḥ and there are some people who say that it is not any visible mountain; it is some invisible mountain belonging to the heavens. So best way to translate mēruḥ is what mēruḥ; so I am not translating. Then only the problem comes; the mēruḥ among the peaked mountains; and it seems the mēruḥ pradakṣiṇam is supposed to be a pilgrimage prescribed in our scriptures; and one Sāstry from Tamil Nadu, and according to him, the mēruḥ is that North pole mountain and therefore he made a pilgrimage and he has written a book and he has gone not with special dress and all; the regular pañchakacham and angavastram and he went to Norway-Denmark area and he went to that polar mountain area and he has described his experiences; it is a beautiful Tamil book in which he describes; and all the people, including the Government and everybody gave all the facilities to him, because he explained it is our religious practice; so he says mēruḥ is in that mountain in that polar region; and mēruḥ pradakṣiṇam is to be supposed to be a pilgrimage.

Continuing.

24. Oh Arjuna! Know Me to be Brihaspati, the foremost among priests; I am Skanda among the commanders and I am the ocean among the reservoirs.

So among the purōhitās, the vēdic priests who officiate in rituals, there are two; the celestials purōhitās and also the earthly ones; among the celestial purōhitās, in the heavenly world; I am Brihaspathi, who helped Indra and the dēvathās; and therefore dēva purōhitēṣu madhye, I am the main one who is Indrasya purōhitā, who is called Brihaspathihi. In fact, purōdhaḥ; the one who is kept in front as a guide; puraha dattē, the one who is placed in front, one who is seated in front and who guides me when I do rituals, is called purōhitā; I am Brihaspathi. These are all based on the scriptures.

Then सेनानीनामहं स्कन्दः sēnānīnāmahaṃ skandaḥ; among the army commanders, he is not leaving any field; if you are an army man, you need an army man for upāsana; Krishna wants to mention commander-in-chief, dēvasēna; dēvasēna, the army of Gods; and for them, who is the leader, Skandaḥ is Subramaṇya, he is known as dēvasēnapathi; the commander of the celestial army; I am; Skandaḥ means the one who flowed out; who emerged out of Lord's Śivā's third eye; to destroy some rākṣasā's who had extra ordinary strength. Lord Śivā had to bring a special avathara and out of Lord's śakthi; skandate; skand means flow, to emerge out; to originate; from the third eye of Lord Śivā; third eye represents jñānam and that is why Subramaṇya is jñāna Subramaṇya; jñāna Skandaḥ he is. So we can give philosophical meanings to this word; based on purāṇās, he is the best commandar-in-chief, so I am Subramaṇyaḥ;

And then सरसामस्मि सागरः sarasāmasmi sāgaraḥ; among all the reservoirs of waters, among all of them, I am Sāgara, the ocean; which is worth worshipping. You can worship anyone; but I am the ocean, Sāgaraḥ. And in the purāṇās, there is a big story and many of the verses in this portion are based on that particular story. So we will have often refer to that story here. And therefore I will give the gist of the story and everybody will like story also.

Therefore so there is one story which occurs in several purāṇās and it occurs in Rāmāyaṇam also; when Rāmā and Lakṣmaṇā were taken by Viśvāmitrā; he told many stories; so they would not feel the pain in the legs; and there one story that Viśvāmitrā tells is Gaṅgāvatharaṇam, the arrival of Gaṅgā from the heavens to the earth; is called Gaṅgāvatharaṇam; avatharaṇam means coming down; and this story occurs in several purāṇās; of course with slight changes; It seems there was a Rāja known as Sagara Rāja; known as sāgaraḥ; this sāgaraḥ had many children; it is purāṇā; do not get shocked, he had 60001 children; and they were all generally known Sāgaraḥ because sāgaraḥ putrāḥ; the sons of Sagara; they are called sāgaraḥ; and there was one putrāḥ known as Asamanjaḥ; normally Asamanja is used for idiot; anyway one son was called Asamanja and the Sagara wanted to perform an Asvamēdha yāga and just as Rāmā did and in aśvamēdha and they will send one special horse all over and whoever challenges the horse and the army going behind, he has to be defeated; only then he can perform the aśvamēdha; because to perform the aśvamēdha, one should defeat all the kings around; and when he was about to do, Indra got frightened; that is Indra is also a jīva; his fear was anybody does 100 yāgās, he gets qualified for Indra padavi; and therefore his position is threatened if anybody doing more yāgās; therefore Indra's job is to scan the earth for anybody doing any yajñā and yāgās; he will stop that; and therefore generally what he does is; if anybody does aśvamēdha yāgā, he steals the horse; and this aśvamēdha aśva also was stolen by Indra. But he had come in some other vēśaḥ; and naturally this 60000 sons except this one, which one, Asamanjas, all the 60000 started chasing Indra in some other form and Indra could not escape and therefore what he did; he went underground to the pathala lōkā. Do not ask me how?; this is purāṇā; mythological story; and these Sāgaras and they were not ready to leave him and they also started digging and 60000 people digging all over and a huge pit was created by them; and water started filling and that alone got the name sāgaraḥ; sarasāmasmi sāgaraḥ; huge reservoir of water, dug by whom, sāgaraḥ, sagara putraḥ; and therefore that got the name sāgaraḥ and what happened, they went to pātāḷa lōkā; and Indra knew he cannot escape and they are chasing and therefore he decided that I will tie the horse in pātāḷa lōkā and run away; because if I keep the horse, they will chase me; in pātāḷa Lōkā, Kapila Ṛiṣi was doing tapas, it seems; and therefore Indra did a trick. What is that: he tied the horse near Kapila Ṛiṣi and escaped; and then 60000 sagaraḥ; sagaraputraḥ came and saw the horse was there and nearby Kapila Ṛiṣi; and therefore what did they conclude; natural; they concluded that Kapila Ṛiṣi alone had stolen the horse; and he was sitting as though he does not know anything doing tapas, therefore they started shouting at Kapila muni; poor Kapila muni he has not done anything and his tapas was disturbed by his shouting and therefore he opened his eyes and he got so angry with these 60000 people and therefore he started at them and fire came out of his eyes; and all the 60000 got burned down into ashes; and he continued his tapas; for him it was nothing; like electrocution; like spiritcution you have to say; they were waiting for the horse to come; who sāgaraḥ and the one remaining son Asamanja and 60000 were not seen and therefore Asamanja in search of them; and he went to Pātāḷa lōkā and found that all these 60000 burned to ashes; and he saw Kapila muni; he woke up and enquired and how all these happened and Kapila muni said that they disturbed and therefore they can be savēd and revivēd only by Gaṅgā jalam; So Gaṅgā jalam alone can revive them. So Asamanjas came and told his father that to save them Gaṅgā jalam has to come and Gaṅgā is not in Kāśi or any place; originally it was in Deva lōkā and sāgaraḥ could not do anything; he was old; therefore he told Asamanjas you are in charge of bringing Gaṅgā; and Asamanjas he tried his best; how can he bring Gaṅgā from the heaven and therefore he also failed and he got a son by the name Aṁsumān; and therefore what did Asamanjas say to him; I could not bring Gaṅgā; at least you try; Then Aṁsumān thought he would do his best but he could not also bring Gaṅgā; then Aṁsumān had a son by name Bhagiratha; you would have heard Bhagiratha prayathanam; Bhagirathā decided to bring Gaṅgā and he enquired, decided to do tapas, invoking the grace the Gaṅgādevi; and Gaṅgādevi said that I am willing to come down but who can withstand the force of Gaṅgā; that too coming from the heavens. Even this Courtalam water falls you stand here; you will feel the force; what a momentum it would be; Therefore nobody could withstand it; earth itself will get destroyed; and he asked what to do; somebody must be able to receive; The only one who can do that is Lord Śivā; because he has got the cushioning jata is there; cushion effect;

Then how to propitiate Śivā; that is not easy; then again do tapas; previous tapas for propitiating Gaṅgā. Now tapas for propitiating Lord Śivā; and he did tapas; each one for 1000 years. So at least we should give one week time; so therefore what happened next; next week.

Om

In the last class, I was the middle of a story; the story of Gaṅgāvatharaṇam; how Bhagīratha brought Gaṅgā the river from the heaven to the earth. Bhagīratha came to know from his father Aṁsumān that his ancestors known as Sāgara puthrās were burned to ashes by the anger of Kapila Ṛṣi who was doing tapas in pātāḷa lōkā and they came to know that the ancestors could be saved only with the help of Gaṅgājalam and nobody else could attempt this big feat and therefore Bhagīratha had to work on that. And Bhagīratha decided to bring Gaṅgā down to the earth and that is why any person of determination is often called Bhagīratha and the effort is called Bhagīratha prayathnam. So he did tapas invoking the grace of Gaṅgādevi and Gaṅgādevi offered to come down to the earth but the problem was who will receive the river; because the momentum will be so tremendous that if there is no appropriate cushion effort, the earth will disintegrate. And therefore Bhagīratha had to do another 1000 years of tapas; 1000 years for getting the grace of Gaṅgā; and then 1000 years he did tapas invoking Lord Śivā to help him; Lord Śivā appears and offers to receive Gaṅgādevi and Śivā wanted to teach a lesson also to Gaṅgā; because she was arrogant that I am such a powerful river. Therefore Śivā was ready and therefore Gaṅgādevi came and Śivā did not use any special place or anything, his own jatā was enough; and as Gaṅgādevi came down, Śivā received Gaṅgā in his jatā. And not only that, even though Gaṅgādevi was so vast a river, the whole river was accommodated within the river, and Lord Śivā covered that river completely இருக்கற இடம் தெரியாம பண்ணிட்டார். She just disappeared into Śivā's jatā. And not only that, after teaching a lesson, Śivā went or continued his tapas. Lord Śivā loves tapas. Now Bhagīratha was in trouble, because his purpose is not merely bringing down Gaṅgā; Gaṅgā must be available for saving his ancestors; and therefore again he had to do tapas; because if you disturb Śivā's tapas and Śivā gets angry like Kapila Muni and Bhagīratha also gets burned to ashes things will get worse; and therefore he did again tapas invoking the grace of Lord Śivā; and Gaṅgādevi also was praying to Lord Śivā. I am getting suffocated within your jatā; please let me out; let me breath fresh air. So because of the tapas of both of them; Lord Śivā agrees to release not the whole Gaṅgā; but a portion of Gaṅgā. And incidentally if you take this whole story as a symbolic thing, Gaṅgādevi represents Brahma vidya and Gaṅgādevi coming out of Lord Śivā's head indicates the knowledge coming down to the earth from the Lord's wisdom. Because Gaṅgādevi can immortalise or save his ancestors. Similarly, Brahma vidya also can save all the people from mortality. And therefore Lord Śivā released a small stream; you would have seen in the picture; Lord Śivā doing tapas and small fountain, a small stream of water coming. So Bhagīratha was very happy because after a lot of effort Gaṅgādevi has come down and therefore he requested Gaṅgādevi to come down to Pātālam; because this is Bhūlōkam; and so therefore from the heavens she has come down to the earth and from the earth she has to come to Pātāla and save his ancestors; Then what happens; the story continues; long serial you know. So while Gaṅgādevi flows, she passes thorough the hermitage of a Ṛṣi known as Janhu Mahāṛiṣi; and when Gaṅgādevi flows and floods the hermitage of Janhu Mahāṛiṣi, naturally the ashram is disturbed because of the flood; and therefore the Ṛṣi gets angry; and therefore what did Janhu Mahāṛiṣi do; drank the whole Gaṅgā; First she got caught in Śivā's jatā; and she got caught in Janhu Mahāṛiṣi's stomach; Again Gaṅgādevi got suffocated, and Bhagīratha got frustrated; because the water has to save his ancestors. Then what to do; again like if you have to get some certificates from bureaucrats, you have to fall at the feet of so many people at the office; everyone has to dakṣiṇa; from the gatekeeper itself; Rs.10 to someone, Rs.50 to someone, Rs.10000 to someone, etc. Then only ultimately you get; and you cannot argue with them because then if at all there is a possibility of getting that will also go away; one has to submit always; like Bhagīratha cannot get wild; therefore again he did tapas, propitiating Janhu Mahāṛiṣi. I have brought down Gaṅgā for a particular purpose; please do not defeat that purpose. So Janhu Mahāṛiṣi allows the Gaṅgā river to flow out through his ears; do not ask me how, he is Ṛiṣi, therefore he can do anything; So first came from the head of Śivā; and then it came from the ears of the Janhu, it all indicates that Brahma vidya is karṇa parampara. That is, it will come from the head to the karṇa and from karṇa (kathu - ears to again another head); this is how the brahma vidya parampara is. And since Gaṅgādēvi came again from Janhu Mahāṛiṣi ear, it is called Jānhavi. So we will get that in the 10th chapter of the Gītā; at that time I will not tell the story again; I will remind you that स्त्रोतसामस्मि जाह्नवी srōtasāmasmi Jāhnvī; it is going to come; that is why I thought I can tell the whole story here itself and then hint at it when the occasion comes. At last Gaṅgādēvi came down to pātāḷa lōkā and then all the Sagara putrās, how many, 60,000 Sagara putrās were saved. So this is the story of Gaṅgāvatharanam, and the place the Sagaraputrās were burned to ashes is called Kapilāraṇyam; the place in Pātāḷa, where the Kapila Ṛṣi did the tapas. And according to Kañchi Paramācārya, that Kapilāraṇyam alone later got twisted and become Kapilāraṇyam; and Kapilāraṇyam is the modern California of America; Pātāḷa, dig deep and straight to America from India; Do not ask whether America is Pātāḷam; So California, Kapilāraṇyam; and to prove his point, Kañci Śankarācārya points out that nearby there is an Island called Ash Island; because all the 60000 got burned to ashes; therefore Ash Island and California; Whatever it is; that is aside; So the Sāgara putrās got saved and that is why the ocean which was dug by the Sāgara putrās got the name sāgaraḥ. So sarasām asmi sāgaraḥ; for that only I told the story; where does it come; verse No.24, second line, last word, sāgaraḥ; and based on this alone, there is a well known slōkā written by Bhṛthhari;

विघ्ने पुनः पुनरपि प्रतिहन्यमाना

vighnē punaḥ punarapi pratihanyamānā

Three types of people; one type of people they never undertake anything; why because they are afraid of failure; since they do not have the capacity to undertake failure, they never undertake and they declare to everyone I have never failed in life; Why, they should so something to fail! If I do something only there is the question of failure; These people are called manda puruṣa; then there is a middle, next higher type of people, prārabhya vighnavihitā viramanti madhyā; they have the courage to start, but once they face one or two failures; CA entrance examination; people cry; Swamiji I have written the examination so well but I did not pass at all. So if the failure comes, some people withdraw; stop from going further; but the madhyama people are those, who withdraw from the undertaking, when they see an obstacle; one or two obstacle; They are called madhyama puruṣa; and uttama puruṣas are those people, who continue again and again and again; how long, until they find success; vighnē punaḥ punarapi pratihanyamānā; any number of obstacles; Gaṅgādevi refused to come; then she was willing to come; there was nobody to receive; and then Śivā had to be asked; and thereafter Janhavi Maḥarīṣi's obstacles; and so many obstacle; but Bhagīratha decided, unless I get CA degree; unless I bring that Gaṅgā and save my forefathers; I will not stop my attempt; So prārabhyatūttamajanā na parityajantī; So thus Bhagīratha is an ideal example of perseverance.

Continuing.

अहं भृगुः ahaṃ Bhṛguḥ I am Bhṛigu महर्षीणाम् maharṣīṇām among the great sages गिराम् girām among the words अस्मि एकम् अक्षरम् asmi ekam akṣaram I am (the word Om consisting of) one syllable अस्मि जपयज्ञः asmi japayajñaḥ I am Japayajñā यज्ञानाम् yajñānām among yajñās हिमालयः himālayaḥ (I am) the Himalaya. स्थावराणाम् sthāvarāṇām among the mountains.

25. I am Brighu among the great sages. Among words I am (the word OM consisting of) one syllable. I am japayajñā among yajñās, (I am) the Himalayas among the mountains.

महर्षीणाम् भृगुः अहं maharṣīṇām Bhṛguḥ ahaṃ. Among the Maḥarīṣis there are sapta Ṛṣis who are well known; who are supposed to be directly born out of Brahmāji's mind, they are called mānasaputrāḥ. And among those Saptarīṣis also, Bhṛguḥ is considered the pre-eminent one. While dealing with a ślōkā before we saw maharṣayaḥ sapta pūrvē catvārō manavastathā. Then I gave the name of Sapta Ṛṣis; the first one was Brihu; So brihum marichim atrim cha; therefore Krishna says all Ṛṣis are great; and the greatest one is Bhṛguḥ and that Bhṛguḥ Ṛṣi I am; and in the purāṇās several stories are said about Bhṛguḥ; and one story says that Bhṛguḥ tested the Trimurthis themselves to find out among the Trimurthis, who is the most patient one. And then he went and irritated Brahma to find out whether they lose their temper; it seems Brahma lost temper; and Śivā one need not ask, he will get angry without any reason; So Śivā is Rudra, he also lost the temper, both of them failed in the exam; and then Bhṛguḥ and went and kicked Vishnu's chest; and instead of getting angry, Vishnu asked Bhṛguḥ, is your leg alright, is it paining; and they say because of that alone, Vishnu got the mark in his chest, Srivatsangitam vakṣasam. Imagine if somebody should conduct a examination for Trimurthi themselves; certainly he must be greater; Therefore that Bhṛguḥ, the great examiner I am.

गिरामस्म्येकमक्षरम् girāmasmyēkamakṣaram; among all the words, I am the Omkāraḥ; ēkam akṣaram means the word consisting of one syllable; the mono syllabled word. And what is that OM. And why do we say Omkāraḥ is the greatest word, because Omkāraḥ is considered to be the essence of the entire vedas. In the Taittiriya upaniṣad class, we will be seeing;

छन्दोभ्योऽध्यमृतात्संबभूव |

स मेन्द्रो मेधया स्पृणोतु | Taittiriya 2 चतुर्थोऽनुवाकः ||

yaśchandasāmṛṣabhō viśvarūpaḥ |

sa mēndrō mēdhayā sprṇōtu | Taittiriya 2 caturthō:'nuvākaḥ ||

So just as we churn and bring butter; from the milk or the curds, and just as devas churned the milky ocean and brought out amṛtham; Similarly, Brahmāji churned the Omkāraḥ and brought out of the Omkāraḥ the butter called Om; therefore Omkāraḥ is considered to be vēda sārāḥ. And therefore it is considered the most efficacious mantra, it is used in karma kānda for all rituals, we will be seeing that again in Taittiriya upaniṣad;

ओमिति सामानि गायन्ति | ओं शोमिति शस्त्राणि शँ सन्ति | ||१|| इत्यष्टमोऽनुवाकः ||

ōmiti sāmāni gāyanti | ōṃ śōmiti śastrāṇi śaṃ santi | ... ||1|| ityaṣṭamō:'nuvākaḥ | |

For vēda pārāyaṇam, the first word is OM Sri Gurubhyo namaha; For all rituals the first word uttered is Om; and for upāsanas or meditations also, Omkāraḥ is used as an ālambanam or symbol. Thus in karma kānda Omkāraḥ is used; in Upāsana kānda is Omkāraḥ is used. And even in the vēdantic section; Omkāraḥ is used for enquiry into reality. The entire Mandukya upaniṣad is Omkāraḥ vicāra to arrive at the reality; In fact, Mandukya upaniṣad begins: ओम् इत्येतत् अक्षरम् इदं सर्वं तस्योव्याख्यानं om ityētat akṣaram idagṃ sarvaṃ tasyōvyākyaṇaṃ. Omkāraḥ is not only the essence of the entire vēdās; Omkāraḥ is the essence of the entire creation. भूतम् भवत् भविष्यतीती सर्व ओमकारा एवः bhūtam bhavat bhaviṣyatīti sarvaṃ omakārā ēvaḥ; Therefore in jñāna kānda, Omkāraḥ is important; in Upāsana kānda, Omkāraḥ is used, in karma kānda, Omkāraḥ is used; thus Omkāraḥ is the most important mantra. and that is why begin with Om and end also with Om. And therefore Krishna says among all the words, I am the most sacred word Omkāraḥ. Therefore girām, means what among the words. So geer, ghi, ghirau, ghiraha; gheehi means a padam; a word is called geehi and ghiram means among the padani; among the words I am the mono syllabled Omkāraḥ.

Then यज्ञानाम् जपयज्ञः अस्मि yajñānām japayajñah asmi. Among all types of religious sādānās; among all types of spiritual sādānās, I am japa yajñāḥ. And why Krishna chooses japa yajñāḥ, because it is one yajñāḥ which can be practised by all the people; where varṇā, āśrama restrictions are not there; brāhmaṇa kṣatriya vaiśyās sudrās brahmacāris, grihastha, vānaprasthās, sanyāsis, for all the people japa yajñāḥ can be used; whereas if you take other yajñās, there are restrictions, if you take agnihōtra; only grihastha can do; not a brahmacāris or sanyāsi; If you take a rājasūya yāga; only kṣatriya can do; brāhmaṇa cannot do; and there are certain rituals which can be done only by people who have got sacred thread; and other people are prohibited from doing that. So thus some are based on varṇās; some are based on āśramās; some are based on the upanayana ceremony, some are allowed for males; some are allowed for females; whereas japa yajñāḥ is open to all; it is a universal sādānā; and therefore it is the greatest sādānā.

And the second advantage is that you do not have a particular time or place, you can practice everywhere. If you want to do a hōma, a particular place is required; it has to be prepared, you have to face proper direction; whereas japa yajñāḥ there are no such restrictions. In all times, all places and all conditions; and thirdly there is a benefit in japa yajñāḥ, because there is no himsa or effort involved; because in certain vēdic sacrifices, animal sacrifice is mentioned; which can disturb many people. In fact, Buddha turned against the vēdās only because he was against animal sacrifice. Many people cannot swallow that; so therefore there are certain rituals where himsa is involved; and even if animal sacrifices are not involved, to do the rituals you have to undergo physical pain; If you say ritual, they will say, get up, do that namasakāra, do this, do that; etc. (for us sitting and standing up is a very big project for us, and if you are asked to repeatedly do namaskāra, it is all hiṃsa to oneself, in japa yajñā, there is no hiṃsa. ஆடாமல் அசயாமல், உக்காந்த இடத்திலேயே சொல்லணம்; āṭāmal acayāmal sitting you can do.

This is the third benefit. this is universal; it can be practiced in any place, in any condition at any time; Then there is no hiṃsa involved and finally and most importantly, most practically, no expenditure is involved. That is to be said; any ritual you want to do; you have to spend; and that too to get ghee at the rate it is selling; therefore it is expensive and dakṣiṇa for the priest. All those things; and for japa you have to use only organ of speech in which we are always expert. We go on talking; therefore very much used to use organ of speech; therefore instead of gossip; replace it with Om Nama Śivāyaḥ; Om Namō Nārāyaṇa; any word; so it is inexpensive but at the same time, it is as efficacious as other rituals. And that is why they say a person who is a vaidika, who is born to vedic culture must minimum do one sādānā of japam; even if you do not any other greater religious disciplines; perhaps upavāsa you may not be able to do because of health reasons; rituals you may not be able to do because of professional constraints; you may not be able to do because of economic reasons; our śāstra says minimum sādānā that everybody can practice and should practice is; some japa. Any nāma of the Lord, hundred and eight times a day; minimum; जप्ये नैव तु संसिद्ये japyē naiva tu saṃsidyē; the full sādānā catuṣṭāya sampathi by the mere sādānā of japa; And that is why they give the definition of japa;

jakaro janmavicchēdahḥ; pakāra pāpa nāśanaḥ; janma pāpa harō yasmāt; japa iti uccayatē budaiḥ

In japa two letters; the first letter ja indicates what janmavicchēdahḥ; the end to the cycle of birth and death. And the next letter pa indicates what pakāra pāpa nāśanaḥ; janma pāpa harō yasmāt. Since this sādānā will remove all the pāpams and through that will put an end to the cycle of samsāra; japa iti uccayatē budaiḥ; and therefore japa is a great sādānā.

Then what is japa; japa is great; japa is great; what is japa then; japa means repetition of any sacred word is called japaḥ; which is different from pārāyaṇam. In pārāyaṇam you do not repeat a thing again and again; it is only a linear reading of the whole thing; you read the entire Gītā or a chapter of Gītā; you utter only once; that is called pārāyaṇam. In japa you take one word or few words and do avrithiḥ; means what; repeat that, Om Nama Śivāya; Om Nama Śivāya; Om Nama Śivāya. Such a sādānā is called japaḥ, mantra avrithihi japaḥ; and therefore Krishna says among the sādānās, I am japa yajñāḥ. Then स्थावराणाम् हिमालयः sthāvarāṇām Himālayaḥ; from one topic Krishna jumps to a totally different topic; because whatever thought comes to him, that is his glory, therefore no thinking is required. So next item he mentions is sthāvarāṇām; among the mountains I am the Himālayaḥ. So the most sacred mountain ranges in the world wherein Lord Śivā is there; Śivā's abode, Parvati's father. From that only somebody said that the best place on the earth is: father-in-law's house; What is the proof; observe Śivā; observe Viṣṇu; Viṣṇu lives where; in the milky ocean; Lakṣmi came from where; lakṣmim kṣira samudra rāja tanayaḥ; So Lakṣmi is born out of kṣira sāgaram; so kṣira samudra is Lakṣmi's father and that means what: Viṣṇu's father-in-law; both Śivā and Viṣṇu, agreement in minimum thing; they have found father-in-law's place to be the best place; That is the different thing; sthāvarāṇām among the mountains; I am Himālayaḥ.

26. (I am) the fig-tree among all the trees; (I am) Narada among the divine sages; (I am) Citraratha among the Gandharvas and (I am) Sage kapilaḥ among the siddās.

सर्ववृक्षाणाम् sarvavr̥kṣāṇām are the glories of the Lord only; but if you want to pinpoint a particular tree, which is the most revered and worshipped, that is aśvatha vr̥kṣāha. And it is daily worshipped by Hindus; because it is supposed to be abode of the trinity. Therefore if you do aśvatha pradakṣiṇām, then it is as good as pradakṣiṇām to the three deities;

mūlato brahmarūpāyaḥ, madyado viṣṇu rupiṇē; agrata śiva rupāya; vṛkṣa rājāya tē namaḥ

So aśvatha is called the vṛkṣa rājā; the king among the trees; why, because in the mulam, the root of aśvatha vṛkṣa Brahmāji is residing; in the middle trunk madyado viṣṇu rupiṇē; and agrataḥ; on the top of the tree, lord Śivā abides; and to that vṛkṣa rājā my namaskāra; And therefore Krishna says; aśvathaḥ; here you should quote the 15th chapter; because in the 15th chapter, aśvathaḥ represents samsāra vṛkṣa; so it is a tree of bondage; in that it should not be said; here it is mūlato brahmarūpāyaḥ; you have to see.

Then देवर्षीणाम् नारदः devarṣiṇām nāradaḥ; you know, so among Mahārṣis Brihu was mentioned; among the celestial Ṛṣis, among them I am Nāradaḥ; the most popular Ṛṣi; trilōkā sanchari Ṛṣi; there is no purāṇa in which Nāradaḥ does not come; even in the upaniṣads, Nāradaḥ appears; not only mere puranic stories for kalaham; in Chandōgya upaniṣad; in the 7th chapter, Nāradaḥ is the disciple of Sanath kumāra. And Nāradaḥ receives Brahma vidya from Sanatkumāra and that teaching is a very very famous one; and it is called bhūma vidhya; so in the seventh chapter of the Chandōgya upaniṣad; brahman is called bhūma; Brahma vidya is called bhūma vidhya and that is received by Nārada from Sanatkumāra and therefore Nāradaḥ is a jñāni also; Not only he was a great jñāni, he distributed the wisdom to all the people; in fact the very word Nāram jñānam dadathi iti Nāradaḥ; nāram means jñānam; dā means giver. So the one who enlightens all the people and that great Nārada I am among the celestial Ṛṣis. I am; who says; Lord Krishna, do not forget Krishna; we are talking about Krishna only here.

गन्धर्वाणां चित्ररथः gandharvāṇām citrarathaḥ; Among gandharvās, so again gandharvās are the denizens, citizens of the heaven; another colony. I have told you several colonies are there; and one area is called gandharva lōkā, which is known for all forms of art. So dance, music, painting; sculpture, all of them are well-known there. And among those gandharvās, are you able to hear; you can hear, OK: among the gandharvās, I am the king of gandharvās; known as citrarathaḥ; citrarathaḥ is gandharvas' rāja. In fact, in Mahābhāratha story, when the Pandavas are in the forest; that gandharvas' rāja appears, if you remember the TV serial; there he appears; gandharvāṇām citrarathaḥ.

सिद्धानां कपिलो मुनिः siddhānām kapilō muniḥ; among the great siddhā, siddhās means people who have got extra ordinary powers; miraculous powers. They are called siddhāḥ and you should remember miraculous powers and spiritual knowledge do not have any connection at all; I have told you long before; four types of people are possible; those who have got siddhi, but no self-knowledge; and those who have got self-knowledge but no siddhi; those who have got self-knowledge also, siddhis also; and what is the fourth type, like us, no, no, not like us, we should not be said; we are all self-knowledged persons!! Anyway; the fourth type people who have neither siddhis nor jñānam; of these four types of people who are liberated and who are not liberated; those who have got jñānam without siddhi or liberation; because for liberation, jñānam alone is required; you do not require any siddhi at all; and those who have got jñānam and siddhis; of course, they are also liberated; and their liberation is because of jñānam; and third type of people who have got siddhis and who do not have jñānam; they are all samsāris, even though they have miraculous powers. In fact, many of the rakṣasās had siddhis; but they did not have knowledge; whereas Kapila muniḥ is one who had both jñānam and siddhi. In fact, in Bhāgavatha Purana; Kapila is supposed to be one of the avathārās of Bhagavān; Kapilāvathara is very well known in Bhāgavatham. And Kapila teaches vēdānta to his mother Dēvahūti; Kapila Dēvahūti samvāda is very well-known portion; Vēdānta is beautifully taught by Kapila to his mother.

Of course, there is another Kapila Ṛiṣi, who is not an avathāra of Bhagavān, who is a great philosopher, who has propounded Sankya philosophy, which is totally different from Vēdānta. That saṅkya philosopher Kapila is not talked about here; here we are talking about the Vēdānta teacher; Kapila avathāram; and not only he was a great Vēdānta teacher; he was a siddha puruṣa also; a man of siddhi,

And there also they say; a person can get siddhi through several methods. So a person can get miraculous powers through money, mantra, auṣadam;

Money means what certain types of precious stones. Like in the Aladdin lamps story, you take a precious stone, you get some powers; so that is called money;

Then auṣadam, certain types of herbs if you hold in the hand, you get miraculous powers;

And mantra, certain type of mantrās you do purscaraṇam; not any one day for 11 times; that mantrā you have do purscaraṇam.

What do you mean purscaraṇam, you have to find out how many letters are there in the mantra; suppose Om Namaśivāya; OM, Na, Ma, Si, Va, Ya; 6 letters; You have to multiply it with lakhs, that means 6 lakhs time minimum you have to chant; if it is aṣṭākṣaram, 8 lakhs; if it is dvadaśa ākṣaram; 12 lakhs; This is minimum; What is maximum, multiply by crores; therefore five crores times, 12 crores times; then the potency of the mantra is released; like through nuclear fission or fusion; the energy within the atom is released, how much energy, it can destroy a Hiroshima or a nagasaaki. So much power is there in a small atom; similarly, every mantra has got tremendous potency, that potency is released by purscaraṇam of the mantra; through that also a person gets siddhis; So money, mantra; auṣadam.

Then the fourth method is yōgaḥ; meditation. So by concentrating the mind, focusing the mind like chakra-focusing etc. called yōga. Through yōga also siddhis can be accomplished.

And there is a fifth one and what is that janma; by birth itself, because of some extra ordinary pūrva puṇyam, certain people have some powers. Some times we read some freak news items; a person allows a big current to pass through him; I do not know whether you have read such an item. Normally if such a high current passes; a person will turn into ashes; but this person is a conductor of electricity and nothing happens; bulb also he holds and burns; there was a TV programme, the Incredible or something like that; This person holds the bulb and passes the current and the bulb burns; scientists say that he has got peculiar body configuration; how; not that he acquired; by birth; and another person pores acid over his body; nitric acid, hydrochloric acid, sulphuric acid, etc. he pours and the dress gets burned; but his skin is unaffected; this is for an example; Similarly by birth; certain people have got miraculous powers, such people are called siddhaḥ. So in this context, (for which I told the whole story) siddha means janmana siddhaḥ; those who have got miraculous powers by birth, not by any sādānā; and among such siddha puruṣas, Krishna says I am Kapila muniḥ. So the one who has got the golden yellow colour; the complexion is golden yellow. Kapila is the gold colour is called Kapila dēvaḥ; that is how Kapil Dēv is named; it is a very beautiful name; Kapila Dēv, it is a wonderful name.

अश्वानाम् aśvānām among the horses विद्धि माम् viddhi mām know Me उच्चैः श्रवसम् uccaiḥ śravasam to be Uchai sravas अमृतोद्भवम् amṛtodbhavam which emerged (during the churning of the milky ocean) for nectar गजेन्द्राणाम् gajendrāṇām to be airāvataṃ among the great elephants च नराधिपम् ca narādhipam and to be the king नराणाम् narāṇām among human beings.

27. Among the horses, know Me to be uccaiḥśravas which emerged (during the churning of the milky ocean) for nectar, to be airāvataṃ among the great elephants, and to be the king (nara adhipa) among human beings.

In fact, in the previous verse, I forgot one point; when I said Kapila Muni, you should remember that story; that Gaṅgāvathāra story. Kapila came; he was doing tapas. So therefore, that Kapila Muniḥ I am. So that is why the story is used in all places.

Now we are ready for the next story, which is another equally popular story in our puranas. In fact two stories are the most popular; one is Gaṅgāvatharaṇam; and the other is samudra madhanam; churning the milky ocean.

And peculiarly enough, both these stories are teaching one fundamental lesson to us and that is, in life perseverance is the most important value; if you have to be successful in life, you should take everything as a challenge; failure should not deter you; failure should not make you fatalistic; failure should not make you pessimistic; failure should only trigger further energy; story No.1; Bhagīratha prayathana, story No.2; Dēva asura prayathnaḥ;

Here also you know the story; I need not elaborate; Dēvas and Asuras decided to churn the milky ocean and bring out amṛtham. And churning the milky ocean, you cannot use the local mixi; half a liter, What can you do with that; so they had to bring special churning rod; and what is that manthara parvatham; and they had to bring special rope: Vāsuki; and then they had to do the churning; and in the beginning itself differences of opinion; any job you start, you will find first thing that will come will be difference of opinion; you tell one thing and your wife tells the opposite; otherway round; it is just natural.

So what is difference of opinion, who should hold the head of the snake; who should hold the tail of the snake; what should they do; head or tail they have to toss; anyway somehow they solved the problem; I am not going to the details and they started churning; the churning rod went down; and therefore again they had to pray to Viṣṇu and Viṣṇu went underneath, tortoise form; and they started churning, varieties of things started coming; varieties of wonderful things, and varieties of dangerous things also. So therefore Kausthuba ratna came; Lakṣmidēvi came; airāvataṃ came, uccaiḥśravas came; So many things; Danvantari and all; I am not going to go to the details; Hālāhala viṣam also came. And this symbolically again indicate Brahma vidhya.

Just as Gaṅgāvatharaṇam is bringing brahma vidya down from the Lord. Samudra mathanam is also churning our mind; vichāraḥ enquiry in vēdānta class. What are you doing; lot of churning is supposed to happen; I hope so; I am very optimistic; and the mind represents kṣira sāgara because kṣira sāgara is white in colour. White represents satva guṇa and satva guṇa represents the mind which is satvic and when you do the churning with the rod of scriptures, scriptural statements, varieties of things arrive; then what happens; it will continue.

Om

Lord Krishna continues with the enumeration of his glories; otherwise known as vibhūthi in this chapter and many glories are available in this world itself for direction like the glory in the form of Sun, moon or rivers etc. and many glories are based on puranic stories also. And I said that two stories are prominent in our puranas, one is the story of Gaṅgāvatharaṇam; avatharaṇam, flowing down or coming down, gaṅgāyaḥ avatharaṇam, which we saw before and the other prominent story is the Samdura mathanam story which was giving in the last class. Dēvās and Asuras planned to churn the milky ocean so that they can get amrutham out of it; and then if they take the Amrutham, they will get immortality. So with this plan, they brought the Manthara mountain for churning and they brought Vāsuki as the rope and later Bhagavān Viṣṇu had to come as Kūrma avathāra to hold the Manthara mountain while churning; otherwise it was going down; and initially they had differences of opinion, but somehow they managed and started churning and varieties of things appeared. They say 14 virtuous things appeared out of the milky ocean at the time of churning; Chathur daśa rathnāni.

Kālidasa writes a prayer called Maṅgalāṣṭakam; which is supposed to be chanted in the morning, and in those prayers he talks about various sacred things to be remembered; sacred rivers, sacred deities; like that he enumerates various things and in one verse he mentions the 14 rathnas; rathna means the precious things which came out of the milky ocean.

The 14 ratnās came from the ocean, of which the first one enumerated is Lakṣmi; Lakṣmidēvi herself came. When Lakṣmidēvi came, she is Samudra rāja thanayām; since she has come from the milky ocean, she is the daughter of samudra rāja; and it seems one poet writes; it seems the Samudra rāja wanted to give Lakṣmidēvi in marriage to someone; so he was trying to find out the proper son-in-law; Lakṣmidēvi to give to whom; then Śivā was there; Viṣṇu was there; Samudra rāja decided to give Lakṣmidēvi only to Viṣṇu; and the poet says, what is the reason; because Viṣṇu was well-dressed; and Śivā did not even know how to dress properly and therefore that poet says that if you want a good girl, dress up well.

vasa pradhanam khalu yōgyathah;

Dress is very important because it is a measure of yōgyatha; what is the proof;

Peethambaram viksyā dadau ca sva kanyaam;
charmabaram veekshya visham samudraha;

Seeing Viṣṇu who was wearing Peethambaram, silk and yellow garments, Samudra rāja gave Lakṣmidēvi to Viṣṇu and when the poison came, he handed over the poison to whom Charmambaram veekshya visham samudraha; Charmaambaram he was wearing elephant skin and deer skin and therefore he says that you should dress; that is a different thing; what I wanted to say is the first one born out of the churning of the ocean; which indicates in the spiritual symbolism; it indicates the practice of spiritual sādānā. Like meditation, japa etc. is like the churning of the milky ocean; as I was telling in the last class; white ocean milky ocean represents the satvic mind which is involved in spiritual Sādānā; and when a person takes to spiritual sādānā like japa pūja, etc. various glories come to him like siddhis; various siddhis indicate Lakṣmidēvi; kausthubha rathna; airāvataṁ; women; all these represent various siddhis that they come; and if the Dēvās and asurās were satisfied with Lakṣmi and the various precious stones, they would not have got amṛtham. Similarly when we are in spiritual practice, we will get certain worldly benefit and many people are satisfied with those worldly benefit; they are really speaking obstacles or distractions and in fact generally people value siddhis only. If they want to talk about a mahān, why Śankarācārya is great you ask, they will never talk about self-knowledge or his teaching; they will say only golden nellikāi; he chanted, he prayed to Lakṣmidēvi; what is that: Kanakadhāra stothram. Various siddhis Śankarācārya did; that alone people talk about; so here śāstra says do not be enamoured by these siddhis. So all these rathnas indicate the distractions in the form of siddhis, and Dēvās could succeed only because they were not distracted by these things, They said we do not want all these things; we are interested in amṛutham; amṛutham means what: mōkṣaḥ. So these are the positive obstacles in the form of positive benefits or siddhis.

And there is another thing that came out of the milky ocean; what is that; towards the end; hālāhalākyaṃ viṣam; poison; and here the poison represents various psychological problems that may come to some people when they seriously engage themselves in spiritual sādānā; because I take away my mind from worldly problems and therefore the mind is relatively free now; and therefore the other problems which are in the sub-consciousness mind, which problems we might have acquired in our younger days as children, fifty years before; thirty years before, how our parents treated and what happened in our childhood; all those problems which are in the subconscious mind; Sometimes they come out when a person practices spiritual sādānā or meditation.

In Mandukya kārika; Gaudapāda talks about these problems at the time of meditation; he talks about four types of obstacles; in meditation; one obstacles he calls is: Kaṣāyam; Kaṣāyam means the deeper problems in our unconscious mind, which we may not know; And generally they do not appear in our mind because the past problems are suppressed because of the present problems. We are busy handling the present problem; where do we have time to worry about the past; my hands are full; in meditation I set aside all the present problems and for some people; not for all; these internal problems may come in the form of depression; reasonless fear, anxiety, tension and the mind often does not know what is the reason; but the mind is not able to operate well. One ācārya calls it sthabdibhāvaḥ; sthabdibhāvaḥ means the mind is stuck; neither it is able to go forward; nor is able to go backward; and they are called Kaṣāyam. So thus a spiritual seeker may face these internal problems and especially when they have gurukula set up; in the gurukula the advantage or the disadvantage; you have no other thing to worry about; Because in gurukula, you need not earn money; everything is provided; you need not cook for food; you need not cook, food is provided; you do not have to worry about family; because you have left the family; you do not distract your mind through televisions and movies because in gurukulam nothing of that sort.

And you cannot meet new friends, because in gurukulam, same set of people. so now when there are no distractions, when there are no other worries to be faced, many people face the internal problems surfacing; and this is indicated by hālāhalākyam viṣam; poison coming from our own mind; when it is churned through śāstra vichāraḥ; and nobody knew what is the remedy; all the people were running helter-skelter. Everybody was frightened; and the only remedy is what; they all prayed to the Lord and Lord swallowed the poison; similarly, when we have got emotional problems, getting triggered and I am not able to find the reason behind it; the only solution is what; surrender to the Lord, let the Lord absorb those problem. If you know the cause, you know the remedy; but there are many emotional situations, we do not know and therefore hālāhalākyam viṣam refers to the Kaṣāyam problem. Lakṣmi kousthuba parijātha etc. indicate various siddhis that we may get. And we have to transcend both of them; so do not be enamoured by the siddhis; and do not be overwhelmed by these emotional problems also. And if you still perceive continue after all these things, finally comes what; amṛutham; amṛutham means ātma jñānam. We have to survive until that; so what I want to say is in the samudra mathanam, 14 rathnams appeared; and based on that story only another poet wrote; many Sanskrit scholars do write many things; many verses are there; so one poet wrote:

bharatha panchamo vēdaḥ (there are four vedas; and mahabharatham is fifth one); supūthraḥ saptamo rasaḥ; normally we about sat rasaḥ; six types of rasas; rasa means sweet, sour, pungent, etc. and if you have got a wonderful son or daughter (add that also), it is like the seventh rasa; dvadadaśam rathnam. So 14 ratnās came out of the milky ocean; chaturdaśa ratnāni; and if in the world, there is a generous person who can give charity in plenty, that is a rare phenomenon, that a generous person is like the fifteenth rathnam; why fifteenth, 14 have come out of the milky ocean; and jāmāda daśamo grahaḥ; See from where to where he is going; may be the poet had too many daughters; the son-in-law is the 10th graham; so we all have got 9 planets affecting our lives positively and negatively and over which we have no control at all; and if you have a daughter and she is married, your life is governed by another planet and that is the son-in-law; that means that he influences you; but you have no control over; so anyway what I want to say; chaturdaśa rathnāni came.

And out of those fourteen; one is uccaiḥśravas; where is the uccaiḥśravas; look at verse No.27; I am supposed to be teaching the 10th chapter; do not wonder that I have forgotten Gītā and wandering all over; for the sake of uccaiḥśravas; I had some meandering; because I can do that only in this chapter; in every other chapter I have to keep the topic in mind; I am tightly tied; but this is only chapter I can have elbow room and some fun. Anyway; among the aśvās, horses, I am the uccaiḥśravas; the special horse, which came out of the milky ocean. And the very word indicates it is the most famous horse; śravaḥ means famed, keerthi; uccaiḥśravas, that horse which is the most famous one; ucchahiḥ śravaḥ yasya śravaḥ uccaiḥśravaḥ; among the horses.

And how did that horse come; विद्धि माममृतोद्भवम् viddhi māmamṛtōdbhavam. So I am that horse; which emerged during amṛutha mathanam; amṛuta mathana kāla udbhavam.

And ऐरावतं गजेन्द्राणां airāvataṃ gajēndrāṇām; among the elephants I am the airāvataṃ; airāvataṃ is another one which came during the Samudra mathanam; so airāvataṃ, the white elephant; I told you the other day, it is the white elephant of the heavenly world; on the earth white elephant you know; so airāvataṃ which is the vehicle of the mount of Dēvēndra; and which is supposed to have chaturdantā, four horns etc; four tusks; airāvataṃ gajēndrāṇām;

नराणां च नराधिपम् narāṇām ca narādhipam; among the human beings I am the king; and that is why in our tradition, or in many traditions, the King is taken as the manifestation of the Lord himself; they look upon the king as God; because Bhagavān here says I am the King among the human beings; and not only that, the king has to support dharma, just as the Lord is śāsvatha dharma gōptha. Similarly the king has also to protect dharma; therefore as a protector of dharma, King is taken as the representative of God; and therefore the Lord enumerates.

prajanaścāsmi kandarpaḥ sarpāṇāmasmi vāsukiḥ || 10.28 ||

28. I am (Indra's) thunderbolt among weapons; I am Kamadhenu among cows; I am the productive passion and I am Vasuki among the serpents.

आयुधानाम् āyudhānām among the weapons, अहं वज्रम् ahaṃ vajram; vajrāyudam ahaṃ asmi; vajrāyudam is the special weapon of Dēvēndra; and in the purāṇa, the story is given how this special weapon was taken out of the backbone of Dadichi maharīṣi; that Dadichi maharīṣi had done plenty of tapas and therefore his very body had become strong because of the tapas he performed and therefore for the special purpose of destroying Vṛthrāsura; Vṛthrāsura story I told in śikṣavalli; so to destroy Vṛthrāsura, Dadichi Maharīṣi sacrifices his life and out of his backbone vajrāyudam is made; therefore it has got the strength born out of tapas shakthi; because we consider spiritual power or meditative power is much stronger than the material power. That is why they tell the story also; how Viśvāmitra decided become bhramashri. Viśvāmitra was a kṣatriya by birth; and Viśvāmitra and vashista get into a problem; I do not want to go into the details; and therefore they had a war as it were. And Viśvāmitra was shooting weapons after weapons and Vaśiṣṭa kept his brahmadanda in front; in which he had invoked all his tapas śakti; and therefore all the missiles; the missiles system of America, all the missiles like the patriot missiles and all those things Viśvāmitra was shooting and they all came and they just fell in front of Brahma danda and they were defused. Then only Viśvāmitra understands the kshatriya bhalam or the material strength is far inferior to the mental strength which is born out of tapas or meditation; And therefore he says na kṣatriya balam; brahma tejo balam balam; physical and material strength is nothing, brahma tejo balam; Brahma tejō balam is tapas śakti is alone is superior and therefore he decides to do tapas and gets inner strength and that is how Viśvāmitra, the kṣatriya ṛiṣi becomes the brahma ṛiṣi. And from this also we come to know that even if a person is a born śūdra or vaiśya or kṣatriya, by doing sādānā; he can change the varna; a kṣatriya can become a brāhmaṇa; therefore Brāhmaṇatvam is not primarily by birth; Brāhmaṇatvam is by your character; sādānā and lifestyle. Anyway what I

धेनूनामस्मि कामधुक् dhēnūnāmasmi kāmadhuk; so among the cows, and that too the milch cows or the milk yielding cows; so many cows; among the cows which gives milk; we have a special sanskrit word, denuhu; denu is the name of that cow which gives milk; and among such cows I am kāmadhēnū; kāmadhuk; kāmadhēnūḥ; And why kāmadhēnūḥ; because the other cows can yield only milk; whereas kāmadhēnūḥ is a unique cow which can yield any thing you want; kāmam kāmam dogdhi iti kāmadhuk.

So you have to only go near the cow and pray; instead of milk, you think of coco cola; direct it will come; pepsi; directly it will come; coffee; directly, without powder; not only this drinkable things; all things will materialise; but anything that you want, house you want; a car you want; anything you want; k kāmam kāmam dogdhi iti kāmadhēnūḥ. And incidentally kāmadhēnūḥ also emerged out of the milky ocean. And this also indicates what; beautiful symbolic presentation; the mind is kāmadhēnūḥ. The human mind and intellect are so powerful that if you fully tap you can create anything; all the scientific advancements and gadgets; they are all born out of what; human intellect; internet is born out of what; human intellect; kaamadenuhu. So therefore if a human being decides to tap his own mind intellect complex, he can achieve anything in life; All the fourteen lokas he can accomplish, why he can attain mōkṣa also; mōkṣam api dogdi; The mind-kāmadhēnūḥ mōkṣam also it will milk and give you; therefore it is called kāmadhuk.

Then प्रजनश्चास्मि कन्दर्पः prajanaścāsmi kandarpaḥ; kandarpaḥ means desire; manmatha is called kandarpaḥ; Manmatha, the deity of desire or passion; and desire is here seen as the greatest creator of things. So desire is the greatest producer of things; why do you build a house. So before the house comes; a multi-lakh Rs.50 lakh house comes into being; previously it exists in your mind, in the form of what; desire. So everything that is produced in the creation is born out of human desire; In fact, according to vēdānta, I wanted because of its karma; because of the karma of the last janma, I have asked for this world. Therefore is the greatest creator and that is why we say necessity is the mother of all creativity; all inventions; and necessity expresses in the form of desire; it is very hot; human mind wanted something and therefore fan was created; and that is not sufficient; A/C was created. Then the power goes away, at crucial times, generator was created; one thing after another, why do we create; because there is a desire; And therefore among the creators; among the desire; productive desire; productive-passion; which is the cause of everything, including the desire for children; so the production of children is also born out of desire; so kandarpaḥ;

सर्पणामस्मि वासुकिः sarpāṇāmasmi vāsukiḥ; among the serpents; so especially the poisonous serpents I am vāsukiḥ; which is the ornament for Lord Śivā; and the snake vāsukiḥ snake symbolises the ahaṁkāra. So ahaṁkāra is the greatest poison which leads to kartṛtvam and karma phala and punarapi janamam and punarapi maraṇam samsāra. And the Lord Śivā uses the poisonous snake as a ornament, because he knows how to handle the snake. If you know how to handle it; it is an ornament; Similarly, by atma jñānam; we learn to handle our own ahamkaara; And therefore for a jñāni, ahaṁkāra becomes a bhushanam; an ornament. Just as poisonous snake is an ornament for Lord Śivā; the poisonous ahaṁkāra is an ornament for a jñāni. Therefore vāsukiḥ ahaṁ sarpāṇām;

anantaścāsmi nāgānāṁ varuṇō yādasāmaham | |

pitṛṇāmaryamā cāsmi yamaḥ saṁyamatāmaham | | 10.29 | |

29. I am anantaḥ among the snakes; I am varuṇaḥ among the water-deities; I am Aryamā among the ancestors and I am yamaḥ among the controllers.

nāgāḥ also means snake; and how to differentiate sarpa and nāgāḥ; both mean snake only. Therefore commentars give different meanings to differentiate; generally we do not rememeber; by the time we come to this verse; the previous verse we will forgot; By chance if you remember, the previous verse was said; sarpāṇām; again नागानाम् nāgānām, why it is repeated; some commentators; Nāgās refers to non-poisonous snake; so saviṣa and nirviṣa; so among those Nāgās, I am ananthaḥ, So Lord Krishna might have felt that in the previous verse, vāsukiḥ was said, which is associated with Lord Śivā. Therefore reading that verse; Śivābhakthās will be happy; Viṣṇu bhakthās will feel bad, Śivā is mentioned and Viṣṇu has been forgotten; So anantha, it is a snake associated with Lord Viṣṇu; Lord Viṣṇu is called ananthaśayana; So he uses the coiled anantha as the bed; and it is like a foam-like bed only and also cool; because snake are supposed to be cool blooded ones; soft to touch and Dayananda swami says, it is the first spring coat in the creation; Bhagavān started it; coil means spring; So therefore ananthaśayana; of course philosophically speaking, anantha means nirguṇa brahma; So Viṣṇu the saguṇa isvara is located in his svarūpam of anantha, which is the nirgūṇa brahman; otherwise it is also called ādiśeṣaḥ; śeṣaḥ means what; that which remains everything is destroyed. In food also śeṣam; after you eat everything; what is left out is śeṣaḥ; in the creation during pralaya; after everything is destroyed; what is left behind is Brahman; and therefore Bhagavān śeṣasāyi; he remains in his svarūpam called śeṣa, which is the brahman, which is the ultimate remainder; therefore anantha śeṣasāyi; śeṣasāyi; that anantha among the Nāgās.

Then अहं वरुणः यादसाम् aham varuṇaḥ yādasām; yādaas means water dēvatha; jala dēvatha is called Varuṇa; and therefore jala dēvathās because jalam exists in many forms; in the form of river, jalam is there; in the form of lake, jalam is there; and therefore even though jalam is one; it has got various forms of existence; for each one, we have got a dēvatha; river dēvatha; lake dēvatha; ocean dēvatha; well dēvatha; bore-well dēvatha (now it is also there) and then cloud dēvatha; parjanya; parjanya water in the form of cloud; you can include your own tears also; tear dēvath; So thus there are many water dēvathās; among all of them; Varuṇaḥ aham asmi; I am Varuṇa dēvatha who presides over the ocean; because that is the biggest reservoir of water; Therefore I am Varuṇa dēvatha; and that is why Varuṇa is worshipped during sayam sandhya; so Varuṇa is not an ordinary dēvatha;

what beautiful mantrās; we are worshipping Varuṇa in the evening; as the representative of Īśvara; and therefore I am the Varuṇa dēvatha; why not surya dēvatha; because during evening Sun has set; we worship Surya dēvatha during the morning;

mitrasya carṣaṇī dhṛtaḥ śravō dēvasya sānasīm | satyaṁ citraśravastamam ||

All gem of mantrās through which we ask for physical health; emotional health; intellectual health and money, money also we ask for; and ultimately we ask for mōkṣa also.

We ask for anything that will desire in life; so they have enlisted; because if we see the Lord we may forget; So He has got wonderful memory; so they have included all these in the mantrās; whatever your basic needs; pasyema; first one is let my eyes be perfect; all wonderful prayers; Varuṇa is an important vedic deity; There is a special suktham; called Varuṇa suktham; so I am the Varuṇaḥ;

Then पितृणामर्यमा चस्मि pitṛṇāmaryamā cāsmi; there are many dēvathās in the pithṛ lōkā; as I had said before, heaven itself is subdivided into many colonies; depending upon the grade of your puṇyam; you will be given do you remember: LIG, MIG, HIG, low income group, middle income group, high income group, all those things will be given; therefore pithṛ lōkā is one lōkā and that lōkā is presided over by pitru dēvatha and the head of the pithṛ dēvathās is āryamā. So these are very prominent deities of the vēdās; vēdic deities; gradually the purāṇic deities overshadowed the vēdic deities; Aryamā, Varuṇa and Indra are prominent vēdic dēvathas; and I am Aryamā; and whatever srāddha tarpaṇa etc; we do is supposed to directly go to Aryamā's department; just like whatever letter you post in any letter box, they all will go to the main post office and from there it is distributed to the proper addresses; similarly anybody does sṛadda, tarpanam, etc. all the offerings directly go to Aryamā's supervision; he has got courier service; very efficient service, they know the old number and new number; no mismatch; and the forefather may be in which lōkā, how do we know; so our forefathers, could have taken rebirth in manushya lōkā, they might have taken any animal body; or they might have gone to another lōkā; 14 lōkā courier service he has got; whatever type of food needed in whatever lōkā, appropriately it will be sent. Therefore Aryamā is a very important person. Therefore among the pithṛs, I am the Aryamā. In vivaha mantra and all; aryama and are all mentioned; they are all vedic deities; aryama for sanskrit students not srilinga; it is nakāranthaha pulingaha; Aryaman sabada; those who do not know Sanskrit, you can be blissfully ignorant; do not bother.

यमः संयमतामहम् yamaḥ saṃyamatāmaham; among the controllers of world of things and beings, I am yamaḥ; yamaḥ means kāla tatvam; because the time controls everything; in time generations come; in time generations go; and even the mind when we are young, there is that pride and arrogance; who can do anything to me; I am great; they will talk too much; in their walk one can see; with chest up; then see after 10 years; after getting married, first one, that itself will mellow him; thereafter one or two children, and you educate them and get married; you are fully mellowed down; all whose job;

हरति निमेषात्कालः सर्वम् |

Therefore anyone I will control; Therefore saṃyamatām; among the controllers, I am yamaḥ.

30. I am prahlādaḥ among the daityās, I am time among the reckoners or computers; I am the lion among animals and Garuda among birds.

दैत्यानाम् daityānām, among the diti putrās, So Diti is the wife of Kaśyapa prajapathihi, who is an important personality mentioned in the purāṇas. When they say Brahmāji, the creation, the entire humanity had to come, and first from Brahmāji 14 Prajāpati came and from the 14 prajāpatis alone, the entire humanity emerged. And therefore this Prajāpatis are enumerated; among them the most prominent one is Kaśyapa; and Aditi is his wife; Diti is another wife and Aditi's children are called Dēvās and Diti's children are called asuras. So Dēvās and asurās are born to two different mother's and father is one and same; it indicates what; we have got a mind; Dēvās represent positive healthy thoughts; asurās represent unhealthy thought; from one Kaśyapa Prajāpati the mind alone. We get both Dēva vritthis as well as asura vritthis; out of two different wives; one is called satva guṇa wife; and the other is called rajō guṇa wife; out of these three guṇas, especially these two guṇas; satva and rajas, two types of vritthis are generated; one is called daivi sampath; and the other is called āsuri sampath; we will see in the 16th chapter;

And generally the asurās are negative; in their thinking; that you know; but even among the asurās; there was a great devotee born; who is Prahlādaḥ; the son of Hiraṇyakaśipu; who was an asura, who was enemy of the Lord; who was hating the Lord; you know the story of Hiraṇyakaśipu; to the hater of such a Lord, Prahlādaḥ was born; and not only that, he became a great devotee; and he became so great; that in the morning when we have to remember all the great devotees; the first one is Prahlādaḥ; in the morning, we are asked to remember the great devotees;

I am remembering in the early morning; before reading the newspaper, and spoiling the mind, I remember the names of all the great bhakthās; and the topmost one is Prahlāda; By birth he is asura jāthi; by character he is satva guṇa. From this we also another important thing; jāthi does not make a person great, it is the guṇa that makes a person great; And therefore we can never look down a person based on jaathi, the caste system became notorious because we started looking down upon people purely based on janma; and those people see the so-called brahmanas; who are born from brāhmaṇās; and who are given to lot of vices and I respect a brāhmaṇās, just because he is born a brāhmaṇās, even though he does not have any character, there is something irrational in it;

And therefore, jati does not make a person great, but character; and what is the example, Prahlāda was born asura; Rāvaṇa was a brāhmaṇā; visravasa putraḥ putra Rāvaṇō nāma rākṣasaḥ; visravasa putraḥ; nobody in the list of people to be remembered, do we add Rāvaṇa; No. therefore it is not the jaati; jati brāhmaṇa Rāvaṇa is excluded; jāti asura Prahlāda is included; Therefore always give importance to character.

Therefore प्रह्लादश्चास्मि दैत्यानां prahlādaścāsmi daityānām; diti puthrāṇam madye; then कालः कलयतामहम् kālah kalayatāmaham; Among the ones who keep account, accountant is called kalayath; keep account; So for many things you keep account; say computer also; Computer computes, keeps track of all the things; and among those computers, especially which keep track of puṇya pāpa karma of people; imagine what type of computer is required for keep track of all the karma; one has to keep feeding the computer. So from the morning the time you kill the first mosquito; and you do so many things; each one has to be punched; and everything that you deliberately do is a karma; and not only you do actions in this janma; anadi kāla pravritthaḥ; sañcita karma; āgami karma; prārabhda karma, all these karmas have to be stored in the computer; And how many jīvas are there; human beings alone if you take they are 6 billion or whatever it is. In India itself is 100 crores; china another 100; all over the world 600 crores human beings are there; then mosquitos, ants, cockroachs are there; each one has sañcita karma; each one has prārabdha karma; how to punch and not only that; every karma from this smallest karma to the biggest karma has to produce the result at the appropriate time; not one minute later; or one minute earlier; what type of computer is required;

And that computer is citraguptaḥ; called kālaḥ; kālaḥ tatvam or yamadharma rāja; that is why he is called dharma rāja, he gives the karma phalam perfectly according to the justice or Lord of Karma; Therefore I am the kāla tatvam, which is responsible for the manifestation of every karma; and chitra gupta is called it is kept secret; gupta means secret. So vaisyas are generally called by the name gupta; in business most important thing is what; you should not tell the truth; śāstram accepts it; for vaiśya community the title given is guptaa; For k ṣtriya community the title given is Varma; Varma means what kavacham; protection; protection of the society from other adharma; brāhmaṇās are called Sharma; Ramakrishna Sharma namaha; Sharma stands for quietude; peace, tranquility; Thus sharma varma gupta; why I am saying is all the karmas are kept gupta, secretly; that is why on a special day you do a special puja to chitra gupta; there also you give something; we are not leaving him; we also bribe him so that some of the karmas, he will put under the carpet; So kālaḥ kalayatāmaham; mṛgāṇāṃ ca mṛgēndrō'ham; among the animals I am the lion.

More in the next class. because kālaḥ kalayatāmaham. Time up.

Om

We are seeing Lord Krishna's enumeration of Īśvara vibhūtis or the glories of Īśvara. The entire creation being the manifestation of the Lord; the whole creation is the glory of the Lord only. Still Lord Krishna chooses a prominent glorious things and beings in the creation and Krishna claims those special things as his glory. And the purpose of this enumeration is that we can choose those objects as special objects in which the Lord can be invoked. For example, even though all rivers are the glory of the Lord, Krishna enumerates Gaṅgā as the glorious rivers and therefore we can worship Gaṅgā as a special river invoking the Lord in that. And that is why in our culture also; gaṅgā snānam is considered to be a special puṇyam because Krishna enumerates that. So thus for upāsana purposes, this enumeration will be useful because every one enumerated here can serve as an alaṁbanam. And as I said Krishna enumeration is based on the things experienced here and many of the enumerations are based on the mythological stories also. And that is how we saw in verse No.30; daityānām Prahlādaḥ asmi; Krishna assumes that we know the purāṇās and we also know the story of Hiranyaśipu and Prahlāda, who even though born an asura, becomes the greatest devotee of the Lord; And Prahlāda stuthi in the Bhāgavatham is a very very well known sthōthram; in which we find the highest Vēdānta talked about. In the Bhāgavatham there are many stuthis or sthōthrams; Dhruva stuthi; Prahlādaḥ sthuthi; Kunthi sthuthi; Bhiṣma sthuthi; each character glories the Lord and the beauty is, in those sthōthrams not only the purāṇic glories are there; the highest Vēdānta is also packed in those stuthis and in that Prahlādaḥ is also a great one; and Prahlādaḥ sthuthi in Bhāgavatham is famous; and as I said, which is an important thing because even though Prahlādaḥ is born an asura, by spiritual sādanā he could change his character and become a jñāni. Therefore one need not feel bad about one's janma; jāti does not indicate superiority or inferiority;

what is important is karma and guṇa. If you remember the 4th chapter, I talked about the jāti brāhmaṇa; karma brāhmaṇa, and guṇa brāhmaṇa; jāti kṣatriya; karma kṣatriya; and guṇa kṣatriya; Do not focus on these jāti but focus on the right choice of karma; proper karma we have to choose and by doing that karma with proper attitude, we have to transform our character and ultimately we should become guṇa brāhmaṇaḥ; Prahlādaḥ became a guṇa brāhmaṇa; And therefore Krishna takes this opportunity to name him Prahlādaścāsmi daityānām.

Then कालः कलयतामहम् kālaḥ kalayatāmaham; I am the kālaḥ tatvam also who is responsible for the maintenance of the ripening of the karma at the appropriate time. Every karma that I do has to ripen and produce the phalam at the right time; and it requires the maintenance of the law of karma principle, and I am the kālatatvam who is responsible for that. And not only that when there is a group of people like a family or like an institution or even a cycle even. Simultaneously the karma of many people have to fructify. So my karma is fructifying in this class; and your karma is also fructifying; the karma of all the people. And the most interesting thing is that somebody's puṇyam is also fructifying and some people's pāpam is also fructifying. If you are bored with the class and suffering unhappiness, then what karma is fructifying. In this class itself some people are exhausting the pāpam and some people are exhausting the puṇyam. What about me: I do not want to say, whether I am exhausting my puṇyam or pāpam. Thus simultaneously one event taking place in the family has to take place in such a way, that the karma of every family member has to fructify. And imagine somebody falls sick and another member is serving that sick person. The sick person's pāpam is fructifying, and also he has got some puṇyam because another member in the family is serving that person, so that I have got some family member to serve me. It is my puṇyam; that they have to spend sleepless night for my sake, is their pāpam. So if they are keeping awake for your sake, their pāpam is being exhausted and your puṇyam is also being exhausted; and it is your puṇyam that you have got such a family member. Thus Bhagavān has to connect such people and karma has to fructify appropriately. Now you can imagine what a complicated order Bhagavān has to manage. And that is why often in Bhāgavatham, Bhagavān names himself as kālaḥ. I am the intelligent kāla tatvam who makes the appropriate karma of the appropriate person to fructify at the appropriate time. Up to this we saw in the last class. So we have to come to the appropriate time to see the next line; what is that:

मृगाणां च मृगेन्द्रोऽहं mṛgāṇām ca mṛgēndrō'ham; all animals are also my manifestation; and every animal has got unique feature. And if you have doubt, watch the Animal Planet in the Television. Instead of some other serials; So whatever it is; I do not say that you should not watch them, but sometimes watch the Animal Planet, from the smallest ant to the big elephant; every animal has got a unique glory. And therefore all animals are my glory but among them who is the king of the forest; mṛgāṇām ca mṛgēndraḥ; mṛgēndraḥ means lion; lion is known as the king of animals; Therefore mṛgāṇām Indra, I am the lion among all animals.

And वैनतेयश्च पक्षिणाम् vainatēyaśca pakṣiṇām; all the pakṣis; pakṣi means a bird; pakṣaḥ means wing; and pakṣi means that which has got a wing; So two wings are there. Therefore pakṣau yasya sthaḥ iti pakṣi; the winged one; can you call aeroplane also pakṣi? According to definition, you can call an aircraft as a pakṣi. Because it has got wings; among the winged beings, the birds, I am Vainatēyaḥ; Vainatēyaḥ means Garudaḥ; Garuda is the son of Vinaka; Vinaka sutāḥ; Vainatēyaḥ; Garuda's mother is called Vinata; and Garuda is the most glorious bird, devoted bird, that it is mount or Vāhanam of Lord Vishnu; So pakṣi vāhana, Garuda vāhana, and in Vaiṣṇava sampradhāya, Garuda is given a prominent position; Garuda Azhvār; Azhvār means a great devotee; so the one who is immersed, azharathu; ஆழ்ந்து to get immersed; a devotee who immerses himself in the devotion of the Lord. Therefore I am that great devotee Garuda among birds.

31. Among the purifiers, I am the wind, I am Rama among the weapon wielders, I am the Makara among fish; I am the Ganges among the rivers.

पवनः पवतामस्मि pavanaḥ pavatāmasmi; pavatām means among the purifiers so there are so many things which purifies. Gaṅgā jalam; or any water, if the water is pure. OK; in the local water if we take bath, we do not know whether we get cleaner by bath or dirty after the bath; we do not know; so pure water is capable of purifying; so water is a purifier; fire is a purifier. That is why for surgery, they heat all the instruments; it is for purification. In fact, cooking itself is a method of purification, why should we boil the water; it is purifier; and wind is also a purifier; so especially if things have got smell; dry it in the open; So smell will go; So Krishna says among all the purifiers I am pavanaḥ; Vāyuḥ. So which moves; pavathe iti pavanaḥ; that which moves and also that which purifies, punāthi iti pavanaḥ; and that is why Ānjanēya is called Pavana suthaḥ; the son of Vāyu; Pavana sutha; Vāyu kumāraḥ. Therefore I am the purifier wind.

That is the reason we worship the wind also; not only we worship bhumi; we worship agni; and we worship vāyu also; Namaste vāyō; where did it come; In Śikṣavalli; in Śāntipāda;

त्वमे वप्रत्यक्षं ब्रह्म वदिष्यामि ।

namō brahmaṇē | namastē vāyō | tvamēva pratyakṣaṁ brahmāsi |
tvamē vapratyakṣaṁ brahma vadiṣyāmi |

in which culture, a person will revel vāyu; what an attitude, because the Lord says I am in the form of vāyu also;

Then रामः शस्त्रभृतामहं rāmaḥ śastrabhṛtāmaham. So among the Gods who wield different types of weapons; all our Gods have weapons; so Lord Śiva has got his paraśu hastha; he has got paraśu; he is called Pinākapāṇi; the one who has got a bow called Pinākam; and Rāma is called Kōthandapāṇiḥ; Viṣṇu is called Śārngapāṇi; not Śāraṅgapāṇi; It is really Śārngapāṇi. Thus all our Gods have got weapons; why do they have weapons; whoever has to protect Dharma will have to wield the weapons; We should know this clearly, there are some people who criticise our religion saying your gods are not compassionate; your gods really do not really loves; Our god only loves us; your gods do not love you; because all your gods have weapons; they frighten us; we also are idiots and listen to such stories. Let it be very clear; anybody who has to protect dharma.

dharmaśamsthāpanārthāya sambhavāmi yugē yugē||4.8||

whoever has to do, will have to keep weapons, because to protect dharma; we have to use four upāyās; sāma, dhāna, bhēda and dhanda; sāma, dhāna bhēda are non-violent methods of protecting dharma; and we should attempt initially to protect dharma by non-violent method only and if non-violent methods fail; ultimately we will have to use violent method and violence for dharma rakṣam is not wrong; Not only it is not wrong; it is right; and not only it is right, that alone is right; And that is why in the case of Rāmāyaṇa also we find Rāma gives the last chance to Ravaṇā. In Kaṁba Rāmāyaṇam, it is said: Indrupōi nāLai vā இன்று போய், நாளை வா; i.e. Return today and come back tomorrow; And in Mahābhāratham also, last Krishna goes as a messenger to avoid war; these are all non-violent methods; if all of them fails, violence has to be used; and it is not pāpam; it is puṇyam; that is why Krishna advised Arjuna, dharmyāddhi yuddhācchrēyō'nyat kṣatriyasya na vidyatē (2.31). For Kṣatriya, dharma yuddham is a duty. dharma yuddham produces puṇyam; and if a person takes to dharma yuddha; he will attain only veera svarga and never pāpam and naragam. And not only Krishna advised Arjuna to take to dharmayuddha; all our Gods wield weapons only for the sake of dharma rakṣanam. It is exactly like I have told you often, a doctor amputating a particular organ for saving the patient; the first aim of the doctor is to cure the disease without any hurt or permanent handicap and if all the methods fail; and the disease will spread all over. Then he will have to take to amputation; and destroying Asuras, is amputation of a part of the society for saving the society;

आत्मार्थे पृत्वौ त्यजेत् ātmārthē pṛtvī tyajēt; for getting mōkṣa, you can sacrifice everything.

Anyway why I am saying all these is; our Gods are intelligently wielding weapons; it is not a defect, it is not a dūṣaṇam but it is a bhūṣaṇam;

Then in the case of devotee, how the weapons will be used; OK; in the case of rakshasa the Lord has to use the weapons to destroy; but in the case of a devotees how will the Lord use the weapons; we say in the case of devotees also, the Lord will use the weapon for what; for destroying our inner enemy; kāma krodhaḥ, lobhaḥ, mohāḥ, madaḥ mātsaryaḥ; all of them he destroys; that is why Lord's chakra is called Sudarśana cakram; Sudarśanam means what; it serves as a means of knowledge; darśanam; jñānam; and what type of darśanam; Sudarśana; right knowledge; Brahmajñāna ityarthāḥ; and by using the weapon of Samyak jñānam Lord destroys what; Ajñāna anthakāra; Therefore Lord should wield weapon to destroy the external enemy as well as the internal enemy. And all Gods are great; but here Krishna says among the weapon wielders, I am Rāmaḥ; Rāma is the greatest God among śaṣṭrabṛt; And Rāma has got what bow, I told you, Khōdandapāṇi; So शस्त्रभूताम् रामः अहं Sastrabhṛtām Rāmaḥ aham.

Then ज्जषाणां मकरश्चस्मि jhaṣāṇāṃ makaraścāsmi. Among the water animals; aquatic creatures; So there are millions of jīvarāsis. In fact you should know that the creatures in the ocean are much more more than on the land; because on the earth only 1/3rd or so is the land; 2/3 is water. Therefore billions of jīvarāsis are there; they are all called jhaṣāḥ; and among those aquatic creatures; I am Makaraḥ; I am Makara; Makara we can take the biggest one, the whale; so exactly is Makara is not known; different people give different meaning; some people say it is shark; some people say it is whale; And that is why I translated the word as Makara itself. So anyone you can take; whale being the biggest one, you can take that.

Then स्रोतसामस्मि जाह्नवी srōtasāmasmi jāhnavī; srōtas means rivers; that which flows; sṛu, sṛavathi to flow; srōtas means the flowing one; in short the rivers, among all the rivers of the world, I am Jāhnavī; Do you remember the word Jāhnavī; I told you Gaṅgāvatharaṇam story only two weeks before; and I have not given sufficient time for you to forget; and therefore I hope you remember; Jahnu maharṣīs from his ears Gaṅgādevi came; and therefore Gaṅgā is called jahnu putri, jahnu kanya etc. and therefore Jāhnavī; I am Gaṅgā; and Gaṅgā as a river itself is considered to be a very sacred one; In fact they say Gaṅgā is agam pāpam gamayathi iti Gaṅgā; agaṅgā agaṅgā become Gaṅgā; agaḥ means pāpam; gamayathi, one who removes; therefore a dip in Gaṅgā is considered to be a great purifier;

स कृत् गीतम्भसिस्थानम्, संसार मलमोचनम् ॥

mala nirmocanam puṁsām jala stnānam dinē dinē |

sa kṛt gītambhasisthānam, saṁsāra malamocanam ||

And according to Vēdānta; Gaṅgā represents the Brahma Vidya pravāhaḥ; it symbolises the flow of spiritual knowledge; and why do we compare Gaṅgā to the flow of spiritual knowledge; because there are so many common features between them.

Firstly, Gaṅgā originates from Lord Śivā's head for us; even though originally she was in Svarga loka, when it came down on the earth; only Lord shiva received and from Lord Śivā's head alone, Gaṅgā is coming down to bless us; And for brahma vidya also; who is the adi guru. So I have a guru; and you ask my guru; what will he say; I am not the originator; I got from my guru; if you ask him; he says My guru; Naturally the question will be who is the first guru; that is what we chant in the beginning fo the class; सदाशिव समारम्भं sadāśiva samārambhāṁ. Therefore Gaṅgā comes from Śivā; Brahma vidya comes from Lord's Śivā's head; Therefore both are same; and the river flows from higher plane to lower plane. Because that is how water flows; gravitational flow from higher to lower; And similarly Brahma vidya also flows from guru to śiṣya. And generally Guru is seated on a higher plane; and śiṣyas are seated in lower plane and therefore brahma vidya teaching is flowing from the guru to śiṣya.

And that is why the gallery type of lecture hall we do not generally recommend. So there, the seats are like this; now guru has to pump the knowledge against the gravitational flow and even if Guru manages, naturally it flows out. So everyday the śiṣya comes with an empty mind; So therefore it should be the other way; that is not the right method. Therefore Gaṅgā flows from higher to lower plane; Brahma vidya flows form guru to śiṣya; higher to lower; That is why in Mundakōpaniṣad; parāvare; parā avara; parā varām it was called parāvarām;

sa bhāradvājāya satyavāhāya prāha bhāradvājō:'ṅgīrasē parāvarām || Mund.one I.2 ||

parāvarām means it flows from the higher plane; this is the second common feature;

Then the third common feature is Gaṅgā is a perennial river; unlike our local rivers which go dry; because even in the worst summer, Gaṅgā will have water melting, ice melted water would be there; That is why in summer, Gaṅgā is very cold; we think summer it would be pleasant; but in summer we feel the cold more, because the outside temperature is so high and the water is ice-melted water, the contrast is so much. Similarly brahma vidya parampara is perennial; it never dries up. the flow never breaks; What is the proof; what is the proof; very very brilliant question; it is like asking you the question; your family parampara is broken or not; what will be your answer; I am sitting here solidly 85 kgs; what other proof do you require; for the continuity of the santhathi; the very fact that even now we are able to learn Brahmavidya is proof for the perennial nature of the brahma vidya; this is the third common feature.

Then the fourth common feature is if you dip in Gaṅgā you feel very fresh and rejuvenated. even if you walk 20 kilometers; once I walked from Gomukh to Gangōtri; 20 kms or something and I thought I cannot walk further; I had a dip in Gaṅgā in Gangōtri; and somehow got strength, another few kilometers I could walk; It is rejuvenating water; in the same way, if you dip in this teaching; what do mean by dipping in this teaching; listening to this teaching; exposing yourselves to this teaching; is getting immersed in that; that also refreshes you; and therefore both are refreshing factors; rejuvenating factors. Then the next common feature is: That is what I said sakrut gītāmbasi snānam samsāra malamōchanam; if you take in the Gītā river, you will be purified;

What is the next feature; Even though Gaṅgā flows from Gōmukh downwards up to Calcutta, you cannot take a dip anywhere you like. It is a dangerous risk, you do not know where there is a whirlpool, where there are rocks, you do not what is the depth of the river, therefore you can take a dip only in that place, where there are steps available; they call it snāna ghāt; படித்துறை padithurai; Therefore that place which is specially built for taking the dip; that is called ghāt; just as you can take Gaṅgā Dip only in specified place. Similarly the Brahma vidya snāna also, you cannot do anywhere, you have to go guru ghāt; the Brahma vidya guru represents, the special space. If you take a vēdāntic book and read, it is a dangerous preposition, because not only you will not understand, you will misunderstand. Therefore if you want to take a dip in Brahma vidya, you should go to the Guru ghāt. So thus in respects, Brahma vidya and Gaṅgā are similar. Therefore Krishna says, srōtasāmasmi jāhnavī;

Continuing.

32. Oh Arjuna! I am the beginning, the middle, and the end of the creations. (I am) Self-knowledge among all branches of knowledge. I am the constructive discussion among discussions.

सर्गाणाम् sargāṇām, among the created objects or the creations, I am the आदिः अन्तः मध्यं च ādiḥ antaḥ madhyaṃ ca; You can understand ādiḥ means beginning, antaḥ means end, madhyaṃ means middle; But this seems to be a repetition, the same thing has said in 20th verse also; 20th verse, which is the beginning of the Vibūthi, Krishna says:

I am the beginning, middle and end; He has told there; and He is telling here; how to reconcile; because repetition is supposed to be a dōṣā; So it is called punarukthi dōṣā; how do we reconcile; the commentators point out that the one indicates the beginning, middle, and end spacially, another indicates beginning, middle and end, timewise. So whether you look at spacially or whether you look at timewise, I am the beginning, middle and end of the creation; one is srishti, sthithi laya kaaranam; and time wise and space-wise I am the pātāla loka also and I am brahma lōkā also and I am the middle, Bhūlōkā also. Everything I am. So sargāṇām ādiḥ madhyaṃ antaḥ aham ēva arjuna;

Then अध्यात्मविद्या विद्यानां adhyātma vidyā vidyānām, Vidyā means any disciple of knowledge; any science is called Vidyā and there are so many branches of knowledge in the tradition also there are so many branches like the four vēdās; śikṣa, kalpa, vyākaraṇam, niruktham, chandaḥ, niruktham, jyothiṣam etc. there are so many branches in the sciences and the modern sciences are many you know, and among all of them, I am the spiritual knowledge; So adhyātma vidyā aham asmi; because all other branches of science, deal with anātma; whether it is physics, chemistry, biology, zoology, electricity or magnetism, etc. anything you know, they all deal with anātma, the material things; whereas adhyātma vidyā is the one dealing with adhyātma vidyā; atma vidyā. That is why in the 9th chapter, self-knowledge was titled rāja vidyā; rāja vidyā means the king among the knowledge or disciplines of knowledge.

And why do we say self-knowledge is the greatest one; you can give any number of reason. Just we will see a few; the first thing is that atma is the only reality; everything else other than atma is mithya is unreal; therefore all other branches deal with unreal; whereas this alone deals with satyam; so this is parā vidyā and there are apara vidyas. In Kathōpaniṣad, Śankarācārya says, aparahi vidyā avidyā; all the material knowledge is as good as ignorance, because they are dealing with non-substantial non-entity; Therefore being satya jñānam it is great;

And the second reason is, this is the only knowledge which liberates a person from the sense of limitation; which is the biggest problem of human being, the sense of limitation; the sense of physical limitation is expressing in the form of our desire to accumulate more and more and more because with myself I feel I am limited; So I have a sense of physical limitation, I have a sense of emotional limitation, that I am not loved by all; I am not loved by own children; no one enquires about me; they do not even check whether we are there or not; so all these are all what; emotional deprivation; emotional sense of limitation; Then the next level of limitation is intellectual; any amount I know, I know that I do not know much; the greater I know, the greater the ignorance is exposed; and therefore, this sense of limitation is samsāra and any branch of knowledge other than self-knowledge; any other branch of knowledge, will not remove this limitation; In fact, not only it will not remove, it will create only further limitation; like that scientists, Newton or Edison who said; I was only playing on the shore with a few pebbles; thousands of discoveries he made made and at the time of death, he declared that I was playing with a few pebbles on the shore, while the vast ocean of truth is in front. Therefore, material sciences will only increase the sense of limitation; whereas this is the only knowledge which makes me say, पूर्णमदः पूर्णमिदं पूर्णात्पूर्णमुदच्यते pūrṇamadaḥ pūrṇamidaḥ pūrṇātpūrṇamudacyate (do not get up and go ~ I am only quoting)

So I am pūrṇaḥ; that pūrṇātvam comes only by self-knowledge; Therefore this is liberating knowledge; it is the second reason; if you want one more reason for superiority; this is the rarest of knowledge; most of the people do not come; Vyāsācārya said in the second chapter of the Gītā, many people do not come to this knowledge and even among those come, many people do not understand. Therefore the number of people who know this, is very very very limited; And therefore it is the rarest of knowledge; therefore Krishna says I am the spiritual knowledge.

Then the next one; वादः प्रवदतामहम् vādaḥ pravadatāmaham; vādaḥ means a discussion for arriving at the truth; that is called vādaḥ. In our tradition, they talk about several types of discussions; anything you take, they have studied thoroughly; they talk about vādaḥ; they talk about jalpa, they about vithanda; they talk about jāthi; they talk about chalam; these are all different types of discussions, And vādaḥ or saṁvādaḥ between guru and śiṣya, both are meant for only one purpose and that is arriving at the truth; whereas in all other discussions, arriving at the truth is not the aim, winning the argument is the aim; And that is why most of the discussions, both the people do not listen to the other; when I am arguing, the other person is preparing what he has to say, See in your house itself; most of the time, you will be doing that only. So when the other person is talking, we rarely listen; we are planning for our attack; so that means what; that person's speech, nobody is listening; and if that is true with regard to you; when you are shouting, not even speaking, do you think the other person is hearing; never; 99% be assured what we talk the other person is not listening; because when you start a discussion or dialogue, initially I start for the sake of knowledge, but soon my ego takes over and therefore I do not want to accept my ignorance. I do not want to accept my deficiency; And that is why they say often, arguments or discussions produce more heat than light; that is why we use the expression, lighted argument we never say; heated argument; So vādaḥ means a discussion which never produces heat which never invokes my ego; I am all the time interested in knowing the truth; I am ready to accept I am wrong, if it is very clear to me. That means that I should be able to set aside my ego; and that is why when they come to vedantic dialogue, the shisya is asked to do namaskāra. Doing namaskāra is symbolically declaring to the teacher; that Oh Teacher, I am ready to set aside my ego; I will listen without any prejudice; if I have got wrong notions, I am ready to drop the notion. If I listen with ego, I will never drop my notion; whenever I contradict you, in those case, you reject my mine, whenever I agree with you, you accept immediately; What that means; are you able to understand; listen again; whenever I contradict you, you reject me; whenever I am in agreement with you, you accept me; which means what; you hold on to your view alone; this is called filtered listening; whichever is convenient you take and the other things you are not able to drop. That means I lack intellectual honesty; therefore a discussion wherein I set aside my ego; wherein I am ready to openly accept, not mentally verbally accept my mistake and I am interested in listening to other persons; it is the most difficult thing in any discussion or dialogue; our mind is itching to talk; and we are waiting for that person to take a breath; at that time you enter and you finish off your arguments; So if I can relaxedly listen to the other person and similarly I talk, that is called vādaḥ or saṁvādaḥ; that alone will lead to discovery of truth; and therefore Krishna claims that I am vādaḥ;

So jalpa, vithanda etc. are there; for each one they give a definition; in one type of discussion, I am interested only in establishing my view; I am not interested in listening to the other; that is one type of wrong dialogue; In another one, I never establish my view; because I do not have; my only aim is demolishing your view; whatever it is; and why I want to demolish, only one reason, you are holding that view, That is why that is mistake; if the same view I hold, it is right; but if you hold that is not; so thus varieties of discussions are set, for each one, one one definition is given; and I do not want to get into those details; vādaḥ or saṁvādaḥ I am.

Continuing.

facing all the directions.

33. I am the letter 'a' 'अ' among letters;(I AM) the dvandva among compounds; I am the eternal time; I am the dispenser facing all the directions

So among the letters, what all things Krishna takes you see; among the alphabetical letters, I am the letter ah अ. In any Indian language (in English language अ does not exist, you see - it starts with A, B, C, E, F, G..... z no अ ah in the lost 26 characters; when you are pronouncing a word then you may say अ. other अ you say; But in alphabetical letters अ does not exist at all; whereas in any Indian language you take, अ is the first letter, अ आ, इ, ई is the way it starts. So because अ is the most fundamental letter or the most fundamental sound; and why do we say that it is the most fundamental sound, because when you open your mouth and allow the wind to pass out, what will be the sound; what will come; Ah; when you open the mouth and allow the sound to come; letter anyone Chinese, Russian, Japanese, let them open the mouth clearly and allow the sound to come, it will be ah alone; and that is why when we want the children to open the mouth, what we say, you say show ah; you do not say show a, or e, not u, not i; show ah; which means open the mouth; therefore ah is the basic sound and according to the science of phonetics, all the other letters are modified versions of ah alone; so ah is the pliable chappathi mavu like thing; you know that wheat māvu (dough), which can be shaped into any form; Similarly अ ah is the basic sound and by changing your mouth and its position etc.

you produce other sounds. For example, you allow the sound to come, and show your teeth; what will happen; it will become E. So when a dentist wants to show your teeth, he asks you to show E. so therefore you allow the sound and show your teeth, E. So thus U, k, kha, any alphabetic letter, ah modified, positioned by the aṣṭasthanāni; I said in śikṣavalli; 8 positions are there; to modify that; like a flute, the wind allowed pass out the same; but pressing the holes appropriately, one sound is modified in sa, ri, ga, ma; it is not a different wind; same wind; same playing; watch his mouth, it is only U; but by pressing that one sound is modified; Similarly ah is the kāraṇa akṣaram; all the others are kārya akṣarāṇi; अह is the upādahana kāraṇam for all alphabetic letters; and do you know who says this; Vēdā itself says this. The details in the next class.

Om

Lord Krishna continues with the enumeration of the vibhūthis of the Lord and we have seen up to verse no.32, and in the 33rd verse Lord Krishna said अक्षराणामकारोऽस्मि akṣarāṇāmakārō'smi. Akṣarā means the alphabetic letters. And we look upon the alphabetic letters as sacred expression of Sarasvati herself;

आवर्णाम् नामरूपेण त्रिवर्णाम् प्रणवात्मिकाम् ।

लिप्यत्मन एकपञ्चशत् वर्णाम् वन्दे सरस्वतीम् ॥

āvārṇām nāmarupēṇa trivārṇām praṇavātmikām |
lipyatmana ēkapanchaśat varṇām vandē sarasvatīm ||

I worship Sarasvati dēvi who is in the form of alphabetic letters. lipyatmana ēkapanchaśat varṇām. So we look up all the alphabetic letters as Goddess Sarasvati herself and even among the alphabetic letters Lord Krishna says, the most sacred letter is letter A.

And as I said in the last class, the letter अ A is supposed to be sacred because that is the basic letter which emerges from your mouth when you open the mouth without doing anything. To produce any other sound, इ, कु, अ, etc. you have to do something with your mouth; To say इ, you have to show your teeth. Say इ without showing the Teeth; you will not be able to. To say अ, you have to spout your mouth; for all other letters, a particular effort is required, but effortless sound which you can produce by just opening the mouth is अ. And therefore according to the science of phonetics, akāra is the basic sound which is a flexible sound which alone is modified into all other letters. Just as a pliable lump of clay is the basic cause out of which you can shape varieties of things; similarly the letter A is like a pliable lump of clay which can be converted into इ, उ, etc. therefore अ akhāra is kāraṇa akṣarāṇām and all other letters are its products; modifications; kāryam. And since the cause alone manifests in the form of all effects, just as clay alone manifests as all the products, according to vēda, the letter alone manifests as all the other alphabetic letters and therefore there is a vēdic statement; अकारः वै, सार्वः वाक् akharaḥ vi, sarvā vāk; the letter A alone is in the form of the alphabetic letters and the alphabetic letters rearranged alone is all the dictionary words; Therefore A multiplies into alphabetic letters, alphabetic letters rearranged are all the words of the dictionary. Therefore extending, you can say अ alone is every word, अकारः वै, सार्वः वाक् akharō vai sarvā vāk; all the words are nothing but the modification of the basic sound. And in our tradition every alphabetic letter has got a presiding deity; every alphabetic letter a presiding deity; and for the letter अ, the adhṣṭāna dēvathā is Brahmāji, the creator himself.

am bramaṇe padmhastāya lokādīpataye haṁsavāhanāya sāṁghāya sāyudhāya saśaktiparivārāya umāmaheśvārāya namaḥ am bramaṇe namaḥ

So letter अ a is Brahmāji. In Mahānarāyana mantra this occurs. And why do we have Brahmāji as the presiding deity; because Brahmāji is the creator of all the objects of the world; the letter अ is the cause of all the alphabetical letters. And therefore अ stands for Brahmāji; and therefore Krishna says akṣarāṇām madhye, among all alphabetical letters, I am alphabet अ.

Continuing:

Then the next line says: dvandvaḥ sāmāsikasya ca द्वन्द्वः सामासिकस्य च. In Sanskrit grammar especially, we have a particular usage called sāmāsaḥ. Sāmāsaḥ means formation of compound words; by joining simple words.

So you take two simple words and join them together by adding a hyphen in between, then it becomes a compound word, And therefore it is called Sāmāsaḥ; samyak asyathe iti Sāmāsaḥ; that which is properly and beautifully arranged is called Sāmāsaḥ; Of course, in English language also, and in other languages also, we have got simple compound words, but in Sanskrit grammar it is a well-developed usage;

And by forming this compound words, the advantage is use save some preposition; for example, suppose somebody says: I have brought pūja materials; pūja is one word; material is another word; you want to say: I have brought material for pūja; but you do not want to say the word for and you want to save some time and energy. And therefore what do you do; you say pūja-material; pūja material is compound word; the syntactical between them is through the preposition 'for'; you save the preposition 'for' by adding hyphen. I went to Śivā temple; Śivā-temple; Now what you really say is I went to a temple where Lord Śivā is worshipped; you do not want to say so many words; Śivā-temple; I have brought Gaṅgā -water; Gaṅgā is one word and water is another word; you want to say I have brought water from Gaṅgā; you swallow the preposition 'from' by adding a hyphen. Are you attending Adayar-classes? Adayar classes; you put a hyphen, the classes conducted in Adayar. So thus we can form a compound word, by joining two simple word and adding a hyphen in between, the hyphen indicates that it is a compound word, and by forming a compound, you swallow preposition and that by that you save time and energy. So recently Agra-summit; So Agra summit means a summit in Agra. Then suppose I ask, do you know Agra-summit episode; Then it becomes Agra hyphen summit hyphen episode. An episode which took place during the summit in Agra. Instead of writing this lengthy sentence; Agra-summit-episode; it becomes a sāmāsaḥ; a compound; Thus a compound can be formed by forming two words, by joining three words, and the advantage is you save preposition.

And how do you know what preposition is to be used; From the context you know; Gaṅgā water means water from Gaṅgā; Pooja material if you say, material from we will not say, we will say material for pooja. And Adayar class means not classes from Adayar or for Adayar; but classes conducted in Adayar. So in which place, which preposition is to be used, we get to know from the context. I went to Śivā mandir; temple, you know, in which Śivā is worshipped. I went to Vishnu mandir; I went to Birla mandir; what is the meaning; a mandir in which Birla is installed? No; there you know, a mandir which is built by Birla; so context you have to use; I have told you often; when you say turmeric power; powder of turmeric. Chilli powder; power of chilli; tooth powder; power of teeth? powder for brushing the teeth. In Tamil, it is still interesting. Manja podi; podi of mangal; coffee podi; podi of coffee; mukku podi; So this snuff powder; In Tamil it is called mukku podi for the mooku.

So thus the resolution of a compound is one of the beautiful exercises we have in Sanskrit grammar and this compound formation is very systematically done as a science and we have got several such compounds; four basic compounds are enumerated and this four are later expanded into 7 types of compound, then these types of compound are further expanded into 35 types of compounds; Thus we have got many compounds called sāmāsaḥ; and these group of compounds are called saamaasikam; Sāmāsikām means sāmāsānām samūham; the group of compound, tatpuruṣa sāmāsaḥ; bahuvrihi sāmāsaḥ; karmadharaya sāmāsaḥ; thigu sāmāsaḥ; dvandva sāmāsaḥ; avyayibhaava sāmāsaḥ. When we were studying, we were joking; samosa; samosa; etc. It is not samosa; it is sāmāsaḥ; and in Sanskrit we can form compounds which can contain tens of words joined together.

And in Sanskrit literature like Kādambari etc. a word will start in the beginning of a page and it will go on and on and on and the word (not sentence) will end at the end of that page. So Kalidasa writes Shyamala Dandakam, full of such beautiful compounds,

तारकाराजिनीकाशहारावलिस्मेर चारुस्तनाभोगभारानमन्मध्य-

susvare bhāsvare; another word;

Like that Sanskrit can have innumerable compounds and therefore Krishna does not want to leave it out. Therefore He says among compounds, there is a particular type of compound called dvandva sāmāsaḥ; I do not want to get into the details of dvanda samasa; it will become a grammar class; Therefore I am leaving from that part; dvandva is the name of a particular type of sāmāsaḥ; and Krishna says I am dvandva compound, among the compound.

And then अहमेवाक्षयः कालः ahamēvākṣayaḥ kālō; and I am the kāla tatvam which puts an end to everything; but which itself does not have an end; so therefore ākṣayaḥ kālaḥ means inexhaustible time. So every thing else gets exhausted in time, but the time continues throughout. In fact even during pralaya kālam; everything is resolved, but kāla is there, working potentially. And because of the continuity of kāla alone, the next cycle of shristi is possible. Do therefore Krishna says I am the kāla tatvam which is inexhaustible; ākṣayaḥ kālaḥ

And धाता अहं dhātā aham; dhātā means karma phala dhātā; the one who gives appropriate result for appropriate action; to the appropriate person, at the appropriate time; so I have got a cosmic computer; which cannot have (what virus, red hover) which will never be struck by any virus; a computer which has got in records, all the karmas of all the jīvās, done during all the time; the karma of ant, plant, animals, birds, living beings, dēvās, asurās, everything I have got, and at the right time, I give the karma phalam; and therefore aham karma phala dhātā asmi; the ordainer.

And therefore only विश्वतोमुखः viśvatōmukhaḥ; my face is turned in all the 10 directions; because I have to see who is doing what karma; who is doing the mischief; so I observe all the karmas of all the people, register them and give the result at the appropriate time; therefore vishvato mukha; the face turned in all directions.

अहं मृत्युः ahaṃ mṛtyuḥ I am death सर्वहरः च sarvaharaḥ ca the destroyer of everything उद्भवः च udbhavaḥ ca (I am) the source, भविष्यताम् bhaviṣyatām of future prosperity नारीणाम् nārīṇām among 'women' कीर्तिः kīrtiḥ (I am) fame श्रीः śrīḥ prosperity वाक् vāk speech स्मृतिः smṛtiḥ memory मेधा medhā intelligence धृतिः dhṛtiḥ fortitude च क्षमा ca kṣamā and patience

अहं सर्वहरः मृत्युः अस्मि ahaṃ sarvaharaḥ mṛtyuḥ asmi. So I am the greatest robber, as it were, who will take away everything from a jīva; So a robber may take away so of the things; but kāla is one which snatches everything from us; because we can never carry anything with us at the time of death. There is a beautiful sloka, I forget; you drop all your property at home; And all the relations come up to the street (like the one in Tamil: வீடு வரை உறவு; வீதி வரை மனைவி; காடு வரை பிள்ளை; கடசிவரை யாரோ; vīṭu varai uravu; vīti varai maṇaivi; kāṭu varai piḷḷai; kaṭacivarai yārō). Like that one is there in Sanskrit; So one by one you drop, and when you leave this body you cannot carry anything; what is that; what you carry is your own puṇyam and pāpam; other than that nothing can you carry, It is taken away by whom; mṛtyuḥ; therefore mṛtyuḥ, yama dharma rāja is called sarvaharaḥ; the one who takes away everything from you.

That is why they tell that story; a person had a challenge; a competition it seems; he had property; landed property; therefore he called people interested in acquiring; And he said it seems from morning 6 A.m. Sunrise up to evening sunset, you run; and whatever be the distance that you run, the whole land up to that distance will be yours; a particular width we have to understand; the whole land up to that; who will leave that offer free; you will have to only run; So this person thought I will acquire maximum and started running; running, running, covered lot of miles, and he was seeing the sun setting and 5-10 minutes more or there; And therefore he took all his energy and strength and mustered and ran and at the time of the sunset he had that extra energy; and then he ran and fell down and died. Now tell me; what happens to all the properties he had by running; mṛtyuḥ sarvaharaḥ. So whatever you acquire, Yamadharma rāja takes away at the time of death, and therefore Krishna says; I am that destroyer; saṃhāra tatvam also.

उद्भवश्च भविष्यताम् udbhavaśca bhaviṣyatām. And I am the udbhavaḥ; the resource or source of all the future prosperity or future wealth; because if you have to produce anything in future, they all must be there potentially; we can never generate anything if that provision is not there and Krishna says that provision is myself. Therefore udbhavaḥ means I am the source or womb of all future prosperity; bhaviṣyatām; Śankarācārya says: Bhāvi kalyāṇānām udpathi sthānam; Then कीर्तिः kīrtiḥ श्रीः śrīḥ वाक् vāk नारीणाम् nārīṇām; means among various dēvathās, the female dēvathās are here referred to as Nāris; and we have got dēvathās presiding over various thing. And as I said, we have got Lakṣmidēvi presiding over wealth; we have got Sarasvatī dēvi presiding over knowledge. We have got Parvathī dēvi presiding over śhakti; thus we have got presiding deities called adiṣṭāna dēvathā; And not only we have got adiṣṭāna dēvathā for these things, In fact, anything in the creation has got an adiṣṭāna dēvathā; Why we have like this, because anything in the creation is governed by certain laws of creation; if you take the earth in general; earth is governed by so many laws; because of those laws, earth is going round its own axis, and earth is going round the sun also; that means earth is governed by so many universal laws. Similarly every organ of ours is governed by so many laws; Thunder, lightening, gravitation; anything you mention; anything within creation must be governed by inexorable laws of the Lord and if those laws are functioning, it is only because of an intelligence principle governing those laws; Because any law can function perfectly only when there is a governing principle and that is why whenever government introduces a law, an officer is required to take care of that; Once there are traffic laws, you require traffic police; only then the law will be maintained. Any law can exist, only if there is a law governing intelligence principle. And therefore any object in creation is governed by laws and any law is governed by an intelligent principle and adding these two together, we require an intelligent principle to preside over every object. One has to go in two steps. From object to object law one has to go; from that law to the intelligence governing that law. Joining these together we say, every object is a governed by an adiṣṭāna dēvathā; bhumi has got bhumi dēvathā; jalam has got jala dēvathā. And I told you that every alphabetic letter has got its dēvathā; every organ in our body has a dēvathā and if you invent a new thing, radio invented, radio dēvathā; means what; radio is functioning because a certain set of laws; And intelligence governing that is called dēvathā; So every dēvathā is an aspect of Īśvara or God only. So every dēvathā is nothing but an aspect of a facet of the lord, the total intelligence.

And therefore we have got Dēvathā for what; कीर्तिः kīrtiḥ; kīrtiḥ means fame; name and fame we say; that fame also is governed by certain principles and the deity presiding over the fame principle is called kīrtiḥ dēvathā;

Then स्मृतिः smṛtiḥ; memory is another power or faculty which is governed by again another set of neurological laws; if some of the wires are not properly connected, memory gone; amnesia; that word you forget; amnesia is the problem of loss of memory; When he went to the doctor saying I have amnesia, the doctor said: first pay my fees; thereafter I will treat, or you will forget that; like that; so memory power is a very important faculty which is again governed by the laws in the brain;

Then मेधा medhā; intelligence principle, we do not know why brains are very intelligent; we do not know why some brains are very close to clay; We do not know. So there are again, it is not accidents; there are laws governing that; and that dēvathā is called medhā dēvathā; and we have got in vēdah prayers directed to each one; mēdhā sukhtam; a special prayer for mēdhā dēvi;

mayi mēdhām mayi prajāṁ mayīndra indri yaṁ dadhātu
mayi mēdhām mayi prajāṁ mayi sūryō bhrājō dadhātu.

Mēdhā dēvi is very important; therefore medhā dēvathā.

Then धृतिः dhṛtiḥ; dhṛtiḥ means perseverance; fortitude; Will power is called dhṛtiḥ; it is that faculty of a person by which a person continues the effort even if there is failure repeatedly. That capacity by which a person continues in spite of repeated failures; that capacity is called, that resilience, to get up again after each fall, the rubber-ball like resilience.

dadathu anaryartha pathanam, mrth pinda pathanam yatha; 33.36

Suppose a wet clay lump is dropped down; clay lump, What samāsam; lump of clay; clay samāsam; śaṣṭi tatpuruṣa samāsam; So when clay lump falls, it stays there; it will never get up; you have to push. Whereas when rubber ball falls; what is the samāsam rubber-ball; a ball made of rubber; not for the sake of rubber; made of rubber; we have so many compound in English; we do not think that is all; when rubber ball falls what happens; again it comes up; again how forcibly it comes; as forcibly as it falls; it comes up.

Similarly we have two types of people, one fails, he renounces; tyage naike; so this kind of sanyāsa becomes problem-sanyāsa; there is another person; even if he fails, he attempts again; he attempts again; that capacity is called dhṛtiḥ.

And there also we have a dēvathā called dhṛtiḥ dēvathā; and therefore Krishna says among all the dēvathās; नारीणाम् nārīṇām, dēvathānām madhye, I am all these dēvathās; which are noble faculties of the mind; and क्षमा kṣamā; the word kṣamā has several meanings; we can take it as patience; forbearance; the capacity to wait, where you have to wait; when the red signal comes; they have written something; recently they have introduced; relax. If you do not have that; what do we do, by inch inch we proceed, and we are in the middle of the road; by the green signal; comes we are already on the other side. Let the green signal come; if you are behind a car, the moment green signal comes; you press the car; all the cars; let the front car start; half a second; no kṣamā; So therefore you watch yourselves; if you are driving the traffic signal; whether you have kṣamā or not; that is also a faculty; Krishna says I am kṣamā dēvathā;

Continuing;

तथा tathā moreover बृहत्साम br̥hatsāma (I am) the brihatsama (a class of Sruti) साम्नाम् sāmnaṃ among Sama mantras अहं गायत्री ahaṃ gāyatrī I am the Gayatri; छन्दसाम् chandasām among the Vēdic metres; अहं मार्गशीर्षः ahaṃ mārgaśīrṣaḥ I am known as Margasirsha मासानाम् māsānām among the months कुसुमाकरः kusumākaraḥ among the seasons ऋतूनाम् ṛtūnām I am the spring, the flowering season..

35. Moreover (I am) the Brhatsama among sāmna-mantras; I am the Gāyatrī among Vēdic mantras; I am the Margasirsa among months; I am spring among seasons.

Samnām madhye; among all the sāmna mantras; that is the mantras of the sāmna vēda; sāmna mantras; again a compound, mantras of sāmna vēda. So there is one mantra, known as brihad sāmna. Brihad sāmna is the proper name of a sāmna mantra; it is supposed to be a very auspicious mantra: it starts with au ho e thaavam iti havamahe; which is glorification of the Lord and the Lord being great and since this mantra is glorified the great Lord; it is called brihad sāmna. It is not the mantra is big; mantra is relatively small only. only 2 minutes or 3 minutes chanting; even though the mantra is smaller; mantra is glorifying the Lord, who is the infinite one and therefore it is called Brihad sāmna; Brihadīśvara sthavana sāmna; Brihadīśvara temple you have called; why called Brihadīśvara; huge one; so this mantra glorifies the infinite Lord; it is called brihad sāmna; a very popular one; among sāmna vēdīs, So therefore Krishna says; I am brihad sāmna mantra;

Then the next one; गायत्री छन्दसामहम् gāyatrī chandasāmaham So I am the gāyatrī mantra among all the vēda mantras;

The word chandas has two meanings; one meaning is a vēdic meter is called chandas; a vēdic mantra is also called chandas. So you know what is vēdic meter; not meter-centimeter; meter the law by which a line of poetry is governed; in poetry writing, there are rules as to how many words can be there in one verse; and one line whom many letters can be there; and that arrangement of the poem is called metre. And in Sanskrit; we have got hundreds of meters; anustup, trishup. In Sandhyavandanam itself we say. gāyatrī ushnik, anuṣṭup, brihathi, triṣṭup, jagatya chandāmsi; gāyatrī ushnik, anuṣṭup, brihathi (it will not enter the mouth itself) (like cursing some one) in that meter list also; gāyatrī is enumerated first; so thus a vēdic meter is called gāyatrī; a vēdic meter is called chandas; a vēdic mantra is also called chandas; both meanings can be taken; But for convenience, I am taking the meaning vēdic mantra; so among the vēdic mantras; I am gāyatrī.

The word gāyatrī also two meanings; one is a particular type of meter is called gāyatrī meter; so what type of meter; a meter in which three lines are there; and in each line, 8 letters are there; So aṣṭākṣarā tripatha gāyatrī; 3 padams, 3 lines, and 8 letters in each, is called gāyatrī meter.

And also there is a second meaning; gāyatrī refers to a particular mantra also; gāyatrī mantra which is very very popular, today happens to be gāyatrī japam for some people in which they do gāyatrī japa avrithi; therefore Krishna says: among vēdic mantras, I am gāyatrī mantra; and why gāyatrī mahima is very elaborately said in scriptures. There is a book itself; entire book deals with only Gāyatrī mahima. To just tell you a few, because Gāyatrī japa and it is a popular mantra.

The main glory of gāyatrī is that it is supposed to be vēda sāraḥ. So Brahmāji wanted to take the essence of the vēda; not all the vēdas, people do not have time to chant the whole vēda; and therefore what did Brahmāji do;

dadi thrichosya gāyatrīyah, parameshti prajapathi;

Prameshti prajapathi Brahmāji took the main three Vēdas; So three vēdas are considered to be main ones, because they are predominantly used in rituals; Atharvaṇa vēda is not much used in rituals and therefore they do not include in the three vēdas;

And what did Brahmāji do; he wanted to take out the sāraḥ; because the vēdas are voluminous; therefore what did he do; he took a mixi and put the vēda and dirrr..... and then the vēda was crushed and the rig vēda sara came and you know what is the rig vēda sārāḥ; tasta vidhur varēṅyam; the first line of gāyatrī is rig vēda sārāḥ.

And then he took out the yajur vēda and put in the mixi and then crushed and took the essence; yajur vēda sārāḥ he got; what is that; bhargo devasya thimahi;

Then he put the sāma vēda in the mixi; mixi is nothing but tapas; he performed the tapas for taking out the essence and then he got: dhihyo yona prachodayat; therefore this verse says;

thisraevetu vēdebhya pādā pādā adu duhat; adudhuhat; Means what; Brahmāji extracted one one pāda of gāyatrī; pāda, pāda means the line, from the three vēdas and he got the mantra which is originally called savithri mantraha; It is called Savithri mantra; because the presiding deity is Sūrya Bhagavān and in Sanskrit sūrya is called savitha dēvathā; that is why we say; सावित्रा विश्वामित्रः निचृर्गायत्रि छन्दः । सविता देवताः sāvitṛā viśvāmitraḥ nicṛrgāyatri chndaḥ | savitā dēvatāḥ. Since Savitha, Sun is the dēvathā, it is called Savithri mantraha; and since the mantra it is called in Gāyatrī meter, it is also called gāyatrī; from the stand point of meter, it is called gāyatrī mantra; from the stand point of the dēvathā worshipped, it is called savithri mantraha.

At the time of upanayanam ceremony, the brahmacāri prostrates in front of his father, guru and he only says: Savithrim bho anubrūhi; There Savithri means gāyatrī mantraha; and since gāyatrī is the essence of the vēda, Gāyatrī is called vēda itself; and therefore when the father wants to initiate the boy into vēda, he teaches him Gāyatrī mantraha; so that whenever he chants Gāyatrī, he has repeated the whole vēda. So if you are repeating gāyatrī, you can say that daily you are chanting the entire vēda; but do not tell the secret: you daily chant the entire vēda because Gāyatrī is the essence. आयातु वरदा देवि अक्षरम् ब्रह्म संहितम् āyātu varadā dēvi akṣaram brahma saṁhitam; Brahma saṁhitam means vēda tulya; Brahma means vēda; Brahma saṁhitam is equal to vēda; Therefore gāyatrī pārayāṇam is equal to not one vēda parayanam; but three vēda parayanam. And by that chanting this gāyatrī mantra; this person is protected from all the pāpās and that is why it is called: गायत्री गायन्ताम् त्रायते इति गायत्रिः gāyatrī gāyantām trāyatē iti gāyatriḥ. Gāyanthām means what; whoever chants; three means what; Sanskrit means trāyatē; protector; Gāyatrī means that dēvathā; which serves like a kavacham, which immunises the people; kandriṣṭi Ganapathi is spreading like wild fire; in every house it is hanging; kan drishti Ganapathi; we are all worried; that our lives are affected by drishti; all the time we are worried about all the evil forces of pāpa; for invisible negative forces, your protecting armour must be also invisible and that invisible armour is generated by Gāyatrī.

Then people ask; how all the people are not allowed to chant Gāyatrī, if gāyatrī is so great; and how come many are not allowed to chant. It is not like that; I have told you. We have two types of Gāyatrī; Shroutha Gāyatrī; and Smārtha Gāyatrī; Shroutha gāyatrī appears in the veas; primary scriptures; Smārtha Gāyatrī occurs in the smritis, the secondary scriptures; Shroutha gāyatrī can be chanted by anyone who has been initiated into the upanayana ceremony and if a person has not been initiated; male or female, he also can chant gāyatrī; he or she also can chant gāyatrī; but the prescribed Gāyatrī is Smārtha Gāyatrī. Therefore everybody has got this two; one of these two Gāyatrīs; Shroutha Gāyatrī is तस्य वेतिर्वरेण्यम् । भर्गो देवस्य धीमहि । धियो यो नः प्रचोदयात् ॥ tasya vōtirvarēnyam | bhargo dēvasya dhīmahi | dhiyo yō naḥ pracōdayāt ||; ओम् भूर्भुवःसुवः om bhūrbhuvāsuvaḥ is not part of Gāyatrī; Gāyatrī begins from tasya vidhur varēnyam; but for the purpose of japa, om bhur bhuva suvaḥ is added; so this is shroutha gāyatrī;

प्रेरयेत् तस्य यत् भर्गः तत्त्वेण्य मुपास्महेः ॥ yo dēvaḥ savitāsmākam dhiyō dharmāti gocarāḥ |

prērayēt tasya yat bhargaḥ tatvarēnya mupāsmahēḥ ||

perhaps I will get it written on the Board in the next class; anybody can chant this sacred thread is not necessary at all; male or female; But shourtha gāyatrī one has to go through the purificatory rite, this is the convention;

And what is the essence of this gāyatrī mantrah; the meaning is very simple: savithu dēvasya tat varēnyam bhargaḥ vayam dhīmahi; vayam dhīmahi; we are meditating upon. Tat varēnyam bhargaḥ; that glorious effulgence; bhargaḥ effulgence; varēnyam; glorious, sacred; better sacred. Of whom? savithu dēvasya of Sun God; So we are meditating upon the sacred effulgence of Sun God.

And why are we meditating and worshipping? What do we get out of it; what will I get? yaḥ naḥ dhiyaḥ pracōdayāt; which effulgence activates our intelligence; dhiyaḥ means buddhi. So therefore, I worship the solar effulgence, because it is supposed to active my brain, mēdah śakti increases, memory power increases; and that is why brahmacāris, the students, gāyatrī was emphasised; because it gives every student; one is brahmacāri or not; student means memory power should be there; or in the next class, whether it is Gītā or Upaniṣad, doubt will arise; in that also, whether it is the 9th or 10th chapter; minimum memory should be there; So therefore, gāyatrī activates buddhi śakti; and therefore Krishna says, I am Gāyatrī Mantraḥ; if a person does not chant the gāyatrī; he loses all the advantages of being a vaidika puruṣaḥ.

And it is said in tradition; without chanting gāyatrī; whatever other mantras he chants, they all will not be that effective; on the other hand, if he chants gāyatrī, then no other mantrah is required at all; that Gāyatrī mahima said; it is very much elaborated in various sāstra granthās; Therefore Krishna says; I am gāyatrī.

And there also the gāyatrī itself is divided into two; tat savithu varēṇyam (one reading, tat savithu varē niyam is another reading); if you split it and say varē niyam, there will be 24 letters, if you join and say tatsa vidhu varēṇyam, it will have 23 letters; 24 lettered gāyatrī is called gāyatrī; 23 lettered gāyatrī is called nichir gāyatrī; And during sandhyavandhanam; one is supposed to chant nichir gāyatrī; That is why they say सावित्रा ऋषिः विश्वामित्रः निचूर्गायत्रि छन्दः । सविता देवताः sāvitṛā ṛṣiḥ viśvāmitraḥ nicṛrgāyatri chandaḥ | savitā dēvatāḥ; then you have to say varēṇyam; for japa; homam gāyatrī. Those rules are said in the scripture; any way that is an aside;

Then मासानां मार्गशीर्षोऽहम् māsānāṃ mārgaśīrṣō'ham; among the 12 months of an year; I am mārgaśīrṣa month, the December 15 to January 15; whether it is true for others or not; for Madras it is true because it is the only month in which the temperature is relatively tolerable; and all other times we have only three; hot, hotter and hottest; and that is why all the people come only during that period only; foreigners also; visit and we have also that music we keep at that time; Margasirsha month is supposed to be the sacred month; that is why so many religious rituals activities are kept at that time.

More we will see in the next class.

Om

Enumerating the glories of the Lord, Krishna said in the 35th verse, bṛhatsāma tathā sāmnaṁ gāyatrī chandasāmaham; I am the bṛhatsāma mantra; among the sāma mantrās, among the vedic mantrās in general, I am gāyatrī mantrās and I said that gāyatrī is considered to be a representative of the entire vēda and that is why when vēda upadēśa has to be done, they do gāyatrī upadēśa at the time of upanayanam and vēda is otherwise called brahma. And therefore Gāyatrī upadēśa is called Brahma upadēśa; that is why even now when they have the sacred thread ceremony, they right Brahmōpadeśam; Brahmopadeśam is equal to vēda upadēśa; vēdaopadeśam is equal to Gāyatrī upadēśa; because Gāyatrī is equal to vēda. Not only that in Chandōgya upaniṣad, Gāyatrī is itself presented for meditation; as Brahman; not only Gāyatrī is considered to be Vēda; Gāyatrī is considered param brahma itself, because such an upāsana is prescribed in Chandōgya upaniṣad and it is analysed in brahma sutra also; In short Gāyatrī is very very sacred and it occurs in the rig vēda orginally and it occurs in the yajur vēda also and it occurs even in sāma vēda; In all the three vēdas, gāyatrī mantra occurs.

And then Krishna said मासानां मार्गशीर्षोऽहम् māsānāṁ mārgaśīrṣō'ham; among all the months, I am the mārgaśīrṣa month, that is the month between December 15-January 15; Margazhi māsam in Tamil, And Krishna chooses this month, according to some commentators because that is the month when the earth is rich with varieties of grains and the phalams; sasya phala adyathvath; because after the rainy season, the earth must be ready for sowing the seed and lot of grains and we harvested at that time and therefore because of prosperity or richness of the earth, sasya phala adyatvath, mārgaśīrṣatvath uchyath. And there are some other commentators who point out that because that is considered to be the dawn of the early morning of the dēvās. For the dēvās or dēvathās, our one year is equal to one day; because their scale is different, and dēvās' day is supposed to begin from Sankramana day (Thai pongal) that is supposed to be the beginning of the day for the dēvās; And just before the beginning of the day, the time is called brahma muhurtha; satvik time, early morning between 4-30-6.00 is considered to be brahma muhurtha. If dēvās' day begins with January 15, just before the 15th January, that duration must be brahma muhurtha for the dēvathās; and brahma muhurtha is supposed to be a satvic period and therefore that month is considered is very good for all types of spiritual sādanā; all types of religious practices. Becuase of that reason also, Krishna chooses mārgaśīrṣa month;

Then ऋतूनां कुसुमाकरः ṛtūnāṃ kusumākaraḥ; among the six seasons, vasantha, varṣa, śarat; hēmantha, śīśira; and the grīṣma; six seasons are there; one year is divided into six seasons or in Sanskrit six ritu; ritu means a season; and one season last for 2 months. So grīṣma ritu is summer; then vasantha, once upon a time, that calendar was popular. Now we follow only English calendar; therefore we do not pakṣa, do not ritu; do not know ayanam; and therefore I have to tell all these things; grīṣma; and then Vasantha; and then varṣa; then śarat; and Hemantha and śīśira. In English we have got only four seasons; words for four seasons; summer, spring, autumn, winter; the rainy season, and pre-winter season is called Hēmantam; the six ritus are there; Of the six ritus, I am the vasantha ritu, because that is the season when all the flower plants blossom; And because all the flowers blossom during spring season, the people are all happy; it is the most pleasant season. And therefore Krishna says that I am the spring season; kusuma akahara. What is beautiful name for spring season; Krishna does not use the word Vasantha; he uses the word kusuma ākhāra; ākhara means abundance, store house, rich; kusuma means flower; kusumānam ākhāraḥ; it is a season which has abundance of flowers and therefore people are happy. (காலங்களில் அவள் வஸந்தம் kalangalil aval vasantham; an old Tamil song; that is regarding someone, but here we are addressing the Lord, OK. So therefore wrong address).

jayō'smi vyavasāyō'smi sattvaṃ sattvavatāmaham || 10.36 ||

अस्मि ध्यूतम् asmi dhyūtam I am gambling छलयताम् chalayatām among all the deceivers (deceitful practises); अहं तेजः ahaṃ tejaḥ I am the brilliance तेजस्विनाम् tejasvinām of the brilliant अस्मि जयः asmi jayaḥ I am victory अस्मि व्यवसायः asmi vyavasāyaḥ I am effort अहं सत्त्वं ahaṃ sattvaṃ I am the virtue सत्त्ववताम् sattvavatām of the virtuous

36. I am gambling among all deceitful practices; I am the brilliance of the brilliant; I am effort; I am the virtue of the virtuous.

छलयताम् chalayātām; among those activities which will rob our discriminative power; among those activities which will take a human being for a ride. Among those activities I am the gambling activity; because all forms of gambling will take a human being for a ride, because once a person enters into that, like alcohol or drug, a person will be completely addicted to that; And like any other addiction, gambling like card games or racing etc. like dices, all come under gambling.

In Bhāgavatham it is said; in Kaliyuga, the kaliyuga resides in a few places; Kali dēvathā means that dēvathā which will take a person for spiritual downfall. In Bhāgavatha a story is elaborately said; so Kali was to be driven out; then Kalidēvathā was to reside in some places, and delude the human mind; and I want to take them for a spiritual downfall; then Bhagavān allows Kali dēvathā to remain in a few places; and if a human places goes to such places, he will be sucked by; pulled down by Kali dēvathā; and Kali dēvathā means quarrel; fighting; shouting; drinking, all those things will come and therefore Krishna says, I am ध्यूतम् dhyūtam. In fact, in the entire Mahābhāratha; one important lesson is to be learned is; if we are not very careful, that gambling or such activities can suck us also down. And what is the example; Dharmaputra who was an embodiment of dharma, even that Dharmaputra got hooked to that and when Dharmaputra got hooked, he lost all the sense or propriety and he lost even his wife and brothers. Can any person think of keeping the wife and brothers as a stake there. Dharmaputra is an embodiment of dharma; he knows dharma śāstram; and even he lost his balance; if Dharmaputra can lose his balance; what to talk of we ordinary people, that is why, we were young, our parents never allowed us to touch the card; people say we play card only for fun; No money is involved; but our parents say; even for fun do not play cards; Why because there is a strong pull there; Krishna himself warns dhyūtam aham asmi; among the deceiving activities; pulling down activities, taking for a ride activities; addicting activities; I am the gambling principle; So dhyūtam; literally dhyūtam means dices; and here it means any form of gambling;

Then तेजस्तेजस्विनामहं tējas tējasvināmaham; I am the brilliance; the internal brilliance, the intelligence among all the intelligent or brilliant people. Perhaps we can define the brilliance as that by which a person resists the temptation for dhyūtam; gambling; because in all of them, first time saying No is much easier; whether it is alcohol; whether it is cigarette or whether it is drug or whether it is gambling; first time saying No is very easy; but if first time one succumbs; then the downslide is so powerful. That it will be very difficult to get out of that; and therefore I am that brilliant discrimination, which resists such a temptation.

Then जयोऽस्मि व्यवसायोऽस्मि सत्त्वं सत्त्ववतामहम् jayō:'smi vyavasāyō:'smi satvaṁ sattvavatāmaham. I am the satva guṇa in the sātvic people; So satvam; I am the satva guṇa which represents spiritual inclination; rajō guṇa represents materialistic inclination; Artakama inclination is caused by rajō guṇa; Dharma mōkṣa inclination is caused by satva guṇa; and tamō guṇa obstructs our inclination for both of them; tamō guṇa makes a person lazy; neither materialistic inclination, nor spiritual inclination; As I have often said, ഉണ്ടാൽ ഉറങ്ങണം; ഉറങ്ങിയാൽ ഉണ്ണണം; uṅṭāl- uraṅṅaṇaṁ; uraṅṅiyāl- uṅṅaṇaṁ. This is tāmasic; and the general advice of the scriptures is a tāmasic person should initially cultivate a materialistic desire and thereafter gradually refine the materialistic desires to spiritual desire; and that spiritual desire represented by satva guṇa; I am in all the sātvic people and once there is the spiritual inclination; it expresses in what form; vyavasāyaḥ. Vyavasāyaḥ means the effort required for the fulfilment of spiritual desire; just as effort is required for the fulfilment of materialistic desires; you should remember, equal or more effort is required for the fulfilment of spiritual desire. like doing pancha maha yajñā; all the noble activities for citta śuddhi; it requires effort; so here the word Vyavasāyaḥ means prayathna; perseverance; industry; effort; not Tamil vyavasayam; Tamil vyavasāyam means agriculture. So in Malayalam vyavasāyam means industry; that is closer of Sanskrit; in Sanskrit vyavasāya means industry; but industry as the character of the mind; we use the expression; he is an industrious person; that perseverance or effort is called vyavasāyaḥ;

And once there is vyavasāyaḥ or spiritual effort, what will it lead to; jayō:'smi; jayaḥ means victory; success; so that is why, look into the reverse order; satva guṇa to vyavasāyaḥ to jayaḥ; satva guṇa means spiritual inclination; vyavasāyaḥ means spiritual effort; jayaḥ means spiritual success or victory; all of them I am.

And from this what are to learn; if we get spiritual success, we should not become arrogant because of that; we should remember that is also because of the grace of the Lord only. One should not forget that; all the time remember, every step forward is because of the push of Īśvara anugraha; the pull of freewill should be backed by the push of Īśvara Anugraha; will and grace should go hand-in-hand.

vṛṣṇīnāṃ vāsudēvō'smi pāṇḍavānāṃ dhanañjayaḥ |

अस्मि वासुदेवः asmi vāsudevaḥ I am Sri Krishna (son of Vasudeva); वृष्णीनाम् vṛṣṇīnām among the Vršnis (clan of Kshatriyas); धनञ्जयः dhanañjayaḥ I am Arjuna (lit. a conqueror of riches) पाण्डवानाम् pāṇḍavānām among the pandavas अहं व्यासः ahaṃ vyāsaḥ I am Vyāsa मुनीनाम् munīnām among the sages अपि api and कविः उशना kaviḥ uśanā (I Am) sage Sukracharya कवीनाम् kavīnām among the seers.

37. I am Krishna among the Vršnis; I am Arjuna among the Pandavas; I am Vyāsaḥ among the sages and (I am) sage Sukracharya among the seers.

वृष्णीनाम् vṛṣṇīnām, among the descendants of vṛṣṇī vamśa, vṛṣṇī vamśa is Yadu vamśa, or the yadhava vamśa which Lord Krishna belonged. Therefore among the descendants of vṛṣṇī vamśa, who am I; Krishna says, I am myself; I am Vāsudevaḥ; Vāsudevaḥ means Vasudēvāśya puthra; Dēvaki putraḥ; I am Lord Krishna, and that is why one of the name of Krishna is Vārṣṇeya; we have seen that word elsewhere; Vārṣṇeyaḥ means vṛṣṇī vamśa samūdbhūtaḥ.

And why do we or Krishna himself claims that Krishna himself is the greatest among the Vṛṣṇīs; One reason is that Krishna himself is the avathara of the Lord himself; He is not a mortal jīva; He is Īśvara avathāra puruṣaḥ;

Then the next question comes; there are many avathāras; and why should we say Krishnavathāra is the most glorious among them; we can give several reasons but according to me, the primary reason for Glory of Krishna avathāra is, In Krishnavathāra alone Lord functions as Brahmavidya ācārya; a liberating preceptor; in all other avatharās, Lord destroyed asurās and disappeared; but in Krishna avathāra alone, वसुदेव सुतं देवं, कम्स चाणूर मर्धनम्, देवकि परमानन्दं, कृष्णं वन्दे जगत्गुरुम् । vasudēva sutam dēvam, kamsa cāṇūra mardhanam, dēvaki paramānandam, kṛṣṇam vandē jagatgurum. And that is why Krishna's teaching of the Bhagavat Gītā is considered as one of the three main text books of vēdanta śāstra; The vēdanta śāstra has got numerous text books; perhaps thousands or lakhs; among all the vēdanta śāstra granthās, three are considered to be pillars of vēdanta; they are called Prasthāna trayam; the foundation grantha; and what are they:

number one the upaniṣads, called the sṛuti prasthāna;
the second one is bhagavad Gītā called the smṛti prasthānam;
and the third one is brahma sutras, the nyāya prasthānam;

So thus sṛuti, smṛti and nyāya. Among these three-pillar-vēdantic texts, one of them is Bhagavad Gītā; and it is given out by Krishna and that is why even after millenia, Bhagavat Gītā in the 21st century also, it is alive and kicking and even now when we take Bhagavat Gītā classes, thank God, people are coming, indicating what; it is even now it is fresh and valid; it is not obsolete text book; but it is a valid teaching; and since Krishna is Gītācāryaḥ, he is the greatest one.

पाण्डवानां धनञ्जयः pāṇḍavānāṃ dhanañjayaḥ; among the pañcha pāndavās, Krishna is very smart; he does not want to get Arjuna's anger; as such he is having the bow and arrow! therefore the among the pāndavās, (he is flattering) I am the Arjuna himself; pāṇḍavānāṃ dhanañjayaḥ; and why is the Arjuna the greatest; and why can't He say dharmaputra; he is the eldest one as well as the embodiment of dharma; why should Arjuna be taken as the greatest one; very simple, if Gītā is the greatest śāstra; Arjuna being the first receiver of the Gītā śāstra; sarvōpaniṣadō gāvō dōgdhā gōpāla-nandanah; then pārthō vatsah; where it is coming, Gītā dhyāna slōkā; pārthō vatsah; Arjuna is the first one to get the Gītā śāstram; and we are only the second hand teaching, from the local gurus; but Arjuna got from the greatest teacher; Sākṣāt bhagavatā nārāyaṇēna svayam; where it comes; pārthāya pratibōdhitām bhagavatā nārāyaṇēna svayam; he was lucky enough to get the teaching straight from the horses mouth; straight from Krishna's mouth.

And why did Krishna choose Arjuna for giving this teaching; another big debate; why should Krishna choose Arjuna for giving the Gītā; several people give several reason; but the reason is very simple; Krishna gave Arjuna because Arjuna asked for it. Do not break your head; Dharmaputra never said śiṣyastē'haṃ śādhi mām tvām prapannam; Bhima never said; Arjuna asked, Krishna gave. So that Arjuna asked, makes him a great person; and therefore pāṇḍavānām dhanañjayaḥ; Krishna is great; Arjuna is great.

Now Vyāsa feels how can I leave out myself; therefore मुनीनाम् अहम् व्यासः munīnām ahaṃ vyāsaḥ; so among the ṛṣis; I am Vyāsācārya; and why do we Vyāsācārya is the greatest; the same reason alone; Krishna is the greatest avathāra because he is Brahma vidya ācāryaḥ; and Vyāsa is the greatest ṛṣi, because Vyāsa is also Brahma vidya ācāryaḥ; he is one of the brahma vidya ācāryaḥs in the tradition; and not only that; among the Prasthanatrayam, the same foundation granthas; one was the contribution of Krishna; another is the contribution of Vyāsa; because Brahma sutras, which is one of the foundation granthās; that brahma sutra is given by Vyāsa; and not only that, even in the compilation of the Gītā, Vyāsa has a role; Krishna taught Arjuna alight; but the compilation has been done by Vyāsācārya; therefore Mahābhāratham is written by whom; Vyāsa; so Bhagavat Gītā is part of Mahābhāratham and therefore the teaching is Krishna's but the presentation is Vyāsā's. So Vyāsā's contribution is for two prasthānam; In Gītā prasthānam also Vyāsa is there; Brahma sutra prasthānam also Vyāsa is there; that is why we have great reverence for Vyāsa; That is why in Avani Avittam also there is a special tarpaṇam called khānda ṛṣi tarpaṇam;... tān ṛṣigums tarpayāmi; I am expressing my gratitude to all the ṛṣis beginning with whom with any ṛṣi; Krishna dvaipayana; who is he, He is Vyāsa; we do not mention the name of any other ṛṣis; all other ṛṣis are included in etc. ādayaḥ; only one name is mentioned; and that is Vyāsā's.

सर्वाऋषिपत्निस्तर्पयामि । सर्वऋषिगणपत्निस्तर्पयामि ॥ १३.१ ॥

kṛṣṇadvaipāyanādayō yē ṛṣayastān ṛṣiṃgstarpayāmi | sarvān ṛṣiṃstapayāmi |
sarvaṛṣigaṇāṃstarpayāmi | sarvāṛṣipatnistarpayāmi | sarvaṛṣigaṇapatnistarpayāmi || 13.1 ||

And in the ṛṣi tarpaṇam, the first person is Vyāsa; 31.22 and therefore Krishna says among the Munis or ṛṣis I am Vyāsaḥ. And he got the name Vyāsa because he compiled and rearranged the vēdas also. So when he found that the people cannot remember all the vēdas; the entire vēdas people could not remember, he called four disciples and he asked each disciple to preserve a particular Vēda, So therefore this arrangement for vedic preservation is also done by Vyāsa; So vēdan vivvyāsa; vyās means to compile and rearrange; and what is his original name; not Vyāsa; Krishna dwaipāyana is the original name; and because of the compilation and arrangement of vēda; he got the name vēda Vyāsa; Then vēda Vyāsa got shortened to v. Vyāsa. OK. V means Vēda. Krishna dropped the initials.

कवीनामुशना कविः kavināmuśanā kaviḥ; among the great seers; those who can see all the three kālās, trikāla darśis, trikāla jñānis; I am Sukra kavi; uśanā means sukrācāryaḥ; the asura guru; sukrācāryaḥ is a great ṛṣi; and therefore Krishna says; I am; therefore the word Kavi does not mean a poet; the poet means krānta darśi; the one who can see the future that is going to come; the one who has got ESP. Extra Sensory Perception; not only he can see the future; he can see the past also; therefore krānta darśi; krānta means that which is beyond the range of our sense organs; beyond the limit; beyond the range; and one who can see that is Sukrācāryaḥ.

38. I am the rod of the punishers; I am diplomacy of those desirous of Victory. I am silence among secrets and I am the wisdom of the wise.

दण्डो दमयतामस्मि daṇḍō damayatāmasmi. Among the disciplinarians, among the causes of discipline or orderliness, I am daṇḍaḥ; daṇḍaḥ means the rod of punishment; because the discipline can be caused by several methods; one method is what; requesting; kindly follow the rule; request; another is educating; so that a person follows because of understanding; and the third method is what daṇḍa; the method of punishment, Krishna says generally people are immature; generally the people are gross and therefore education, good words, etc. do not work; generally what works is what: daṇḍaḥ; punishment; So sāma, dāna, bhēda, daṇḍa; among them, daṇḍa alone is the most powerful, which gives instantaneous result. And that is why parents also often the method of corporal punishment; corporal punishment; beating; In Schools also the teachers use this; Nowadays they have banned it; because they say it is highly damaging to the psyche of the child. Still many people are not happy banning it; because if you do not use punishment, you require lot of kṣāma; using good words to change, one needs lot a kshama; but one beating serves the purpose. Krishna says that I am the punishing rod, among the causes of discipline.

नीतिरस्मि जिगीषताम् nītirasmi jigīṣatām; among the causes of victory, or among the victors, among the victorious one, I am nītiḥ; nītiḥ means diplomacy; this is from the stand point of the rulers or kings; for the kings to be successful, in the statement, I am in the form of diplomacy, because that is responsible for success; I am nītiḥ.

Then मौनं चोवास्मि गुह्यानाम् maunaṃ caivāsmi guhyānām; among all the secrets, I am maunaṃ; maunaṃ is the greatest secret because the moment you reveal that secret; it is no more secret. So therefore I am maunaṃ; the word mounam represents Brahman also; Amātras chaturtaḥ avyavahāryaḥ; so in Vēdānta, silence has the meaning of Brahman, because in silence, there is nothing except consciousness. In silence what is there; we generally say; but silence is that state, in which nothing is there; which nothingness is witnessed by the consciousness and therefore in Māndukya upaniṣad; brahman is called silence; and therefore we can mounam as Brahman also; I am Brahman among the secrets; That is why it was called Rāja Vidhya Rāja Guhyam; Guhyam means secret;

Then ज्ञानं ज्ञानवतामहम् jñānaṃ jñānavatāmahaṃ; among the wise people or in the wise people, in the wise people, I am the wisdom; So therefore the glory of the wise people is because of the wisdom; and wisdom belongs to the Lord; Therefore when you do namaskāra to a jñāni; the namaskāra does not go to that jñāni; but it goes to the wisdom which makes a jñāni and that wisdom is what. Bhagavān says I am; therefore no genuine jñāni accepts the namaskāra for himself; So whenever anybody does namaskāra; he intelligently hands over the namaskāra to the Lord, because Lord is the wisdom.

na tadasti vinā yatsyānmayā bhūtaṃ carācaram | | 10.39 | |

अर्जुन arjuna Arjuna ! अहं तत् ahaṃ tat I am that यत् च अपि बीजम् yat ca api bījam which is the seed, सर्वभूतानाम् sarvabhūtānām of all beings अस्ति न तद् भूतम् asti na tad bhūtam there is no such being चराचरम् carācaram moving or stationary यत् स्यात् yat syāt which can exist विना मया vinā mayā without Me.

39. Oh Arjuna! I am that which is the seed of all beings. There is no such being, moving or stationary, which can exist without Me.

So Krishna concludes the enumeration of His glories; and Krishna says in fact, hey Arjuna, I am the very seed or material cause out of which the entire creation has emerged. So अहम् सर्वभूतानां बीजं अस्मि aham sarvabhūtānāṃ bījaṃ asmi; bījaṃ means upādāna kāraṇam; just as the clay is the material cause of all the earthen wares, just as gold is the material cause of all ornaments; just as wood is the material cause of all furniture; I am the material cause of the entire creation. And the material cause always expresses in the effect; in the form of the very existence; when you say an ornament is: the very Is_ness or existence does not belong to the ornament, the existence actually belongs to what: the gold alone; ornament is nothing but nāma and rūpa; it is an non-substantial entity; if you say nāma rūpa is: that Is_ness is borrowed from where; the gold; how do you prove that; remove the gold from the ornament; ornament loses its very existence. And therefore Krishna says I am the material cause who lend existence to every product in the creation; Therefore when you say wall is: Isness belongs to me; when you say: fan is: Is_ness belongs to me; In short, I am the Sat in the creation; what did he said in the starting; Aham ātma gudakēśa. There the word ātma means that I am the very consciousness in every being; in finishing he says: I am the very existence in every being; I am sat cit svarūpaḥ; obtaining in the entire creation.

And therefore maya vina, yat carācāram bhūtam syāt; tat nāsti; there is nothing in the creation; moving or stationary; which can exist without my blessings. Just as gold can say there is no ornament in the creation; no golden ornament in the creation; which can exist without my blessings; who can say; gold can say; Similarly, Bhagavan says: I am the material cause without which nothing in the creation, moving or non-moving can exist. And therefore if somebody asks, who is God; we say, Who "Is", is God; What does that mean; Is ness is the God; all others are nama rupa only. So yat carācāram bhūtam syāt maya vina asti; tat nā; there is nothing which can exist without me; Thus he started with chit, ended with sat; chit and sat are nirguṇa Īśvara vibhuthi; and all others are saguṇa Īśvara vibhūthiḥ; vibhūthiḥ means mahima.

ēṣa tūddēśataḥ prōktō vibhūtērvistarō mayā || 10.40 ||

परन्तप parantapa Oh Arjuna (vanquisher of foes) अस्ति न अन्तः asti na antaḥ

there is no limit मम दिव्यानां विभूतीनाम् mama divyānāṃ vibhūtinām to My divine glories तु tu however एषः विस्तरः eṣaḥ vistarāḥ this detail विभूतेः vibhūteḥ of glories प्रोक्तः मया proktaḥ mayā has been mentioned by Me

उद्देशतः uddeśataḥ (only) as an illustration.

40. Oh Arjuna! There is no limit to My divine glories. However, this detail of glories has been, mentioned by Me (only) as an illustration.

Here Krishna says Hey Arjuna I have stopped the enumeration of My glories, not because my glories have been exhausted. If I have to enumerate all the glories the list is inexhaustible; I can never complete the 10th chapter. Time is running out. And therefore, my intention is only to give a few sample glories; do not think that this is an exhaustive list; Therefore Krishna says: मम दिव्यानां विभूतीनाम् अन्तः न अस्ति mama divyānām vibhūtīnām antaḥ na asti; there is no end to my divine glory. It can be never be exhausted by Me; Hey Parantapa; Hey Arjuna;

Then why should Krishna enumerate, if there is no end, why should he enumerate; Krishna says: एष तूद्देशतः प्रोक्तः विभूतेर्विस्तरो मया ēṣa tūddēśataḥ prōktaḥ vibhūtērvistarō mayā; this enumeration of my glories is only as a sample; a random sample. When you go shopping, especially for eatables, the shopkeeper will just give a piece of it, to taste the quality of it; like that; just a random items; there are some people, who just eat everything and come out; they take sample of every time and come away; So I have given this ūddēśataḥ; a random sample, as an illustration; I have given this much enumeration;

Then how to extend this list; Krishna tells: I will tell you the method of extending the list; therefore you can yourselves do as a home work; of course the 10th chapter must be continued at home by you yourselves. How to do that; He is going to say that:

यद् यत् सत्त्वम् yad yat satvam whatever being (is there), विभूतिमत् vibhūtimat which is glorious श्रीमत् śrīmat rich एव व ऊर्जितम् eva va ūrjitam or powerful त्वम् अवगच्छ tvam avagaccha may you recognise तत् तद् एव tat tad eva that मम तेजोऽशसम्भवम् mama tejo:śasambhavam to be born out of a person of My splendour.

41. Whatever being (is there which is) glorious, rich or powerful – may you recognise that to be born out of a person of My splendour.

Krishna says you can make your own list; what is that; So when you are confronting various things and beings in the creation; if you see anything that is wonderful; which makes you wonderstruck, any such glorious living being or inert thing. They talk about the wonders of the universe; 7 wonders; 8 wonders; they enumerate; anything natural or artificial; Anything that you see; vibhūtimat, glorious, which makes your mouth open; which makes you awestruck; whatever it is, it may be the minutest insect or the greatest mountain; यद् यत् yad yat or श्रीमत् śrīmat; whichever is rich or abundant; whichever is full of riches or abundance; śrīmat; or ऊर्जितम् ūrjitam; abundance means what most valuable or invaluable diamond, they discover and they keep somewhere and they say it costs millions of dollars; śrīmat;

So anything rich or ūrjitam; anything powerful; like the energy of the Sun, which has been giving energy for us, imagine you have to light up the entire earth for 12 hours with some electric power; day-night matches; how much money they have to spend; the Sun has been doing that; how long; and it is the reservoir of energy; Therefore you take the Sun, you take the stars; you take the lightening; you take a water fall; which are all powerful; anything and you can add anything beautiful; attractive; all of them when you see, remember me; That is the indication of a religious person; a religious person whenever he sees an extraordinary thing; he does namaskaram to that; and even if he discovers some such thing; he never keeps it; in the olden days, he hands over to the temple; I do not deserve to possess that; anything extraordinary it is given to the temple; because we see the Lord in that. Therefore Krishna says; तत् तद् अवगच्छ tat tad avagaccha; may you understand that; that extraordinary powerful rich thing or being is only an infinitesimal glory of mine. Not my total glory; the highest glorious thing is only a wee bit of My glory. My तेजोऽशसम्भवम् tejo:'śasambhavam; tējaḥ here means mahima; amśa means a part; a speck of my vibhūtiḥ; and that is why we worship nature.

विष्टभ्याहमिदं कृत्स्नम् एकांशेन स्थितो जगत् ॥ १०.४२ ॥

athavā bahunaitēna kiṃ jñātēna tavārjuna |

viṣṭabhyāhamidaṃ kṛtsnamēkāmśēna sthitō jagat || 10.42 ||

अथवा athavā Or किं तव kiṃ tava what use do you have ज्ञातेन jñātena by knowing बहुना एतेन bahunā etena all these? अर्जुन arjuna Oh Arjuna अहं अस्थितः ahaṃ asthitaḥ I remain विष्टभ्य viṣṭabhya supporting इदं कृत्स्नं जगत् idaṃ kṛtsnaṃ jagat this entire Universe एकांशेन ekāmśena without a portion (of Mine).

42. Or, What use do you have by knowing all these? Oh Arjuna! I remain supporting this entire Universe with a portion (of Me).

So here Krishna says, Hey Arjuna, you can look at the whole thing in a different perspective also. So previously to give an example; Suppose I say water is present in every wave; water is present in every bubble; water is present in every drop; this is one way of looking at the water. Or there is another way; Hey Arjuna, it is not that I the water or the water is in bubble or wave; really speaking, all bubbles; all waves are in water; Therefore, instead of saying I am in the creation; I would like to reverse it and say; The whole creation is in Me.

Therefore He says: अथवा athavā; otherwise to put in a different form; bahunaitēna jñātēna kiṃ; what is the use of this elaborate enumeration; I am in mountain; I am in intelligent people, I am in Gaṅgā; Yamuna; वायं त्रानं वलिकुम्; instead of saying I am in everything, I would like to say everything is in Me. So अहं इदं कृत्स्नं जगत् विष्टभ्य अस्थितः ahaṃ idaṃ kṛtsnaṃ jagat viṣṭabhya asthitaḥ; in fact I remain supporting the entire creation; or the entire creation is in me. Space is not within this Hall; that is not the correct statement; all the Halls are in space. Similarly Bhagavān is not in the living beings; but all living beings are in Bhagavān; and that too they do not occupy the whole Bhagavān; I am only sustaining them; in one corner of Me; एकांशेन ekāmśena; So the whole cosmos is only occupying a part of Me; so how big I am; so the whole cosmos is like a bubble in Me; the ocean; So with this Krishna concludes the description of His glories.

Om

Today I will give you a summary of the 10th chapter of the Gītā. The 10th chapter of the Gītā by its position is occurring in the madhyama ṣatkam of the Gītā. If you remember, the first six chapters of the Gītā are called prathama ṣatkam, the first section consisting of six chapters. Then from the seventh to the twelfth chapter, we call madhyama ṣatkam, the middle section, and the last six chapters together called charama ṣatkam or the final section. And I had told you in the prathama ṣatkam, the nature of the jeeva, the individual is highlighted; in the madhyama ṣatkam, that is the middle section, the nature of God or Īśvara is highlighted, and in the charama ṣatkam, the essential oneness of jīva and Īśvara; jīva Īśvara swarupa aikyam is predominantly discussed; I had said; which means in the madhya ṣatkam, Lord Krishna is concentrating on Īśvara svarūpam, so that we will have a clear knowledge regarding the nature of God; and Lord Krishna started this topic from the very seventh chapter itself and he has been gradually developing it, and the culmination will come in the 12th chapter of the Gītā. And in all the scriptures, the general definition given to God is Īśvaraḥ jagat kāraṇam, the Lord is the creator of the world; The Lord is the maker of the World. In Sanskrit, we use the expression Kartā; Kartā means the creator. That is why in Christianity also, the Lord is addressed kartāve, (they add a ve) Kartā means the creator.

When we learn that God is the maker or creator of this universe, naturally we conceive of the Lord in our own way. So we get the first concept of God based on this definition; what definition; God is the maker or the creator. And when I know God as the creator, what will be my concept of God; How will I conceive. The first problem that we find here generally whenever we see a product; any created product, we do not see the creator anywhere around. This is the first problem that we face; the created product is visible; and I am not able to see the creator. I know this mike has a maker; but I am not seeing the maker around; I know the desk has a creator; but I do not see the creator around; I know this hall has a creator; but I do not see the creator around; therefore generally creator is not perceived ; the creator is inferred; Creator is not perceived but creator is inferred. Therefore Īśvara in my concept is anumitha svarūpaḥ; anumitha svarūpaḥ means what; the Lord is not perceived by me, but Lord is inferred by me; and since the Lord is not perceived but inferred, the Īśvara that I conceive of is parōkṣa Īśvaraḥ; not parōkṣa Īśvaraḥ not; Prathyakṣa Īśvaraḥ. First I think that there is one Īśvaran; and that Īśvaran is not seen anywhere near; and he is somewhere; he is there. So therefore concept No.1: He is inferred; concept No.2 He is remote; not anywhere around; and since Īśvara is the creator; only inferred; and not seen around, the nature of God I do not know. Therefore I have to only imagine. So what will be the nature of the creator of this mike; Since I do not see the creator of mike, I have to only visualise imagine; Therefore the creator has what nature; kalpitha rūpam; kalpitham means imagine; I know this hall has a creator; but how he looks like I can only imagine. I know what all of you have great grandfathers. No doubt about it; but how your great-grandfather looks like, I have to only imagine; often; not only I have to imagine, even you have to imagine. Therefore Īśvara has got a nature, which is imagined by me; so Īśvaraḥ is anumitha; Īśvaraḥ is parōkṣa; and Īśvara is kalpitha rūpaḥ; of an imagined form; if I have to imagine the form of Īśvara; What will be my imagination; suppose I have to imagine, the creator of this desk; I know he is a sentient living being; the creator of the desk is certainly a sentient living being and I know that any animal does not have sufficient intelligence to conceive and create the desk; and therefore I imagine the creator of the desk as only a human being, because in my experience, human beings alone have sufficient intelligence to conceive and create a product. And therefore when I visualise or imagine a God; what type of form I will imagine. Certainly a human form; Is it perceived form or imagined form? It is certainly an imagined form; because I do not see the creator around; and therefore I have an idea of God, as what?; a very very intelligent human like being.

And since I know the intelligence of the creator God must be much much much higher, because an ordinary human being can create only ordinary things, since God has created the whole universe, his intelligence must be much much much greater; therefore in my imagination, how to put the extra intelligence. You may add a few more heads; the only thing you can head; because one head has got one head of intelligence; Bhagavān must have several units; And therefore, draw heads all over; 100 heads this side; and 100 heads that side; because Omniscience.

Similarly you want to imagine Lord as a powerful one, because He has not created an ordinary desk; ordinary mike or fan or hall; but the entire cosmos; therefore the power must be infinite; and how do you imagine infinite power; add a few more hands; hands in multiples of 2; 12, 20, or hundreds. So when I say Lord as the creator of the world, I only imagine a personal intelligent God who is very very similar to a human being; but I still do not know the details; whether the Lord is black or white; (there are so many colours) yellow like Chinese; black like negro; white like, the westerners; or the middle ones, like us; What is the complexion of God, whether the Lord is male or female; that is also a problem; all I have to imagine; it is a very very confused concept of God; and to get some help I look to the scriptures, the confusion only increases because, instead of one form the scriptures give, many forms; Rāma form, Śiva form, Viṣṇu form, Krishna form, etc. So still my confusion is OK; there is a God, an inferred God, an omniscient, Omnipotent God, not anywhere around God; and that God must have some form like a human being; which form is the form of God; because there are so many Gods; mentioned in the scriptures; should I conclude that there are many Gods; the scriptures say that there is only one God; Thank God, or else the fight will erupt between themselves (Gods)!.

Once I know that the creator God is only one, naturally the question will come, which one of the forms is the form of God; I cannot say all of them; because some description is that God is fair; in some description God is black; Krishna is described as Mega śyāmalaḥ; So black; black means Bhagavān a Negro; we do not know; so the description also; what varṇa I can take; what akhāra I can take; then you have to assume that only one form is the real form; the all other forms are only vēṣam; like cinema actors, he has got one form of his own; all other forms are vēṣam.

Now the problem is: if Bhagavān has got only one form and all other forms are only temporary vēṣam; What will be question?; which one is the real one, which are the vēṣams; if you ask a vaiṣṇavite; he will say, Viṣṇu is original; Śiva is vēṣa; You call a Śiva bhaktha; he will say Śiva form is original, Viṣṇu form is the vēṣam. If you ask Dēvi Bhaktha he will say; the other two are not; and only dēvi form is the real, the others are all vēṣams.

Now my problem is what; what exactly is the form of God; because all of them are my imagination, because I do not see the Lord around; And the scriptures point out that Lord darśanam ; Īśvara darśanam alone gives you liberation; therefore I have now to work for Īśvara darśanam ; Now I have a serious anxiety. When will I see Lord Śiva; when will I see Lord Viṣṇu; whether he will come or not. And if you read puranas they declare that some of the devotees had Rāma darśanam; Thyāgarāja had seen Rāma; Meera had seen Krishna.

Now the question is will I ever see the Lord; and if I do not see the Lord, will I get liberation; all these are various ideas hovering around in my mind; I only this much, that there is God, but all other details are only vague; full of vagueness. Whether he will be like this or like that; whether he will come or not; whether if he comes he will go or not. Because we are equally interested in his going back also; because limited accommodation; What to do with a small house; so Krishna wants to transform our concept of God; It is very good to know God as the creator; but if you have to progress further in your sādhanā; you have to understand further regarding the nature of God; at present; God is inferred for you; God is remote; parōkṣam for you; and God is kalpitha rūpa of imagined form.

And how to transfer this concept; that alone is Krishna trying in the madhyama śatkam, the Gītā; and Krishna says, if you understand God as only the creator of the world, your understanding is incomplete. If you know God as only the creator of the world, your understanding is incomplete, and as long as you have this incomplete understanding; you will always have confused ideas, vague ideas regarding God, and your sādhanās also will not be crystallised, it will be groping in darkness. And therefore your understanding has to be enhanced.

And how should we enhance? Krishna says, when you say God is the creator of the world; ask another question, what is the material out of which God created this world. As long as you do not ask this question, you will have confused understanding; when I say carpenter created the desk; I know the wood is the material; when I say goldsmith created ornament; I know gold is the raw material; when I say God, who was only one God; without a second thing; this is very important; एकम् एव अद्वितीयम् ēkam ēva advitīyam; அவர் மட்டும் இருந்தார். He was only there; so when God alone is there to create the world; what is the material out of which God created. Unless you ask this question and find out the answer, your concept of God will be immature; and vulnerable to logical attack;

And Krishna says when you ask the question what is the material out of which God made, the answer is what; God has to find the material also in himself; because there is no other second material. God is not only the creator, God is also the material part and therefore God has two aspects; one is the chetana aspect and the other is the achetana aspect. The intelligence principle also must be God; the raw material principle also must be God alone; thus God becomes a mixture of cētana acētana tatvam; which we saw in the seventh chapter as parā aparā prakṛti. He is matter and spirit put together - is God; This is a very important breakthrough in the vēdic teaching.

Once I know that Lord is the material out of which the creation has come, then we have to get some important corollaries; What is that?

Once I know the material cause of the product, I know the material cause is never away from the product. Material cause is never away from the product; Just as Gold is never away from ornaments; wood is never away from furniture; clay is never away from pots; kāraṇam can never be away from Kāryam. So the material cause is a perceived object or an inferred object. I have got the desk; And what is the material cause, wood; whether wood I have to infer or I should perceive it; Remember, the material cause need not be inferred; material cause is very much perceived in the product. Therefore Īśvara is never an inferred object; a remote object; Īśvara is a perceived object; Īśvara is never remote. Therefore Īśvara is parōkṣam or pratyakṣam? My concept has very much, drastically changed; Īśvara is pratyakṣa siddhaḥ; keeping the ornaments should you ask when you will get the gold darśanam; What will one say; You will say: foolishness it is to question thus. Keeping the furniture, wood darśanam when I will get if I question, what will other say: they will say மர மண்டை; Mara Mandai (that is wood headed!); Keeping pot, if you are looking for the clay darśanam; what will one say: Our answer is never work for clay darśanam ; never work for wood darśanam; wood or clay or gold are all prathyakasa siddha. Therefore Īśvaraḥ pratyakṣa. So when you say Īśvara is creator; Īśvara become parōkṣa; but when you say Īśvara is the very material out of which the creation has come; Īśvara becomes pratyakṣam.

Then the next question is what is the form of Īśvaraḥ. If you ask, what is the form of gold, what will be the answer. All the ornamental forms, bangle form, chain form, ring form, all the ornamental visible forms are forms belonging to the gold alone.

Therefore the bangle form of gold is an imagined form or perceived form. Bangle form of gold is perceived form or imagined form. It is a perceived form.

And therefore Krishna says, all the forms of the products you get here, they are all the forms of God only, which you need not imagine, which are all the time available; therefore, Īśvara does not have a kalpitha rūpam; Īśvara has got a pratyakṣa rūpam and what should I do; what tapas should I do; to have Īśvara darśanam; for how many does I have to do nāma japam; how many days tapas should I do?

Krishna says the idea of striving for Īśvara darśanam is because of incomplete knowledge of Īśvara. The very anxiety for Īśvara Darśanam is born out of the incomplete understanding of Īśvara and what is incomplete understanding; that you should understand completely; in Īśvara is the creator, is incomplete understanding; what is the complete understanding; Īśvara is not only the creator; Īśvara happens to be the very material cause also; and once I have the complete understanding I come to the conclusion that I need not be anxious for Īśvara darśanam; because I am all the time having Īśvara darśanam only. When I am seeing bangle, I am having gold darśanam; ring, gold darśanam; chain, gold darśanam; sarvatra gold darśanam only. And if at all I should be anxious; my anxiety should be what; Oh Lord: let me not forget the fact that the entire creation is your manifestation only. This information should not be forgotten மறக்கபடாது maṛakkapaṭātu; that should be the only prayer; In Tamil do you use the word maṛakkapaṭātu (to forget, OK). So my only anxiety must be Oh Lord: I should not forget the fact that whatever I am seeing is your form only; and this darśanam of Īśvara is called viṣvarūpa Īśvara darśanam; anēka rūpa Īśvara darśanam. And once I have this Īśvara darśanam; whatever glories I see in the creation, they all will remind me of the glories of Īśvara only. So thus, for a viṣva rūpa bhakthaḥ; sarvathra Īśvara vibhūthi darśanam eva bhavathi. So for a viṣva rūpa bhakthaḥ, there is the appreciation of Īśvara's glory in everything; he does not require a miraculous event. Now we are looking for miracles to take place. Somebody must be miraculously cured of some disease and then alone we will appreciate Īśvara Vibhūthi.

Krishna says: you do not require miracles to appreciate Īśvara vibhūthi; every event in creation is the glory of Īśvara; that I am able to open my mouth and talk is Īśvara vibhūthi; and that you are able to hear is Īśvara vibhūthi; transformation of the world; transformation of the perspective of the world; and what is the transformation. Instead of looking the world as a world; I should learn to look at the world as the manifestation of Īśvara. Just as I do not forget the goldness when I am appreciating different ornaments; I appreciate the beauty of the ornaments; but in the back of my mind, gold, gold, gold (would I forget that, I never forget that). Similarly I should not forget this fact.

This transformation Krishna wants to bring. Right from the 7th chapter onwards and in the Vibhūthi yōga also, the same idea is continued; and in the first eleven verses; Krishna gives the introduction to this idea; this definition of God; and what is the definition, as I said, do not say, God is creator and stop; Say that God is the creator and also the material out of which the creation has come; and I give you an example, Not that I give you, the upaniṣad gives you, which I reminded; what is the upaniṣadic example: यथोर्णनाभिः सृजते गृह्णते च yathōrṇanābhiḥ sṛjatē grḥṇatē ca; just as a spider is the intelligent cause of the web; and the spider finds the raw material also; in itself, Similarly Īśvara is both the parā prakṛti, the intelligent cause and the aparā prakṛti, the material cause and in Sanskrit we use the technical word, अभिन्न निमित्त उपादान कारणम् abhinna nimitta upādāna kāraṇam; and Krishna said, not only the external world is my manifestation; maharṣayaḥ sapta pūrvē catvārō manavastathā.

Not only the external world is my manifestation; also the internal world of thoughts are my manifestation only; Just as during the dream my own mind manifests as the cāra acāra svapna prapañcā; what is the mountain; my own mind is the mountain; that means I am the mountain; My mind means what; the mountain in dream; and if somebody is climbing the mountain, I am the climber also, and while climbing the mountain, I am the drinker also; I am the water also; Just as I myself manifest as everything in the dream world; similarly the Lord himself is both bāhya and ānthara prapancha.

And Krishna said those who appreciate this fact is a virāt bhakthāḥ or a viśvarūpa bhakthāḥ and viśvarūpa bhakthāḥ, God is not in the temple alone; He sees the Lord everywhere.

So when the virāt bhaktha looks at any head, he looks at the head of everyone as the head of the Lord only. All heads are Lord's heads; all hands are Lord's hands; so sahasṛa śīṛṣā puruṣa; So sahasṛa śīṛṣā puruṣa means what: Do not imagine that there is a Viṣṇu standing there with many heads; sahasṛa śīṛṣā puruṣa; all the heads that I see belong to the Lord; all the hands belong to the Lord; all the legs belong to the Lord; and therefore anyone I see, my method of greeting is what: not hi, high; that is not the method of greeting; not shaking the hand; you do all those things for modern days; but our traditional method of greeting is: namaha te; Your superficial form is different from mine, but behind your form is Īśvara; behind my form is Īśvara; forms are many, Īśvara is one. Therefore I say Namaskāram to everyone whatever be the character of the person; how is he, what is his character, I do not know; but still whatever be the form, I know that the one behind is Īśvaraḥ; Therefore मच्चित्ता मदगतप्राणाः maccittā madgataprāṇāḥ; whatever they see, they see as a God; and most importantly, whatever experiences come in their life, they never resist; whatever comes, comes from the Lord only; mattaha sarvam pravartathe; painful experiences God's gift; pleasurable experiences, God's gift; all are God's gift only; iti matvā bhajantē māṃ budhā bhāvasamanvitāḥ.

कथयन्तश्च मां नित्यं तुष्यन्ति च रमन्ति च ॥ १०.९ ॥
maccittā madgataprāṇā bōdhayantaḥ parasparam |
kathayantaśca māṃ nityaṃ tuṣyanti ca rRāmanti ca || 10.9 ||

Thus in the introduction Krishna talked about the virāt svarupam and the virāt bhakthi; and then Krishna also said those people who remain in the viśvarūpa bhakthi after sometime, they will transcend the viśva rūpam also and ultimately come to Nirguṇa or arūpa Īśvaraḥ; So the one who has transcended from ēkarūpa, the one who has come to an ēkarūpa, sooner or later, he will come to arūpa Īśvara; which is beyond all forms;

And why should we come to arūpa Īśvara; why can't we stop at anēka rūpa Īśvara; anēka rūpa Īśvara is incomplete because; wherever forms are there, there, time and space also come. Therefore viśva rūpa Īśvara is also within time, space and modification; and therefore Krishna says: I will take you beyond name and form and

I will take you to Arūpa Īśvara; which is beyond dēśa kāla; which is called sat cid ānanda svarūpam.

ददामि बुद्धियोगं तं येन मामुपयान्ति ते ॥ १०.१० ॥
tēṣāṃ satatayuktānāṃ bhajatām prītipūrvakam |
dadāmi buddhiyōgam taṃ yēna māmupayānti tē || 10.10 ||

I will give them arūpa Īśvara jnanam. So thus Krishna introduces virāt Īśvara; virāt bhakthi and also the virāt bhakthi phalam; Thereafter from verse No.12 to 18, Arjuna presents a request to Lord Krishna; because Arjuna feels that he is not yet ready for arūpa Īśvaraḥ; because from Ēka rūpa Īśvara we can never directly go to the Arūpa Īśvara; it is such a big jump.

So between ēka rūpa Īśvara and ēka rūpa Īśvara means God as a person; between ēka rūpa Īśvara and arūpa Īśvara; we all require an intermediary stage; what is that stage; anēka rūpa Īśvara; we have to learn to appreciate. I have to learn to see the creation as God. And only when I see creation as God; rāgaḥ and dveṣaḥ will become feebler, weaker and weaker; Otherwise there will be strong rāgaḥ dveṣaḥ; and with strong rāgaḥ dveṣaḥ; one can never come to nirguna Īśvara; And therefore how to neutralise rāgaḥ dveṣaḥ; everything is the manifestation of the Lord; how can I be attached to something; And how can I be averse to something; how can I reject something; Nothing is rejectible in the creation; nothing I hate; hatred as an internal emotion; It does not mean that if there is a cobra, you should take the cobra in hand; you can keep safe distance; But mentally I accept that also as an integral part of the creation; So mentally I do not reject anything or hate anything.

So thus rāgaḥ dveṣaḥ nivrithyartham; from ēka rūpa, we have to go to anēka rūpa, therefore Arjuna requests Lord Krishna; Hey Krishna; please give me some more details regarding viśva rūpa Īśvara or anēka rūpa Īśvara; and also his glories that we find; directly perceived or enumerated in the scriptures; and therefore from verse No.12 to 18; we get Arjuna's request for viśvarūpa Īśvara varṇanam; and the viśva rūpa Īśvara vibhūthi varṇanam; vibhūthi means what; the glory;

And why should Arjuna asks for the glories of viśvarūpa Īśvara; Arjuna himself gives the logic also; I cannot visualise the viśva rūpa with my mind because the viśva rūpa Īśvara is too vast for me to conceive of. I have got a limited mind and sense organs; that if I see in this direction, I cannot see what is here. So with this limited sense organs, I can I meditate upon the viśva rūpa, the totality. If I have to worship mother India; where will I put flowers; because it is a such a vast country; So what is the best method; when it is too big; you invent a symbol; like a flag; a bharatha māta dēvi picture; And in that form you invoke the entire country and salute. Similarly Arjuna wants to take any particular object in the creation as a symbol; symbol means alambanaṁ; just as we take a piece of saligrāma to invoke Lord Viṣṇu; a small flame to invoke dēvi; a lump of turmeric to invoke Ganapathy, Arjuna wants to invoke few alambanaṁs symbols to invoke. And therefore he says:

yābhīrvibhūtibhīrlōkānīmāṁstvāṁ vyāpya tiṣṭhasi || 10.16 ||

कथं विद्यामहं योगिन् त्वां सदा परिचिन्तयन् ।
केषु केषु च भावेषु चिन्त्योऽसि भगवन्मया ॥ १०.१७ ॥
katham vidyāmaham yōginstvāṁ sadā paricintayan |
keṣu keṣu ca bhāvēṣu cintyō'si Bhagavānmayā || 10.17 ||

So Krishna says any glorious thing in the creation is My glory; our earth itself is surviving because of Sun; Sun can be taken as a symbol for worship and that is we have done also; daily morning we invoke the Lord in the Surya. But if Sun is not there; what to do; light a lamp; fire is very important for my survival; and therefore flame, agni becomes a symbol; vāyu becomes a symbol; bhūmi becomes a symbol. And why, you take your own body, any organ is a glory of Lord; we can never create any organ; to maintain itself we are struggling with great difficulty; eye is a glory; so in the Upaniṣads; Indohavi nāmaiṣaḥ yoyam dakṣiṇāṣam puruṣaḥ; meditate upon your eye as Īśvara; in which culture you can see that; meditation upon your very eye as God; because the glory of the eye; The more you think, the more wonderful it is; Thus Krishna enumerates a set of vibhūthis; some of the found in the scriptures, some of them found in the creation; I do not want to go into the details again; we have seen that in the class.

But in the beginning and end Krishna mentions two important ones and what are they; in the beginning says: the very consciousness or the very life principle because of which your material body is a sentient one; not like one of the statues of Marina; there are many statues in Marina; but it cannot do anything; crow will be sitting on top of Gandhiji and dropping; Gandhiji has a stick; and can he not drive the crow away with that stick; he cannot do that; So what makes the difference between that statue and this body; both are made of chemicals; that is also chemical; this is also chemical; but this chemistry is called bio-chemistry; because of the unique invisible feature called caitanyam; Krishna says that caitanyam is the greatest glory of mine;

And then at the end Krishna says; not only consciousness is my glory; in fact the very existence of the world really does not belong to the world, it is lent by Me. Like what; the very existence of the ornament does not belong to the ornament; it belongs to what: gold; How do you prove; remove the gold and try to keep the ornament. So when you say ornament is the very existence comes from gold; when you say desk is: the existence comes from the wood; when you say world is: the existence come from the basic stuff of the creation called Īśvara. Thus starting with the chit, Krishna concludes with sat; all are my glories; but the problem is Cit and Sat are nirguṇa svarūpam;

Therefore meditating upon nirguṇa cit is difficult; meditation on nirguṇa sat is difficult and therefore you can take any saṅguṇa svarūpam. So you can take a river and worship; you can take a cow and worship; You can take anything and worship as God.

And then in conclusion Krishna says Hey Arjuna, until now I said I am in the creation; in the form of various glories; really speaking, I am not in the creation; but the creation is in Me; gold is not in the ornaments; gold is not in the ornaments; all the ornaments are nāma rūpas, resting on gold; All the ornaments are names and forms, resting on one gold. Similarly God is in the creation; on the other hand, creation is a bunch of names and forms; bunch of names and forms resting on the fundamental cause, that is Me. And if you are not satisfied with these glories; Krishna says you can add your own; And he gives a clue; how to add to the list;

tattadēvāvagaccha tvaṃ mRāma tējōṃśasambhavam || 10.41 ||

Anything wonderful you see; that is the glory of the Lord; anything powerful you see, it is the glory of the Lord; the atom energy; which was not discovered before. Now that atom is what: again the glory of the Lord; and Krishna says these glories can never be exhaustively mentioned because it is inexhaustible; because from the ant onwards, everything has got its own glories; birds have its own glories; They say aero dynamics of the bird is never repeatable by any aero plane; even though aero plane is designed based on the bird; பறவையை கண்டான்; விமானம் படைத்தான்; paṛavayai kaṇṭāṇ; vimāṇam paṭaittāṇ (you must be remembering, it is only a cinema song, not Gītā, whether you remember it or not). paṛavayai kaṇṭāṇ; vimāṇam paṭaittāṇ. Even though we are trying to imitate a bird, they say we are not able to; the aerodynamics of the bird is Similarly the spiders' web; they are trying to imitate; they have never been able to. Therefore you can take a web and meditate; instead of getting angry with spider; so one bhaktha beautifully says:

सुर-तरुवर-शाखा लेखनी पत्रमुर्वी .
लिखति यदि गृहीत्वा शारदा सर्वकालं तदपि तव गुणानामीश पारं न याति .. ३२..
asita-giri-samaṁ syāt kajjalaṁ sindhu-pātrē
sura-taruvara-śākhā lēkhanī patramurvī .
likhati yadi gṛhītvā śāradā sarvakālaṁ tadapi tava guṇānāmīśa pāraṁ na yāti .. 32..

So one Bhaktha ~ (श्री पुष्पदन्त विरचितं शिवमहिम्नः स्तोत्रं Śrī Puṣpadanta viracitaṁ śivamahimnaḥ stōtraṁ) ~ beautifully writes; he says: Suppose Sarasvati dēvi herself plans to write all the glories of the Lord; Sarasvati; We are only half baked in knowledge; but Sarasvati is the goddess is the learning; Sarasvati plans and what did she do; she took a pen; and one pen is not enough; Therefore she had hundreds of pens made out of all the heavenly trees; she thought that on earth no deforestation need not be made; she took all the heavenly trees; she took; sura varu taru śāka lēkhanī; millions of pens she kept;

And what is the letter pad; local letter pad not enough; Ūrvi; she took the entire surface of the earth as the letterpad;

And then she wanted ink; in those days, one has to dip in the ink and write; the entire ocean was emptied; and in the place of water, ink was kept;

And what is the weight of the ink; the weight of the Himalayās; asita-giri-samaṁ syāt; Himalayā mountain;

asita-giri-samaṁ syāt kajjalam sindhu-pātrē

and Sarasvati started writing the glories of the Lord; when she started; some time back and continuously writing without going to sleep; without eating; likhati yadi gṛhītvā śāradā sarvakālam; even if Sarasvati dēvi keeps on writing all the time; this bhaktha says; tadapi tava guṇānāmīśa pāram na yāti; still Sarasvati will not be able to exhaust your glories.

And therefore Krishna tells; Hey Arjuna, I cannot exhaust; the time is up and the tenth chapter will never end; and therefore I have given you sample; the rest you can build up.

And having said that I am in the world in the beginning, Krishna concluded saying I am not in the world, whereas the world is in Me; and this last verse becomes the seed for viśva rūpa darśana yōgaḥ; So when we say God is in the world; it is called Vibhūthi yōgaḥ; when you say that world is in God; that is called visvarūpa darśana yōgaḥ; both we must be able to appreciate. See the water in waves; that is also an appreciation. See all the waves in the water; that is also another form of appreciation. And since the glories of the Lord have been talked about in this chapter, this chapter gets the title Vibhūthi yōgaḥ, this chapter dealing Īśvara's mahima.

THE YOGA OF THE VISION OF THE COSMIC FORM

Having completed the 10th chapter, titled Vibhūthi yōgaḥ, now we are entering the 11th chapter, which is called viśvarūpa darśana yōgaḥ; and the word yōgaḥ coming at the end of every chapter refers to the topic or episode. When we have got a serial in the TV, they have got episode 1, episode 2, etc. Similarly, in the Gītā also, each chapter refers to a topic.

So viśvarūpa darśana yōgaḥ; which means the episode which deals with viśvarūpa darśanam. Viśvarūpa darśanam means the vision of the Lord as viśvarūpa. Viśvarūpa Īśvara darśanam; Viśvarūpa darśanam, and viśva rūpam is the name of the Lord. Thus viśvarūpa darśanam yōgaḥ; the vision of the Lord as viśvarūpa. What do you mean by the word viśvarūpa. Rūpam means a form and Viśva means the universe or form; viśvarūpa means viśva ēva rūpam akhāraḥ yasya; viśvarūpa, the Lord whose very form, is the universe itself. The Lord whose form is nothing but the very universe itself.

So the question is how can one can the darśanam of the Lord in the form of the world; Jagat rūpanē īśvarasya darśanam kathaṁ sambhavathi; how can we have the darśanam of the Lord in the form of the world itself. When a devotee wants to have the darśanam of the Lord, in Rāma form, or Dēvi form, or in Krishna form, what should he do; the scriptures talk about the sādhanās for getting Rāma darśanam; Krishna darśanam; Dēvi darśanam; Lakshmi darśanam; the scriptures talk about that. Such a darśanam of the deity is called Dēvathā sāḅṣātkārah; the direct vision of the Lord, as Rāma, as Krishna or as Dēvi. And to have a such a darśanam; Rāma darśanam, Krishna darśanam, the Ganapati darśanam; etc. the scriptures talk about the sādhanā in the form of tapas. In the purāṇās, we hear the devotees performing tapas; tapas is nothing but concentration or meditation. And what the devotee should do is, he should first decide which darśanam he wants; he has to decide which form. And if it is a particular form, then he has to concentrate on that particular form, as described in the respective dhyāna slōkā; and that is how the dhyāna slōkā becomes very very important; he has to learn that dhyāna slōkā and he has to concentrate on that particular description.

श्रीवत्साङ्कं कौस्तुभोद्भासिताङ्गम् ।
पुण्योपेतं पुण्डरीकायताक्षं विष्णुं वन्दे सर्वलोकैकनाथम् ॥ ४ ॥ mēghaśyāmaṁ pītakausēyavāsaṁ śrīvatsāṅkaṁ kaustubhōdbhāsitāṅgam | puṇyōpētaṁ puṇḍarīkāyatākṣaṁ
viṣṇuṁ vandē sarvalōkaikanātham || 4 ||

He has to visualise that particular form and generally a mantra is also taught, just as narada taught mantra to Dṛuva, Pṛahlāda etc. and the devotee has to the Purascaraṇam of that mantra; Purascaraṇam means what akṣara lakṣam or akṣara koti; what do you mean by akṣara lakṣam; you find out how many letters are there in that mantra; if there are six letters, you multiply it with as many lakhs; if it is aṣṭākṣara; 8 lakhs; or to be more effective, 8 crores; if it is dvadaśakṣaram 12 lakhs or preferably 12 crores; if it is Gayathri, you had it, 24 letters are there; 24 lakhs or 24 crores. So you do dhyanam; you do Purascaraṇam, as described in the scriptures; and if a person follows this kind of tapas, the śāstrās prescribe that the devotee will have the darśanam of the Lord in that particular form. Not that it is a mental projection, but the Lord himself with his māya śakti will give darśanam to the devotee in that particular form. And this exercise is called Dēvathā sāḅṣātkārah; and we have got the stories of many devotees who had the darśanam of the Lord and who had even talked to the Lord and Dēvathā sāḅṣātkārah is what; Rāmarūpa Īśvara darśanam or Krishna rūpa Īśvara darśanam; the vision of the Lord as Rāma, as Krishna, as Dēvi; as Dakṣiṇamūrthy, as Ganēśa, etc.

Now the question is: if you want to have the vision of the Lord as the world itself; what to do?; if you want to have the vision of the Lord as the world itself, what should you do; You have to invite the Lord to come in the form of what: in the form of what; if you want to have Rāma rūpa Īśvara rūpadarśanam, you have to invite Lord to come in Rāma form. And if your iṣṭa Dēvathā is Śīva and you want Śīva darśanam, you have to invite the Lord to come in the form of Śīva; if you want Viśva rūpa Īśvara darśanam, you want to have the vision of the Lord in the form of the world, and for that what should you do; Should you invite the Lord to come in the form of the world?; Should you invite the Lord in the form of the world? What do you feel?; If you say you have to invite the Lord to come in the form of world; that means I have not understood the meaning of the word Viśva rūpa; this is the most confusing chapter. If I understand the significance of the word Viśva rūpa, it means I want to have the darśanam of the Lord in the form of world and unfortunately I cannot invite the Lord to come in the form of the world, because the Lord is what: already Lord has arrived in the form of world; When: When even before our birth:

vāyōragniḥ | agnērāpaḥ | adbhyaḥ pṛthivī |

the Lord in the form of viśvarūpa has already arrived.

Now the question is what should I do, to have the darśanam of the Lord in the form of the world; what should I do to have the darśanam of the Lord in the form of the world. There is only one answer possible; which you have to understand very clearly. If you want to have the darśanam of the Lord in the form of the world, that is Viśva rūpa Īśvara darśanam; There is only one method; and you know what is that method; That method is learning to see the world; learning to see the world in the form of the Lord is the only answer; I should train myself; I should learn to look at the very world as Īśvara; When I learn to look at the world as Īśvara; Then Īśvara is giving darśanam to me in the form of the world; Therefore Viśva rūpa darśanam is possible only by one method; not Purascaraṇam; not tapas; not kotirūpa avrithri; they are all meant for Rāma darśanam; Krishna darśanam. If you are interested in that; you can do Purascaraṇam; If you want Viśva rūpa Īśvara darśanam; there is only one method; I have to train my mind to look at the very world as the manifestation of the Lord. And how can I train myself; and this training is possible only by one method; and that method is: I should clearly understand and assimilate the teaching; What teaching?; that the Lord alone manifests in the form of the world. To put in technical language, Lord alone is the material cause of the universe, Lord alone evolves or manifests to appear as the universe, and therefore every appearance obtaining in front of me is different versions of the Lord; just as every ornament is different versions of that one gold alone; Not only I should clearly receive this teaching; I should also assimilate this teaching; And only by receiving and assimilating the teaching; my perceptive or my vision will change.

And this change of perspective or this new perspective that I receive through the teaching is called divya cakṣuḥ; or jñāna cakṣuḥ; the eye of wisdom; the eye of understanding; and that understanding is that the Lord alone manifests as everything; And therefore it is not a physical eye; it is not a mystic vision that we are talking about. There is no mysticism involved in the 11th chapter, there is no mystery involved in the 11th chapter. It is only a new perspective that is developed by understanding the teaching which started from the 7th chapter; in the 7th chapter, 9th and 10th chapters, Krishna has been trying to give only this understanding. It is like somebody gives you a piece of candy or laddu and you like laddu very much. And therefore the moment you receive you are about to straightaway swallow. And that person says that this laddu comes from Tirupathi. Now you have got an additional information, which is purely an intellectual appreciation; that this piece of laddu is coming from Tirupati; the moment you get this knowledge, Suddenly your perceptive changes, It is not a mere laddu with sugar and whatever be the material; it has some invisible factor; which gives the status of prasāda; so this laddu enjoys the status of a prasāda; which status is not physically visible; but which is appreciated through the eye of understanding; what is the understanding; it is coming from Tirupati. Now once this third eye, which is developed through this understanding, contacts the laddu; then I see prasādam. And the moment I understand it is prasāda, it does not go to the mouth directly, before going to the mouth; it has to go to your eyes.

How did this difference come about; can you see the difference chemically; suppose you do chemical analysis; will there be some chemical called prasāda; it has nothing to do with physicality or material feature; It is something purely adṛṣṭam; which is born of understanding; this is called divinisation of the laddu; and it is brought out by a change in perspective and a change in perspective comes through the understanding or knowledge. Similarly, a nāsthika also looks at the world; For him the world is a bundle of chemicals or protons or neutrons; electrons in violent motions; That is the world for a nāsthika; But for a person who has understood Krishna's teaching; the world has got something more, which is not scientifically detectable; but it can be only appreciable or appreciable through the eye of understanding. And therefore in the 11th chapter, Krishna wants to communicate this idea; that if you assimilate this teaching, a perspective change will take place; the world will have an extra feature which is non-physical; and that feature is that it is divine. And once I learn to look at the very world as divine, I see that God is giving darshan all the time; I need not invite Lord to come in front of me, as we read in puraṇās; Śiva or Viṣṇu or any deity comes and blesses the devotee; shows the hand, bhaktha I am pleased, what do you want; invariably they ask for non-death state; and invariably the Lord says No; then something else he wants; and the Lord gives that and then: तत्रैवान्तर्गते प्रभुः tatraivāntargatē prabhuḥ; he came, he left. We do not criticise that darśanam; but Krishna says better than that darśanam is this āyārām gayārām darśanam better than darśanam is having the darśanam of the Lord, 24 hours; rasō'hamapsu kauntēya prabhā'smi śaśisūryayōḥ||| 7.8||. When I drinkwater, when I see the Sun, when I see the Moon, when I am entering the river OK. (no rivers are there now) When I am entering the river; or whatever I am doing; I have got contact with the Lord, which is nithya Īśvara saṁbanda. And if you want nithya Īśvara saṁbanda; prathakṣa Īśvara saṁbanda; an Īśvara who never comes and comes, but who is ever part of your life, you should have Viśva rūpa Īśvara darśanam; and it is brought out by a change of perspective caused by the assimilation of this teaching. This is the important content of the 11th chapter. So therefore do not imagine Viśva rūpam is another form of God; like Rāma or Krishna, and that Viśva rūpa will appear for 2 minutes before you and will disappear; do not think. Viśva rūpa is the Lord, all the time available in the pillar and the scratch; தூணிலும் இருப்பார்; தூரும்பிலும் இருப்பார்; காக்கை சிறகினிலே நந்தலாலா; tūṇilum iruppār; turumpilum iruppār; kākkai cirakiṇile nnatalālā; see the Lord everywhere.

This is the background of the important chapter, Viśva rūpa darśana yōgaḥ. With this background, we will enter the chapter proper.

1. Arjuna said: This supreme secret teaching named adhyātmam has been imparted by You for blessing me. This delusion of mine has gone by that.

In the first eight verses, we get an introduction to this topic of Viśva rūpa Darśanam and it begins with the Arjuna's summarisation and what he has learned in the previous 10 chapters. So he wants to summarise, to convey to the teacher that I have been closely listening to you. Oh Lord; I have not slept off. So therefore in two verses, he summarises 10 chapters. In this first verse, Arjuna summarises the first 6 chapters or to be precise, the five chapters beginning from the 2nd to the 6th. In the first chapter there is nothing to summarise, because the teaching starts from the 2nd only; and from the 2nd chapter, 11th verse, which is the beginning of the Gītā teaching, up to the end of the 6th chapter, Arjuna summarises. And what is the essence of these five chapters; the essence is Jīva svarūpa varṇanam; so description of the essential nature of the individual jīva; and what is the essential nature of the individual jīva; not the physical body; physical body is only a superficial vesture; if you remember the 2nd chapter, vāsāṃsi jīrṇāni yathā vihāya, navāni grhṇāti narō'parāṇi | ... ||2.22|| The physical body is only a temporary dress which we have taken at the time of birth and which we will have to divest or shed at the time of death. Therefore body cannot be myself. Similarly the mind also is also a temporary instrument I use in the waking and dream state and which I shed at the time of deep sleep state. Therefore neither body am I; nor am I the mind; but I am of the nature of chaitanyam; the consciousness principle. And do you remember the description of consciousness I have given. Consciousness is not a part, product or property of the body; consciousness is an independent entity which pervades and enlivens the body, consciousness is not limited by the boundaries of the body; and consciousness survives even after the fall of the body; that eternal all-pervading consciousness is my nature. Krishna gave a brilliant description of this essential nature, in the 2nd chapter from the 12th verse, up to verse No.25, He gave the description. Then he talked about that in the 3rd chapter,

manasastu parā buddhiryō buddhēḥ parastu saḥ || 3. 42||

In the 4th chapter, in the 5th chapter (these are your home work, to find out where the nature of the jīva is presented in 3,4,5, and 6).

And Arjuna says I have understood that well. And he is grateful also. So he says: मदनुग्रहाय त्वया वचः उक्तं madanugrahāya tvayā vacaḥ uktaṃ; So the teaching was given by you; vacaḥ means the words of wisdom; was given to me; was imparted to me by you and for what purpose. Madanugrāya purely for blessing me, saving me from the problem of sorrow, which was described in the first chapter; What is the title of the first chapter; Arjuna viśāda yōgaḥ; there yōgaḥ does not mean spiritual sādānā; sorrow is not a spiritual sādānā; because even before we start sādānā, we are expert in sorrow; Therefore Arjuna viśāda yōgaḥ means episode; it is an episode the topic of Arjuna viśāda; So to save Arjuna, to lift Arjuna from this sorrow, madanugrahāya tvayā vacaḥ uktaṃ;

And what type of words they are; Arjuna gives a description of Bhagavān's words, paramam vacaḥ; they are the most sacred words; they are supremely valuable words, because they are the words revealing the ātma, the reality; vacaḥ paramatvam;

And not only it is the most supreme sacred holy words; guhyam; and they are the greatest secret also; which is not easily or ordinarily available in the world; because such words can come from only jñānis; and jñānis themselves are rare in the world;

yatatāmapī siddhānāṃ kaścinmāṃ vētti tattvataḥ || 7.3 ||

a few people are interested in becoming a jñāni; and even those few who are interested, actually only a very few become. Therefore jñānis are therefore; and therefore jñāni's teachings are rare; therefore गुह्यं guhyaṃ; most secret.

Then adyātma samjitham; these words are called spiritual words; so adyātma samjitham; called spiritual teaching; because it is dealing with the spirit; spiritual means that which deals with Spirit is called Spirit; spirit means not methale alcohol; not that; Spirit is Ātma. So that which is dealing with spirit; that which is different from matter. So it is not a material science; but it is a spiritual teaching;

And by this wonderful teaching; त्वया उक्तं मम अयं मोहः विगतः uktaṃ tvayā mama ayaṃ mohah vigataḥ; my delusion is gone. So you should remember the context of the Gītā teaching; Arjuna surrendered to Lord Krishna uttering the words,

pṛcchāmi tvāṃ dharmasammūdhacētāḥ |
yacchrēyaḥ syānniścitaṃ brūhi tanmē
śiṣyastē'haṃ śādhi māṃ tvāṃ prapannam || 2.7 ||

one side my side, killing my gurus like Bhīṣma, Drōṇa etc. is mahāpāpam; guru hathya is a mahāpāpam; On the other side of the mind says that even hiṃsa is OK for the protection of dharma; because Bhagavān himself destroys people: paritrāṇāya sādḥūnāṃ vināśāya ca duṣkṛtām | || 4.8 || So hiṃsa is OK; one corner of mind says; hiṃsa is not OK; another corner of my mind says; my doubts are getting cleared as I listen to your teaching. Therefore ayaṃ mama mohah; mohah is two-fold; (1) dharma-adharma mohah; and (2) ātma-anaātma mohah; confusion regarding what is right and what is wrong; ethical conflict; and philosophical confusion.

And Gītā is a unique teaching which is dealing with both the ethical conflict as well as philosophical confusion. Normally the vēda pūrva bhāga is meant to resolve ethical conflict; vēda antha bhāga is meant to resolve philosophical confusion. Gītā is a unique śāstrā which deals with ethical conflict; as well as philosophical confusion. And therefore Arjuna says; I am getting clearer and clearer.

Having summarised the first six chapters, now Arjuna wants to summarise the next 4 chapters, 7, 8, 9 and 10. That comes in the 2nd slōkā.

त्वत्तः कमलपत्राक्ष माहात्म्यमपि चाव्ययम् ॥ ११.२ ॥
bhavāpyayau hi bhūtānāṃ śrutau vistaraśō mayā |

tvattaḥ kamalapatrākṣa māhātmyamapi cāvyaḥ || 11.2 ||

2. Oh Krsna! Verily, the origin and dissolution of beings as well as (Your) inexhaustible glory were heard by me from You in detail.

Arjuna's reverence for Lord Krishna is increasing chapter by chapter, because of this valuable teaching and Arjuna had never admired Krishna never as a teacher; he had moved with Krishna and seen several other roles of Krishna; here also he sees Krishna as jagat guruḥ.

And therefore he addressed, he uses beautiful words; kamalapatrākṣa; so kamalpatra means lotus petal; ākṣa means eyes; Oh Lord who is so beautiful with eyes like the lotus petals; So here the description of the external beauty is more to show the inner beauty; Therefore kamala patra lotus petal; not lotus leaf; lotus leaf is very big like a big tāmbālaṃ; if your eyes are like that, everybody will run away; lotus petal will be only beautiful; kamala patra; phullāravindāyatha patra; there I have told you in the introduction, but because it was years before I am reminding you now!.

So namō'stu tē vyāsa viśālabuddhē phullāravindāyatapatranētra; There patra means petal; not newspaper also; So kamala patrah ākṣa; from the 7th chapter up to the 10th chapter, you dealt with Īśvara svarūpam; so from 2nd to 5th; it was the jīva svarūpam, the nature of the individual; from 7th to 10th, especially 7, 9 and 10, the 8th chapter is a odd man out chapter; So in these chapters, you described Īśvara svarūpam;

And what was the description that you gave, or definition that you gave; you defined the Lord as jagat kāraṇam. I knew that the Lord is the cause of the universe. And that too what type of cause, more importantly, Lord as the very material cause of the universe, which means, the Lord is the basic stuff out of whom the universe has evolvēd. And if Lord is the material cause of the universe, it means out of the Lord alone the universe has emerged, in the Lord alone, the universe rests and back to the Lord alone the universe resolves; sṛiṣṭi stiti layam kāraṇam; upādāna kāraṇam. The technical points one should remember; material cause is the cause of sṛiṣṭi stiti layam; just as ocean is the material cause of the waves; So waves are born out of ocean; rests in the ocean and resolves in to the ocean;

Therefore Arjuna says, भूतानां तत्त्वः भवाप्ययौ bhūtānām tatvaḥ bhavāpyayau; bhavaḥ means utpathiḥ; sṛiṣṭi; and apyayaha means layaḥ; or pralayāḥ; So bhava apyayau means sṛiṣṭi and pralayam; and we have to supply the third one; sṛiṣṭi, pralayam; if you say what is balance; stiti; so bhava apyayau means sṛiṣṭi stithi laya. Of whom? All the things and beings; चाराचरात्मकम् जगत् cārācarātmakam jagat; this whole creation of things and beings tatvaḥ is from you alone, as the very adhāra, as the very āśraya. That means what? If waves are born out of the ocean and resolves into the ocean, what is the conclusion I get; there are no waves separate from the ocean; in fact, waves is only an additional name given to the very ocean itself; similarly the whole creation is like a wave in the ocean of God; Śankarācārya beautiful presents in Ātma Bodha;

upādānē:'khilādhārē jaganti paramēśvarē |
sargasthitilayān yānti budbudānīva vāriṇi || 8||

So the entire cosmos of several billions of galaxies is nothing but bubbles; So each galaxy can be compared to a small bubble and all these bubbles of galaxies are rising from whom; upādānē:'khilādhārē; and there are no bubbles separate from ocean. Similarly there is no creation separate from God or to put in another language; God is in the form of world, I heard very clearly, श्रुतौ śrutau; means this was heard by me; मया श्रुतौ mayā śrutau; and how did you teach; विस्तरशः vistaraśaḥ; very elaborately. The upaniṣadic teachers are not that patient; they give the sṛiṣṭi and all within a few mantras.

अन्नात्पुरुषः | ākāśaḥ sambhūtaḥ | ākāśādvāyuḥ | vāyōragniḥ | agnērāpaḥ | adbhyaḥ
pṛthivī | pṛthivyā ośadhayaḥ | ośadhībhyō:'nnam | annātpuruṣaḥ | ; over; now you can go; They will say; only a few lines and we are supposed to grasp by the time; otherwise they will send you to some tutorial collage; you can go they will say; so the Upaniṣad assumes that the student needs only a crisp teaching, because the Upaniṣadic students are supposed to be utthama adhikāris, whereas in the Bhagavad Gītā, Arjuna represents madhyama adhikāris;

And therefore Krishna goes on repeating and therefore Arjuna says; vistaraśaḥ; in the 7th chapter what is said, he repeats in the 9th chapter, because Krishna knows and Arjuna also knows that by the time we come to the 9th chapter, 7th chapter is forgotten; whereas is the question, even the 8th is itself gone; it is too far away to remember; therefore he teaches every time as though fresh. I am not telling about YOU! I know you remember well.

So मया विस्तरशो श्रुतौ त्वत्तः mayā vistaraśō śrutau tvattaḥ; not only you taught this, माहात्म्यमपि चाव्ययम् māhātmyamapi cāvayam; so in the capping 10th chapter, the culminating 10th chapter, you aslo revealed your glories, which are strewn or spread all over the universe. If you have to appreciate the glory of the Lord as Krishna, then they are particular individual glories which have to be found in the Bhāgavadam 10th chapter, there you read, Bhagavān killed this rakṣasa or that one and he lifted the Govardhana parvatham; etc. they are all particular description attributable to that particular form of lord; and if you want to say Krishna mahima; that is Krishna; Rāma mahima if you want to listen; listen to Rāmayaṇa; And if you want to appreciate viśva rūpa mahima; which book you have to see; you need not see any book, but only open the eyes, it is the Vibhūthi.

And therefore this Viśvarūpa Vibhūthi is avyayam; avyayam means inexhaustible; so eka rūpa Īśvara mahima is vyayam; exhaustible; whereas viśvarūpa Īśvara mahima is avyayam; limitless; that also you talked about in the 10th chapter, therefore Jīva svarūpam has been talked about; Īśvara svarūpam has been talked about; Īśvara māhātmyam; māhātmyam means another word for Vibhūthi; māhātmyam. All of them I have heard very well; I have also understanding; and what is the proof; my delusion is gone; not totally; if it is totally gone; Om Tat Sat, we would all have walked out. The very fact that the Gītā continues, the 11th chapter comes, then comes the 12th,13th indicates that the delusion is gone to a great extent; but still some more is there; only the 18th chapter it is completely gone; naṣṭō mōhaḥ smṛtirlabdḥā; OK; if the delusion is gone; what is Arjuna's next request? That he wants to hear hereafter:

द्रष्टुमिच्छामि ते रूपमैश्वरं पुरुषोत्तम ॥ ११.३ ॥

ēvamētadyathā"ttha tvamātmānaṃ paramēśvara |

draṣṭumicchāmi tē rūpamaiśvaraṃ puruṣōttama || 12.3 ||

परमेश्वर parameśvara Oh Lord! एतत् etat It is एवम् evam just so यथा त्वम् आत्थ yathā tvam āttha as You describe आत्मानम् ātmānam Yourself. पुरुषोत्तम puruṣottama Oh Lord! इच्छामि द्रष्टुम् icchāmi draṣṭum I desire to see ते एश्वरं रूपम् te eśvaraṃ rūpam Your divine form.

3. It is just so as You describe Yourself. Oh Lord! I desire to see Your divine form.

So in every verse Arjuna adds one or two words of the Lord's glory; so in the previous verse, kamalapatrākṣa he said; here he adds two words; parameśvara and puruṣōttama;

parameśvara means the supreme Lord, the controller; not only the one who has created the world; but the one who sustains the world by maintaining the physical laws of the creation; therefore parama Īśvaraḥ; stiti kāraṇabhuthā; you are.

Not only that; you are puruṣōttama also; puruṣōttama means the supreme Lord; the greatest Lord; the word puruṣōttama has got a philosophical significance also; which Krishna himself will teach in the 15th chapter; in fact, the entire chapter is titled puruṣōttama yoga; there Krishna will point out puruṣōttama is nirguṇa brahma; So those details we will see later; here we will take the simple word, the supreme Lord. Here the interesting thing is parameśvara thing is generally used for Lord Śiva; conventionally; Even Viṣṇu is also parameśvara; and puruṣōttama is conventionally used for Viṣṇu; even though Śiva is also puruṣōttama; by using both these words, Vyāsācārya wants to make it clear; Śiva and Viṣṇu are one and the same; do not quarrel. You can continue to have Vibhūthi or nāmam; but do not compare and quarrel; both words are used;

Hey Krishna, एतत् यथा त्वम् आत्थ एवम् etat yathā tvam āttha evam; whatever you are teaching me is perfectly understandable; I have no difficulty in accepting the teaching because it is a systematic teaching; if Bhagavān is the cause, and world is effect; the logical consequence is what: the effect cannot be separate from the cause; therefore the world cannot be separate from God. It is a very very logical conclusion; and if the world is non-separate from God; all the non-glories of the world should naturally belong to the Lord; because of that, I have no resistance in accepting that teaching. Therefore yathā tvam āttha evam ēva; evam ēva means OK; Arjuna is giving certificate to Krishna as though Krishna needs Arjuna's certificate, Anyway Krishna must be smiling.

आत्मानम् ātmānam; here ātmānam means what? you are teaching or talking about Yourself; because description of God means what; description of Krishna only; because Krishna is the Lord; Therefore what you say about Lord is perfectly acceptable. Then what is my problem; but; this is the problem; everything is fine Swamiji, but ...!! that is why chapters should come; So long but comes, next chapter, next chapter, comes. You have to say fine without but; Here also Arjuna says but; what is the but?

Now intellectually I am able to understand that the whole world must be divine; why because the whole world is the manifestation of God; therefore there is nothing that is unholy; everything is sacred; everything is holy; everything has to be worshipped. So there is nothing that I can accept; and what you call reject; there is no question of dividing the world into acceptable and non-acceptable, because when the whole creation is God; how can I look down upon anything. Therefore if I have thoroughly assimilated this teaching, I should be able to look at the world as divine. And if I am able to look at the world as divine; I should never develop dvēṣa towards anyone. But my problem is what; one side I say everything is God; but when I come to interaction; there is heavy rāga-dvēṣa. Therefore there is a discrepancy, a gap between what I know and what I am. My intellectual personality and emotional personality is not well harmonised and therefore you should help me in harmonisation. That means what?; whenever I look at this world, I should be able to have as much joy as I get in the darśanam of any form of Lord; any temple; any form of Lord I see; what ānanda I will get; that I should have in the appreciation of this creation also; but that is not there. Now tell me; what I should do, to bridge this gap; Therefore he asks the question; ते रूपमैश्वरं द्रष्टुमिच्छामि tē rūpam aiśvaram draṣṭum icchāmi; I would like to have the Visvarūpa darśanam when I am interacting with the world; as Dayananda swami beautifully say; we do not have the sacred-secular division at all in our culture. In many other cultures, sacred means obtaining in one part of the creation; and outside the temple, everything is secular; but for a Hindu or for a vaidhika, there is nothing called secular, everything is sacred; eating is pūja; remember we are doing pooja daily; eating is pūja, brushing the teeth is pūja; snānam is pūja, everything that I do is pooja and that will come only if I remember that I am always in association with in the presence of the Lord. How can I have that aiśvaram rūpam; the darśanam, what you call, samparka or contact with that viśvarūpa Īśvara; you should help me. This is Arjuna's request; the details of which we will see in the next class.

Om

This eleventh chapter is dealing with Viśva rūpa Īśvara darśanam; the vision of the Lord as Viśva rūpam and we should have a clear understanding about what is Īśvara darśanam, because in the scriptures Īśvara darśanam is talked about very often especially in the purāṇās we get the description of the devotees having darśanam of the Lord. And it is described as a thrilling extraordinary experience for a devotee. It is a fulfilling experience; it is an elevating experience; this is how the scriptures talk about the devotees Īśvara darśanam; whether you take purāṇās or Rāmayaṇam or Mahābhāratham; we get the description; Śabari waiting for a glimpse of Rāma for several years; and at last Rāma gives darśanam to Śabari and the trilling experience that she goes through is described. Even Thyāgarāja sings about “enthathine Śabari bhagyamu”; whatever it is; I do not Telugu very well. Thyāgarāja is thrilled when he talks about Śabari's darśanam of Rāma. And similarly we get the description of Krishna darśanam by various devotees in the Bhāgavatam; in all of them, it is described as a wonderful almost mystic type of experience.

Experience is available, but still he does not enjoy the experience, he does not get the impact and that is not because of lack of object, but it is because of the lack of the sensitisation; lack of the preparation on the part of the listener.

So generally we emphasise the object of experience, but we do not focus on the importance of the preparedness on the part of the subject of experience. This is not only true with regard to any experience in the world; this is true with regard to Īśvara darśanam also; When Rāma gives darśanam to Śabari and other devotees; they enjoy the thrill and happiness and we think that they got Īśvara darśanam ānanda; because Rāma gave the darśanam; but we forget that it is not Rāma's contribution alone, but it is also the contribution of those devotees who have prepared their mind through sadhana. How do you prove this; what should be done to prove this. Everything should be logically well founded; very simple. Very same Rāma was available for Rāvaṇa also; the very same Rāma, for whose one minute glimpse Śabari thirsted, craved; and she got the darśanam for a limited time only; and she was thrilled but the very same Rāma was available for Rāvaṇa and what happened to Rāvaṇa by Rāmadarśanam; what happened; nothing happened. The object is available; but there is no prepared mind to get the impact of the darśanam. Rāvaṇa did not get any impact, there is no question of moksha for Rāvaṇa; even his mind did not change. Rāma gave him a final chance also; இன்ஹு போயி; நாளை வா; inṅru pōyi; nālai vā. You please understand that what you have done is a grave adharmā; kidnapping somebody's else's wife is the gravest sin. Rāvaṇa could not recognise the sin even after; even after what; Rāma darśanam; He went back and he was convinced that he is right; and again he came back for fighting with Rāma. That means what; if Rāmadarśanam should give an impact, contribution of Rāma alone is not enough; For Rāmadarśanam to give the thrill, give that extraordinary impact, there must be preparedness on the part of the person also; and if the person is not prepared, even God is helpless. Even Rāma is helpless because even though he gave darśanam; nothing happened to Rāvaṇa.

What happened to Kaṁsa through Krishna darśanam; Kaṁsa has Krishna darśanam all the time; he never had any impact; he never changed from adharma. And we hear the stories of Rākṣasa doing tapas; and Lord appearing in front; and not only is their mind does not change. Even that Īśvara darśanam they use for negative purposes. They ask for boons for what purpose; for destroying the people. Basmāsura you know. What did he do; he again abused Īśvara darśanam.

From this a very very important point should be remembered: for Īśvara darśanam to be Īśvara darśanam; I should go through tremendous preparation. Without my preparation, even if Īśvara comes right in front of me, nothing will happen. Like the கொட்ட பாக்கு மாதிரி; betul nut, we will remain the same. In the same way, Viśva rūpa Īśvara has been described in Chapter 7, 9, 10 and Viśva rūpa Īśvara is nothing but the Lord in the form of the very universe itself and therefore as I said in the last class, Viśva rūpa Īśvara is available in front of me or not? If you know the meaning of the word Viśva rūpa, you should know Viśva rūpa is right in front; that is why in the Viṣṇu Sahasranāma, what is the first name. Viśvam; Then Viṣṇu vaṣatkārah; the first nāma of the Lord is Viśvam; Viśvam means universe, the very universe is Īśvarasya rūpam.

Therefore the object of experience namely Viśva rūpa Īśvara is already available in front of us; but if we do not get the impact of Viśva rūpa darśanam, if we do not get the thrill of Viśva rūpa darśanam, the problem is not with the Viśva rūpa Īśvara; He has come and is standing in front of us; even before our birth; he is every ready; the Lord as universe is already available even before our birth; but if you do not feel the Īśvara darśanam, the problem is what; it is not with regard to the availability of Īśvara; but with regard to the non-preparedness of the seeker; the devotee.

And that preparedness is nothing but purity of mind; preparedness is nothing but the purity of mind, which is the reduction of the śadripūs; kāma, krōdha, lōbha, mōha, mada, mātsarya; They are the cataract obstructing the vision of the already available Lord. When the cataract of the obstacle of kāma krōdhādhi impurity, ahaṁkāra-mamakārādhi impurity, that scale which covers the vision is removed, God need not come; I begin to appreciate the already available Viśva rūpam.

So Arjuna's problem is that alone. Arjuna tells the Lord: Oh Lord I have understood very clearly from the 7,9th and 10th chapters, that you are the jagat kāraṇam and therefore you alone are manifesting as the world; and just as gold, the kāraṇam is available in and through all the ornaments, I can understand intellectually that you, the kāraṇam are available in and through all the nāma rūpas of this universe; but I do not get the impact of Īśvara darśanam. And I think that I have not got Viśva rūpa Īśvara darśanam at all; even though technically logically the Lord is available in front.

And therefore what must be missing; a prepared mind; an ahaṁkāra mamakāra rahitha mind; and that prepared mind is called the third eye or divya cakṣu. Just as the carnatic music programme remaining the same, one person is thrilled by the music, the other person does not get any impact, there is no defect in the audibility, hearing is OK; therefore music programme is audible, but nothing happens? Why, to appreciate you should have a musical ear. Similarly, Arjuna is missing the divya cakṣu which is nothing but mental purity and therefore Arjuna requests Krishna whether he can help in getting the darśanam.

Therefore he asks in the third slōkā; eva etat vyatha tatvam ātmanam paramēśvara; you are describing viśva rūpa not as an extraordinary form elsewhere; but viśva rūpa as what?: भूः पादौ यस्य नाभिर् वियतसुरनिल चन्द्रसूर्यो च नेत्रेः bhūḥ pādau yasya nābhir viyatasuranila candrasūryō ca nētrē; the whole universe is Viśva rūpa you described; I am able to understand; but nothing happens to me; when I am looking at the world; in fact, I am getting more angry with the way things are going;

And therefore where is the lacuane; where is the defect; therefore Arjuna says; tē rūpam dṛṣṭum icchāmi; I would like to see your rūpam, which rūpam, Viśva rūpam; aiśvaraṁ rūpam Hey Puruṣōttama. Up to this we saw in the last class.

Continuing.

मन्यसे यदि तच्छक्यं मया द्रष्टुमिति प्रभो ।

योगेश्वर तो मे त्वं दर्शयात्मानमव्ययम् ॥ ११.४ ॥

Manyase yadi tacchakyaṁ mayā draṣṭumiti prabho |

yogeśvara tato me tvaṁ darśayātmānamavyayam || 11.4 ||

प्रभो prabho Oh ! Lord, यदि मन्यसे yadi manyase if you consider, इति iti that तत् शक्यम् tat śakyam – it can be द्रष्टुं draṣṭum seen मया mayā by me, ततः tataḥ then, त्वं tvam दर्शय मे darśaya me you show me, अव्ययम् आत्मानम् avyayam ātmānam your inexhaustible form योगेश्वर yogeśvara Oh ! Lord

4. Oh! Lord, If you consider that it can be seen by me, then You show me Your inexhaustible form, Oh Lord!

So we have seen the object of perception is available, Viśva rūpa and still if I do not see, the defect must be only in the observer. There must be some problem with me; therefore I do not feel divinity; when I experience the world. And therefore Hey Krishna, Is it possible for me at all; to have that divinity or Viśva rūpa darśanam; tat draṣṭum śakyam yati manyase; suppose you think that you can prepare me to have the darśan, you please help me; because normally purity of mind can never be brought out overnight; it is a tedious time consuming process which requires a lot of karma yōga; a lot of upāsana; it is not a revolutionary process but it is an evolution; gradual transformation. You cannot suddenly do that. And therefore Arjuna asks; Do I have any temporary method by which I will get a pure mind for the glimpse of Viśva rūpa, Therefore he asks यदि तत् शक्यम् yadi tat śakyam; if it is possible for me; हे योगेश्वर Hē yogeśvara, So Arjuna addresses Krishna properly. yogeśvara means the Lord of miraculous powers; So you use your miraculous powers and temporarily remove the scales of impurity; the cover of impurity you remove from my eyes or mind and let me enjoy the Viśva rūpa darśanam. So Hē yogeśvara; ततः tataḥ; then, मे आत्मानम् दर्शय me ātmānam darśaya; May you show the Viśva rūpam to me. Here also we should be very careful; He says May you show the Viśva rūpam really speaking there is no question of showing the Viśva rūpam, because Viśva rūpam is available right in front; Therefore showing the Viśva rūpa is nothing but, may you temporarily remove the obstacles of my mind; darśaya ātmānam; ātmānam here means yourselves, reflexive pronoun;

अव्ययम् avyayam, means the form, the inexhaustible form, because Viśva rūpa does not have ēkarūpam, But Viśva rūpa is anēka rūpa Īśvara and since the Viśva rūpa Īśvara has infinite forms, inexhaustible number of forms, Arjuna uses the word Avyayam rūpam. May you show.

8. However, You cannot see Me with this (ordinary) eye of yours. I shall give you a divine eye. See My divine power.

Even though Viśva rūpa is right in front of me, if I should get the impact of Viśva rūpa darśanam, I should have prepared the mind, which I call, Divya chaksu or purification and purification is a very slow and gradual process. It involves a long religious life and it also involves following dharmas or values of life. If devotion and values are not there, for such a mind, the benefit of Viśva rūpa darśanam will not be available. But even though it is a gradual and time consuming process, Arjuna was lucky enough because he had the Lord, Krishna Avatara in front of him; and therefore he makes a request for a temporary purification of the mind. But the problem is when by a miraculous process, we get the purification of mind, it will be only temporary. It is like a person living with external support system; like dialysis machine, ventilator; heart purifier, it is an externally aided living; it cannot last long. Similarly by the power of miracle, by the grace of the mahatma or Lord, a person can get a temporary purification and get the impact of Viśva rūpa, but it will be only temporary; and we find Arjuna getting that temporary benefit.

And not only that: since that purification of the mind is artificial; even the benefit is not fully appreciated; when it is an artificial process; that is Bhagavān aided artificial purification, the full impact is not gained. That is why we will find in the 11th chapter, Arjuna gets the thrill initially, but later, Arjuna is not at all happy with Viśva rūpa darśanam. Everyone says Arjuna is lucky enough to get Viśva rūpa darśanam; but Arjuna himself is not able to withstand the impact and therefore at the end of this Chapter, Arjuna says: Hey Krishna; Viśva rūpa darśanam is wonderful; but I do not want. So therefore when it is an artificial thing, first of all it will be temporarily; secondly it cannot be assimilable experience. Only when we work hard and purify the mind, then alone Viśva rūpa darśanam is permanent, and we are able to take that Viśva rūpa darśanam also. However, because of Arjuna's request, Krishna accepts and says that I am going to help you in getting the Viśva rūpa darśanam. Means they give you a special goggle; they say it has come; I have not seen; My Dear Kuttichathan; 3D, I do not know whether anyone has seen; whatever it is; just as we require special goggles for that 3D effect, for Viśva rūpa effect, we require a special goggles called purification, which is called Divya Cakṣu; Krishna says, I am blessing you with that; and with that you will see what: पश्य मे पार्थ रूपाणि paśya mē pārtha rūpāṇi: Arjuna may you see varieties of my form; and colours; शतशोऽथ सहस्रशः śataśo'tha sahasraśaḥ; in hundreds and thousands; नानाविधानि nānāvīdhāni; which are all varieties; varied in nature; that is different colours and different forms; and they are all दिव्यानि divyāni; divya means divine; belonging to the Lord; and the नानावर्णकृतीनि च nānāvārṇakṛtīni ca; with different shapes and colours; and here also we should carefully understand.

When Krishna says May you see the Viśva rūpa with varieties of colours and forms, what are we to understand; it is not that a particular God named Viśva rūpa appeared with varieties of colours like Holi; like that it is not a particular form that appeared; but what does it mean; you have to learn to look at all the forms and colours of the universe as the beautiful colours of the Viśva rūpa itself; Therefore different colours of the Sun and Moon; they are all nothing but Īśvara varṇa; just as different forms of ornaments belong to whom. What we call the form of bangle; it is not at all the form belonging to the bangle; but it is the form belonging to the gold only. So what I saw as bangle previously, because of my change in attitude, I see as gold only; Similarly when I see varieties of colours; असौ यस्ताम्रो अरुण उत बभ्रुः सुमंगलः । asau yastāmrō aruṇa uta babhruḥ sumāṅgalaḥ. So Sri Rudram describes Lord Śiva with various hues and colours; and what are different colours; tāmrāḥ, aruṇaḥ, babhruḥ; sumāṅgalaḥ; These are not the different colours Lord Śiva shows; but they are the colours of the Sun when it is rising; Because Sri Rudram that all the early morning cowherd boys and girls who get up early in the morning, because others do not wake up and get up at 8 o'clock only, because that is the habit; and do not that there is a concept of Sunrise; उत्तैनं गोपा अदृशन्नदृशन्नुदहार्यः । utainam gōpā adṛśannadṛśannudahāryaḥ. This Viśva rūpa darśanam is available for Gōpaḥ; cowherds boys; what does it mean; when they come out; they see the rising Sun, which is red, thereafter it becomes golden; then it becomes slightly yellow; then it becomes white; they are not the colours of the Sun; but they are the colors of the Viśva rūpa Śiva; the entire Rudram is the description of Viśva rūpa Śiva. And it talks about the colors of the leaves, dry leaves, and not so dry leaves; and the green colour; all of them are what: Lord Śiva's colour. हरिकेशायोपवीतिने पुष्टानां पतये नमो नमो harikēśāyōpavītinē puṣṭānām patayē namō namō; harikēśāya; the Lord with green hair. What do you mean green hair; we know different colours of hair; we know the black one; we know the green colors; and sometimes you dye and it becomes brown; so brown hair we know; or in the west and all, other different colours. Have you ever seen green hair; What do you mean by green hair of Lord Śīva. It is nothing but all the leaves in the trees are Lord's Śīva's hairs. So when I am seeing a forest or green tree; my mind should appreciate it as Viśva rūpa Īśvara only. Therefore different colours are not new colours; but the old colours seen in different attitude. I gave you the example; you remember. When the laddu comes in your hands, you only see the taste of it; straightaway you put it into your mouth; But before you put, when somebody says that it is from Tirupathi, there is no change in the physical laddu; but it becomes divine; and the divinity is not physically seen; it is appreciated by the mind; which has got devotion.

And therefore nānāvarṇāni; when I look at all of you with different colors of dress; what I am seeing; nānāvarṇākṛtīni; wherever you see Viśva rūpa; Viśva rūpa has got how many heads; sahaśraśirṣaḥ puruṣaḥ; We think that one Śīva or Viṣṇu will stand and 100s of heads will be standing side-by-side; No; it is not one body with hundreds or thousands of heads hanging; It is all the heads of the people are the heads of Lord. That is Viśva rūpa; therefore नानाविधानि दिव्यानि नानावर्णकृतीनि च nānāvidhāni divyāni nānāvarṇākṛtīni ca.

And पश्यादित्यान्वसूनुद्रान् अश्विनौ मरुतस्तथा Paśya dityān vasūn rudrānaśvinau marutastathā; varieties of dēvathās are in the creation; in the form of various natural forces; every dēvathā represents one one natural phenomenon only.

So Paśya dityān vasūn rudrān; the aṣṭa vasūs; 8 vasūs are said in the scriptures; we symbolise them as various devathas; with different forms; but in Brihadāraṇyaḥ, a question is asked; What are the vasūs; kathame vasava iti; and Brihadāraṇyaḥ upaniṣad says:

अग्निश्च पृथिवी च वायुश्चान्तरिक्षं चाऽऽदित्यश्च द्यौश्च चन्द्रमाश्च नक्षत्राणि चैते वसव
agniśca pṛthivī ca vāyuścāntarikṣaṁ cā:'dityaśca dyauśca candramāśca nakṣatrāṇi caitē vasava; what are the eight vasūs;

And 8 natural principles you can understand, agniśca pṛthivī ca; agni tatva; pṛthivī ca; āntarikṣam cā; intermediary lōka; adityāśca and dyauśca; the Sun and the upper heavens; candramāśca and Nakṣatrāṇi; the moon and the stars are the eight vasūs. And therefore Krishna says; may you see the eight vasūs in my Viśva rūpam; so pasya vasūn;

And then 12 ādityāns; they are nothing but the Sun god obtaining in the 12 months of the year; Dvadaśa māsa samvasarasya; Brihadāraṇyaka; dvadaśa māsa samvasarasya, ētē adityaah. So this Sun god obtaining in 12 months; why we describe the Sun in 12 months; in each month the Sun God has got different power; the Sun of May and the Sun of January; there is a difference; They are the dvadaśa aditya dēvathā. May you see the Adity ā s; May you see the vasus; and May you see the Rudras; Ekadasa Rudras; Brihadāraṇya the question is asked; kathame Rudrāḥ; and Brihadāraṇya answers;

And all of them belong to whom; the Viśva rūpa Īśvara only; therefore May you appreciate the adithyas; may you appreciate the vasoos; may you appreciate the rudras; may you appreciate the Aśvini Kumārās; Aśvini Kumārās are the one presiding over the prānā.

So that principle and Marutha thatha; the maruth devas; which are different forms of vāyu; therefore may you see all the dēvathās in the Viśva rūpa of mine.

And all of them are अदृष्टपूर्वाणि adṛṣṭapūrvāṇi; which you have never noticed before, because where is the time for us to stand and stare; we are so busy with our personal life; our street; our wife or husband, our children; that we never appreciate the Viśva rūpam. Therefore adṛṣṭapūrvāṇi; बहूनि bahūni; and each one is a wonder; Sun is a wonder; rain is a wonder; which God alone can do; we are caught up and suffer you know; We can never create rain; they talk of artificial rain; by putting silver iodite crystal; you can bring artificial rains. So I thought that it is very great; that scientists are able to produce the rain; They see you can produce the rain through silver iodite crystal; if there are clouds; how is it; who will give the crowds; will we take in aero plane from somewhere and bring it about above us and use the springklers; half an hour what God gives, we can never replace; and therefore rain is a wonder; earth is a wonder; Sun is a wonder; anything you take it is a wonder, which is the glory of the Lord. May you see that: temporarily drop your day-to-day business; temporarily keep your cell-phone somewhere. After its coming, there is no time for anything; so wherever you go drop it; and just watch the universe;

Therefore पश्याश्चर्याणि भारत paśya"ścaryāṇi bhārata;

इहैकस्थं जगत्कृत्स्नं पश्याद्य सचराचरम् ।

मम देहे गुडाकेश यच्चान्यद् द्रष्टुमिच्छसि ॥ ११.७ ॥

ihaikasthaṃ jagatkṛtsnaṃ paśya"dya sacarācaram |

mama dēhē guḍākēśa yaccānyad-draṣṭumicchasi || 11.7 ||

7. Oh, Arjuna! See here and now, in my body, the entire Universe with the movable and the immovable placed together and also anything else that you desire to see.

So इह iha; in Me the Viśva rūpa Īśvara; whose body is the very sky itself. Yesterday if you remember; Akāśa śarīram brahma; the Īśvara's body is the very Akāśa itself; In the sky which is my body, कृत्स्नं जगत् पश्य kṛtsanmaṃ jagat paśya; see the entire universe; अन्तःस्थं यस्य विश्वं सुरनखगगोभोगिगन्धर्वदैत्यैः antaḥsthaṃ yasya viśvaṃ suranarakhagagōbhōgigandharvadaityaiḥ; and that alone is symbolised in the purāṇās, when Yaśoda asked Krishna to open the mouth; she saw the whole universe and she is not able to withstand that; it requires preparation. Because she took Krishna as her baby; then when she saw all the 14 lōkās; she said Shut up; double meaning; OK; Shut up; therefore what does it mean; do you think that in the small mouth, all the lōkās are floating like the tablets; It is symbolism; Krishna represents the vast sky; vast sky is blue; Lord Krishna is blue; Nīlamegha śyamala;

what do you mean by blue colour; can you imagine anyone with blue skin; we have got black colour; white colour; yellows; four races; and we have got middle; like us brown;

Have you ever heard of blue Lord; what does it mean; green hair Śiva we talk about; like that blue Lord Krishna means what; the vast blue sky is the form of Lord Krishna; and all galaxies are floating in him;

And therefore ihaikastham; in Me, kṛtsanmam jagat, the entire universe, adya pasya; and see the vastness of the universe and then alone you will understand the vastness of my body; because the whole universe is contained within my body.

Last week or so, some student; I do not remember who that student is, gave a cutting; so I just read through it; it is a very interesting write up, I will read only the first para only. This is the description of the Viśva rūpa universe; awe stultifying; So when we visualise the universe; it is only wonder; thrilled; he is a scientist; he is not a bhaktha and all.

Just think of the universe as a puff of dust; about a meter in diameter; he says visualise a puff of dust, which is one meter diameter; OK. about a meter in diameter. Every dust grain; in one meter how many grains will be there; every grain in that is a galaxy; he says it is a galaxy; you know what is a galaxy; galaxy is a cluster of stars; which is millions of light years in distance. And you know what is a light year; it is the distance travelled by light in one year; and do you know what is the distance travelled by light in one second; 3 lakh kilometers; not miles; 3 lakh kilometers; in one second; So in one year; go and calculate and then like that so many light years; is the distance of one galaxy; like that billions of galaxies are there; imagine that is a dust. We live near a rather ordinary star; among millions of galaxies; there is one galaxy called milky way; and in milky way there are millions of stars and our Sun is one ordinary star; which is a member of a rather ordinary galaxy; Somewhere insignificant in the puff of dust; Every night we are shown that the universe has a beginning but most of us simple regret, use or enjoy the dark without perceiving that; it brings knowledge; If you are willing to learn from darkness, he says; even though so many stars are there; between the stars there is a vast emptiness is there. Then what must be the size of the universe; which accommodates all these galaxies and stars; and this universe with vast emptiness and galaxies is accommodated in space; So what must be size of the space; and that space is the size of the Lord; Mediate upon that; Try that.

Īśvara darśanam, the vision of the Lord, requires two types of eyes. One is the ordinary eye, the loukika cakṣu; the other one, which is the more important one is the prepared mind; a purified mind, a mature mind, an informed mind, a religious mind, is also equally important second invisible eye; which is figuratively presented as the third eye and in the Gītā 11th chapter it is called divya cakṣu. Therefore remember, divya cakṣu means the refined mind, which is not a physical thing. Only when loukika cakṣu and the divya cakṣu join together, Īśvara darśanam is possible. If loukika cakṣu is alone there, without the divya cakṣu, Īśvara darśanam cannot take place. I gave you the example, even though Rāma was physically available for Śabari's loukika cakṣu and Rāvaṇa's loukika cakṣuḥ. So Śabari also could see Rāma with her eyes; Rāvaṇa also could see Rāma with his eyes; but you know the difference in impact. For Śabari it was a great divine vision; which gave her a thrill whereas in the case of Rāvaṇa, nothing happens, even his character did not undergo any change. For Rāvaṇa the physical darśanam of Rāma was not at all different from any other physical darśanam, including Kuṁbakarṇa; For him, Kuṁbakarṇa darśanam, and Rāma darśanam was identical. Therefore what makes the difference? What makes the difference in the impact if you ask; there is nothing wrong with the physical eyes, they are common to both; the only difference can be Śabari had worked on her inner eye called divya cakṣu, which Rāvaṇa has not done.

If you extend the same principle, Lord's Viśva rūpa, Lord's universal form is available for all the people; and it is available and it is available for loukika cakṣu; with the physical eyes we are seeing the Lord who is in the form of the universe: भूः पादौ यस्य नाभिविन्दसुरनिलश्चन्द्र सूर्यो च नेत्रे bhūḥ pādau yasya nābhirviyadasuranilaścandra sūryau ca nētrē. Therefore our loukika cakṣu is functioning, Īśvara śarīram as Viśva rūpa is available. But even though the physical vision of Viśva rūpa is available, all the people do not get the same impact. Eyes remaining the same, all the people do not get the same impact, most of the people do not feel that they are having Īśvara darśanam when they look around; Īśvara darśanam!; I am only seeing plants and trees only. So if I do not feel like having Īśvara darśanam, the defect cannot be in loukika cakṣu, because it is already there; therefore the defect by pāriśeṣa nyāya; the defect can exist only in Divya cakṣu; which is nothing but a refined mind.

And as I said, refined mind can be defined in several ways, one of the ways is: kāmakrōdādi rahitham manaḥ; or you can say rāga dveṣadi rahitham manaḥ; or you can say ahaṁkāra mama kāradhi rahitham manaḥ; a refined mind can be defined. And therefore Lord Krishna says: Arjuna Viśva rūpa darśanam is the easiest thing because Rāma Krishna etc.; they have to come to give you darśanam; whereas Viśva rūpa Īśvara need not come; I am right in front of you; therefore you have no difficulty in seeing Me;

He said ihaikastham (the seventh verse which we saw in the last class) iha ekastham; so here in my body; what is the body; not Krishna śarīram; the entire universe, ākaśaśarīram brahma. So I as the ākaśa, having the ākaśa as the body, am available in front of you and the whole creation is my śarīram alone; you can see; iha ekastham, ekasthin ākaśarūpē śarīram sthitham; ekastham kristnam jagat pasya; you see the Viśva rūpa right in front of you;

And what type of Viśva rūpa; सचराचरम् sacarācaram; consisting of caram and acaram; charam means the moving objects and acaram means the non-moving, the sthāvara jaṅgamaḥ; all the inert things are called acaram; all the living beings are called caram;

citraḥ raṁramyatē taṁ tribhuvana vapuṣaḥ viṣṇumiśaḥ namāmi || 2 ||

vasūś means śarīram; what is the body of the Lord; tribhuvanam, the whole universe; būlōkā, bhuvanlōkā, suvarlōkā, So that you can see right in front of you; मम देहे mama dēhē, not Krishna dehe, ākaśadehe; Viśva rūpa dehe; पश्य paśya;

may you see Arjuna; गुडाकेश guḍākēśa; guḍākēśa means satva guṇa pradhāna. Arjuna you can; it only requires some refinement, polishing, it is possible for you.

And not only you can see all these things, यच्चान्यद् द्रष्टुमिच्छसि yaccānyad-draṣṭumicchasi; whatever else you want to see, you can see, everything has to rest in the body of the Lord only. So thus Krishna; Krishna offers to cooperate with Arjuna, for giving Viśva rūpa darśanam.

दिव्यं ददामि ते चक्षुः पश्य मे योगमैश्वरम् ॥ ११.८ ॥
na tu māṃ śakyasē draṣṭumanēnaiva svacakṣuṣā |
divyaṃ dadāmi tē cakṣuḥ paśya mē yōgamaiśvaram || 11.8 ||

तु tu However, न शक्यसे द्रष्टुम् na śakyase draṣṭum you cannot see माम् mām
Me अनेन एव anēna eva with this (ordinary) स्वचक्षुषा svacakṣuṣā eye of yours
ददामि ते tē dadāmi I shall give you, दिव्यं चक्षुः divyaṃ cakṣuḥ a divine eye, पश्य
मे paśya me see me ऐश्वरं योगम् eśvaram yōgam My divine power.

8. However, You cannot see Me with this (ordinary) eye of yours. I shall give you a divine eye. See My divine power.

So herein Krishna introduces the requirement of two types of cakṣu; two types of eyes, one is loukika cakṣuḥ; another is divya cakṣu; and therefore Krishna warns; he tells Arjuna, you cannot have Īśvara darśanam with the help of mere physical eyes; अनेन स्वचक्षुषा anena svacakṣuṣā; sva cakṣu means what loukika cakṣu, the mamsa cakṣu; with the help of that you cannot see माम् द्रष्टुम् न शक्यसे mām draṣṭum na śakyase; you will not see Me; even if you see Me, you will not have the impact, remember the example; just as Rāvaṇa did not have any sense of Īśvara darśanam or fulfilment when he saw Rāma; when Kamsa saw Krishna nothing happened to him. So therefore so cakṣusā, mām draṣṭum na śakyase; therefore you require an invisible eye.

In fact, some people even interpret the tilakam as symbolic of the divya cakṣu; difference significance are given for tilakam; one significance given is the third eye of prepared mind; proper bhāvana; proper attitude; bhāvana cakṣu. Therefore that eye is also required; it is like a tourist going to a temple with a camera and taking the pictures of various idols; for him, not Lord, various idols; and he talks about the art and he asks the question whether it is AD or BC. If it is BC a few more pictures he will take; perhaps he may buy paying millions of rupees also; exhibition also he will put; he can see only the age, the art, the metal; but he cannot never fold his hands; he can never do sāṣṭāṅga namaskāra; he can never do this when the deepārādhāna is done; What makes that difference; how many of us really know what is the age of various idols in Kapali temple or Parthasarathy temple; or Rathna girishvara temple; they are all material work, which we are not bothered; our eyes penetrate the superficial rock and see the Lord who has been invoked and worshipped; and that eye is the bhavana; We have to be born in India; or we have to be exposed to this culture to do sāṣṭāṅga namaskāra to a dead stone; To do namaskāra to a lifeless stone, And if somebody has to receive ash; which has no worth at all; and applying ash on the forehead and even putting into the mouth without knowing how it is prepared; (now it is said that the ash is prepared using so many chemicals, it is said).

So really speaking we are not even sure whether the ash is hygienically prepared; nothing a devotee cares; vibhūthi comes we do not even call it ash; vibhūthi comes, it goes to the forehead and for many people, it goes to the mouth and many people preserve it to carry it home; and also apply on their children's head; and what is the worth of the ash; nothing; but it is your bhāvana cakṣu; which is seeing more in the ash, which no chemical analysis will reveal you test the ash in any lab in the world; it cannot never reveal its worth; And what is that worth; it is a worth which can be seen only by Divya cakṣu; and therefore Krishna says Viśva rūpa darśanam requires divya cakṣu; to do namaskāram to reverse requires divya cakṣu; to do the prōkṣaṇam of the river water requires divya cakṣu; to do namaskārams to the mountain requires divya cakṣu; without that it is not possible and Arjuna I shall bless you with that divya cakṣu;

And once that attitudinal change comes, पश्य मे योगमैश्वरम् paśya mē yōgamaiśvaram; and then relook the same world in front of you; and what you see, mama aiśvaram yōgam; you see my divine glory; Even pañca mahā bhūthās become Lord's Śiva; you will call ākaśaliṅga as is worshipped in Chidambaram, we will call vāyu lingam as is worshipped in Kalahasthi; agni lingam Lord Śiva as in Thiruvannamalai; water becomes God as in Jambukesvaram, Thiruvanaikaval; and earth becomes God as in Kancheepuram. And initially you worship the panchaboothas, only in those respective temples, but that is not enough; later I should see the same divinity in the pañca bhūthās all over; and the day I can revere the pañca bhūthās, then the products of the pañca bhūthās, namely the panca boudika prapañca; they are all divine for me.

In fact I can never go away from the Lord; where is the question of going near God. So for a Viśva rūpa darśi; going near God is a meaningless proposition; because there is no question of going away from God; andādamulu; pindādamulu; brahmādamulu, anthā Rāma mayam. Everything is Rāma mayam, Krishna mayam, Śiva mayam; some māyam; Bhagavān mayam. Without that, it is all māyam; only māya. Therefore, see Viśva rūpa with this divya cakṣu which I am blessing.

Now you have a imagine, there is a silence; because Krishna is blessing Arjuna with divya cakṣus; if it is a TV programme, they will show Krishna's hand, and from Krishna's hand a light will pass; it will directly go into the face of Arjuna and lot of background music; dun dun dun (some loud noise) because something mysterious is taking place; and also the pictures also they also show round and round; we can do all that with camera thing; and all these things and in Arjuna's face, sweat also is coming; you can imagine all kinds of things; so when there is the silence; Krishna does not speak; He is blessing through the hand, Arjuna does not speak because he is receiving the mystic eye; therefore there is silence and therefore Sañjaya comes and tells something; (if everybody keeps quiet, what to do); therefore Sañjaya comes and comes fills up the blank; what is happening at that time;

9. Sañjaya Said --- having spoken thus, Krishna, the great Lord of all powers, thereafter revealed the supreme divine form to Arjuna. Oh king !

So what happened during those silent moments; Sañjaya describes; Sañjaya uvāca; Hey Rājan; Oh King; whom is he addressing; Sañjaya is talking to Dhritharāṣṭra; Oh King Dhritharāṣṭra; हरिः एवम् उक्त्वा hariḥ evam uktvā; Lord Krishna who is none other than Lord Viśṇu, the Viśva rūpa Īśvara; that Viśṇu, he uses the word Harihi, other than Krishna, to indicate that he is none other than Lord Viśṇu himself; and not only that the word Harihi is also a significant word;

हरिर् हरति पापानि दुष्ट चित्तैर अभि स्मृताः

harir harati pāpāni duṣṭa cittair abhi smṛtāḥ

anicayāt samsprṣṭaḥ dahat ēva hi pāvakāḥ

hariḥ pāpāni harati; Lord Viśṇu is called Hari becomes, the root, ह Hru, harati means to suck, to absorb, to withdraw all the pāpams from the devotees mind; it is because of the impurity; I do not see the divinity in front of me; only I have to remove that thimiram, ajña thimiram, rāga dveṣa thimiram, Lord Viśṇu absorbs; Therefore he is called hariḥ;

And what type of Viśṇu he is: महायोवेश्वरः mahāyoveśvaraḥ; the one who has got great powers of purification; normally purification is a very long process; it requires years of karma yōga; it requires years of pañca mahā yajnaḥ. I hope you remember, pañca mahā yajnaḥ (do you still remember that). It is not a type of पाञ्चम् pañcam; pañcam means drought. So years of pañca mahā yajnaḥ is required to refine the mind; but Lord Krishna being a lord of miraculous powers, what could be achieved by elaborate and time consuming strenuous sādhanā, Lord Krishna simply removed; but as I said, it is only a temporary gift given; just to show the value of anthakaraṇa shuddhi; the benefit of anthakaraṇa śuddhi, it is a trial; When they have certain machines and all, they say you take it; use it and see; and if it does not work, your money will be returned; like that Krishna wants to temporarily give that refinement and see the benefit of looking at Viśva rūpa.

And therefore mahāyoveśvaraḥ hariḥ; एवमुक्त्वा ēvamuktvā; addressed Arjuna in this fashion, in this manner; in which manner, as said in the previous verses; What did He say in the previous verse; loukika cakṣu is not enough; you require divya cakṣu; which is mental purity;

Having said that: परमं ऐश्वरं रूपम् दर्शयामास paramaṁ aiśvaraṁ rūpam darśayāmāsa; Therefore Lord Krishna showed this Viśva rūpam. So aiśvaraṁ rūpam means the body, the form of the Lord; Aiswaram means isvarasya idam isvaram; belonging to Bhagavān; So aiśvaraṁ rūpam; Īśvara rūpam darśayāmāsa; He showed.

And what type of Īśvara rūpam; paramam; He is the greatest rūpam; and why do you say Viśva rūpam is the greatest one; because all the other rūpams are finite in nature; whether it is Rāma rūpam, Krishna rūpam, Dēva rūpam, Ganēśa rūpam, they are all finite; and all of them are mutually exclusive; if Rāma rūpam comes, Krishna rūpam has to disappear; if Krishna rūpam comes, Ganēśa rūpam has to disappear; they are finite; they are mutually exclusive. That means what; one displaces the other; and finally, they are subject to arrival and departure; this is all Rāmakriṣṇādi dēvathā rūpam; Whereas Viśva rūpa is the most unique one, because it is all pervading and secondly it need not exclude any form; Viśva rūpa includes Rāma rūpam, includes Krishna rūpam, Śiva rūpam; all the possible rūpams are included in Viśva rūpam; therefore it is all inclusive; and finally Viśva rūpam is not subject to arrival and departure; because it is right in front of me. That is why even in Sandhya vandana, we are learning to practice प्राच्यै दिशे नमः । दक्षिणायै दिशे नमः । प्रतीच्यै दिशे नमः । उदीच्यै दिशे नमः । ऊर्ध्वाय नमः । अधराय नमः । अन्तरीक्षाय नमः । भूम्यै नमः । विष्णवे नमः । मृत्यवे नमः ॥ prācyai diśē namaḥ | dakṣiṇāyāi diśē namaḥ | pratīcyai diśē namaḥ | udīcyai diśē namaḥ | ūrdhvāya namaḥ | adharāya namaḥ | antarīkṣāya namaḥ | bhūmyai namaḥ | viṣṇavē namaḥ | mṛtyavē namaḥ ॥

namaskāram to the east, namaskāram to the north; namaskāram to the west; namaskāram to the south; ūrdhvāya namaḥ, adharāya namaḥ, antarīkṣāya namaḥ; so namaskāram to the top, namaskāram to the bottom; why do we do namaskāram in all directions; because in other religions Lord may be in one place. Therefore everything should be looking at that direction; for us Bhagavān being everywhere, I do namaskāram all over. These are all the training given right from our young age. In fact, all our trainings are meant for seeing the world itself as God. This is the culmination in vyavahārika Īśvara darśanam; not pāramārthikam; vyavahārika Īśvara darśanam; in the relative appreciation of Lord; the highest vision is to learning to see the very universe as the Lord; so our culture is oriented; is to give us the orientation and therefore paramam Īśvaram rūpam darśayāmāsa; To whom; पार्थाय pārthāya; pārthāya means Arjunāya; and also you can take Tamil also; paarthāya!; பார்த்தாயா (did you see); Hey Partha; did you see the viśva rūpam; you can take like that also.

10 & 11. (Krishna revealed) the brilliant limitless (Cosmic form) with faces in all directions, with many mouths, and eyes, with many wonderful sights, with many divine ornaments, wielding many weapons, wearing divine garlands and garments, anointed with divine perfumes, and full of wonders.

So we get Sañjaya's description of Viśva rūpa, Sañjaya describes and from this we come to know that Sañjaya is also getting Viśva rūpa darśanam; because of association with all; he also is getting; one is face, another is mouth; many faces, and many mouths; and नयनम् nayanam, many eyes; how are we to understand the Lord with many eyes; does it mean that eyes are sticking all over; and if mouths are all over, how eyes will be all over; therefore do not imagine a form with countless eyes and ears; अनेकवक्त्रम् anekavaktram means what; Arjuna learns to see all the mouths of all the people as the mouth of the Lord; and suppose you say No No No, it is my mouth, that is called ahaṁkāra; that is the problem; where is the question of my mouth when I myself am not there; because there is no individual separate from totality; There is no Tamil Nadu; separate from India; there is no wave separate from ocean; there is no vaṣṭi separate from samaṣṭi. When I myself do not exist, where is the question of my mouth, my eyes; my land, तन् मन् धन् सब कुछ तेरा tan man dhan sab kuch tērā; daily you say that!; they are beautiful prayers, if we utter with the mind backing the words. As somebody said, it is better to have a prayer; a heart without words rather than words without heart behind. If you have the Bhavana and you are not able to verbalise, it does not matter; but if you have the words without the heart behind; that also tan man dhan sab kuch tērā in kada kada you tell and naivēdyam also is nearby; and that is important; Therefore kada kada you finish and eat the kadala or something. And therefore that bhāvana is important; all the mouths are Bhagavān's mouth; all the eyes are Bhagavān's eyes.

अनेकाद्भुतदर्शनम् anēkādbhutadarśanam; there are innumerable wonders, not seven wonders or 14 wonders, there are innumerable wonders, all of them are Bhagavān 's wonders; they belong to the Lord; अनेकदिव्याभरणं anēkadivyābharaṇam. So Lord is wearing countless ornaments; what does it mean; again do not imagine that in His neck, there are many kilos of ornaments; then He will get spondilosis; And therefore anēka ābharaṇam; all the ābharaṇams that you are wearing are Bhagavān's ābharaṇam; if I say it is your ābharaṇam, it is loukika ābharaṇam; if I look upon it as Bhagavān, it is divya ābharaṇam;

Therefore anēkadivyaḥbharāṇam; that is why in our culture, before wearing any ornament, it is placed at the feet of the Lord; if you do not have that habit, better you start. Any ornament or why ornament, even dress, manjal kumkum you apply and keep in front of the Lord; Oh Lord, this also belongs to you; and I am taking for lease; and I will return it; and not like the local people tenant; after living for a certain number of years, the tenant becomes owner; not like that; I am a humble, simple devotee, I will use without claiming ownership; I will never develop mamakāra with regard to any dress or ornaments, I will remember all belong to you; and it will be returned with thanks at the appropriate time. Therefore all ornaments are his ornaments.

दिव्य अनेक उद्यत आयुदम् divya aneka udyata āyudam. And the Lord with hundreds of weapons held in the raised hand; with hundreds of countless, literally hundreds are not there; countless weapons held in the raised hand. Here also what should we understand; do not imagine a lord; with thousands of hands hanging, and in each one, one one weapon like the knife, sword, etc.; the lord is standing like that; Viśva rūpa picture is there; you have to see; they have to do that way; there is no other way.

So how do you imagine Bhagavān with countless weapons; Why Sañjaya mentions weapons here, because the whole Gītā discourse is taking place in the battle place, not Vidya mandir; in the battle field; here you have got books pens and other things; but there remember, 7 plus 11 akṣōhinis, the armies of kauravās and pāndavās; they have all come with what; not pen and books; each one has come with nāna śāstra praharaṇā, sarve yuddha visāradhā; each one has come with different weapon and all those weapons belong to whom; again Viśva rūpa Īśvara; Therefore aneka udyata; udyata means raised weapon.

And how do they become divine weapon; any weapon is terrible; how can become divine weapon; because of two reason; One reason is since the weapon is in the hand of a person; it is loukika weapon; but when I see the very same weapon as the Lord's weapon, it becomes divine. The difference between divine and not divine is association with the Lord. Like the prasāda and apple; apple from the shop is apple; once it has gone to the temple and comes; it becomes prasāda. Therefore a secular thing becomes sacred only when it is associated with the Lord; if I see everything belongs to the Lord; I do not have anything secular at all. For a Viśva rūpa bhaktha; there is no secular thing; sarvam sacred mayam;

So this is one reason; and the second reason is, all the weapons are divyam because, they are meant for धर्म सम्पत्तयम् dharma samrakṣanam; paritrāṇāya sādḥūnāṃ vināśāya ca duṣkṛtām |

dharmasamsthāpanārthāya sambhavāmi yugē yugē || 4.8 ||

The moment a weapon is associated with dharma, it is associated with the Lord; dharmah ēva Īśvaraḥ; that is why we say Rāmō vighrahavān dharmah; Dayananda swami often says: Bhagavān is in the form of Order in the creation; harmony in the creation. Therefore any weapon for dharma is divine weapon; so with such weapons Viśva rūpa Īśvara is giving darśanam;

So in all these verses, the verb is not given. For Sanskrit students; these are all adjectives, which are the description of aiśvaram rūpam, which comes in verse No.9 second line, there the noun Viśva rūpam is given, all these verses, No.10, and 11, they are all adjectives to Viśva rūpa;

Therefore दिव्यमाल्याम्बरधरं divyamālyāambaradharam Viśva rūpam; दिव्यगन्धानुलेपनम् divyagandhānulēpanam Viśva rūpam; and what is the verb, darśayāmāsa; Lord Krishna showed to Arjuna. And here also you should note, when we say Lord Krishna showed to Arjuna it creates a confusion; it appears as though Viśva rūpa was not there before, and after divya cakṣu; Viśva rūpa is brought forward, it is not Viśva rūpa the Lord showed means; Bhagavān removed the obstacles for the appreciation of the universe as divine; that bhāvana if you give, the obstacle is gone, which means what was seen secular is now seen as sacred; therefore it is an attitudinal change; there is no physical event taking place;

Viśva rūpa darśanam is not a physical event; it is an event of a attitudinal change and consequent perspective change; attitudinal and perspective change; nothing is happening outside. mālyāambaradharam. So the Lord is wearing mālyam; mālyam means what garlands; aṃbaram means vastram or dress; So divyam means divine; celestial; so the Lord is wearing many garlands and many types of dress.

And here also how should you understand. Do not imagine a personal god with different mālas; all the mālas worn by all the people are Bhagavān's māla; and Bhagavān's dress; all the dress which are worn by all the people are Bhagavān's; the moment I see them as Bhagavān's, it becomes divyam. We saw दिव्यगन्धानुलेपनम् divyagandhānulēpanam; and a Viśva rūpa, which is smeared with lot of perfumes; gandha means perfume. So in those days also perfume was there; now spray we use all over; back, front, top, bottom, everywhere; So in those days the modern spray was not there, their perfume was primarily chandanam, and a few other things were there; and therefore ganda anulēpanam; a body which is smeared with the perfumes, which are all divine; and again what does it mean; different perfumes used by different people, they are all perfumes applied on the Lord; and that is why when we apply also vibhūthi chandanam, etc. we are supposed to utter the nama of the Lord; vibhūthi daraṇa mantra is there; and for Vaiśnavās when they apply on the various parts of the body, they have to remember Keśava, Narayana, Mādhava, Govinda, etc.; It means what; I am not decorating my body; I am decorating the body of the Lord; Lord's body deserves decoration, my body does not deserve decoration; cremation only; OK; just a joke; it does not deserve anything. Divyagandhānulēpanam.

Then विश्वतोमुखम् viśvatōmukham; the Lord with faces, in all directions, Omni directional, multi directional faces, the Lord has got; because there are people with faces which are facing all directions; viśvatōmukham.

And अनन्तं anantaṁ; anantaṁ means whose limit cannot be seen at all; even now we do not know the limit of the cosmos; Last class I told you; if you have a got of 1 meter diameter, each grain of dust is equal to one galaxy; so there are billions of galaxies and each galaxy having billions of stars; the outside limit of the universe even now the scientists do not know; and not only that they say that the universe is expanding; as such the existing itself we do not know; and over and above that, they say it is expanding; all the stars are receding; and the more distant they are; the faster they are going; each star is getting farther and farther away from the other star. Imagine not in clusters; if each star gets farther and farther away from other stars, where is the limit of the universe;

pādō:'sya viśvā bhūtāni | tripādsyā mṛtandivi | tripādūrdhva udait puruṣaḥ |
pādōsyaihā:':bhavātpunaḥ| ..

Puruṣa sūktham says that this limitless universe occupies only an insignificant part of Viśva rūpa ; Even this limitless universe itself is in Bhagavān's one corner; then what should be the size of the Bhagavān; anantaṁ; limitless, both spacewise, and timewise.

And therefore what I can say; सर्वाश्चर्यमयं sarvāścaryamayam; Viśva rūpa Īśvara is the greatest wonder. so sarvāścaryamayam;

देवम् dēvam; dēvam means Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; you have to connect; darśayāmāsa pārthāya; such a Viśva rūpam; mahāyōgēśvarō hariḥ; pārthāya darśayāmāsaya iti navama slōkēna anvayaha.

Continuing;

दिवि सूर्यसहस्रस्य भवेद्युगपदुत्थिता ।

यदि भाः सदृशी सा स्याद् भासस्तस्य महात्मनः ॥ ११.१२ ॥

divi sūryasahasrasya bhavēdyugapadutthitā |

yadi bhāḥ sadṛśī sā syādbhāsastasya mahātmanaḥ || 11.12 ||

यदि भाः yadi bhāḥ if the brilliance, सूर्यसहस्रस्य sūryasahasrasya of a thousand suns, भवेद् उत्थिता bhaved utthitā were to rise up युगपत् yugapat simultaneously, दिवि divi in the sky सा सदृशी sā sadṛśī that will be comparable स्यात् भासः syāt bhāsaḥ to the brilliance तस्य महात्मनः tasya mahātmanaḥ of that great Lord.

12. If the brilliance of a thousand suns were to rise up simultaneously in the sky, that will be comparable to the brilliance of the great Lord.

So what should be the brilliance of the Lord? It should be glaring brilliance; because I am not able to see the Sun itself in the morning. I am not able to look at even the Sun and our Sun is 9 crores or miles are so away. For the sunlight to reach the earth, it takes 8 minutes or so; so far away is the Sun; and the Sun is one of the ordinary stars; even that sunlight I am not able to withstand. Imagine eyes seeing all the lights of all the stars; how brilliant it would be; its brilliance cannot be imagined.

And therefore Sañjaya gives an example. Suppose thousands of Suns, arise in the horizon simultaneously; सूर्यसहस्रस्य भाः sūryasahasrasya bhāḥ; sūrya sahaśrāṇam means thousands of sun; bhāḥ means brilliance; suppose the brilliance of thousands of suns, utthistā; has arisen, has emerged in the sky simultaneously. This is the example which is supposed to have been given by one atomic physicist; when the atom bomb was exploded. So that brilliance of that explosion; that too ordinary atom bomb; special ones were not there; when the explosion took place, the brilliance was indescribable; that one of those people quoted this line it seems; just see; we cannot imagine even the brilliance of one atom bomb explosion; and we know every star is having thousands of atom bombs explosions every moment; that is how stars produce energy; imagine all of them appear. Now we do not have problem, because they are safely far away; imagine they all come closer; even now Madras in the month of September, we are not able to withstand; so तस्य महात्मनः भासः सदृशी स्यात् tasya mahātmanaḥ bhāsaḥ sadṛśī syāt; so that will be the brilliance; that will be the comparison for the brilliance of the mahātma; mahātma means Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; So mahān anathaḥ śarīram yasya mahātma; this place ātma does not mean satcitanānda ātma; here it means śarīram; mahātma means infinite body is the Lord; So that is the brilliance, it is indescribable.

apaśyaddēvadēvasya śarīrē pāṇḍavastadā || 11.13 ||

तत्र शरीरे tatra śarīre there, in the body, देवदेवस्य devadevasya of the Lord of lords, पाण्डवः अपश्यत् pāṇḍavaḥ apaśyat Arjuna saw तदा tadā at that time कृत्स्नं जगत् kṛtsnaṃ jagat the entire Universe, अनेकधा प्रविभक्तम् anekadhā

pravibhaktam with (its) manifold divisions, एकस्थम् ekastham placed together

13. There, in the body of the Lord of Lords, Arjuna saw, at that time, the entire Universe with its manifold divisions placed together.

So Sañjaya continues with his description. Arjuna in that infinite body of the Lord, it can be taken as the very space itself, the Lord for whom the infinite space is the very body, in that body Arjuna saw everything; कृत्स्नं जगत् एकस्थम् अपश्यत् kr̥tsnaṃ jagat ekastham apaśyat; Arjuna saw the entire universe resting upon that one infinite body of the Lord.

And what type of universe; अनेकधा प्रविभक्तम् anekadhā pravibhaktam, which is divided in manifold forms; as I said in the form of galaxies at the macro level; then solar systems at the next level; planetary system at the next level; thereafter we have continents; we have countries; Continents is Bhagavān's division; countries is our division; we draw the line and fight; so this line and that line, and LOC. So the whole universe divided in manifold form Arjuna saw in the body of the Lord; as I said just as Yaśōda in the purāṇic story saw the universe in the mouth of Krishna. Remember it is only a symbolic presentation; a figurative presentation of Viśva rūpa darśanam; and therefore apaśyat;

Where, देवदेवस्य शरीरे dēvadēvasya śarīrē ; in the body of the Lord; dēvadēvaḥ means īśvaraḥ; and when we say śarīra; do not take the five feet or six feet śarīra of Krishna, in Krishna's limited body, the whole universe can never be accommodated; only the universal atlas can be accommodated; if you want to see the whole world in my limited body; how will you see; you stick the atlas on to you body; then you see Europe, Artic, Antartic and all; If you have to see the real universe, not Atlas universe, if you want to see the real universe, Krishna's śarīram should not be a personal limited śarīram; it should be the vast space itself. Therefore dēvadēvasya ākāśātmaka śarīrē, anantha śarīrē, pāṇḍava, Arjuna, tadā.

At that time, means what; at which time, at the time when divya cakṣu was given. Before that he saw the same world; but it was a persecuting world; problematic world; unfaceable world; burdensome world. Now the very same world has become totally different and therefore तदा tadā; divya cakṣu pradhāna anantharam; after being blessed with Divya cakṣu Arjuna saw the Viśva rūpa. Who is reporting; Sañjaya is reporting.

More in the next class.

Om

Arjuna asked for Viśva rūpa darśanam and we saw that Viśva rūpa darśanam involves two things; one is the regular eye which looks at the world which is the Viśvam, the universe, and we require a special perceptive of mind by which the very same Viśvam, the universe, is seen as the body of the Lord. To see the world, we require the ordinary eye. To see the world as the manifestation of the Lord, we require a special attitude, which is born out of the study of the seventh, ninth, etc. chapters, as well as a prepared mind. And if that proper attitude is not there; I will see the Viśvam but it will be seen as the Viśva rūpa Īśvara. And therefore I am seeing the Lord; for me there is no question of Īśvara darśanam; exactly like Rāvaṇa seeing Rāma; physical eyes will see Rāma, but for Rāvaṇa, it is not Īśvara darśanam; Kaṁsa will continue to see Krishna physically with physical eyes, but he does not have Īśvara darśanam because Kaṁsa does not have the prepared attitude. Similarly here also the Viśva is available; but Viśva darśanam should be converted into Viśva rūpa Īśvara darśanam, what I require is a changed attitude, which is not only appropriate knowledge; what is the knowledge; Lord alone manifests as the creation; that knowledge is required, a cognitive factor is involved. And in addition to this cognitive factor, that is the understanding, there should be the purity of mind also; a mind free from rāga dvēṣa, a mind free from kāma krōdha, a mind which is free from ahamkāra, mamakāra;

Therefore a pure mind plus an enlightened intellect, both put together is called divya cakṣuḥ; if the divya cakṣu is there, behind the māṁsa cakṣu; what is māṁsa cakṣu; the fleshy physical eyes; when they combine together; I look at the world as Īśvara.

And it is the divya cakṣu Arjuna was lacking; and Viśva rūpam is already in front; but what Arjuna was missing, was divya cakṣu and Lord Krishna blessed Arjuna with this divya cakṣuḥ;

And then there is a transformation, Arjuna looked at the same world alright; but there has been attitudinal change, and therefore he has the Viśva rūpa darśanam; and when Arjuna has got such a vision, the impact is so much that he is dumpfounded as it were; in fact there is a silence a few minutes and during that silence, Sañjaya, waiting for an opportunity. Because many people want to come to the stage and talk on the mike; in the functions; and once they get the mike, you had it; One more minute; one more minute, last but not the least, they will go on; Like that, Sañjaya never got an opportunity; Now he comes and he also has the benefit of the Viśva rūpa darśanam and therefore he gives the description of Viśva rūpa as seen by Arjuna; and how do you know how did Sañjaya know that Arjuna had Viśva rūpa darśanam; Remember, Sañjaya was given a special ESP; special power by Vyasācārya by the special power Sañjaya could remain in the palace with Dritarāṣṭra and he could like closed circuit TV or satellite channel, he could have the total vision of the battlefield and not only he could see the people, it was a special satellite TV that Sañjaya could read even the mind of the people. And therefore Arjuna's feelings and emotions also Sañjaya is able to recognise and therefore Sañjaya gives the description here, which we are seeing now in the 13th verse:

अपश्यद्देवदेवस्य शरीरे पाण्डवस्तदा ॥ ११.१३ ॥
tatraikastham jagatkṛtsnam pravibhaktamanēkadhā |
apaśyaddēvadēvasya śarīrē pāṇḍavastadā || 11.13 ||

the śarīram of the Lord is not a few meter height śarīram; but the very ākāśam is the śarīram of the Lord. ākāśa śarīram brahma. And in the ākāśa śarīram of the Lord; we saw the whole universe which has been divided in manifold ways; in the form of galaxies and solar systems and planets and continents and island; therefore anēkadhā pravibhaktam apaśyanpāṇḍavaḥ; Arjuna saw, thus Sañjaya saw. Sañjaya saw, Arjuna seeing. Up to this we saw in the last class; This is what we saw. We saw that Sañjaya saw that Arjuna saw.

प्रणम्य शिरसा देवं कृताञ्जलिरभाषत ॥ 11.१४ ॥
tataḥ sa vismayāviṣṭo hr̥ṣṭarōmā dhanañjayaḥ |
praṇamya śirasā dēvaṃ kṛtāñjalirabhāṣata || 11.14 ||

ततः tataḥ Then सः धनञ्जयः saḥ dhanañjayaḥ that Arjuna, विस्मयाविष्टः vismayāviṣṭaḥ – who was wonderstruck हृष्टरोमाः hr̥ṣṭaromāḥ and thrilled (with hair standing on its end), प्रणम्य देवं शिरसा praṇamya devaṃ śirasā saluted the Lord with his head (bent low) अभ्यासत abhāṣata and spoke, कृताञ्जलिः kṛtāñjaliḥ with his palm joined together.

14. Then that Arjuna, who was wonderstruck and thrilled, saluted the Lord with his head bent low and spoke with folded palms.

So because of the change of perspective, Arjuna had a great impact, and this impact Sañjaya wants to bring out; and after all he has to describe the impact only through word-pen. If it is a TV programme, there are several method of showing the impact, you can have a background, with dadda daa sound, you can show the whole world going around, you can show Arjuna's face having forward-backward close-up and you can perspiration appearing; but poor Vyasācārya had only poor pen and book; and therefore he had a poetic description; to reveal the impact,

Therefore he says; saha विस्मयाविष्टः vismayāviṣṭaḥ; so Arjuna was struck by wonder; Not because he is seeing a new thing; but he has a new perspective towards an ordinary thing; it is not an extraordinary sight; but it is an extra ordinary attitude towards the ordinary word available; and because of this attitudinal change; vismayāviṣṭaḥ; he was wonderstruck; and this wonderment was so intense and deep that it began to express at the physical level also; because extreme emotions flow out to the physical body; because mind and body has connections;

We had in the first chapter, sīdanti mama gātrāṇi mukhaṃ ca pariśuṣyati; in the 11th chapter also, because of extreme wonderment, hr̥ṣṭaromāḥ, his hairs were standing on end; he was thrilled; so had horripulation or he had romañjaḥ; हृष्टरोमा धनञ्जयः hr̥ṣṭarōmā dhanañjayaḥ; Arjuna and when he appreciated the Lord in the very form of the universe itself.

The magnitude of the Lord is so vast and in front of the Lord, we the ordinary people are speck of dust; so how do we express that feeling; प्रणम्य शिरसा praṇamya śirasā; Oh Lord, in front of you, we are speck of dust; as I told you the other day, if the whole cosmos is the body of the Lord, even solar systems are specks in that planets are still 'specker' or still smaller specks (and I do not know how to say that)

and when planets are invisible things; what to talk of we ordinary dust; and our smallness; how do we express; by namaskāra; therefore praṇamya; Oh Lord, I am nothing in front of you; so śirasā praṇamya; he bowed his head; देवं dēvaṃ, the Lord, कृताञ्जलि kr̥tāñjali; so with prostration āñjali Mudra; with Namaskāra mudra, that is joining the palm is called āñjali; with Namaskāra mudra, अभ्यासत abhāṣata. So it took a few minutes for Arjuna to collect himself, because he could not speak; not Arjuna is going to speak; he is ready; therefore Sañjaya quietly withdraws to the green room.

Now comes Arjuna; with a changed dress; I do not know; we will read.

So now Arjuna takes over and he is describing the Viśva rūpa as seen by him; and Vyasācārya wants to highlight the description of the Viśva rūpa; so how to highlight, if it is in written form, you can have highlighter pen; colour print; you can print in bold letter, you can underline, italics, etc. But in olden days only the palm leaves were there; ōlai; what can be done in that; all those things are not there. So whenever they wanted to highlight something, the method used is to change the metre of the slōkā; so you will be reading in one meter; and when the metre itself is changed, there is a jerk; if you sleep off, you will be woken up; try to read this in the previous meter; so you have to change the very tune; that is method of capturing the attention.

So when Arjuna experiences the Viśva rūpa, he goes through several emotional faces; his responses are different; and we find three stages in Arjuna's response to Viśva rūpa;

The first and foremost reaction or response is vismayaḥ or ascaryam; in fact the world is an ascaryam if you learn to objectively appreciate the world; the world loses its ascaryathvam, the moment you look at the world from your own private standpoint; you have a programme and rain is going to come; then what will you say; even though Madras needs rain; suppose you have arranged the programme; you cannot look at rain as a wonderful phenomenon of nature; in fact you will pray specially: rain rain go away. So therefore rain becomes inimical to you because you look at the rain from your personal requirement mentally and this private vision is in the śāstra as jīva driṣṭi; subjective coloured vision; And the jīva sriṣṭi alone expresses in the form of rāga and dvēṣa; kāma and krōdhaḥ; ahamkāra and mamakāra; And therefore world can never give you wonderment. It can never give you the sense that Arjuna is getting now; Since Krishna has removed the obstacle from Arjuna's mind, Arjuna is no more is in jīva sriṣṭi; he is in the public Īśvara's world, which is wonderful.

Then you may ask: Swamiji; do you say that the world is wonderful; even after the terrorist attack; how can you see that the world is wonderful. I would say still the world is wonderful; you know why; because when you talk about the world; you are looking into only the earth; and there also only the land; and there also only the few human beings; and that too those who have got, what you call, āsūric thinking. If you are going to look at the totality of cosmos; all these devilry are nothing but a mosquito bite only; Even if the entire earth is blown up, it is nothing from the standpoint of total cosmos; a blot appears big if you are taking a square inch but the very same blot is nothing but, if you have got a larger vision.

So we are all the time looking at a few negative people, and especially unfortunately in the newspaper, the only news worth reporting is negative; any robbery it has to be reported; any murder, it has to be reported; any terrorist hand, it should be reported; only news is bad; So many wonderful things happen, they are not worth reporting and therefore we concentratedly read this alone and if we do not have the total perspective; therefore it looks that the whole world is consisting of this only; if you look at the totality, even a world war is nothing but a small pin-prick in the cosmos. And therefore when you look at the world not from jīva sriṣṭi; ahamkāra mamakāra bhāva, Īśvara sriṣṭi; as it is wonderful, in spite of all the so-called evils taking place; And Arjuna has got such an Īśvara darśanam; and therefore he is wonderstruck, this ascarya bhāva is expressed from verse No.15 up to 22; 15 to 22; And thereafter from 23 onwards; the response or emotion undergoes a change; which we will see, when we study that verse; So the first response is wonderment; Anything in huge magnitude creates wonderful; whether it is ocean; or sky, or mountain; or even water falls; Why Niagra waterfalls is wonderful; who has not seen water; who has not seen water falls; but it is still considered wonderment, only because of, the only qualification it has is what: the hugeness alone; anything huge is wonderful; And what to talk of Viśva rūpam; the more you look at it; it is a wonder;

Therefore Arjuna says, हे देव hē dēva; oh Lord; तव देहे tava dēhē, in your body; aham dēvān paśyāmi; I am seeing all the Gods; here the word dēhē, not Krishna śārīram remember, ākāśa śārīrē, Viśva rūpa śārīrē I see all the gods; सर्वान् देवान् तथा भूतविशेषसंघान् sarvān devān tathā bhūtaviśeṣasaṃghān; multitudes of different living beings; bhūta means, living beings, viśeṣa means, different species, right from the smallest microorganisms to the most evolved human beings, bhuta viśeṣa saṃghān; saṃghān means multitude.

Not only I see all of them, इशं ब्रह्माणम् īśam brahmāṇam; I also see God Brahmā, the creator, who is कमलासनस्थम् kamalāsanastham, who is seated on a lotus which is according to purāṇās, the lord is born out of Lord Vishnu's naval, padmanābha and upon the lotus. So that is all symbolic; Lord Vishnu represents samasti kāraṇa śārīram; and lotus represents samaṣṭi sūkṣma śārīram; and Brahmāji represents samaṣṭi sūkṣma śārīra pratibhimbīta caitanyam; So vedantic technical aspect are symbolically represented; if you say samaṣṭi sūkṣma śārīram; pratibhimbīta caitanyam etc. a lay person cannot understand; Therefore have a beautifully lotus, and Brahmāji sitting on it; you cannot ask how can a person sit on a lotus; thus the whole thing is symbolic.

So brahmāṅgam īśam; here īśa is adjective to Brahmā; īśam brahmāṅgam means Lord Brahmā; here īśa does not mean Śiva; he is God Brahmā, who is seated on the lotus; the उरगान् uragān; serpents like Vāsuki, Anantha, etc. indicating I see all the fourteen lōkās in your body. OK;

Now this will lead to a question, when Arjuna saw Viśva rūpam; did he see only the physical world that is perceptible; or did he see other higher lōkās like bhūvar lōkās, suvar lōkās, etc. because brahmāṅgam ṛṣīm divyan etc. is said. Therefore did he see only the bhūlōkā or did he see the celestial world also;

You can look at it in two different ways; here the verse says that Arjuna saw all the lōkās because the word Brahmā is mentioned; Sarvān dēvān is mentioned; dēvās are not certainly here around, they are in svarga lōkā only. Therefore did Arjuna see Svarga lōkās in Viśva rūpa. Once thing we can see is he did not see the svarga lōkās etc. but Vyasācārya is poetically describing that Arjuna saw everything; it can be taken as a poetic description of the Viśva rūpa. How do you know it is a poetic description; why it cannot be taken literally. We say we can take it as a poetic description because, later in the Viśva rūpa varnaṅgam itself it is said Arjuna saw Bhīṣma Drōṇā etc. entering the mouth of Viṣṇu and getting crushed. In Viśva rūpa varnaṅgam itself it is said; all these

Bhīṣma, Drōṇā, Karṇa etc. entering the mouth of the Lord and getting crushed and killed; is it a literal event of a poetic description; if it is a clear actual event; Bhīṣma Drōṇā etc. have actually got crushed; when where is the question Arjuna killing Bhīṣma Drōṇā etc. Since we know that Bhīṣma Drōṇā etc. were killed by Arjuna, So their entering the mouth of Viśva rūpam is only poetic description. Similarly Vyāsācārya describes Arjuna saw all the lōkās; it need not be physically true; it is the uniqueness of vision; he looked at this lōkā as Īśvara's śarīram;

Or suppose you want to say; No No No; it is not poetic description; some people will get disappointed; because they want to attribute something mystic; people want mysticism; NO No No; Arjuna saw the higher lōkās also, then even if you say Arjuna saw the higher lōkās, then remember seeing higher lōkās is not the real important part of Viśva rūpa darśanam; we do not want to give importance to seeing higher lōkās; because seeing higher lōkās will not guarantee liberation. If seeing higher lōkās will give liberation, Krishna need not criticize the higher lōkās at all in the second chapter.

Therefore remember even if Arjuna saw higher lōkās, we do not want to give importance to that aspect. What is more important in Viśva rūpa darśanam is not seeing extraordinary things; but seeing the ordinary world itself as the Viśva rūpam body of the Lord. Therefore remember: what Arjuna sees is not important; how we see is: Viśva rūpam darśanam; the manner of seeing is highlighted; not the object of Viśva rūpam; whether it is ordinary thing or extra ordinary thing; what you see does not give you spiritual growth.

But how you see that; that alone guarantees spiritual growth; and that is why Indra is seeing svarga lōkā all the time; but that does not guarantee liberation to Indra; Indra is also mahasamsāri only; all the time afraid of people doing tapas; therefore seeing extraordinary lōkās in Viśva rūpa is not important; but seeing the ordinary lōkās as the very body of the Lord; that is to be emphasised here; therefore ṛṣiṃśca sarvānuragāṃśca divyān; he saw everything as the Lord; that is to be highlighted.

16. I see you everywhere with countless forms, with many arms, abdomens, mouths, and eyes. I see neither your beginning nor the middle, nor the end, oh ! Lord of the Universe ! Oh Lord with Universal form !

Here things become clear. Viśva rūpa darśanam is not an extra ordinary vision; but an extra ordinary attitude towards the ordinary things of the creation. And that is here beautifully pointed out; अनेकबाहूदरवक्त्रनेत्रम् विश्वरूप पश्यामि anekabāhūdaravaktranetram Viśva rūpam paśyāmi;; I see the Viśva rūpa of you the Lord, त्वां tvām; which has got countless arms; hands; उदरम् udaram, stomachs; वक्त्रं vakthram, faces; and नेत्रम् nethram, eyes; I see countless hands and stomachs; vakthram can be translated as face or mouth. So what does it mean; again remember what I told you in the last class; Do not imagine one Lord standing and eyes all over the body; mouth all over the body (how will it be) stomach all over; it is not, the idea is what: all the hands of all the people; all the stomachs of all the people; all the mouth of all the people; they are all Viśva rūpa Īśvarasya aṅgāni; it is that attitudinal change that is to be noted and therefore only ānanda rūpam; so Oh Lord you have limitless forms. What a wonderful creation they say; one thump impression will not be the same as another; and one denture, teeth alignment will not be the same as another; in forensic department the use this information; and once skull joined will not be like another; what is the population of the world; each one is unique; you know is what; each one is Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; ānanda rūpam; eyes are different; earlobes are different;

So पश्यामि त्वाम् सर्वतद् अनन्तरूपम् paśyāmi tvām sarvataḥ anantarūpam; and नान्तं न मध्यं न तव आदिम् पश्यामि nāntaṁ na madhyaṁ na tava ādim paśyāmi; I do not the middle, end or the beginning. Because the beginning middle or end or the beginning middle and end of the cosmos. Scientists have not yet found the edge of cosmos; still they are struggling; since we have not seen outer periphery of the cosmos; we do not the know physical up and physical down; and if we do not the beginning and end, how can you talk about the middle; because to talk about the middle; what is the middle of the hall; how can you fix; first you have to see the edge; otherwise you can never fix up the middle; so if ādi and antha are unknown; madhyaṁ is also unknown; therefore Oh Lord; you are limitless;

पुनस्तवादिं पश्यामि हे विश्वेश्वर punastava"dim paśyāmi hey viśvēśvara; Oh Lord of the Universe. Viśva rūpa Oh Lord whose body is the universe; Viśva rūpam derivation if you remember; the teaching will be clear; the derivation of the word Viśva rūpa is: Viśvam ēva rūpam śarīram yasya; the one whose body is the world itself; the world bodied Bhagavān; So Viśva rūpa.

पश्यामि त्वाम् paśyāmi tvām I see you तेजोराशिम् tejorāśim as a mass of effulgence, दिप्तिमन्तं सर्वतः diptimantaṁ sarvataḥ shining everywhere, किरीटिनं kiriṭinaṁ – with crown, गदिनं gadinam mace चक्रिणं च cakriṇam ca with weilding disc, समन्ताद् samantād (I see You) all around, दीप्तानलार्कध्युतिम् dīptānalārkadhyutim radiant like the blazing fire and sun, दुर्निरीक्ष्यम् durnirīkṣyam blinding, अप्रमेयम् aprameyam (and) immeasurable.

17. I see you as a mass of effulgence shining everywhere with crown, mace, and disc, (I see You) all around, radiant like the blazing fire and sun, blinding (and) immeasurable.

किरीटिनं kirīṭinaṃ, you have got thousands of kirīṭam; kirīṭam means thousands; how come Bhagavān has thousands of kirīṭam again do not imagine, anything extraordinary or mystic; all the kirīṭam in the heads of all the kings, they are all the kirīṭams of Viśva rūpa; because they all the heads of Bhagavān; and therefore all kirīṭams are Bhagavān's kirīṭam; सहस्रशीर्षा पुरुषः । सहस्राक्षः सहस्रपात् ।; sahasraśīrṣā puruṣaḥ | sahasrākṣaḥ sahasrapāt;

गदिनं gadinam; because of battlefield; all of them have come with gada; and therefore I see You with thousands of gadas;

चक्रिणं च chakriṇam ca; with thousands of chakras; chakrāyudam;

And तेजोराशिम् tejorāśim; and you are an mass of effulgence; naturally the Lord consists of millions of stars, each one is a mass of effulgence;

Then सर्वतो दीप्तिमन्तम् sarvatō dīptimantam; shining in all directions; and directions are meaningless in the cosmos; if you look from the earth; you can talk about east, west, etc. keeping our ordinary Sun as the standard; If you are standing on the Sun; hypothetically, you cannot, what is the east, wherever the Sun rise; standing on the sun; all the east, west, etc. will go haywire; all the dates, etc. will go haywire. Remember, they are all imaginations by a petty mind; in Viśva rūpa all these do not exist at all; therefore you shine all over;

And therefore only दुर्निरीक्ष्यं समन्ताद् durnirīkṣyam samantād; so your effulgence is so dazzling; so glaring; that I am not even able to open my eyes completely. If you have any doubt, tomorrow afternoon when the Sun is in the middle, try to look at the Sun; which is 9 crores miles away; that itself is impossible; so where are you going to see. Therefore durnirīkṣyam; when the mountaineers go into the upper ranges of mountains; it is all over capped by snow; that anywhere you look, there is snow; and the sun reflects and there is a dazzle that if you do not have special goggles, you may lose your eyesight; We are not able to see even the pratibhīm̐ba prakāśam; the reflected Sun; then what to talk of the original; and remember all of them are Viśva rūpa.

And having developed this attitude, go to Badrinath; go to Kedarnath and you see the enjoyment; gets a totally different dimensions; I took the people to Amarnath by mistake; I did not know it was a risk; ignorance was bliss. Nearly 90 to 100 people; by idiocracy; I took the people; and all on the wrong side of 60 years. So later we used to tell Amarnath should not become marnath; मर् mar means maraṇam; and I warned I told all the people that it is an ice lingam; so purely at the mercy of the weather. If the temperature increases there is the warmth of the visitors; it is a cave, therefore the lingam can melt; So we take all the trouble and there you may not get the darśan; I kept warning; and many people came; at the time, OK Ok, they said; and unfortunately, what we did not want to happen; and then these people struggling, going in all kinds of vehicles, mules, etc. and falling from them, struggling and running, and all we see Nirgunam brahma. That is how I consoled Brahman; that is because we are all sādānā catuṣṭaya saṁpannāḥ adhikāri; so but I have planned to enjoy the whole 48 miles or kilometres route which is one of the most wonderful Viśva rūpa of Lord; therefore I never had disappointment; but those who were looking only for liṅgam; liṅgam, and suppose after climbing on the donkey or the mule, and you cannot enjoy the site, because your whole attention is balancing; And unfortunately that person who has to guide, he does not like to walk along with the donkey; he always go somewhere; and then you are frightened; and then you do not know the language; and you scold him in Tamil; sitting on the donkey, you scold the other person; donkey, donkey, etc. but he does not understand anything so therefore neither they had Viśva rūpa darśanam; I walked, I enjoyed thoroughly, therefore I did not miss; What I am saying; after appreciating the Viśva rūpa, go to any one of the shrine; in fact, we have installed deities there; only for developing Viśva rūpa darśanam; That is why we have temples in all unreachable places; otherwise why should there be a shrine in Amarnath; we could have had in somewhere in Adayar; Why did they choose; after-all God is everywhere; the purpose is gradually change the vision; to see the very nature as Bhagavān.

Anyway; tējōrāśim sarvatō dīptimantam why this example came to me; towards the Amarnath last few kms, maybe one or two kms is only frozen snow; you only walk over the frozen snow; therefore if there is a sunlight; then the dazzling sunlight comes; so sarvatō dīptimantam; that reminded me of Amarnath; and therefore durnirīkṣyam; so dazzling, therefore cannot see;

and दीप्तानलार्कद्युतिमप्रमेयम् dīptānalārkadyutimapramēyam; the Lord's whose effulgence is like the effulgence of the well kindled or blazing fire; दीप्तानलं dīptānalam; blazing fire; and अर्कः arka means blazing Sun; द्युतिः dyuti means effulgence; the Viśva rūpa whose effulgence is like that of the blazing fire and Sun; and अप्रमेयम् apramēyam; matchless; incomparable; such a Viśva rūpa I see Oh Lord.

18. You are the supreme imperishable one to be known. You are the ultimate support of this universe. You are the eternal protector of the eternal dharma, I read You as the eternal Purusha

Arjuna's reverence for Lord Krishna is gradually increasing. It is not Krishna's divinity is increasing; Arjuna's appreciation of the Lord's divinity is gradually increasing; therefore he glorifies; Oh lord; त्वं परमं वेदितव्यम् त्वमक्षरं असि tvam paramam veditavyam tvamkṣaram asi; you are the imperishable God; eternal God; both from the standpoint of saguna as well as nirguna; Saguna Īśvara is eternal because remember creation is always there either in manifest form or in unmanifest form; And that is why in the purāṇās and all it is said during pralaya kāla Lord Krishna will be floating on that leaf.

वटस्य पत्रस्य पुटे शयानम्, बालम् मुकुन्दम् मनसा स्मरामि vaṭasya patrasya puṭe śayānam, bālam mukundam manasā smarāmi; You know what is vaṭa pathram; samaṣṭi kāraṇa śarīram is vaṭa pathram; and lying on that means what, tatra pratibhīm̐ba or avāchinna caitanyam;

So māya; māya, māya is vatapathra; vatapathram means not a leaf on which vada is there; vaṭa pathram means banyan tree; symbolic; So there on the māya, the Lord the has withheld the whole creation which is called yōga nidra of the Lord; anyway what I want to say is: the world is eternal; during pralaya it is unmanifest; during sriṣṭi, it is manifest; Therefore even the Viśva rūpa Īśvara eternally exists in avyaktha or vyaktha rūpa and therefore Viśva rūpa is eternal and of course nirgunam brahma is also eternal; akṣaram; And here you can take as nirguṇam also because the adjective paramam is there; You are the highest eternal principle, the nirguṇam Brahmā, and वेदितव्यम् veditavyam; which is to be known by all; sa ātma sa vijñēyah; so when we say veditavyam, one should come to nirguṇam; therefore you are the turiyam Brahmā, jñēyam Brahmā, nirguṇam Brahmā which is to be known by all;

त्वमस्य विश्वस्य परं निधानम् tvamasya viśvasya param nidhānam; you are the ultimate basis or substratum of the entire creation; visvādhāram; gagana sadruśam; mega varṇam śubhāṅgam; sarva adhāram; So nidhānam means what nidiyathe asmin yasya, the support on which everything rests is called nidhānam; param means the ultimate support;

Why do you add the adjective ultimate support, is it not enough if we say just support; we have got two supports; one is relative support and another is ultimate support; for example, when I keep the book on the desk, the desk becomes what; the support of the book; but what type of support, it is a relative support, because the desk itself is supported by something else, the stage, the dias; can you say the stage is the ultimate; no; because that itself is supported by something else; therefore relative support is a support which itself is supported by something else and what is the definition of ultimate support; ultimate support is that which supports everything and which itself is not supported by anything; and according to vēdānta, ākāśa, the space is supporting everything; vēdānta says even space is not the ultimate support; because the space itself is supported by caitanyam; for that one has to go to vēdānta; I am not going to go into the details; because the space itself is subject to arrival and departure; therefore there is locus for space; therefore try to conceive of this; everything has got a locus in space; but space itself has a locus; if you say how to conceive of it; that is called vēdānta; conceiving the inconceivable; Therefore caitanyam is the support of even ākāśa; param nidhanam;

you are त्वमव्ययः tvamavyayaḥ; you are inexhaustible and unchangeable and unaffected by the onslaught of time; so avyayaḥ means kālāteethaḥ; So in all this Arjuna is describing nirguṇam Brahmā; Even though what he is seeing is saguṇa Viśva rūpa, he is describing nirguṇam Brahmā here.

A question may come, how does Arjuna know nirguṇam Brahmā, nirguṇam Brahmā, is in the learning process; for that we should know Arjuna does not know nirguṇam Brahmā but the nirguṇam description found in the Scriptures, he is rattling out. This is called parōkṣa jñānam; he has just like, we do; Sachidānandāya namaḥ; sachidānanda means what; that is not known; but we Sachidānandāya namaḥ, same daily; so nirguna, nishkala, nirapāya, nitya, so nirguṇa etc. Lalitha sahasranāma we chant. Therefore without knowing the meaning we can use the expression. Similarly Arjuna is using the expression, even though he is in the process of learning only tvam avyayaḥ.

More in the next class.

Om

I pointed out that to have Viśva rūpa darśanam, we require two things, one is the physical eyes, which looks at the universe, which is the very body of the Lord; Viśva rūpam means the universe as the body of the Lord. To see the universe which is the body of the Lord; we require the physical eye; and fortunately we are all gifted with the physical eye. But this is not enough, we require another factor also and what is that, the attitude or the perspective by which I look upon this world as the very body of the Lord; which requires the vēdantic teaching that the Lord is the material cause of the universe and therefore being the material cause the Lord himself is manifesting as the universe, and therefore I should not look upon the universe as mere dead matter, but I should learn to train my mind to look upon this universe as the body of the Lord. This inner training born out of this scriptural study and the consequent perspective change is the second factor required which we call by the name divya cakṣuḥ. And I gave you the example, remember, when I get prasādam from the temple, the physical eyes sees the fruit, the banana, the apple or the laddu, and the eyes only reports that it is a food item which has to directly enter the mouth; but since I look upon it as a prasāda coming from the Lord; there is a perspective change by which there is no additional weight in the object, but it gets a holiness, a sacredness, which is discerned by the inner eye called divya cakṣuḥ. And when the divya cakṣu tells me that this is a prasādam, before directly putting into the mouth, first I place it on my eyes. So what brings about this change; it is not caused by the physical eye; it is caused by the inner attitude born of understanding; and this divya cakṣuḥ has been temporarily blessed gifted by the Lord to Arjuna and therefore Arjuna looks at the universe with a totally different perspective; and therefore what was previously seen as a mere matter bundle revolving is now seen as the live and vibrant body of the Lord. And when this change takes place, Arjuna goes through several emotional transformations; because of the perspective change and I said that Arjuna goes through three levels of inner transformation; the first one is vismaya ḥ; ascaryam or wonder in seeing the totality; which totality is all the time available but because of my ahaṁkāra and mama kāra, I never look at the totality; I have only a fragmented vision. So this fragmented vision is temporarily set aside by the grace of Krishna and he has got one God for whom the entire creation, planets stars are all several organs or avayavams. And Arjuna is expressing the wonderment from verse No.15 and which runs up to verse No.22; And in this portion, we are seeing the 18th verse, where Arjuna's reverence for Lord Krishna increases. Arjuna was looking upon Krishna as Mr.V. Krishna; V means Vasudeva; so V Krishna who was born the other day, whose birthday was celebrated with cheedai and murukku; so he was looking upon Krishna as a contemporary and friend but not as the macrocosm and now with this appreciation; Arjuna's reverence shoots up and therefore Arjuna glorifies Krishna with all the words he has heard in the Upaniṣads. Remember Arjuna had also Gurukulamvaasam in keeping with the tradition; brāhmaṇās, kṣtriyās and vaiśyās; all of them had to study the vēdās. And therefore the vēdic description of the Lord is remembered by Arjuna and he rattles out in these verses which we started in the last class:

Thvam akṣaram; in Mundakōpaniṣad, Brahman is known by the name Akṣaram, so अथ परा यथा तदक्षरमधिगम्यते; atha parā yathā tadakṣaramadhigamyatē; akṣaram means nirguṇam Brahma; Hey Krishna, you are not this mere Viśva rūpa, you are one superior to that; Not only you are ēka rūpa Īśvara; not only you are anēka rūpa Īśvara but you are also arūpa Īśvaraḥ; the formless Brahman; which is paramaṁ, paramaṁ means the absolute one, not confined to time space and properties; dēśa, kāla vasthu, paricēda shūnyaṁ; unlimited by time, space and properties; and vēditavyam; and you the nirguṇa Brahma alone are the ultimate truth; which has to be known by everyone;

In the 13th chapter, Krishna will use the word, jñēyaṁ yattatpravakṣyāmi yajjñātvā'mṛtamaśnutē. In Mandūkya Upaniṣad the word used is: स आत्मा स विज्ञेयः sa ātma sa vijñēyaḥ. Nirguṇam Brahma is the thing to be known by everyone ultimately; therefore you are vēditavyam; to be known; and त्वमस्य विश्वस्य परं निधानम् tvamasya viśvasya param̄ nidhānam, you are the ultimate support base for the entire cosmos; you are the sthithi kāraṇam of the universe; and what do you mean by the ultimate support; I explained in the last class; ultimate support is that which supports everything and which itself is not supported by anything; to put in simple language, supportless support. Supportless support is called param̄ nidhānam. Up to this we saw in the last class.

Now we will go to the third line; त्वमव्ययः tvam avyayaḥ; Oh Lord you are the decayless or changeless reality or Brahman; Vyayarahitaḥ; without decay and death. So from this it is very clear that Krishna is not a personal God with a body, if you look upon Krishna as a personal God with body, that body has got asti, jāyathē, vardhatē, viparaṇimatē, apakṣiyatē, that is called vyaya;

so therefore you are the changeless reality; and śaśvatha dharma gōptā; and you are the one who maintains the harmony of the creation; the whole creation is governed by a set of physical laws as well as moral laws; and Lord is maintaining the universe through the physical and moral laws; and we are only falling within these laws; we have neither created them and therefore we cannot maintain them also/ So the gravitational law I have not created; I am subject to gravitational law; I am not the creator. And since I am not the creator; I cannot be the maintainer also; the creator has alone has to be the maintainer; Therefore you are the dharma gōptā; gōptā means the one who maintains; and these laws of the universe are the eternal laws which are natural, which will not be generally disturbed, And if at all these laws or disturbed, there is only one cause which disturbs; And do you know, who is the disturbing factor, the human being. Wherever the human beings enter, they violate the harmony; let them enter the ocean; ocean will be polluted and destroyed; let them enter the sky; ozone holes they will create and destroy; let them enter the forest; they will destroy. So human beings alone endowed with free will can destroy and whenever such human beings are born; Bhagavān maintains the law by paritrāṇāya sādḥūnāṃ vināśāya ca duṣkṛtām. Whoever be the cause of the disturbance of the universal rhythm, the rhythm disturbing factors Bhagavān quietly amputates, eliminates. Bhagavān need not create the rhythm, because it is already there. Just like health, you need not produce health in the body, because health is natural. So what you have to do; if there is any cause, which disturbs the health, then the cause has to be eliminated; once the cause is eliminated; I am in my natural condition which is called health; and that is why in Sanskrit, health is called स्वस्थः svasthatha; sva stha tha means svasmin svarūpe thiṣṭathi iti svasthaḥ; tasya bhāvaha thatha/ So therefore Bhagavān takes avathāra. I discuss the avathāra in the fourth chapter, what is the principle avathāra; We have got a inbuilt system in our body, whenever there is a disturbance, immediately that force comes, like what if something enters my nostrils; some impurity, some toxin, immediately health principle takes the avathāram and what is the avathāra called sneezing avathāra; if something poisonous enters my stomach immediately what is activated; purging avathāra; if something enters my eyes what avathāra comes, tears avathāra; they are inbuilt in the system; they would not come normally; whenever there is a threat, that comes. Similarly Bhagavān is the total order; total harmony; total rhythm, total health of the universe. Whenever human beings become a toxin to the universe, Bhagavān comes as a sneezing avathāra; or tears avathāra, purging avathāra and finishes off them. And therefore he is called शाश्वतधर्मगोप्ता śāsvatha dharma gōptā; gōptā means protector; dharma means the cosmic rhythm, cosmic harmony, and śāsvatha means the eternal. Eternal is adjective to dharma also, eternal is adjective to the Lord also; you are the eternal God who protects the eternal dharma.

And therefore सनातन sanātana; you are always there; ever present; sanātanaḥ त्वम् सनातनः पुरुषः मे मतः tvam puruṣaḥ sanātanaḥ mataḥ me; puruṣaḥ means the all-prevading one, being the universal form, you are everywhere because the very ākāśa is seen as the body of the Lord. Can you tell a place where space is not there? இந்த இடத்தில் ஆகாசம் இல்லை. If you say that in this place, ākāśa is not there; it is a contradiction in terms; in this place when you say, that is called ākāśa; therefore ākāśaless place is not there; Godless place is not there; and that is why somebody wrote: God is No Where; God is No Where; then what did another man do; he made a slight change; how do you write nowhere; SO after w, he put a comma, what happend; nowhere becomes now here; தூணிலும் இருப்பார்; தூரும்பிலும் இருப்பார்; tūṇilum iruppār; turumpilum iruppār; anyway you are sarvagata puruṣaḥ mato me, this is my understanding;

paśyāmi tvāṃ dīptahutāśavaktram
svatējasā viśvamidaṃ tapantam || 11.19 ||

19. I see you (as one) who has no beginning, middle or end, who has limitless power, who has countless arms, whose eyes are the moon and the sun. whose mouth is the blazing fire, and who scorches this universe with your radiance.

अनादिमध्यान्तम् anādimadhyāntam, you can understand; ādi means beginning, madhyām means middle; antam means end. So anādimadhyāntam means without beginning, middle or end, adimadhyanta rahitham.

So based on this only; a great sanskrit poet, great scholar, he was extremely poor, generally where Sarasvati is there, generally Lakṣmi does not along with her; there seems to be some tiff between them! So this person is a great scholar Sarasvati is there, Lakṣmi, money is not there; so he was wearing only rags; tattered clothes; and being poet, everything he can put in verse form; he was looking at the tattered rags and was chanting this verse;

I offer my prostrations to the Lord; who is comparable to my clothes; how his cloth and Lord be compared; he says adimadhyānta rahitham; being tattered rags; you cannot find out which is beginning, middle or end; daśa hīnam; the word daśa has two meanings; one is the end of the cloth, is called daśa; and the various conditions like old age, disease etc. is also called daśa; or even astrological ṣani daśa; rahu daśa; that is daśa. So this poet says; my cloth is also daśa hīnam; everything is torn;

And Lord is daśa hīnam; he does not have any daśa; śani, rahu daśa; you are also daśa hīnam Oh Lord; and my dress is also daśa hīnam; purātanam; my dress is also the most ancient one; and Oh Lord you are purātanah; Then advitīyam; matchless, you are also matchless, and you can never find a cloth like mine; advitīyam aham vandē, madvastra sadṛśam harim, the Lord who is like my vastram, to that Lord, I prostrate; namaskāra; anyway that is a different thing;

Here anādimadhyāntamanantavīryam; you are the Lord of infinite power and ananthavīrya anantha śaktimān, omni potent; by which you are able to create this universe itself.

then अनन्तबाहुं anantabāhum; with endless hands or arms; anantah bāhavaḥ yasya; anantabāhum. Here also you should remember do not imagine one God standing with countless hands hanging all over; That is not the picture; the idea is what all the hands belonging to all the people, really belong to the Lord alone; and therefore all the hands that I see, are Bhagavān's hands, therefore anantabāhum;

Then शशिसूर्यनेत्रम् Śāsisūryanētram; an important one, Oh Lord, your eyes are nothing but the Sun and the moon; Śasi means moon; sūryaḥ means the Sun, because eyes are capable of making things visible; known; because of the eyes alone, things are visible. And similarly, because of sun and moon alone, the world during the day becomes visible; and therefore for me, these are the eyes, for the Viśva rūpa Sun and the Moon are the eyes; and from this it becomes very clear; that Viśva rūpa is not again another form, it is not a special form which appeared in front; but Viśva rūpa is what, the very universe itself; for which the Sun and the moon are the illuminating principles.

सूर्यो यता सर्वलोकसय चक्षुः, न लिप्यते चाक्षुशुर् बाह्य दोषैर्; sūryō yatā sarvalōkāsaya cakṣuḥ, na lipyatē cākṣuśur bāhya doṣair; we saw. Not only that, if you remember Tatva bodha, there we mentioned that every sense organ has got a presiding deity; every sense organ has got a presiding deity; for example what is the presiding deity of the eyes; cakṣusasya sūrya. And since the Sun is the presiding deity of the eye, the Sun becomes the eye of the Lord. So therefore the approach is what; whatever is the presiding deity of my organ, that presiding deity becomes the organ of the Lord; so rasanāyāḥ varuṇah; Varuṇa dēvathā is the presiding deity of the tasting tongue and Varuṇa becomes the tongue of the Lord; So therefore he it is said that Sūrya is the eye of the Lord; śāsisūryanētram;

And next one also you can see, दीप्तहुताशक्त्रं dīptahutāśavaktraṁ; agni or the fire dēvathā, agni dēvathā is the mouth of the Lord. And why do we say agni is the mouth of the Lord; two reason, first reason, in Tatva bodha we have seen vācho dēvathā vanhiḥ; I do not know whether you remember; vacho dēvathā vahnihi; presiding deity of the vāg indriyam is agni dēvathā; therefore agni dēvathā becomes the mouth of the Lord.

This is one reason and the second reason is what; mouth swallows everything svāhā; whatever put in the mouth, it just disappears; Therefore it is a great swallower of the oblations you put all the time, right from the morning; svāhā, svāhā; svāhā; just as the mouth swallows everything, agni, the fire principle also swallows everything, especially during the rituals and therefore agni becomes the mouth of the Lord. And we are going to focus the firey mouth of the Lord aside; we will bring this topic again.

And therefore Arjuna says, Oh Lord, I am looking at your mouth which is nothing but fire; so vaktraṁ means mouth.

And hutāśa means fire; it is called hutāśa means hutam aśnāti iti hutāśaḥ; that which consumes all the oblations; hutam means oblations; aśa means the consumer; the consumer of oblations, and that too what type of agni, dīptahutāśa; dīpta means well kindled, it has become a huge conflagration; this huge conflagration of fire is your mouth, ever ready to take any number of things, ready to swallow anything; and that mouth also I am seeing; And when Arjuna sees the firey mouth of the Lord and therefore he is frightened and therefore turns his eyes away; he closes his eyes, because if you see it is frightening; not only that; this fire is so huge; the fiery mouth is so big that it scorches the whole universe with its radiation. So Arjuna says; स्वतेजसा svatējasā; with its radiation; with its heat,

विश्वमिदं तपन्तम् viśvamidaṁ tapantam; it is scorching the earth; do not we feel the heat of the Sun even during the night; after the Sun-set. Remember, that belongs to the Sun; the Lord; the fire in the Sun belongs to the Lord, we will see in the fifteenth chapter, I am the light, fire in the Sun; and how much heat it has got; not only day time, even now, those who are not under the fan, and those who are not under, they will feel the scorching heat of the Sun, which is 9 crores miles away, and which has already set and even after we are feeling; and what is that; Viśva rūpa you are experiencing. Therefore whenever you are feeling the discomfort caused by humidity, describe Oh Lord I am intimately experiencing the Viśva rūpa; then you would not complain; sho sho sho you would not say; and imagine the power goes; a few days before it happened; and you can see the people running here and there; it is already 10 o'clock and AC is not working, fan is not working; therefore firing the TNEB all those things; why because Viśva rūpa, I cannot withstand. But if you make an attitudinal change, you experience divinity; OK; so svatējasā viśvamidaṁ tapantam.

20. This space between heaven and earth as well as all the quarters are indeed pervaded by You alone. Having seen this wonderful (and) fierce form of yours, all the three worlds are frightened, Oh great Lord.

So the entire gap between the earth and the heavens; the intermediary space between the earth and the heavens; that means the whole place around is pervaded by you; that means what; the whole universe obtaining in-between is your very body; So that is why in Viṣṇu Sahasranāma; भूः पादौ यस्य नाभिविन्दसुरनिलश्चन्द्र सूर्यो च नेत्रे कर्णावाशाः शिरो द्यौर्मुखमपि दहनो यस्य वास्तेयमब्धिः । bhūḥ pādau yasya nābhirviyadasuranilaścandra sūryau ca nētrē karṇāvāśāḥ śirō dyaurmukhamapi dahanō yasya vāstēyamabdhiḥ. The entire space is nābhiḥ; nābhiḥ means what; the central portion of the body is the entire universe; earth is the feet of the Lord; and the upper sky is the head of the Lord; That is why Lord Śiva is called blue-necked Lord, because the sky is blue, which is the neck of the Lord; and all the planets and stars are the diamonds, the ornaments which are worn by the Lord; so when you are seeing the ākāśa, what are you to see; the अलंकृत नीलकण्ठः alaṅkṛta nīlakaṅṭhaḥ; I should see bedecked nīlakaṅṭhaḥ īśvaraḥ; therefore द्यावापृथिव्योरिदमन्तरं इदम् व्याप्तं dyāvāpṛthivyōridamantaraṁ idam vyāptaṁ; by you एकेन ēkēna; so ēkēna means what; without a second thing; wholly pervaded by you; totally pervaded by you.

And not only that दिशश्च सर्वाः diśāśca sarvāḥ all the 10 directions are your body; pervaded by you; 10 directions means, 4 main directions; and 4 intermediary ones; NE, NW, etc. and then Up and Down below; all of them are pervaded by you;

And इदं अद्भुतम् रूपम् दृष्ट्वाः idaṁ adbhutam rūpam dṛṣṭvāḥ; I am able to appreciate this wonderful form of yours; which was there before also. But before I could not enjoy this wonder because I was looking at the universe from my personal angle; the moment I look at the universe as a person; then immediately the world is fragmented; I just divide a certain portion as favourable; therefore rāga viṣaya; and another portion as unfavourable dveṣaḥ viṣaya; and once that private colored vision comes, I can never enjoy; I will be worried about my future; ahaṅkara mamakāra etc. everything will come. Previously I could never stand and stare at the stars and appreciate You; but now I have forgotten myself as Arjuna and I do not remember anything as my possession; I and mine are not there; therefore You alone are.

Therefore अद्भुतम् adbhutam; but at the same time, Arjuna has seen the fiery mouth of the Lord; Everything else is beautiful; all the other areas are wonderful; but he has seen the fiery mouth of the Lord which is capable of swallowing everything; Lord as a destroying principle. Lord as the creative principle, we all enjoy; Lord as the sustaining principle we all admire; but there is a third facet of Lord; not only sṛiṣṭi kāraṇam, not only stiti kāraṇam; but the very same Lord is the laya kāraṇam; which is represented by the fiery mouth. When Arjuna saw the Lord as the death principle, the destroyer principle, Arjuna has got fear also; therefore now Arjuna has got a mixed feeling, one side is wonder; another side is fear also; and therefore he adds both words; adbhudham and उग्रं ugraṃ; it is wonderful and also frightening. So ugram means bhayaṃkaram; I am seeing the terrible destructive form of yours and seeing that aspect of destruction; Oh Lord लोकत्रयं प्रव्यथितं lōkatrayaṃ pravyathitaṃ; the whole world is frightened. If we are afraid of one thing; what is that; tense; if there is any news of any terrible event anywhere in the world; immediately you phone your relative to check that they are alright; let 5,000 die or 10,000 die; my cousin is alright in Chicago; enough; So one thing we do not want anything around is death, either for me or for a few people around; this is the fundamental insecurity and everybody has got this running sense of insecurity constantly throughout and therefore Arjuna says; lōkatrayaṃ; all the lōkās; even the animals have got instinctive fear of death; therefore all the three lōkās including dēvās, asurās; manuṣyās, paśus, pakṣis, insects, even an ant; they are all frightened of You; the death principle, represented by the fiery mouth; Hey Mahātman means Viśva rūpa; mahān; ātma śarīram yasya mahātma; sambodhana is hey mahātman.

21. These hosts of God are entering You indeed. Frightened, some (of them) pray with joined palms. Having uttered the word 'peace', groups of sages and siddhas praise You with complete hymns

How do different people respond to the Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ. So that is described here; सुरसङ्घाः अमि विशन्ति surasaṅghā amī viśanti; all the devas who are all informed people, relatively enlightened people, they appreciate the Viśva rūpa Īśvara and they approach you with prayers; Therefore surasaṅghā; groups of Gods, your devotees; त्वाम् विशन्ति tvām viśanti; they approach you; even though You have got a frightening form, they have understood Bhagavān's destruction is dharmic destruction and it is constructive destruction; and once that is understood properly; it is not frightening. Maturity is required to face death; to face destruction; and the dēvās being mature; they approach you with prayers; केचिद्भीताः kēcidbhītāḥ; there are some other people; they also approach you, not out of admiration or devotion or reverence, but out of sheer fear. different people approach God with different attitudes; wise people approach the Lord, because of understanding; and immature ignorant people approach the Lord out of fear; In fact religion is often practiced because of fear. So if somebody has been doing a puja, and I do it; Swamiji I find it very difficult; but if I drop, I am worried, Bhagavān will punish me; that is what we have told our children; Bhagavān will cut the nose and put chilli powder there; So therefore they have to do; that is why if there are several photos in the pūja room; you carefully show deepāradana to everyone; or else Muruga will come and That is how religion is generally practiced. Fear is required to keep a person in dharmic path until maturity comes; So mother has to use sometimes; even government has to use fear; if you do not follow the law, you will be imprisoned; but it is used until a person becomes discriminative; but later, the fear should be replaced by wisdom-based appreciation. So in the first line, mature ones approach with wisdom-based appreciation; the second-line we are talking about immature people approaching because of fear; therefore kēcidbhītāḥ prāñjalayō; with prostrations; añjali; with añjali mudra they approach; by joining the palms together; that mudra is called añjali; प्राञ्जलयो गृणन्ति prāñjalayō grṇanti; And there are several prayers to get out of fear; So bhaya nivāraka slōkāḥ; so they approach with that; in Kerala, they have a prayer which they say one should chant before going to bed;

Alathur Hanumaane, Pedit swapanam kaanenda;
pedi swapnam kandaalum jnetti unartheenda;

is a prayer;

So Alathur Hanuman; wherever fear comes Hanuman is addressed; I should not have frightening dreams; and even if such dreams come, I should not suddenly get up with fright, it is not good for health and people get heart-attack and die; because of that; So therefore we have got fear removing prayers; so some people approach with those prayers; grinanti; they chant prayers;

And there are some other people महर्षिसिद्धसङ्घाः maharṣisiddhasaṅghāḥ; groups of ṛiṣīs who are enlightened, who know the Lord very well; and nature of the Lord; so maharṣīs and siddhaḥ; siddhaḥ means again great ṛiṣīs; who have got great miraculous powers; those born with natural siddhis are called siddhaḥ;

and all such people also swasthi iti uktva; they declare aloud; they chant; let there be auspiciousness to the world; mangalam asthu; badram asthu; and especially such a prayer is required because the huge war is going to take place;

Now also the situation is going to be like that; in Mahabharata also a war is about to start; though a war is supposed to start; therefore badram; even if such a war happens; let it be the destruction of amangalam; let it be the destruction of evil; let the good be protected; and that is said by the word swasthi; swasthi means mangalam;

And स्तुवन्ति त्वां स्तुतिभिः stuvanti tvāṃ stutibhiḥ; these maharṣīs and siddhas glorify you; praise you; with stothram, hymns or prayers which are पुष्कलाभिः puṣkalābhiḥ, which are complete and comprehensive; comprehensive means the prayers which talk about all the glories of the Lord.

22. Rudras, adityas, vasus, sadhyas, visvēdevas, the two asvins, maruts, pitrus, groups of gandharvas, yakshas, asuras, and siddhas, are all looking at You with wonder.

So Arjuna says Oh Lord this Viśva rūpam is accessible not only to me; but it is available for all the people; who have got the divya cakṣuḥ. As I said, the Lord, as the universe is already there right from the moment of creation.

Viśva rūpam comes into being the moment the world is created; because the world is Viśva rūpam and therefore the availability of Viśva rūpam is universal and if there are some people who are missing, it is not because of the non-availability of the Viśva rūpa, but it is because the cataract vision; it is because of my ahaṁkāra and mama kāra; It is my private projection which is denying me the Viśva rūpam; wherever ahaṁkāra and mama kāra are subdued or reduced; Viśva rūpa is available; and therefore those who have got lesser ahaṁ -mama; they are already appreciating;

And who are they; big list is given; रुद्राः rudrāḥ; 11 rudrās; these are all various groups of celestials; in the higher lōkās. I have told you before, in Svarga lōkā also, several colonies are there; some of them with better facilities; more punyam; whoever has done and then lesser facilities; Indra has got special facilities are there; and these various groups are known by different names; rudrās is one group, 11 in number; adityas, dvadasa 12 in number;

वसवः vasavaḥ; 8 vasūs; They are supposed to be the prominent ones like cabinet ministers; others are like ordinary MLAs and MPs, these rudrās, vasūs and adityās have special right to receive oblations in rituals; they are all called hutabhuk dēvathās;

then साध्याः sadhyas; another group of dēvathās are called sadhyaḥ;

then विश्वे visvē another group of dēvathās which is very big; many in number, countless; so visvēdevas; generally known as visvēdevas;

अश्विनौ aśvinau; another group of two members; aśvinikumāro;

then मरुतः marutaḥ; another group of dēvathās; 49 in number; do not ask me, you are telling as though you have counted them; these are all said in scriptures who has seen; scriptures say 49; but if you say No No No; only 48, OK, you can take 48. whatever you take you take; set of dēvathās;

ऊष्मपाः च ūṣmapāḥ; ūṣmapāḥ means pithru dēvathās;

then गन्धर्वयक्षासुरसिद्धसङ्गाः gandharvayakṣāsurasiddhasaṅgāḥ; groups of gandarvās, yakshās, asurās, siddhās, and saṅgāḥs you should not; sanga means groups; therefore the saṅgāḥ is not the dēvathā; saṅgāḥ means group; So all of them

सर्वे वीक्षन्ते sarvē vikṣantē; they are all appreciating the Viśva rūpa; And not only they all see; they are also in wonderment; like me. They are all wonderstruck; like me; vismitaḥ; means ascharya carithā; stunned. More in the next class.

Blessed by Lord Krishna with divya cakṣuḥ, that means an appropriate mind by which a person can appreciate the whole universe as the body of the Lord; Arjuna is having Viśva rūpa darśanam of the Lord. And I pointed out that Arjuna goes through three phases and in each phase, Arjuna response is different; and of these three phase, the first stage is one of wonder; because anything you appreciate in totality, in mass scale, it produces wonderment. Even though you see water all the time, but when the same water flows in a huge quantity, as Niagra water falls, then it becomes one of the wonders of the world; there is nothing new; water you know; and the mountain you know; and waterfalls also you know; but still when it happens in a huge magnitude, there are five million people or so visiting that every year or something. So what is the difference; anything in mass scale produces wonderment. When you appreciate Viśva rūpa everything is in a huge magnitude; And therefore vismayaha or ascharya is the first response; and that is described very beautifully and poetically by Vyasācārya from the 25th verse up to the 22nd verse, and we were seeing the 22nd verse in the last class wherein Arjuna says not only I am appreciating the Viśva rūpa and all those mature minded people; they are also having Viśva rūpa darśanam; all the time, rudrādityā vasavō sādhyā; later gandharvayakṣāsurasiddhasaṅghāḥ; all of them are vīkṣantē, they are appreciating.

And one advantage is: for this Viśva rūpa appreciation, you need not stand in a long queue, buying Rs.100, Rs.200 tickets; all those things are not required; there is no crowd at all; anywhere you can stand without anybody saying: jaragandi; without anybody saying jaragandi, you can appreciate without any competition; Therefore sarve vīkṣantē; for this I told; sarvē vīkṣantē, without any difficulty and the uniform appreciation of all the people is: vismitāścaiva; all the people are wonderstruck.

Now we are going to the next stage, where Arjuna response changes and that is going to be described hereafter, from the next verse we will read:

रूपं महत्ते बहुवक्त्रनेत्रं महाबाहो बहुबाहूरुपादम्
बहूदरं बहुदंष्ट्राकरालं दृष्ट्वा लोकाः प्रव्यथितास्तथाहम् ॥ ११.२३ ॥
rūpaṁ mahattē bahuvaktranētram
mahābāhō bahubāhūrupādam | bahūdaram bahudaṁṣṭrākarālam
dr̥ṣṭvā lōkāḥ pravyathitāstathā'ham || 11.23 ||

महाबाहो mahābāho Oh Lord ! लोकाः प्रव्यथिताः lokāḥ pravyathitāḥ people are frightened दृष्ट्वा dr̥ṣṭvā by seeing ते महद् रूपम् te mahad rūpam your huge form बहुवक्त्रनेत्रम् bahuvaktranetram which has many mouths and eyes, बहुबाहूरुपादम् bahubāhurupādam which has many arms, thighs, and feet, बहुदरम् bahudaram which has many abdomens बहुदंष्ट्राकरालम् bahudaṁṣṭrākarālam and which is fierce with many tusks; तथा अहम् tathā aham so also am I (frightened)

23. Oh Lord! People are frightened by seeing Your huge form which has many mouths and eyes, which has many arms, thighs, and feet, which has many abdomens, and which is fierce with many tusks; so also am I (frightened).

While appreciating Viśva rūpa, Arjuna happens to see the mouth of the Lord, the Viśva rūpa, which was briefly mentioned in one of the previous verses; in the 19th verse, paśyāmi tvāṁ dīptahutāśavaktram; Lord's mouth was described as a huge conflagration of fire.

And here the Lord's mouth represents the time principle. It is not the physical mouth that is being talked about but the mouth represents the time principle and the time not as the creator principle, but the time as the destructive aspect; Because kāla has got all the three functions; kāla the time is responsible for the origination of thing; the very same time is responsible for the continued existence of a thing; and the very same time principle is responsible for the destruction also. And when you look at the Lord as the constructive principle, the Lord is called Brahmā; when the very same God is looked upon the kāla the sustaining principle, then the same Lord is called Viṣṇu; and when you look upon God as the destroying principle, He is called kāla;

कालाय; प्रलय कालाग्निरुद्राय नीलकण्ठाय मृत्युञ्जयाय सर्वेश्वराय सदाशिवाय श्रीमन्महादेवाय नमः kālāya; pralaya
kālag्नirudrāya nīlakaṇṭhāya mrutyuñjayāya sarvēśvarāya sadāśivāya śrīmanmahādēvāya namaḥ.

When Lord Śiva is described in Sri Rudram, one of the nāma is kālag्नirudrāya. Here Arjuna happens to see the mouth of the Lord, which represents the kālag्नि, the destructive principle. And when a person looks at the destructive principle, one is not going to be happy about it. So naturally the emotion is what; one of fear. So Bhagavān as Sṛiṣṭi kartā, everybody loves; Bhagavān as sthiti kartā, everybody loves more; but Bhagavān as laya kartā, everybody is frightened. And Arjuna happens to see that laya, the destroyer and therefore he is frightened; and this represents the principle that the Viśva rūpa consists of pairs of opposites.

So if you have to worship Viśva rūpa, you have to worship both aspect of Viśva rūpa, accepting one aspect of the Lord and rejecting the other aspect is a lopsided vision; therefore Lord as Viśva rūpa has opposite principles; and if you understand them as inseparable or complimentary features; you will not be frightened; If you see them as pairs of opposites, it will frighten you; If you look upon them as a complimentary whole, it will not frighten you; And what is the first and most important pair of opposite; birth and death are the two sides of Viśva rūpa. If you look at the creation; every moment things are Born, Is, Gone; Born; Is; Gone; Born is Brahmā; Is is Viṣṇu; Gone is Śiva tatvam. Even in this moment, in our body itself, several cells are appearing, existing and disappearing; so if I should appreciate born aspect of the Lord, I should prepare the mind to accept the gone aspect also; our problem is what; we are happy that we are born; but we want to eternally remain. We do not mind other people dying; that is OK for me; when other people die, we quote Gītā; we are experts in Bhagavat Gītā; jātasya hi dhruvō mṛtyurdhruvaṁ janma mṛtasya ca. Birth and death are two sides of the same coin; the one who is born will have to die; but the question is: are we ready to accept when the very same death is going to come near us. Even sometime we are happy to accept our death; but we do not want death happening around to near and dear ones.

So Viśva rūpa appreciation means, I should accept birth and death, both as mangalaṁ; I should not look upon one as mangalaṁ and the other as amangalaṁ; that means I have a lopsided vision; birth is mangalaṁ; death is also mangalaṁ. Similarly growth is mangalaṁ; decay is also mangalaṁ; health is mangalaṁ; disease also mangalaṁ; union is mangalaṁ; people coming together and separation is also mangalaṁ; day is mangalaṁ; night is also mangalaṁ. Thus everything, we should see as integral part of Viśva rūpa; there is nothing undivine to me; nothing that is unacceptable to me. This attitude is maturity. And if this maturity is not there; Bhagavān will appear to be compassionate at some time, and the very same Bhagavān will appear to me cruel at another time; the cruelty that I see in Bhagavān is not the cruelty in Bhagavān, it indicates my immaturity.

And in the case of Arjuna, he is not totally mature and therefore he is not able to withstand the other side of Bhagavān which represents destruction, disease, etc. And that Bhayam aspect is described from verse No.23 up to 30.

Viśva rūpa as a source of fear, for immature people, ignorant people; ahaṅkāra mama kāra yukta people.

So he says here; ते रूपम् महद् tē rūpam mahad; Oh Lord your Viśva rūpam is indeed infinite; wonderful;

बहुवक्त्रनेत्रं bahuvaktranētram, which has got countless number of faces and eyes; vaktram means face or mouth; nētram means eyes; they are infinite in number; not only they are many, बहुबाहुरुपादम् bahubāhurupādam; your hands are many, ūrū; thighs are many; pādam, feet are many; Hē Mahābahō; Oh Lord with innumerable hands; and बहूदरं bahūdaram; your stomachs are also many; your bellies are innumerable; why because every belly is your belly; remember, one Lord sitting with many bellies; every belly is His belly.

But only one part of you I do not want to see; if that comes I will close the eyes; like people going to the movie and if there is any bloodshed or violence; they close the eyes; and then they ask the neighbour, whether such a scene is over; similarly Arjuna has come to a horror movie it seems; and what is the terrible aspect; the mouth of the Lord;

Therefore Arjuna says, बहुदंष्ट्राकरालम् bahudaṁṣṭrākarālam; Your mouth is frightening with protruding teeth; protruding canines, like the sharp teeth of the tiger; when the tiger opens the mouth; we can see the sharp longer ones; Oh Lord You also have that producing task, the sharp teeth, which is called daṁṣṭrā; and when I look that; I thought that they are only for Rakṣasās; but I am in seeing in Your mouth also; and I have read in all the scriptures also that You are compassionate; You are Sowmyaḥ; You are pleasant to look; all of them are falsified; because I am seeing a frightening mouth; and not one or two; tiger may have 2 above and 2 below; but for You, bahu; countless; and दृष्ट्वा dr̥ṣṭvā; when I look at the mouth, with the protruding canines; लोकाः प्रव्यथितास्तथाहम् lōkāḥ pravyathitāstathāham; all the people are frightened of that terrible aspect of Yours; pravyathitāstathāham; means frightened. Arjuna says the whole world is frightened; What about him: He feels ashamed to tell that; he is also frightened; but Arjuna is known for his valour; known for his courage and therefore he does not want to openly admit. Therefore he says the whole world is frightened; and that he is telling very loudly and thereafter in a silent murmur he says: I am also; Like in big function when they are serving payasam; you love that payasam; and that person is going all around except coming to you; Now you feel shy to call that person; so what do you please; please come; this person wants payasam; you call him and ask him; the other person does not need it; but after serving him, quietly you say; give me also some also; that is without the other people knowing; similarly Arjuna uses the trick, the whole world is frightened; तथा अहम् tathā aham; I am also frightened; that is going to describe further.

हि hi indeed, प्रव्यथितान्तरात्मा pravyathitāntarātmā I am frightened at heart, दृष्ट्वा त्वाम् dr̥ṣṭvā tvām – by seeing you नभः स्पृशम् nabhaḥ spr̥śam who is touching the sky, दिप्तम् अनेकवर्णम् diptam anekavarṇam who is brilliant with many colours, व्यात्ताननम् vyāttānanam whose mouths are wide open, दीप्तविशालनेत्रम् dīptaviśālanetram and who has large fiery eyes, न विन्दामि na vindāmi I do not find, धृतिम् dhṛtim courage च शमम् ca śamam composure विष्णो viṣṇo Oh Lord !

24. Indeed, I am frightened at heart by seeing You who is touching the sky, who is brilliant with many colours, whose mouths are wide open, and who has large fiery eyes, I do not find courage or composure, Oh Lord !

So one side Arjuna is appreciating the wonderful form; but even if he does not want to look at the mouth keeps coming; like a frightening movie, if you have seen; the picture comes repeatedly; Like that, it has given such a tremendous impact, Arjuna is going on describing that frightening mouth, which symbolises time principle;

Therefore first he describes; Oh Lord You are indeed wonderful; नभः स्पृशम् nabhaḥ spr̥śam; Your form is touching the sky; nabhaḥ means sky; in Viṣṇu Sahasranama; दिवःस्पृक् सर्वदृग्व्यासो वाचस्पतिरयोनिजः ॥ ६१ ॥; divaḥspr̥k sarvadṛgvyāsō vācaspatirayōnijaḥ (61); divaḥspr̥k or diviḥspr̥k, that is the word here; nabhaspr̥k, divaḥspr̥k etc. means touching the sky;

दिप्तम् अनेकवर्णम् diptam anekavarṇam, You are effulgent; with millions of stars; and planets; You are effelgent diptam; anekavarṇam; you have manifold colours; because all colours are Your colours only;

and again Arjuna's eye goes to व्यात्ताननम् vyāttānanam; he is trying to avoid; but again and agian his thoughts go to the mouth; Bhagavān should have kept the mouth close; therefore he sees the mouth which is vyāttām; vṛivṛatham means fully open; vyāttānanam; I see the mouth which has got fire inside as well as sharp teeth also;

And दीप्तविशालनेत्रम् diptaviśālanetram; I see Your eyes also; which are very large and which are very shining; Your shining and large eyes also I see; and for the Viśva rūpa Īśvara; the Sun and the Moon are the eyes; शूर्यः चन्द्राग्नि लोचनाः śuryaḥ candrāgni locanāḥ; I see the large eyes in the form of the Sun and the Moon;

And दृष्ट्वा त्वाम् tvām dr̥ṣṭvā; seeing this form of Yours; and especially the mouth of Yours; प्रव्यथितान्तरात्मा pravyathitāntarātmā; my innermost heart is frightened; disturbed; tormented; afflicted; antarātmā means the mind; not the ātma; means the antakaraṇam, it reaches the innermost heart of mine;

धृतिम् न विन्दामि dhṛtim na vindāmi; I have lost the steadiness of heart; I am disturbed, I am weakened;

शमम् च विष्णो śamam ca viṣṇo; I have lost my peace of mind; my tranquility is disturbed; I have become restless.

Because kālam has got several negative aspects; old age itself is frightening in old age, everything becomes weaker and everything against me becomes stronger; now we have got immunity against all diseases; systematically immunity will be taken. Every disease around will become stronger; any disease travelling anywhere, I will become very hospitable person for the disease; somewhere someplace sneezes; and I catch the cold; and systematically Bhagavān robs the immunity; one by one the diseases comes; loneliness comes; one by one people go away; till the day you start thinking about all these, it is OK; but once you think what happens;

प्रव्यथितान्तरात्मा pravyathitāntarātmā; I am frightened; all because of kālam; and kālam is an integral part of Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; in Bhāgavatha Lord is often named kālaḥ; in Viṣṇu Sahasranama also the word kālaḥ occurs; therefore I have lost my peace of mind.

दृष्ट्वा एव drṣṭvā eva having just seen, ते मुखानि te mukhāni your mouths, दंष्ट्राकरालानि damṣṭrākarālāni which are fierce with tusks, च कालनलसन्निभानि ca

25 .Having just seen Your mouths which are fierce with tusks and which are like the fire of dissolution. I do not recognise the quarters, nor do I find peace. Be gracious, Oh Lord of lords, who is the abode of the Universe!

Arjuna's mind again goes to the mouth of the Lord; he is not seeing anything other than the mouth;

ते मुखानि te mukhāni; Your mouth which are frightening with the protruding teeth; protruding symbolises the pain that is caused to the individual; kāla as the cause of pain; that is symbolised by sharp teeth; so your mouth is frightening with the sharp teeth; and which are comparable to कालानलसन्निभानि kālānalasannibhāni; which are comparable to pralaya kāla agni.

Because according to the scriptures at the time of pralaya, the whole creation is gradually dissolved; and there are five elements; ākāśa; vāyu; agni; jalam; pṛithvi; these five elements are created in a particular order; ākāśa; vāyu; agni; jalam; pṛithvi; at the time of pralayam; the resolution takes place in a reverse order;

So vipraryayaḥ athaḥ; That means what everything is supposed to be in pṛithvi tatvam; pṛithvi the earth principle is dissolved in jala tatvam; that is the pralaya; and jalam is supposed to be resolved in agni tatvam; and that agni and that agni is called pralaya kāla agni which absorbs everything including the fourteen lōkās; and that kālanalasannibhāni; similar to that pralayakāla agni is your mouth; and when I look at that mouth, दिशो न जाने diśō na jānē; that seems to be pervading all over; that I have lost the sense of the direction; Directions you can talk about only when you look at from the stand point of one Sun; when you look at the totality of creation, East West and all of them are meaningless; even Time is meaningless; Even Date is meaningless; the date in our country is not the date in some other country; If you cross the dateline; date changes; all of them changes; Suppose you are standing on the dateline; of course imaginary line; then all becomes meaningless form the angle of totality;

Therefore diśō na jānē; I cannot think of the directions; न लभे च शर्म na labhē ca śarma; I am greatly disturbed; so I wonder whether you are a compassionate Lord or whether you are cruel Lord; when you see suffering all over; that is why many people become atheistic seeing the suffering. They all love God as long as things are going fine; when a tragedy strikes them; or tragedy strikes some innocent people, some earthquake, you have to include that in Madras; Why Bhagavān creates earthquakes; why Bhagavān creates cyclones; so when you see suffering, then our opinion regarding God gradually get revised and some people even turn atheistic; Maturity is required to accept both aspect equally; Therefore Arjuna himself is reconsidering; I am gratefully disturbed Oh Lord;

na labhē ca śarma; śarma means peace of mind, I have lost;

प्रसीद देवेश जगन्निवास prasīda dēvēśa jagannivāsa; Oh Lord: Be gracious to me: at least do not open the mouth; everything is fine, if you close the mouth;

be gracious to me; Hēy jagannivāsa; Oh lord who is the abode of the whole cosmos.

अमी च त्वां धृतराष्ट्रस्य पुत्राः सर्वे सहैवावनिपालसङ्घैः । sarvē sahaivāvanipālasaṅghaiḥ |

bhīṣmō drōṇaḥ sūtaputrastathā'sau sahāsmādīyairapi yōdhamukhyaiḥ || 11.26 ||

सर्वे च अमि पुत्राः sarve ca ami putrāḥ all these sons, धृतराष्ट्रस्य dhṛtarāṣṭrasya of dhṛtarāṣṭra, सह एव अवनिपालसङ्घैः saha eva avanipālasaṅghaiḥ along with hosts of kings, भीष्मः bhīṣmaḥ Bhisma द्रोणः droṇaḥ droṇaḥ, तथा असौ सूतपुत्रः tathā asau sūtaputraḥ and that son of the charioteer, (Karna) सह अपि योधमुख्यैः saha api yodhamukhayaiḥ along with the prominent warriors अस्मादीयैः asmādīyaiḥ of ours त्वाम् tvām (are entering) You.

26. All these sons of dhṛtarāṣṭra along with hosts of kings, bhīṣmaḥ, droṇaḥ, and that son of the charioteer along with the prominent warriors of ours (are entering) You.

So this is the irony of the situation. When you try to avoid certain thoughts, what you very intensely try to avoid; that alone keeps coming; Similarly what Arjuna does not want to see Bhagavān's mouth; But what is happening is: the mouth becomes more and more prominent; And now he is getting a zoom vision; you know what is zoom vision; previously he saw only from distance; now he is getting a close up darśanam of Lord's mouth. Again remember, here Lord's mouth is what; symbolic of Kālam; And if you look upon kālam as the mouth of the Lord; what is the job of kālam, the mouth; keep on swallowing things; kālo jagat bhakṣakāḥ; lakṣmi sthōya taraṅga baṅga chapala vidhyut chalam jīvitham; kālaḥ is jagat bhakṣakāḥ.

How does Bhagavān eat or Kāla eat; there also it takes place gradually; the dishes are in the kitchen; it is going to be a destroyed by You; it is there in the kitchen; From the kitchen it is served on the leaf; and then it gets even after being served on the leaf; immediately they are not destroyed; after chanting the 15th chapter; Brahmaarpanam chanting, etc. and there also all items you do not simultaneously eat; you cannot; some of them remains in the leaf; and then they enter into your mouth and they are destroyed. Similarly all of us are eatables for Bhagavān.

And some of us are in the kitchen; and some of us depending upon the age, already served on the leaf of the Lord; and some of us Bhagavān has not yet seen; (big leaf you see, the items like pachadi, kichadi, payasam down, etc.). So some of us

Bhagavān has not observed; some of us he has already taken (first heart attack, second heart attack cases) and some of us already in the mouth of the Lord; (we say that I went into the jaws of the death and I came out) and some of us; OK, do not say "us" if you are afraid; some people have been already partially bitten by Lord; All these descriptions are coming; be ready for these details; be ready to get over the fear of old age, death, disease; all of them by understanding that these are all integral part of life; the more we try to avoid, the more frightening it will be; better you meditate upon that aspect and understand that and get out of it.

Now you are getting more description; what is happening; so many people are entering into the mouth of the Lord; because sooner or later, what is going to take place here; remember, the whole Viśva rūpa darśana is Mahābhāratha battle field, and Arjuna is going to start the war; and in a battle, thousands of people have to die; Therefore Bhagavān's mouth is going to become busier and busier and that is symbolically presented here; Arjuna says many soldiers, Oh Lord, are entering into your mouth; so this is poetic description; do not imagine that these people are flying into the mouth of the Lord; it is a symbolic expression; soon war is going to begin and thousands are going to die; and he has got a zoom lens and he is getting a vision of who are the people entering; who have not entered.

all these things Arjuna sees; who are the entering ones; he says: धृतराष्ट्रस्य पुत्राः dhṛtarāṣṭrasya putrāḥ; all the sons of dhṛtarāṣṭra are entering Your mouth; indicating they are going to be destroyed very soon; so dhṛtarāṣṭrasya putrāḥ; kauravāḥ, अमिः amiḥ, these people who are right in front of me;

there is no verb in this verse; you have to supply the verb collected from the next verse; in the next verse वक्त्राणि विशन्ति vaktrāṇi viśanti, to be supplied here; vaktrāṇi viśanti means they are entering your mouth; vaktram means mouth; viśanti means enter; who are entering; dhṛtarāṣṭrasya putrāḥ vaktrāṇi viśanti;

not only the kauravās are entering; I see many soldiers from our side also; it seems after Mahābhārata war; very few people survived; 7 members of 8 members; all of them finished.

therefore सर्वे सहैवानिपालसङ्घैः sarvē sahaivāvanipālasaṅghaiḥ; with multitudes of kings; avanipāla means kings; Because in the olden days, there were small kingdoms; and each kingdom had a king, small king; big king, etc. So avanipālaḥ means rāja, saṅghaḥ, in groups, all of them simultaneously, Because they had powerful weapon, some people say that these weapons can be compared to atomic bomb; because the Brahmāstram description etc. we read in the puranaa, it seems to be some kind of some powerful bomb only; therefore in one weapon, hundreds and thousands die; and therefore Arjuna says; सहैव sahaivā; simultaneously hundreds and thousands are entering your mouth;

And the tragedy is Arjuna asked for Gītā wisdom only because of one reason; the primary reason was what; he could not accept the death of Bhīṣma, Drōṇa, etc. He could not even face the imaginary death of them; what to talk of actual death. Arjuna was trying to avoid. Here in Viśva rūpa darśana; he is seeing the death of all those near and dear ones;

Bhīṣmaḥ; so Bhīṣma, who I love the most; on whose lap I grew, that Bhīṣma is also entering your mouth;

then Drōṇaḥ, my guru, he is also entering even though he is the most powerful warrior; he is also entering;

then there is a good news: Karṇa; No.1 enemy is Karṇa; so he sees Karṇa is also entering; then Arjuna seems to be appreciating and seems to say: Good: well done; deserving, etc. therefore sūtaputraḥ Karṇa is entering; तथा असौ सूतपुत्रः tathā asau sūtaputraḥ; and along with all of them;

अस्मादीयैः अपि योधमुख्यैः āsmadīyairapi yōdhamukhyaiḥ; many powerful warriors, Arjuna's own son Abhimanyu is going to have a very very tragic death; which Arjuna cannot imagine at all; all these people are entering; Hey Krishna I cannot accept this fact.

And what is the most important thing: Accept the fact. It is a fact of life, which we refuse to accept. As long as we refuse to fact, life is going to be miserable; That is why in the second chapter itself, Krishna said tasmādaparihāryē'rthē na tvaṁ śōcitumarhasi. Intelligence is learning to accept choiceless situations in life; as long as we cannot accept choiceless situation, life will be miserable; in fact, education is strengthening the mind to accept the choiceless; and Arjuna is not ready; therefore Viśva rūpa is frightening; Therefore योधमुख्यैः वक्त्राणि विशन्ति yōdhamukhyaiḥ vaktrāṇi viśanti.

वक्त्राणि ते त्वरमाणा विशन्ति दंष्ट्राकरालानि भयानकानि ।

त्वरमाणाः tvaramāṇāḥ speeding, विशन्ति viśanti they enter, ते भयानकानि वक्त्राणि te bhayānakāni vaktrāṇi Your terrible mouths, दंष्ट्राकरालानि daṁṣṭrākarālāni which are fierce with tusks, विलग्नाः vilagnāḥ stuck, दशानान्तरेषु daśanāntarēṣu between the teeth, केचित् kecit some (of them), संदृश्यन्ते sandṛśyante are seen, उत्तमाङ्गैः uttamāṅgaiḥ with (their) heads, चूर्णितैः cūrṇitaiḥ crushed

27. Speeding, they enter Your terrible mouths which are fierce with tusks. Stuck between the teeth, some (of them) are seen with (their) heads crushed.

Arjuna continues to see the frightening mouth of the Lord. I hope that you will not have terrible dream tonight;

So ते वक्त्राणि विशन्ति tē vaktrāṇi viśanti; all these people are entering your mouth; and that too mouth; त्वरमाणाः tvaramāṇāḥ; can they not go little slow; they are all rushing not knowing; like the python, it keeps the mouth open and all the preys; it does not know that it is python, therefore they enter the mouth and the python closes the mouth and swāhāḥ; those creatures do not know that; Similarly Bhagavān's mouth is like the python's mouth; all these people not knowing; they are entering your mouth;

And what type of mouth; दंष्ट्राकरालानि daṁṣṭrākarālāni; which frighteningly protruding teeth or canine;

therefore भयानकानि bhayānakāni; it is terrible; and then when I look into your mouth; what is happening many have entered; Like some people eat this groundnut, you see; some people eat one at a time; Some others do not have patience, some 15-20 they eat together and all of them you do not bite simultaneously; some of them are there in different part of the mouth and some of them are crushed; Similarly like ground nut, many are entering Bhagavan's mouth and some of them have been bitten; I am not saying; Arjuna is describing; and how; चूर्णितैः उत्तमाङ्गैः cūrṇitaiḥ uttamāṅgaiḥ; they have been partly bitten by the Lord; head alone is crushed; leg alone is crushed; stomach alone is crushed; they are all symbolic; again what do they symbolise; different kinds of diseases; taking away different parts; kidney failure; heart attack; pancreas failure; what is diabetics; pancreas failure; kālam has bitten kidney; kālam has bitten pancreas; all these are happening and nobody can stop all these things; in spite of medical advances; none of them can be stopped; therefore better learn to accept them as part of life; so saṁdrśyante cūrṇitaiḥ; cūrṇitaiḥ means what; crushed; uttamāṅgaiḥ means head; uttamāṅgaiḥ cūrṇitaiḥ saṁdrśyante.

केचित् विलग्नाः kecit vilagnāḥ; some people are caught in between;

दशनान्तरेषु daśanāntareṣu; between the teeth of the Lord; संदृश्यन्ते saṁdrśyante; I am seeing them;

28. These heroes of the world of men enter your blazing mouths, just as many streams of rivers flow towards the ocean only.

So this is not the lot of the soldiers alone; but this is the lot of all the living beings; because all of them will have to be ultimately resolved; because life is nothing but avyaktha avastha and vyakthavastha. We have all come; we have to go back to the Lord; and again punarapi jananam and punarapi maranam. This is the very course of life; therefore all of them are entering; and Arjuna wants to give an example; the example is that of the rivers. So there are countless rivers; innumerable rivers on the land; all of them are rushing towards only one destination; even though they may travel in zig zag motion; ultimately, आकाशात् पतितं यथा गच्छति सागरम् ākāśāt patitaṁ yathā gacchati sāgaram.

Why they have to enter sāgaram; sāgaram means samudra; because they have all originated from the ocean only. Even though it appears they are originating from the mountains; remember that from the ocean alone water evaporates becomes clouds, becomes rains and becomes rivers, rivers originating from mountains; Ultimately rivers come from ocean; they have to go back to ocean; all of us are like rivers; we have come from the Lord; and we have to go back to the Lord;

And therefore he gives the example नदीनाम् अम्बुवेगाः nadinām ambuvēgāḥ; ambuvēgāḥ means streams or tributaries; so various streams of river; बहवः bahavaḥ; many in number, nadinām; of rivers;

समुद्रमेवाभिमुखा द्रवन्ति samudramēvābhimukhā dravanti; they are all flowing only in one direction; And what is the direction; samudram abhimukhā; they are all going towards the ocean only; even though in a particular place it may appear to be flowing in opposite direction; Ultimately they will go to the ocean alone; therefore samudramēvābhimukhā dravanti; facing the ocean; they are all rushing;

In the same way; all of us; तथा अमी नरलोकवीराः tathā amī naralokavīrah; all these great warriors; with protective gods and all those things; bullet proof; arrow proof; all of them they are wearing; but in spite of all of them; What is the protection; we only saw; we that America is the most secure and safest place in the world; and they were talking about defence against extra terrestrial attack; if some people from Mars attack, how to send the rockets; so they were reading themselves for Mars attack; but it comes from their own soil; what security? No security will work; when kaala comes; nobody can stop; what type of mouth; अभिविज्वलन्ति abhivijvalanti; which are blazing with agni.

Therefore all naralokavīrah api viśanti vaktrāṇi; they are all entering your mouth;

यथा प्रदीप्तं ज्वलनं पतङ्गाः विशन्ति नाशाय समृद्धवेगाः ।
तथैव नाशाय विशन्ति लोकाः तवापि वक्त्राणि समृद्धवेगाः ॥ ११.२९ ॥

yathā pradīptaṁ jvalanaṁ pataṅgā
viśanti nāśāya samṛddhavēgāḥ |
tathaiva nāśāya viśanti lōkāḥ
tavāpi vaktrāṇi samṛddhavēgāḥ || 11.29 ||

अपि api again लोकाः lokāḥ people विशन्ति viśanti enter तव वक्त्राणि tava vaktrāṇi
Your mouths, समृद्धवेगाः samṛdhdavegāḥ with great speed, नाशाय nāśāya for (their own) destruction, तथा यथा tathā yathā just as, पतङ्गाः विशन्ति pataṅgāḥ viśanti moths enter प्रदीप्तं ज्वलनम् pradīptaṁ jvalanam the blazing fire, समृद्धवेगाः samṛdhdavegāḥ with great speed, नाशाय एव nāśāya eva for (their own) destruction.

29. Again, people enter Your mouths with great speed for (their own) destruction just as moths enter the blazing fire with great speed for (their own) destruction.

So here another example is given to show how all living beings are rushing towards the mouth of the Lord. And here the example is that of small insects and other flies. So when there is a flame; a lamp is there with oil; oil lamp is there; especially if the power goes; you can watch; All the insects they will rush towards the flame; even though flame is going to be their destruction; they do not know; they are attracted by the brightness of the flame; and therefore they rush towards the flame; either they get burned or they get into the oil and they die; So they themselves rush towards their own destruction; similarly here the Lord's mouth is like the oil lamp; and there is the blazing fire; and we are all what; ऋषभः ईशः; is that insect; like insects we are all rushing towards the mouth of the Lord;

So Arjuna says पतङ्गाः ज्वलनं विशन्ति pataṅgāḥ jvalanaṁ viśanti; pataṅgāḥ means insects or moth. So those insects which are attracted by bright object; and generally insects are attracted by the light; that is why even when the easal comes; once in a while it comes; it came here also; whoever is sitting under the tube-light had it; they rush. Similarly we are like insects; jvalanaṁ pataṅgāḥ viśanti; just as the moths rush towards the flame; jvalanaṁ means flame; which is प्रदीप्तं pradīptaṁ; which is blazing;

and for what purpose they go; their own destruction; नाशाय nāśāya; they invite their own destruction by rushing towards the flame;

समृद्धवेगाः samṛddhavēgāḥ; with increased speed; they rush towards the speed; तथैव tathaiva; in the same way; लोकाः तवा वक्त्राणि विशन्ति lōkāḥ tavā vaktrāṇi viśanti; all the living beings are rushing towards You only;

knowingly or unknowingly samṛddhavēgāḥ; with increased speed; as we grow older, speed also increases as it were; for what; nāśāya; for the destruction of themselves.

So thus kāla tatvam is described in these verses as an integral part of Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; therefore accept kāla without resistance; if you want to avoid kaala; there is only one way out; we have to Just as Mārkaṇḍeya embraced Śivalinga and then he was saved from kāla; Yamadharmā rāja, Similarly if you want to be saved from the mouth of the Lord; you should also embrace Śiva; and what is that Śiva; ātma is the only place where dēśā and kāla are absent. Therefore ātma śaraṇāgadi; ātma jñānam alone takes you.

aham tas svabhāvāt amṛteṣu tēṣu;

na punar mṛtyu bhaya abhavaḥ

I do not remember; the one who surrenders to Mṛtyunjaya Śivaḥ; Śivaḥ means ātma tatvam; only in that place; there is no dēśā and kāla; and as long as we are away from ātma, we have to accept dēśā and khāla as integral part; That is tatvam; details of which we will see in the next class.

While appreciating the Viśva rūpa of the Lord blessed by a divya cakṣuḥ; Arjuna initially expresses wonderment, seeing the magnitude of Viśva rūpa; which consists of the whole creation along with time which is an integral part of Viśva rūpa. We should always remember that time and space are an integral part of the creation. In fact, they are the property of the creation. It is not that time and space existed before and thereafter came in time and space; it is not; Time and space can never be separated from the creation. In fact, time and space arise along with the creation; and once the creation is resolved; you can never conceive of time and space separate from creation. And this we can very very clearly see in our sleep experience. When the whole world is resolved in deep sleep state; not only the objects of the creation resolves; once the objects go away; we do not experience time and space also. And again when we wake up; either to the dream world or waker's world, along with the creation; time and space also come. From this it is very very clear time and space are an intrinsic property of the creation. And therefore naturally when Arjuna experiences Viśva rūpa, he experiences the time aspect of the creation also as an integral part of Bhagavān, the Viśva rūpa. And this time principle is symbolised by the, as the mouth of the Lord. The time principle as the principle of creation or manifestation and the very time principle which is cause of unmanifestation or resolution. In fact time is very much integrally there in every object and that time which is intrinsic in the object alone, makes the object arrive in the creation; makes the object grow old, as the body grow old; and make the object decay and make the object die also.

This invisible, all pervading, integral kāla tatvam is symbolised as the mouth of the Lord. And this kāla tatvam is two fold śakti; one is the creative, as well as the destructive power; and if Arjuna had creative aspect of the time he would not have any serious problems, he would only have seen the baby boom; you know TV, they put the increase in population; every second or every minute, a few members are added to the world population; and the primary contributor is our country. Whether we contribute in any other field or not; we are contributing to one thing; what is that; population tick; they will show 1, 2, 3, etc. Therefore the creative power of time is contributing to the boom of the living beings. If Arjuna had experienced that perhaps he would have seen it as a maṅgala karma; if baby is born, they will give only those things will be distributed, it is considered mangalaṁ, but since Arjuna was in the battle field and Mahābhāratha war was to start soon, it is the destructive aspect of kāla, which is prominent in the battle field.

And therefore Arjuna sees kāla tatvam represented by the mouth of the Lord devouring or swallowing a number of living beings including the soldiers in the battlefield. If Arjuna had the totality of vision; if Arjuna had seen the Viśva rūpa as an integral part, having both birth and death as two sides of Viśva rūpa; he would have seen both of them as mangalaṁ. If I have got the totality of vision; since both are aspects of Bhagavān, I can never accept one and reject one; I should birth is also Bhagavān; maṅgala svarūpi; death is Bhagavān maṅgala svarūpi. Union also is Bhagavān maṅgala svarūpi; departure is also association is maṅgalaṁ; disassociation is maṅgalaṁ; growth is mangalaṁ; decay is also equally mangalaṁ; health is maṅgalaṁ; and ill-health is also mangalaṁ. Thus if I accept the whole thing as maṅgalaṁ, Viśva rūpa will not be frightening. So this is one choice you have; what is that; accept everything as maṅgalaṁ; otherwise there is an alternative choice; what is that; see everything as amaṅgalaṁ. OK; death is amaṅgalaṁ; birth is also amaṅgalaṁ. In fact this is the Vēdāntic approach; janma is seen as samsāra;

पुनरपि जननी जठरे शयनम् |
इह संसारे बहुदुस्तारे
कृपयाऽपारे पाहि मुरारे ||२१||

punarapi jananaṁ punarapi maraṇaṁ punarapi janani jaṭharē śayanam |
iha saṁsārē bahudustārē
kṛpayā:'pārē pāhi murārē ||21||

In this verse Śankarācārya has included in samsāra, not only death; he has included punarapi jananam as also samsāra; as dukham as amaṅgalaṁ; And in that vision you should see the association as amaṅgalaṁ; So marriage also must be seen as amaṅgalaṁ; kalyanaṁ you should not say, because everything is amangalaṁ. So therefore see people coming together as also amaṅgalaṁ and of course people going away also as amaṅgalaṁ; then it is a uniform vision; See hell as amaṅgalaṁ; and also see heaven as amaṅgalaṁ; that is what Īśavāsyā upaniṣad says:

अन्धन्तमः प्रविशन्ति येऽविद्यामुपासते ।

ततो भूय इव ते तमो य उ विद्यायाग्ँ रताः ॥

andhamntamaḥ praviśanti yē:'vidyāmupāsatē |

tatō bhūya iva tē tamō ya u vidyāyāgṁ ratāḥ ||

According to vēdānta, svarga is also amaṅgala samsāra.

And therefore we have only two options; accept the whole as maṅgalaṁ; or reject the whole as amaṅgalaṁ; but what is our problem; we want to see birth as maṅgalaṁ; but we do not want to accept death; that is the problem; We want to accept the head of the coin; we do not want to accept the tail of the coin; We want the obverse of the coin; and we do not want the reverse of the coin. As long as we have this narrow attitude; world will be a cause of terror; either totally embrace the world; or totally renounce the world; as long as you want one segment of the world and reject another segment; world will be a terror for you. And Arjuna's problem is, he wants to accept one part of the Lord; the creative principle; he does not want to accept the other part; the destructive principle. And there also he is willing to accept the death of everyone, except a few members; Let everyone go no problem; but Bhīṣma should not die; Drōṇa should not die; Karṇa should die immediately; Karṇa is arch rival of Arjuna; let him go, it is good news; these near and dear one, should not grow old; they should get disease at all; we should always together healthy healthy healthy, together; and together we should go to heaven; together we should go to Brahmaḷōka; together we should go to Vaikuntha. Together we should go to naraka; Krishna says this is not the law of creation; and therefore Arjuna has problem. Therefore we get the description here,

tavāpi vaktrāṇi samṛddhavēgāḥ || 11.29 ||

Arjuna sees the kāla tatvam active; and the mouth of the Lord swallowing all the people and they are rushing into the mouth of the Lord; like the rivers gushing into the ocean or the moth flying into the flame of the lamp. Up to this we saw.

Continuing:

लेलिह्यसे ग्रसमानः समन्ता - lōkān samagrān vadanairjvaladbhiḥ |

ग्रसमानः grasamānaḥ swallowing समग्रान् लोकान् samagrān lokān all the people समन्तात् samantāt from all directions ज्वलद्भिः वदनैः jvaladbhiḥ vadanaiḥ with blazing mouths, लेलिह्यसे lelihyase You repeatedly lick (with relish) आपूर्य āpūrya Filling समग्रं जगत् samagram jagat the entire universe तेजोभिः tejobhiḥ with radiance, तव उग्राः भासः tava ugrāḥ bhāsaḥ Your fierce rays

30. Swallowing all the worlds on every side with thy flaming mouths, thou art licking Thy lips. Thy fierce rays, filling the whole world with radiance, are burning Oh! Viṣṇu.

So what is Bhagavān's response, when he is swallowing people. All the near and dear ones in the world are hitting their chest and crying; All the other people are crying and what is Bhagavān's attitude; does he feel sympathy for those people, who are crying because of the death of near and dear ones; Bhagavān does not seem to have any sympathy at all. It looks as though Bhagavān wants to tell all the people, if you did not understand the law of birth and death; and if you did not become mature enough to accept birth and death, it is your problem that you are suffering; do not blame me at all.

By giving you an intelligent break, by giving you scriptures which will give you maturity, I have given you an opportunity to understand the death, before people die away. In fact, before we die, we should very clearly know what is death. And scriptures have provided enough input for assimilating that; and if we are closing our eyes; அதை பத்தி பேசாதே; அதை பத்தி பேசாதே; (do not talk about that; do not talk about that). You know in the villages and all; they will not like to talk about insurance policy, because insurance policy means you have to imagine suppose some one dies;) do not bring that; that is amaṅgalaṁ; do not say the words: suppose I die; that means what: we do not want to even talk about death; imagining death we do not want.

By closing our eyes to the death principle, we are losing the opportunity to face it and understand it. Scriptures never say that; they say you have to thoroughly understand that; And if we do not grow in maturity; and if we cry for our death or somebody else's death; Bhagavān will have no sympathy at all. I have given you enough scope for wisdom; you did not get that; therefore Bhagavān does not seem to bother about that. On the other hand, Arjuna says Bhagavān seems to enjoy swallowing these people, For Him, it appears to be a wonderful pañca bhakṣya paramānnaṁ.

So Arjuna says: समग्रान् लोकान् समन्तात् ग्रसमानः samagrān lokān samantāt grasamānaḥ like a good eater; who has got a huge leaf in front of him; and in a big feast; varieties of materials, dishes are served. So He looks at the kichadi or pachhhadi on the right hand corner, tastes it; and to balance that; He takes the payasam from the lower right side corner; and then in between takes the pickle a lit bit and licks; and we say; it is really wonderful. Just as a good eater enjoys a wonderful feast; the whole space seems to be the leaf of the Lord. And every object in the creation seems to be a food item because Bhagavān swallows everything.

Therefore samantāt; in totality; so samantāt; stretching all over; lokān samagrān; all the people of the world; grasamānaḥ, the Lord devolves; with what; ज्वलद्भिः वदनैः jvaladbhiḥ vadanaiḥ; with his huge mouth; which are blazing with kāla agnihi; and what are you doing; लेलिह्यसे lelihyase; lelihyase means what; You are relishing it; You are licking your own lips; that is lelihyase, licking the lips;

And not only You are destroying people are who are inside your mouth; समग्रं जगत् आपूर्य samagram jagat āpūrya. So the heat, the radiation of the fire in Your mouth, seems to spread all over the world; so samagram jagat;

the entire universe; तेजोभिरापूर्य tējōbhirāpūrya; You pervade with your radiation; and ugraha bhāsaha; the heat of the radiation; these are symbolic; The kāla tatvam does not affect You in old age only; kāla tatvam is affecting even right now, because every moment we are growing old. That is why we ask the question: how many years young you do not ask; how many years old you ask; between the beginning of the class and the end of the class; you are one hour old; We are; not only you are; why I should put you only in the list; We are one hour older; and that is all what; the heat of the kāla; is cooking; we are all cooked by kāla and when the cooking has taken place to the appropriate पकम् pākam, Bhagavān will have his lunch; and how many years of cooking; it varies; some dishes you have to cook for long time; some of them, for short time; some of them we show and take. And we are all being cooked by Bhagavān and svahāḥ;

And therefore he says तव उग्राः भासः tava ugrāḥ bhāsaḥ; fierce heat of your radiation; प्रतपन्ति pratapanti is scorching, is tormenting; all the people Oh Lord; विष्णो viṣṇō; what an appropriate name; viṣṇu means the one who pervades all; sarvam vēvēṣṭi iti viṣṇuḥ; viṣ means to surround; from that only the word vēṣṭi has come; vēṣṭi means what; that which surrounds the body; so hey viṣṇu; that is your work.

Then Arjuna has begun to doubt the nature of God; because all the time he has heard Bhagavān is all sympathy; all compassion; all beauty; all smiles; this is what His picture of Bhagavān; and when we see here; He is eating everyone; So Arjuna is wondering; Bhagavān is karuṇāmūrthi or Bhagavān is extremely cruel. So that doubt has come.

Whenever we suffer in life, we all will get this doubt, Is Bhagavān really compassionate or not; or still worse question is: Is there a Bhagavān at all; that is the next step. Is the Bhagavān really compassionate is the first question; and the next question is there a Bhagavān at all; so Arjuna also gets into that problem and therefore he is raising a question to Lord Krishna; in the next verse; we will read;

नमोऽस्तु ते देववर प्रसीद ।
विज्ञातुमिच्छामि भवन्तमाद्यं न हि प्रजानामि तव प्रवृत्तिं ॥ ११.३१ ॥
ākhyāhi mē kō bhavānugrarūpō
namō'stu tē dēvavara prasīda | vijñātumicchāmi bhavantamādyam
na hi prajānāmi tava pravṛttim || 11.31 ||

कः भवान् kaḥ bhavān Who are you उग्ररूपः ugrarūpaḥ with (this) fierce form?
आख्याहि मे ākhyāhi me Tell me, देववर devavara Oh Supreme Lord! नमः अस्तु namaḥ astu Salutation be ते te To You प्रसीद prasīda Be gracious इच्छामि विज्ञातुम् icchāmi vijñātum I desire to know भवन्तम् आध्यम् bhavantam ādhyam
You, the primal one हि hi Indeed, न प्रजानामि na prajānāmi I do not know तव प्रवृत्तिम् tava pravṛttim Your function.

31. Who are you with this fierce form? Tell me, Oh supreme Lord!
Salutation be to You. Be gracious. I desire to know You, the primal one.
Indeed, I do not know Your function.

Arjuna asks fundamental questions: Oh Lord clearly tell me; Who are you? Are you sowmya Īśvaraḥ; pleasant compassionate one; or the उग्ररूपः ugrarūpaḥ; the terrible ones;

So first he asks: कः भवान् उग्ररूपः kaḥ bhavān ugrarūpaḥ; who are you; the fierce formed one; the frightening one; the terrorizing one. You seem to be worse than even a terrorist; so who are you, the terror causing one;

आख्याहि मे ākhyāhi mē; May you tell; because now I have got fundamental doubts. Whenever problems come in life; we all will become philosophers. Till that time, Gītā will not be thought; only when problems torments; fundamental questions; why did Bhagavān create. Till now these thoughts did not raise; because we were regularly படைகலிந்க padaikaling and eating. How a mosquito bite or some problem comes, why did the Bhagavān create this world; could He not kept quiet; If at all He created the world, He being Omniscient and Omnipotent; He should have created wonderful world; all are sādānā catuṣṭaya sampanāḥ; Why only sādānā catuṣṭaya sampanāḥ; Why not Mukthās; why can't we keep that; why should there be half-rajyam in the manō rajyam; മനോരാജ്യത്തിലെത്തിയാ ഒരു അർദ്ധ രാജ്യം (manorajyathil enthina or ardha rājyam). So why can't all be gems; wonderful people and whole world is wonderful; no mosquitoes; no diseases; Why should Bhagavān create; and if at all He should create; why should He create suffering also along with the enjoyment; why can't He create only Maja Maja Maja Maja; And then suddenly die; and that too suddenly; pop off; in sleep preferably.

So these are the nature of human beings; problems come, thought of Gītā; thought of Upaniṣad; thought of guru; after two days you forget; again back to square one; called smaśāna vairāgyam.

Anyway, ugrarūpō bhavān kaha ākhyāhi; please tell; and I am not able to withstand this frightening form; therefore namostu; my namaskārams to you; ते त्हे, Oh Lord; देववर dēvavara; the greatest among Gods; you are, dēva sṛṣṭaḥ; dēva dēvōthamā you are. प्रसीद prasīda; may You be gracious; may you cool down; and may you show me a pleasant form of Yours; and not only I am not able to decipher Your form; I want to also know what is Your job; all these things we ask; Who are you; What are you; two questions. Who are you; What are you. What are you means what, the designation; I am GM; I am the President, I am Secretary, I am clerk, etc. Similarly, Oh Lord what is Your designation. So You seem to have only one job. Eating seems to be Your only job; What is your designation.

भवन्तमाद्यं विज्ञातुमिच्छामि bhavantamādyam vijñātumicchāmi; I would like to clearly You; who is the cause of this Universe. ādyam means sṛiṣṭi kartāram who existed even before the sṛiṣṭi and not only I would like to know who You are clearly, तव प्रवृत्तिम् न प्रजानामि tava pravṛttim nahi prajānāmi; I do not know Your function also. pravṛtti means function; because Your present function seems to be only a frightening function; Is this alone your function; or something else; do You do any other good work or you keep only swallowing.

Much is there for human being to grow; how we never think in these lines at all; we are busy thinking in the narrow mindedly doing a few things; and we never try to understand the creation, the destination. And now Arjuna seems to be asking the fundamental question. So Bhagavān is very happy; therefore He gives the answer.

So with this second phase of Arjuna's response is over. I had told you long before; I do not know whether you remember; When Arjuna appreciates the Viśva rūpa, he goes through three stages of response I said; the first response is one of wonderment; ascharyam or vismayaha;

Thereafter the second stage especially when you looked into the mouth of the Lord it was fear or bhayam.

Now we have to enter into the third stage; but before that; Krishna is going to answer Arjuna's question.

श्रीभगवन्वाच ।

कालोऽस्मिलोकक्षयकृत्प्रवृद्धो

लोकान्समाहर्तुमिह प्रवृत्तः

ऋतेऽपि त्वां न भविष्यन्ति सर्वे

येऽवस्थिताः प्रत्यनीकेषु योधाः ॥ ११.३२ ॥

śrībhagavānuvāca

kālō'smi lōkakṣayakṛt pravṛddhō

lōkān samāhartumiha pravṛttaḥ |

ṛtē'pi tvāṃ na bhaviṣyanti sarvē

yē'avasthitāḥ pratyānikēṣu yōdhāḥ || 11.32 ||

32. The Lord said – I am the mighty Time, the destroyer of the world. I am proceeding to destroy the people here. All the warriors who are arrayed in both the armies will cease to exist even without you.

Sri Bhagavān uvāca; the Lord answered Arjuna's question asked in the previous verse. So he asked two questions: Who are You and What is your function. He answered the first question;

Kālahā asmi; I am the Kāla tatvam also; which is an integral part of the relative world; that is why in Vēdānta; we talk about two planes of reality;

one is called vyāvahāriha satyam;

and other is called pāramārthika satyam;

vyāvahāriha satyam is a plane in which time principle is integral, intrinsic, inherent feature aspect and therefore in vyāvahāriḥ plane and everything will have corresponding opposite. So arrival-departure, growth-decay; union-disassociation; birth-death; it is an integral part which is called vyāvahāriḥ satyam.

And Vēdāntins advice is what; with regard to vyāvahāriḥ satyam, we have only two option; either you accept it totally or you reject it totally; it seems in one aircraft; aero-plane, in Indian Airlines or Air India; a personal was traveling, he used to travel in other flights which are all advanced; and they give varieties of food in the flight; And they ask for varieties of choices also; do you want this or that; and whatever he names, they give; and in this flight, this person; brought the food and asked the passenger; this is the food and would you like to taste; and then that passenger; Do we have choice; then the airhostess perhaps said you have choice; what choice he said; Yes or No; So no choice for idli or dosa or veg or non-veg etc.; Do you want or not; that is your choice. Like that; with regard to the world you have got only one choice; the whole thing should be accepted as one peace as divine; or the whole thing should be rejected; So this is called vyāvahāriḥ satyam;

And the other one is called pāramārthika satyam where there is no time; there is no space; and therefore there is no pairs of opposite also; anyathra dharmāt; anyathra adharmāt; dhamam is not; adharmam is also not there; good is not there; bad is also not there; birth is not there; death is also not there; na jāyatē mriyatē vā kadācit nāyaṃ bhūtvā bhavitā vā na bhūyaḥ.

Therefore either vote for pāramārthika and reject the vyāvahāriha totally or you learn to accept the vyāvahāriha totally; only one side you cannot take; அந்த கதை நடக்காது; that story will not work. And one thing; for total rejection also you require mental strength; total renunciation requires mental strength; You have to renounce everything; so enemies also renounce; that we happily do; but Vēdānta says; renounce friends also; diseases you renounce; health also you renounce; disassociation you renounce; association also renounce; death you renounce; birth also you renounce. Total renunciation requires inner strength; total acceptance also requires inner strength. Both requires strength; Vēdānta says that strength you get only from one source; and that is self-knowledge. Ātma jnanam gives you that inner strength; by which either you can accept everything or you can reject everything; You choose grihastha āśrama; you have to accept people coming; and people going; children are born, you enjoy their association; and for education after marriage etc. they go away; you have to accept what; totally the creation. Or take sanyāsa āśrama; in which you renounce everything; but partial acceptance is not acceptable; partial rejection is also not acceptable;

Therefore Krishna says अहम् कालः अस्मि aham kālaḥ asmi

aham kālaḥ asmi; so vyāvahāriha drishtya; I am kāla tatvam; pāramārthika drishtya; I am kālātitha tatva; and as kāla tatvam; I have got two fold function; What are they; creating and destroying; And here what is the context; Mahābhāratha battlefield and therefore Krishna says; lōka kṣaya krit; now prominently I am doing the job of destruction; so loka kṣakrit means the destructive principle;

प्रवृद्धः pravṛddhaḥ means which has been activated now; because in Mahābhāratha battlefield; destruction is going to take place in a mass magnitude. And therefore pravṛddhaḥ means activated destroying principle; because in lakhs; like earthquake; not in one or two; a few thousands svahaḥ; cyclone, another few thousands; therefore there Kāla tatva is what; pravṛddhaḥ; activated time principle;

And why have I come here; Krishna says: iha pravṛddhaḥ; here I have come and engaged myself in the job of लोकान् इह समाहृतम् lokān iha samāhṛtum; in the job of destroying all these people, eleven akṣouhini; of Kaurav army and seven akṣouhini of Pāndāva army, and thousands and millions and only a few people are going to survive; who can be counted; one digit; seven or eight; in Mahābhāratha it is given; How many survived; so I am engaged in that activity.

And then Krishna gives the warning; Arjuna, this is going to happen whether you decide to start the war or whether you decide against the war; Because I have decided to destroy; whether you want to cooperate with Me or not; if you are not there; like if one tyre is punctured; what do you do; you do not stop the journey; with another tyre.

So therefore Krishna gives a warning to Arjuna; ऋतेऽपि त्वां ṛtē'pi tvām; even if you are not there; even without your involvement in the Mahābhāratha battle;

सर्वे न भविष्यन्ति sarvē na bhaviṣyanti; all these people have to disappear. The time has come for the world to be vacated of a huge mass of people; and who are they;

येऽवस्थिताः yē'vasthitāḥ; all the people; the ocean of humanity that is in front of you; belonging to प्रत्यनीकेषु योधाः pratyānikēṣu yōdhāḥ; means soldiers who are present in both the armies; No doubt your army is standing for dharma; and the opposite army is standing for adharma; it is dharmādharma yuddam only but still even on the dharmic side; inspite of dharma being with you; many people in your army also will have to die; That is why pratyānikēṣu; anikam means army; prathi means on both sides; Soldiers on both sides have to perish; there is no way out; there prarabdhā is over. And therefore what; Arjuna carefully note.

तस्मात्त्वमुत्तिष्ठ यशो लभस्व
जित्वाशत्रून्भुङ्क्व राज्यं समृद्धम् ।
मयैवैते निहिताः पूर्वमेव निमित्तमात्रं भव सव्यसाचिन् ॥ ११.३३ ॥

tasmāt tvamuttiṣṭha yaśō labhasva
jitvā śatrūn bhuṅkṣva rājyaṃ samṛddham |

mayāivaitē nihatāḥ pūrvamēva

nimittamātram bhava savyasācin || 11.33 ||

तस्मात् tasmāt therefore त्वम् उत्तिष्ठ tvam uttiṣṭa get up लभस्य यशः labhasya yaśaḥ (and) attain fame जित्वा शत्रून् jitvā śatrūn conquering the enemies, भुङ्क्स्व bhukṣva enjoy, समृद्धम् राज्यम् samṛddham rājyam the prosperous kingdom, एव एते eva ete indeed पूर्वम् एव pūrvam eva they have been already निहताः मया nihatāḥ mayā killed by Me भव निमित्तमात्रम् nimittamātram bhava be a mere instrument, सब्यसाचिन् sabyasācin (ambidextrous bowman) Arjuna.

33. Therefore get up (and) attain fame. Conquering the enemies, enjoy the prosperous kingdom. Indeed, they have been already killed by Me. Be a mere instrument Oh ! Arjuna, the ambidextrous bowman.

Therefore Arjuna whether you are going to get involved in this battle or not; the time has come for all these people to perish. If you are going to be involved; the advantage is you will get the name and fame for fighting on the side of dharma, The name and fame will not come to the Lord; but people will say Arjuna fought for dharma and Arjuna established dharma; You will get name and fame; if you fight this battle. And if you run away; anyway the result is going to be the end of this people in one way or the other. Bhagavān has got other methods of destruction; It is not a very big deal at all for Bhagavān; if you run away also; these people will have to die in one form or the other; And the result will be what; For your running away, you will get a bad name; because a kṣatriya has relinquished his duty, which is called a prathyavāya dōṣa; which is called omission; you will have ill-fame and you will even have pāpam. But either way these people are going to be destroyed. Therefore which is better; You join and do your duty;

Therefore he says; तस्मात् Tasmāt; therefore, means wherefore; since the time has come for these people to disappear from earth; and since I am going to remove them anyway from the face of the earth; and not only that; यशो लभस्व yaśō labhasva; I am not interested in name and fame. Bhagavān wants to get the things done. So I am not interested; you can take the name and fame;

त्वम् उत्तिष्ठ tvam uttiṣṭa; you get up and cooperate with Me; tvam uttiṣṭa;

how; शत्रून् जित्वा śatrūn jitvā; so by winning over; by becoming victorious; by defeating your enemies; jitvā means defeating your enemies; and not only you will defeat your enemies and get name and fame; समृद्धम् राज्यं भुङ्क्व samṛddham rājyaṃ bhuṅkṣva; you can enjoy the prosperous kingdom which you have lost; and you are struggling in the forest; without even proper bedding; no mosquito net; No A/c; all suffering you are undergoing; you can enjoy the kingdom; and मयैवेते निहिताः पूर्वमेव mayavaitē nihitāḥ pūrvamēva; all these people have been already destroyed by Me; because their prarabhdā karma is over and therefore the means of destruction alone can vary; but the end of destruction is going to anyway happen; which is My department; therefore ētē pūrvamēva nihitāḥ; therefore you do not require a big brahmāstram; simple bow and arrow with which you played in the childhood in dramas etc; with the coconut leaf broomstick material; that is enough. So Rāvaṇa will be standing there and Rāma will be there with the broomstick, and instruction has been given that, the moment Rāma releases, Rāvaṇa has to fall; therefore instructions are very clear; when this boy shoots and that broomstick falls down only and whether it goes or not; Rāvaṇā has to suddenly fall; similarly Arjuna; you do not require Pāśupathāstram and brahmāstram and all those things; you have to go through motions and these people will go;

mayiva etē; etē, all these soldiers; pūrvamēva nihitāḥ; they have been destroyed; and therefore हे सव्यसाचिन् hē savyasācin; Arjuna; so the one who can shoot the arrows with the left hand also; savyam means left hand; So savyēna hastēna saiiithum sheelam asya asthi iti savyasācin; that means what he can shoot with right hand also and left hand also; ambi-textorous; the one who can use both hands equally well; and therefore even if you use your left hand; it does not matter; you just act, and they will all fall.

Like that Mulla; Nasuruddin Mulla have you heard; Mulla was telling; he had invited some guest; and he had shown some trophies; So various parts of the wild animals;

some animal's nakham; that nails he had kept; various parts also; so then this person went through and saw and he asked; I saw various parts of the body of the animals; but I do not see the head at all; you are a great hunter; you seems to have destroyed all these animals; I do not seem to see at all. Then Mulla said: I could have done that; but when I went for hunting; the head was already taken by somebody; what is the meaning; he has not killed a single animal. Like that; you have to be only like Mulla; I have already finished them; and therefore your job is what; निमित्तमात्रं सव्यसाचिन् भव nimittamātram savyasācin bhava; may you become a simple instrument in My hands; Do not protest; do not run away from the battlefield; do not be frightened; you can never escape from this eventuality; therefore better you become my instrument for the destruction; So nimitham means instrument;

And this line is a very very often quoted line; nimitha mātram bhava; nimitha mātram bhava; but this line is often quoted in a different context, and therefore we have to understand this line properly. When we read in this context, it look as though Arjuna is only an instrument in the hand of the Lord; he seems to be only a puppet in the hands of the Lord and it looks as though the Lord is getting everything done even in advance; because he says: there is a expression also; मयैवैते mayaivaitē pūrvamēva nihitāḥ; pūrvam is an important word; pūrvam eva means what; earlier itself it is written on their head; that they have to die; I have already decided. And therefore it looks as though everything is pre-determined by the Lord; which we call as destiny; தலயில் எழுத்து; talayil eḷuttu; that means at the end of the class we should reach home or not has already been predetermined by the Lord; and it looks as though human beings do not have any choice at all; and then we have got enough slōkās and statements that everything is destined; everything is already written;

ललट लिखिता रेखा, परिमार्तुम् न शक्यते ॥ hariṇāpi harēṇāpi brahmaṇāpi surairapi । lalaṭa likhitā rēkhā, parimārtum na śakyatē ॥

It is all destiny-oriented slōkā; lalāta likhithā rēkhā; means what; தலயில் எழுத்து talayil eḷuttu; what is written on your head; or what is in your jātakam or what is on your palm, all these are pre-determined; even Hari cannot change; Hari means Viṣṇu cannot change the destiny; Harēṇāpi, Śiva cannot change destiny; Brahmaṇāpi; Brahmāji cannot change destiny; Suraiḥ api; even Gods cannot change the destiny. That means fundamental question is what: if even they cannot change the destiny; where is the question of I changing the destiny; so thus these two lines of the 11th chapter, will give a big boost to the fatalistic people; already they are fatalistic. This line is halwa for them; what is there in our hands Sir; everything has been pre-determined; we are all humble simple puppets in the hands of the Lord. He is kapada-nātaka sūtra dhāri; and He is pulling the string and we are dancing on the stage; and therefore the conclusion will be what: there is no free-will at all. There is no free-will at all, it appears; therefore is only one doer; who is the doer; Bhagavān alone is the doer of everything; Bhagavān determines everything; there is nothing in our hands at all. This will be the wrong conclusion which can come out of these two lines. And therefore I have to spend some time to eliminate these false idea of fatalism and we have to reinstate the freewill. Human beings do have the freewill to handle things; and how to do that; and if you do not accept the freewill; what all will be the consequences, we should carefully understand, which we will do in the next class.

Om

Appreciating the Viśva rūpa of the Lord, Arjuna went through two emotions; the first emotion was one of wonder; ascharyam or vismayaha; and the second was fear or bhayam; because he saw the Lord destroying everything. And the seeing the destructive aspect of the Lord; Arjuna had a fundamental question; whether the Lord is really compassionate at all; as he is described in the scriptures, and therefore he puts a question to the Lord; Who are you? What is your function? And Lord Krishna is answering Arjuna's questions in these verses beginning with the 32nd up to verse no.34; three verses; And there Lord Krishna said in the third second verse; we saw: That I am the kāla tatvam; because kāla or time is non-separate from the universe; if universe is My body; time is also an integral aspect of Mine; And therefore from the standpoint of time, I am called kālaḥ; I am called Yamaḥ; the one who controls the movement or controls all the processes of the creation; Yamaḥ means etachathi niyachathi iti Yamaḥ; all controller is called Yamaḥ;

यमाय नमः । यमाय धर्मराजाय मृत्यवे चान्तकाय च । वैवस्वताय कालाय सर्वभूत-क्षयाय च ॥ yamāya namaḥ | yamāya dharmarājāya mṛtyavē cāntakāya ca | vaivasvatāya kālāya sarvabhūta-kṣayāya ca || (somewhere it comes!). In daily Sandhyāvandanam; Yama namaskāra is a part because the Lord as kāla tatvam is called Yama. Yama controls everything perfectly according to the universal laws. Therefore he is called Yamayā dharmarājāya; Yama never knows injustice and therefore You Lord; who are You when he asked Lord Krishna said that I am the kāla tatvam; yama tatvam. And then he said now I am going to destroy all the warriors or soldiers belonging to both the sides; because there kālam has come; their prarabdha is over; and therefore they have to die, according to the law of karma.

And when Bhagavān has to kill the people according to the law of karma; He does not come with pistol or sword; He finds some other means; வல்லவனுக்கு புல்லும் ஆயுதம்; so He can use anything to destroy. And Arjuna, I thought I will give you an opportunity to become My instrument; and if you become an instrument; the advantage is: I will get my job done and you will get parama vīra cakra and maha vīra cakra; I have already Sudarśana cakra; that is enough for me; and I do not any other cakra; therefore He made a crucial statement, which we have to analyse; nimittamātram bhava; May you simply become my instrument. These people are already dead and gone; and if we superficially study these two lines, we will get this idea; That everything is already determined by God, because Bhagavān clearly says I have killed them; which means destruction has already taken place; even before Arjuna's started the war; therefore the idea of pre-determinism; that everything being determined in advance; that seems to be one idea conveyed; which is otherwise called fatalism;

Everything is already determined; we do not do anything at all; this is one thing;

And the second idea that is conveyed is Krishna uses the word nimittamātram; be only an instrument; in my hands; from which we get the idea that we are all only puppets or instruments; Bhagavān is the ultimate controller; and we have also the word like Kapada Nāṭaka Sūtra Dhāri. So Bhagavān holds the strings of the puppets and our hands and legs move; நான் அசைத்தால் அசையும் அகிலம் எல்லமே nāṅ acaittāl acayum akilam ellamē; அறிவாய் மனிதா ஆணவம் பெரிதாய்; arivāy manitā āṅavam peritāy; cinema song; So all these lines also come handy; So therefore, அவன் இன்றி ஓர் அணுவும் அசையாது. avaṅ iṅṅi ōr aṅuvum acaiyātu; we are all puppets in the hands of the Lord; we are instruments; அவன் ஆட்டறான், நான் ஆடறேன் .avaṅ āṅṅarāṅ, nāṅ āṅṅarēṅ. So this fatalistic idea; the idea of determinism comes and therefore we have to be very careful in reading this.

And we should mainly understand our śāstra does not accept fatalism. Our śāstras totally reject fatalism; our śāstras do not look upon ourselves as puppets in the hands of the Lord; because to say that we are puppets means, that we do not have a freewill at all. Therefore the theory of fatalism is the rejection of freewill for the human being and this is against the teaching of the śāstram.

Therefore remember; fatalism is to be rejected outright; but we should be very careful; when we reject fatalism; We are not rejecting fate; we are making a very subtle difference; when we are rejecting fatalism; we are not rejecting fate; what is the difference; I am going to say: the difference I will tell you.

Fate is very much accepted by Śāstras. Fate is defined as the result of the actions that we have done in the past; in the past of this janma; as well as the past of the previous janmas; All those karma phalam is called fate. Śāstras accepts fate as karma phalam; which is otherwise known as destiny; which is otherwise called prārabhdam; which is otherwise called daivam; which according to our tradition is indicated by our horoscope. Therefore the planetary position at the time of birth; they are indicators of our prārabdha; which prarabdha influences our life.

We never say planets influence our life; very careful; planets do not influence our life; stars do not influence; the Sun does not influence; then what influences; prārabhdam influences, which prārabdham is indicated by the planetary position; like if you have got a fuel meter in the car; it has got green shade; yellow and red; and that indicates whether your fuel is sufficient; or it is about to get over; or zero. Now that fuel meter is not responsible for the running of the car; It is not the meter is pushing the car; the fuel-meter is the indicator of the petrol, which petrol alone is responsible for the movement of the car; the meter is the indicator; but not the influencer. Similarly stars or indicators of the prarabdha; they are not influencers of your life. And who influences; prārabdha influences; it is fate; it is accepted.

And what is the difference between fate and fatalism. According to our śāstra, fate is one the factors which influences your life; fate is not the only influencer of your life; If you say fate alone determines everything, it is called fatalism; if you say fate alone determines everything, it is fatalism; But what does śāstra say fate is one of the factors. In addition to fate there is another factor which influences your life; That is called freewill or puruṣārta; therefore if you fate and freewill together defines your future; it is śāstra. If you say fate and freewill together decides your future; it is śāstra. If you say fate alone decides; it is called fatalism. In fatalism; freewill is rejected. In fatalism; freewill is rejected and rejecting the freewill the fatalistic people say that everything is determined by destiny in advance; or they use the expression everything is pre-determined by God's will; He has written everything before itself.

Now what are the problems if you accept this theory; we should know. Suppose we say everything is decided by God; and you say God's Will alone exist; and all of us are only instruments in the hands of the Lord; What will be the problem in this theory. There are certain minor advantages; That we will see first; the problems we can see later; there are certain minor advantages in the theory; The great advantage is, you need not take responsibility for your atrocities; As somebody nicely said; To err is human; To put the blame on someone else is more human. Therefore when we are facing problems and when we do not take responsibility for our mistake and when we are looking for some scapegoat on whose head we can put the akṣathai; This theory is very nice; and we can say that He has done all the akramams; you can put the blame on God; it becomes an escapist route; For the fatalistic people, there is a beautiful route of escapism; they can avoid guilt. That is one thing; and that is incidental.

And there is another minor positive advantage; which is useful; And what is that? When you say everything is done by God; and we have got reverence for God and since we know that God is always just only; God cannot never be unjust at any time; this theory is useful to accept the sufferings of life; It is a useful technique to accept the suffering and therefore in śāstra; fatalism is sometimes temporarily employed to help in accepting the problem. And you tell that Bhagavān has got some purpose in giving the suffering; it must be meant for my purification. As a very nice saying goes: Bhagavān brings you under water often; not for drowning, but for cleansing; And therefore, துன்பு படத்தில் இட்டு, தூயவானாக்கி வைத்தாய்; tuṅpa puṭattil iṭṭu, tūyavāṇākki vaittāy; Bhagavān's will I think; Oh Lord You are giving me suffering only for purifying me; thus the fatalism is with a limited purpose employed on occasions. In fact Rāma himself employs this method; when he has to go to forest; and Lakṣmaṇa is fuming with anger; He has taken his sword out and he says I want to cut the head of the old man; You know who is the old man; मातृ देवो भवः । पितृ देवो भवः mātṛ dēvō bhavaḥ | pitṛ dēvō bhavaḥ; They are all out; Lakṣmaṇa is so wild; when a person is so wild and incapable of accepting the choiceless situation; temporarily, it is applied often. Even the scriptures Rama himself talks as though fatalism; so these are all temporary advantage for fatalism; But we should remember, on real enquiry fatalism is not accepted by śāstra.

Śankarācārya also repeatedly tells in his commentary; any perspective you give which dismisses free will, we should not accept; Any perspective; any interpretation which rejects freewill should not be accepted. Śankarācārya discusses this in his commentary on indriyasyēndriyasyārthē rāgadvēṣau vyavasthitau; in third chapter, there two verses Śankarācārya also tells; if you reject freewill and you say everything is God's will; what are the problems; we are coming to that; I am going to mention 6 problems.

The first problem is this. If you say God is doing everything; and we are only instruments; God becomes kartā; and we are all kāraṇam; kāraṇam means instrument. And according to the Law of Karma; the rule is yaha kartā bhavathi; can you fill up the blanks; saha eva boktā bhavathi; whoever is the doer of any action, he and he alone must reap the karma phalam in the form of puṇyam and pāpam. Therefore if you say Bhagavān is the ultimate doer of all actions; All the puṇyas and pāpams would go to Bhagavān; and not the action of one person; all the actions including the WTC attack; all the pāpams, murder, stealing; all of them; are all His actions. We just told that; எல்லாம் அவன் செயல் ellām avaṇ ceyal; all the sañcita, agāmi prārabhda karmas will go to Bhagavān and whoever has got puṇya pāpa karma is a samsāri and therefore what is the first absurdity of this theory; Bhagavān will become Mahāāā samsāri; because of all the karmās happening all over will go to the poor Bhagavān. This is absurdity No.1.

And the second thing is what: whether it is absurdity or advantage, I do not know; Since we are all instruments only, instruments will never get any karma phalam; the instruments will never get the karma phalam; because it is only kāraṇam; and not kartha. If a car hits a person and he is injured or dies; who will be arrested; car or driver; car is arrested! we do not do that; Why, even though actual hitting and killing is done by the car, we go behind the car to the person behind only; and car is never responsible; knife is never responsible; instrument is never arrested. In the same way, if I am only the instrument in the hands of the Lord; for all the actions I do, I will not get karma phalam; puṇyas or pāpams; therefore all the jīvās will be free from what: puṇya pāpams. And freedom from puṇya pāpa is called what; mōkṣa; Therefore the greatest advantage is what; all are free; not necessary to come to the class; Why we require mōkṣa; who has to come to the class then; Bhagavān; because the poor Bhagavān who is samsāri; he alone work for mōkṣa; All of you are here and now free from all the sañcita agāmi prārabhda karmās; Therefore the second contradiction; jīvā's asamsaritvam; All the jīvās will be free. Nitya muktās; whereas what is our contention; jīvās are samsāris; not Bhagavān; Therefore first dōṣam is Īśvarasya samsāritvam; second dōṣam is jīvasya asamsāritvam.

Then what is the third dōṣam; if Bhagavān alone does everything; nothing is in our hands; all the sufferings undergone by all the people must be caused by whom; Bhagavān only, because everything is done by Bhagavān; all the suffering, caused by war or bombing; whether it is caused by diseases; whether it is caused by congenial deficiencies caused in the world, who must be responsible; Bhagavān. If God is responsible for all suffering; that God is compassionate God or sadist God; The one who causes suffering He or She must be the cruel God. He can never be called karuṇamūrthi. How many people are today still suffering because of some third degree torture done by some person in some jail in some country; you cannot imagine those suffering; as even you listen, you will lose your sleep. Go to the hospitals; emergency ward, all the suffering; who is responsible; Not you; Not me, Not that person; because we are all instruments; therefore who must be responsible; God; Therefore God can never be said to be compassionate; he will become an embodiment of sadism; this dōṣam is called Nairgrinnya dōṣam. In Brahmasūtra, Vyasācārya has mentioned this. Nairgrinnya dōṣam means God will be subject to the charge of cruelty. Grinna means compassionate; Nirgrinna means no compassion; Nairgrinnyam means compassionlessness; Means what; cruelty. This is the third dōṣam, if you say Bhagavān is responsible for the suffering;

And you cannot say Bhagavān is helpless because, Bhagavān is said to be omnipotent; omniscient; in spite of being omniscient and omnipotent; why can't he put an end to all the suffering; just by showing the hand, like just as he gave dress to Draupadi; let Bhagavān with thousands of hands, after-all we saw in the eleventh chapter itself thousands of hands; let Him go to all the hospitals, and just show the hands in a line; and it should cure whether it is cancer or any other thing; aids cure; kidney trouble cure; why can't He cure; you cannot say that He is incapable because, He is omnipotent; you cannot say He does not know; because he is omniscient; and He is also supposed to be compassionate; why can't the compassionate God put an end to all the suffering. So in the theory of fatalism; which says God does everything; God will be subject to the charge of cruelty;

Then what is the fourth dōṣam? God is becoming villain; in fatalism; God becomes villain; He will never be hero; He will be zero; they do not know the consequence of fatalism; they are dumping God into the wastepaper basket by the theory of fatalism; And in fact, it will make, if you deeply think, hate God. These are the consequences of fatalism.

Then the fourth dōṣam is what; Ok; God has made every people suffer; He has made many people enjoy also; Many places there is Kondattam; TV has also come; In Kerala kondattam is the dry vadam, karuvadam, etc. So many people are enjoying, there also the problem; all the people are not uniformly enjoying; Even in the enjoyment, some people are happy; some people are (you know three are four degrees) happier; happiest. You have got an Ambassador car; another one has a Benz; even though everyone may have car, there is a degree of difference, even in happiness; Tāratamyam; means gradation. So who is responsible; According to the theory of fatalism; Since Bhagavān alone responsible; who should be happy, who should be happier; who should be happiest..est; then Bhagavān will be subject to the charge of what; partiality; this is the fourth dōṣam; previous dōṣam is what; cruelty with regard to the sufferers; partiality with regard to enjoyers; because all the people do not uniformly enjoy; சிலர் சிரிப்பார்; சிலர் அழுவார்; சிலர் அழுத்துகொண்டே சிரிப்பார்; cilar cirippār; cilar aḷuvār; cilar aḷuttukoṇṭē cirippār; (some laugh; some cry; some laugh will continuing to cry). Such group is also there, Isn't it. Therefore this dōṣam is called Vaiṣamyā Dōṣam. Partiality; this is the fourth problem with regard to the theory of fatalism; the rejection of freewill. Two more are there.

Then the fifth dōṣam is the following. Since the Bhagavān is the doer of all actions; and according to this theory, we are only instruments; the instruments need not know what is proper action and what is improper action; the traffic rules must be learned by the car or driver; traffic rules who should learn; car should attend? No; the instrument need not know what is dharma and what is adharma; what is proper and what is improper; Then the one is behind the instrument; the operator of the instrument, the kartā, should alone should learn all the rules; That means dharma śāstra must be meant for whom; we need not learn at all. According to the theory of fatalism, we need not study dharma śāstra; you know we saw it yesterday;

vēdamanūcyācāryōntēvāsinamanuśāsti ।

satyaṁ vada । dharmāṁ cara । svādhyāyānmā pramadaḥ । ||4|| ityēkādaśa:'nuvākaḥ|| Taittiriya

All those things, we do not study, because we are all only instrument nimitha; therefore who should study dharma śāstram; Bhagavān has to go to Gurukulam; and find out what are the rules. So for us great advantage is that one need not study ethics, morals we need not study; the constitutional rules; traffic rules; we need not study all those; who should study the traffic rules; the Indian traffic rules, Bhagavān should learn; American traffic rules, Bhagavān should learn; and should not get mixed up. He should know which driver in which country is driving the car in which road, because Americans, Indians; we are all what; instrument; what an absurdity you arrive at; and therefore what is the next dōṣam; Dharma śāstra vaiyārthyam; Our study of dharma śāstra is futile; it is not required at all; according to the theory of fatalism. Then why can't study, you cannot ask; Bhagavān need not study, because he is the very author of dharma śāstra; So the fifth dōṣam is this.

And the sixth and final dōṣam is this. If we do not have freewill; if we are only instruments in the hands of someone, we will never have a conflict in life; because an instrument need not choose a course of action; an instrument need not choose a course of action. And since we need not choose a course of action, we will never have conflict in life; all the conflicts will go to whom; again the original operator; the Lord alone. Therefore, if we do not have freewill; we will never have choice; and if we never have choice; we will never have conflicts in life. When do you get conflicts; Suppose to go to your house, there is only one route; there is only road, you need not think and choose, availability is only one. But if there are two roads, then there is a choice; one road is longer, but the road is good. Another road is shorter, and full of potholes; then you have a conflict, which road to choose. Therefore wherever choice is there; there is conflict; wherever freewill is there; there is choice; therefore these three will always go together. Freewill, choice and conflict; Wherever one is there; the other two are automatically there. What are the three; Freewill, choice and conflict. So whether human beings have freewill or not; how to find out. Ask the question whether human beings have conflict or not.

In fact, every moment, Dayananda Swami says; earning morning waking up itself is a big conflict; the alarm has gone; then you have to wake up; then you look for excuses; which excuse you can find out and postpone getting up; getting up is a conflict; whether to take bath or not is a conflict; because water problem; whether to take coffee or not is a conflict; whether to attend this class now or not is a conflict. In fact, human life is a series of conflicts.

And very presence of conflict indicates it is because we have a choice; and we have a choice, because we have a freewill; And that is why suppose you have employed a driver; and both of you get into the car. Now the driver will never have a conflict at all; why, because driver is only your instrument, he is only an employee; he need not think when to start and in which direction to go; he has no conflict; you have to decide and say Start Now; then he should start when you say start; you say Go to Adayar; go to theatre; or go to a hotel; the driver who is only your instrument will never have a conflict; the conflict will be for whom; the person, the owner who is sitting behind. Similarly, if Bhagavān is what you call the yajamanā, and I am the simple driver in the hands of Bhagavān; I would never have faced any conflict; but the very fact that I am facing conflict every moment indicates that I have choice; and choice indicates that I have a freewill and therefore in the absence of freewill for human beings, there will be no conflict at all; So mōha abhāvaḥ; vikalpa abhāvaḥ will be the consequence, if we have no freewill.

But what is our experience; we have got conflict; and suppose the person argues, Swamiji; I do not have conflict; I do not feel the choice at all; conflict at all; freewill at all; if anybody claims!, then what will we do you know; we will never talk to that person thereafter; because according to the śāstra, only animals are free from Will, Choice and conflicts. Animals never face conflicts in life; because they go by instincts; they do not go by freewill; a cow does not have a conflict; whether I should be a vegetarian or non-vegetarian; after going to America; is conflict coming after going to America; I do not know; wherever a cow is; it eats grass; it does not have choice; it does not have conflict also; a tiger has never a conflict; whether I should be a veggi or non-veggi.

But human beings, you see he does not have any policy of what to eat and what not to eat; walking, flying, a crawling; all varieties of things. So therefore if human being claims that I do not have conflict and therefore I do not have choice or freewill, according to that śāstra; that person comes under animal category; and we can never talk to that person; we can only pray that at least in next birth, this person must be a real human being. And therefore what is our conclusion: We have a freewill.

Then do we say that our future is determined by freewill alone: No. We say freewill plus fate; these are two factors which contribute to human future; in the case of animals only fate will contribute, because they do not have freewill; But in the case of human beings, there are two forces, If you know in physics they say; the resultant force; the force of the freewill is there; force of fate is there; every second of the future is caused by the interaction between fate and freewill. In one particular context, freewill may be prominent; it will suppress the fate; In another particular context, it might be like one day match; one match India beats South Africa; which is fate, which is fate, which is free will you can decide; In another match, it is otherway round; that is the day; Similarly, every moment is one day match between fate and freewill. Sometimes it is a tie also; Very rarely it can end up in a tie also; this is in the case of a human being; and therefore what does śāstra say; never vote for fatalism; accept fate; accept freewill and understand that your future is determined by fate and freewill together; You are one of the contributory factors in addition to the freewill; By our prayer we try to influence the fate; and by our planning, we try to contribute to our will.

Then comes the final question. Then why did Krishna say nimittamātraṃ bhava savyasācin; why did He say be an instrument in the hand of the Lord. What do you mean by becoming an instrument. In the case of a human being, becoming the instrument in the hands of the Lord is following a dhārmic course of action; because Bhagavān controls the world through dharma. Bhagavān harmonies the world through dharma; and when I use my freewill to be in alignment with dharma; because everytime I have to choose, I can go either by dharma or I can go by my rāga dvēṣa. Rāga dvēṣa tells You do that or you do not that; Pay tax or do not pay tax. Or violate the traffic rules or do this. Therefore everytime you have a choice; We can go according to our Rāga dvēṣa or we can go according to the dharma śāstra; When my life is governed by dharma śāstra; when my freewill is in alignment with dharma śāstra, I become the instrument of the Lord. And therefore Arjuna himself is facing a conflict. Dharma śāstra says Arjuna has to fight this war:

dharmyāddhi yuddhācchrēyō'nyat kṣatriyasya na vidyatē || 2.31 ||

According to dharma, Arjuna's duty is fight the war; because Kṣatriya has to fight for the sake of dharma. And Duryodhana has explicitly taken to adharma; therefore dharma tells Arjuna fight. In fact, because of that alone, Arjuna has to battlefield. But before he started the fight, his rāga dvēṣa came. And rāga dvēṣa tells after-all, Bhiṣma, Drōṇa, etc. are my kith and kin;

kathaṃ bhīṣmamahaṃ saṅkhyē drōṇaṃ ca madhusūdana |
iṣubhiḥ pratiyōtsyāmi pūjārḥāvarisūdana || 2.4 ||

kārpaṇyadōṣōpahatasvabhāvaḥ
pṛcchāmi tvāṃ dharmasammūdhacētāḥ |
yacchrēyaḥ syānniścitaṃ brūhi tanmē
śiṣyastē'haṃ śādhi māṃ tvāṃ prapannaṃ || 2.7 ||

Arjuna faces conflict because he has a freewill; he has a choice; he has to choose between what and what; His dharma knowledge tells that you have to fight the war; but his attachment tells: do not fight the war; His conscience tells fight the war; his attachment tells do not fight; Therefore there is a conflict;

And what is becoming the instrument of the Lord; Krishna tells: do not go by your rāga dvēṣa. Then what you go by: you go by dharma; and when you go by dharma, you are going by the Will of the Lord, because dharma is God's will; so my freewill is now aligned to dharma; my freewill is not gone; my freewill is aligned with dharma; my freewill has aligned with God's will; and when my freewill is in alignment with God's will, I become an instrument in the hands of the Lord; Therefore this statement is not saying: you do not have will; this statement tells: Arjuna, May you align your will to my Will. In short, follow dharma. I hope you have no conflict now.

34. Kill Droṇa, Bhiṣma, Jayadratha, Karna, as well as other great warriors (who are already) killed by Me. Do not fear. Fight, you will conquer the enemies in battle.

So here Krishna tells what is the course of the creation in keeping with the law of karma or the law of dharma; which Arjuna has to align with. He says all these people's time has come. According to dharma or law of karma, they require disappearance from the earth; Who are they; Drōṇam; Bhiṣmam; Jayadratha; karṇa; all these people योधवीरान् yodhavīrān; as well as the others belonging to both sides of the army;

मया हतान् mayā hatān; they are already dead; which means the law of karma or the law of dharma has indicated their death but in the case of Arjuna, the Lord is here to come and tell what has to happen; What is according to the law of karma, the time of death has come; Bhagavān comes and tells; but imagine somebody is seriously sick in the family; I do not know whether their prārabhada end has come or not; Suppose Bhagavān comes and tells beforehand it would be convenient; their prarabdha is to survive; then also you need not spend money; because he will survive somehow; Suppose Bhagavān comes and tells prārabhada is over; then also you need not worry; how nice it would be; but unfortunately we do not know, therefore in such cases, we can only go by what is appropriate; we can give the necessary treatment which is dhārmic course of action; which is your freewill; And the freewill and the fate will have to interact; and the result may be operation success and patient collapse or that person may survive also. Therefore here the difference is in the case of Arjuna, Bhagavān is here to come and tell what is the fate but in our case, our fate is not known or knowable. That is why it is called adṛṣtam; Therefore we can never know clearly what is our fate; And therefore we know only what is the freewill or our capacity; Therefore do your action as though every thing is in your hands; receive the result as though everything is in God's hands. This is the working approach. Because when you do the action, you do not know the power of fate. Therefore what to do; advance letter if He gives it would have been better.

That is why they try to read the fate through astrology; so astrology is supposed to indicate the direction of the fate and they give prāyascitha etc. also. But there also a person may read it properly, or it may be improper and especially if you go to two astrologers you had it; even if you want to make use of astrology, confine to one; otherwise this astrologer will say this is the best jātakam in the world for your daughter; and another astrologer equally famous will say; do not touch it at all; therefore we may get some indication from astrology; there is nothing wrong; but for everything you should not go to him; whether to go to the class or not; so then you will have to stay in astrologer's house all the time; therefore there is nothing wrong, but for important and major cases you see, otherwise have surrender to Lord; do your best and leave the rest.

Lord Krishna gave an important advice to Arjuna and that advice is whenever an individual acts according to dharma, then his individual will he has surrendered to dharma. So acting according to dharma is surrendering the individual will to dharma. And dharma is the teaching given by the Lord and therefore dharma can be taken as the Will of the Lord. And therefore acting according to Dharma is surrendering the individual will to dharma and since dharma is the will of God, we can say that surrendering to dharma is surrendering to the Will of the Lord; and when you are surrendering your will to the Will of the Lord, you have not lost your will. Still you have got your own will; you can still chose to act according to your Rāga dvēṣa and when you are going by your Rāga dvēṣa; without bothering about dharma, the individual will is not in alignment with dharma and when it is not in alignment with God's will;

And therefore the teaching here is you do have a will; you do have a freewill and freewill can choose a course of action based on Rāga dvēṣa OR based on dharma-adharma. Arjuna's Rāga dvēṣa tells run away from the battle; because he is attached to Bhīṣma-Drōṇa. Arjuna's freewill has got two aspects; his Rāga dvēṣa tells him, do not fight the battle; it is better to go to the forest and live on Bhikṣa. We saw in the second chapter. At the same time, his dharma-jnanam tells that the dharmic course of action is fighting the dharma yuddam.

So thus his freewill has got two courses of action; Rāga dvēṣa based renunciation of the war; or dharma-based fighting of the war. What Krishna advices is: If you are going by your Rāga dvēṣa, you are not using your will properly; in fact you are abusing your freewill; which will lead to your downfall; which is your choice. Bhagavān cannot help, if a person has decided to have a downfall. Rāvaṇa chose downfall; Kāṁsa chose downfall; Arjuna can choose. And therefore Krishna is requesting Arjuna. Arjuna do you want to abuse your freewill and choose a spiritual downfall or are you going to use your freewill properly which means even though this war is a bitter war; Even though the duty is an unpleasant duty; even though the duty involves destruction of your own kith and kin; still you do not go by your attachment; but you go by what is dharma; dharmyāddhi yuddhācchrēyō'nyat kṣatriyasya na vidyatē. If because of your intellectual conviction, you suppress your emotions and you go by your intellectual conviction and choose the painful duty, even though the duty is painful, then your dharmic course of action will be equal to surrendering your will to the Will of Lord. And if you surrender your freewill to the will of Lord; which means choosing a dharmic course of action; even though it is painful; then it will lead you to spiritual growth. So dharmic course of action is using the freewill and adharmic course of action is abusing your freewill. Rāga dvēṣa based action is the abuse of freewill; Dharma-adharma based action is use of freewill; which is in another language called surrendering to the Will of the Lord.

And this is real devotion. Here you will find karma yoga and bhakthi merging because a true karma yogi has to act according to dharma, which means every karma yōgi has surrendered his freewill to the Will of the Lord. When it is a forced surrender, it is suppression. But when it is a surrender with maturity. Like there is a traffic signal and there is no one around and I have got a freedom to violate the signal; if police stops me; it is suppression. But I choose that even though it is easier to violate, but I do not want to do that; this voluntary surrender is called the real bhakthi. Thus there is no true karma yogi, without being a bhaktha; because a karma yogi is all the time following dharma; which means surrendering his will and Rāga dvēṣa to dharma. Dharma means God and therefore every karma yōgi is a real bhaktha. And therefore Arjuna become a bhaktha and do what:

drōṇaṁ ca bhīṣmaṁ ca jayadrathaṁ ca
karṇaṁ tathā'nyānapi yōdhavīrān |
mayā hatāṁstvaṁ jahi mā vyathiṣṭhā
yudhyasva jētāsi raṇē sapatnān || 11.34 ||

It is very difficult; you have to do that; what: shoot at sight order as it were; Drōṇa, your own Guru alright; but unfortunately he is in the adharmic side; therefore it is bitter; it is painful, but you should never go by emotions; you should not go by manōmaya kōśa, you have to go by vijñāna maya kōśa. Discrimination should dominate your action; not impulse. Therefore Drona you have to finish; Bhīṣma you have to finish; Chatak; Chatak; cut-cut, though painful; Jayadratha you have to kill; And Krishna himself all of them; it is not that they are third people. Remember, whoever is related to Arjuna is related to Krishna also. In fact, Krishna had to kill his own Uncle Kaṁsa. So Arjuna these are painful, but you should transcend. Then Karṇa, which is very easy for you. Because you are waiting to get an opportunity; karṇaṁ tathā'nyānapi yōdhavīrān. And in the process, you have to lose many on your side also. And therefore जहि jahi and the time has come for them to die, because their prārabhdā is over.

मया हतान् mayā hatān; I have already closed their file. Their next janma is ready. So therefore mayā hatān, those people who are already destroyed by me; you have to kill;

युध्यस्व yudhyasva; May you take to this battle; because you are a born kṣatriyā; If you are Brāhmaṇa, you can get away from all and sit somewhere and do japa and all; all these things, kṣatriyā 's duty is what; policeman. You cannot say I do not touch gun or lathi; army people do that as part of work; As a kshatriya your duty is kṣatāt trayate is kṣatriyā; saving the society from Adharma is the duty of kshatriya; Kṣatham means adharma. and therefore yudhyasva; जेतसि jetāsi; Certainly you will defeat your enemies; sapatnān means enemies; certainly you will defeat your enemies in the war; because Arjuna in the second chapter has expressed a doubt, whether yadvā jayēma yadi vā nō jayēyuh|

yānēva hatvā na jijīviṣāmaḥ
tē'vasthitāḥ pramukhē dhārtarāṣṭrāḥ || 2.6 ||

I do not even know whether we will defeat them or whether they will defeat us; Krishna says you are going to win the war; not because you are powerful; but because dharma is on your side.

सञ्जयः उवाच sañjayaḥ uvāca Sanjaya said श्रुत्वा śrutvā having heard, एतद् वचनम् etad vacanam these words, केशवस्य kēśavasya of Kesava (Krishna), वेपमानः vepamānaḥ kirīṭi the trembling Arjuna, नमस्कृत्वा namaskṛtvā saluted, प्रणम्य praṇamya and bowing down, भीतभीतः bhītabhītaḥ with great fear, सगद्गदम् sagadgadam falteringly आह कृष्णम् āha kṛṣṇam spoke to Krishna, भूयः bhūyaḥ eva once again, कृताञ्जलिः kṛtāñjaliḥ with folded palms.

35. Sañjaya said – having heard these words of Krishna, the trembling Arjuna saluted and, bowing down with great fear, falteringly spoke to Krishna once again with joined palms.

So when Krishna answered Arjuna's question, how did Arjuna respond. Because Arjuna has now understood that Krishna is not responsible for the sufferings or enjoyments of people. Krishna is only karma phala dātha; exactly like a judge; judge is not responsible for the enjoyment or suffering of the people; if a person suffers punishment in the jail; that suffering is not caused by the judge; but the suffering is the result of his own action. Bhagavān has only worked for the karma phalam to reach him; Just as the judge's role is to make the law the karma work properly. And therefore Lord's compassion does not mean he will alter the karma phalam; Lord's compassion is in the form of the maintenance of the law of karma; And therefore if a person has to receive pāpa phalam; a person has to certainly receive it; Bhagavān is compassionate alright; but where pāpa phalam has to go, Bhagavān will have to do that. If out of compassion, Bhagavān is not going to karma phala, then the moral order of creation will be disturbed. Imagine Bhagavān changes the law of karma; because a person has to suffer; then what will be the problem. Then He will have to change the laws which maintains the orderliness of the creation. Then a single individual may benefit alright; but the world at large will have to suffer; and therefore when you look from short-sighted angle; it is like when a person is falling down; he says let the law of gravitation stop; because he is falling down; Then what will happen; OK; Bhagavān says OK for 10 minutes, the law of gravitation will not function, because this fellow is falling; what will happen; We will all start flying; Remember, if the law of gravitation stops, we will not be on the earth; like the cosmonauts and astronauts; we will be floating all over suddenly; Somebody in T. Nagar is falling down; and He prayed the Lord: Oh Lord for two minutes the law of gravitation should stop. Bhagavān comes and out of compassion, says that the law of gravitation stop; You will all hit the fan. Therefore, remember that it is shortsightedness to complain to the Lord and ask him to change the course of the law, for the sake of our personal benefit. The law of karma should go on for the survival of the world. Just as the traffic signals should be functioning; even though one person may miss the train because of the traffic signal. Just because a person is going to miss the train; for him only switch off the signal, if you say; it would not work; and therefore Arjuna understood, the Lord is not partial or cruel; the job of the Lord is the maintenance of dharma.

Therefore, if my pāpa karma brings suffering to me, I should change my attitude to accept the suffering without, what you call, getting frustrated; without complaining against the Lord; without cursing the Lord as unjust or cruel; I should change my attitude; in accepting the suffering.

And what is the best method of accepting; there is a method; the trick I will teach you; what is that; Everytime I am suffering; it is the result of what: puṇyam or pāpaṁ; the suffering is the result of pāpaṁ. That means, every time I am suffering, one pāpa has produced the result; that means what; in our பாப மூட்டை; pāpa mūṭṭai; the weight is reduced; Therefore instead of saying I am suffering, learn to say; I am becoming purer; because pāpa mūṭṭai is becoming lesser means what: I am becoming purer; And that is why we say: துன்ப புடத்தில் இட்டு தூயவன் ஆக்கி வைத்தாய்; tuṅpa puṭattil iṭṭu tūyavaṅ ākki vaittāy.

And in fact, when you are enjoying you should not be happy. In fact, your puṇyam is becoming less. Anyway, we need not see that; when you are enjoying, enjoy. At least when suffering comes, tells yourselves, one papam gone; So thus, change the attitude when suffering comes; That is the only way; this Arjuna seems to understand and therefore Oh Lord, your ways are inscrutable; you love everyone; alright, you are embodiment of compassion alright, but your compassion expresses in the form of maintaining the law of karma;

OK; this will lead to an aside question; Even though it is not the topic of the Gītā; I will raise that question and answer that also. So if Bhagavān is going to make the law of karma function; Then does it mean that prāyaschitta karmas are waste or useless; because law of karma has to take its own course of action; So if karma phalam has necessarily to fructify; why should we pray. why should we do prāyaschitta karma; will it not be a waste; No; prayāscitta karma will never be a waste; prāyaschitta karma also functions according to the law of karma only; How does it function; by prāyaschitta karma, I am producing another puṇyam; which is exactly opposite to the pāpam; It is just like I have thrown a stone upwards; and by the law of karma, the stone is coming down straight towards the head; and that too my head; therefore it is coming straight to my head. Does it mean that I should suffer? I can throw another stone; which is again within the law of forces; one force is coming down; I produce another force which will go up and that force and this force will hit and it is capable of neutralization. I have taken some food which is not suitable to my system and therefore allergic reaction has come. That is according to the law of my system; that does not mean I have to suffer; I can take another medicine which will act exactly counter to that. Therefore prāyaschitta karma are based on the law of resultant forces.

In physics it is called the law of resultant forces. So prāyaschitta will produce an āgāmi and that āgāmi can neutralise what? Prārabhdam. And suppose somebody asks; Swamiji I have done prāyaschitta; but still I could not neutralise; then what does it mean; the force of āgāmi is lesser to compared to the force of prārabhdam; and therefore naturally imagine a huge meteorite is coming down and I take a pebble and throw up. I cannot stop it; And therefore whether prāyaschitta will neutralise prārabhdam will depend upon the relative strength of prāyaschitta and prārabhdam. If prārabhdam is very powerful and prāyaschitta cannot do much. That is why I have talked about this before; suppose you go to a doctor and ask; Doctor can you cure my disease. What will the doctor say: If he is an intelligent doctor; he will say; My reply will depend upon the type of disease. Certain diseases I can outright cure; If it is an allergic reaction to kathirikkai or something like that; I may give an injection or remove it; and if it is an appendicitis problem, I may do surgery and remove it; appendectomy and remove. So for certain types of diseases total cure. Then for certain types of diseases, not total cure; I will give tablets, like for BP, sugar etc. you will have to continue lifelong and then the disease can be controlled. You would not be a total victim; and you cannot be totally cured; but you will be able to manage. This is medium type; total cure one type; manage; second type and there are certain cases, third degree cancer; advanced aids or something; then the doctor says 3 months; 6 months or a few years; doctor says there is no remedy; therefore I cannot say a disease cannot be cured; I can never say the disease can be cured; it will depend upon the individual cases and there are three possibilities; total cure; management or helplessness. Similarly, every prārabhda that comes to us; can be of three types; medium; weak or full. Every prārabhda has got an individual tag; I can never give a uniform answer. That prārabhda can be changed or not; because the prārabhda is so many karmas have been done and therefore it is not one prārabhda; but it is a flow of several individual prārabhda. And each individual prārabhda is either prabhālam; or durbhālam or madhyamam. In the case of durbhāla prārabhda; prāyaschitta will completely remove; in the case of madhyama prārabhda; prāyaschitta will help in what; managing; and in the case of prabhāla prārabhda; prāyaschitta will not be able to do anything. But the greatest tragedy is when the prārabhda comes, you do not know which category it belongs to; If it comes and tells you this is prabhāla prārabhda; we can sit quiet. But prārabhda being adṛiṣṭam, you never know, it is prabhālam, madhyamam or durbalam; your job is what; if you want to do prāyaschitta; you do, whether it is prabhālam, durbālam or madhyamam, after doing prāyaschittam, see how it works; then you will know what type of prārabhda it is; therefore prāyaschitta karma also falls within the law of dharma. So this is an aside topic.

Incidentally here, Bhīṣma, Drōnā etc cannot be saved by any prāyaschitta; hey Arjuna; their case the death is prabhāla prārabhdam and therefore you finish them. So when Arjuna recognised the Lord as the karma phala dhātā. Then Arjuna's attitude changes totally; so now the attitude of Ascharyam and bhayam; both of them are replaced by the attitude of surrender or bhakthi. This is called the surrender of the freewill to the law of karma; Dayananda swami defines the Lord, as the Order of the creation. So surrender your will to the order of the creation; the laws of the Lord. So that the transformation is reporting first; Thereafter Arjuna will come:

So Sañjaya uvāca; Sañjaya reports; केशवस्य एतद् वचनम् श्रुत्वा keśavasya etad vacanam śrutvā; Arjuna understood the law very clearly; you cannot say Lord is cruel or compassionate; that is our judgment; Lord is neither cruel nor compassionate; samō'haṃ sarvabhūtēsu na mē dvēṣyō'sti na priyaḥ; I am neither cruel nor compassionate; I run the world; according to the law of karma; किरिटी kirīṭi means Arjunaḥ; and वेपमानः vepamānaḥ; he has trembling; because as an individual, I am subject to the laws of karma, I can never escape; just as within the earth or on the earth, I can never escape gravitation. Similarly the law of karma is as inexorable as the law of gravitation; there is no question of whether you like it or not; if you do not like it, better become mature enough to like the law. Because if you dislike, the law will not change; you have to suffer. You cannot say gravitation is pulling; gravitation is pulling; better learn to like it; that is called surrender. So surrender is a physical expression of the intellectual appreciation and the intellectual acceptance of the law of karma. Therefore vepamānaḥ trembling Arjuna did namaskāra to Lord Krishna.

and भूय एवाह कृष्णं नमस्कृत्वा bhūya ēvāha kṛṣṇaṃ namaskṛtvā; So the namaskāra indicates the surrender of the will to the law of karma; So having done this namaskāra; bhūya ēvāha; again and again;

भीतभीतः bhītabhītaḥ; Arjuna was extremely frightened; because the law of karma is so powerful and in front of the law of karma, I am a puny little creature. Seeing the smallness of the individuality and seeing the inescapability of law of karma; Arjuna was trembling. Initially this will happen; the more I grow mature; the more it will become natural; And that is called bhakthi; the ripeness of bhakthi is what that bhayam is gone; Not because problems are gone, but because I have learned go along with these problems; people come by law of karma. And by the same law of karma people are separated. By the law of karma, the body grows; by the law of karma, the body weakens. So all these I learn to accept, which is indicated by namaskāra; Therefore bhītabhītaḥ with extreme fear;

सगद्गदम् sagadgadam, with choked voice, because he is not a table to swallow or assimilate; because remember Arjuna's maturity is artificial maturity caused by Krishna; like ripening the fruit in naphthalene box or something; there is a difference in taste; natural ripening and artificial ripening; there is a difference; Arjuna's appreciation is not borne out of natural ripening. Krishna has artificially with this divya cakṣu; artificial divya cakṣu will not work for long, hardly we get the divya cakṣu; which is nothing but karma yōga; Then, this fear will not there; therefore with a choked voice, with extreme panic; Arjuna repeatedly did namaskāra; and addressed the Lord in the following verses:

स्थाने हृषीकेश तव प्रकीर्त्या जगत्प्रहृष्यत्यनुरज्यते च ।

रक्षांसि भीतानि दिशो द्रवन्ति सर्वे नमस्यन्ति च सिद्धसङ्घाः ॥ ११.३६ ॥

arjuna uvāca

sthānē hṛṣīkēśa tava prakīrtyā

jagat prahr̥ṣyatyanurajyatē ca |

rakṣāṃsi bhītāni diśō dravanti

sarvē namasyanti ca siddhasaṅghāḥ || 11.36 ||

अर्जुनः उवाच arjunaḥ uvāca Arjuna said हृषीकेश hṛṣīkēśa Oh! Lord, (lit. the inner controller of beings) स्थाने sthāne it is but proper that, जगत् jagat the world प्रहृष्यति prahr̥ṣyati is delighted च अनुरज्यते ca anurajyate and gratified प्रकीर्त्या prakīrtyā by the glorification तव tava of You भीतानि रक्षांसि bhītāni rakṣāṃsi the frightened demons द्रवन्ति dravanti run दिशः diśaḥ in all directions, च and सर्वे सिद्धसङ्घाः ca sarve siddhasaṅghāḥ all the hosts of siddhas नमस्यन्ति namasyanti bow down (to You).

36. Arjuna said – Oh Lord! It is but proper that the world is delighted and gratified by the glorification of You. The frightened demons run in all directions and all the hosts of Siddhas bow down (to You).

So Arjuna begins his response. So this is the third stage of Arjuna's response, which is one of devotion or surrender. Ascaryam or wonderment is over; bhayam or fear, the second stage. Now it has given away to the surrender; saraṇāgatiḥ. But still the fear part is lingering in the background; the fear never goes. Because as long as we are narrow minded, creation will be a source of fear; only when we expand our mind to appreciate the totality and the laws of the creation; then only the fear and insecurity grow. In fact, according to vēdānta, only through Viśva rūpa appreciation, we can go to nirguṇam brahma; From ēkarūpa bhakthi, one has to necessarily come to the Viśva rūpa appreciation, the universal law of karma; the law of dharma-adharma. There is no question of skirting that and aham brahmāsmi; that story will not work; and even if you avoid that and come to vĕdānta and repeat Aham Brahmāsmi, suddhōsmi, buddhōsmi, etc. you will that on the lips aham brahmāsmi is there; in the heart, fear will be there. If you want to conquer fear; if you want to conquer insecurity, you have to necessarily expand your mind; appreciate the totality. And see the laws of the creation; not only the physical laws but also the moral laws, which extent not only to the present janma, but which extends to the past janmas and innumerable future janmas, and you should see that as an individual, you cannot escape the law. If you want to escape the laws, it is only by transcending the ahamkāra and going to nirguṇam Brahma; but you transcend the ahamkāra only by going through the Viśva rūpa darśanam. Ahamkāra should grow; then it should fall. Just like the skin of a banana; it is required for the growth of the banana; Then alone it can escape; you can escape from your ahamkāra, only after the ripening of ahamkāra; and the ahamkāra ripens only through Viśva rūpa darśanam; and once Viśva rūpa darśanam has ripened the ahamkāra, vĕdānta will quietly pluck the ahamkāra; Then it will be easy; it will fall on touching by vĕdānta; उर्वारुकमिव बन्धनान्मृत्योर्मुक्षीय मामृतात् urvārukamiva bandhanānmṛtyōrmukṣīya māmṛtāt You can never escape from Ahamkāra; without ripening it; and the ripening method is Viśva rūpa darśanam.

And therefore Arjuna here says: Hey Krishna now I understand why great mahatmas appreciate the Viśva rūpam of yours; the mature ones; the ones who have got the infinite vision of the totality; why they appreciate the Viśva rūpam I can understand. I also can understand how the narrow minded people are afraid of Viśva rūpam; and in fact when I am narrow minded, the problem is even religion becomes the cause of fear; even Bhagavān becomes the source of fear; if I do this mistake, He will cut my nose; if I do that mistake He will cut my tongue; etc. etc. when we are children that this the fear given. He will cut the nose and put chilli powder; why should they do like that; we do not know; so cut the nose and put chilli powder; Even religion becomes the source of fear; even God becomes the source of fear; if my ahamkāra does not ripen; and therefore Arjuna tells; Krishna I understand how immature people are frightened of you; and how mature people are enamoured; charmed by you.

So हे हृषीकेश; तव प्रकीर्त्या hē hṛṣīkēśa; tava prakīrtyā; by glorifying you; the Viśva rūpa; tava Viśva rūpasya prakīrtyā; sthothrēṇa; जगत् प्रहृष्यति jagat prahrṣyati; the mature people prahrṣyati; they revel; they enjoy; because the beauty of totality is far superior to the petty pleasures that we get through attachment to a few people around; So always when we are attached to the few people; children, wife or husband, there is a joy; குழல் இனிது; யாழ் இனிது; kuḷal initu; yāḷ initu; they say. Certainly there is an enjoyment; but there is also a fear; what will happen to the children; what will happen; So narrow minded attachment will give you kicks and pleasures; along with that there is a constant anxiety and concern also. But the pleasure which is born out of non-attachment to a few; and the appreciation of the totality; That ānanda is of a totally different dimension and that ānanda a few people have and I am able to appreciate why they have. Therefore; jagat the mature people prahr̥ṣyati; they revel; अनुरज्यते च anurajyate ca; and they are attached to you as Viśva rūpam; the narrow attachment they are not interested in.

There is a beautiful Malayalam composition called Harināma keerthanam; it is a very popular one in Kerala; in that the author writes ഞാൻ എന്ന ഭാവമതു തോന്നായ്കവേണം; ñān- enna bhāvamatu tonnāykaveṇaṃ; Oh Lord; I should never have the idea of individuality; as I related to a few people; this man's uncle; this man's grandpa, this man's son; etc. etc. that is called ഞാൻ എന്ന ഭാവം ñān- enna bhāvaṃ. Then he says തോന്നുന്നതാകിൽ tonnunnatākil. Even if that I should rise in me; അകിലം ഞാൻ എന്ന ഭാവം തോന്നേണമേ വരദാ നാരായണായ നമഃ akilaṃ ñān- enna bhāvaṃ tonneṇame varadā nārāyaṇāya namaḥ; If I should develop an I, let that I be identified with അകിലവും ഞാൻ akilavum ñān. Either I should never have identification; zero identification or total identification. Zero identification; you are brahman; total identification, you are Īsvara; in both you have no samsāra; but our problem; neither zero identification; nor total identification; a select few; we suffer with them; so that few identification makes me a miserable in-between jeeva; Isvara has no samsāra; Brahman has no samsāra; jeeva has got maha samsāra;

And jagat prahr̥ṣyatyanurajyatē ca; and रक्षंसि rakṣāṃsi; all the rākṣasās who do not appreciate the dharma of the Lord. They are afraid of You, the Lord; who is afraid of the police. Why should I be afraid of police if I am following the rule of law; so the Viśva rūpa God becomes a source of fear and panic; for whom rakṣāṃsi; that mean adhārmic people are भीतानि bhītāni frightened of you Oh Lord and they try to escape from the law of karma;

how can you escape; दिशः द्रवन्ति diśaḥ dravanti; they run helter skelter; they run all over; you can escape from the local police; but you can never escape from the law of karma. So diśō dravanti; and सिद्धसङ्घः सर्वे siddhasaṅghāḥ sarve. All the siddha puruṣās; all the jñānis; who know what is what; सर्वे नमस्यन्ति sarve namasyanti; they do namaskāram to you; they are willing to accept whatever comes according to the law of karma; and if at all pray, their prayer is what; Oh Lord; you need not change the law for my sake; but give the attitude to accept what cannot be changed; if things can be prāyaschittam, give me the knowledge and strength to do prāyaschittam; nothing wrong; but whatever is choiceless; and irremediable; tasmāt aparihārye artē; let me accept the choiceless situation; So that is called namaskāra; sarve siddhasaṅghāḥ; groups of wise people do namaskāra to you.

37. Oh! great Lord, why would they not salute (You) who are greater than even Brahma (and who is) the first creator? Oh limitless one who is the ruler of Gods, (and) the abode of the Universe! (You are) the cause and effect. (Also) you are that imperishable Truth, which is beyond (both).

So here Arjuna says; anyone who appreciates your glory as Viśva rūpa; the totality; doing namaskāra to you is very very natural and instinctive. Like those scientists who discover more and more the uniqueness of glory of creation. As Einstein said; the more I am studying the creation; I cannot but surrender or appreciate the glory of Lord. In fact, more you see the totality; vinayaḥ; humility is very very natural. And therefore Arjuna asks; why won't people do namaskāra. So if they are doing namaskāra; there is no ascaryam; if they do not do namaskāra alone is ascaryam; because so wonderful is the totality and that is why to develop bhakthi; even studying any aspect of creation; after Viśva rūpa reading; you read any science; read biology; read entomology, the study of insects; insects will make you wonder; astronomy will make you wonder; any science you take and go in depth; See Discovery Channel; National Geography, anything you see; wonderment cannot be avoided. If you are mere scientists; it will stop with wonderment; if you are a bhaktha; the wonderment will express in the form of devotion; and therefore any aspect of creation; makes me do namaskāra to you. Therefore Arjuna says who will not do namaskāra; and if a person cannot do namaskāra; it only shows his smallness of the mind; so what that person requires is only sympathy; because he is missing something greater. Like if a child cannot appreciate music; it is because of what; the child has not reached that level of sensitivity to appreciate the music. Therefore child is missing a dimension. Similarly whoever is nāsthika and whoever has not understood the scriptures properly; we do not get angry with them; our attitude is what; they are missing a totally different dimension. They have to sensitise the mind to enjoy music; Otherwise, it is like donkey life; only; somebody said:

साक्षात् पशुः पुच्छ त्रिष्ण हीना ।
त्रिष्णन्न कादन्नः जीवमानाः
तत् भागदेयम् परमन् पशुनाम् ॥ sāhitya saṅgīta kalā vihīnāḥ sākṣāt paśuḥ puchcha vriṣṇa hīnā | triṣṇanna kādannaḥ jīvamānāḥ
tat bhāgadēyam paraman paśunām ||

The one who cannot appreciate literature and music which requires a sensitive mind;
That person is sākṣāt paśuḥ; only difference is what; puchcha vriṣṇa hīnā; tails and horns are missing; and the only difference from the cows is triṅṅanna kādannaḥ; he lives without eating grass; what is that; tat bhāgadēyam paraman paśunām. In fact paśus feel happy that one competitor is less. So therefore if I do not have music; it is not the music is absent; it is that I do not have that faculty which can sense the music. Similarly if I say there is no God; it is not absence of God; but I do not have the extra antenna; kudumi; I do not that extra antenna to sense the Viśva rūpa harmony.

Anyway; कस्मात् च ते न नमेरन् kasmāt ca tē na namēran; why won't people become devotee; if they are sensitive, they will certainly become devotee; and how great You are. sensitivity talks about the glory of the Lord; गरीयसे gariyasē Oh Lord the greatest one; because macro is always the greatest compared to any micro.

गरीयसे ब्रह्मणोऽप्यदिकर्त्रे gariyasē brahmaṇō'pyādikartrē; You are the creator of even Brahmāji; In puranas, we hear from Vishnu's navel only he came; Padmanābha he is called; and there on the lotus Brahmāji appears. This is the purāṇic approach; what is the vedantic approach; Isvara is the samaṣṭi kāraṇa caitanya śarīram; Brahmāji is samaṣṭi sūkṣma śarīram; samaṣṭi sūkṣma śarīram is born out of samaṣṭi kāraṇa śarīram; if you have forgotten sūkṣma śarīram and kāraṇa sariram etc. Do not mind you are the creator of Brahma, ādi kartē; Brahmaṇa here is not satyam jñānam anantham Brahma here is Brahmāji; अनन्त anantha; you are the infinite one; because time and space exist in You; you do not exist in time and space; देवेश dēvēśa; one who is the Lord of all Gods; जगन्निवास jagannivāsa; you are the abode of the universe; you do not live in the universe; the universe lives in you.

त्वमक्षरं सदसत्तत्परं यत् tvamakṣaram sadasattatparam yat; You are the cause You are the effect; You are beyond both also; You are kārya rūpaḥ; kāraṇa rūpaḥ; kārya-kāraṇa vilakṣaṇā cha; suddenly he comes to vēdānta; details in the next class.

Om

Arjuna was overpowered by fear, when he looked at the Lord as the kāla tatvam and that too as the destructive kāla tatvam; swallowing all the people, especially his near and dear ones. And then Arjuna asked the question: Oh! Lord who are You; I thought that You are a compassionate one; but now I have doubts regarding that, because you seem to enjoy destroying everything. When Arjuna asked such a question, Lord Krishna answered; He said there is no question of having compassion or not having compassion. As we saw in the 9th chapter, Bhagavān has neither likes towards something or dislike towards something else. samō'haṁ sarvabhūtēṣu na mē dvēṣyō'sti na priyaḥ; My job is only to maintaining the order of the creation and the maintaining the order of the creation involves my role of the maintenance of the law of karma also; and by way of maintaining the law of karma, I have to give karma phalam to every jīva. And my compassion is giving the karma phalam; it is not looking into what type of karma phalam it is; giving the karma phalam is my compassion; and when the karma phalam happens to be painful, it appears as though the Lord is cruel; you have to change your attitude and look at it in a positive manner. When suffering comes, you take it as the exhaustion of the negative karma phalam; pāpa phala apakṣaya; exhaustion is taking place; and therefore instead of seeing it as suffering process; you learn to look at it as purifying process.

When a doctor gives a painful treatment, you can look at it in two different ways; one is the doctor is giving me pain; that is the superficial approach; and if I have got some maturity; I can look at it differently; doctor is giving me health; he is curing me; he is removing the negativities or toxins from me. So the doctor removes the gross impurities; whereas Bhagavān, the Vaidyanātha removes the inner diseases; pāpam is a form of spiritual disease only. And look at every suffering as spiritual purification. And if I do not have this strength to have that attitude, I pray to the Lord, Oh Lord, give me the change in my perspective. So that I will say; துன்ப புடத்தில் இட்டு தூயவனாக்கி வைத்தாய்; tūṅpa puṭattil iṭṭu tūyavaṅṅakki vaittāy. This should come from my innermost heart: Oh Lord You are purifying me, removing the pāpas that I have done.

So when this understanding came to Arjuna, in the place of fear, he gets devotion to the Lord; even though Lord appears to be cruel; like a doctor appears to be cruel for a child, because it is paining; but if I understand the doctor properly. I would not look at him, as a cruel person; that is why Bhagavān is often described as Vaidyanāthaḥ; and therefore Arjuna's fear is replaced by devotion. And therefore in the later verses, beginning from the 36th onwards, Arjuna expresses devotion to the Lord, the Lord as karma phala dātha. And there we are seeing; we completed the 37th verse, wherein Arjuna said

kasmācca tē na namēran mahātman garīyasē Brahmāṅṅopyādikartrē|
ananta dēvēśa jagannivāsa
tvamakṣaram sadasattatparam yat||11.37||

Immature people do not understand you. Therefore they think You are unjust and cruel; whereas mature people understand You properly and they know that Lord can never be unjust; I am not able to understand certain experiences in my life; not because the experiences are unjust; but I do not have the totality of the picture.
Whoever has got complaint against God; they always say that I have never harmed anyone. Why should Bhagavān give me trouble; let Him give to the neighbour OK.
Let the cyclone go to Andhra. So when we say that we have not done any harm; any pāpam; we are only talking of our limited life period of a few years before. We do not even know what we have done as children; and how are we going to remember what we have done in our previous birth. Therefore when we look at ourselves; we look at a very very narrow mind; whereas when Bhagavān looks at ourselves, it is from the totality of all the karmas done in the past janmās also. Therefore we have no right to pass judgment; when we go through varieties of experience. Our only attitude is God knows best. And that is they give the stories of Dharmaputra who is supposed to be an embodiment of dharma but goes through all types of problem.
And Dharmaputra himself gets doubt; how come I go through all these suffering; He is Dharmaputra; why Me; this approach is called why Me; that means anybody else OK; Good; but why me. So Dharmaputra gets the doubt in the forest; he gets frustrated; he gets angry with Lord; he thinks that there is full of injustice alone in the world. Then ṛiṣīs and come and tell him stories; Dharmaputra himself has to be consoled. In those stories what the ṛiṣīs point out that nobody can escape the karma phalam; even Gods when they take the avathāra; even they go through the difficult situations;

अवश्यम् भावि भावानाम् प्रतीकारो भवेत् यति ।

तदा दुःखैर् न लिप्येरन् नळराम युधिष्ठिरः ॥

avaśyam bhāvi bhāvānām pratīkāro bhavēt yati |

tadā duḥkhair na lipyēran naḷarāma yudhiṣṭiraḥ ||

If all the sufferings in life have got cure, then Rāma would not have suffered; Yudhiṣṭira would not have suffered. The very fact that even they suffered indicate that there are many curable pāpams and incurable pāpams. If that comes, what to do; படு மனமே படு; paṭu maṇame paṭu; suffer only; Only we should learn to accept. And that mental preparation, we can never try to get when the suffering comes. If you want to develop immunity and you want to do exercise; When should you do exercise; not when you are sick; the immunity should be developed when you are healthy, do exercise or do walking, etc. similarly this mental preparation, we have to do not at the time of suffering, but when things are relatively better; we have to say to our own mind then itself that Lord is never unjust; Lord gives every experience according to my karma only. There is no injustice in the world; இதை சொல்லி சொல்லி உரு போட்டுதுண்ணா; we have to repeat that constantly to ourselves for many years; and if that happens, then when tomorrow something comes what vāsana acceptance vāsana will work. But our problem is when everything is fine, we do not want to think of these things; Because enjoy; so that preparation we have to do when everything is fine; Oh Lord; Give me the strength to accept my prarabdha.

And once that maturity comes, they only surrender to the Lord; they can never criticize the Lord; kasmācca tē na namēran mahātman. So the mature people would certainly do namaskāra; Why would not they do namaskāra; Up to this we saw in the last class.

त्वमादिदेवः पुरुषः पुराणः त्वमस्य विश्वस्य परं निधानम्

वेत्तासि वेद्यं च परं च धाम त्वया ततं विश्वमनन्तरूप ॥ ११.३८ ॥

tvamādidēvaḥ puruṣaḥ purāṇaḥ

tvamasya viśvasya param̄ nidhānam | vēttāsi vēdyam̄ ca param̄ ca dhāma
tvayā tataṁ viśvamanantarūpa || 11.38 ||

त्वम् आदिदेवः tvam ādidevaḥ You are the Primal God, पुराणः पुरुषः purāṇaḥ puruṣaḥ the ancient puruṣaḥ त्वं परं निधानं tvam̄ param̄ nidhānam̄ you are the supreme ground of dissolution अस्य विश्वस्य asya viśvasya of this Universe, असि वेत्ता asi vettā you are the knower, वेद्यं च vedhyaṁ ca the known, च धाम ca dhāma as well as abode, परम् param which is beyond (both), विश्वं ततम् viśvam̄ tatam the Universe is pervaded, त्वया tvayā by You, अनन्तरूप anantarūpa Oh Lord with endless forms !

38. You are the primal God, the ancient Purusha, you are the supreme ground of dissolution of this Universe. You are the knower, the known as well as the abode which is beyond (both).The Universe is pervaded by You, Oh ! Lord with endless forms !

So Lord's Krishna stature is increasing, in the vision of Arjuna. Even though the Lord has been great all the time, Arjuna begins to understand that now only; therefore his devotion also becomes deeper and deeper. Previously his namaskāra was a mere mechanical act, because we have been taught to do namaskāra in front of the Lord right from the childhood, and since we have mechanically practised it; it is only a physical exercise; but for an enlightened person; every namaskāra is a very very significant inner expression of his attitude. The Lord represents the law of karma; and my namaskāra represents; I will never question the law of karma; and that unquestioned acceptance is indicated by a physical action;

And therefore Arjuna expresses that devotion here; tvam adi devaḥ; Oh Lord, You are the first and foremost God; So आदिदेवः ādidevaḥ; because Brahmā is also considered God only; but Brahmā is ādidevaḥ because even before Brahmā originated or emerged Lord Viṣṇu was there; and therefore he is called ādidevaḥ;

पुरुषः puruṣaḥ; You are the all-pervading one and also you are indweller in every human body. puruṣaḥ has two meanings; purayathi sarvam iti puruṣaḥ; the one who is all pervading; and the second meaning is: the one who resides in the body;

puru means body; ṣaḥ means indweller. So puru ṣaḥ means body resident; body indweller;

And पुराणः purāṇaḥ, you are the most ancient one; without a beginning; purāṇaḥ; Then त्वमस्य विश्वस्य परं निधानम् tvamasya viśvasya param nīdhānam; the ground of dissolution or destruction; And you are the ultimate ground into which the whole creation dissolves or resolves; layā sthānam; pralaya sthānam; And why do we say the Lord is the ultimate resolution ground. Because then the scriptures describe pralayam; they describe it as a gradual process; All the living beings are resolved into prithvi. Therefore earth becomes the layā sthānam for all the plants and animals, insects all of them. Then the earth itself dissolves into jalam of the five elements; jalam is the next one; and the jalam itself is supposed to resolve into the agni tatvam; agni into vāyu tatvam; vāyu into ākāśa tatvam; and ākāśa into Brahmā tatvam; and Brahmān resolves into? (I am just seeking whether you are listening). So all these things resolve into something else; but Brahmān does not resolve into anything and therefore it is called the ultimate resolution ground; whereas pṛithvī jalam agni etc. are relative resolution ground and therefore the adjective param nīdhānam. So param nīdhānam.

वेत्तासि वेद्यं च vēttāsi vēdyam ca; though you are the knower of everything; that means that you are every living being; which is the experiencer of the world; So vēttā means bhōktra jīvaḥ; the sentient experiencing living beings are called vēttā; and vēdyam means the insentient object of experience; so one is pramātha and another is pramēyam; one is bhōktā and another is bōgyam; one is subject; the other is object; one is sentient; the other is insentient. In fact the whole creation is only a mixture of the cētana-acētana and Arjuna says you are both the cētana tatvam as well as the acētana.

And not only you are bhōktā and bōgyam; and परं च धाम param ca dhāma; so you are beyond both of them also; you are the ultimate reality also; who is neither the experiencer nor the experienced. pramāthḥ pramēyam athithaḥ tvam ēva; That means the absolute consciousness.

So here the idea is conveyed Māndūkya idea; So vēttā refers to viśva taijasā prajñā; vēdyam refers to the stūla sūkṣma, kāraṇa prapañca. Three pairs; and param cha dhāma means that which is beyond the three pairs; that is the turiya tatvam; a philosophical idea is conveyed here; परं च धाम param ca dhāma; dhāma means caitanyaṁ; the turiyaṁ caitanyaṁ You are, in which all the knowers as well as the object of knowledge rest; param ca dhāma.

In short, त्वया ततं विश्वमनन्तरूप tvayā tataṁ viśvamanantarūpa; Oh Lord; the entire universe is pervaded by You; As turiyaṁ; you are the substratum upon which the relative world rests; tvaya; by you the turiyaṁ; the absolute visvam tatham; the universe is pervaded; So this you can clearly understand; if you only remember the upaniṣadic teaching; therefore those who do not know Māndūkya, you can leave it aside; you note this much; that vēttā and vēdyaṁ represents the relative world; and param means the absolute. You are both the relative as well as the absolute; so tvayā tataṁ viśvam; Hē anantarūpa; Oh! Viśva rūpa īśvara.

वायुर्यमोऽग्निर्वरुणः शशाङ्कः प्रजापतिस्त्वं प्रपितामहश्च ।

prajāpatistvaṁ prapitāmahaśca |
namō namastē'stu sahasrakṛtvaḥ
punaśca bhūyō'pi namō namastē || 11.39 ||

त्वं वायुः tvaṁ vāyuḥ you are the Vayu, यमः yamaḥ yama अग्निः agniḥ agni वरुणः varuṇaḥ varuna शशाङ्कः śaśāṅkaḥ the moon, प्रजापतिः prajāpatiḥ prajāpati च प्रपितामहः ca prapitāmahaḥ and the great grand father सहस्रकृत्वः sahasrakṛtvaḥ a thousand fold, नमः नमः namaḥ namaḥ salutation अस्तु ते astu te be to You नमः नमः namaḥ namaḥ salutation be ते te to you, पुनः च भूयः अपि punaḥ ca bhūyaḥ api again and again

39. You are vāyuḥ, agniḥ, yamaḥ, varuṇaḥ, śaśāṅkaḥ, the moon, prajāpatiḥ, and the great grandfather. A thousand fold salutations be to you; salutation be to You again and again.

So You are everything; that is the essence of the verse; वायुः अग्निः यमः वरुणः शशाङ्कः tvaṁ vāyuḥ agniḥ, yamaḥ agniḥ varuṇaḥ śaśāṅkaḥ; all You alone are; vāyuḥ means Vāyu dēvathā; the wind or air; yamaḥ means kāla dēvathā, (yamaḥ not the motor bike - see what a name). So yamaḥ is the kāla tatvam; and agniḥ means the fire principle, varuṇaḥ means the water; śāsāṅkaḥ means the moon; prajāpatiḥ; so vāyuḥ agniḥ, yamaḥ agniḥ varuṇaḥ śāsāṅkaḥ; you are all of them;

You should know the logic behind it also; what is the logic; in the seventh chapter itself Krishna has introduced that Bhagavān is the kāraṇam; and the whole creation is the kāryam; and we know the fundamental law that the kāraṇam alone appears in the form of manifold kāryam; Cause alone with different names and forms appears as various effects; just as one gold alone with different names and rūpās appears as different forms of ornaments. There are no ornaments separate from gold; there are no furniture separate from wood; there are no waves and oceans separate from water; generalising, there are no products separate from cause. And the cause being God; there are no creations other than God. Therefore God alone is in the form of ākāśa, Agni, vāyuḥ, āpaḥ, that logic you should remember. It is given in one particular section of Brahmā sūtra;

So this logic is a powerful adikāraṇam; tat anyatvam arambha śabdadibhyaḥ; It is called ārambhanādi kāraṇa nyāyā. So what is the logic; Effects do not exist separate from cause. Or to put in another language; cause alone appears as manifold effects.

And applying this principle Arjuna says Oh Lord, you the cause alone are in the form of all the jīvas; vāyuḥ agniḥ, yamaḥ agniḥ varuṇaḥ śāsāṅkaḥ;

प्रजापतिः prajāpatiḥ; prajāpatiḥ; there are fourteen prajāpatiḥ; whose department is the expansion of the population; that is why they are called prajāpatiḥ; Therefore they all will have many wives; something like that; people each one has three wives and all and one family will be forty fifty people would be there; that is true in the case of prajāpatiḥ; kaśyapa prajāpatiḥ; dakṣa prajāpatiḥ etc.; They are all described in the purāṇās; Viṣṇu creates Brahmā; and Brahmā creates 14 prajāpatiḥ; and from the 14 all the other human beings are born. And therefore Arjuna says all those prajāpatiḥ also you alone are.

And then पितामहः pitāmahaḥ; pitāmahaḥ; all the fourteen prajāpatiḥ are born out of pitāmahaḥ are whom: Brahmāji; that is not there in the verse; we have to supply; prajāpatiḥ You are; 14; Brahmā You are 1; not fourteen; one Brahmā you are; and Brahmāji himself is born out of Viṣṇu's navel; So Brahmāji is pitāmahaḥ;

Viṣṇu becomes what: प्रपितामहश्च prapitāmahaḥ; so You are the father of even Brahmā; So You are prajāpatiḥ; You are Brahmā; You are Viṣṇu; and therefore what do I want to do; what can I do; नमो नमस्तेऽस्तु namō namastē:'stu; I offer my namaskārams; how many times; सहस्रकृत्वः sahasrakṛtvaḥ; thousands of times; I offer namaskārams to you; still I am not satisfied; पुनश्च भूयोऽपि नमो नमस्ते punaśca bhūyō'pi namō namastē; again and again I offer namaskārams to you; because the more I think of your great, the more I feel like offering namaskāras to you;

namō'stu tē sarvata ēva sarva | anantavīryāmitavikramastvam
sarvaṁ samāpnōṣi tatō'si sarvaḥ || 11.40 ||

नमः पुरस्तात् namaḥ purastāt salutation (to You) in front, अथ atha and ते te (salutation) to You, पृष्ठतः pṛṣṭataḥ behind नमः अस्तु ते namaḥ astu te salutation be to You, सर्वतह एव sarvataḥ eva all around, त्वम् tvam You are, Oh Lord ! अनन्तवीर्यमितविक्रमः anantaviryāmitavikramaḥ of limitless power and infinite courage, समाप्नोषि samāproṣi you pervade, सर्वम् sarvam everything, ततः असि tataḥ asi (and) hence you are सर्वः sarvaḥ everything.

40. Salutation (to You) in front and (salutation) to you behind. Salutation be to You all around. Oh Lord! You are of limitless power and infinite courage. You pervade everything (and) hence, You are everything.

Arjuna is still not satisfied; he has offered thousand namaskārams; verbal; not physical, he would have lost his leg; verbally he said; sahasrakṛtvaḥ namaḥ; still he is not satisfied; and therefore he says; my namaskārams to you in front of you; my namaskārams to you in behind; to your right side; to your left; all over, and all sides; I offer namaskārams;

So नमः पुरस्तात् ते purastāt tē namaḥ; in front of you; पृष्ठतः prṣṭataḥ; behind you; because really speaking there is no front or behind; because Lord's face is all over and facing all the directions; prṣṭataḥ means to your back; behind; I offer namaskāra; and in short; instead of describing each direction; north east, north south,

Therefore he says; सर्वत एव नमस्कार sarvata ēva namaskāra; so all around You I offer namaskāra; sarvata ēva tē namaḥ asthu; sarva rūpaḥ; who is not in the form of Krishna alone; who is not in the form of Rāma alone; but who is in the form of everything in the creation; and that is why we have got pañca bhūthā liṅga also. You should remember; there are all based on this teaching only; ākāśa rūpēṇa You alone are in the form of Vāyu You are, agni You are; therefore I do namaskāram to the pañca bhūthās also; because You are everything;

And how great You are; अनन्तवीर्यामितविक्रमस्त्वं anantavīryāmitavikramastvaṁ; You have got infinite strength or power; omnipotent You are; anantavīryām yasya; Because any power that is anywhere belongs to you only; in one lightening itself; so much electricity is there; they say; that is we know how to tap the electricity from one flash of lightening, we can burn, we can provide electricity to a city for one year. But the problem is that we do not have the technology to tap; and how many flashes of lightening are coming; every second somewhere in the world; lightening is striking; every second; how much power should be there.

And all these power belongs to whom; therefore anantavīryā; like that you can take; so much power in the creation; all You alone are; and amitavikrama; and You have got enormous valour, courage also; some people have power; but no courage; So they have the power; so they are terrified; some people have got courage; but no power; you have got both; anantavīryaḥ; amitavikramaḥ; amithaḥ vikramaḥ; anantavīryāsya ayam; amita amitavikramaḥ ayam; viśeṣaṇa upāya dhāraya karma samāsaḥ.

For grammar students; others can be blissfully ignorant; anantavīryaḥ amita vikramaḥ tvam; सर्व समाप्नोषि sarvaṁ samāpnōṣi; You pervade everything. So the idea of travelling and reaching God should go out of our mind.

So when we start religion, our idea is we have to reach God; we have to reach God; and after death; and that too we have to travel; பரம பதம் அடைந்தார்; சிவ பதம் அடைந்தார்; விஷ்ணு பதம் அடைந்தார்; parama patam aṭaintār; civa patam aṭaintār; viṣṇu patam aṭaintār. We have got a conditioning that we have to travel and reach God; the 11th chapter should demolish that conditioning, There is no question of reaching God; because we are never away from the Lord; to reach him. Then why do scriptures talk about reaching God; Reaching God is dropping the notion that we are away from God; See whether you understanding; Reaching God is dropping the notion; dropping the conditioning that we have to reach God. For the one who has got viśva rūpa darśanam, I have got my birth; my movement; my death; everything on the lap of the Lord only; how many kilometers the wave should travel to reach the ocean. So there is no question of travel; the idea of travel and the idea of distance is born out of ignorance; it is a notional distance; it is neither time wise distance nor space-wise distance; it is purely ignorance-wise distance; If space-wise distance is there; you have to travel; if timewise distance is there; you have to wait; What is timewise distance; a child wants to become a major; minor wants to become major; the distance between minor and major is determined by what; time. So what should you do; wait; whereas in the case of reaching God; there is no question of spacewise distance; we need not travel; there is no question of timewise distance; இப்படி இருந்துண்டு இருந்தால் ஒரு நாளைக்கு பகவானை போயி அடைவோம்; ippaṭi iruntunṭu iruntāl oru nāḷaikku pakavānai poyi aṭaivom; If we continue like this, we will reach God one day; that concept is also not there; the distance is purely ignorance-wise; how do you remove the ignorance-distance; only by knowledge. And therefore viśva rūpa darśanam should remove the idea of reaching God because you are sarvaṁ samāpnōṣi; are all pervading; and therefore ततोऽसि सर्वः tatō'si sarvaḥ; and therefore you are everything; first I say You pervade everything; then I say You are everything; like saying Gold pervades all the ornaments; that is statement No.1; Then the next statement; there is no question of gold pervading all ornaments; in fact, gold is in the form of all ornaments; therefore tatō'si sarvaḥ.

अजानता हिमानं तवेदं मया प्रमादात्प्रणयेन वापि ॥ ११.४१ ॥

sakhēti matvā prasabhaṁ yaduktam
hē kṛṣṇa hē yādava hē sakhēti | ajānatā mahimānaṁ tavēdam
mayā pramādātpraṇayēna vā'pi || 11.41 ||

मत्वा इति matvā iti regarding you, इति सखा iti sakhā as my friend, इति यत् iti yat expressions like हे कृष्ण he kṛṣṇa Oh Krishna, हे यादव he yādava Oh Yadava हे सखे he sakhe Oh friend प्रसभम् prasabham (have been) rudely, प्रमादात् pramādāt indifferently, वा अपि प्रणयेन vā api praṇayena or affectionately उक्तं मया uktaṁ mayā uttered by me, अजानता ajānatā who did not know इदं महिमानम् idaṁ mahimānam this glory, तव tava of Yours.

41. Regarding You as my friend, expressions like “Oh Krishna! Oh Yadava! Oh friend” etc. have been rudely, indifferently, or affectionately uttered by me who did not know this glory of yours.

Now Arjuna looks back; because he has understood that Krishna is not an ordinary jīva; but Krishna is Bhagavān himself. So who deserves all the namaskāras; All the reverence the Lord requires. So now he knows how to treat the Lord; how to respect the Lord; but he looks back and he remembers that before knowing this, he has never treated the Lord as the Lord; he has treated him only as a friend. And therefore he has never given the respect the Lord deserves and therefore he feels very bad about it. Even though Lord Krishna does not feel; he feels that he has insulted Him and therefore he asks for forgiveness in these verses.

हे कृष्ण सखा इति मत्वा hē kṛṣṇa sakhā iti matvā, I thought You are an ordinary human being and that you are a friend of mine; sakhā means a friend; especially a friend of equal age. And therefore I have used irreverent words.

प्रसभम् यत् उक्तं prasabham yat uktaṁ; prasabham means rudely, irreverently, without respect, impolitely I have used many words; I should have addressed you; Hey Bhagavān; but what did I do; I said hē kṛṣṇa; I have addressed You; in some cultures, they have got the first name basis; second name; who can be called with the first name; who can be called with second name; and therefore I have addressed You in a very very impolite way; In Sanskrit, हे hē is disrespect; like using vāda, pōda, using da; That hey is something like that; हे यादव hē yādava; I have addressed as Yādava; and hē sakhā; as friend, Oh Friend; in this manner I have impolitely address You; but it is not because of my disrespect to You;

but because of sheer ignorance; तव महिमानम् अजानता tava mahimānam ajānatā. In fact it is your mistake; you have taken an ordinary human form; If you had come with a few more extra heads; extra hands; at least I would have known that You are an extra-ordinary person; but You have come with only an ordinary human form; therefore tava mahimānam; Your real glory ajānatā; I did not know.

तव इदं tava imam; that is another reading also; idam; idam mahimānam; or imam mahimānam; both readings are there; idam mahimānam is grammatically incorrect; because mahimaanam is masculine gender; and idam is neuter gender; therefore they do not go together; So if it is idam mahimaanam; it is grammatically wrong; but we cannot say Vyāsa is wrong; so therefore we say it is poetic license; and we justify somehow; if it is taken imam mahimānam; Then grammatically it is appropriate and therefore I have taken the imam mahimānam reading; which is grammatically correct; so without knowing Your real glory; I have done that.

Or मया प्रमादात् mayā pramādāt; pramādāt;; or inadvertently; casually, carelessly, I have used such expression; because we have been very very close; and therefore when I speak and I do not think generally, we generally think; but when we are moving with friends, where are you going to think; I might have such words; pramādāt inadvertently or unwittingly;

Or प्रणयेन praṇayēna; because of my closeness to You; because of our intimate friendship I would have used such expressions; we are not going to use reverentially expression; when a friend comes, you say vāda; pōda; therefore do not take it to Your heart; do not take it seriously.

42. Moreover, for the sake of fun, You have been slighted by me, while playing, reclining, sitting, or eating, either in privacy or in public. Oh Krishna! For that I seek forgiveness from you, the incomprehensible one.

Not only that; Arjuna says; I might have insulted you several times; for the sake of fun; अवहासार्थम् avahāsārtham; for the sake of fun I might have disrespected you; I might have pulled your leg; we say in that meaning; असत्कृतः असि asatkṛtaḥ asi; because You are friend, I might have played friendly pranks with You; I might have done, during several occasions like विहारशय्यासनभोजनेषु vihāraśayyāsanabhojaneṣu; because You should Arjuna and Krishna were very intimate friends and therefore they have been together during several occasions; like what; vihāra; while playing; śayyā; on the bed; when sleeping together; śayyā; āsana; while sitting together on the āsana; or bhojana; while eating; during all these occasions I might have played several pranks and thus I might have insulted You. And sometimes I might have insulted You when we only were there; but sometimes I might have done that in front of others also; so playing fun; therefore एकः ekaḥ; when we were alone in private; or तत् समक्षम् tat samakṣam; publicly in front of others also; I might have made fun of You; for all of them You should give me forgiveness. त्वाम् तत् क्षामये त्वामहम् tvām Tat ahaṁ kṣāmaye tvāmaham; please pardon me; please excuse me for such a treatment; And I know You will do that; because you are Aprameyam; You are unlike the worldly people; worldly people will keep that in mind; but You are extraordinary; अप्रमेयम् apramēyam means matchless; incomparable; unlike the worldly people.

asi pitā असि पिता you are the father अस्य लोकस्य asya lokasya of this world

abhyadhikaḥ superior (to You), अप्रतिमप्रभाव apratimaprabhāva Oh Lord, worlds

43. You are the father of this world, moving and stationary. You are the adorable one and the teacher who is superior to all. There is none equal to you. How can there be another one superior to you. Oh Lord, whose power is unmatched in all the three worlds?

Some tongue twisters. Ok. अस्य चराचरस्य लोकस्य पिता असि asya carācarasya lokasya pitā asi; So You are the father; You are the kāraṇam of the entire creation. And what about mother; mother also You are; because in the vedic teaching; father and mother are inseparable; one is Brahmā tatvam; another is māya tatvam; Brahmān and māya are inseparable; And that is why Viṣṇu and Lakṣmi are inseparable; Lakṣmi always occupies the chest of the Lord; we also keep Lakṣmi devi in our pockets; Lakṣmi on the chest; now we are keeping somewhere back; that is a different thing; that is not supposed to be the right thing; because lakṣmi devi is sacred; you cannot keep it behind; therefore you are supposed to keep here; that is what Viṣṇu is teaching; vakṣaaathala sthitha lakṣmi; and Brahmāji keeps Sarasvati where; in the tongue itself; and Śiva still further; half of the body is occupied; therefore all the trinity we find, father and mother, they cannot be separated; the philosophical significance is Brahmān and māya are inseparable; that is why when you worship mother, father is included; when you worship the father, mother is included; you need not even separately do; therefore pithaasi means you are both the father and mother; we saw it before; mātha, dātha; pithāmahaḥ; so अस्य लोकस्य asya lokasya; what type of lōkā; चराचरस्य carācarasya; the world consisting of the moving and non-moving things; so the moving referring to the cētana the living being and the non-moving referring to the acētana.

And not only that; त्वं अस्य पूज्यः च tvam asya pūjyaḥ ca; and you are the one to be worshipped by the entire creation; the ultimate object of worship; and that is why even if anyone else receives worship; Suppose we receive worship; our children do namaskāra to us; whether they will do is doubtful! Suppose the children do namaskāra to us; or we are teachers; therefore śiṣyas do namaskāra to us; or anyone does namaskāra to us; what are we supposed to do; we never deserve namaskāra; that is the basic truth; but they do namaskāra because they have a duty to do namaskāra because मातृ देवोभवः पितृ देवो भवः mātṛ dēvōbhavaḥ piṭṛ dēvō bhavaḥ; it is there; and therefore they have to do namaskāra; therefore as parents we cannot stop them from doing; and as a guru; we cannot stop the śiṣya; therefore what we do; we get the namaskāra; we do not deserve it; therefore how to solve the problem; quietly hand over the namaskāra to the Lord. So therefore Oh Lord I am receiving it; and without keeping it for long time, I immediately pass on to my guru; one is short cut, relay race; I give to my guru; and he gives to his guru; and then sadāśiva samārambhām; it will go there; Or if our children are doing namaskāra; we hand over to our parents; they will hand over to their parents;

Therefore there is only one who deserves all the pūja; and who is that; tvam eva pūjyaḥ; if you remember this; namaskāra to us; will not create problem; otherwise according to śāstra, if we do not handover the namaskāra to the Lord; it will cause spiritual downfall; We are not supposed to receive namaskāra; when we receive; our ego gets bloated; and it can lead to our downfall; that is why there are some svami; they will not allow anyone to do namaskāra; I remember when I was in āṣṭama; one Swami had come; he even before coming to the place, he sends the instructions; Nobody should do namaskāra to him; and then he got down from the car; And somebody who had newly come, he did not get the advanced instructions; so he fell flat at his feet; so that Swami was very much disturbed; So there are many people who refuse to receive namaskāra; because according to śāstra; receiving namaskāra is supposed to cause downfall because, we do not deserve it; and therefore what to do; handover to God.

More in the next class.

Om

Lord Krishna while answering Arjuna's question pointed out that I am the kāla tatvam and we should remember that the time is not separate from the creation and therefore when I appreciate the Lord as kālaḥ, I simultaneously appreciate the Lord as dēśaḥ also; because time and space are inseparable entities; and once I appreciate desha and kāla as Īśvara; then everything existing in time and space also must be Īśvara because the world cannot exist separate from dēśaḥ and kāla. As I said the other day, previously it was thought that time and space are separate and the creation is separate; this was the thinking under Newtonian physics. Later we have revised our opinion; creation cannot be separated from time and space; or time and space cannot be separated from creation. That is why Śankarācārya in Dakshinamoorty sthōthram; मायाकल्पित देशकालकलना वैचित्र्यचित्रीकृतम् māyākalpita dēśakālakalanā vaicitryacitrīkṛtam. It is not time and space existed before and Bhagavān thought in time; one day to create the universe; that is not the idea; Bhagavān created the world means Bhagavān created time, place and the world; and that is why we get into a logical problem; it is an aside topic; not part of Viśva rūpa darśanam; once I know Bhagavān created time and space and world, we will have difficulty in answering the question; when did Bhagavān create time; What will be your answer. When did Bhagavān create time; you try to find out an answer intellectually that question can never be answered. If I say Bhagavān created time at 8 0 clock. Then what does it mean; the time was existing before; 7.50, 7.51. 7.52, and 7.59, like the TV news; 7.59 Time created; does it happen? You can never answer the question when time arrived.

Similarly the next logical knot is where does space exist?

And the last and most difficult question is how did the cause effect principle come into being; How did the cause effect principle come when I ask; (this is the subject of Māndūkya), The question is what is the cause of the cause-effect principle. These three questions, you can never answer; that is why we use the word: Māya. Māya does not mean we do not mean how to answer; Māya means intellectually these questions are Undecipherable. So that is an aside; we will see the details in Mandukya. So here what I want to say is: Bhagavān says I am time, we should understand that Bhagavān is Time, Bhagavān is Space; Bhagavān is the objects also.

And once I know Bhagavān, Time Space and Objects, it is proved Bhagavān is all the events also. Because Time and Space includes events, including the event of the Gītā Class. Gītā class is not an object, but it is an event. Therefore Lord is Time; Lord is Space; Lord is Objects; Lord is Events; and finally and most importantly, Lord is the Order or the laws; L... a. w... s; not loss; Lord is the all laws also, which govern all the events. Therefore a particular event happens; because of a particular law; when you boil water to make coffee; the boiling of water is an event, which is governed by one law; What is that; water boils at such and such temperature; when it is in TP; in normal temperate and pressure; the pure water; not our local water; it is the most impurest water boils at such and such temperature; This is universal law for everyone; that means what every event is governed by set of physical laws; as well as moral laws; Those laws are also integral part of the creation; which Dayananda Swamiji calls the order; with capital O; which governs the music of the creation; which governs the orchestra of the creation; all of them Bhagavān is: dēśaḥ; kāla; vasthu; sambhavaḥ; Sambhavaḥ means events as well as Niyathiḥ or Niyamāḥ; all of them are Bhagavān himself. So instead of saying Bhagavān created all of them, we have progressed a little bit, Bhagavān is all of them; by which we mean whenever I experience anyone of them; I am experiencing Bhagavān intimately.

The other day one person was asking: Can I have the darśanam of the Lord; in fact many devotees have this question; Can I have the darśanam of Lord; what does the Gītā say: the question itself is meaningless because you are having the darśanam of God only; you are only not aware of the fact that you are having sarvadhā Īśvara darśanam. So our problem is not Īśvara darśanam; Our problem is that we are not aware of the fact that we are having Īśvara darśanam all the time; And the moment we become aware of that; we have got a mature mind. When you look for Īśvara darśanam; you are adama bhakthaḥ; When you are aware of the fact that I need not work for Īśvara darśanam; because Īśvara, dēśaḥ; kāla; vasthu; sambhavaḥ; as well as Niyamaḥ; then I am madhyama bhakthaḥ. Uttama bhaktha is above that; I am Īśvara; that is a little taking; we need not say: I am Īśvaraḥ; but it is enough if we are aware of the fact that I am not experiencing anything other than Īśvara;

And therefore this Viśva rūpa bhaktha is the greatest appreciator of the nature; so he is a great nature lover; but when he appreciates the nature; he appreciates it, not as nature, but as Bhagavān. And Arjuna also gets a glimpse of this appreciation and therefore his mind is overwhelmed by devotion; and therefore he says: I do namaskāram to you from all directions because you are facing all directions:

viswatha cakshu utha vishwatho mukho; vishwatho hasta utha viswata paath; sambhaahubhyaan nama sambhavatha tri dhyavaa prithvi janayantha devam mana Śiva sankalpamasthu; 11.51.

So there is a Śiva saṅkalpa mantra occurring in the Mahānyāsa which is chanted generally before ēkādaśa rudra abhiṣēka; that Śiva saṅkalpa mantrās are so beautiful; let my mind have auspicious thought; and one of the auspicious thought is what; all the legs, all the eyes; all the faces are the faces of the Lord alone; And when Arjuna appreciates this; he looks back and as I was telling you in the last class. Arjuna feels a great deep guilt in his mind; because I should have worshipped Lord Krishna as Viśva rūpa Īśvara; I should have worshipped Him properly. In fact, I should not have sat along with Him; on the same table even; I should have sat down; with great respect and humbleness, but I should have treated Krishna properly; I insulted Him; even though Krishna does not feel that; Arjuna is feeling a deep guilt in Him; and therefore he surrendering to the Lord and he says Oh Lord; please forgive Me Oh Lord for all the insults for all the offences that I have done to You and that is why in our culture we say, we should not disrespect the earth because, everything is Bhagvan. because earth is also Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; we should not disrespect water also; नाप्सु मूत्रं पुरिषम् कुर्यात्; न निष्ठिवेद; न विवसनं स्न्यात् । nāpsu mūtra puriṣam kuryāt; na niṣṭivēd; na vivasana snyāt. So never disrespect water; do not spit in water; do not take bath in the river without clothes; all these advices are given by the Vēdās; why so much respect; varṣathi na dāvēd; when it is raining; you do not run; it has two meanings: varṣathi sati na dāvēd; generally what do we do; we run; we want to protect us from the rain; so do not run two meanings; if you run during rain, generally the place will be wet and slippery; we will fall; that is the practical advice; the second thing is: why do you try to escape from rain, which is nothing but Bhagavān Himself. It says soak yourselves in rain and not only we run, if we are not able to run, we protect ourselves with Gītā book. That is still verse. So the Bhagavad Gītā whether it is useful for anything, if it is raining, you can protect yourselves from rain. So therefore rain is one of the best gifts; varṣathi na dāvēd. Surya namaskāra it comes. Here Arjuna says:

pitā'si lōkasya carācarasya
tvamasya pūjyaśca gurugarīyān | na tvatsamō'styabhyadhikaḥ kutō'nyō
lōkatrayē'pyapratimaprabhāva || 11.43 ||

This is the verse I introduced in the last class. Oh Lord: You are the father of the universe. Here we have to see two things; In Vēdāntic teaching, three stages are there; I have told you before; philosophically first we say:

Bhagavān creates the world; stage one; stage two is Bhagavān himself becomes as the world; therefore the world is world Bhagavān himself; this is the next stage and the last stage is Bhagavān appears as the world without undergoing change.

First stage is called nimitha kāraṇa Īśvaraḥ or ēkarūpa Īśvaraḥ; the second stage is called upādāna kāraṇa Īśvaraḥ or anēkarūpa Īśvaraḥ; the third stage is called vivaṛtha upādāna Īśvaraḥ or arūpa Īśvaraḥ.

Arjuna is here doing both; He is says the Father of the world and You are the world. Therefore पितृसि लोकस्य pitā'si lōkasya; the entire creation consisting of चराचरस्य carācarasya, the mobile and immobile; the moving and the non-moving; and त्वं पूज्यः tvam pūjyaḥ; because in the Vēdā it is said; matṛu dēvō bhava; pitṛu dēvō bhava; Just now we saw; father has to be respected and the God is the universal father; And therefore pūjyaḥ and not only the Lord is the creator of the world; Lord is the creator of the scriptural teaching tradition also, So the teaching tradition also is initiated by the Lord. Therefore Lord is adiguruḥ also; that is why, sadāśiva samārambhāḥ śaṅkarācāryamadhyamām; or if you are viṣṇu bhaktha. Nārāyaṇa samārambhāḥ; you can use anything; but Bhagavān is not only pithā; but also गुरुः guruḥ; so pūjyaḥ guruḥ and गरीयान् garīyān; and you are a greater guruḥ; superior to all all gurus. In short you are the greatest guru; compared to all other gurus;

Why; what is the logic; just saying is not enough; one has to give logic; why is Bhagavān the greatest guru; you know the answer; because all the other gurus; while they are gurus now; they have been śiṣyas before learning under some one else; Śankarācārya is a great guru alright, but himself was a śiṣya. Govinda bhagavatpada was a great guru; but he himself was a śiṣya; So everyone is a relative guru; whereas is the absolute Guru, because He is the only guru, who was never a śiṣya; who never had His guru. Therefore, He is not only fatherless father; but also Guruless Guru; Guruless Guru is here called Gariyan; Guru tamaḥ; Adi guruḥ; and therefore त्वत्समः न अस्ति tvatsamaḥ na asti; so the third line, you have to split it properly; na tvatsamaḥ asti abyatikaḥ kutaḥ anyahaḥ; so tvatsamaḥ na asti means there is no one equal to You. You are matchless. You are incomparable. Because infinite can never have a match because there is no second infinity; and when there is nobody equal to You; where is the question of somebody being greater than You; When I say that there is no second infinite, you ask whether there is something infiniter; infiniter is not possible; therefore, there is neither someone equal to you; nor some one superior to you kutaḥ anyahaḥ; and therefore Oh Lord; लोकत्रये अपि अप्रतिम lokatraye api apratimaḥ; therefore in all the three world, you are the matchless one; apratimaḥ means upamāna rahitha; prathima means upamāna comparison; apratimaḥ means matchless one;

and not only you are matchless; प्रभावः prabhāva; prabhāvaḥ means glory; so you are the Lord of matchless glory; So apratimaḥ prabhāvaḥ yasya saḥ; bahuvrihi; apratimaḥ prabhāvaḥ yasya saḥ; and its sambodhana vibhakthi; Hey apratimaḥ prabhāvaḥ; Oh Lord of matchless glory.

तस्मात् tasmāt therefore प्रणम्य praṇamya saluting प्रणिधाय कायम् praṇidhāya kāyam and prostrating the body अहं प्रसादये aham prasādaye I propitiate त्वाम् tvām You ईड्यम् ईशम् iḍyam īśam the adorable Lord देव deva Oh Lord ! अर्हसि सोढुम् arhasi soḍhum You should forgive (my offences) इव पिता iva pitā – just as a father (forgives those), पुत्रस्य इव putrasya iva of the son सखा sakhā just as a friend (forgives those) सख्युः sakhyuḥ of the friend प्रियः priyaḥ (and just as) a husband (forgives those), प्रियायाः priyāyāḥ of the wife.

44. Therefore, saluting and prostrating the body, I propitiate you, the adorable Lord. Oh Lord! You should forgive my offences just as a father forgives those of the son, just as a friend forgives those of the friend, and just as a husband forgives those of the wife.

Arjuna's guilt does not leave him; even though he has not done any serious offence; he has only treated Krishna as a friend. He has not hurt him; or harmed Him; but even Krishna as a friend, Arjuna feels is a very great insult; How can I treat Krishna as a friend. In fact treating God as a friend is an accepted in the bhakthi literature; which is called sakhya bhakthi;

अर्चनम् वन्दनम् दास्य, सक्य अत्मनिवेधनम् ॥

śravaṇam kīrtanam viṣṇoṛ smaraṇam pāda sēvanam |

arcanam vandanam dāsya, sakya atmanivēdhanam ||

Treating the Lord as a friend is acceptable but still Arjuna feels bad, guilty, and therefore again he says: तस्मात् tasmāt, because I have offended You; insulted You; belittled You; प्रणम्य praṇamya; I offer extra prayascitta namaskāra and what kind of praṇāmaḥ; not the short cut praṇama; just by joining the palms; and still shorter ones; so therefore it is not a short cut namaskāra; kāyam praṇidāya; you wonder whether it is Christian or Hindu; for them they do like this: So therefore we also do that; so kāyam means śarīram; praṇidāya; falling prostrate; falling down, dandavat praṇāmaḥ; sāṣṭāṅga praṇāmaḥ; So having done sāṣṭāṅga praṇāmaḥ to you; त्वाम् अहम् प्रसादये tvām aham prasādaye; I propitiate you as a compensation for the insult I have done; cool you down; Bhagavān has not got heated up at all; but this Arjuna feels so and says that I am cooling You; tvām prasādaye.

and what type of You: ईशम् ईड्यम् īḍyam īśam; īśaḥ means the lord of the whole creation; sarvasya jagathaḥ īstē iti īśaḥ; īstē means rule over; so īśam; same as Īśvaraḥ; so tvām aham īśam; you have to split properly; tvām aham miśai, you cannot split; it is not miśa; it is aham īśam;

then ईड्यम् īḍyam; īḍyaḥ means the adorable one; the only one who deserves namaskāra; other than Bhagavān; nobody deserves namaskāra; any honour belonging to anyone, ultimately comes from the Lord only; remember the Kēnōpaniṣad Story; Indra took glory; Agni took glory and they got censure from the Lord; So nobody in the world deserves Namaskāra; and that is why I told you in the last class; even if you do Namaskāra to jñāni; a guru or a sanyāsi; what does he do; he does not put it in his pocket. That it will cause his downfall; therefore immediately he should hand over to the Lord; through the Guru parampara. And therefore īḍyam means ईद् ईद means to worship; to honour; agniṁ īḍe purōhitaṁ; īḍe to worship; īḍyam means worshipful, adorable, God I propitiate; and for what purpose I do this; so that you will forgive me and forget all the offences; all the insults that I have done to you. And Oh Lord; You have to forgive and forget the offences like the following examples; he gives three examples; for forgiveness;

the first one is पितृ pitā; a father; with regard to the offences of the children. So Arjuna says just as a parent or father forgives the children; even though they commit mistakes because of immaturity. So from this example, what are we suppose to learn indirectly; we have to forgive our children; when they commit mistakes; We should not say; படையை மிதிக்கப்படாது paṭiyai mitikkappaṭātu; so do not step on the steps; so he will cross it; so you said I should step only; so I cross. So nowadays children do all kinds of things because they are exposed to the culture from all over the world; in village life they had only one culture; now we have all kinds of culture, which is coming to your pūja room and drawing room; children are attracted by that and therefore they are bound to commit mistake; Here Arjuna says; the parents are supposed to forgive the children; Oh Lord; you being a parent, you should forgive Me.

Then the second example; a husband forgiving the wife for her mistake; offences, insults; when the husband was elder; and wife was younger; and husband is considered to be a guru; and the wife is considered to be a śiṣya; even though no wife is willing to become a śiṣya, because husbands do not have that status; that is a different problem. So therefore just as the husband forgives the wife; that is प्रियः प्रियायाः priyaḥ priyāyāḥ; priyaḥ means wife; literally priyaḥ does not mean wife; priya means dear one; So here wife is called priyaḥ means, wife is supposed to be dearer; OK. if she is not dear; make her dear. I am not saying all these; Gītā is saying: What do I know; So I am the wrong person to talk about these issues and all, and you should not be merely letter writing; I do not know how you write; whether you use dear, I do not know; so therefore both should be dear to each other;

Then finally, सखेव सख्युः sakhēva sakhyuḥ; just as a friend forgives the offences, the insults of the friend; So similarly Oh Lord; You are like father; and You are like husband also; in fact that is also a form of bhakthi called madhura bhakthi; where the devotee looks upon himself as Gōpi or Rādha and Lord is the only puruṣaḥ and that kind of bhakthi is called madhura bhakthi; And therefore you are like the husband; and you are of course my friend also; from whatever angle you see; you have to forgive and forget. So प्रियायाः अर्हसि priyāyāḥ arhasi; priyāyāḥ plus arhasi; priyāyā arhasi; then sandhi is made even though it is not permitted rule; a grammer violation is here; but Vyasācārya's poetic license, it is allowed. So it should be priyāyāḥ arhasi; and then you have supply a word: aparādhān; offences; priyāyāḥ सोढुम् arhasi pitā aparādhān sōḍhum arhasi; Sakhā sakhyuḥ aparādhān sōḍhum arhasi; or sahate; and priyaḥ priyāyāḥ aparādhān sōḍhum arhasi; Similarly, you also.

दृष्ट्वा dr̥ṣṭvā seeing (Universal form), अदृष्टपूर्वम् adr̥ṣṭapūrvam which has not been seen before अस्मि हर्षितः asmi harṣitaḥ I am delighted च ca at the same time मे मनः me manaḥ my mind प्रव्यथितम pravyathitama is afflicted भयेन bhayena with fear देव deva Oh Lord ! दर्शय मे me darśaya show me तद् रूपम् एव tad rūpam eva that (familiar) form itself, देवेश deveśa oh God of gods ! जगन्निवास jagannivāsa Oh Lord, who is the abode of the Universe ! प्रसीद prasīda Be gracious

45. Seeing the universal form which has not been seen before, I am delighted. At the same time, my mind is afflicted with fear. Oh Lord! Show me that familiar form itself, Oh God of gods! Oh Lord!, who is the abode of the Universe ! Be gracious.

So here Arjuna expresses his two-fold emotions; which are simultaneously occupying the mind; Arjuna says I am in a conflict now; one part of mind says; I am one of the few lucky ones; blessed ones; because Bhagavān gave me divya cakṣuḥ; which is not easily available for others; So because of the special divya cakṣuḥ gift; I have got this rare Viśva rūpam darśanam; and since it is a very very rare one; in fact people are going to glorify Arjuna; you are lucky; you are lucky; people are going to be envious of Arjuna; and therefore from that angle, I feel like continuously like seeing the Viśva rūpam; because I have a got a rare darśanam; but at the same time; one corner of my mind, is only looking into the mouth of the Lord; into which all these near and dear ones are entering; and some are crushed; remember that how the people are entering and Lord is ruthlessly killing all of them; looks like cruel God; from that angle of Lord as the destroyer my mind is extremely in the grip of bhayam; So one part of my mind is happy; another part of my mind is distressed with fear; And since one part of my mind is happy it tells; continue to see it; and the other part of mind with fear says; close your eyes; do not see; in Malayalam they say: കച്ചിട്ട് ഇറക്കാനും വയ്യ; മധുരിച്ചിട്ടു തുപ്പാനും വയ്യ; kaccitṭṭ̣ irakkānum vayya; madhuriccitṭṭ̣u tuppānum vayya; in tamil there is a parallel; it is better, therefore I am not able to swallow; and not able to swallow; at the same time, it is also sweet; bitter sweet; I am not able to spit it out also; but Arjuna feels between these two; Bhayam is more dominant; it is only because divya cakṣuḥ is a artificial one given by Bhagavān; Divya cakṣuḥ should be claimed by us by our own sādānā;

so by sufficient karma yoga sādhanā rāga dvēṣās; ahamkāra mamakārās comes down; that mind has got naturally developed divya cakṣu; And when we have got naturally developed divya cakṣuḥ; Viśva rūpa will not be frightening; but in the case of Arjuna; it is artificially given; and therefore Arjuna is not able to totally enjoy; And therefore he says Oh Lord! World is congratulating me, but I am not able to withstand. And therefore what is my request; enough is enough; please withdraw the Viśva rūpam. Who asked for Viśva rūpam; Arjuna only. The very same Arjuna who said I would like to have Viśva rūpa, the very same Arjuna says I cannot withstand, Which means from ēka rūpa bhakthi if I have to go to anēka rūpa bhakthi; rāga dvēṣās must be tremendously decreased. Nirguna bhakthi is later; that is not necessary. ēka rūpa to anēka rūpa bhakthi I have to go; I have to reduce rāga dvēṣā tremendously. To put in another language; ahamkāra mamakārā must be reduced; நான் எனது nāṅ enatu; these two must come down; when they come down; Viśva rūpa will be enjoyable.

So here Arjuna says अदृष्टपूर्वम् दृष्ट्वा adr̥ṣṭapūrvam dr̥ṣṭvā; I have seen something which is unique which I have not experienced before; because Viśva rūpa experience is for the first time and therefore it is unique; So adr̥ṣṭapūrvam means apūrvam; in Tamil we ask; why have you come to my home apūrvamāka; means you do not generally come; So similarly this is apūrva darśanam.

and having seen this अस्मि हर्षितः asmi harṣitaḥ; I am extremely elated; because especially when we have something rare, and the neighbour does not have; we have that extra happiness; anything including dress; they ask you from where did you purchase it; when you receive that question; it takes to as though mōkṣa! So then you say that; you do not want to say; because if they also purchase that, your importance would be lost. Therefore you say that I got it from that shop and that person goes there and enquires and comes to know that it was never sold in that shop, or it is no more available; and he comes and tells that it is never available and you get brahmānandam. So similarly here also Arjuna feels that nobody has it; and I have got it; therefore I am extremely happy.

But the problem is internally, I am terribly frightened also; भयेन च bhayēna ca; because of the mouth; remember it; bhayēna ca; bhayēna ca mē manaḥ mē pravyathitaṃ. So with fear my mind is afflicted; tortured; tormented; distressed; प्रव्यथितं pravyathitam; so it is like the experience;

I also like to share this experience. In the village we have got the village function; temple function and in Kerala for any festival; elephant is a must; so we have two three elephants; and the middle elephant carry the Lord; and there is a pradakṣiṇam of the whole village and when the elephant goes, people would like to go on to the top of the elephant because we have to hold the deity and umbrella, such other things; a few items along with the Lord; So there is big adi-thadi among the villagers as to who should climb the elephant; and then one time I also got on the elephant. Now, in the village and all; on the top of the elephant, they do not spread anything; In the movies and all, they show with clothes; cushion, a small stand, etc. So you do not know what it is all about; so on top of the elephant there is the backbone; it is really the hardest stuff in the world; perhaps harder than the diamond; and the hair of the elephant is also very sharp like a needle; So when you get on the elephant; and look around, all the other children would be envious of me; and therefore all smiles for 10 minutes; thereafter, it will be like: When I am going to get down; and you do not want to let it out because others are envious of you; So why to let out that secret; you put a smile outwards and inside you wait for the sheeveli to end. When I read this sloka of Arjuna, I only get that remembrance. So very happy, but miserable also. So like wearing coat in Madras; in summer season, you wear coat and everybody appreciates the coat; but inside, not suitable to India you know; in Madras in May in 43 degrees; what coat; you do not want even a banian; And often we experience; for the sake of the world you feel like smiling; but inside you are miserable.

So similarly, bhayēna ca pravyathitaṃ manō mē; and between these two; which is dominating bhayaṃ alone is dominating and therefore Krishna; तदेव रूपं मे दर्शय tadēva rūpam mē darśaya; Oh Lord! I would like have the good-old Krishna; my koochu guruvarappan, they say; the Lord Krishna, smiling, beautiful; adaram madhuram; vadanam madhuram; nayanam madhuram Krishna alone I want; so tadēva means what ēkarūpa Īśvaraḥ.

So from this we come to know that graduating to anēka rūpa Īśvara itself is not an easy job; and only if I have graduated and remained in anēka rūpa Īśvara; Viśva rūpa Īśvara for sufficient length of time; thereafter only rūpa Īśvara will get inside you; but we try to jump from ēka rūpa to arūpa; And that is why Vēdānta appears to be the upaniṣad appears to be more academic; it does not seem to help because upaniṣad is talking about:

with mace, चक्रहस्तम् cakrahastam and with disc in Your hand सहस्रबाहो sahasrabāho Oh Lord, with thousand arms ! विश्वमूर्ते viśvamūrte oh Lord with Universal form ! भव bhava appear तेन एव tena eva with that very same, चतुर्भुजेन रूपेण caturbhujena rūpeṇa four-armed form

46. I wish to see you in the same form as before with crown, with mace and with disc in your hand. Oh Lord, with thousand arms! Oh Lord, with Universal form! Appear with that very same four-armed form.

So Arjuna concludes his prayer. That is the third stage of appreciation. No.1 Ascharyam; No.2 bhayam; No.3 bhakthihi; The third stage of bhakthi expression is being concluded here; with Arjuna's request to the Lord to get back to his own ēkarūpa;

Therefore he says; त्वाम् अहम् इच्छामि द्रष्टुं tvām aham draṣṭuṃ icchāmi; I would like to see You; तेनैव रूपेण् tēnaiva rūpeṇa; with Your old form only; ēka rūpeṇa; Krishna rūpeṇa aham draṣṭuṃ icchāmi; and that is that old rūpam; Arjuna wonders Krishna remembers or not; therefore I tell him what was his old form; therefore किरिटीनम् kirīṭinam; so with kirīṭam; गदिनम् gadinam; with gada; चक्रहस्तम् cakrahastam; with cakra; with all these चतुर्भुजेन caturbhujēna; in your own; caturbhujā rūpa; so caturbhujam; lord with four hands; previously it was anēkahastham; now it is caturbhujam; so he himself says: सहस्रबाहो sahasrabāho; Now You are sahasrabāho; thousand armed one; I want You to be four-armed one; Hey sahasrabāho; Caturbāho bhāva.

There are people who make a very big analysis here. Anyway I am not going to say: How does Arjuna say caturbhujēna. So before Īśvara rūpa darśanam; Krishna was moving with Arjuna alright; but was Krishna with four hands or two hands; we have no idea; Thinking is what; Krishna was moving with Arjuna as only an ordinary manuṣya; therefore he had only dvibāho; how come Arjuna says here caturbhujam; and different people giving explanations; ingenious explanation and all; we need not go into that; we can conclude that Krishna might have four hands; or still easier; Arjuna is confused because of overwhelming and changing emotions; So he was confused between two and four; and therefore he said caturbhujēna; you can take it that way. Do not break your head on that; So tēnaiva rūpeṇa caturbhujēna sahasrabāhō bhava; Oh Lord may you appear; viśvamūrtē; viśvamūrṭiḥ means Viśva rūpam: sambōdhana pradhama; addressing the Lord; Oh Viśva rūpa Īśvara; I do not want viśvamūrṭiḥ; I want Krishnamūrthy; So Krishna rūpam I do not want; Viśva rūpam; but I want only Krishna room; So with this Arjuna's response to Viśva rūpa darśanam is over; the last phase is from verse No.35 up to this verse. Now the ball is in Lord Krishna's court; So there is some silence; because Arjuna has made his request and Lord Krishna has to do respond; What is the Lord going to do is given in the next verse; which we will see in the next class.

Om

From verse No.35, up to verse No.45, which we completed in the last class, Arjuna expresses his appreciation of Viśva rūpa and he surrenders at the feet of the Lord. Even though he is very happy to have Viśva rūpa darśanam; because of the special blessings of the Lord; Arjuna is not mature enough to withstand the Viśva rūpa darśanam; because Viśva rūpa darśanam means learning to look at the whole creation as the Lord; whether we like it or not; the creation is a relative entity consisting of pairs of opposite and therefore I am going to see the universe as the Lord; I should be able to accept the both the pairs of opposite equally. I should have a reverential attitude of acceptance with regard to every event in the creation; Not only the things consists of pairs of opposite; even events are pairs of opposites. As I had said often, if birth is an integral part of Bhagavān; death is also integral part of Bhagavān only. Therefore, to become a Viśva rūpa bhakta; I should be able to accept any death of anyone, without any complaint, which means an inner maturity is required; which is also as an integral part of Bhagavān; And therefore it requires a reverence; rather than complaint. That is why in Sandhya vandanam; we regularly worship Yama as Bhagavān.

यमाय नमः । यमाय धर्मराजाय मृत्यवे चान्तकाय च । वैवस्वताय कालाय सर्वभूत क्षयाय च ॥

yamāya namaḥ | yamāya dharmarājāya mṛtyavē cāntakāya ca | vaivasvatāya kālāya sarvabhūta kṣayāya ca ||

sarvabhūta kṣayāya; one who is the cause of old age and death; kṣayam; old age; apakṣiyathe; apakṣayaḥ; which culminates in maranam; yama is the cause of old age and death; and we should reverentially worship yama dharmarāja daily; we should be able to accept these two as an integral of Bhagavān. We need not even develop a reverential attitude; at least if we can have a non-critical non-complaining attitude that itself is a maturity. Similarly every association I have to accept and I have to equally accept every disassociation also; without grumbling. Similarly, health and sickness. Similarly war and peace; as long as human freewill is there; there will be rāga and dvēṣā; which means there will be war even in heaven; dēvās and asurās will be quarreling; And therefore most of the things are integral part of Viśva rūpa; I should be able to accept them without grumbling; which means I should have a very very rarified mind; which sees the totality and therefore for an immature mind, Viśva rūpam can be a threat; and Arjuna proves that his mind is immature because he says I am not able to withstand.

Then the question is how can I make myself mature. Until I get the maturity to accept Bhagavān, the anēka rūpa Īśvara, the only alternative I have is to accept the ēkarūpa Īśvara as the Lord; that is why we start with Iṣṭa dēvathā bhakthi so that I will be able to accept the situation by feeling the presence of my Iṣṭa dēvathā in my heart; this is how I begin; Śankarācārya writes a beautiful sthothram called śiva śankara sthothram:

अतिभीषणकटुभाषणयमकिङ्किरपटली
कृतताडनपरिपीडनमरणागमसमये ।
उमया सह मम चेतसि यमशासन निवसन् शिवशङ्कर शिवशङ्कर हर मे हर दुरितम् ॥ १ ॥ atibhīṣaṇakatuḥbhāṣaṇayamakīṅkirapaṭalī kṛtatāḍanaparipīḍanamaraṇāgamasamayē |
umayā saha mama cētasi yamaśāsana nivasan śivaśāṅkara śivaśāṅkara hara mē hara duritam || 1 ||

Oh Lord; I will also have old age. and I will have to face them; And how death is coming to come I do not know; They say we do not know; that they will be seeing the Yamakinkarās coming; Yama dhūtās coming; some people have told also; I do not know. Some old people say that somebody has come and all the other persons would not see; and this person would only see; so they say they are all messengers of Yama and they come threatening because this person does not want to leave his family and near and dear ones and his new கொள்ளு பேரன்; kollu peran; etc. so leaving that I do not want to go and therefore whipping their whips they come, and at that time, I should not be frightened of all these people; yama dhūtās; I want Lord Śiva you should come; because you are the right person because you have kicked yama dharma rāja in his chest; you remember Mārkaṇḍēya story and all you know; and therefore when such a frightening occasion comes, I should not be affected by anyone of these things; Even the family members may be standing around and weeping; my attention should not go to those people who are temporary; my attention should be on you and you should come and do not come alone; come with Pārvathi also; And I am giving you a programme; advanced booking; and what is that programme; a beautiful thāndavam; along with Pārvathi's lāsyam; Śiva thāndavam and Pārvathi's lāsyam; on the stage of my heart; you should give me a programme; and I should be so much observed in that programme; that I should not even know the arrival and departure. Śankarācārya has written all these for us; he has no such problem; because he is nitya mukta; So atibhīṣaṇa; bhīṣaṇa means bhayankara; kaṭubhāṣaṇa; they are not going to politely request; கூட வறேனா? if they request, are we going to go with them; Therefore they will only say pack up; pack up; Therefore kaṭubhāṣaṇayamakinīrapaṭālī; last messengers when they come; kṛtatāḍanaparipīḍanamaraṇāgamasamayē; So they beat me; and they torture me or torment me; physically or psycholoically; And when such a death comes; What should you do; umayā saha; along with Pārvathi dēvi; mama cētasi; in my heart; yamaśāsana; what an address. Oh Lord Śiva you are yamaśāsana; the one who punishes even yama dharma rāja; nivasan; śivaśaṅkara śivaśaṅkara hara mē hara duritam; Śiva Śaṅkarāṣṭakam is 8 slōkās;

So this very thought of your iṣṭa dēvathā; can give you great relief when pain comes; diseases come; people disappear; people die or we ourselves die; iṣṭa dēvathā bhakthi also can relieve our pain; only thing is we have to develop that bhakthi by abyāsaḥ; I will start that bhakthi when I am 93 years old; that will not work; start your training right now; feel the presence of your iṣṭa dēvathā right now; and this iṣṭa dēvathā bhakthi or ēka rūpa bhakthi will give you sufficient strength to expand your vision to Viśva rūpa bhakthi; and when it is getting converted to Viśva rūpa bhakthi; iṣṭa dēvathā bhakthi need not go away; I see the iṣṭa dēvathā itself as all the rūpam; if Krishna is my iṣṭa dēvathā; all people are Krishna in different vesham; and even if I go to Śiva temple; Krishna is Śiva vēṣam; then the whole creation becomes ब्रह्माण्डव्याप्तदेहा भसितहिमरुचा brahmāṇḍavyāptadēhā bhasitahimarucā.

My own iṣṭa dēvathā is the Śiva lingam; the whole cosmos becomes Śiva lingam; therefore if I am not ready for Anēka rūpa bhakthi; I need not feel bad; I can continue in ēka rūpa bhakthi; that will also give tremendous inner strength; I can say everyone go away; like in the cinema song; யாரை நம்பி நான் போறன்தேன்; போங்கடா போங்க; yārai nampi nāṇ pōraṇtēṇ; pōṇṭā pōṅga; all of you get lost; I do not depend on any one of you; my support comes from somewhere; It is a wonderful training that we can have. So anyway; Arjuna proves he is not yet ready for Viśva rūpa bhakthi itself; after remaining in Viśva rūpa bhakthi for sufficiently long time; and thereafter only we have to get ready for arūpa īśvarḥ; does not matter; whatever be your level; take to appropriate bhakthi; and therefore Arjuna confesses to Lord Krishna and says तेन एव रूपेण चतुर्भुजेन tena eva rūpeṇa caturbhujena; I do not want to see thousand hands; it is all confusing; beautifully two or maximum four hands enough; more than that I will not be able to see Krishna. I want simple Krishna. Up to this we saw.

47. The Lord said – Oh Arjuna! By My power this supreme form has been shown to you by Me, who is pleased (with you). Such a form of Mine which is radiant, universal, limitless and primal has not been seen by anyone other than you.

So when Arjuna made this request, Lord Krishna says: Arjuna I am not responsible for showing this Viśva rūpam, In fact, I know you are not yet ready; but since you made a special request, I choose to show you; and now that you do not want Viśva rūpa, I will bless you accordingly.

Therefore He says: Śrī Bhagavān uvāca. हे अर्जुन तव इदं रूपम् दर्शितं Hē Arjuna tava idam rūpam darśitam; so idam rūpam means idam Viśva rūpam, this universal form of mind has been shown to you;

How आत्मयोगात् ātmayogāt; because of my Māya śakti; Yōgāḥ means māya; So the word Yōgāḥ has several meanings. According to context, we have to take, in this context, Yōgāḥ means assembly; a சேர்க்கை; cērkai; māya is called Yōgāḥ because it is an assembly of thriguṇās; satva rajas tamas guṇānām saṁyōjane Yōgāḥ śabda ucyate; And therefore Yōgāḥ means and this māya represents Bhagavān's Māya śakti.

And word Ātma is reflexive pronoun and not satcidānda ātma; cidānanda ātma; ātma means My own Yōgāḥ śakti; My own Māya śakti I used for showing the Viśva rūpa; and why I chose to do that; प्रसन्नेन prasannena; because I was pleased with your devotion; I was pleased with your sincerity and therefore I showed this; and how did I show; by giving you this special cakṣu called divya cakṣu; and what type of Viśva rūpam is: Krishna says Viśva rūpam remaining the same; if you are mature you will enjoy it; if you are not mature; the same Viśva rūpa will frighten you; What is enjoyment to one, is a fright to another person. Just like this roller coaster ride; so one person may be thrilled and he may go up and down repeatedly; whereas for some other people, seeing itself is giddiness giving. So by itself it is neither good or bad; it all depends upon the candidate. Similarly, here Krishna Viśva rūpa is really wonderful Arjuna; because it is तेजोमयम् tējōmayam; it is the most brilliant form; which consists of galaxies; it consists of billions of stars and all of them are included Viśva rūpa; tējōmayam; Viśvam which consists of everything; Vivida prathyaya gaṁyam Viśvam. So which is cognised in manifold form; śabda rūpēṇa; sparśa rūpēṇa; rasa rūpēṇa, gandha rūpēṇa; it can be appreciated.

And अनन्तम् anantam; which is limitless; both spacially as well as timewise; अनन्तम् आध्यम् anantham ādhyam; so which is the first born; which is created first;

तस्माद्विराळजायत विराजो अधि पूरुषः । स जातो अत्यरिच्यत पश्चाद्भूमिमथो पुरः ॥५॥ tasmādvirāḷajāyata virājō adhi pūruṣaḥ |
sa jāto atyaricyata paścādbhūmimathō purah ||5||

So Viśva rūpa is born first; and thereafter alone paścādbhūmi; atha puraḥ puraḥ means śarīrāṇi individual bodies, everything is born later only and therefore virāt is ādhyah; the first born; ब्रह्मा देवानां प्रथमः सम्बभूव brahmā dēvānām prathamah sambabhūva; we have seen;

Not only that Arjuna you are a blessed devotee because nobody else had the good fortune of seeing this; so त्वदन्येन tvadanyena; other than you, the rare one; blessed one, nobody else has seen; of course nobody else has seen is an exaggeration; it is not Arjuna also has seen; some other people have also seen; others have also seen; in Mahābharātha itself we find Krishna shows Viśva rūpa in two or three occasions. And therefore here to highlight that; it is said that nobody has seen; it is not literally true; it is figurative expression;

this form नृलोके nṛloke in the world of mortals त्वदन्येन tvadanyena by any one other than you कुरुप्रवीर kurupravīra Oh Arjuna !

48. Neither by the study of the Vēdas and yajñas, nor by charity, nor by rituals, nor by severe austerities can I be seen in this form in the world of mortals by anyone other than you, Oh Arjuna!

Here Lord Krishna wants to point that Arjuna could see the Viśva rūpam; because of his devotion, bhakthi. Therefore Krishna wants to highlight bhakthi or sincere desire to appreciate Viśva rūpam as an important sādhanā; and when Krishna wants to highlight the Bhakthi sādhanā, for the sake of underlining, underscoring Bhakthi, He brings down all the other sādhanā. This is a methodology used in the scriptures, which has to be very carefully understood. All spiritual sādhanās are equally important; whether it is satyam; tapaḥ; yajñah; or Vēda adhyānam. All sādhanās are equally important; but in a particular context, the scriptures highlight a particular sādhanā and in that context, the scriptures will bring down the other sādhanās. So there we should look down the other sādhanās; we have to only focus on the importance of a particular sādhanās; highlighting the sādhanās is important; not bringing down the other sādhanās.

This particular law is called नहि निन्धा न्यायः nahi nindhā nyāyaḥ; scriptures themselves criticize certain sādhanās; there the value is not on criticism; but the value is on highlighting something else. In Taittiriya śikṣavalli we saw various values was highlighted and there it was said; svādhyāya pravachanam; the study of scriptures is the most important value; ऋतं च स्वाध्यायप्रवचने च | सत्यं च स्वाध्यायप्रवचने च | ṛtaṁ ca svādhyāyapravacanē ca | satyaṁ ca svādhyāyapravacanē ca.

And thereafter the Upaniṣad itself asks the question; what is the highest tapas; then several ācāryās rishis give different opinion; and the Upaniṣad says: the greatest tapas or sādhanā is svādhyāya pravacana only. Therefore if you read that pravacana; svādhyāya will be highlighted and all the others will be brought down; and here you find Krishna says all the other sādhanās are useless; but bhakthi is important.

Now we will be confused; which one we should take; śikṣavalli if you see it says svādhyāya; is highest. If you see this portion, it says bhakthi is greatest; therefore what should be the conclusion. One person concluded nothing is important. Very convenient; So from that portion I come to know that bhakthi is not important; because in śikṣavalli bhakthi is not mentioned; Here svādhyāya is criticized; In different portions different values are brought down and therefore no value is important; he concluded that way; or we can say all values are equally important; So what should be our right conclusions; All values are equally important; but here Krishna is highlighting Bhakthi and for that purpose He is criticising all the other sādhanā; criticism is not literally meant; it is not meant literally; very important; Here Krishna says; Vēda adyana is not a great sādhanā at all. It cannot give you Viśva rūpa darśanam; Therefore Vēda adyanam is an inferior sādhanā; and what about yajña? Yajña adyanaihi; the study of yajñas, that is rituals; what is the difference between Vēda adyana and yajña adyana. Vēda adhyana is learning to chant the Vēdas; and yajña adyana means analysis of the Vēdas; and learning how to do the rituals. Krishna says Vēda adyanam is useless; yajña adyana is useless; all of them will not give you Viśva rūpa darśanam;

न दानैः na dānaiḥ; what about dānam; useless; in fact, we note it very carefully. We say Bhagavān himself has said; therefore I am not giving! As such giving is problem; over and above that; if slōkās are like this; everything is gone; So here Krishna says dānam is also an inferior sādhanā; whereas in śikṣavalli what did we see.

श्रद्धया देयम् | अश्रद्धयाऽदेयम् | श्रिया देयम् | ह्रिया देयम् | भ्रिया देयम् | संविदा देयम् | śraddhayā dēyam | aśraddhayā:'dēyam | śriyā dēyam | hriyā dēyam | bhiyā dēyam | samvidā dēyam.

It is repeatedly emphasised; whereas Krishna says dānam is also useless. From that it is clear that Krishna's aim is not criticism; but highlighting something else. Then what about other various activities; loukika karmaṇi; न च क्रियाभिः na ca kriyābhi; also useless; because they cannot help you in getting Viśva rūpa darśanam; so yajña can be taken as śāstriya karma; and kriya can be taken as loukika karma; so vaidya karma is useless; loukika karma also useless; and what about various form of tapas; like ēkadaśi upavasa etc. also useless; and even Ugraiḥ tapobhi; even very big or severe austerities also are useless; because through all these sādhanās, एवरूपम् न द्रष्टुम् शक्यः evaṃrūpam na draṣṭum śakyaḥ; evaṃrūpaḥ means Viśva rūpa Īśvara can never be seen by all these sādhanās. So each time you have to read; Vēdayajñādyayanaiḥ rūpaḥ n na draṣṭum śakyaḥ; dānaiḥ evaṃrūpam na draṣṭum śakyaḥ; kriyabhi na draṣṭum śakyaḥ; in each things na is there; In loke; among the human beings or in the human world; it can be seen only by those people who are like you; Arjuna's head Krishna is placing ice; So it cannot be seen by anyone other than you; because you alone have got that special qualification, unique qualification meant for Viśva rūpa darśana; and therefore by other people it is not possible.

न तपोभिः na tapōbhi; so therefore we can again conclude that therefore I do not fast all; but Krishna said Upavasam is useless.

Now Krishna does not say what is that unique qualification; very important; and what is that; Krishna himself answers that later; so that we can supply here and that unique qualification is bhakthiḥ; So bhakthi alone will alone help in Viśva rūpa darśanam; and that too what bhakthi; that also we have to note; because in the 7th chapter, Krishna has talked about four types of bhakthi; artha bhakthi; artharthi bhakthi; jijñāsu bhakthi and jñani bhakthi. Artha bhakthi will not help; because artha is person in crisis; a person in crisis does not want Viśva rūpa darśana; when there is no water at all in the home, is he going to ask the Lord for Viśva rūpa darśanam? he will only ask water; If Lord asks Shall I come; this man will reply as such there is no water for the already available people; So you do not come; You be where you are; sent water only; so let the local Krishna come (புரியற்றோ? Are you understanding?) let this Krishna come, not that Krishna.

Similarly when a person is craving for wealth and Bhagavān says I will give you Viśva rūpa darśanam; who wants; therefore he will not; therefore by bhakthi He means not mean arta or artharthi bhakthi; but jijñāsu bhakthiḥ; jijñāsu bhakthi means a devotion through which a person wants an ēkarūpa Īśvara darśanam; I should know the value of Viśva rūpa darśanam; such a mature bhakthi alone can help you see;

हे कुरुप्रवीरः hē kurupravīraḥ; Hey Arjunah, you asked for that; and therefore I gave you that. So do not blame upon Me; I did not want to threaten you; You asked for it.

very same form मे me of Mine.

49. Seeing such a frightening form of mine, may you have neither fear nor delusion. With a pleased mind free from fear, see again that very same form of Mine.

So here Krishna says Arjuna if you are not ready for Viśva rūpa darśanam; I do not want to impose that upon you. This is the most unique aspect of our vedic teaching; we never impose anything upon a seeker; there are many people who are very clear that they do not want mōkṣa; because either they have not understood mōkṣa or frightened of mōkṣa; because mōkṣa is defined as advaitam; advaitam means if I stay alone; what should I do; I would like to have people around; that is only nice; even though some pidungal problem is there; it is nice to have people around; and mōkṣa means I should be free from all these things; I do not want freedom; even if there are problems I would like to be amongst people. So therefore remember appreciating the value of mōkṣa itself requires a tremendous maturity; and therefore Vēda says if you do not feel or appreciate the value of mōkṣa; you need not work for mōkṣa; you work for artā; you work for kāma; fulfil your desires.

So one lady asked; Swamiji I want to become one of the gopis and want to have rāsa kṛīda dance with Krishna; that desire is there; if mōkṣa is coming before that, I do not want mōkṣa; because after mōkṣa rebirth is not possible for fulfilling that desire. If I get mōkṣa I will not have an opportunity to get gopi śarīram; I would like to have that; and another person said I would like to visit svarga loka once; At least sādānā camp there? just have a 7-8 days camp there and drink a little of the amṛitam etc. witness some dance of Rambā and Ūrvaśi; and go places; Vēda says; If you have any such desires; do not hurry; mōkṣa can wait; because it is eternal; So therefore if you are not even ready for Viśva rūpa darśanam; I do not want to impose; have ēka rūpa bhakthi; ask for artā; ask for kāma; only one condition is follow dharma. And whatever you get legitimately, take it as Bhagavān's gift. That is the only sādānā we request you to practice; you need not study upaniṣad; follow only karma kānda; you follow only karma Yōgāḥ by which we mean fulfil your desires legitimately and take whatever you get as Īśvara prasāda; Start there, it will lead you up to Mōkṣa. In fact, Krishna himself is going to tell this beautifully in the next chapter. So I do not want to tell too much; then in the next chapter, I would have nothing to say.

So therefore there will we will see, how we can see from the lowest rung of the ladder and therefore Krishna says do not worry; we can come back to ēka rūpa Īśvara; so मा ते व्यथा mā tē vyathā; may you not be mentally pained; may you not be pained looking at my mouth which is crushing all the people; the crushing mill मा च विमूढभावः mā ca vimūḍhabhāvaḥ; may you not have any mental confusion also; So here vimūḍhathvam means sthabdatha; mentally being overpowered; immobilisation; Suddenly you see behind; imagine, there is a huge wild elephant standing; wild elephant without mahout standing behind; what we say; the mind gets stunned; it is not able to think or do anything; that stultified condition; immobilised kind of the mind is vimūḍha bhāvaḥ. Arjuna is experiencing that now and therefore Krishna says "May you not suffer from that; I will cooperate with you";

dr̥ṣṭvā rūpam; by seeing my rūpam and what type of rūpam, goram idruk rūpam; which is gōram frightening according to you; for mature people it is not frightening;

thējōmayam; viswam; anandam, adhyam; that is the description for mature people; but for you it appears to be gōram; like even seeing blood; many people cannot see blood; they will swoon; Imagine a doctor has that problem. Would it work; therefore it is a mental preparation; for a few people a few drops, you cannot visualise; similarly, for you it appears to be ghōram; and therefore what should you do; fourth line, may idam tadeva rupam pravasya; Now may you see my good old ordinary

Krishna form; tad ēva rūpam; Krishna rūpam; ēka rūpam; may you see; punah; once again; so let us change the channel. This button is there: you have only to press the appropriate button; let us change the channel from anēka rūpa Īśvara to ēkarūpa Īśvara; Therefore may you see; how;

व्यपेतभीः vyapetabhīḥ; without any fear; without any tension; vyapetabhīḥ; bhaya rahitha and prithamanāḥ and with a pleasant mind; relaxed mind; stress free mind; may you again see the ēkarūpam, which again word is used; because up to the 10th chapter; it was only ēkarūpa Īśvara; the 11th only channel was changed; So again we can go back to the old channel itself.

सञ्जय उवाच sañjaya uvāca Sanjaya said – उक्त्वा uktvā having said, इति तथा iti tathā thus, अर्जुनम् arjunam to Arjuna, वासुदेवः vāsudevaḥ Lord Krishna दर्शयामास भूयः darśayāmāsa bhūyaḥ showed again स्वकं रूपम् svakaṃ rūpam his own form च भूत्वा सौम्यवपुः ca bhūtvā saumyavapuḥ and, having assumed the pleasing form, पुनः punaḥ once again महात्मा mahātmā the great Lord, आश्वासयामास āśvāsayāmāsa consoled एनम् भीतम् enam bhītam that frightened (Arjuna)

50. Sanjaya said – Having said thus to Arjuna, Lord Krishna showed again His own form. And having assumed the pleasing form once again, the great Lord consoled that frightened Arjuna.

So Arjuna requested the Lord to change the form and Lord Krishna has also agreed to change the form; And now that is a silent period; wherein the transformation is taking place; from anēka rūpa to ēka rūpa; And since there is silence; Neither Krishna talks nor Arjuna talks; you have to imagine; if it is a TV programme; some background music will be there and they will be showing; that advantage will be there and here it is not there; And therefore Sañjaya comes and gives a running commentary. So what is happening in the battle field; So Sañjaya reports:

सञ्जय उवाच sañjaya uvāca; वासुदेवः अर्जुनम् इति उक्त्वा vāsudevaḥ Arjunam iti uktvā; Vasudeva; Lord Krishna, so here the word also is appropriately put; Vasudeva has come; So vāsudevaḥ means vasudevasya puthraḥ; So whether it is ekarūpa or anekarūpa ? Vāsudevaḥ means Krishna; Lord Krishna uttered these words to Arjuna; uttered these words and then स्वकं रूपं दर्शयामास svakaṃ rūpaṃ darśayāmāsa. So once again He showed the ēkarūpa Krishna form, to Arjuna; so svakaṃ rūpaṃ means ēkarūpaṃ; Krishna rūpaṃ; भूयः दर्शयामास bhūyaḥ darśayāmāsa.

As I said; changed the channel; and having changed the form; आश्वासयामास भीतम् एनम् āśvāsayāmāsa ēnam bhītam; even after changing the form from Anēkarūpa to ēkarūpaṃ; Arjuna's fear continues for some more time; Like a child; if the child has missed the mother; and cried for hours; and the mother has come and the child is on the body of the mother; but the child continues to cry; but the mother will say; I have come; please therefore shut up; but still the child will recollects that and continues the crying; OR if you have a nightmarish dream; after waking up; you know it is dream; but still that fear continues sweat continues; palpitation continues; Similarly Arjuna continues to be disturbed; like a baby and Krishna like a mother is consoling Arjuna.

So bhītam ēnam Arjunam; So this Arjuna who is frightened; āśvāsayāmāsa; Lord Krishna consoles;

how; भूत्वा सौम्यवपुः saumyavapuḥ bhūtvā; previously it was said ghōra rūpaṃ; Now the ghōra rūpaṃ is replaced by saumya rūpaṃ; adharam madhuram, vadanam madhuram, nayanam means saumyam; sweetie; like sweetie pie; So Krishna again gave the cho chweet! (like that) talk; so many languages is there; saumyavapuḥ bhūtvā mahātma; mahātma means what; anekarūpa Īśvara; Viśvam eva ātma yasya saha; maha ātma; பெரிய உடம்பை உடயவன்; means one who is having a huge body; Viśva rūpam; and that anēka rūpaḥ Īśvaraḥ saumya vapuḥ; means sweet form having taken; āśvāsayāmāsa; consoled.

So here also we have to make a note, what do you mean by withdrawing the Viśva rūpam; does it mean Lord Krishna removed the Viśva rūpam; and then brought in Krishna rūpam. If Bhagavān is going to remove the Viśva rūpam; what will happen; the world itself will disappear because, I have repeatedly told you that Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ means what; the very world itself as the body of the Lord; Therefore since Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ is equal to the universe; there is no question of arrival of Viśva rūpa Īśvara; because it is already arrived; and there is no question of departure also; because if Viśva rūpa departs, the world itself will disappear; it will be pralayam; the world would not be there; Kurukṣetra would not be there; Arjuna will not be there; Bhīṣma Drōṇa will not be there; in fact the 12th chapter of Gītā itself will not be there; so what do you mean by withdrawal of Viśva rūpa ; as I said before. As I said before, Krishna withdrew the Divya cakṣuḥ from Arjuna; it is only change; bringing about a change in the mind of Arjuna. And what is divya cakṣuḥ; I have defined divya cakṣuḥ in the beginning; now you should remember once again;

There I told you how divya cakṣuḥ was given; now here how divya cakṣuḥ was removed; so you should remember what is divya cakṣuḥ; divya cakṣuḥ means a mind which is not overpowered ahamkāra and mamakāra; As long as the mind is in the grip of aham and mama, Viśva rūpa darśanam will not be there; I will not see the totality; my mind will be narrow only; When aham and mama goes away; Viśva rūpa comes.

So it is like again I gave you an example; a person is standing; in the background there is a mountain range; there is no peaked mountain; you have got a camera; now you want to take the picture of your friend and the mountain; the mountain is far away; now you face a problem; what is that; if you focus the person; the mountain range gets defocused; if you adjust to the mountain range; person is defocused; so if Aham-Mama are dominant; my focus is never on viśva rūpam; it will be one segment of the creation alone; but when aham and mama I and mine come down; then and then alone, Viśva rūpa appreciation would come.

I would give you another example. In school, they will have the drama programme for the yearly anniversary. And this drama there will be several scenes; and it is generally played by the children themselves; And you find that children are playing various role, the parents will come; and with a camera also. In the programme whoever walks with the camera this side and that side; assume that their child is in the programme; After every scene you will find 4-5 people 4-5 people disappear. Why is that; their children's scene is over; Do you think that they are interested in the drama; they come and their child may be only the dvāra pālaka without a dialogue; Only with a kundam-spear and you have keep it across and when the rāja passes you have to lift it and put it back when he has gone inside or outside; this is the only role played by this child; for that particular two minutes role; mother and father comes with a camera; and all the time they will be watching whom; only dvāra pālaka dṛiṣṭi; other members are not seen; In the story there is no focus; there is no Viśva rūpa darśanam; there is no darśanam of the totality of the character or drama; because myyyyyyyyyy son is there; myyyyyyyyyy daughter is there; that photo we have to take and frame it and send it across the whole world; and that too should be shown to the Swamiji!!; Otherwise how do I know; Did I go and took the photo? This is how I come to know; therefore, dvara pala drishtya drama tyāgaḥ; If you are interested in the totality of drama; you are not going to focus on a particular child; the whole universe is the drama of Bhagavān; but we can never see that; a few chittappas and periyappas and wives and children; they have contracted our consciousness into a dot; We are all trapped in enclosed consciousness; we do not have a rarified consciousness, to appreciate the totality; so divya chakṣu was gone; that means Arjuna has come back to my Bhīṣma; my Drōṇa; பழய கதைக்கு வந்தாச்சு; he has come back to the old story.

More in the next.

Om

By the grace of Lord Krishna, Arjuna gets an opportunity for Viśva rūpa darśanam; and he was extremely happy about that; but at the same time, because of his mental immaturity, he is not able to appreciate Viśva rūpa in its totality, because Viśva rūpam is a picture of both positive and negative things. Because as long as we are in the relative world; everything has got its opposites; Therefore whether you like or not; the world is full of dvandva; which means Viśva rūpa itself is dvandva; so if Lord has to be the sṛṣṭi kāraṇam; very same Lord will be laya kāraṇam also. If Lord gives you the punya karma phalam; the very same Lord will give pāpa karma phalam also. So if I learn to appreciate it in its totality; I will not see them as pairs of opposites; but I will see them as complimentary. Therefore I understand; I should either accept them both or reject them both; but an immature mind only wants the positive aspect of the creation; it does not want the negative aspect; it is interested in the birth; but not willing to accept the death; But the mind is interested in association; but it does not want disassociation. The mind which is willing to have growth; but cannot accept decay or death; Such a mind is an immature mind. So Arjuna is able to accept everything in Viśva rūpa and when he sees his own kith and kin; dying by the law of creation; he is not able to swallow that; and therefore he says: I do not want this Viśva rūpa; and therefore he requested Lord Krishna; please withdraw the Viśva rūpa and I would like to have ēka rūpa Krishnaḥ only; and Krishna also accepts that; and Krishna shows the good old Krishna rūpam; saumya rūpam to Arjuna; and that is being reported by Sañjaya to Dritharāṣṭra; which verse we are seeing now;

ityarjunaṁ vāsudēvastathōktvā
svakaṁ rūpaṁ darśayāmāsa bhūyaḥ | āśvāsayāmāsa ca bhītamēnam
bhūtvā punaḥ saumyavapurmahātmā || 11.50 ||

Mahātma means Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; anēka rūpa īśvaraḥ; He became saumya vapuhu; ēka rūpa īśvaraḥ He becomes and thus consoled Arjuna; Arjuna do not worry; I will not impose Viśva rūpa darśanam on you. Up to this we saw.

But we have to understand the significance of this verse; what does Krishna means by withdrawal of Viśva rūpa. As I said in the last class; Viśva rūpa cannot be withdrawn physically because, Viśva rūpam means the very world itself as iswara; so if Viśva rūpaḥ is to be withdrawn; it means the world itself has to be withdrawn; which means pralayam should come; but that is not possible. Therefore what do you mean by withdrawal of Viśva rūpa darśanam. it is nothing but removal of the Divya cakṣuḥ; which Lord Krishna blessed Arjuna with. That divya cakṣuḥ; taking away alone is withdrawal of Viśva rūpam; What do you mean by taking away the divya cakṣuḥ; I said divya cakṣuḥ means a freedom from ahamkāra and mamakāra. As long as I have got ahamkāra and mamakāra, my mind will be preoccupied with small little things; that I will not be able to enjoy the Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ. Therefore ahamkāra and mamakāra is obstacle to Viśva rūpa darśanam; and divya chaksu is freedom from ahamkāra and mamakāra. And withdrawal of divya cakṣuḥ is nothing but Arjuna getting back his own ahamkāra and mamakāra;

And I gave you the example; that is the nice example. That when you have a got a camera and a friend is standing and behind a beautiful scenery is there; you can focus upon only one thing; when you focus the person, the background scenery; that is Viśva rūpa; that is gone; on the other hand if you focus the scenery; naturally, the friend is out of focus; Similarly, as long as you have strong ahamkāra and mamakāra; your mind will be preoccupied with that private personal world only; that Bhagavān public world will not be available; Even though you are in the beach; wonderful ocean is there; stars are there; moon is there; Viśva rūpa is in front; but you will be preoccupied with your family problem or eating வேர்கடலை; peanut; So preoccupation with வேர்கடலை peanut is ahamkāra-mamakāra and you miss the beautiful ocean which is Viśva rūpa and therefore Arjuna got back his petty little mind; which means he lost this beautiful universe from his sight. That is how it has to be understood;

idānīmasmi saṃvṛttaḥ sacētāḥ prakṛtiṃ gataḥ || 11.51 ||

अर्जुन उवाच arjuna uvāca Arjuna said – जनार्दन janārdana Oh Krishna ! दृष्ट्वा dr̥ṣṭvā seeing, इदं सौम्यम् idaṃ saumyam this pleasing मानुषं रूपम् mānuṣaṃ rūpam human form, तव tava of yours, अस्मि इदानीम् asmi idānīm I have now संवृत्तः saṃvṛttaḥ become, सचेताः sacetāḥ peaceful गतः gataḥ I have come, प्रकृतिम् prakṛtim to normalcy.

51. Arjuna said – oh Krishna! Seeing this pleasing human form of yours, I have now become peaceful, I have come to normalcy.

So when Arjuna got his own ahamkāra-mamakāra and naturally he missed the Viśva rūpa beauty of the Lord. Of course for him it is not a beauty but a terrible thing; Now he looks at Krishna as personal God; from Anēkarūpa bhakthi He comes back to ēkarūpa bhakthi. From this it is very clear; for anēkarūpa bhakthi; my mind has to become mature; otherwise anēka rūpa bhakthi will be a frightening thing. It will not be enjoyable at all. When anēka rūpa bhakthi itself is frightening; then what to talk of arūpa; for an immature mind; arūpam brahma will not appeal at all; Nirguṇam Brahman will not appeal at all; சப்புன்னு இருக்குனு சொல்லுவா. It will be chapp; when the food is without kāram and salt; you say it is chapp; like that, Who wants that nirguṇam brahma; which does not have śabda sparśa rūpa rasa and gandha; nothing is there; So when the mind is immature; anēkarūpa bhakthi also will not appeal; arūpa bhakthi also will not appeal; it does not matter; better we confine to ēkarūpa.

And therefore Arjuna says; Hē Krishna I love this God only; हे जनार्दन Hē janārdana; Hē Krishna; Literally the word Janārdana means the tormenting one; the one who hurts. So janān ardhayati iti janārdanaḥ. So here Arjuna is addressing that way because he now only saw a Krishna who was eating everyone; tormenting everyone; and that is why he got frightened also; Hē janārdana; I do not want the tormenting form of yours; I want saumya vapuḥ; saumyam rūpam dṛṣṭva; pleasing form is mānuṣam rūpam; which is human form; adharam madhuram; vadanam madhuram; nayanam madhuram; hasitham madhuram; if I see that I am at home;

इदानीम् अस्मि संवृत्तः idānīm asmi saṁvṛttaḥ I have come back to my normal state of mind. सचेतः sacētāḥ; I have got back my mind; so previously, my mind was stunned by the vision of Viśva rūpa; that I had lost my mind; Now only I have got back my mind; sacētāḥ; chetāḥ means mind; sacētāḥ; I have got back my mind as it were;

And प्रकृतिम् गतः prakṛtim gataḥ; now I am my natural self; I am at home; I am normal, seeing the ēkarūpa īśvara;

श्री भगवान् उवाच śrī bhagavān uvāca The Lord said –इदं रूपम् idaṁ rūpam this form मम mama of mine यद् दृष्टवान् असि yada dṛṣṭvān asi which you have seen सुदुर्दर्शम् sudurdarśam is very difficult to see,अपि देवाः api devāḥ even gods,नित्यं दर्शनकाङ्क्षिणः nityaṁ darśanakāṅkṣiṇaḥ are always craving for the vision अस्य रूपस्य asya rūpasya of this form

52. The Lord said – This form of Mine which you have seen is very difficult to see. Even Gods are always craving for the vision of this form.

Now Lord Krishna winds up by glorifying the Viśva rūpa darśanam; Even though Arjuna was happy about Viśva rūpa. Krishna says: Hey Arjuna what you got was very very rare thing; इदं रूपम् सुदुर्दशम् idaṃ rūpam sudurdarśam. So this form means Viśva rūpa; anēkarūpam; दृष्ट्वान् असि यन्मम yada dr̥ṣṭvān asi yanmama; which you saw just now; not because you deserve it; not because you are fully qualified; but because of my grace and your surrender; I gave you this darśanam; which is sudarśanam; which is extremely difficult; so sudarśanam; which is extremely difficult to have this darśanam; why it is extremely difficult; देवा अप्यस्य रूपस्य नित्यं दर्शनकाङ्क्षिणः dēvā apyasya rūpasya nityaṃ darśanakāṅkṣiṇaḥ; even Gods are eagerly craving for getting this Viśva rūpa darśanam; anēkarūpa darśanam; when it is rarely available for Gods themselves; what to talk of ordinary human beings and therefore it is a glorious thing; and devāḥ asya rūpasya; in asya Viśva rūpasya;

दर्शनकाङ्क्षिणः darśanakāṅkṣiṇaḥ; they are eagerly waiting; nityam, regularly praying for that, and I have not given them; I have chosen you for giving this darśanam;

śakya evaṃvidhō draṣṭuṃ dr̥ṣṭvānasi māṃ yathā || 11.53 ||

नाहं वेदैः nāhaṃ vēdaiḥ neither by the study of Vēdas न तपसा na tapasā nor by austerity न दानेन na dānena nor by charity न च इज्यया na ca ijyayā nor by worship शक्यः अहं द्रष्टुम् śakyaḥ ahaṃ draṣṭum can I be seen एवंविधः evaṃvidhaḥ in this form यथा दृष्ट्वान् असि yathā dr̥ṣṭvān asi as you have seen माम् mām Me.

53. Neither by the study of the Vēdas, nor by austerity, nor by charity, nor by worship can I be seen in this form as you have seen Me.

In the previous verse Lord Krishna said that Viśva rūpa darśanam is a rare rare thing; So naturally the question would come, if it is a very rare thing what is the means of getting the Viśva rūpa darśanam; because even dēvās has not been able to get that; then what is the means of getting Viśva rūpa darśanam; and Krishna wants to give the means, Viśva rūpa darśana sādānām; He wants to give in these two verses; 53 and 54.

And the means that Lord Krishna wants to mention is bhakthi. So eagerness, a sincere desire or craving, called theevra bhakthi is the sādānam; for Viśva rūpa darśanam; and Krishna wants to glorify this thīvra bhakthi; and as I said in the other day, in the scriptures to glorify one sādānā, they put down all other sādānā. But we should be very careful; not that the other sādānās are inferior; they are all equally important; and extremely important; but focus one sādānā, the other sādānās are ninditham; and what is that nyaya called, nahi nindha nyāyaḥ; so literally it is not bringing down; but this is to be focused.

And therefore in this verse, Krishna is saying all the other sādānās are inferior; of no consequence at all; bhakthi alone is the most important sādānā;

And what are the other sādānās mentioned here; वेदैः एवविधः अहं द्रष्टुम् न शक्यः vēdaiḥ evaṃvidhaḥ ahaṃ draṣṭum na śakyaḥ; even if you are a great vēdic scholar; and even if you can chant the entire vēdaḥ; and you can even be a jata vallabhaha ghanapadi; even if such a great vēdic scholar, that will not give you Viśva rūpa darśanam;

so evaṃvidhaḥ ahaṃ; Viśva rūpaḥ ahaṃ; Viśva rūpa darśanam is not possible even by Vēda adyayanam; then evaṃ vidhaḥ ahaṃ draṣṭum na śakyaḥ; so you have to add to each one; tapasa evaṃvidhaḥ ahaṃ draṣṭum na śakyaḥ; Even you practice elaborate and intense tapas; all types of vritham; austerities and practices, even through tapas one cannot get Viśva rūpa darśanam; Vēdas will not help you; tapas will not help you;

But we should remember; if you are doing any such things; it does not mean that you have to drop all of them; as I said it is not meant for dropping; by glorifying something else.

Then न दानेन na dānena; here one has to be careful; dānena evaṃ vidhaḥ ahaṃ draṣṭum na śakyaḥ. By charity also Viśva rūpa darśanam cannot be attained. This we will note very well. Bhagavān has said charity is useless; that is only the reason why I am not giving at all from the beginning; already giving is a problem; these lines can mislead; be very careful; charity is also important.

In Brihadaranyaka; tam edam vēdanu dānena; yajñēna, dānena, tapasa; in Śikṣavalli also it is said; श्रद्धया देयम् | अश्रद्धयाऽदेयम् | śraddhayā dēyam | aśraddhayā:'dēyam, etc. Dānam is important but in this context, it is put down;

Then न च इज्यया na ca ijjayā; so the next one; ijjayā means yajña; rituals; even by performing rituals one cannot have Viśva rūpa darśanam; that is also a inferior sādānā only and such a rare Viśva rūpa; which cannot be attained even through all these sādānās; such a rare Viśva rūpa Arjuna you got; and the irony is what; you wanted it back. So śakyah ēvaṃvidhō ahaṃ draṣṭum; Viśva rūpaha, please remember; ॐपुत्रं पुत्रं; Like this, means Viśva rūpa; दृष्ट्वान् असि माम् यथा drṣṭvān asi yathā mām; as you had seen me; just a few minutes before; such a Viśva rūpa cannot be attained easily. So if all these sādānās cannot help; now the question is which sādānā will really help; which will be said in the next verse; we will see.

bhaktyā tvananyayā śakyam ahamēvaṃvidhō'rjuna |

jñātum draṣṭum ca tattvēna pravēṣṭum ca parantapa || 11.54 ||

54. Oh Arjuna! However, by undivided devotion I can be seen in this form, known truly, and merged into Oh Arjuna!

So here Krishna gives the means of Viśva rūpa darśanam; and that means is bhakthi alone; bhakthi means devotion or love for the Lord. Now the question comes what type of bhakthi is indicated here;

So Krishna adds an adjective ananya bhaktya ēvaṃ draṣṭum sakya; not ordinary bhakthi but ananya bhakthiḥ. So now the question is what is ananya bhakthiḥ; you have to go back to the 7th chapter of the Gītā; where we have talked about four levels of bhakthi; ārtah; artarthi; jijñāsuḥ; and jñāni; which can be reduced into three levels; So this four levels can be understood in three levels; ārtah and ārtarthi is one level; jijñāsu is another level; jñāni is the third and final level.

So what are these three levels; I hope you remember; I will remind you in this context; initially, our devotion to Lord is only for the benefit of worldly goals; which is otherwise called sakama bhakthi; I am devoted to the Lord; I go to the temple; I do pooja; everything I do; but I use Īśvara as a sādānā; only as a means for the sake of worldly ends. Which means if I get such and such thing done, then I will do this to you; this is called business bhakthi; purely commercial bhakthi; You do this and for You I will do that. There also we are very intelligent; we will not do that in the beginning; I will just keep one rupee as a token; that means what; I am not even willing to trust God. You do that; and after that only I will do; and that too what, we offer the cheapest thing that we have; our hair; or something like that; no cost at all; we will only become lighter; So this is called business bhakthi; sakāma bhakthi where God is the means worldly things are the ends;

And once a person practices this for some time, even though it is a sakama bhakthi there is some bhakthi; it is better than no bhakthi; sakāma bhakthi is certainly better than no bhakthi at all; and because of his bhakthi; the mind gets purer and purer and then he begins to understand that it is better to have God; not as a means, but as the end itself. Because he has become mature enough to understand that everything in the world has got the threefold dōṣa;

So you remember what we have seen in the Upaniṣad class; What are the three fold dōṣa; duḥkha misritattvam; everything in the creation is mixed with pain also;

the athripathi karathvam; whatever get I will never get total fulfillment; I will seek more and more only;

and finally bandhakathvam; and I will only get only addicted to them; I will be only enslaved by them.

So this dōṣa or defect of the worldly finite things I understand; and I know that God is the only reliable one; which is free from all these three dōṣas;

शश्वन् नश्वरमेव विश्वमखिलम्
निश्चित्य वाचा गुरोर् ।
नित्यम् ब्रह्म निरन्तरम् त्रिंशता, निर्व्याज शान्तात्मना ॥ śaśvan naśvaramēva viśvamakhilam
niśchitya vācā guror | nityam brahma nirantaram vrimriśatā,
nirvyāja śāntātmanā ||

I get nithya-anithya vivēkaḥ; So jagat is anityam; Īśvara alone is śasvatham; therefore reliable;

And therefore once this vivēka comes to me; the direction changes; instead of looking upon the world as the end; and God as means; it is reversed; the world becomes means; all the activities become means; even grihastha aśrama becomes means; all the people coming and going also becomes means; the only end is what; Īśvaraḥ becomes the end. Which in vēdānta language we call brahman; in the religious language we call Īśvaraḥ; Now Īśvaraḥ is sādhyam and world is sādhanā; this is the second level of bhakthi; which Krishna calls the jijñāsu bhakthi otherwise called mumukṣutva bhakthi; otherwise called ananya bhakthi.

If this ananya bhakthi is there; then Viśva rūpa darśanam is possible; and this will lead to the highest bhakthi; it is not mentioned here. But to complete the discussion; what is the third and final level of bhakthi; it is a bhakthi in which God is neither the means nor the end; then what is God; it is neither sādhanā or sādhyam; but it is I the siddha vastu itself; Because as long as I look upon God as the means or the end; Lord is different from me; So when I look upon Lord as sādhanā I am in Dvaitam; when I look upon God as goal; then also I am in dvaitam; int he third level; I come to advaitam; wherein God is neither the means nor the end; God is not destination; God is the traveller himself. God is not the sought; but the God is the very seeker himself. That is the final stage; that we need not see now; here we are talking about ananya bhakthi; where God is the goal itself.

Therefore ananyaya bhakthya; ahaṃ ēvaṃ vidha draṣṭum śakyaḥ. And this will lead to what; tatvēna jñātum śakya; and in due course, you will know the Lord in his real nature; and what is the real nature of God; is neither the sādānām; or sādyaṃ; neither the means nor the end; but the Lord is I myself; aham brahmāsmi;

तत्त्वेन द्रष्टुं tatvēna draṣṭum means advaita jñānam prāptum. A person can come to that; and through that jñānam pravistum cha śakya; and through this knowledge the devotee merges into the Lord; He becomes one with the Lord; the wisdom that the Lord is never different from me; the notion of division is removed; The removal of the notion of division is called merger; It is purely a cognitive process; there is no question of any change outwardly. All these are possible; To start with bhakthi; that is the idea; and that is summed up in the next and final verse of this chapter.

निर्वैरः सर्वभूतेषु यः स मामेति पाण्डव ॥ ११.५५ ॥

matkarmakṛṇmatparamō madbhaktaḥ saṅgavarjitaḥ |

nirvairāḥ sarvabhūteṣu yaḥ sa māmēti pāṇḍava || 11.55 ||

सः saḥ He यः मत्कर्मकृत् yaḥ matkarmakṛt who does works for Me मद्भक्तः madbhaktaḥ who is my devotee मत्परमः matparamaḥ who keeps me as the supreme goal सङ्गवर्जितः saṅgavarjitaḥ who is free from attachment निर्वैरः nirvairāḥ sarvabhūteṣu and who is free from hatred towards all एति माम् eti mām reaches Me पाण्डव pāṇḍava oh Arjuna

55. He who does works for Me, who is My devotee, who keeps Me as the supreme goal! who is free from attachment, and who is free from hatred towards all, reaches me, Oh Arjuna !

So this is a capsule verse. This is a seed verse, which will be expanded in the next chapter. It is the definition of bhakthi. So we will be seeing this elaborately in the next chapter; but however, here I will give you a bird's eye-view of the idea contained.

According to Krishna, Bhakthi is not a particular sādānā; Bhakthi is not a particular sādānā; but it is the name of the entire range of spiritual sādānās. It is not one sādānā; but it is the common name for the entire range of spiritual sādānās which will take a person to mōkṣa. And the entire range of spiritual sādānā is broadly divided into three in the śāstrās; which Krishna will divide into five in the next chapter. The vēdās it is divided into three; in the 12th chapter, it will be divided into 5. That five we will see in the next chapter, because if I tell now; it will leave me with nothing in that Chapter to tell you. So I will present you the three levels.

The first level of sādānā is called karma lakṣaṇa bhakthi; bhakthi which is in the form of karma yōgā. Bhakthi expressed in the form of karma yōgā; How can you call karma yōgā as an expression of bhakthi; because karma yōgā is only karma; karma yōgā is only a form of karma; How can it be bhakthi; if you ask; Krishna's answer is Karma yōgā can be called bhakthi; because karma yōgā requires intense bhakthi to the Lord; Without devotion to the Lord; karma yōgā is impossible; and therefore karma yōgā is a form of bhakthi;

Then the next question is how do you say that karma yōgā involves bhakthi; all these we have seen before; I am just putting them together; because karma yōgā involves two stages. In the first stage I am a kartā; as a kartā I am doing various actions; And whatever actions I do, they will be converted into karma phalam; and this karma phalam, I have to necessarily receive and when I am receiving the karma phalam; I become a bhoktā; Karma kartā I am initially; phala bhoktā I am later. And the phalam can be anything; favourable result; unfavourable result; terrible result; disappointing result; anytime of phalam is possible. Now in karma yōgā most important thing is a kartā; karma kartā; I have to dedicate all actions at the feet of the Lord by a sankalpa; Sankalpa means a thought; mamōpātha samastha duritha kṣaya dvāra sri parameśvara preethyartham; aham idam karma kariṣyē; I need not all the time keep the hand joined like this; That is only the thought you have to have in the background; it is in the mind; Therefore as a Kartā I have to dedicate all the karmās to Īśvaraḥ; This is called Īśvararpaṇa bhāvana; and Īśvararpaṇa bhāvana requires what; bhakthi; and these karma phalas are going to come tomorrow; tomorrow means in the future. They are going produce the phalam and I have to pay through my nose, I have to face the music; In fact; every experience you get in life; is your own karma phalam; including the mosquito bite; if there are mosquitos and it is biting you. That is also what karma phalam only; Every experience is what; karma phalam; So when I receive the karma phalam, the bitterest to the happy experience, I have to accept without resistance; as what; Īśvara prasāda bhāvanaya; as a kartā I have got Īśvararpaṇa bhāvana; as a bhoktā means what, the enjoyer of the result; I have got the Īśvara prasāda bhāvana; And because of this bhāvana; karma yōgā becomes what; a form of bhakthi;

And once I follow this karma yōgā sufficiently, I may graduate to the next level of sādānā; which is called upāsana rūpa bhakthiḥ; bhakthi in the form of meditation or dhyānam. And why this level of bhakthi is required? This is required because a karma yōgi is always extrovert; because he is all the time a kartā, a bhoktā; therefore he is interacting with the world all the time; therefore his mind is extrovert. Whereas as a vēdantic teacher; ultimately he has to discover the Lord; not outside; but the Lord has to be and can be discovered only in ourselves. In Taittiriya Upaniṣad, we are going to see that: सत्यम् ज्ञानम् अनन्दम् ब्रह्मा, यो वेदा निहितम् गुहायाम् परमेव्योमन् । satyam jñānam anandam brahmā, yō vēdā nihitam guhāyām paramēvyōman.

So the real God is not outside; the real God is in my own heart; so an extrovert mind can never discover the real God; And therefore one has to convert the extrovert mind into an introvert or non-extrovert mind; that is the second level of sādānā called upāsana lakṣaṇa bhakthi; That is also a form of bhakthi. And here I visualise the Lord within myself; so that I learn to turn my mind inward; शान्ताकारम् भुजगशयनम्, पद्मनाभम् सुरेशम् śāntākāram bhujagaśayanam, padmanābham surēśam. When I chant I try to visualise the Lord within my mind itself; an extrovert mind cannot do that; śāntākāram before you chant, it will go somewhere; Therefore we train the mind; there also ēkarūpa īśvaraḥ; anēkarūpa īśvaraḥ; etc. but the main idea of upāsana gives what: turning the mind inward; this is called upāsana lakṣaṇa bhakthi.

And then comes the final stage; called jñāna lakṣaṇa bhakthi; which is the study of scriptures to discover the real nature of God; which is called vēdanta vicharah; which is called jñāna yōgāha; and that is also a form of bhakthi only; That is why it is called jñāna yajñā; all the Gītā discourses; Swami Chinmayananda named Gītā Jñāna Yajñā; which means study of scriptures also is a form of pūja only; For what you are doing now is what; form of pūja; a form of bhakthi only. So thus karma lakṣaṇa bhakthi; upāsana lakṣaṇa bhakthi; jñāna lakṣaṇa bhakthi; bhakthi in these three fold form; a person has to practice and ultimately become one with the Lord.

These three stages Krishna will present in the next chapter. Karma lakṣaṇa bhakthi itself He divides into two; Upāsana itself He divides into two; jñāna one; 2+2+1; five is going to come. This is trailer; Like the TV and movies; so the next week what will be there; like that முன்னொட்டம்; a trailer Lord Krishna is presenting here.

Therefore Bhakthi Yōgā is not a particular sādānā; but it is karma plus upāsanam; plus jñānam; Therefore He says: मत्कर्मकृत् भवः matkarmakṛt bhava; Hē Arjuna, first become a karma yōgi; as a kartā whatever you do, यत् यत् कर्म करोति तत् तत् अकिलम्, संभो तवाराधनम् yat yat karma karōti tat tat akilam, sambho tavārādhanam; कायेन वाचा मनसा इन्द्रियैर् वा, नारायणयेति समर्पयामि; kāyēna vācā manasā indriyair vā, nārāyanayēti samarpayāmi.

Need not be religious action whether it is secular or sacred; everything you dedicate; and as a bhoktā; never protest; whatever comes welcome; all these in the 2nd and third chapter, siddhyasiddhyōḥ samō bhūtvā samatvaṃ yōga ucyatē; with a mental balance accepting all the experiences in life; is karma yōgā rupa bhakthi; May you follow that; matkarmakṛt bhava;

And then मद्भक्तः भवः madbhaktaḥ bhavaḥ; I am changing the order for the sake of convenience. madbhaktaḥ bhavaḥ; may you become My devotee. That is slowly convert your goal as God himself; take your own time; initially nobody would choose God as the goal; or mōkṣa as goal; It is not there in the list at all; and even if it is in the list; it is the last item; and we have got an excuse also; God can wait; because it is eternal; whereas the other things are important and immediate; Bhagavān says does not matter; and therefore initially you might have worldly desires; fulfil them; of course legitimately, enjoy them also; and understand their limitations and gradually convert your goal from artha kāma to mōkṣa; From preyaṣ to sreyaṣ; let your goal become; so madbhaktaḥ bhavaḥ; thīvra mumukṣu bhavaḥ; be a desirer of mōkṣa. Seek the eternal not the ephemeral; So the reliable and not the unreliable object. Remember the cardboard chair; cardboard chair, a chair made out of cardboard and it is well decorated; it is wonderful; you can keep it in bomma kolu and showcase and all. You can do everything except one; what is that; do not sit over that; already you are 95 kgs. what will happen if I sit; உககாந்து பாரு; மன்டை உடயும்; mandai udayum. Similarly the entire world is a cardboard chair; because it is subject time; therefore perishable. Therefore do not lean upon the perishable world; if at all you want to learn; do not lean on anyone; but if at all you want to lean; learn to lean upon God. I have told you before: World dependence to God dependence and discover God within yourselves and then it becomes Self-dependence. Therefore madbhaktaḥ bhavaḥ; gradually learn to depend on God and if anybody asks what is your security; never name any local ones; if anybody asks what is security; only say

ananyāścintayantō māṃ yē janāḥ paryupāsātē |
tēṣāṃ nityābhīyuktānāṃ yōgākṣēmaṃ vahāmyaham || 9.22 ||

Train your mind all the time by saying: My support is God; the people are around me; therefore I will interact them; I will help them; I will do everything; but for leaning, security and support, I want only rely upon God. So therefore; mat bhaktha ḥ bhava;

And then मत्परमः भवः matparamaḥ bhava; gradually become a thīvra mumukṣu; mōkṣa must be the only goal; it is not one of the goals; it is the only goal; and any other thing that I seek also should be only a means for that end alone; whether I earn money; whether I work somewhere; whatever I do; they are all means for that; mat paramaḥ bhava means become a thīvra mumukṣu; In short; sādānā catuṣṭaya sampannāḥ bhava;

And then सङ्गवर्जितः saṅgavarjitaḥ; And as you learn to lean and depend more and more on higher things; then your attachment to other things will gradually drop; as we grow as children; we have used so many toys; and we were so much attached to toy; And one toy is taken by the neighbours child and we scream a balloon or a toy; What about now; we have got higher attachments; so previously it was ordinary biscuit; now gold biscuit; but different biscuit. So when I have got higher attachment, the lower attachment gradually dented. If for the birthday today somebody presents a balloon; you are not going to be enamoured by that; similarly, your desire for mōkṣa should swallow all the other desires;

And therefore saṅgavarjitaḥ bhava; be detached form all the other perishable things; which is rāga rāhitatvam.

And Krishna warns here; nirvairaha sarvabhuteshu; freedom from rāga does not mean development of dvēṣa; So hatred of the world is not prescribed; hatred of family members is not prescribed; no rāga also; no dvēṣa also; so sarva bhūtēṣu; with regard to every being; human being, animals; plants everything; nirvairah; freedom from enmity or dvēṣa. In short rāga dvēṣa athithatvam is maturity. So real maturity is udāsina bhāvana; it is called uadāsīnyam; neither rāga nor dvēṣa;

And what is freedom from rāga and dvēṣa; how to know that; the presence also should not make a difference; absence also should not make a difference; such a state of mind is called rāga dvēṣa athitatvam; which is otherwise called vairāgyam. So in short develop vivēka; develop vairāgyam; develop mumukṣatvam; that is real bhakthi;

And if you have got all these things; स मामेति पाण्डव sa māmēti pāṇḍava; such a person will certainly attain Me because I will provide him with all the necessary conditions to attain mōkṣa.

Developing sādānā catuṣṭaya sampathi alone is the aim of the sādaka; the rest of the things have to take place by God's grace only; because to get jñānam, I require Guru; and I never know who is a guru; because Guru is one who has got jñānam; Whether a person has got jñānam or not how do I know; so therefore, a blind man can never know; whether another person is blind or not. Therefore an ajñāni can never find who is a jñāni. Therefore if I develop sādānā catuṣṭaya sampathi; Bhagavān says I will send you a guru. For that I have got a department; if you want a security man, they will send. Similarly Bhagavān has got a guru department; when a person gets ready he will send a guru; and such a person will ultimately get guru; jñānam and mōkṣa; sa māmēti pāṇḍava; he becomes one with Me; so this is the capsule slōkā; this will be elaborated in the 12th chapter, which will be titled bhakthi yōgāḥ;

Om

I will give you a summary of the 11th chapter, Viśva rūpa darśanam. The significance of this chapter can be fully grasped only if a person has the background of the previous chapters of the Gītā; especially from the 7th chapter up to the 10th chapter, because this chapter is a development based on the foundation of the previous four chapters. In those four chapters, Lord Krishna has talked about Īśvaraḥ svarūpam very elaborately; the definition and the nature of God. And therein Krishna has mentioned that the definition of God is Īśvaraḥ jagat kāraṇam; God is the cause of the universe. Naturally the question comes what type of cause is God; because we know that the cause is two fold, the intelligent cause and the other is the material cause out of which an effect is born. Just as a carpenter is the intelligent cause of the furniture; and the wood is the material cause of the furniture; and any product requires both the intelligent as well as the material causes. So naturally our question will be: God is which type of cause? And Krishna has pointed out, God is both the intelligent as well as the material cause of the universe. In Sanskrit we say abinna nimitha upādāna kāraṇam Īśvaraḥ.

Of these two causes, we focus upon one cause, that is the material cause aspect in these four chapters; and when we focus on these material cause aspect, we come to know that the material cause alone modifies or transforms to become various defects. Of course blessed by backed by the intelligent cause, the material cause alone manifests as manifold effect; which we clearly see in day-to-day experiences. One gold alone evolves or manifests into varieties of ornaments; one wood alone becomes varieties of furniture. Thus we find that cause alone manifests in the form of effect. In fact there is no effect at all separate from the material cause. So svarṇa vyathiriktha abharaṇani na sandhi; there are no ornaments separate from gold;

there are no furniture separate from wood; there are no products separate from the material cause. To put in another language; one material cause alone appears as manifold effect, by assuming different names and forms. Thus behind all the names and forms of the product, there is only one material cause. So behind bangle name and form; chain name and form; ring name and form; what I am experiencing is the material cause, the gold alone. That means if I should have the darśanam of gold; I need not separately attempt; when I am seeing the ornaments; I am seeing the causal gold alone. I need not dismiss the ornaments; and separately work for the darśanam of the gold; All these are ornaments only; I am fed with seeing the ornaments; though it will not happen to us; at least imagine as such; and tired of ornaments; I am interested in gold darśanam; and I will close my eyes and turn away from the ornaments and meditate for svarṇa darśanam, if anyone says like that; what an அச்சு பிச்சு; idiot he must be. When you are seeing the ornaments, you are directly in contact with the material cause alone, with varieties of nāma rūpa.

Therefore kārya darśanam is essentially the material kāraṇa darśanam only. This is a very very important fact which we should remember when we see these four chapters. and Lord Krishna applies this principle and points out, Hē Arjuna, I am the material cause of the creation; not a few ornaments or a few furniture; I am the material cause of this whole universe, consisting of parā and aparā prakṛti; I do not know whether you remember; if you remember, it is very good; or it does not matter; para prakṛti yukta īśvaraḥ ēva this universe; Which means what; the universe is nothing but God evolved with different nāma and rūpa. Therefore īśvarasya avastha bedaha ēva prapañca; one gold which is called gold in the kāraṇa avastha; avastha means condition, the very same gold is called ornaments in the kārya avastha. So kāraṇam and kāryam are one and the same material only; one is with potential nāma and rūpa; whereas the kāryam is with the manifest nāma and rūpa.

And therefore Krishna wants to say that īśvaraḥ and the world can never be different; when all the names and forms are resolved; like resolving the ornaments; what obtains called avyaktha nāma and rūpa; we called īśvaraḥ and when the very same īśvaraḥ available with evolved nāma rūpa that is called prapañcaḥ. So īśvaraḥ ēva prapañcaḥ; prapañcaḥ ha ēva īśvaraḥ; which means there is no difference between prapañcaḥ darśanam and īśvaraḥ darśanam; therefore whenever I am looking at the universe, I am only looking at the Lord with infinite varieties of nāma rūpa. In short, the world is the very embodiment of the Lord. If I do not have this understanding; I will call it the world. But if I have the understanding, I will call it as the form or the embodiment of Īśvaraḥ. When I look at the world as the embodiment of Īśvaraḥ; it is called Viśva rūpa darśanam; when I look at the very world, not a new extra ordinary object but the very same ordinary universe itself when I look upon as the embodiment of the Lord; as the very body of the Lord; that new perception based on the new understanding; that understanding is called the divya cakṣūhu; based on this new understanding; when I have got a new attitude towards the ordinary universe; that new attitude is extra-ordinary attitude; the world is the ordinary world; but we are developing an extra ordinary attitude born out of understanding, And what is the new attitude; this which I thought to be world, is nothing but Īśvaraḥsya sariram; Viśva ēva rūpam śarīram yasya; and therefore Viśva rūpa darśanam is not an extra ordinary object; but an extra ordinary attitude towards an ordinary regularly available universe.

And this is not unknown to us; very many ordinary things, when it is associated with some great people or great place, that very same ordinary thing becomes extraordinary. I have told you before, when you get laddu, you see it as an embodiment of sugar; especially if you have got sugar problem; and you are not going to have respect for laddu. Then you even reject and somebody says; this is Tirūpati laddu; now you have got a new understanding; and therefore a new attitude also; because you happy to be a Balaji baktha; that also should be there. If you call an African tribal and say Tripati; he will ask what Patti; he will not have an extra ordinary attitude; because he does not know the value of Balaji. Therefore when I take the very same laddu and put it into my eyes; that means what; it is not a physical appreciation; it is a non-physical value; which can never be understand by chemical analysis or physical analysis; the laddu will be the same; but the appreciation, the extra value is not the physical but it is the attitudinal born out of understanding.

This attitude born out of understanding is called divya cakṣūhu. Imagine you meet a friend and say that I have got something extremely valuable I would like to show and he takes to some room inside and then he brings some objects; and it is covered in several pieces of cloth. And he opens it up very carefully and then he says; and I got it for 5 million rupees and you see that it is a broken Gītār; a broken Gītār; pop music instrument; and this person says, this is Harrison's guitar. So Swamiji should be up to date! Always Balaji Balaji if I say, you people will not come; Now here itself many people wonder; who is this Harrison who is brought in now; because many of our students are in vēdāntic plane and they do not read newspapers and all!!; And I am the one regularly reading newspapers and all; and I regularly ask the question, who is this blessed Harrison; he is a Beatle it was said; OK that it still verse; only in school I have learned about it etc. So therefore as long as I do not know what beetle means, what Harrison means, this is a piece of broken wood which is not worth 5 and half rupees; but this person pays Rs.5 million rupees and buys.

Now tell me what is this extra ordinary value; it is for that person because behind the physical wood, which does not have any value; he sees that this has the association with one of the Beatles; and there was a time when the whole world, not India perhaps, was going crazy, if people were asked, you want to see God; not present movie stars; you want to see God or the cinema actor, they used to fall for the cinema actor; they used to fall these Beatles; now what is the difference of my perception of this guitar and the other person's perception; that person has got divya cakṣu.

In this context, I should not use that word; but within quotes, for the sake of understanding. When he looks at that ordinary object, through the physical eye, he has got a extra ordinary attitude, because he sees the value of the person behind. Similarly some Bradman's bat or Tendulkar's bat; somebody else's chappel/ Somebody else's death; and the tooth of buddha (I think it is in Sri Lanka); the hair of prophet etc. But we say that if we touch the hair, it is asoucham; we have to take bath; but that is very carefully preserved; And therefore we should remember appreciation is two-fold, one is physical and the other is attitudinal; attitudinal appreciation comes out of training and understanding; I should have been the fan of that Beatle for several years; then alone I can appreciate the value of the Gītār; I should know all the exploits of Tendulkar; I should have been a parama bhaktha; knowing all the statistics; how many centuries; how many runs; how many catches behind the wickets; all these statistics are there; If I study all that and if I become a baktha; then an ordinary bat associated with him will have an extraordinary value.

Extending this to this universe; this universe is also something ordinary because we have been contacting it all the time; I should have bhakthi for Īśvaraḥ first; which requires lot of training and having developed bhakthi for the Lord; later I should be able to associate this universe as the embodiment associated with Īśvaraḥ. Then appreciation of Īśvaraḥ should be there and understanding that this world is connected with Īśvaraḥ and therefore the world is also not 5 million rupees worth or 5 billions rupees worth it is something immeasurable and it is extra ordinarily divine. It requires tremendous intellectual drill and mental refinement because we are not seeing anything new but we are seeing something old with a new attitude. And only then Viśva rūpa darśanam can be understood properly and that is why Krishna gives four chapters of training and then in the 11th chapter we get the culmination; this is the background we have to keep in mind;

And then coming to the text proper, the first eight verses happens to be the introductory verses, wherein Arjuna asks the question: How can I get Viśva rūpa darśanam. How can I get Viśva rūpa darśanam; is it possible for me to have Viśva rūpa darśanam at all; or which Lord Krishna answers; unfortunately or fortunately, Viśva rūpa is not one of the forms of the Lord, if it is, then it is easier; He can come like this and smile and show the hand and bless etc. and then disappear. So therefore seeing a particular form as Īśvaraḥ is relatively easier but an attitudinal change by which I learn to see this world itself as Īśvaraḥ requires tremendous change and therefore Lord Krishna says it is possible but it requires a special type of mind; and that attitude which I call divya cakṣu; Krishna says I will bless you with that attitudinal change. If you want to put in technical language; it is nothing but a mind free from ahamkāra and mamakāra; because to have Viśva rūpa darśanam, I should see everything as belonging to the Lord; nothing belongs to me; that nothing means me; all my relatives are really not my people, they all belong to Īśvaraḥ; and what about my house; Swamiji; that is mine alone; I have documental evidence; No, your house is also Bhagavān's. What about the body; तन मन धन सब कुच तेरा; tana mana dhana saba kuch terā; even the body is not yours; that also belongs to the Lord; only if you see everything as belonging to the Lord; it is Viśva rūpa darśanam; if you have to see everything as belonging to the Lord; nothing should belong to you; which means I should be free from ahamkāra and mamakāra. This ahamkāra mamakāra rahitam manaḥ is the divya cakṣu; Krishna says I will bless you with;

Then what happens; there is this transformation in Arjuna's mind; and arjuna is stunned by this; not a new form of the Lord; but the new appreciation of this viswarūpa; And when Arjuna is stunned and dumbfound, Sanjaya comes and gives a brief description from verse No.9 to 14; is Sanjaya's description of Viśva rūpa, which means Sanjaya must have the divya cakṣūhu. Either Krishna must have blessed Sanjaya also or Sanjaya must have already such a mind; in fact, some commentators say the very word samjaya itself means, the one who has won over; conquered the enemies of ahamkāra and mamakāra. That is why it is called Sanjaya; therefore he already has divya cakṣūhu; no problem; and therefore Sanjaya gives brief description of Viśva rūpa darśanam from verse No.9 to 13 and what is Viśva rūpa darśanam; and the Lord has hundreds of hands, thousands of legs; thousands of heads, stomachs, etc. and how should we understand; do not imagine that Krishna came in front and thousands and hands hanging; thousands of legs hanging; I tell you that would be most horrible form; do not imagine; that is all OK for the picture; Viśva rūpa picture you might have seen; so many heads stucked together; Do not imagine such an extraordinary figure of the Lord appearing before you; thousands of hands and legs means what; all the hands and legs of all the people previously I saw as belonging to You and I; now I see all of them as Bhagavān's only; that is why in the Rudram, towards the end it comes;

ayam mee viswabheshajoyamghum sivabhi vimarshina;

ayam me hastaha Bhagavān. When I am looking at my hands, this is also the hand of the Lord only; So if my hands are Lord's hands; what about others; definitely others' also; Thus in this hall itself; सहस्रशीर्षा पुरुषः सहस्राक्षः सहस्रपात् sahasraśīrṣā puruṣaḥ sahasrākṣaḥ sahasrapāt; Such a description Sanjaya gives first and then Arjuna gives the description And we saw that Arjuna goes through three phases in the mind in his appreciation and the first stage of appreciation is given from verse No.15 to 22 wherein Arjuna is wonderstruck; because the creation is wonderful; but we do not appreciate it because we are all the time preoccupied with aham and mama; As they say, there is no time to stand and stare; especially after the channels have come; you have to see the discovery channel; national geography channel; every fish, every animal; every ant; every bee; the more you study; any scientists belonging to any branch is wonderstruck by the nature or creation; an entomologist who studies the insect is wonderstuck by every insect; which is what; Īśvaraḥ vibūthi; and they are doing research in the cobweb created by the spider; we get angry with that; and we brush aside; but they say that it is the most unique kind of thing which the scientists are not able to create; research is going; books and books are coming, regarding the uniqueness of the threat of that; thus any aspect you take; you are wonderstruck and if you are an Īśvaraḥ bhaktha that wonder belongs to Īśvaraḥ; in Australia some ants are there it seems; they can create an anthill which is temperature controlled; Even when the temperature outside is very high or very low; there is some kind or method of doing that; they do not know that temperature control is there; where did the ants go to study; what engineering did it study; inbuilt instinctive; thus anything you see; I tell you, you will be wonderstruck and what the scientists call wonder of nature; a bhaktha calls a wonder of Īśvaraḥ.

And that is why a vēdāntic person gets interested in all the sciences; whether it is astronomy; or whether it is biology or zoology or thermodynamics or any science; because he sees all the sciences as revealing the glory of Īśvaraḥ as the wonderful universe. And this ascharyam is described beautifully from verse No.15 to 22.

And then comes from 23 to 30th verse. Arjuna sees the mouth of the Lord. So here also do not imagine 28.47 the Lord with a big mouth and all; that is also symbolic representation of kāla tatvam; So Vyāsācārya has used the language of symbolism also while describing Viśva rūpa; and all the soldiers in both the armies they are going to die and the death is symbolically presented as the soldiers entering into the mouth of the Lord; which represents the kāla tatvam; swallowing everything; because kāla is sṛṣṭi kāraṇam; kāla is sthithi kāraṇam; kāla alone is laya kāraṇam; and that kāla is an aspect of Viśva rūpa only; yama dharma rājāya; first nāmaskāra to him; yamāya dharma rājāya mruthve cha anthakāyacha;

So that we are trained to be not to be afraid of maraṇam; when one says maraṇam; we think that it is maṅgalam word and tell others not to utter it; it is not maṅgalam; maraṇam is also maha maṅgalam for the next generation! OK; for us it is maṅgalam; but unless we vacate, if everyone continues to stay what happens to the next generation. So remember what is the so called maṅgalam for us is the maṅgalam for the next generation and Arjuna also he could easily appreciate the maraṇam of all the people but the problem was what Bhīṣma; Drōṇā; All these people are also dying; So if he had been totally free from ahamkāra and mamakāra, it would not have created the problem; but Arjuna is not totally free; because his divya cakṣu is borrowed divya cakṣu; borrowing is problem; it will not last longer; it is an artificial one like ripening any fruit artificially; it will not be tasty; similarly Arjuna has not ripened in the normal method; it is borrowed from the Lord; And therefore there was ahamkāra and mamakāra; Therefore he could easily say everyone born should die; that philosophy is well known; but everybody born should die except a few members around; நாம் இருவர்; நமக்கு இருவரோ ஒருவரோ; we two and ours two or one as the case may be; and therefore fear born out of ahamakāra and mamakāra Arjuna intensely experiences which is described very very pictorially by Vyāsācārya; by pointing out that they are entering the mouth and Bhagavān is biting them; one leg is bitten; means paralysis; patient is kidney failure or heart; or missing a beat; lub lub lub dub; So problem; or teeth are going away; all these things are what: Bhagavān biting and the tragedy is what; bhagavān seems to enjoy;

And therefore naturally when you have got strong ahamkāra mamakāra; you will get angry with the Lord; you will feel Lord is very cruel; he is not dayā sāgaraḥ; it is suddha untruth; a person may turn even a nāsthika when suffering comes; So Arjuna also goes thru the problem and therefore he asks the question; Krishna please tell me who are you; my picture of God is totally different; therefore tell me what exactly you are; and Krishna answers that is the portion from verse No. 31 to 34; Arjuna question and Krishna's answer; Krishna says I am the kāla tatvam; especially the destructive kaala tatvam; in the battle field; if it has been what is the word; that maternity ward; then Bhagavān will say I am the creative kāla tatvam because we see children are always born; kāla tatvam; so in the battle field I am not certainly creative kāla tatvam but destructive kāla tatvam; so Arjuna Viśva rūpa darśanam involves accepting Bhagavān as sṛṣṭi; stithi and laya kāraṇam; all these three you should be able to accept and assimilate; that is called Viśva rūpa darśanam.

And then he says nimitha māthram bhava; when you appreciate the totality; and appreciate the orderliness and harmony of the creation as an integral part of the Lord; you will use your freewill also in accordance with the universal harmony which is called dharma; Therefore when the freewill has alignment with dharma, the universal order; the Viśva rūpa's order; that alignment is called surrender; So imagine there is an orchestra; and there are 20 violins or 30 violins; every violinist should play in keeping with the total śṛuti and tālam; If a person says that I want to show my individuality; if he plays in another śṛuti; then the whole orchestra is destroyed; I should do that; I should not make my individuality prominent or dominant; my individuality should be in alignment; that is called surrender; it is born out of wisdom; it is born out of understanding of the total harmony; which requires tremendous maturity and when maturity is there; the surrender is natural; just like if you know what is the śṛuti; you come and join the Gītā chanting; if you know what is the śṛuti; automatically you will chant in keeping with the śṛuti; Suppose you do not know what is śṛuti at all; toned deaf; śṛuti he does not understand; then that person would be apasṛuti; off-key; but if you know what is śṛuti; you will be incapable of violating the śṛuti; Even if you want to chant off; you cannot do that; Similarly if my mind is trained to appreciate the total harmony; it is called dharma appreciation; I cannot go off dharma; I do have a freewill but my freewill is in alignment, This is called nimithamaatratvam or śaraṇagati; Viśva rūpa darśanam makes śaraṇagati natural; therefore Arjuna you also surrender; follow the dharma which means you have to kill all these people; it is in keeping with the requirement of dharma; when this was taught Arjuna becomes little more wiser and then he goes to the next stage of appreciation of dharma; the Order; like appreciation of śṛuti; and naturally the surrender comes And that is given as the third stage from verse No.35 to 45 is the surrender which is purely a mental state; but this alignment of the freewill to dharma; how will I express physically; like expressing love or welcome. So it is mental; so I have to express physically by a smile; or by greeting or taking hand; Similarly, how do I express my attitude of surrender. In our tradition that is done in the form of nāmaskāra; So nāmaskāra is a natural event; which happens mentally to a mature mind; and therefore Arjuna also says नमः पुरस्तादथ पृष्ठतस्ते नमोऽस्तु ते सर्वत एव सर्वः nāmaḥ purastādatha pṛṣṭhatastē namō'stu tē sarvata ēva sarva.

Why does Arjuna says I do prostrations; your front back etc. because the orderliness is everywhere in the universe; the sruthi is everywhere; If you go to America and there is a Gītā chanting; there also it will be the same śṛuti; so therefore my nāmaskāra to all parts of you means; I see the order, the harmony the rhythm; in fact that alone maintains this universe.

loke dharmistam praja upa sarpanthi dharmena, paapam apanudhati;
dharme sarvam prathishtitham;

tasmaaat dharmam paramam vadanthi.

This invisible harmony is called dharma; So thus Arjuna surrenders his will; which is from 35 to 45. Even though Arjuna expresses his bhakthi he has gone thru all the three stages mentally; Of these three only one remains prominent; ascaryam; bhakthi and bhayam; three are there; ascaryam recedes to the background; bhakthi also recedes to the background; but as long as ahamkāra and mamakāra are there; fear is unavoidable; fear of death; fear of old age; fear of separation; all this will be unavoidable; If I do not have ahamkāra and mamakāra; all these will appear as the leela of God; we all come together; leela of īśvaraḥ; we all get separated; leela of īśvaraḥ; we all grow old; leela of īśvaraḥ; But when aham mama are there; they are terrible thing; therefore Arjuna is frightened; therefore he says he Krishna I only asked for Viśva rūpa darśanam; but now I am changing my mind; like returning some objects to the shop; he says I do not want this Viśva rūpa darśanam; it is wonderful but I would like to return it with Thanks. So thus Arjuna request and Lord Krishna also understands that an immature mind cannot have Viśva rūpa darśanam;

Then what to do; nothing to fear; you confine to ēkarūpa īśvaraḥ; so let the Lord be in the temple; or let the Lord be in the pūja room; Lord is inside; world is outside; does not matter; start with ēkarūpa īśvaraḥ; reduce ahamkāra and mamakāra; In fact our culture is designed for that only; so we build a new house and enter first thing that we do is hang the photo of the Lord; What does it mean; Oh Bhagavān; this is not my house but Yours; please allow me to use; I will give you a place; under the staircase, remember; some useless place; Does not matter; Bhagavān is adjustable; but that attitude is important; it is your house; and then the next higher stage is what; I look upon this house also as a temple belonging to the Lord; this body; देहो देवालय प्रोक्तः dēhō dēvālaya prōktaḥ; therefore see not only God is in the house; therefore house belongs to the Lord; invoke God inside your heart; and learn to see the body also as a property of īśvaraḥ; Then the attachment will drop. तन मन धन सब कुच तेरा; tana mana dhana saba kuca terā will not be a mere lip service; As Dayananda swami says: daily you sing; Bhagavān itself is confused; yesterday he gave me the body; today also he says he is giving the body; he has got only one body; how come daily he gives; then only Bhagavān knows that it is all only lip service; the one who really gives, can give only once. That is over. But the idea is what; when you daily sing; hopefully one day that word will come from the inner most heart and we mean what we see. Until then तन मन धन tan man dan we will sing; at least for the sake of vadai, kadalai and chundal;

So therefore up to ēka rūpa īśvaraḥ if you are not ready for Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; That Krishna accepts and then again comes back to ekarūpa which means what Arjuna divya cakṣuḥ is gone and therefore the world is no more the body of the Lord; world is world; laddu is not prasada; laddu becomes laddu; So that is withdrawn; which is given from 31 to 34;

And 46 to 55 is the upasamhāra or the conclusion of tis teaching; wherein Lord Krishna points out that Arjuna you had the rare opportunity of Viśva rūpa darśanam; because of your bhakthi; So thus bhakthi as a sādanā for evolution is pointed out. what evolution; From ēkarūpa darśanam to anēkarūpa darśanam to arūpa darśanam; for all these three levels bhakthi is an important sādanā; and what type of bhakthi; that is also very important; bhakthi which Bhagavān is not a means for worldly ends; but Bhagavān is an end in itself; which means a person should have vairāgyam; the only when vairāgyam increases; the bhakthi becomes the ananya bhakthi; avyabhicāriṇi bhakthi it becomes; Therefore Krishna said

jñātuṁ draṣṭuṁ ca tattvēna pravēṣṭuṁ ca parantapa || 11.54 ||

And He concludes the whole thing in the last verse which is very beautiful;

मत्कर्मकृन्मत्परमः मद्भक्तः सङ्गवर्जितः ।

निर्वैरः सर्वभूतेषु यः स मामेति पाण्डव ॥ ११.५५ ॥

nirvairaḥ sarvabhūteṣu yaḥ sa māmēti pāṇḍava || 11.55 ||

So wherein Lord Krishna says initially you confine to ekarūpa bhakthi and sakāma bhakthi; which is OK: Nobody can think Bhagavān is the end initially, the goal initially, because we have got so many other local goals; so many agenda; big list we have; Therefore Bhagavān says initially you can have worldly goals; use Bhagavān as a means to achieve those goals; nothing wrong; it is called sakāma bhakti; perfectly OK; and let the Lord be also a personal God; have an iṣṭa dēvathā; it is OK; and then gradually you will get viveka; then you will know the ephemerality of the worldly goal; once you know the limitation; God will become the end; then ēka rūpa bhakti also will gradually become anēkarūpa bhakti; And ultimately you will attain Me.

Thus by the glorification of Bhakti, Krishna concludes and the benefit of this Viśva rūpa darśanam is very high; we get several benefits of this Viśva rūpa appreciation; Some of them I will point out; This is the benefit of both vibūthi yōga as well as the Viśva rūpa darshana yōga;

The first advantage of Viśva rūpa appreciation is dvēṣa parihāraḥ; we do not hate anything in the creation; because everything is part of the Lord only; So I do not divide the world into rāga viṣaya and dvēṣa viṣaya; everything has got its place; including a cockroach; including a mosquito; even poison has got its role to play and therefore dvēṣa becomes lesser and lesser.

Then the next benefit is amānitvam; once I know everything is Lord; any glory in any part of the world belongs to the Lord alone; therefore if I enjoy any faculty, any excellence in me; in music or dance or knowledge or intelligence or beauty; I do not claim it as mind; all of them belongs to the Lord; and therefore freedom from conceit; Self-conceit or humility is the benefit of Viśva rūpa darśanam.

And then the next benefit is I look upon everything as sacred; there is no secular, sacred division; for a Viśva rūpa dṛṣṭva; there is nothing called secular; everything is sacred. Therefore when he gets up in the early morning.

समुद्र वसने देवि पर्वतस्तन मण्डले

विष्णुपत्नि नमस्तुभ्यम् पादस्पर्शम् क्षमस्वमे ॥

samudra vasanē dēvi parvatastana maṇḍalē

viṣṇupatni namastubhyam pādasparśam kṣamasvamē ||

The earth is also Bhūmādēvi; we should revere; and then I take water and see अपोवा इदगँ सर्व विश्वाभूतानापा प्राणापा पशवा अपः; apovā idagaṁ sarvaṁ viśvābhūttānāpa prāṇāpā paśavā apaḥ; water is Lord; Then I light the flame, the lamp, agni is Lord; then namō brahmanē, namaste vayō; vayu is Lord; akasa also: prāchyai diśē namaḥ;

dakshinaaye diśē namaḥ; pradichye diśē nāmaḥ; udichya diśē namaḥ; urdvāya nama; adharāya namaḥ; antarikṣāya namaḥ, Bhūmyē namaḥ; கேட்ட மாதிரி இருக்கோ? heard somewhere? In Sandhyavandanam; all the directions are worshipped; that means nature itself is pūjyam; it is sacred or holy; so sarvatra pūjyathva bhavana and then the next benefit of Viśva rūpa bhāvana is we have respect for all forms of worship; all forms of God; I may be attracted to one form of Lord; I may have viṣṇu as my iṣṭa dēvathā; but I know that any form is Lord's form; Therefore I do not look down upon Śiva; I do not compare one form or the other; all forms are OK: therefore all religions also are OK for me; sarva matha sama bhāvaḥ;

And finally, the benefit of Viśva rūpa darśanam is the expansion of the mind; the narrowness of the mind; the shortsighted of the mind will go away; because I appreciate the totality; that is why in Sandhya vandanam also: Adityam tarpayāmi; sōmam tarpayāmi; angarakam tarpayāmi; bhudam tarpayāmi; remember the planets; remember the Sun; remember the moon; Therefore the totality the more I see; more my mind expands. Thus citta viśalatha; these are the benefits of Viśva rūpa darśanam.

TWELFTH CHAPTER: BHAKTI YŌGA

Now we will take up the twelfth chapter of the Gītā; a small chapter consisting of only twenty verses but a very significant chapter which gives a comprehensive picture of entire vēdic teaching. So twelfth chapter is the essence of the Vēdas; vēda sāra is contained in this portion. And in this chapter the first part deals with the topic of bhakthi yōgaḥ as a means of mōkṣa. And by way of discussing this topic, twelfth chapter removes many confusions regarding bhakthi yōga. And this is discussed up to 12th verse of this chapter and then in the 2nd part beginning from the 13th up to 20th bhakthi yōga phalam, namely mōkṣa is talked about; thus bhakthi yōga and bhakthi yōga phalam these are the two topic discussed and before entering into the actual verses, I would like to give you a bird's eye-view of bhakthi yōga which is discussed in this chapter.

What we come to know by the study of this chapter is that bhakthi yōga is not a particular sādānā. It is not a particular distinct sādānā but it is the name of the entire range of spiritual sādānās culminating in mōkṣa. So bhakthi yōga is not a sādānā but it is a group of spiritual sādānās; and these spiritual sādānās are three in number which are discussed in the Vēdas. And Bhagavat Gītā being the essence of the Vēdas, the three sādānās of the Vēda alone are given in this chapter; and those three sādānās are karma yōgaḥ; then upāsana yōgaḥ; and jñāna yōgaḥ. In fact, in the Vēdas and in the Upaniṣads, the word bhakthi is practically not used at all. Thus the vēdic karma plus upāsana plus jñāna yōga; all these three put together is renamed as bhakthi yōgaḥ; and why do we name these three sādānās as bhakthi yōgaḥ? Because Krishna feels all these three levels of sādānā should be practiced only in the atmosphere of īśvara bhakthi. Without īśvara bhakthi; these three sādānās cannot be called sādānās at all. So it is in the atmosphere of Īśvara bhakthi that these exercises become yōga.

And therefore everyone is called bhakthi yōga; therefore if you have to differentiate, we can say bhakthi yōga level 1; bhakthi yōga level 2; and bhakthi yōga level 3. Level one karma yōga lakṣaṇa bhakthi yōga; level two upāsana yōga lakṣaṇa bhakthi yōga; lakṣaṇa means in the form of, and the last one is jñāna yōga lakṣaṇa bhakthi yōgaḥ. And for the sake of the benefit of all seekers; these three levels of sādānā itself Krishna subdivides into five levels. Because some times, certain staircases you will find that there are two steep; some olden staircases, you find that very big; then what do you do; you make into two. So that everybody can walk up; similarly, Krishna subdivides these three levels themselves into five; and how does Krishna divides; karma yōga itself is subdivided into first level of karma yōga; and the second level of karma yōga; karma yōga level 1; karma yōga level 2. Similarly, upāsana yōga itself is subdivided into two levels; upāsana yōga level 1; and upāsana yōga level 2; so 2+2 four and jñāna yōga is divided into two; it is only one level. Thus we have two plus two plus one; five.

Now the next question is: what is the difference between karma yōga level one and karma yōga level two. In Karma yōga level one; Krishna wants to accommodate all materialistic people, who are not really interested in mōkṣa; who are not really interested in serving the society; utterly selfish materialistic people also Krishna wants to accommodate. And Krishna says: Let the materialistic selfish people follow or pursue their worldly desires; they need not give up their worldly desires; because suppression of desires is a dangerous thing; because when a person suppresses a desires the mind continues fantasising the fulfillment of those desires. And then gradually they mount up like a volcano and then later a person can completely go astray and therefore the Vēdas as well as Krishna says that even if you are not interested in Bhagavān; does not matter; even if you are not interested in Mōkṣa; does not matter; you might be interested in arta and kāma, means what money and entertainment; Krishna says continue; And still you can be a karma yōgi; a spiritual sādānā; provided you follow one or two conditions.

The first condition is make sure that you fulfill your worldly materialistic desires; selfish desires only by legitimate methods; akramam do not do; that is condition No.1; and the second and more important condition is when you pursue your worldly pleasures, desires and you succeed and get them; before you enjoy those phalams; those pleasures; do not claim them as your accomplishments; look upon them as gift from the Lord. Īśvarasya prasādaḥ. Start there; whether you buy a house or car or you buy a new dress; anything you want to get, you get it; but before enjoying them, even the food that you eat; do not name it as your accomplishment; take it as Īśvara prasāda. And when you buy a new house also; it is your desire to buy the house; and you want to enjoy the benefit of the house; but Krishna makes only one request; look upon the house as the temple of God. And imagine that you are living in the temple which is a gift from the Lord; Krishna prasādaḥ. Rāma prasādaḥ; even children are named Rāma prasād, etc. means what: Look upon even your children, not as your children, but as a gift from the Lord; thus this level of karma yōga can be defined as prasāda buddhya; sakāma karma anuṣṭānam; You may follow kama karmas; you may not do niṣkāma karmas; you may not do parōpakārāya karmas; does not matter, உனக்காக பண்ணினாலும்; even if you do it for yourself; enjoy it as Īśvara prasāda.

So what is the first level of karma yōga; prasāda bhavanaya; sakāma karma anuṣṭānam; sakāma karma means what; selfish activities for my own benefit; Then what will happen? If I continue to accept everything as Īśvara prasāda, because of the very attitude, the mind becomes purer and purer. And as the mind becomes purer and purer, I begin to question: Can I spend my entire life for my own personal benefit? Should'nt I contribute something to the world? so this kind of questions gradually comes, which is an indication of purity; desire for parā upakāra; in sakāma karma, I have a desire only for taking; in niṣkāma karma, I develop a desire for giving also. Life is not mere taking; life is giving also; previously I measure my success in terms of how much I have taken. Now my mind changes; I ask the question how much I have given; success is not proportional to taking; Success is directly proportional to giving; न कर्मणा न प्रजया धनेन, त्यगे नैके अमृतत्व मानशुः na karmaṇā na prajāyā dhanena, tyage naike amṛtatva mānaśuḥ.

This is the difference between materialistic approach and spiritual approach. In materialistic approach, success is directly proportional to acquisition. In spiritual approach, success is directly proportional to sharing or tyāga and therefore in the second level of karma yōga; the sakāma karmas will become lesser and lesser; selfish attitude becomes lesser and lesser; my awareness and consideration of other people becomes more and more. And therefore naturally parōpakāra karmāṇi; niṣkāma karmāṇi or pañca mahā yajña rupa karmāṇi, I find time. Previously selfish activities were occupying the whole time; I never had time for any contribution. Now I find that I do fulfil my selfish desires, but I should also find time for some contribution or other. And even when I find time for giving; giving need not be all the time money alone; Remember, giving time, giving words, consoling words to others; giving knowledge to others; all these are giving and when I give to others; not with arrogance, the giving is done as Īśvara arpaṇa rupeṇa. Therefore the second level of karma yōga is Īśvara arpaṇa bhāvanaya niṣkāma karma anuṣṭānam; parā upakāra anuṣṭānam.

So in the first level I am very selfish; in the second level; selfishness has come down; In first level; I have a very narrow mind; in the second level; I am aware of the need of others' also; And these two levels together is called karma yōga; So prasāda bhavanaya sakāma karma anuṣṭānam; Then Īśvarārpaṇa bhavanaya niṣkāma karma anuṣṭānam. In the first level karma yōga will give purity; the second level of karma yōga will give purity at a faster rate, because in sakāma karma, purity is in trickles; because in niṣkāma karma purity is more. That is why it is said परोपकाराय पुण्याय पापाय पर पीडनम् parōpakāra puṇyāya pāpāya parāpīḍanam; and once a person has gone through these levels of karma yōga; he is ready to graduate to the third level;

Third level is upāsana yōga; which means Īśvara dhyānam; meditation upon Īśvara; that too saṅgūṇa Īśvara dhyānam. And why do we prescribe this sādhanā as the next stage; karma yōga is very important for the purity of mind; For spiritual elevation; karma yōga is a must. And therefore karma yōga is extremely useful; but it has got certain disadvantages also; which has to be neutralised. What is that; when a person is a karma yōgi; he is busy involved in either sakāma karma, if he is in the first level; or he is busy in niṣkāma karma. One is busy serving himself; another is busy is serving the society; both are busy. And in both levels of karma, whether it is sakāma or niṣkāma; a person is extrovert in nature; is more and more world-oriented; Is more and more bahirmukhaḥ; And this bahirmukatvam or extrovertedness is an obstacle for jñāna yōga. Because jñāna yōga involves enquiring into the inner self as we saw yesterday; यो वेद निहितम् गुहायाम् परमेव्योमन् yō vēda nihitam guhāyām parāmēvyōman. Self-enquiry or pañca kōśa vivēka etc. requires not an extrovert mind; it requires a mind which is turned towards oneself. पारान्जिकानि व्यतृण स्वयम्भूः तस्मात् परन् पश्यति नान्तरात्मन् pārānjikāni vyatṛṇa svayambhūḥ tasmāt parān paśyati nāntarātman.

Extroverted people will miss self-knowledge. And therefore upāsana is Īśvara dhyānam. So in Upāsana I turn my attention inwards and I invoke the Lord in my heart; which means I train my mind towards my own inner nature; which is a very very important training required and without that training a person can never come to brahma jñānam.

And therefore comes the third level of upāsanam and Krishna divides this meditation into two types: one is ēka rupa Īśvara dhyānam; And the next is anēkarūpa Īśvara dhyānam; I visualise the Lord with a particular form; as Rāma or Krishna; any iṣṭa dēvathā rūpam; And this iṣṭa dēvathā rupa dhyānam; or ēka rupa Īśvara dhyānam, Krishna calls abhyasa yōgaḥ; This is the third level of sādhanā; and once a person has practiced this sufficiently, Krishna asks us to replace this ēkarūpa Īśvara with anēka rūpa, as we have seen in the 11th chapter; Krishna is not a person located in one place. If Bhagavān is looked upon as a person located in one place; that Bhagavān also will be limited; subject to janma; subject to maraṇam, etc.; Therefore for initial meditation purposes, we can have ēkarūpa; but we have to expand our mind. First upāsanam helps in focusing; the next upāsanam helps in expanding the mind. And therefore the first level of upāsanam is ēkarūpa Īśvara dhyānam; And the next level is anēkarūpa or viśva rupa Īśvara dhyānam. And both of them come under saguṇa Īśvara dhyānam only; Saguṇa means what; with attributes or properties; ēkarūpa Īśvara also has attributes; Viśva rūpa Īśvara also has got innumerable attributes. So thus we have got two levels of karma yōga; two levels of upāsana.

And Once a person has gone through all these four levels; this person has got jñāna yogyathā; he is eligible to enter the fifth and final level which is jñāna yōgaḥ; which is enquiry into nirguṇa Īśvara; otherwise known as Brahman; Brahman is none other than Īśvara in his higher nature, In the seventh chapter, was called parā prakṛti; parā prakṛti rupa arupa Īśvara enquiry which consists of vēdānta sṛavaṇam, vēdānta mananam and nidhidhyāsanam; sṛavaṇam meaning consistent and systematic study of the Upaniṣadic scriptures which deal with nirguṇa īśvara. And not only I study that; the culmination of that study should be that the nirguṇa īśvara is non-different from my own higher nature: aham brahma asmi.

So when I come to nirguṇa level; the difference between īśvara and the jeeva disappears. At saguṇa level, the difference is maintained. When I come to nirguṇa level; aham brahma asmi;

And having gained this knowledge I go to mananam to remove all the doubts in accepting this knowledge. Thus intellectual obstacles in the form of doubts are removed, which is called mananam; which is also part of jñāna yōga only; And finally comes nidhidhyāsanam, which is the removal of all the emotional obstacles; all the psychological traumas that I have gone through before; various problems we have gone through in our life; they all remain in our inner heart; which do not allow us to enjoy the benefit of knowledge; All the psychological hang ups should be removed, which is called nidhidhyāsanam. Śravaṇam plus mananam plus nidhidhyāsanam put together is called jñāna yōgaḥ; not in Saguṇa form but in His Nirguṇa form. In fact, in 'His' word would not come, because in Nirguṇa, there is no male or female:

ना सन्न सदसन्न महन्न चाणुः न स्त्रि पुमान् नपुम्सक एक बीजम् ॥ nā sanna sadasanna mahanna cāṇuḥ
na stri pumān napumsaka ēka bījam ||

अशब्धम् अस्पर्शम् अरूपम् अव्ययम् तत रसम् नित्य अगन्धवच्चयत् aśabdham aśparśam, arūpam avyayam
tata rasam nitya agandhavaccayat

No form; no colour, no smell, no taste, no touch. This jñāna yōga is the fifth and final level of sādhanā and all the five levels put together is called bhakthi yōgaḥ.

Therefore never ask the question do you follow bhakthi yōga or jñāna yōga; remember jñāna yōga is also a level of bhakthi yōga; upāsana is also a level of bhakthi yōga; karma yōga is also a level of bhakthi yōga. Everyone has to go through all the five levels; because nobody is born with a desire for God from birth. We are all born with so many worldly desires. So, we have to start with sakāma karma; That is why vēda itself is full of many sakāma karma. Vēda never says we should work for mōkṣa in the beginning itself. He says you work for puthra; you work for money; puthrakāmēṣṭi yāga; and for money yāga; for health yāga; all these are what; worldly desires; Start with sakāma karma and go through all the stages, And gain the knowledge, aham brahma asmi; which is the culmination of bhakthi yōga. This is the topic of the first twelve verses;

And then in the last 8 verses; Krishna talks about the nature of a person; the character of a person who had gone through all these five stages; successfully, and we call such a person; parā bhaktha or parā bhakthaḥ; who is in advaitam; who is a jñāni; who has discovered aham brahma asmi; such a jñāni is called parā bhaktha and Krishna clearly says this parā bhaktha alone is my dearest devotee. And the other people are dear people or dearer people but the dearest one is only the nirguṇa bhaktha because there is no distance between Me and him. He has become one with Me; and I have become one with him which Krishna said in the seventh chapter; jñāni tu ātmaiva me matam; Jñāni does not stand even separate from me. So this parā bhaktha lakṣaṇani; the characteristic of parā bhaktha is the final topic. With this background we will enter into the chapter proper.

अर्जुनः उवाच arjunaḥ uvāca Arjuna said के योगवित्तमाः ke yovavittamāḥ who are the best yōgis? तेषाम् tēṣāṃ among them सततयुक्ताः satatayuktāḥ (who are) the ever-steadfast, भक्ताः bhaktāḥ devotees, ये पर्युपासते ye paryupāsate who meditate upon, त्वाम् tvām You एवम् evam as described before च अपि ये ca api ye and those who (meditate upon, अक्षरम् अव्यक्तम् avyaktam akṣaram the imperishable unmanifest (Brahman) ?

1. Arjuna asked – Who are the best Yōgis among them? – the ever-steadfast devotees who meditate upon You as described before and (or) those who (meditate upon) the imperishable, unmanifest (Brahman) ?

So the chapter begins with a question from Arjuna based on the previous teaching. Such a question is called anupraśnaḥ; prasnaḥ means an independent question; anupraśnaḥ means a question based on previous teaching. And in this question Arjuna asks: Is saḡuṇa bhaktha superior; or is Nirḡuṇa bhaktha superior; the one who is associated with saḡuṇa Īśvara and the one who is committed to nirḡuṇa Īśvara; between these two; which one is superior.

A very important question; First he describes saḡuṇa bhaktha in the first line; भक्ताः त्वाम् पर्युपासते bhaktāḥ tvām paryupāsate; there are certain saḡuṇa bhakthās who regularly meditate upon saḡuṇa Īśvaraḥ; and how do they meditate; सततयुक्ताः satatayuktāḥ; with constant commitment; sincerely, steadfastly; There are some people who mediate upon saḡuṇa Īśvara and what type of saḡuṇa Īśvara. Because saḡuṇa Īśvara of two types; do you remember, ēkarūpa saḡuṇa Īśvara; or anēka rūpa saḡuṇa Īśvara; which one Arjuna is referring to; एवम् evam; a saḡuṇa Īśvara, as described in the previous chapter; so ēvam means ēkādaśa adhyaya ukta prakārēṇa; And in the 11th chapter, which Īśvara was talked about; it is Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; anēkarūpa Īśvaraḥ; that is the Lord as the entire cosmos itself; as described in the Puruṣa suktham; as described in Rudram; Rudra is Sri Rudram, which is talking about Viśva rūpa Īśvara; Puruṣa suktham is talking about Viśva rūpa Īśvara only; therefore ēvam means ēkādaśa adhyāya ukta prakārēṇa Viśva rūpa saḡuṇa Īśvaram upāsate; this is one group of people.

And then Arjuna introduces the Nirḡuṇa bhakthās in the next line; ये च अपि yē cā api; there are some other people what do they do; अक्षरम् अव्यक्तम् पर्युपासते avyaktam akṣaram paryupāsate; paryupāsate; you have to supply from the first line; the verb is not given; we have to supply yē cāpyakṣaramavyaktaṃ paryupāsatē; upon akṣara Īśvaraḥ; if you remember the 8th chapter; akṣaram brahma paramaṃ svabhāvō'dhyātmanucyatē; parām brahma is called akṣara Īśvara; and parām brahma is free from all attributes.

So akṣaram means nirguṇam brahma; And because this akṣara Īśvara is nirguṇam brahma; avyaktam; that attributeless Īśvara is not perceptible to any sense organ; because if the Lord does not have, eyes cannot see; if there is no sound; no flute and all; music is not there; therefore you cannot hear; you cannot smell tulasi Māla, chandanam etc. because body itself is not there; where is māla; therefore no smell; no touch, you cannot touch that nirguṇa Īśvara. In short not objectifiable through any one of the sense organs; therefore avyaktam means sarva indriya agōcaram. And this nirguṇam avyaktam brahma some people meditate upon. If nirguṇam brahma is not objectifiable; how can they meditate upon. There is only one way of meditation; an unobjectifiable Brahman can be meditated only in one thing; quiz question; koan bhanega koteswaran; how can you meditate unobjectifiable Brahman; there is only method; to see the unobjectifiable Brahman as the subject, I, the meditator; So nirguṇam brahma upāsana is a meditation upon the meditator. It is atma dhyānam alone. Thus there are some people who are meditating upon nirguṇa brahma; So this is the second clue; And Arjuna's question is what: who is superior;

तेषाम् teṣām tesham; tayor madhye; nirdharane śaṣṭi; between these two groups of people; के योववित्तमाः ke yovavittamāḥ; saguṇa dhyathā is superior or nirguṇa dhyathā is superior; dhyathā means what; meditator; and indirectly the question means saguṇa brahma is superior or saguṇa Īśvara is superior or nirguṇa Īśvara is superior; what a question. Now Krishna has to answer this which He is doing in the following verses:

श्रद्धया परयोपेतास्ते मे युक्ततमा मताः ॥ १२.२ ॥

śrībhagavānuvāca

mayyāvēśya manō yē māṃ nityayuktā upāsatē |

śraddhayā parāyōpētāḥ tē mē yuktatamā matāḥ || 12.2 ||

श्री भगवान् उवाच śrī bhagavān uvāca Lord Krishna said आवेश्य मनः āvēśya manah fixing the mind मयि mayi upon Me उपेताः परया श्रद्धया upetāḥ parāyā

śraddhayā with great faith ते नित्ययुक्ताः te nityayuktāḥ those ever-steadfast (devotees), ये उपासते ye upāsate who meditate माम् mām upon Me मताः युक्ततमाः matāḥ yuktatamāḥ are considered to be the best yōgis, मे me by Me.

2. Lord Krishna said --- fixing the mind upon Me with great faith, those ever-steadfast (devotees) who meditate upon Me are considered to be the best yōgis by Me.

So what is the answer? Is saṅuṇa bhakthi is superior; or nirguṇa bhakthi is superior? Generally our tendency would be to vote for saṅuṇa bhakthi; because in saṅuṇa bhakthi alone there is variety; there is beauty; adaram madhuram; vadanam madhuram; nayanam madhuram; all these are there. Who will like Nirguṇa Īśvara; no sound; no form; no touch; no taste; like bland food; திதிப்பும் இல்லை; காரவும் இல்லை; புளிப்பும் இல்லை; சப்புன்னு இருக்கு; no sweet; no pungent; no chilli; which is chap; like that who will like that nirguṇa Īśvara. In fact many philosophers say nirguṇa Īśvara does not exist; They say outright they negate it; and even among those who accept it; they say; Many people is not worth knowing or teaching; it is useless.

Now what is the real answer? The real answer is that the question is wrong. The real answer is that the question is wrong; and for a wrong question, there is no right answer. So how many kilometers is the weight of this clip; let me see; how many centimeters is the weight of this clip? You will look at me; because you cannot answer that question; because centimeter has nothing to do with weight; centigram is OK: centimeter refers to distance.

So therefore whenever you try to compare two things; to find out which is superior; you remember comes only when you have to choose between two; The very question of comparison comes only when you have to choose between two things; you ask the question whether this is better or that is better; So that you can choose the better one; and the choice can come vary carefully understand; choice can come only between two similar things; there is no question of choice between two dissimilar things. I will explain it; do not worry; When there are two similar; there is a choice; and when I have to choose, the question will come, which one is better. Suppose you want to drink something; somebody has come; as a guest; so they ask the question; what will you drink; do you want coffee; or tea; or milk or so many things are there; among different drinks you can have comparison and you can choose one of them; So the choice is among various drinks; Or you can have choice with regard to the container, people ask; Swamiji whether you want in glass or cup; or davara-tumbler. So among various containers, you can ask which one you would like and I can choose one of them. Suppose somebody asks; Swamiji do you want tumbler or drink? What can you answer; there is no choice between the container and the content. Similarly between two roads; you can have comparison; between two destinations you can have comparison but you can never compare between road and destination; Do you want road or destination? What will you answer; It is not right; Between two types of pants you can have comparison; between two types of shirts you can have comparison; do you want to put pant or shirt? What will you answer.

Therefore remember, comparison is only among similars; and saṅuṅa bhakthi and nirṅuṅa bhakthi can never be compared because one is the means and the other is the end; saṅuṅa bhakthi is the sādanām, the means the stepping stone; and only through saṅuṅa bhakthi one has to reach nirṅuṅa bhakthi, which is advaitam; saṅuṅa bhakthi is dvaitam; nirṅuṅa bhakthi is advaitam; saṅuṅa bhakthi is bhēdaḥ means what difference; nirṅuṅa bhakthi is abēdaḥ; one is means the other is end; Therefore you do not have a choice between them. So everyone has to go through saṅuṅa bhakthi and everyone has to end in the discovery of nirṅuṅa bhakthi; which is abēdaḥ advaita jñānam. Without saṅuṅa bhakthi, nirṅuṅa bhakthi is impossible and without nirṅuṅa bhakthi, saṅuṅa bhakthi is incomplete; without saṅuṅa bhakthi, nirṅuṅa bhakthi is impossible; and without nirṅuṅa bhakthi saṅuṅa bhakthi is incomplete. Therefore everyone has to go through saṅuṅa bhakthi; come to nirṅuṅa bhakthi which is the culmination of sādanā.

But Krishna does not want to tell Arjuna that the question is wrong; because the student will feel insulted; humiliated; already the student has got many complexes; Generally whenever they ask the question, they always give an introduction. Swamiji the question may be silly. அதை சொல்லியா தெரியணம்? Has one to say that to understand! OK; just joke; Any question appears silly after you know the answer. but until you know the answer, question is extremely important and relevant; therefore the student has the problem, teacher does not want to add insult to injury

And therefore Krishna does not say you are wrong; And but he gives an intelligent answer. He says saguṇa bhakthas are superior; nirguṇa bhakthās attain Me. It is Krishna's mischief; it is not only during childhood days; एतन्नाम; even in Gītā in the philosophical text also; He continues His mischief. So the idea is there is no question of choice. And therefore He says: Saguṇa bhaktha is indeed great so that everyone will take to saguṇa bhakthi in the beginning. Once a person has sufficiently practiced he can be slowly absorbed into sucked into nirguṇa bhakthi; which is otherwise jñānam; the details we will see in the next class.

Om

The twelfth chapter begins with a question from Arjuna in which Arjuna asks whether saṅguṇa dhyānam is superior or nirguṇa dhyānam is superior. Saṅguṇa dhyānam means meditation upon the Lord with various attributes, as described in the dhyāna ślōkā, मेघश्यामं पीतकौशेयवासं श्रीवत्साङ्कं कौस्तुभोद्भासिताङ्गम् mēghaśyāmaṁ pītakausēyavāsaṁ śrīvatsāṅkaṁ kaustubhōdbhāsitaṅgam.

All these descriptions are called guṇa; and saṅguṇa dhyānam means meditation upon the Lord with various features. Whereas nirguṇa dhyānam upon the Lord who is absolutely free from all features; feature_less īśvaraḥ; aśabda; asparśa, arasa, agandam. This is nirguṇa dhyānam; between these two which one is superior. And between the two sets of people who are greater devotees. And this question came in the first verse, for which Krishna gave the answer and I introduced the answer in the last class. We cannot give an answer to this question because the question itself is wrong; the question of which is superior comes only when you have to choose one of the two, Wherever choice is there; comparison is inevitable and where there is no choice, there is no question of comparison between saṅguṇa dhyānam and nirguṇa dhyānam.

According to Krishna, there is no question of comparison at all; because there is no choice. What do you mean by there is no choice. What we mean is everyone has to necessarily go through both; everyone has to necessarily go through both, because both sādhanās have to contribute its own benefit to the seeker. It is like different types of dishes what we consume; one dish gives carbohydrates and another gives proteins and therefore we have to consume different, because each one helps the body in its own unique way. Similarly saṅguṇa dhyānam can give, nirguṇa dhyānam cannot give and what nirguṇa dhyānam gives saguṇa dhyānam cannot and therefore both are compulsory.

And once you say both of them are compulsory; how are we to practice that. That Krishna himself will clarify later. They cannot be simultaneously practiced and therefore they have to be practiced one graded manner; Just like going to primary school, and secondary school and college; if you have to become a graduate; should I go to the primary school or college?; What answer you will give; you will have through primary school you have to qualify yourselves to enter the college and then you have to go through the college to graduate. Therefore both are required; schools as well as colleges. If both are required; if both are required I will go to both simultaneously; morning to school and evening to college. So we had one brahmacāri in our āsrama and he used to attend three levels of Sanskrit classes at the same time; we had one lower level; where alphabet is taught; we had one medium level where Antoine Bhandarkar was taught and there was a higher level Paṇini sūtrās was taught; he will sit in all the three; you cannot do. They have to be in a graded manner and once you know that they are to be in a graded order, what should be the order. First I will go to college; and then to school you cannot say; it should be in a proper order.

Saguṇa dhyānam prepares for the nirguṇa dhyānam; saguṇa dhyānam chastens the mind for nirguṇa dhyānam, and therefore everyone has to start with saguṇa; grow and then come to nirguṇa and be free. And therefore Arjuna do not ask which is better; your question is wrong. As I said in the last class, Krishna does not want to say you are wrong; because already śiṣya has lot of inferiority complex and Guru does not want to add. And therefore what does he do; nicely he says saguṇa dhyāna kartās are superior, nirguṇa dhyāna kartā will reach me; therefore everyone is satisfied.

Therefore he says in the second verse; मयि आवेश्य मनः ये माम् उपासते mayi āveśya manaḥ ye mām upāsate; there are some people who practice meditation upon Me; mām upāsate; and what type of mām; we have to supply; saguṇam mām; the saguṇa Krishna either in the form of ēkarūpa Krishna, as a personal God or the Viśva rūpa Krishna, as described in the 11th chapter; remember Viśva rūpa īśvara is also saguṇa īśvara. Thus there are some people who meditate upon Me in saguṇa form; with attributes;

how; Mayi āveśya; focusing their mind upon Me; fixing their mind on Me; there are some people who practice saguṇa Krishna dhyānam.

And they are not; they do not practice in fits and starts; on inspiration they follow one day and thereafter they forget like in New Year resolutions; it is not नित्ययुक्ताः nityayuktāḥ; ever steadfast; ever committed; consistently; without fail; nityayuktāḥ; steadfastly; some people practice saguṇa Īśvara dhyānam

And they are endowed with परया श्रद्धया उपेताः parayā śraddhayā upetāḥ; they are endowed with intense faith in Me; because the benefit of saguṇa dhyānam is not in the material plane, God does not practice any material benefit; the benefit presented is inner growth; expansion of mind; purity of mind; sensitivity of mind; refinement of mind; they are all non-tangible, non-quantifiable result; and therefore we do not see the result physically. Therefore we have to have faith in that result and therefore Krishna says: with intense faith that they will transform my inner personality; this mediation will transform my inner personality with the śraddhaḥ; some people practice saguṇa dhyānam.

And then Krishna says, they may be yukta-tama mata; those people who practice such a saguṇa dhyānam they are indeed superior; they are indeed great people; So saguṇa people have been glorified now.

Now Krishna will confuse you in the next verses saying that Nirguṇa people reach Me. So in short, the idea is do not compare.

Continuing.

3 & 4. Having restrained the sense organs, being even-minded towards all, and being interested in the welfare of all beings, some (devotees) meditate upon the imperishable (Brahman) which is indefinable, unmanifest, all-pervading, incomprehensible, immutable, immovable, and eternal. They attain Me alone.

Whereas there are some other people who follow Nirguṇa Īśvara dhyānam, otherwise called nirguṇa brahma dhyānam; as a part of jñāna yōga sādānā and this jñāna yōga alone I said in my introduction as the fifth and highest stage of bhakthi yōga. Therefore in these three verses, Krishna is introducing jñāna yōga sādānā which is the practice of Nirguṇa Īśvara dhyānam. Nirguṇa Īśvara dhyānam is an integral part of jñāna yōga sādānā. And in technical language, this nirguṇa Īśvara dhyānam is called nidhidhyāsanam; so thus there are some people who practice nidhidhyāsanam which is meditating upon my highest nature;

so ये तु अक्षरम् पर्युपासते ye tu akṣaram paryupāsate; there some others who meditate upon akṣaram; akṣaram means the absolute Brahma; akṣaram brahma paramam, the nirguṇam brahma;

And what is the description of nirguṇa Īśvara; several words Krishna uses; all these are the Upaniṣadic words; each word is a significant word; I will rearrange the verse for the sake of communication.

First description we will take up is अव्यक्तम् avyaktam; Nirguṇa Īśvara; Īśvara in His highest form or highest nature is avyaktaḥ; avyaktaḥ means sarva indriya agōcaraḥ; not perceptible to any sense organ. And we have five sense organs and each sense organ is capable of perceiving one one attribute; one sense organ perceives śabda, the sound; another perceives sparśa the sound; another perceives the rūpam, the form and colour; another perceives rasa the taste; and the fifth one perceives gandha the smell. Thus we have five sense organs; objectifying five-fold attributes; śabda sparśa rūpa rasa gandhaḥ. In fact the whole universe physical universe is nothing but a blend of śabda sparśa rūpa rasa gandhaḥ.

That is why it is called prapañcaḥ; prapañcaḥ means what? The world consisting of five segments; in the form of śabda sparśa rūpa rasa gandhaḥ; and that is why you close the five sense organs, the whole segmented world disappears. And our Nirguṇa Krishna Īśvara does not have all the five attributes. Therefore he is called what avyaktam. That means what; the original Krishna cannot be seen; original Krishna cannot be heard; smelt; tasted or touched.

So what about adharam madhuram, vadhanam madhuram and all; so beautiful lipped Krishna; What about that Krishna; according to Krishna himself; they are all non-original Krishna; they are apara prakrithi; they are māya mānuṣa vēṣa. You start with māya vēṣaḥ; but you have to transcend the māya vēṣa. And there are some people who meditate upon avyaktam; OK.

There are many things which cannot be perceived by the sense organs but they can be conceived by the mind; there are so many emotions; love; anger; happiness; etc. they are not perceptible; many mathematical scientific concepts and laws; you do not see; but they are ideas; Ideas cannot be perceived by the sense organs; but they can be conceived by the mind; that is why they are called concepts; OK: can you say Nirguṇa Krishna can be conceived by the mind.

Krishna puts another bomb-shell; acinthyam; I cannot be conceived; not be delivered; if conceived delivery is assured. Therefore I am not one of the concepts of the mind; it is not a mathematical theorem or idea; therefore I am unobjectifiable by your mind also; acinthyam; inconceivable. In Sanskrit, manō agōcaram; first one is what; indriya agōcaram. Now; manō agōcaram.

And if the Lord cannot be perceived or conceived how can you talk about that Lord; because words are sound symbols used to communicate the objects which are either perceived by you or conceived by you. So you see this when this was invented for the first time; there is an object perceived and therefore for transactional purposes you want to invent a word; So you invent the word 'clip'; so the word 'clip' came only a sound symbol to communicate an object which is sensorially perceived or mentally conceived. When God is, means the Nirguṇa God is neither sensorially perceived nor mentally conceived, how you can have a word to talk about that;

And therefore the Lord cannot be described also. Therefore, anirdēśyam; in describable; So imperceptible; inconceivable; indescribable;

So fundamental doubt will arise whether there is such a thing; Is there any possibility at all of the existence of such a thing. As somebody said; it appears to be a big bloated bladder of bluff; So there are some philosophers who say that Nirguṇa Brahman does not exist at all; it is like the emperor's robe. So we go on the talking and the paramānanda śiṣyās out of respect for the teacher; they nod; they nod their head; it is not possible; that is not possible. That is what it appears; because it is imperceptible; inconceivable and indescribable.

So we may think; in fact, all put together in one word we can say: it is unobjectifiable; because these are different pramāṇams; sense organs are called pratyakṣa pramāṇam, mental concepts are anumāna artāpatti etc.; words are śabda pramāṇam, sarva pramāṇa agōcaram; unobjectifiable, one technical word we use for this is: apramēyaḥ. Therefore Nirguṇa Īśvara is apramēyaḥ. That is why in Viṣṇu sahaṣṇāma; one of the nāma is apramēyō ṛiṣikēśō padmanābhō amaraprabhuḥ.

They say somebody had confusion it seems: padmanābhō amaraprabhuḥ or padmanābhō mara prabhuḥ? So some body said both are correct; because in Viśva rūpa darśanam we have said that everything is Lord; therefore Lord is maram also; so padmanābhō amaraprabhuḥ, the eternal one; padmanābhō maraprabhuḥ; the tree also. Anyway that is a different aside point; What I want to say is: apremēyaḥ.

Now once we say the Lord is unobjectifiable at all; we will conclude that such a God cannot exist and therefore Krishna puts another bomb-shell; He says: Do you say that Nirguṇa Īśvara is not there?

I say He is everywhere; सर्वत्रगम् sarvatrāgam; Nirguṇam brahma not only exists but "he" within quotes; because for Nirguṇam, we cannot use, he/she/it we cannot use; but we have to use some pronoun, Nirguṇa Krishna is everywhere; That is why when somebody wrote God is nowhere; What did he do; he put a comma, after w in now; here; nowhere becomes now here; And when you look around; Vēdānta will say tat tvam asi; That is secret; later; sarvatrāgam means all pervading.

And if that Lord is all pervading; acalḥam; you can understand; acalam means what; that which does not move; a saḡuṇa krishna; A personal Krishna can move from Mathura to Dwaraka; Dwaraka to battlefield; this place to that place; all are possible because Saḡuṇa Īśvara is finite; but nirguṇa Īśvara being formless; whatever does not have form is all pervading; because form always gives the periphery of an object. I have talked about this before I think; whether this hall is square or rectangular; how will you decide; you look at the periphery. Therefore to have to form is to have a boundary; you can never talk about a form without talking about boundary. Therefore yathra yathra form thathra thathra boundary. If the Lord does not have the attribute of a form; that Lord cannot have a boundary. Therefore ākāśavat sarvagata; like the space; the Lord has to be all-pervading; And therefore just as the space cannot move from one place to another; Nirguṇa Krishna also does not come and go.

Then what about our ṣōdaśa upacāra pūja; in which we invite the Lord and not only invite the Lord and feed; At the end we say: gaccha; yatha sthanam pratiṣṭāpayāmi. Therefore the Lord what we worship is subject to arrival and departure; whereas the highest Lord is non-arriving-non-departing Īśvaraḥ. Therefore acalam.

Thus the word sarvatrāgam and acalam indicate dēśa pariscēda rahithaḥ; free from spatial limitation; as we saw in Taittiriya Upaniṣad; Anantham.

And then the next word we will take up is कूटस्थम् kūṭastham; kūṭastham means nirvikāram; free from all modifications. We have seen six modifications on the part of the physical body; do you remember; asthi, potentially existent; jāyatē, born; vardhatē, grows; vipariṇamatē, metamorphases; kṣiyatē, declines; vinaśyati, dies. These are the six-fold modifications caused by what; kāla tatvam; the time principle; So anything that exists within time; anything that influenced by time; with grow what; all the six-fold modification. The higher Krishna; Nirguṇa Krishna is kūṭasthaḥ;

it is free from all the six modifications; nirvikārah. In Sanskrit, kāla paricētha rahithaḥ; uninfluenced by time principle.

And this word is beautiful; the word kūṭasthaḥ has several meanings; one of the meanings is kūṭaḥ means the anvil used by a goldsmith; or an ironsmith; any smith. This anvil is used as a support; it steadily remains; and upon the anvil; this means smith keeps the hot metal and when it is hot; strikes it and shapes the metal; and when he is shaping the metal; that red hot metal undergoes change; whereas the anvil underneath, it supports all the changes; but itself remains changeless. And suppose the anvil itself is shaky, in some house, the palaki they use for pūja, and then you sit, you will be moving; You cannot do any job; therefore, if the metal should get shaped; the bottom one should remain changeless; a changeless substratum is required for all the changes to happen; relentless changes happening at the family level; physical level; body is getting in different shapes, going out of shape, sometimes getting into shape; not only the body undergoes violent changes; the mind also. so many changes and if all these changes are happening; there must be a changeless principle; which remains as the substratum; Not only allowing all the changes to happen; but also witnessing all the changes; The witness of the changes should not be changing.

Suppose I say that the morning class students are different from evening class; and evening class are different from morning class; what do you know; that the students change; but the teacher is avasthatraya sāṅkṣi; If morning class student teacher is different; and evening class teacher is different; I will never be able to say that the morning class students are different; evening class students are different. And therefore the knower of changes should not be subject to change. And therefore the witness consciousness principle is compared to kūṭaḥ; an anvil; upon which the body-metal and the mind-metal is hammered; hammered by what; the various experiences of life; every letter you received; every phone call you get; they are all hammering on your head; When all these hammerings takes place, your body changes; your mind changes; but there is the changeless one.

And therefore Nirguṇa Krishna is called the changeless substratum which remains like an anvil; kūṭavat tiṣṭathi is kūṭasthaḥ; that which remains changeless like an anthill.

And since this Krishna is changeless Nirvikaraḥ; ध्रुवम् dhruvam; dhruvam means eternal; kāla adīthaḥ; So thus, sarvathrāgam and acalam indicate dēśa athithaḥ; kūṭasthaḥ and dhruvam represent kāla athithaḥ. These four words put together means that Lord Krishna is dēśa kāla avadibhyam nirmuktaḥ; nityamuktaḥ. Narayanīyam of Bhattathiri, begins with this only; सान्द्रानन्दावबोधध्यात्मकमनुपमितं कालदेशावधिभ्यां निर्मुक्तं sāndrānandāvabōdhātmakamanupamitaḥ kāladēśāvadhībhīyāṁ nirmuktaḥ.

And the interesting aspect there is that all pervading Lord is in Guruvayūr; How do you understand to resolve the contradiction; How do you resolve the contradiction; by adding "also: the all pervading Guruvayūrappan is in Guruvayūr also. So kūṭastham acalam dhruvam. Such an Nirguṇa Brahma some people meditate as a part of jñāna yōga; as a part of sṛavana manana nidhidhasanam.

And naturally, as we hear this description we wonder how can we meditate upon such featureless Brahman. And therefore Krishna says: to come to this level of meditation; a person must have prepared qualified himself. So the next question is what are those qualifications. Krishna mentions in the next verse.

संनियम्येन्द्रियग्रामम् सर्वत्र समबुद्धयः ।
ते प्राप्नुवन्ति मामेव सर्वभूतहिते रताः ॥ १२.४ ॥ sanniyamyēndriyagrāmaṁ sarvatra samabuddhayaḥ |
tē prāpnuvanti māmēva sarvabhūtahitē ratāḥ || 12.4 ||

The preparatory qualifications for this Nirguṇa Īśvara dhyānam are presented the Upaniṣads very clearly; and normally they are enumerated as the four fold qualifications; sādanā catuṣṭaya sampathīḥ; which we have seen long long long before in Tatva Bodha. I am not going to the details; I will just enumerate them for my satisfaction; discrimination, dispassion; discipline and desire; Four Ds. OK; Do not say I have heard only 3D. It is a different Ds. Those who have not gone through Tatva Bodha or introduction to Vēdānta should go through them necessarily and those four-fold qualifications alone are presented in a brief manner in this particular verse.

So one qualification that Krishna emphasises is इन्द्रियग्रामम् संनियम्य indriyagrāmam saṁnīyamya; one has to master the extrovert sense organs; One has to master the extrovert sense organs; which are the all the time wandering. And if the sense organs are wandering out, it does not matter, they carry the mind also along with. And that is why when there is a பல்லி palli, a lizard in the middle of the class; class out; because the eyes see the lizard and the mind also goes behind;

And why should we master the extrovert sense organs. What is the reason; I will give you a clue here. Previously Krishna has described His higher nature; Nirguṇa Īśvaraḥ as unobjectifiable one; Unobjectifiable சொன்ன புரியறதே? Means not experiensable as an object.

And if Nirguṇa Īśvara is not objectifiable and still such an Īśvara exists; that Lord can exist only in one way. There is only one thing in the creation; which is unobjectifiable; Can you guess what it is; there is only thing which exists in an unobjectifiable manner; with your eyes; powerful eyes; you can see everything except one thing; what: the eyes cannot see themselves; a very very peculiar situation. So the unobjectifiable entity is the subject I alone; the unobservable principle is the observer alone. The unexperiensable is the experiencer alone and therefore the higher Krishna is non-different from Me; the observing consciousness. So nirguṇa dhyānam is atma dhyānam. Meditating upon nirguṇa Īśvara is meditating upon myself. Myself; not the body; because body is objectifiable; we are talking about the unobjectifiable thing; And therefore nirguṇa dhyānam is equal to ātma dhyānam; or as Dayananda Swami beautifully says; meditation upon the meditator; mediator-meditation; anyway I am not going to the details; when some other occasion comes, we can dwell on that topic.

And since I am not objectifying anything; my sense organs cannot afford to be extrovert; a extrovert sense organs will dwell upon an objectifiable thing; whereas I have to dwell upon what; I the subject; and therefore the sense organs should be the non-extrovert; if you remember the sixth chapter of the Gītā; we have talked about meditation, where Krishna said you withdraw all the sense organs and what should you do with the eyes; do you remember; He said; samprēkṣya nāsikāgraṃ svaṃ diśāścānavalōkayan; let your eyes be focused on the tip of your nose; not nose dhyānam; So the focus on the tip of the nose means let it not focus any external object; And therefore indriya nigrahaḥ is one qualification required;

Then the next qualification is indriyagrāma; grāmaḥ not village; grāma means samūham; the group; Village is called grama because it is a group of houses; any group is grāmam; So indriya grāmam means the group of five sense organs,

And next qualification is सर्वत्र समबुद्धयः sarvatra samabuddhayaḥ; So maintaining eqanimity under all circumstances; sama buddhiḥ means an equanimous mind; a balanced mind; a poised mind; which means a mind; which does not have strong rāga dvēṣa; if there is a strong attachment; the mind will run after that object; If there is a strong hatred also; the mind will run after; for cursing; so whenever there is strong rāga or dvēṣa; mind will not have balance; Such a mind cannot meditate; and therefore may you reduce the intensity of rāga dvēṣa; Rāga means attachment; dvēṣa means aversion; likes and dislikes; This is the second qualification;

Then the third qualification mentioned here is सर्वभूतहिते रताः sarvabhūtahite ratāḥ; being committed to the well being of all the creatures all the living beings; universal love; interest in the well being of the entire universe; that means not a narrow mind; but an expanded mind; that is why our prayers are so beautiful; sarvā bhavantu sukinaḥ; there the pronoun alone is used; sarvā manuṣyaḥ is not said; sarve haindava is not said; sarve Indians not said; sarvā means what all creatures;

śṛṇvaṃtu viśvā amṛtasya putra āyā dhāmānī divyānitastu tacamyōrāvṛṇīmahē gātum yajñāya gātum yājanapatayē daivī svastirastuna svastira mānuṣēbhya : urtham jigātu bhēṣajam śaṃ nō astu dvipadē śaṃ catuspatē om śāntī om śāntī om

All two legged creatures; all four-legged creatures; six legged creatures; 8 legged creatures; all of them; So therefore I should sensitise the mind to feel the pains of other people; It requires a mind with empathy; a mind which can feel the difficulties of others; and being interested in the well-being.

Now the question is: How can I be interested in the wellbeing of all the creatures; I am not be able to take care of wellbeing of my family; in that itself thousands of complaints; So if you interview the children, husband or wife; you will know; So where is the question sarvabhūtahite ratātvam; very simple, you can be sarvabhūtahite ratāḥ; very simple thing; daily at least chant one prayer; and chanting of the prayer will produce some amount of puṇyam; and that puṇyam I say; whatever the amount of puṇyam; I am distributing to the whole cosmos; If I am able to chant one prayer for one minute; and say that the puṇyam I am gifting to all the living beings; wherever whatever suffering is there; let there be some benefit. This prayer itself makes my mind sensitive; this is called daya; empathy, compassion. Without such a sensitive mind; one cannot come to brahma dhyānam. So it requires a highly refined mind; a narrow mind cannot appreciate brahman. therefore sarvabhūtahite ratāḥ means interested in the well being of all the living beings,

This is the qualification for what; jñāna yōgaḥ; or nirguṇa īśvaraḥ dhyānam; which is supposed to be the highest level of bhakthi; and those people who have these qualification; We will call this jñāna yōgyatha; So those people who have jñāna yōgyatha or dhyāna yōgyatha practice this nirguṇa īśvara dhyānam And what will happen to them; what is the benefit of such a meditation; ते माम् एव प्रप्नुवन्ति tē mām ēva prapnuvanti; such people will attain me alone; such people; means what; such meditators, nirguṇa īśvara dhyāna karthāraha; they attain Me alone; that means what; they attain mōkṣa; mām ēva; that ēva you have thrice; tē ēva mām prapnuvanti; they alone will attain mōkṣa; then, tē ēva mām prapnuvanti; they alone attain mōkṣa; no other inferior result; and te prapnuvanti eva; they will necessarily attain mōkṣa.

So you compare with the first answer and second answer; First He said saguṇa meditators are superior and here He says Nirguṇa meditators will attain Me. From this what is clear; Everyone requires both.

Continuing.

क्लेशः अधिकतरः kleśaḥ adhikatarah difficulties are more तेषाम् teṣām for those (devotees) अव्यक्तासक्तचेतसाम् avyaktāsaktacetasām whose minds are committed to (the pursuit of) the unmanifest (Brahman), हि hi for, गतिः gatiḥ avyaktā the goal of unmanifest (Brahman), अवाप्यते दुःखम् avāpyate duḥkham is attained with difficulty देहवद्भिः dēhavadbhiḥ by the people of bodily attachment.

5. Difficulties are more for those people whose minds are committed to (the pursuit of) the unmanifest (Brahman), for the goal of unmanifest (Brahman) is attained with difficulty by the people of bodily attachment.

So in this verse, Krishna openly admits that nirguṇa dhyānam is extremely difficult; Which indirectly means jñāna yōga is extremely difficult; because nirguṇa dhyānam is part of jñāna yōga only; Jñāna yōga consists of three disciplines; sravanam; mananam and nidhidhyāsanam; And nidhidhyāsanam is called nirguṇa dhyānam;

And therefore Krishna says: क्लेशः अधिकतरः kleśaḥ adhikatarah; difficulties abound; obstacles are innumerable;

for whom; अव्यक्तासक्तचेतसाम् avyaktāsaktacetasām; for those people who are committed to the formless God; avyaktam we have seen before; indriya agō caram; not perceptible; the invisible formless principle; asaktha means committed; cetasa means mind; for those people who are committed to nirguṇa īśvara dhyānam; difficulties are very intense; They are almost insurmountable; and Kathōpaniṣad even uses the word क्षुरस्य धारा निशिता दुरत्यया दुर्गं पथस्तत्कवयो वदन्ति kṣurasya dhārā niśitā duratyayā durgam pathastatkavayō vadanti. It is like walking on a razor's edge; kṣurasya dhārā. Krishna says jñāna yōga is difficult; what is the reason;

because अव्यक्ता गतिः हि दुःखम् avyaktā gatiḥ hi duḥkham; so avyaktā gatiḥ hi, the destination of the formless one; gatiḥ hi means the destination of avayatha the formless is indeed duḥkham; duḥkham means difficult to reach.

So nirguṇa dhyānam is extremely difficult to practice for whom; देहवद्भिः dehavadbhiḥ; for the ordinary people; normal people for the majority;

And what is the common obstacle for all the people; for the majority; Krishna says the common obstacle is dēha abhimānāḥ; The biggest and commonest obstacle to vēdānta is strong attachment to one own's physical body which makes the mind grossest mind; because we are identified with our grossest personality; To remember yesterday's class; grossest annamaya kōśa abhimānāḥ; he does not have even time to think of improving the mind, because where is the time of think of improving the mind, when I am all the time busy improving the body; And therefore I am obsessed with the body; I am obsessed with the protection of the body;

therefore I am obsessed with the procurement for food, clothing and shelter and I am obsessed with the procurement of these three after retirement; that also has been seen; there will be no income; and the inflation; diseases comes; who will pay for the medical bill; are the children reliable; seeing them; it is not; they may be reliable; but what type of daughter in law will come I do not know;

Therefore all the time worried about my physical security; and such a mind cannot think of anything beyond the physical body; and once I am attached to the physical body; through the physical body, I will be attached to the people around; directly proportional to the physical attachment is: attachment to various relations because every relation is through the body.

And therefore I have a very strong individuality; limiting me; localising me; and therefore such a person cannot imagine the unlocalised formless; it cannot transform itself; transform is transcending the form is transformation; And therefore Krishna says: stronger the bodily attachment; more difficult is jñāna yōgaḥ; the details in the next class.

sadāśiva samārambhāṁ śaṅkarācāryamadhyamām

Om

I had pointed out that in the 12th chapter of the Gītā, Lord Krishna is presenting Bhakthi yōga in five levels. And the fifth and the final level of bhakthi yōga is nothing but jñāna yōga itself. So we should remember jñāna yōga is the highest and the final level of bhakthi yōga. And here the Lord that is worshipped by me through this level of bhakthi is not the saṅguṇa īśvaraḥ; but īśvaraḥ in his original nature; which is nirguṇam Brahma. So in jñāna yōga; I am worshipping Nirguṇa īśvaraḥ. And the worship of nirguṇa īśvaraḥ is also a unique worship. It is not a physical worship of āsanam samarpayāmi; argyam samarpayāmi, pādyam samarpayāmi, etc. because for nirguṇam Brahma where is the question of argyam, pādyam, etc. Argyam means water for washing the hands; Pādyam means water for washing the feet; āchamanīyam water for washing the mouth. And nirguṇa īśvaraḥ does not have hands, does not have feet; does not have the mouth; where is the question of argya, pādya āchamanīyādi.

And therefore worship is in the form of the very steady about nirguṇam Brahma; the very enquiry is a form of worship; the enquiry consisting of śravaṇa, mananam and nidhidhyāsanam; systematic study, gaining the knowledge; converting it into conviction, and assimilating this wisdom; that alone is the pūja and what I am offering is, offering my ignorance into the fire of knowledge; and therefore jñāna yōga itself is the form of worship I have to practice.

And this jñāna yōga form of worship which is the fifth and final stage of bhakthi yōga is presented by the Lord in three verses; verse No.3, 4 and 5. It is jñāna yōga form of bhakthi yōga; And the word that Lord Krishna is using here is akṣarōpasana. For jñāna yōga the technical word is akṣarōpasana; akṣaram means nirguṇam Brahma; and upāsanam means śravaṇa manana nidhidhyāsanam. akṣarōpasanam is nirguṇa Brahma viṣaya śravaṇa manana nidhidhyāsanāni. And the jñāna yōgis are called akṣara upāsakās.

And having talked about the akṣara upāsana or nirguṇa Brahma vicāra, Lord Krishna openly admits and confesses that jñāna yōga is extremely difficult;

क्लेशोऽधिकतरस्तेषाम् अव्यक्तासक्तचेतसाम् ।

अव्यक्ता हि गतिर्दुःखं देहवद्भिरवाप्यते ॥ १२.५ ॥

klēśō'dhikatarastēṣām avyaktāsaktacētasām |

avyaktā hi gatirduḥkhaṃ dēhavadbhiravāpyatē || 12.5 ||

And I said in the last class, the Upaniṣad itself compares jñāna yōga to walking on a razor's edge. क्षुरस्य धारा निशिता दुरत्यया दुर्गं पथस्तत्कवयो वदन्ति kṣurasya dhārā niśitā duratyayā durgam pathastatkavayō vadanti. And why jñāna yōga is difficult is the reason that the Lord I want here to worship is not available for objectification. And the Lord is not available for mental conception. It is imperceptible, unconceivable. And how can I worship or even study. Because my intellect is used to objectification and therefore an objectifying instrument will find it difficult to conceive of an unobjectifiable Brahman. And it can be ultimately received only in one form; and what is that form; that Brahman the nirguṇa vastu is not objectifiable; not because it is non-existent; but because it is in the form of myself; Sōham; That is called sōham dhyānam; saḥ means what. That nirguṇam Brahman; aham means I am; sō ham; very carefully you should write; if you are writing in Tamil; you may later read as சொகம். śokam; it is not śokam; do not understand it is śokam; but sōham; but as aham saḥ; and that alone got shortened and known as hamsa mantra hamsa gayathri is the shortened version of aham saḥ. Anyway, that is a different thing.

So the first problem is what; it is unobjectifiable. And the second problem we face is it requires lot of qualifications like viveka; vairāgyam; śamāthi śatka sampathi, mumukṣatvam, etc. and therefore also it appears to be difficult; and therefore Krishna says क्लेशः अधिकतरः kleśaḥ adhikatarah. Up to this we saw in the last class.

Now the question is: If jñāna yōga is extremely difficult; what am I supposed to do; because I am a spiritual seeker; and I am interested in mōkṣa; but I am not able to follow jñāna yōga; what should I do? Here alone we should be extremely careful; here alone people get into problems; majority of people give an answer which is totally non-vēdic. What is the answer generally given. If jñāna yōga is difficult; leave it. Then what do you do; try alternative paths; there is karma yōga; there is bhakthi yōga; there is rāja yōga; there is nāda yōga; music season is now; there is nāda yōga; there is kundālīni yōga; So many yōgas are there; Therefore the general answer given is since jñāna yōga is difficult for majority; it is better to follow a simpler yōga. And generally they conclude bhakthi yōga is simpler yōga; because you have to shed tears; in which we are experts!

So this is missing the sampradāya. If a person gives such an answer; it means one has deviated from the sampradāya; Sampradāya will never give such an answer. Sampradāya means what; traditional teaching. What is wrong with this answer? You should understand that we have already established through the vēdās and the upaniṣads that for mōkṣa; several mārgās are not there; तमेवम् विध्वान् अमृत इह भवति; नान्य पन्था अयनाय विद्यते tamēvam vidhvān amṛta iha bhavati; nānya panthā ayanāya vidyatē.

Vēdās clearly says only jñānam will lead a person to mōkṣa; other than jñānam, alternative mārgās are not there. Because if ignorance is the problem, knowledge is the only solution; If darkness is the problem; bringing light is the only solution. Imagine the room is dark and you want to remove darkness from the room. How many margas are there to remove darkness; one person says I do not have light at all and please bring the broomstick and I will sweep away darkness. Another person says I will do śirasāsanam in the room; Another person says I will chant viṣṇu sahasṛanama. Remember, viṣṇu sahasṛanama is good but it cannot remove darkness; Yōgāsana is very good; but it cannot remove darkness; sweeping the floor is wonderful; but it cannot remove darkness.

विद्याविद्यां निहन्त्येव तेजस्तिमिरसङ्घवत् ॥ ३॥

avirōdhitayā karma nāvidyāṁ vinivartayēt |

vidyāvidyāṁ nihantyaēva tējastimirasaṅghavat || 3||

Śankarācārya tells very clearly in his Ātma Bōdha; that darkness can go only by light; ignorance can go only by knowledge. Samsāra is because of ignorance; therefore mōkṣa can be only through knowledge. And if I firmly assert that knowledge is the only means, you should not conclude I am a fanatic; because when I have to ascertain a fact, you cannot call me a fanatic. That means what if I should not be a fanatic, I should admit alternative methods for removing darkness. Even if call me a fanatic, I would like to be a fanatic, as Dayananda Swami says; I say light alone removes darkness; if you call me a fanatic; better I will be a fanatic; rather than a lunatic. So you call me by whatever name; I have to tell ignorance goes by knowledge alone. And the vēdās repeatedly ascertain jñānāt ēva thu kaivalyam. And therefore to say that jñānam is difficult and therefore I will take alternative method, is born out of confusion regarding spirituality.

And again we should remember darkness or ignorance goes only by knowledge; and knowledge comes only by enquiry or study. Any knowledge will come only by studying the relevant literature. If I want physics knowledge, I have no other method other than studying the physics literature; How many methods are there; I have no choice. If there are alternative methods of getting knowledge; Like meditation; you go on saying what is physics; what is physics; $a + b^2$ is equal to what. You want to know; therefore you mediate. $a + b$ wholesquare, $a + b$ wholesquare. What do you get. You cannot get the knowledge by simply doing pādapūja to mathematics teacher; by chanting some mantras; by going to some temples; knowledge requires the relevant study. Any knowledge requires consistent and systematic study. That should be extended this knowledge also. That also requires Athātho Brahma Jijñāsa. Vyāsācārya begins with this Sūtra; Jijñāsa means systematic study of the relevant literature. I want to know physics and I read star dust; Not only you should study; I should study the appropriate literature.

And this systematic study is called jñāna yōgaḥ. Therefore jñāna yōga alone gives jñānam; and jñānam alone removes ignorance and removal of ignorance alone gives mōkṣa. This foundation we should very carefully have. This is the traditional teaching. To study any commentary of Śankarācārya on any book, these fundamentals he will make clear and if this is not clear; we will do lot of spiritual sādhanās without knowing what exactly I am in for.

And if there is alternative method of getting knowledge; like touching the head; spaṛśa deekṣa; dṛiṣṭi dīkṣa; or touching on the back; if by doing such any such thing, knowledge can be given, Krishna would have used that shortcut in the battle ground. Isn't it?. Because battle ground is the most inconvenient place for teaching. Therefore Krishna must have handed over the knowledge by any other simpler method. The very fact that Krishna himself did not adopt indicates there are no alternative methods. Go through systematic study; gain knowledge and be free.

This is jñāna yōga; So therefore never say jñāna yōga is difficult and therefore I will take to alternative method. Not possible. Then what should I do. Because Krishna himself says jñāna yōga is difficult; and you say I have necessarily go through jñāna yōga; what should I do; the answer is very simple. If jñāna yōga is difficult; make jñāna yōga easy;

If jñāna yōga is difficult; make jñāna yōga easy. So what is the next question? How to make jñāna yōga easy. Very simple. You prepare yourselves for jñāna yōga; you qualify yourselves for jñāna yōga; by getting jñāna yōgyatha prāpthiḥ; And once I am qualified; jñāna yōga is Krishna tells that:

rājavidyā rājaguhyam pavitramidamuttamam |
pratyakṣāvagamaṃ dharmyaṃ susukhaṃ kartumavyayam || 9.2 ||

Lord himself says jñāna yōga is the easiest; provided you have prepared yourselves. In fact this is not with regard to jñāna yōga only; anything is difficult only if you are not prepared and anything is easy, if you have prepared and practised. Have you gone to a Kerala Teashop and you see him how he mixes the tea. You will find the davara and glass, it will just expand and contract; and you will the tea also expands and contracts; And it is not even vertical; it is almost horizontal; All the law of gravitation seems to have failed in his case. It is wonderful sight to see; you better see that, if you have not seen; And he does not even look at the tea. He is talking politics to the person there and then tuk one sound and he keeps the glass with all the froth; it will be there in front. And because he is doing this effortless, you try. At the end only davara only; there will be no tea. So காப்பி ஆத்தறதும் கஷ்டம்தான்; even cooling the coffee is also difficult.

Therefore jñāna yōga is easy or difficult; we never answer; we ask the question for whom? For the unprepared it is difficult; for the prepared it is easy; And therefore prepare; come to jñāna yōga; attain jñānam and be free. This is the traditional answer.

Then what is the next question. How to prepare myself for jñāna yōga; And that preparation alone Lord Krishna himself presents in the following slōkās; Jñāna yōga is the fifth and final step; If you find the fifth step very difficult; go to the fourth; if you find fourth is difficult to reach, go to the third; if third is difficult, go to the second; if second is difficult, go to the first; if first is difficult; I do not want to go to hell and all. If the first is difficult, better luck, next birth. So we have a beautiful flight of stairs. Saturday class also a staircase of five steps; Sunday class also a staircase of five steps.

Now Krishna wants to come down from the fifth level to the fourth level, which is given in the next three verses. We will read. Verse No.6.

ये तु सर्वाणि कर्माणि मयि संन्यस्य मत्पराः । अनन्येनैव योगेन मां ध्यायन्त उपासते ॥ १२.६ ॥
yē tu sarvāṇi karmāṇi mayi sannasya matparaḥ |

tēṣāmahaṃ samuddhartā mṛtyusaṃsārasāgarāt |
bhavāmi na cirāt pārtha mayyāvēśitacētasām || 12.7 ||

6 & 7. Keeping Me as the primary goal and dedicating all actions unto Me, some devotees worship, meditating upon Me with undivided attention. For them, whose minds are set on me, I shall soon become the saviour from the ocean of samsāra which is beset with death, Oh Arjuna!

So in verse No. 6, 7 and 8, Lord Krishna is coming one step lower; from the 5th step to the 4th step. And what is that? If Nirguṇa Īśvaraḥ jñānam is difficult for you; come down to saguṇa Īśvaraḥ upāsana. Come down to saguṇa Īśvaraḥ upāsana. Meditation upon Īśvaraḥ with attributes. And there also I divided saguṇa Īśvaraḥ into two types, I do not know whether you remember; one saṅuṅa īśvaraḥ is the Lord as the entire universe called the Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; the Virāt īśvaraḥ described in the eleventh chapter, which we get in the Viśṅu sahasraṅama dhyāna slōkā;

भूः पादौ यस्य नाभिर्वियदसुरनिलश्चन्द्र सूर्यो च नेत्रे कर्णावाशाः शिरो द्यौर्मुखमपि दहनो यस्य वास्तेयमब्धिः ।
अन्तःस्थं यस्य विश्वं सुरनरखगगोभोगिगन्धर्वदैत्यैः चित्रं रंरम्यते तं त्रिभुवन वपुषं विष्णुमीशं नमामि ॥ २ ॥ bhūḥ pādau yasya nābhirviyadasuranilaścandra sūryau ca nētrē karṇāvāśāḥ śirō dyaurmukhamapi dahanō yasya vāstēyamabdhīḥ | antaḥsthaṁ yasya viśvaṁ suranarakhagagōbhōgigandharvadaityaiḥ
citraṁ raṁramyatē taṁ tribhuvana vapuṣaṁ viṣṅumiśaṁ namāmi || 2 ||

The Lord whose body consists of all the three lōkā; Viśṅum īsam namāmi; which is the Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; May you practice Viśva rūpa dhyānam. And not only you practice the Viśva rūpa dhyānam; even when you are in the worldly transactions; dedicate all your actions to the Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ. जगत ईशदि, युक्त सेवनम्, अष्टमूर्ति द्क्, देव पूजनम् jagata īśadi, yukta sēvanam, aṣṭamūrthi dḥk, dēva pūjanam

And therefore Krishna tells her; ये तु yē tu; there are some other seekers, who are in the fourth rung of the ladder; and what do they do; सर्वाणि कर्माणि मयि संन्यस्य sarvāṇi karmāṇi mayi sannyasya. So they dedicate all the actions at my feet; and where are the feet of the Lord; सर्वत्र पाणि पादम् तत्; सर्वतो शिशिरो मुखं sarvatra pāṇi pādām tat; sarvatō śīśirō mukhaṁ. Lord's feet are everywhere. So when I am doing an action; this action goes to the world and it is acted upon by the laws of the universe and all these are done by whom; the Lord whose hands are nothing but the laws of karma. Therefore when I say, the laws of karma shape the result; for me the devotee; the laws of karma are the hands of the Lord. Every law is the hands of the lord; so Lord is shaping the result through his hands in the form of the law of karma. And therefore I dedicate to the laws of karma; to the hands of the lord; sarvāṇi karmāṇi mayi sannyasya; here the word sanyas is not renouncing. Normally the word sanyāsa means renunciation; In this context, sanyāsa means dedicating; offering.

And now the question is how can I offer the karma to the Lord. Imagine I am going to sweep or I going to write a letter; or going to do a project in the computer. How am I going to dedicate? So what do you mean by dedication? Dedication is nothing but a particular attitude; and what is the attitude; until I complete my action, I have got a control over the action; karmaṅyēvādhikārastē; and once I have completed the action; the action has become part of this universe. And universe is none other than God, because Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; and this action will be reshaped in this universe by the Lord, and according to the law of karma, an appropriate and just result is going to come; and I am mentally prepared to accept any consequence according to the law, not fancies of the lord; but the result is going to be perfectly according to the laws of karma. That means I am going to get what I legitimately deserve. And it is given to me by whom; the lord himself; because the world is not a world for me; world is for me Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ. And therefore I mentally think; my action is going to the Lord; and Lord is giving to give me the karma phalam and whatever be the consequence. I will accept without murmuring; without grumbling; without cursing; without hesitating; I will receive. This inner receptivity is called dedication. This inner receptivity with regard to what; the consequences of any action I do. And that is called here īśvaraḥ arpaṇa bhāvana; so मयि संन्यस्य mayi sannyasya.

And then मत्पराः matparāḥ; and when you are practising this īśvaraḥ arpaṇam you must always remember in the mind, that my aim is to qualify myself for the fifth step. I have come to the fourth step; only for qualifying myself for the fifth step; and therefore I should remember this fact; matparāḥ; All the time committed to the goal of nirguṇa īśvaraḥ, All the time committed to the goal of nirguṇa īśvaraḥ jñānam; which is the ultimate reality;

And अनन्येन एव योगेन ananyena eva yogena; and taking to a spiritual life, in which he never gets distracted from the goal; because initially we might be very clear about the goal; but as we get into the worldly activities; the responsibilities increase; the family members increase; the primary family; the secondary family; relations' relations and we are involved in so many activities; the chances are we forget for what purpose we have come. So this forgetfulness of the goal is possible; distraction is possible and therefore Krishna wants this Viśva rūpa upāsaka constantly reminds my aim is qualifying myself for this knowledge. And that is called ananya yōgaḥ; unswerving commitment to the spiritual path. I have given you the example in the 8th chapter; When we go to some place in a train; maybe Delhi and Calcutta; in between there are so many intermediary station; we may get down; we may buy newspapers; we may buy eatables; we may do all transactions; but in and through all the transactions you are aware that this is not the destination but this is an intermediary stop; the vadai may be very tasty; but if you get in the vadai; the train may go; enjoy the vadai; without forgetting that you are in the midst of a bigger journey. And that is called ananya yōgaḥ;

And with that माम् ध्यान्तः उपासते mām dhyāntaḥ upāsate; so they worship me through this meditation; so Viśva rūpa dhyānēna tē mām pujayanthi; And that is what all the prayers:

यत् यत् कर्म करोमि तत् तत् अखिलम् शंभो तवाराधनम् yat yat karma karomi tat tat akhilam śaṁbhō tavārādhanam;

कायेन वाचा मनसेन्द्रियैर्वा, बुद्ध्यात्मना वा, प्रकृतेर् स्वभावात्, करोमि यत् यत् सकलम् परस्मै, नारायणायेति समर्पयामि kāyēna vācā manasēndriyairvā, buddhyātmanā vā, prakṛtēṛ svabhāvāt, karōmi yat yat sakalam parasmai, nārāyaṇāyēti samarpayāmi .

All these are inbuilt in our culture, but the problem is we learn these slōkās mechanically; and kada pada chant and run to office; Or in front of the TV; one of the place; So these are in our culture.

Then what will happen to them. That is said in the next verse.

तेषामहं समुद्धर्ता मृत्युसंसारसागरात् । भवामि निचिरात्पार्थ मय्यावेशितचेतसाम् ॥ १२.७ ॥ tēṣāmahaṁ samuddhartā mṛtyusaṁsārasāgarāt |
bhavāmi na cirāt pārtha mayyāvēśitacētasām || 12.7 ||

So Krishna says Hey Arjuna, these Viśva rūpa upāsakās are special to me; because their main goal is discovering my true nature and since they are committed to My pursuit, I will give them special attention;

ananyāścintayantō mām yē janāḥ paryupāsātē |
tēṣāṁ nityābhiyuktānāṁ yōgakṣēmaṁ vahāmyaham || 9.22 ||

and therefore they are special people; मयि आवेष्टितचेतसाम् mayi āvēṣitacetasām; so they look upon me not as a means for materialistic ends; they look upon Me as an end in itself. Īśvarē nathu sādhanā buddhi; paranthu, Īśvare sadhya buddhihi; two types of devotion; in sakāma bhakthi God is means, materialistic things are the end. In nishkāma bhakthi God is the means, God is the end also; and those people were called in the seventh chapter, jijñāsu bhakthā; ananya bhakthā; and they are called here mayi āvēṣitacetasām.

And what will I do them; तेषाम् अहं समुद्धर्ता teṣām ahaṃ samudhdartā; I will rescue them; I will save them; I will function as their saviour. We also have got saviour; so we need not some other place; we have got our own saviour; so samudhdartā; I will be their saviour;

saviour from what; mruthya samsāra sagarath; from the ocean of samsāra. which has got several problems and what is the most or the worst problem of samsāra, mṛuthuḥ; mṛuthuḥ means maraṇam; so maraṇam is the most terrible thing; because everything near and dear to me I have to do; and that is why any fear is called mortal fear; mortality is the greatest fear. And therefore mruthyu samsāra means a samsāra which has the problem of mortality. And from that I will rescue them.

And how long it will take; Krishna does not want to commit; because it all depends upon the level of the student and therefore he says: na chiraat; before long I will rescue those people who are Viśva rūpa upāsakās; who are in the fourth rung of bhakthi yōga;

And how will the Lord rescue them; will the Lord give mōkṣa straight away from the fourth rung of the ladder. Remember that is not possible; I have told you that mōkṣa requires jñānam; and jñānam requires jñāna yōgyatha; and therefore when Bhagavān says I will rescue them; what Bhagavān means is I will make them fit for the fifth rung of ladder; I will necessary conditions to go through jñāna yōga, If they require the qualifications, I will supply; And if they require Guru; no problem; I have got plenty of Gurus; I will send them; and if no Guru is available; what, I myself will become the Guru; Hey Arjuna, as I have become Guru to you; and therefore नचिराद् हे पार्थः अहं समुद्धर्ता भवामि nacirād hē pārtha ahaṃ samudhdartā bhavāmi; therefore forget jñāna yōga for the time being; commit yourselves to Viśva rūpa upāsana; so that Krishna summaries in the next verse. No.8.

मय्येव मन आधत्स्व मयि बुद्धिं निवेशय ।

निवसिष्यसि मय्येव अत ऊर्ध्वं न संशयः ॥ १२.८ ॥

mayyēva mana ādhatsva mayi buddhiṃ nivēśaya |

nivasiṣyasi mayyēva ata ūrdhvaṃ na saṃśayaḥ || 12.8 ||

आधत्स्व मनः ādhatsva manah Fix the mind, मयि एव mayi eva on Me alone
निवेशय बुद्धिम् niveśaya buddhim fix the intellect मयि mayi on Me alone अतः ऊर्ध्वम्- ataḥ ūrdhvam thereafter निवसिष्यसि nivasiṣyasi you will dwell मयि एव
mayi eva in Me alone न संशयः na saṃśayaḥ there is no doubt.

8. Fix the mind on Me alone. Fix the intellect on Me alone. There, after you will dwell in Me alone. There is no doubt.

So Krishna concludes that second or the fourth rung of the ladder discussion; Therefore Arjuna forget jñāna yōga for the time being; concentrate on saṅgūṇa Viśva rūpa upāśana. Therefore मयि mayi means what Viśva rūpa Īśvarē; in Me the Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; you need not think of the nirguṇa Me; but think of Viśva rūpa Me. आधत्स्व मनः ādhatsva manah; fix your emotional mind in Me; that means all your emotional needs. May you derive from the Lord himself; because Lord being the totality; whatever be your emotional needs; it is an inexhaustible, ups, uninterrupted power supply; Bhagavān can give; if you ask any local people, they may give; they may not; for sometime, they will say I love you; then they will say I allow you; all unpredictable; they may give me security; they may not; So therefore Krishna says; do not seek anything from the world or people; You use the world for only giving; whether it is security or love or care or health; you use the world and people for the rehearsal of giving; and whatever be your requirement; take from Me the Lord.

And the advantage is if it is any person, that person has to be around me; and older I become the more I want the children to be around; and they are in some other country; and they cannot come whenever you want; can anyone come from America as you wish; So I feel more and more insecure; and even if when they are around; I do not want them to go to the office; I want them near the bed all the time; How is it possible; everybody has got his own, her own duties; if it is Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; he is all the time with me; I never miss the Lord; and therefore Krishna says emotionally learn to depend on Me, the Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ.

And not only that; मयि बुद्धिम् निवेशय mayi buddhim niveśaya; and your intellect also must be convinced of the Viśva rūpa nature of God; blindly saying Lord Viśva rūpa, Lord Viśva rūpa is not enough; after all we are rational being; we are thinking being; and therefore intellect will always question. How can I look upon the whole universe as Īśvaraḥ? So when intellect raises that question; you should have a convincing answer; and that is why we say scriptural study is important; without scriptures study when I have got devotion to the Lord; it is always a shaky devotion; it can always be threatened. But when the devotion is based on understanding; out of conviction it can never be shaken. And how to get that conviction; go back to the teaching; Bhagavān has given in the 7th chapter, in the 9th chapter, in the 10th and 11th.

And what was the teaching given; there the Lord was defined as jagat kāraṇam; both the nimitha and upādāna kāraṇam; I do not want to get into that; if I do that I will be going back to the seventh chapter; therefore I am resisting temptation to get lost. So Bhagavān is kāraṇam; and the whole universe is kāryam; an effect; and we know that a product is non-different from the cause. So if Īśvaraḥ is kāraṇam; and jagat is kāryam; kārya rūpam jagat, kāraṇa rūpathvat Īśvaraḥ, bhinnam bhavithum na arhathi. No effect can be separate from the cause. So when I am handling the ornaments, I am handling the cause, the gold alone. When I am handling the furniture, I am handling the cause the wood alone. When I am handling the pots, I am handling the cause, clay alone. When I am handling the world, I am handling the cause, Īśvaraḥ alone; Therefore ākāśa is Īśvaraḥ; vāyu is Īśvaraḥ; agni is Īśvaraḥ; sarvam Īśvaraḥ mayam jagat. This is called conviction born out of the scriptural study. And therefore Krishna says mayi buddhim niveśaya; may your intellect also be convinced of what you are doing.

And if you are not convinced; continue the study; and still you are not convinced; continue the study; still you are not convinced; continue the study; how long; until you are convinced. And if you are not able to be convinced in this janma; continue in the next janma. Swamiji you yourselves will come to teach? you cannot ask; in fact, you require a better teacher! The very fact that you are still not convinced means that I am inefficient teacher. So therefore better look for a better teacher; OK; It is all joke; I know that you are all understanding; mayi buddhim niveśaya.

And if you do that; निवसिष्यसि मय्येव nivasiṣyasi mayyēva; the glory of Viśva rūpa bhakthi is I am never away from the Lord; there is no question of separation; and viraha gītham; and again joining back; worrying that the Lord will run away from me and He will go to another devotee; That is what I cannot stand; even if He leaves me it is OK; but how can He go to someone else. கதறி மனம் உருகி நான் அழைக்கவோ; இதர மாதருடன் நீ ரமிக்கவோ: இது தகுமோ; இது மூறயொ? இது தர்மம் தானோ? katarī maṇam uruki nāṇ aḷaikkavo; itara mātaruṭaṇ nī ramikkavo: itu takumo; itu mūrāyo? itu tarmam tāṇo?

What is all these; you limit the Lord; when the Lord is Viśva rūpa, Lord is simultaneously with everyone; and therefore nivasīsyasi mayi eva; you will remain in Me alone all the time; Just as the wave is never away from the ocean.

Adhaha urdhvam; after this practice; which practice, Viśva rūpa upāsana practice, you will never miss me;

न संशयः na saṁśayaḥ; there is no doubt at al. Therefore Arjuna come to the fourth rung of the ladder; then go to the fifth and be free.

But suppose you see, Viśva rūpa upāsana is also difficult; because it requires an expanded mind; I have to expand my mind to accommodate the whole universe as Īśvaraḥ; which means I should never have rāga or dvēṣā; I should be willing to accept every part of creation as divine. Therefore I should not complain against anything; it is extremely difficult; we will say that I am ready to look upon everyone as God, except a few people, a list of which is there Swamiji; everyone has a list; except them everyone is God; if everybody has a except-list; God will not have anything left.

Therefore Viśva rūpa upāsana itself may be difficult; then what to do; Krishna says; no worry; you come to the third rung of the ladder; how; verse No.9

अभ्यासयोगेन ततः मामिच्छाप्तुं धनञ्जय ॥ १२.९ ॥

atha cittam samādhātuṃ na śaknoṣi mayi sthiram |

abhyāsayōgēna tatō māmicchā"ptuṃ dhanañjaya || 12.9 ||

अथ atha If न शक्नोषि na śaknoṣi you are not able, समाधातुं चित्तम् samādhātuṃ cittam fix the mind, स्थिरम् sthiram firmly मयि mayi on Me ततः tataḥ then इच्छ आप्तुं माम् iccha āptuṃ mām seek to attain me, अभ्यासयोगेन abhyāsayōgena by means of abhyasa yōga (yōga of constant practice) धनञ्जय dhanañjaya Oh Arjuna

9. If you are not able to fix the mind firmly on Me, then seek to attain Me by means of abyasayōga, Oh Arjuna!

अथ atha; on the other hand, if you find yourselves unfit for the fourth rung of the ladder also; that means मयि चित्तं समाधातुं न शक्नोषि mayi cittam samādhātum na śaknōṣi; mayi means what; in Me, the Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; cittam samādhātum, upāsanam kartum; to practice the meditation; स्थिरम् sthiram; steadily; consistently; unswervingly; na śaknōṣi; if you are not able to do that. if Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ is not appealing to you, then Krishna says do not bother; come down to the third rung of the ladder; which is ēka rūpa īśvaraḥ upāsana. Instead of taking the totality; come to any particular personal form of God; Which is called iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana; and we have got so many personal forms for the Lord. which is unique to Hinduism; In no other religion, they have such a variety of form; we have got the biggest departmental store of Gods; and we have got Rama, we have got Krishna, we have got Devi; we have got Vinayakā; we have Venkatalapathy; we have got Ayyappa; and they do not mind; if you add a few more; annai velankanni; keep that all also; After all are stepping stone; none of them is the ultimate; therefore for a stepping stone; any form is perfectly OK; and even in one form itself Krishna itself we have got Gopi Krishna; Radha Krishna, Fruit Krishna, Kutti Krishna; All varieties are there; choose any particular form and even among varieties of relationships, any particular relationship you want, you can strike; vātsalya bhakthi; you want to show affection to the Lord as a baby; Like Yaśodhā etc. and you want to have a love; as a friend; as Arjuna, Uddava etc. like father, any particular relationship you want; you can take to that.

And how to develop iṣṭa dēvathā bhakthi; iṣṭa dēvathā bhakti is developed only through the purāṇa śravaṇa; because in the purāṇam, the personal God comes alive. And the personal Gods are involved in varieties of activities. They call it īśvaraḥ leela; and as you dwell upon the activities; even a fictitious character becomes more and more real. This is psychology; any fictitious character you go on dwelling; it becomes more real. And therefore if you want to make Śiva alone, read Śiva purāṇam. If you want to make dēvi alive; read dēvi bhāgavatham; You need not read all the paurāṇikās or only doing that; and therefore develop iṣṭa dēvathā bhakthi and practice iṣṭa dēvathā upāsanam, which is ēka rūpa saḡuṇa īśvaraḥ; and Krishna calls it abhyasa yōgaḥ. Om

By way of answering Arjuna's question, Lord Krishna is presenting the important teaching of bhakthi yōga and as I said in the last few classes, bhakthi yōga is not a particular sādānā, but it is the name of the entire range of sādānās everyone has to necessarily go through. And these range of sādānās Lord Krishna is presenting in five levels, and by going through all these five levels of bhakthi yōga; a person gets liberation or mōkṣa. And Krishna is presenting all the five levels of bhakthi yōga in this chapter and therefore this is a very important chapter and this portion is also very important. And while dealing with the five steps of bhakthi yōga, Lord Krishna starts with the highest step in the beginning and gradually He is coming down to the lower steps. So instead of going from first, second, third stages, He starts with the fifth and final step and if a person is not ready for the fifth, let him come down to the fourth; if that is also not possible, the third, or second and the first step. And the fifth and final step which is the proximate step to liberation was presented as jñāna yōga sādānā, consisting of vēdānta ṣṛavaṇa manana nidhidhyāsanam; which is otherwise called here as akṣara upāsana. Akṣara upāsana is the technical word in the 12th chapter, which means jñāna yōga, which means nirguṇa brahma ṣṛavaṇa manana nidhidhyāsanam; which was dealt with in verses 3, 4 and 5 and therefore we come to know that jñāna yōga is the name of the bhakthi yōga itself at the highest level. And this alone Śaṅkarācārya also mentions in the Vivekachūdamāṇi;

स्वस्वरूपानुसन्धानं भक्तिरित्यभिधीयते ||३१||

mōkṣakāraṇasāmagryāṁ bhaktirēva garīyasī |

svasvarūpānusandhānaṁ bhaktirityabhidhiyātē ||31||

Bhakthi is the final stage of liberation; and in the final stage; bhakthi is defined as self-enquiry; Brahman enquiry; nirguṇa īśvaraḥ vichāraḥ. And Krishna himself admitted that this jñāna yōga form of bhakthi yōga is not easy for the majority and they need not feel bad about it; let them try the fourth step and the fourth level of bhakthi yōga was discussed in verse No.6, 7 and 8th.

And this fourth level of bhakthi yōga consists of saguṇa īśvaraḥ upāsana because nirguṇa īśvaraḥ jñānam is not easy for an unprepared mind. And therefore let that person come down to saguṇa īśvaraḥ upāsana and that saguṇa īśvaraḥ also is presented as Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; Lord as the very universe itself; is aṣṭamūrthi īśvaraḥ;

भूरम्भांस्यनलो/निलो/म्बर महर्नाथो हिमांशुः पुमान्
इत्याभाति चराचरात्मकमिदं यस्यैव मूर्त्यष्टकम् ॥ ९ ॥

bhūrambhāmsyanalō:'nilō:'mbara maharnāthō himāmsuḥ pumān ityābhāti carācarātmakamidaṁ yasyaiva mūrtyaṣṭakam || 9 ||

aṣṭamūrthi īśvaraḥ is Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; eight faced īśvaraḥ; Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ has got eight factors. What are the eight factors; the five elements are the pañca mūrthi; bhū amba anala anilaḥ; ambaram; the pañca bhūthas are the five mūrthies of the Lord. Then aharnātaḥ himāmsuḥ; aharnātaḥ means the Sūrya, which stands for all the stars and himāmsuḥ means the moon which stands for all the planets and satellites. We have five elements as pañca mūrthies; all the stars the sixth mūrthies; All the planets and satelites the 7th mūrthi. What is the 8th mūrthi; what is mūrthi; mūrthis a facet; the 8th is Puman; Puman is all the jivarāsis. All the living beings put together is aṣṭamūrthi īśvaraḥ; otherwise called Virāt īśvaraḥ; otherwise called Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ described in the 11th chapter of the Gītā. And Krishna says may you learn to meditate upon this Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; suppose a person says; Oh Lord my mind is not expanded enough, to visualise the Viśva rūpa, it is not subtle enough to conceive of that Viśva rūpa; Krishna says does not matter, you need not feel inferior; I will come down one more step.

And what is the step; and what is the third step of bhakthi yōga; instead of an ēkarūpa īśvaraḥ upāsana; instead of Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; you reduce the Lord to ēkarūpaḥ; choose a personal God; and we have got in our culture the biggest choice; the most varied choice is available only in our Hindu departmental store. In other religions we do not have much choice. So we have got முப்பத்தி முக்கோடி தேவதாஸ்; muppathi mokoodi dēvathās. Of them, you choose any blessed dēvathā and even if you are not interested in human form; you take animal form; we have got kāmādēnu; if you do not like animal form; you take tree form; we have got अश्वत्त वटवृक्ष तरु मन्दार चन्द द्रुमो aśvatta vaṭavrikṣa tarur māndāra canda drumo; choose any tree you like; tulasi or any tree; if you do not like any particular tree; you want a mixture; some people like always mixture; then we have got mixture Gods also; Narasiṃh; Hayagrivaḥ;; human body horse head; Narasiṃha human body lion head; we have got all varieties; choose any one. And for each iṣṭa dēvathās; we have got puranas also to give elaborate description of the dēvathā, and the avathara rahasyam; their activities and their exploits; We have 36 puranas; 18 purāṇams and 18 upa purāṇams; They will give the description of ēka rūpa īśvaraḥ, which includes their body; how many hands they have; how many heads they have; and how many weapons they wield; what type of dress they wear; all these are there; Choose an iṣṭa dēvathā, and then practice iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana; otherwise called ēka rūpa upāsana; which Krishna called abyāsa yōga.

So the fifth step is arūpa īśvaraḥ; fourth step is anēka rūpa īśvaraḥ; the third step is ēka rūpa īśvaraḥ; and the meditation is called abhyāsa yōgaḥ. Therefore Krishna discusses the third step in the 9th verse, which I introduced in the last class.

There in the 9th verse Krishna says: Athah; Hey Arjuna; on the other hand; if you are not able to meditate upon Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; mayi, mayi means Viśva rūpa īśvarē; upon Me the Viśva rūpa Lord; cittam samādhātum; to fix the mind; to practice the meditation, sthiram; firmly, undistractedly; unswervingly; if you are not able to fix the mind; na śaknōṣi. And generally Viśva rūpa upāsana will become extremely difficult; when a person has got strong rāgaḥ dveṣaḥ. Stronger the rāgaḥ dveṣaḥ; more crystallised the individuality will be. And therefore all the time the mind will be either thinking of the object of hatred, or the mind will be thinking of the object of attachment, And therefore the mind is confined to a few objects of rāgaḥ or dveṣāḥ. And that mind cannot enjoy the ocean; enjoy the sky; enjoy the stars; enjoy the trees; enjoy the mountains; because the mind is narrow. Krishna says does not matter; I will give you a narrow God;

So na śaknōṣi chet; what should you do; abhyāsa yōgēna; May you take to abhyāsa yōgaḥ which means iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana.

And if you cannot love a personal God; we have got mantra, yantra, tantra; so we have got sree chakra; it is not a person but a symbol which you can visualise; we have got surya dēvathā, which is not a person, but a symbol, which is called pratīka upāsana. Either a prathima upāsana or pratīka upāsana; prathimā means God as a person with limbs like you and mine; that is called anthropomorphism; anthropomorphism means visualising God as a human being; like you and I. And God is also hungry; God is also thirsty and therefore annam samarpayāmi; pādyam samarpayāmi; and you attach rāgaḥ dveṣaḥ to God. I think God is angry with me; because we have got that; and put that in God also; and also we have justification; yesterday while showing dīparādhana, I did not show there; rest of the photos I had shown; and this photo was missed. Therefore this God must be angry; and therefore whatever weakness we have that also we comfortably attribute to the Lord; உனக்கு கோபமா? are you angry; It is also OK; this is called anthropomorphic approach to Lord; which is also acceptable; and what is it called; this is abhyāsa yōga;

And by this अभ्यासयोगेन माम् आप्तुं इच्छ abhyāsayogēna mām āptuṃ iccha; May you strive to reach Me; by iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana may you strive to reach Me; may you strive to attain liberation; reaching Me means attainment of mōkṣa;

Can a person attain liberation through iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana? So what will be the answer. Can a person attain liberation through iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana; if they ask; the answer both Yes and No; How do you say yes and how do you say No; No means by iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana, one cannot directly attain liberation? By iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana, one cannot directly attain mōkṣa, and therefore the answer is No. And at the same time, Yes is also the answer; which means, by iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana, one can indirectly attain mōkṣa.

What do you mean by indirectly attaining mōkṣa? Iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana will gradually help him to come to Viśva rūpa upāsana, so that the very iṣṭa dēvathā will gradually lift the devotee and bring him to Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; Andādamulu pindādamulu brahmādamulu sarvam antha Rāma mayam; Thyagarāja was worshipping Rama in his idol also and he was so much attached to that idol. You know the story; so when he lost, he was extremely upset; he cries for losing his Rāma and later again gets back and he is extremely happy; thus for Thyagaraja Rāma represented an idol also; and the very same Thyagarāja sang; Andādamulu pindādamulu brahmādamulu sarvam antha. That means what; ēka rūpa you start; anēka rūpa you come to;

And you need not bother how to come; the iṣṭa dēvathā itself will lift you to Viśva rūpa upāsana; and once we come up to Viśva rūpa upāsana; the Viśva rūpa upāsana will naturally uplift you to nirguṇa upāsana, which is vēdantā vicāra. Therefore iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana via Viśva rūpa upāsana and nirguṇa jñānam will take a person to liberation. Therefore iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana is parampara kāraṇam for mōkṣa. It is not sākṣāt kāraṇam; it is not direct means; but it is called parampara kāraṇam; means Viśva rūpa upāsana; via nirguṇa jñānam; வாய் via; it will take you to the destination. Therefore Arjuna, you come to iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana.

Suppose a person says Hey Krishna I am not fit for ēka rūpa upāsana also; because upāsana is a mental activity. Upāsana is visualising the Lord within myself; purely with the help of the mind;

Upāsana is defined as manasam karma; which means the physical body has to be passive; this is the technical definition; many people define pūja as upāsana. Remember physical pūja cannot be called upāsana; because upāsana by definition is manasam karma. I should be seated in a place; I should not use any of my jñānēndriyās or karmēndriyās, I have to withdraw all my sense organs and it should be a purely mental activity; which means a person should not be an extrovert person. Upāsana is possible only when a person is ready to withdraw the mind away from the external world, make it antharmukham; turn inwards and within my heart, I should be able to visualise my iṣṭa dēvathā.

And therefore, if a person is extrovert; if a person is rajō guṇa pradhāna; that person will find it difficult, even to sit in a place for five minutes; meditation is next stage; Even to sit in a place for five minutes, a rājasic person will find extremely difficult; because he is an embodiment of dynamism and therefore he wants to be active. And therefore Krishna, I am not ready for meditation; and if I do meditation, it will end up as 'mad'-itation. For a restless person; sitting quiet is extremely difficult, that is why many people after retirement get into lot of problems. Not only problem for themselves; the primary sufferer is the wife and family. Generally she recommends take up another job; if you leave me it is OK; because it is extremely difficult.

And if Arjuna you feel you are so extrovert; then you need not sit in mediation; it is not compulsory; I will come down to the second step; in which I will ask you to be highly active. From Upāsana I will ask you to come down to karma; a life of activity; a life of dynamism. And what is that; that is going to be given in the 10th verse; So 9th verse gives the third step; 10th verse gives the 2nd step; So five, four, three, two we have reached.

असि asi if you are असमर्थः asamarthaḥ incapable, अभ्यासे अपि abhyāse api of abhyasayōga also, भव मत्कर्मपरमः bhava matkarmaparamaḥ be devoted to My works, अपि कुर्वन् कर्माणि api kurvan karmāṇi even by doing works मदर्थम् madartham for my sake अवाप्स्यसि avāpsyasi you will attain सिद्धिम् siddhim liberation.

10. If you are incapable of abhyasa yōga also, be devoted to My works. Even by doing works for my sake, you will attain liberation.

So Hey Arjuna, अभ्यासे अपि असमर्थः abhyāse api asamarthaḥ; if you are unfit for abhyāsa yōga also; abhyāsa yōga means iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana, ēka rūpa upāsana. In short, you are too extrovert a person; that does not matter.

What do you do; मत्कर्मपरमः भव matkarmaparamaḥ bhava; May you be committed to a life of activity and the activities also are divided into two in our śāstra; one is niṣkāma karmāṇi or parōpakāra karmāṇi; activities dedicated to the service of the society. Taking the very society as īśvaraḥ;

jagata īśdhi ukta sevanam; aṣṭa mūrṭi brut dēva pūjanam;

Take to pañca m ā ha yajñā; and through these five fold yajñās; dedicate your life to contribute to the society.

परोपकाराय फलन्ति वृक्षः
परोपकाराय दुहन्ति गावः ।
परोपकाराय वहन्ति नद्यः परोपकाराय इदं शरीरम् ॥ paropakārāya phalanti vṛkṣaḥ
paropakārāya duhanti gāvaḥ | paropakārāya vahanti nadhyaḥ
parōpakārāya idaṁ śarīram||

புரியறதோ? paropakārāya vahanti nadhyaḥ; all the rivers run down the plains from the Himalayas to what purpose, to serve the humanity; paropakārāya phalanti vṛkṣaḥ; trees produce fruits not for their consumption and they give it to others, Even if you throw stones; they give fruit in return; and paropakārāya duhanti gāvaḥ; the cows give milk not for their own purpose; in fact the calf gets only limited milk; all are used for our coffee; So we find in the nature; every one gives more and takes less. Any living being, if you take a balance sheet, at the end of the life, you find they have given more and taken less. May you also be like a vṛkṣaḥ;

छायाम् अन्यस्य कुर्वन्ति
तिष्ठन्ति स्वयम् आदपे ।
फलान्यपि परार्थाय
वृक्षाहः सदपुरुषः इवः ॥
chāyām anyasya kurvanti
tiṣṭhanti svayam ādapē | phalānyapi parārthāya
vṛkṣāhaḥ sadpuruṣaḥ ivaḥ ||

What do the trees do; chāyām anyasya kurvanti; they give shade to others; chāyām means not tea; chāyā, they give shade to others; but they themselves stand in the hot sun;

tiṣṭhanti svayam ādapē; phalānyapi parārthāya; vṛkṣāhaḥ sadpuruṣaḥ ivaḥ. Every tree is like a mahātma; and what is the proof; Everybody says மரம் வளர்ச்சி; maram valarpoom; Let your entire life be a life of tyāga; a life of dedication; a life like the other bhakthi; which destroys itself and in the process it gives fragrance to the surroundings; So thus may your life be one of contribution; and when you contribute to the society; if you do not have proper attitude, it may lead to arrogance; I have done this much; I have done this much, And therefore when you contribute to the society; look upon the society as īśvaraḥ; yad yad karma karōmi tattad akhilam Śambō tavāradhanam; they say Nara seva; Nāryana seva; mānava seva is mādharma seva; all these indicate what; I consider it as an opportunity to worship Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ. So be selflessly active; be desirelessly active; this is the second step;

Therefore Krishna says मत्कर्मपरमः भव matkarmaparamaḥ bhava; matkarma means what; īśvaraḥpana karma; niṣkāma karma; chitta shuddi pradana karma; karmās which will give you spiritual purity; which will make you qualified for iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana;

And मदर्थम् अपि कर्माणि कुर्वन् madartham api karmāṇi kurvan; and when you lead a life of service, contribution, parōpakāra; what will happen; siddim apavyasi; you will certainly attain liberation. So by niṣkāma karma; otherwise called niṣkāma karma pradhāna karma yōgaha; If you look at the life of every freedom fighter; read their biography; they had sacrificed everything; their health, wealth, family and what they wanted was freedom; and many of them did not even live to see the freedom; and they sacrificed and we enjoy the freedom and make the country a குட்டி செவ்ர; worst place. They sacrificed and we get the benefit. Therefore सिद्धिम् अवाप्यसि siddhim avāpyasi; you will certainly attain liberation.

How will you attain liberation; Careful; this service will not directly lead to liberation; I am never tired of repeating it; because these are all confusing slōkās, if one is not careful; This niṣkāma karma will make the mind ready for ēkarūpa upāsana which will make the mind ready for anēkarūpa upāsana; which will make the mind ready for aham brahmāsmi jñānam; which will make you free; And therefore Arjuna, take to a life of niṣkāma karma; selfless activity; This is the second step.

Now a person may argue; Lord, I cannot commit myself to niṣkāma karma; is very nice to hear; but I cannot practice niṣkāma karma because I have got plenty of tamas. I have got countless desires in the world; many of them are desires for myself; I would like to have a global tour; I would like to have a house; I would like to have a car; I have got many desires for my own personal happiness. And not only for my own sake; I have got desires with regard to my family members; I want my children to get 99.99% in twelfth examination; niṣkāma karma or chitta shuddhi; which we can see later! Now I want admission for the child. Swamiji, you can talk about niṣkāma karma, உங்களுக்கு என்ன; குழந்தையா பாழாய் போறது; வைபா பாழாய்

பேறது; you do not have anyone; wife or children; and you can say and go; but for me I have to educate my children; get admission in the engineering children; and the grand child has got some problem; because not one generation; three generation; and therefore that problem should go; and there is some house in litigation; and that should be solved; so when I have got so many desires connected to me, my family members, I have to fulfil my duties; therefore how can I give up my kāma. After completing all my duties; I will come to you; you set up an ashrama before that, That means your problem will be solved and my problem will start; I should keep an ashram ready and after all duties are over and when you are good for nothing, because no hand and legs and eyes; then you plan to come to the ashram!!; So therefore after I complete my duties; I will think of niṣkāma karma. Let me pray for my child, my grandchild, my wife; and my neighbour; because he should also should be fine; Only then I will have a peaceful life; if they are quarreling I cannot step; how many kāmās I have got; that is why in English also it is called coma!!; coma, coma, no full stop; Coma is that which has no full stop. So what am I supposed to do, Oh Lord;

Krishna says: OK you have world desires; you fulfil your personal desires; nothing wrong; if you are interested in the education of your children; in the marriage of your children, the health of the grand children, there is nothing wrong; after all, you want to fulfil your duty, as a family person. It is not wrong, you need not feel; bad about it; so may you have kāmās, and therefore you can do sakāma karmas also. And vēda itself prescribes many kāmāya karmās for children's education; children's health; children's marriage; for all of them; vēda itself prescribes karma;

paśunām eva samjānane ... nutu. Paśuman bhavati.

Vristi kāma chinveetha; amāyā vi chinveethā;

Any desire you have; fulfil that; because when the unfulfilled desires are within and I try to come to vēdantā, close my eyes. Only that will hover around in my mind; and such a person Krishna calls mithyācārasya uchyāte;

karmēndriyāṇi saṃyamyā ya āstē manasā smaran |
indriyārthān vimūḍhātmā mithyācāraḥ sa ucyatē || 3.6 ||

Any unfulfilled desire is in the mind, it will create a bug; therefore fulfil them; whatever you want to eat; All legitimately do.

So what is the last step; Krishna says may you be committed to sakāma karma; Let your karma yōga sakāma karma pradhāna karma yōga does not matter; and how should you practice that karma yōga. That I will tell you; it is the lower most step; which is given in the 11th verse. We will read;

अथैतदप्यशक्तोऽसि कर्तुं मद्योगमाश्रितः ।

सर्वकर्मफलत्यागं ततः कुरु यतात्मवान् ॥ १२.११ ॥

athaitadapyaśaktō'si kartuṃ madyōgamāśritaḥ |

sarvakarmaphalatyāgaṃ tataḥ kuru yatātmavān || 12.11 ||

अथ असि अशक्तः atha asi aśaktaḥ if you are not able to, अर्तुम् एतद् अपि kartum etad api do this also. ततः tataḥ then आश्रितः āśritaḥ taking to मध्ययोगम् madhyōgam My worship कुरु सर्वकर्मफलत्यागम् kuru sarvakarmaphalatyāgam renounce the results of all actions यतात्मवान् yatātmavān with self- restraint.

11. If you are not able to do this also, then, taking to My worship, renounce the results of all actions with self- restraint.

So the second step presented was niṣkāma karma pradhāna karma yōga; a karma yōga in which life is dedicated to niṣkāma karma; parōpakāra karma and if you are not able to serve anyone, does not matter; you serve yourselves; So Krishna says; atha etat api karthum askthaha asi; if you are not able to commit yourselves to serving others; serving the society; by taking to madhyōgam means īśvaraḥparṇa buddhi; as īśvaraḥparṇam; by taking to that attitude; if you are not able to do that; then may you take to sakāma karma.

And Śankarācārya says: somewhere, he goes one more extreme, in extremely rare cases, even niṣidda karma also; Śankarācārya says: OK; that is why in some places animal sacrifices were also permitted because OK; at least even if you are interested in that; does not matter; but let it be as an offering to the Lord; and slowly get out; And that is why there are certain tamasic rituals prescribed in the śāstra; in which madhya paanam, taking to liquor etc. also was permitted; the idea was even though it is banned; if a person is helpless, let him convert into pooja and gradually come out of it. But I should be very careful; You will say OK; I should not have told; so niṣidda karmaṇi api, as an exceptional case, Śankarācārya adds; But it is better to give them up; but legitimate worldly desires you fulfill. There is nothing wrong; it is not pāpam;

And what should you do; when you are doing sakāma karma; what should be your attitude; when a person does sakāma karma; sakāma karma means a selfish activity; he certainly expects a worldly result out of it; he is not doing it as a service; he is not doing it for citta shuddhi; he is certainly doing it for worldly benefit only; and personal benefit only; you do; but what should you do; you dedicate that sakāma karma also as Īśvaraḥ arpaṇam; and when the phalam comes you can certainly take the phalam to yourselves; you need not give to the Society; be selfish; you enjoy the result; selfishness is also permitted; you need not give to others; you need not share with others; you enjoy.

But Krishna gives a warning; when you are enjoying the benefit of your selfish action; do not call it karma phalam; do not call the accomplishment of yours; you take it as Īśvaraḥ prasādaḥ; Change the name; even if a child is born; there are many children who have got the name, Krishna prasād; Rāma prasād; Devi prasād; or mere Prasād; children are also called prasād, because we look upon our children as gift from the Lord. And once you take everything as Īśvaraḥ prasāda, even the selfish action will have the capacity to purify the mind. A regular selfish action cannot purify the mind, because selfishness is impurity; but here even a selfish action can purify if you take the result as Bhagavān's gift. When you build a house not for donating to anyone but for your own living; it is a clean kāmya karma; this house has been built for my sake; Krishna says: does not matter; you want a house, own the house, use the house; but what would I suggest is; when you do the griha pravēśa; look upon the house, not as yours, you live there; but you look upon the house, as the Lord's house. Therefore when you step in, you take along with you the picture of the Lord; your iṣṭa dēvathā; and then you install the Lord anywhere; at least under the staircase; and you dedicate the house to the Lord, Then do not afraid; if it is Lord's should I get out; do not ask; you dedicate the house to the Lord; and request the Lord; Oh Lord permit me also to be a co-tenant or tenant of your temple. Then griham becomes an ālayam; and I am living in the temple of the Lord. And in this there are so many advantages; your personal desire has been fulfilled; எனக்குன்னு ஒரு வீடு; Everybody asks; therefore you have a house; So your personal desire is fulfilled; at the same time; that kāmya karma gets the capacity to purify your mind. In fact, that house will be a pure house free from all forms of inauspiciousness; even though it has not been built according to what: vāstu śāstram condition; If you are able to observe OK: wonderful; but if you are not able to; plot is like that what to do; therefore it becomes Lord's house; it becomes Lord's responsibility to drive away all the evil forces and therefore you are living under the care of the Lord. So this life style is called sakāma karma pradhāna karma yōgaḥ.

And such a person has no time to serve the society, because all the time he has to bother about either children or grand children; where is the time, to do any service to anyone; does not matter.

Therefore Krishna says सर्वकर्मफलत्यागम् sarvakarmaphalatyāgam; dedicate the result of all the karmas, which includes kāmya karmas and which includes the inevitable niṣidda karma; like when you are cleaning the house, by using insecticide; mosquito mats, etc. Certainly himsa is involved; you are doing himsa; for keeping the house, you use all kinds of things for cockroach; And isn't it papām; these are in all inevitable papām; they are called; they are called soona; soona means inevitable papāms, to be done by a grihastha and even if such papāms are there; niṣidda karmas are there; even those niṣidda karmas will not affect you. At the time of cooking; so many insects may be killed; especially in the olden days; there was no electricity; not only paruppu; uzhundu; poochi will also be included. What to do; so offer neivedyam to the Lord and Krishna Krishna svāḥ; So therefore even inevitable niṣidda karmas will not affect you; it will purify you;

tata kuru; yatatmavaan; with your effort; with commitment; with sincerity. So this is called what; sakāma karma pradhāna karma yōga.

And what will happen if I do that; if I practice this karma yōga for a length of time; I will graduate to the second step, in which my life will become niṣkāma karma pradhana karma yōga; which means by personal desires will come down; which will be replaced by spiritual desire; which will be replaced by mumukṣutvam; all the glammers of the world will not appeal to you; In short you will transcend finite desires; not suppressing; you will transcend petty desires. It will appear big for others.

Dayananand Swamy gives a beautiful example; as children, you are interested in balloon; and you played and when the balloon burst, you were upset also; balloon was very important; But during the 25th year; somebody brings birthday gift; what balloon; you are not going to be enamoured by that; biscuit; previously local biscuit; after sometime gold biscuit; this is called growing out of petty things; Even the heaven may look like a balloon; that is called maturity; Heaven should become a balloon; And once kāmas come down; Thereafter the life will be what; nirkama karma pradāna karmayōga; whatever karma I do will be meant for citta śuddi and once I go through niškāma karma pradāna karma yōga, I will be elevated to ēka rūpa upāsana and then elevated to anēkarūpa and then elevated to jñāna yōga.

And this is the five stages; the first and the lowest stage has been given in the 11th verse. And suppose a person says Oh Lord I cannot practice this also; if a person says that I cannot do this also; என்ன சேரல்வியிருக்கேன்; I would not say: Go to hell; the only advice is better luck, next birth; this is the lowest the śāstra can give; fulfil your desires, be materialistic; be materialistic person; does not matter, but whatever materials you have, take as God's. So with this all the five stages have been talked about and all the five stages put together is called Bhakthi yōga;

And a person has to take the appropriate step according to his spiritual evolution; if a person is born advanced person; he can take straight away go to the fourth or fifth step; They are called spiritual prodigies. There are straight away ready for jñāna yōga; How come they are straight away ready; because they have gone through the first four stages in the previous jñāma; the law is not violated; we do not know their previous jñāma; there they have done and therefore brought forward so the straight away go to the fifth; otherwise we will start from 1,2,3,4 and 5 and this is going to be wound up in the next verse; which we will see in the next class.

Om

In the 12th chapter from verse No.3 up to verse No.11, Lord Krishna talked about five stages of bhakthi yōga. And as I said, you should remember that bhakthi yōga is a separate and exclusive sādānā; but it is the common name for all the five stages of sādānā and this includes the practice of karma; this includes upāsana or meditation and finally bhakthi includes vēdānta vicāra, which is enquiry into the real nature of God. And all these five steps Krishna talked about, beginning from the fifth step and ending with the first step. And the first step which was given in the 11th verse talks about the sakāma karma itself; utilised as a way of sādānā. And in this lowest stage of bhakthi yōga, Lord Krishna did not even expect us to be even a spiritual person. Lord Krishna says that you can be a materialist person; you can use religion for finite worldly benefit; only you have to observe two important points.

The first is make sure that when you fulfil your worldly desires; you do not adopt immortal or unrighteous methods; that cannot become part of bhakthi yōga; therefore condition No.1 is it should be a dharmic method of fulfilling your worldly desires.

And the second condition that Krishna prescribes is: when you do something to fulfil your worldly desire; and when you are accomplishing that desire; and when you are about to enjoy the benefit of your effort; do not go all out and get lost in the enjoyment, just one benefit before close your eyes and thank the Lord and take the enjoyment as a gift of Lord. You do not call it karma phalam; Change the name and consequentially change your attitude also and take it as īśvaraḥ prasāda.

And once a person practices this stage of bhakthi yōga which is the beginning, which itself will start the purification of the mind; because I am enjoying even worldly sensory pleasures, as gift from the Lord; Īśvaraḥ saṁbanda is involved. The very Īśvaraḥ saṁbanda, association with the Lord, is capable of purifying the mind and if a person follows this stage for sufficiently long time, the mind will become more and more mature and the maturity of the mind is indicated by the refinement of the desire. So initially it is the grossest form of desire; but gradually the desire itself will get refined; instead of grossest physical pleasures, it is subtle and more sensitive. And then gradually the desire it is desire to serve others, which is also a desire; but it is a satvic desire; I want to contribute something to the world; which is a desire but it is a satvic desire. And the most satvic desire is the desire for the knowledge of the truth itself. So mōkṣa iccha becomes the most refined desire. Thus the refinement of desire takes place, because of the first level.

And once I just graduate to the 2nd level; my sakāma karmas are converted into niṣkāma karmas. My desire is instead of selfish desire, they become selfless desires; my action should not only benefit me, but it should benefit more number of people. The awareness of the society, the awareness of the environment; the awareness of the fellow human beings; awareness of even animals and plants; there is an expanded mind. And that will lead to pañca mahā yajñā rūpa karmas; all my karmās will be for the well being of others; I am a beneficiary alright; but it benefit others also. This is the second stage of karma yōgam which is called niṣkāma karma pradhāna karma yōga.

Then gradually my mind becomes purer and quieter and I am able to get interested in the next level of, What is the next level; Iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana rūpa bhakthi yōgaha; my mind is refined; refined sufficiently to withdraw from extrovertedness; extrovertedness itself is an obstacle for spiritual pursuits; and once the mind becomes less and less extrovert; or more and more introvert; turn towards oneself; I am ready for ēkar rūpa Īśvara upāsana, which will take me to Viśva rūpa Īśvara upāsana; I do not want to again get into the rut; you remember that; and from Viśva rūpa Īśvara upāsana; I finally come to Nirguṇa Īśvara jñānam.

And nirguṇa Īśvara jñānam which is otherwise called advaita jñānam is the highest level of bhakthi yōgaha. And if I successfully pass through all the five levels of bhakthi yōga; I have become a brahma jñāni; I have become a sthira prajñāḥ; I have become an advaita bhakthaḥ.

So these are the five stages of bhakthi yōga; Now Krishna wants to conclude this discussion of sādānā in the next verse, i.e. the 12th verse. We will read.

श्रेयो हि ज्ञानमभ्यासाद् ज्ञानाद्ध्यानं विशिष्यते ।

ध्यानात्कर्मफलत्यागः त्यागाच्छान्तिरनन्तरम् ॥ १२.१२ ॥

śrēyō hi jñānamabhyāsājjñānāddhyānaṃ viśiṣyatē |

dhyānāt karmaphalatyāgastyāgācchāntiranantaram || 12.12 ||

12. Knowledge is indeed superior to Meditation (without knowledge) Meditation (with knowledge) is superior to mere knowledge. Renunciation of the results of actions (is superior) to meditation. There is peace after renunciation.

So in this verse, Lord Krishna talks about four types of sādānās. And having talked about four types of sādānās, Lord Krishna grades them; from the lowest to the highest; four levels of sādānā.

And what are the four sādānās; No.1 abhyāsaḥ; No.2 jñānam; No.3, dhyānam; and No.4, karma phala tyāgaḥ. These are the four sādānās enumerated; abhyāsaḥ; jñānam, dhyānam and karma phala tyāgaḥ.

And what is the meaning of each one of them; abhyāsaḥ means meditation upon God; So Īśvara cinthanam or meditation upon God is called abhyāsaḥ; and what type of meditation, a meditation which is not backed by knowledge, that is a mechanical meditation without understanding what God is: So I have read some books and I have heard something and I have seen some pictures of God; and I do not know what God is; I do not even know whether God exists or not; because there are aethist people who do not believe in God and I do not have a clear answer to them also; but out of blind belief, without understanding what God stands for; I practice meditation upon God in one form or the other; May be Rāma form or Krishna form or a cross or a crescent; some symbol or the other I take and I practice. This mechanical meditation or knowledgeless meditation is here called abhyāsaḥ. Then the second thing is jñānam; jñānam is by the thorough study of scriptures. Suppose a person clearly knows what God is; it is possible by systematic study of scriptures to get a very very clear understanding of Īśvara; and this knowledge is called jñānam. And here by the word 'jñānam' what Krishna means is a knowledge without the practice of meditation. This person has the knowledge of God but he does not practice meditation upon the God to internalise the knowledge;

And therefore what is the second thing; knowledge without meditation; what is the first thing; meditation without knowledge; so knowledgeless meditation is abhyasa; and meditation less knowledge is 'jñānam'. परिஞ்சிதோ; ஜ்ஞாநம் வந்ததுதோ; Did jñānam has come? This is the second thing.

A third thing is a combination of both. A person studies the scriptures thoroughly; he understands what God is; what God stands for and not only that he has got clear knowledge but after gaining upon knowledge, he dwells upon the Lord as understood from the scriptures. Therefore what is the third stage; dhyānam; dhyānam means a mixture of both knowledge and meditation. So you can call it knowledge with meditation; or meditation with knowledge; the mixture is called dhyānam.

So abhyāsaḥ is knowledgeless meditation; jñānam is meditationless knowledge; dhyānam is meditation-cum-knowledge; pair or mixture. And the fourth sādānā is karma phala tyāgaḥ; which Krishna has already talked about in the eleventh verse. And what is karma phala tyāgaḥ; dedicating all the karma phalams to the Lord, And then again taking back from the Lord; you do not gift to the Lord; because you want it; taking it back from the Lord; as Īśvara prasāda, the gift; It is called karma phala tyāgaḥ; So abhyāsaḥ, jñānam, dhyānam, karma phala tyāgaḥ; this is the present list;

And this karma phala tyāgaḥ sādānā is there in the previous list also; previous list of five sādānās; OK in that five sādānā list; karma phala tyāgaḥ is given as the lowest one. We started from third and then He gave jñāna yōga; and Viśvarūpa upāsana is the next lowest sādānā; ēkarūpa upāsana is the next lower one; then niṣkāma karma pradhāna yōga; next lower one; the lowest one is what karma phala tyāgaḥ.

So in the previous list karma phala tyāgaḥ is given as the lowest; and Krishna plays mischief in this slōkā and He gives this list here and he places karma phala tyāgaḥ as the highest one. That is why this is the most confusing slōkā of the 12th chapter; In fact we can eliminate this slōkā; because it is problematic; because Krishna openly contradicts what he has done in the previous slōkā.

So in the previous portion, a list of five sādānās are given and in the list karma phala tyāgaḥ is the lowest; and now He gives a list of four sādānā, and in this karma phala tyāgaḥ is the highest; so we may not notice. But Śankarācārya who is supposed to help us in understanding the śāstra; he comes to our rescue and he says: of course it is an open contradiction; but you should understand what is Lord Krishna's intention.

Certainly as given in the previous list; karma phala tyāgaḥ is only the lowest stage of sādānā; that is the fact; because from that only, a person has to go to jñānam; and then later go to dhyānam; and therefore they are higher steps; karma phala tyāgaḥ is the lowest step only. But unfortunately, majority of people are ready for the lowest step only; because we all have got various worldly desires; and therefore we cannot think of niṣkāma karmas now; we have got so many sakāma karmās; children's admission waiting; and they have to get married; and for that I have to go to that temple; Thirumanancheri. So you just do a kalyāṇa utsavam and the daughter will get married; and go to Guruvayoor and put a cradle, you get a child, when we have got so many such desires; how can we talk of niṣkāma karmas. Therefore we are ready, or majority is ready for the lowest stage only and if Krishna presents that as the lowest, we may feel an inferiority complex and therefore to encourage the people Krishna is just transporting this lowest sādānā to the highest stage. Is like saying that small is beautiful; you know you work for the big one and you are not able to get the big one; and you get the small one. And how do you reconcile yourselves; Small is beautiful; by exactly like that; karma phala tyāgaḥ. Krishna glorifies; It is called athiśayōkthi; exaggeration of a sādānā; so that the people will not feel bad to practice that.

And therefore this whole slōkā is called arta vāda slōkāḥ; arta vāda slōkā means exaggerating the value of a sādānā to encourage the people to practice that. And therefore Krishna grades these four sādānās here. Of these four, what are these four now. Abhyāsa; that is knowledgeless meditation; jñānam, meditationless knowledge;

then dhyānam; meditation-cum-knowledge and karma phala tyāgaḥ and what is the grade that Krishna gives here; here He says the lowest one is abhyāsaḥ; mechanical meditation; mechanical pūja; mechanical sādānā is the lowest one in this list.

Of course mechanical sādānā is better than no sādānā; very careful; mechanical sādānā is better than no sādānā. But in the list, mechanical sādānā like meditation; sandyavandhanam, which we have learnt in the seventh or eight year or tenth year; Now it is practiced; of course nobody practiced; even if they practice now, they do not even know what is the meaning of Gayathri; it is not known; but they practice it out of fear; because father has said that 'or else Bhagavān will punish'; Therefore many people practice; Krishna says mechanical meditation is the worst; or the lowest.

Then what is the next higher thing; abhyāsath jñānam srēyaḥ; better than mechanical meditation of God is the knowledge of God, which is jñānam; and what is the definition of jñānam; meditation-less knowledge; So meditation-less knowledge is certainly better than knowledge-less meditation. OK. I hope I am not confusing you. It is Krishna's job; therefore I cannot escape.

Therefore what is the next better one; ज्ञानात् ध्यानं विशिष्यते jñānāt dhyānaṃ viśiṣyate; better than meditation less knowledge is what: dhyānam. What is the meaning of dhyānam; I have given you in the meaning; it is meditation practiced after gaining knowledge; when I meditate upon God; I have a clear idea of what God is; this informed meditation enlightened meditation is superior to the previous ones; jñānāt dhyānaṃ viśiṣyate.

Up to this Krishna travels smoothly and now suddenly Krishna says; ध्यानात् कर्मफलत्यागः dhyānāt karmaphalatyāgaḥ; better than all these three sādānās is what; karma phala tyāgaḥ; which means karma phala tyāgaḥ is the highest sādānā; superior to all the other three. So here alone Krishna is doing this mischief; the previous list karma phala tyāgaḥ is the lowest; Here karma phala tyāgaḥ is elevated to the highest sādānā; but we should remember this elevation is not fact-based elevation; this elevation is a compromise that Krishna does for the sake of encouraging the people practice sakāma karma pradhāna karma yōga.

Therefore dhyānāt karmaphalatyāgaḥ and then what will it lead to; Krishna says; tyāgāth, if you practice this karmaphalatyāgaḥ and what is karma phala tyāgaḥ you remember, before enjoying any karma phalam, you dedicate it to the Lord and enjoy it as Lord's gift. This is very very intrinsic in our culture; even the illiterate villagers who do not know anything about śāstra, even they practice it; even when they buy a new dress, it is kept in front of the Lord, they put chandanam manjal or something and thereafter only they wear; the dress is not given to the lord; Lord also knows and we also know; we keep in front; and immediately take; and we prepare pongal also (tomorrow is Pongal) and all those things we keep in front of the Lord; and why do we keep because Lord is not going to take it; if Lord is going to ask for a share; then we would not give all of them, And now we are freely offering everything because we know God does not want anything; it is only an acknowledgement. In fact the word Nivedanam is informing the Lord; and what am I informing; Oh Lord; whatever I am going to enjoy has been made possible only because of your grace; even though I have put forth effort, my capacity to work is also a gift from You and therefore I am grateful to you. With this awareness when I take, that is called karma phala tyāgaḥ. And if you practice this, what is the greatest advantage; whatever you get as karma phalam; you can accept without mental agitation. There is no resistance in accepting anything and that is why it is called prasādaḥ;

In fact, in Sanskrit, do you know what is the meaning of the word prasādaḥ; normally when I say prasāda, what thought comes to your mind; vadai, chundal, kadalai, laddu. Remember the meaning of the word prasādaha is tranquility of mind; equanimity of mind; it is derived from the root; pra + sad, sad is the root; pra is the prefix; prasādaḥ means mana śānthī. So when I take every experience in my life; every object that comes to me; every person that comes to me as children; children are born; husband comes; wife comes; everything is prasāda; the greatest risk is what; marriage; and remember in our culture, you cannot exchange; no change; what type of children are born to me, I do not know; by calling them prasāda, what I mean is I have no resistance; the moment the mental resistance stop; the mind becomes prasādaḥ;

And that is why tyāgāth, by giving up resistance, because of the awareness that whatever God gives me is welcome; āgatē svagatham kuryath;

And then what is the consequence; śānthī; samatvaṃ yōga ucyatē; siddhyasiddhyōḥ samō bhūtvā samatvaṃ yōga ucyatē

So त्यागात् शान्तिः अनन्तरं tyāgāt śāntiḥ anantaraṃ; anantaraṃ means what immediately śāntiḥ comes; so with this Krishna concludes the bhakthi yōga sādānāni; and with this verse, the first part of 12th chapter is over.

And now we are entering the 2nd part of the 12th chapter, which is from verse No.13 up to the end. We will enter into that:

अद्वेष्टा सर्वभूतानां मैत्रः करुण एव च ।

निर्ममो निरहङ्कारः समदुःखसुखःक्षमी ॥ १२.१३ ॥

advēṣṭā sarvabhūtānāṃ maitraḥ karuṇa ēva ca |

nirmamō nirahaṅkāraḥ samaduḥkhasukhaḥ kṣamī || 12.13 ||

अद्वेष्टा adveṣṭā My (devotee) is non-hater, सर्वभूतानाम् sarvabhūtānām of all beings, मैत्रः maitraḥ is friendly, करुण एव karuṇa eva compassionate निर्ममः nirmamaḥ free from 'mine' notion, निरहङ्कारः nirahaṅkāraḥ free from 'I' notion, समदुःखसुखः samaduḥkhasukhaḥ same in comfort as well as discomfort, च क्षमि ca kṣamī and forbearing

13. (My devotee) is a non-hater of all beings, is friendly, compassionate, free from 'mine'-notion, free from 'I' –notion, same in comfort as well as discomfort, and forbearance.

So सुखः sukhaḥ and क्षमि kṣamī; when the two dots followed by the letter ksha the rule of pronunciation should be that the two dots should be completely pronounced; that means what sukhaḥ and kṣamī; we should chant sukhaḥ and kṣamī; not sukhaḥkṣamī; rule of chanting; Pāṇini has written a special sūtra for this; charpare visarjaniyaha. Therefore Pāṇini has taken so much trouble; So we should take little trouble to follow that.

Now what is the second portion of the 12th chapter. Now let us imagine a person goes through all the five stages of bhakthi yōgaha; sakāma karma pradhāna karma yōga; niṣkāma karma pradhāna karma yōga; Iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana; Viśva rūpa upāsana and nirguṇa īśvara jñānam. All these five steps a person goes through successfully. How much time it will take; we do not know; it may be possible in one life; or it may be carried forward to next life; it may take even several lives; it does not matter; let us imagine a person goes through all the five stages; he becomes what; a jñāni; otherwise called a parā bhakthāḥ; a bhaktha who has successfully gone through all the five. Therefore parā bhakthāḥ means the highest bhaktha and this parā bhaktha should necessarily have jñānam; because the fifth stage involves nirguṇa īśvara enquiry.

And therefore as we are seeing in the Taittiriya upaniṣad; He will first know ēka rūpa īśvara; Lord with one form; later he will understand God as Viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ; as the very universe itself; And finally he will recognise God has neither one form nor many forms; God is the formless truth behind the formed universe. God is the formless truth behind the formed universe.

And the beauty is once I know God as the formless truth; the peculiar fact that I discover is the formless truth God is no more an object of knowledge; is no more an object of knowledge; that Lord is the very I, the subject, the observer; Therefore the knowledge is in the form of Aham Brahma asmi; or Saha aham asmi; sōham. In fact in Sandhyavandana itself this has been incorporated so that we will remember the goal; asavādityō brahma; he pours some water, touches the water, and then asavādityō brahma; brahmaiva aham asmi. So this he practices right from the seventh or eighth year; but what type of practice it is; knowledgeless practice; we will chant kada kada; Later alone it becomes a meaningful statement; that Lord is non-different from me; therefore the highest bhaktha should necessarily be an advaita jñāni; and what is the advaitam; Lord and me; paramātmā and jīvātmā are not two entities; paramātmā and jīvātmā are two words for one and the same truth. Just as wave and ocean are not two entities; but they are two different names for one and the same; one and the same water. There is no substance called wave; there is no substance called ocean; there is only one substance called water. Similarly, jīvātmā and paramātmā are nama dvayam; but nami, the vastu is only one and therefore the highest bhaktha is advaita jñāni; abēda jñāni.

And this highest bhaktha or abēda jñāni have been already mentioned in the second chapter of the Gītā as sthira prajñāha; sthira prajñāha, the one who has got conviction regarding the advaita jñānam. And now in the following verses, what Krishna wants to talk about is: How does such a bhaktha; that is the highest bhaktha or how does such an advaita jñāni conduct himself in the world; how does he face different situations in life. Does he face problems at all; and if he faces problems, how does he respond to the situation. In Sanskrit, parā bhaktha lakṣaṇāni; lakṣaṇā means the characteristics, the behaviour, the conduct of this advaita jñāni. Krishna wants to talk about such a bhaktha's lakṣaṇām;

And what is the purpose of talking about his conduct; it is two-fold benefit; the first benefit is once I know the benefit of this knowledge; I will be tempted to follow the sādhanā; It is a clean marketing method; So what is marketing strategy; they talk about the product and if you have this product; what are the advantages; and what is the cost of the product; they will not say that; or it will be there in the bottom in small letters; they will write thousand rupees and then below they write, and thereafter for 20 years monthly instalment of Rs.500. That too in small letters; life-long; like that person who was regularly paying in instalments for the cradle; and the last instalment is over and the banker asked; You have got the cradle for the baby; how is the baby; he said I am the baby because instalments was for so many years. Like that the whole thing is in instalment but the thing is what somehow or the other by our TV; by our what you call airconditioner; fridge, etc.

So that is marketing strategy has been started Lord Krishna himself in the bhagavad Gītā; so He talks about the glory, the benefits of becoming an advaita jñāni; so first benefit, you have incentive; using the carat method; incentive; You buy the soap powder and you get a plastic spoon; and they would included that price in the soap powder, But we buy it; anything free if it is there; we have to buy; that is our weakness.

Then the second benefit is; whatever be the natural traits of the jñāni; they should become a sādhanā for me; to be deliberately practiced. Whatever is a natural trait of a realised person; they should be taken by me as a sādhanā to be deliberately practised. So yāni ajñāninaḥ sādhanāni; or yāni jñāninaḥ lakṣaṇāni; thāni ajñāninaḥ sādhanāni bhavanthi. So whatever be his natural trait, they should be taken as a list of sādhanā, which I should deliberately and gradually practice. Therefore we can take this as a list of virtues to be cultivated. And from this we come to know another important thing also. And that is when a person practices spiritual sādhanā and attains liberation; he is going to survive in this world.

So mōkṣa is not a benefit which is promised after death. If mōkṣa is a posthumus benefit that you are going to get after death; you will not vote for mōkṣa right now; because you want to survive; so if I say jñāna will give you mōkṣa and mōkṣa is giving to Vaikuntha or Kailāsa; what will you say; I do not need jñānam now; I do not want to vaikuntha or kailāsa now; I have got lot of duties to be completed and after everything is over; when I am about to die, give me the knowledge; so that I am ready for travelling;

So Krishna makes it very clear; mōkṣa is a state of mind; that you will enjoy while you are living in this world. Therefore you can test vēdānta; if I promise after death; what is the proof whether I am telling what I am telling is correct or not; because nobody can come and question me after death: you promised mōkṣa but I did not get it. Therefore it is not something which we can verify here and now. And therefore our mōkṣa is called jīvan mukthi; therefore the description that we get is jīvan mukthi; jīvan muktha lakṣaṇāni; stira prajñāna lakṣaṇāni; para bhaktha lakṣaṇāni; is the topic now.

And this is from this verse; thirteen verse and up to the end; that is the 19th verse and 20th verse is the conclusion.

Now we will see the trait of a jñāni. And this is also useful in another way. Suppose you have a doubt; whether I come under jñāni list or ajñāni list; because after all I have been studying, attending the classes for so long a time; so how do I know or whether I am jīvan muktha or not; Swamiji will you get a certificate; To whomsoever it may concern; the bearer of the certificate is a jīvan mukthi; who deserves a garland and a pāda pūja; So how am I to know; very easy; and you can check up; And if the traits are there; you can say we are jñānis; otherwise it means; we have still work and still internalise

And what is the first virtue of a jīvan muktha; first virtue itself you will be bowled; first ball bowled duck; अद्वेष्य सर्वभूतानां advēṣṭā sarvabhūtānāṃ; the trait of a jñāni a realised person is, he or she, does not hate any being in the universe; freedom from hatred is the first and the most powerful trait; So we should ask do I hate anyone; Not anyone? we have got a very big list; starting from neighbour onwards; there is a very very big list; bigger the list; farther from mōkṣa I am;

Therefore I want to know how far away I am from mōkṣa; take a sheet and write the list; longer the list; the more the distance is; and when the list becomes; smaller and smaller I am getting closer to closer to mōkṣa; and the most interesting thing is.

Whenever the śāstra says: you should not hate anyone; our first immediate approach is we try to justify our hatred; so we give a big description of the person; and what all negative traits he has got ; what all akramas he is doing; Swamiji that is why I am hating; they expect Swamiji to OK; that person deserves hatred. So according to śāstra; there is no such thing called justified or justifiable hatred; Any form of hatred is unjustifiable. And why do we say so; why we say so; because according to śāstra; every person is intrinsically a good divine and pure person. There is no impure person in the world; there is no evil character in the world; every single jeevathma is essentially none other than suddha paramātma; nitya suddha buddha muktha svabhāva; that suddam braham you are is the teaching of śāstra; therefore nobody deserves hatred. No person deserves hatred; because every person is a saint; the worst sinner is also a saint.

Then where is the problem; a person's character or actions may be corrupt or wrong action; a person is saintly and pure and the actions which are not the intrinsic nature of the person; the action that a person does or a behaviour of a person may be corrupt or wrong or unrighteous or immoral. So our next question is can I hate the action of the person; first I cannot hate the person; Now the next question can I hate the behaviour or negative trait or wrong actions of a person. Śāstra says a wrong action of a person also does not deserve hatred; A wrong behaviour of a person also does not deserve hatred; Why; by hating the behaviour you are not going to change the behaviour; Hatred is never a remedy for the misbehaviour of a person. If by hating a person you can change the character of a person; Then what we can do; hate; and I am going you for a half an hour; like radition treatment; I hate you and I hate you; and after half-hour radium treatment called hatred; 5 sittings, 6 sittings, this person has become alright. Does it happen; No person can be; no action or character can be changed by hatred. And therefore person does not deserve hatred; behaviour also does not deserve hatred; Person does not deserve hatred; because every person is innately good; behaviour does not deserve hatred because behavior cannot be changed by hating a person. So therefore hatred is utterly useless tendency.

And not only that according to śāstra; not only hatred is totally purposeless, the hatred will damage the mind in which the hatred rests; not only it will not change the person; who is the victim of the hatred; but it will destroy the person in whom the hatred rests. So if i am going to hate someone; that someone is not going to change at all. On the other hand, hatred like an acid; it is going to corrode and destroy my mind. Therefore already I am affected by the other person's misbehaviour and now I am adding to the damage, What is that; I develop hatred and increase the damage; What am I supposed to do; avoid or decrease or remedy; instead of taking a remedy, I am only making the situation worse. And therefore what does śāstra say; every person deserves love.

And if there is misbehaviour on the part of a person; the misbehaviour requires an appropriate action; An appropriate response; hatred is not going to solve the problem. Now the next question is; what is the appropriate response. Certainly, hatred is not the appropriate response; because hatred does not change the person; On the other hand, it hurts more; then what should be the appropriate response. Śāstra says you use any method; sāmā; educating the person; and transforming the thinking process. So sāmā, dāna bhēda; and if all of them fail; ultimately even danda you can use if you want, But even when I use danda; the attitude should not be hatred; but even danda must be with love alone; even danda must be with love alone; that I am not able to change the person by non-violence methods and I am forced to use violent or danda; but still I am doing only for improving the person not for the sake of retaliation or hurt.

And then the question is is it possible to give danda; loving a person; Can you punish a person with love; is it possible; we think punishment and hatred goes together; According to śāstra again; even punishment is possible with love; the best example is what; what is the best example we have: a mother beating the child. Nowadays even that cannot be done. you are not supposed to beat the child in some countries; it comes under child abuse and children are given a phone No. and the children can phone and the parents can be arrested. I do not this rights business; human rights; husband right (no body is talking) OK; women rights; OK, I think they will start slowly; wife rights. Children are informed of their rights; therefore the children blackmail the children; So before all these things come; so parents did some time beat or at least scold the time, but even when mother uses violence; the mother can never hate the child; And therefore it is possible to take appropriate step without hatred; and therefore misbehaviour require the appropriate action; and the person requires love. None of them neither the person nor misbehaviour requires hatred; therefore even Krishna may choose to destroy kamsa; and He may ask Arjuna to destroy Duryodhana. Therefore whatever appropriate action is to be taken we should take; but the advice is it should not be motivated by hatred; but it must be motivated by love and to change or correct the person;

Therefore advēṣṭā sarvabhūtānām; that emmm must be very long indicating nobody should come in the list of hatred. This is the first qualification.

Now we can check up ourselves; You should not ask: Swamiji can I have a few exceptions in the hatred; like my mother in law; because you have an idiom, "we love to hate"; I love to hate him; can have at least a small list; no list is allowed. So freedom from hatred; is the first trait of a jñāni;

More in the next class.

सदाशिव समारम्भां शङ्कराचार्यमध्यमाम्

अस्मद् आचार्य पर्यन्ताम् वन्दे गुरु परम्पराम्

sadāśiva samārambhāṁ śaṅkarācāryamadhyamām

Om

In the first twelve verses of the 12th chapter, Lord Krishna has talked about the entire range of sādhanās to be followed by every seeker, which range of sādhanās is called bhakti yōgaha. And as I repeatedly said, bhakti yōga includes the first two levels of karma yōga; bhakti yōga includes the next two levels of upāsana; and bhakti yōga includes the last and final level of jñāna yōga also. And by jñāna yōga we mean vēdānta śravaṇa manana nidhidhyāsanam, and without this jñāna yōga, the bhakti yōga series of sādhanā remains incomplete. Bhakti yōga has to be capped or culminated only through vēdānta śravaṇa manana nidhidhyāsanam, which Krishna called akṣarōpasana. And if a person follows all these five stages of bhakti yōga, certainly he would have gone through jñāna yōga also, it being the final stage; and therefore he should have become a jñāni. And by vēdānta śravaṇa manana nidhidhyāsanam, the jñānam that he receives is that the Lord has never been away from me and the Lord can never be away from me, the distance between me and Lord has been felt by me only because of delusion. So the distance between me and the Lord is caused only by delusion; it is a notional distance and that notional distance is removed by this knowledge. And therefore I am not away from the Lord; Lord is not away from me, saha aham asmi; and aham saha asmi; and a person who has gained this knowledge is called parama hamsaḥ; parama hamsaḥ; aham saḥ; and saḥ aham; the one who has clearly grasped is called parama hamsaḥ. And that is why the mantra is also called parama hamsaḥ mantra; sōham hamsaḥ; aham saḥ sōham and therefore this culmination of bhakti we called in the last class; advaita bhakti or jñāna niṣṭa;

And now from the 13th verse onwards up to the 19th verse of this chapter, Krishna wants to talk about the nature of a parama hamsaḥ or the nature of this bhaktha;

jñāni bhakthaḥ. Krishna has hinted this jñāni bhakthaḥ in the 7th chapter of the Gītā when He said;

chaturvidha bhajanthe maam janaa sukridinorjuna;
artho jijñāsu artharhi; jñāni cha bharatharshabha;

thesam jñāni nithya yukta eka bhakthir vishishyate;
priyohi jñānino ithartha; aham sa cha mama priya;

In fact these two verses of the seventh chapter, alone have been elaborated in these verses from 13 to 19. That means jñāni is the greatest bhaktha; because between jñāni and me, there is no distance at all. Swami Chinmayananda beautifully says: When love or bhakthi increases, the distance decreases; and that is why we also say when we love someone very intensely; we have an expression he or she is very close to me. Do not we say that? That person is very close to me and another word is very intimate. So the greater the love, lesser the distance; or greater the intimacy. So extrapolating this, the greatest love must be that in which the distance must be zero. So infinite love is equal to zero distance. And that is why we try to reduce the distance. So to express intense love; what do you do; embrace; and what is the attempt to embrace. By embracing I want to remove the distance me and the person that I love. Extending the same principle, in advaita alone; the distance between jivātma and paramātma is zero and therefore in advaita alone; the love or devotion to the Lord is infinite. Who says: Bhagavān says: jñāni tu ātmaiva mē matam; Arjuna jñāni is not close to me; jñāni is Me and I am jñāni.

And it is this highest bhakthi which is the explained in these verses; how he behaves in the world; how he faces the people; because even the greatest jñāni has to exhaust his prārabdha karma. And a jñāni's prārabdha is also a mixture of puṇyam and pāpam; And now jñāni may be a noble person; but previously even he has done akramas as an ajñāni and therefore even he is bound to have puṇya and pāpa. In his prārabdha bundle; and therefore jñāni will have to face favourable and unfavourable situations; favourable and unfavourable people; and when he faces such situations; how does he take; how does he respond. This is what I said; para bhaktha lakṣaṇāni. And we saw the first lakṣaṇam; and what is the first lakṣaṇam; sarvabhūtānām advēṣṭā; the one who never justifies hatred; which is the biggest weakness; one who never justifies hatred; because there is no justified or justifiable hatred. We may disagree with a person's behaviour; we may disagree with a person's action; and we may strongly condemn and criticise that behaviour or action; and we may take appropriate measures to involve even danda; danda means punishment; They are all allowed; but hatred is never allowed as a method of expressing your disapproval; hatred can never be the method of the expression of your disapproval; we can disapprove and disagree and strongly criticise but criticism cannot have even a tinch of hatred. And if I am a victim of somebody's misconduct, to save my skin and my mind; I may even go away from that person; but even when I physically move away; mentally, nobody I reject. And that means I should be able to include everyone in my prayers; and I should be able to pray for the well-being of all. This capacity to include everyone in your prayers. This inner non-rejection of a person; even though physically you may have to distance; but psychologically I do not reject anyone; If there is some weakness in that person; I silently pray Oh Lord; Give him நல்ல புத்தி; nalla bhuddi; let me him change; I am not able to change. Therefore Oh Lord; change his behaviour; but there is no hatred; And this should be natural to me; and if I have got that; I have assimilated the vēdāntic teaching.

This is test No.1. Test for whom; not others; very careful; never use this portion to judge the other person; this fellow; not a jñāni ticked off; that fellow; far away from jñānam, leave him at a distance. Never use this portion to judge other people, we are no one to judge others, these are all indications; parameters to judge myself. And self-judgment also must be appropriately used; because self-judgment can work positively as well as negatively, If I do not know how to intelligently use; self-judgment can cause frustration; inferiority complex; I am not growing at all; the other person is spiritually growing very fast;

And thus it can lead to self-condemnation and guilt; if self-judgment leads to self-condemnation and guilt; better drop your judgment; Self-judgment must be used only as an inspiration for more effort; without comparing with others; I find out where I stand and I put forth the appropriate effort, it must be an accelerating force; not a retarding force. And therefore we should be extremely careful, if we are using self-judgment. Therefore advēṣṭā sarvabhūtānām is character No.1.

Then the next one is मैत्रः maitraḥ; a jñāni is a friend to all; he is a friend of everyone; not close to someone and away from another; he is a universal friend;

bhōktāraṁ yajñatapasāṁ sarvalōkamahēśvaram |
suhṛdaṁ sarvabhūtānām jñātvā mām śāntimṛcchati || 5.29 ||

5th chapter, sarvabhūtānāṃ suhr̥daṃ. Now the question is what do you mean by friend; what is the definition of a friend; Bhṛthari in his Neethi śatakam, gives the definition of a friend:

पापात् निवरयति योजयते हिताया
गुह्यम् निनिगूहति गुणान् प्रकठीकरोति ।
अपत्गतम् नचहाति ददाति काले
सन्मित्र लक्षण इदम् प्रवदन्ति सन्तः ॥
Pāpāt nivarayati yōjayatē hitāyā
guhyam nigūhati guṇān prakāṭhīkaroti | apatgatam nacaḥāti dadāti kālē
sanmitra lakṣaṇa idam pravadanti santaḥ ||

So this is the indication of a friend; what all he does; pāpāt nivarayati; sssss my friend will guide me and direct me, if I going in a wrong track; So I should be; my friend should be interested in guiding me; because my intimate weaknesses I will never know; that is why they tell; a lamp is the agal vilakku will throw light everywhere; but right underneath, it is dark. Therefore our own intimate weakness we will never know; like our eyes can see everything; but the eyes can never see the colour of the eyes; so somebody has to see; and therefore, I may not know what are my problems; therefore I should have a friend who tells me what my problems are; and the one who does that; is a mitraḥ; mitraṃ; therefore pāpāt nivārayati; turns away from wrong actions; yōjayatē hitāyā; and puts me in the righteous path;

then guhyam nigūhati; I share some of my intimate secrets also with friend, because we all require a confidant; very close person with him I can share everything; so with these surety that the friend will not tell it out; a Swiss bank; you know; Swiss bank account; they would not reveal; Similarly we all require a psychological Swiss bank for our mental health; ஆருகிட்டேயாவது சொல்லி அழ ஒருவன் வேண்டும்; we need someone to blurt our woes and cry; so the friend does that and he reveals my private life; guhyam nigūhati; what is to be kept confidential; he keeps confidential; Then guṇān prakāṭhīkaroti; all my wonderful character; so guṇās, my virtues he shares with others; normally we do the other way round; guṇān nigūhati; guhyam prakāṭhīkaroti; and the enjoyment which we derive from that is something great! juicy news! and there is a pleasure and the people also sit around and induce you to come out; and there are certain magazines which are meant only for this purpose; that is the right purpose; guṇān prakāṭhīkaroti; guhyam nigūhati. Then apatgatam nacahāti dadāti kālē; so when the friend is in adversity in crisis; the general tendency of the people is leave; if the friend is in poverty; I would not like to be with him; if he asks for loan what to do; Therefore when I lose my money; all the family people slowly get away; because they are worried; you may ask for loan; a friend is one who is a friend in need; a friend in need is a friend in deed; it is a beautiful saying; and that is translated by Bhṛthari; apatgatam nacahāti; in crisis he does not leave you; dadāti kālē; by giving the help in terms of money or consolation or moral support or even prayer and time; he is willing to give when the other person needs; whoever does all these things; sanmitra lakṣaṇa idam pravadanti santaḥ.

So Bhṛthari; a great saint; So he wrote Neethi Ṣatakam; beautiful hundred verses on values; very rare and beautiful work; and hundred verses on vairagyam; vairagyam ṣatakam; Very powerful; you read it, you run away; thus straight away punches your nose; anyway; so he is mitraḥ.

And then the next virtue is करुणः karuṇaḥ; karuṇaḥ means compassionate; helpful; when the other person is in distress; he has compassion. And what do you mean compassion; enjoying a sensitive mind; which is capable of placing itself in the position of the other person, and going through the emotions that the other person will go through. In fact we do that when we watch a movie; so gradually we identify with the heroine; or hero; and when one of them dies; while the hero or heroine crys, we also start crying; and this spouse who is sitting nearby tells; I am here; I have not died, do not cry; but temporarily tadātmya bhava; so enjoying a sensitive mind to identify with another person and going through the emotions of the other person; it is called mind having empathy. That is going through the feeling; when the other person is happy; I also feel happy; when the other person feels angry; I also feel; So having the same feeling of others, is empathy and naturally the other person goes through pain, it is no more the pain of the other person; it becomes my pain; so

sukhaṁ vā yadi vā duḥkhaṁ sa yōgī paramō mataḥ || 32 ||

And the others' pain become my pain and I have pain I want to immediately find out a remedy. Similarly, I cannot withstand another's pain; therefore I go out help spontaneously; just as I help myself spontaneously; Similarly spontaneously I go to the other persons' help. And the help need not be always in terms of money; if I cannot do anything; I have told you one method; which everybody can use; chant a prayer for one minute and say whatever puṇyam is generated by that prayer; I am willing to donate; no money expenditure; one prayer; sarvē bhavanthu sukina; sarvē bhavanthu nir āmaya; not in express mode in kada buda speed; sincerely I chant and I tell the Lord whatever puṇyam is generated by this prayer; I am donating to God's relief fund; like PM relief fund; I donate to God's relief fund; that is also karuna; it requires spending quality time; the one who can use spontaneously; I think that there is a beautiful saying in Kural; of உடுக்கை இழுந்தவன் கைபோல ஆங்கே இடுக்கண் களைவதாம் நட்பு. uṭukkai iḷantavaṅṅ kaipōla āṅkē iṭukkaṅṅ kaḷaivatām naṭpu. (788); whatever it is; I am not very good in Tamil; but it is wonderful example. Suppose the dress falls down in the crowd; then immediately hand, you need not deliberately command, spontaneously the hand goes and pulls it up; in the same way; that person has spontaneously help others in trouble; is called karuṇaḥ; kārūṇya vāram nidhim, mīnākṣi praṇathōsmi; these are all godly qualities. And since the jñāni has become one with the Lord; he enjoys all the godly virtues and that is karuna.

Then the next one is निर्ममः nirmamaḥ; the one who is without ownership with regard to anything; who does not have any mamakāra means what: mine notion. The one who does not have any ownership; Do not ask about ownership flats; what it means; It means what when you have ownership, you are flat!; OK; now anyway British English is going away; once upon a time we had British English because they were ruling us; Now slowly American English is picking up; no more flats; now they are all changed to apartments; no more lifts; but elevators; so therefore ownership flats are all gone.

So how you give up your ownership; there are two methods; one is the religious method; another is vēdāntic method; vēdāntic method you should have clear understanding; religious method is you relatively easier; v̄edāntic method is what: when I do know I am the ātma; I come to know that ātma is asaṅgaḥ; ātma is like space; not related to or connected to anything; Therefore ātma is nitya saṁbandha rahita; free from all relations and associations, and since I am the asaṅga ātma; how can I be connected to anything; how can I claim anything as mine. And therefore nirmamatvam is owning up the asaṅga ātma svarūpam.

न माता; न पिता, न बन्धु, न शास्ता न शास्त्रं, न शिष्यो न शिक्षा, न च त्वं न चाहं न वायं प्रपञ्चः । na mātā; na pitā, na bandhu, na śāstā na śāstram, na śiṣyō na śikṣā, na ca tvam na cāham na vāyam
prapajcaḥ |

So I am not related to anyone; So this is therefore I have no possessions; this is v̄edāntic and the relatively simpler method is by understanding that every thing that I possess is a temporary gift from the Lord, so that I will use it properly and grow spiritually; every thing that I possess has been given only for temporary use. And after using that I have to leave it back; therefore whether they are people, children, mother, father, everything and every person is a gift; Therefore I remember Oh Lord I am grateful to you for giving me everything; and I will use them for my growth and when the appropriate time comes and when you choose to take them back, I will not make any complaint against you; I will only add a note; what note is called; all American methods; Thank you note; so you have to send it back with a thank you note; Oh Lord; Thank you for giving me my mother, father, the grand mother, grand father, the spouse, children, anything ultimately including the body; therefore remembering that everything belongs to the Lord: tan man dan sub kuch thērā;

it is not a mere prayer but I mean that from my innermost heart; and that is called nirmamatvam. We need not physically give up anything; we can use everything; with the awareness that they are meant for my use; they are not meant for my ownership; it has nothing to do with the physical possession;

And then the next virtue the jñāni enjoys is: निरहङ्कारः nirahaṅkāraḥ; when I have got ownership and identification with the external world it is called mamakāraḥ; and when I have got ownership and identification with my own śarīra trayam; stula; sūkṣma; kāraṇa śarīram; that ownership is called ahamkāraḥ; So śarīrathraya abhimāna ahamkāraḥ; śarīrabinna viṣaya abhimānaḥ mamakāraḥ. Can you understand the difference? Identification with the body-mind-complex is ahamkāra; identification with everything external is mamakāra; and how do you give up the mamakāra; there also the same method; even this body is a gift from the Lord. I told you Bhr̥thari wrote Neethi śatakam and vairāgya śatakam; in his Vairāgya śatakam; in the end he writes a beautiful verse. This is the thank you note; given by an enlightened person at the person of death; when everybody tries to cry and grieve, Bhr̥thari tells a wise person what will be his attitude; So that beautiful verse he says; this person address all the five elements; ākaśa; vāyu; agni; āpaḥ; pṛithvi; And addressing all of them, he says: Oh Elements; you have all given a portion of yours for building up this body; body has got ākaśa; a portion, and it has got vāyu, in the form of breath; it has got agni in the form of temperature; 98.4; and it has got jalam inside; water is there; we drink; and it has got earth; all the weight is the earth; Therefore this physical body called pancha boudika śarīram; is a gift from the five elements given for me; so that I will use this body for attaining mōkṣa; And Bhr̥thari addresses the five elements and tells that I have intelligently made use of this body; now I am returning the body to you;

मातर्मेदिनि तात मारुत सखे तेजः सुबन्धो जल

jānāpāstasamastamōfamahimā liyē parabrahmaṇi || 100 ||

I am merging into Brahman; I am handing over this body to you. This attitude is called nirahaṅkāraḥ; so nirmamaḥ; nirahaṅkāraḥ.

Then sama duḥkha sukha; so the one who is equanimous; one who is well poised; the one who has got the mental shock absorber; when he travels through the road which is full of potholes; you will understand well being in Chennai roads; so violence and so many holes are there; and you cannot cover all the potholes; what best you can do; have a shock absorber in your vehicle; by using the shock absorber the jolt will not come down to zero level; but it is reduced to a great extent; So that you can travel reasonably comfortably; and similarly our life also has got roads; the puṇyam part of the road is plain and beautiful; but now and then the potholes called pāpam comes; and if you have to handle that; you require the shock absorber; the local Gabriel shock absorber would not function there; there is only one absorber; that is called jñānam; so by enjoying the jñānam; सुख दुःख मित्यत्व दर्शनेन, गुरुणापि दुःखेन विचाल्यते

sukha duḥkha mityatva darśanēna, guruṇāpi duḥkhēna vicālyatē. Not that the jolt comes down to zero; but it is reasonably poised; without having any trauma in the mind; and how to do that.

Everywhere there is vēdāntic as well as religious method; vēdāntic method is too high; and what is that method; aham satyam; everything else is mithya; dream; Therefore sukhhhhham is dream; duḥkham is dream; sarva mityatva darśanēna, enjoying a poised mind, is vēdāntic method but it requires lot of assimilation;

And there is a simpler religious method also and what is that method; Understanding that everything in the creation is given by the Lord; and therefore everything in the creation is purposeful; Everything in the creation has got its own purpose; Something I have known the purpose; in the case of certain other things; they appear purposeless; not because they are purposeless; but because I have not understood its purpose; and therefore this conviction in the fact that Bhagavān never creates anything purposelessly. This conviction; this śraddhaḥ must be very strong; the more you study the creation, the more you will understand that; Any science you take, the appreciation that we get is everything in the creation is purposeful. Taittiriya upaniṣad we will be seeing later; तस्मात् सुकृत मुचयत इति tasmāt sukṛta mucayata iti. The creation is called sukṛtam; which means there is nothing purposeless; And if this understood, we have to apply this to sukhhhhham duḥkham pair also; which is also an integral part of this creation; The sukhhhhha-duḥkham pair also is an integral part of the creation; that is what we come to know from the purāṇic study; whether it is Rāma or whether it is Krishna or whether it is Dharmaputṛa; whether it is Nala Mahārāja; everyone goes through ups and down; And my conviction is that the sukhhhhha-duḥkham also have got their own purpose and the purpose is my own inner polishing or refinement.

So therefore the conversion of my personality; refinement of my personality requires several process and dukham also is one of the processes. Like converting a raw material into final product, it has to go through so many procedures; heating is involved; hammering is involved/ So many things are involved; similarly, I require all of them for my inner growth; Once I have this strong conviction; sukham va duḥkham va; I will be able to accept without resistance or reaction and that is called mental balance. Therefore sama duḥkha sukhaḥ.

Then the next virtue is; each one we have to test ourselves on and off; how are we fairing in that quality. Then the next one is क्षमि kṣami; kṣami means the one who has got kṣama; in fact the best definition of kṣama is that virtue which we do not have; That which do not have is kṣama; is the most difficult virtue; because the faster the pace of our life; more tougher is the kṣama; kṣama also is a very very important word; otherwise called thithikṣa; we have seen this very often; we can define in several ways; when I face a situation; which I consider as unfavourable to me; my tendency is to change the situation to make it favourable to me; the situation need not be merely the set up; even the behaviour of a family member. So this family member has certain way of behaving certain way of doing things; that is also a situation; and when I find that a situation or behaviour is not favourable; my tendency, spontaneous or natural tendency is changing the situation; converting the situation to make it favourable. And this conversion can be done in two ways; One is the employment of violent methods; either verbal violence immediate flaring up; impulsive flaring up; verbal or even physical violence; this is one method applied to change a set up or situation. Your own child does not listen to you; And then another is: a non-violent method of changing the situation; of these two; which one naturally comes to us; the impulsive and immediate method is the flare-up violent method. And kṣamāvān is a person who always postpones this method; even though my impulsive reaction is to adopt this violent and seemingly quicker method of changing the situation; this kṣamāvān is a person who postpones this method and tries his best to adopt non-violent methods and the violent method is used only as இன்று போயி நாளை வா; inṅu pōyi nālai vā method it is called; Even at the last moment, a chance is given; the greater the postponement, more kṣama you will have.

And if I should this kṣama, I should have the understanding that violent method is natural; and it is effective and it gives immediate benefit alright; that is why we adopt that; because it is natural; flaring up is most natural; and definitely it is effective because the other person changes more out of fear rather than conviction; it is method of fear and the other is it is quick also; but this person has to understand even though it is easier; even though it is effective and quick the side effects are worse than the benefits; it is like a powerful drug whose side effects are often worse than the disease itself; the more I understand this very clearly; the more I am convinced of this fact; the more I will avoid this quicker method; for which I should understand the psychology, the functioning of the mind; That whenever I use a violent method; the other person is greatly disturbed; And if I use violent method; the victim of violence also becomes violent. And therefore not only I am violent; I am creating another violent person. And that person may not retaliate; because it is a child; the child cannot retaliate; when the child grows up; and becomes a father; he becomes violent with regard to his children; and that child becomes violent; thus we are producing violent people all over; every time I become violent; it is like a nuclear chain reaction. If I understand this very clearly; I will try to avoid that method. Not that it should not be there; śāstra accepts danda alright; but it is only the last resort; and one who postpones that method is called kṣami.

Continuing.

सन्तुष्टः सततं योगी यतात्मा दृढनिश्चयः ।

मय्यर्पितमनोबुद्धिः यो मद्भक्तः स मे प्रियः ॥ १२.१४ ॥

santuṣṭaḥ satataṁ yōgī yatātmā dṛḍhaniścayaḥ |

mayyarpitamanōbuddhiryō madbhaktaḥ sa mē priyaḥ || 12.14 ||

सः मद्भक्तः saḥ madbhaktaḥ that devotee of mine, अर्पितमनोबुद्धिः arpitamanobuddhiḥ whose mind and intellect are fixed, मयि mayi upon Me
यः सततं सन्तुष्टः yaḥ satataṁ santuṣṭaḥ – (and) who is ever contented, योगी yogī tranquil, यतात्मा yatātmā self-restrained दृढनिश्चयः dṛḍhaniścayaḥ – (and) with clear knowledge प्रियः मे priyaḥ me is dear to Me.

14. That devotee of Mine whose mind and intellect are fixed upon Me (and) who is ever contented, tranquil, self-restrained (and) with clear knowledge is dear to Me.

So सन्तुष्टः santuṣṭaḥ; the one who has discovered fullness; one who does not lack anything in life; psychologically or intellectually, knowledge or emotion wise; the one who does not lack anything; and this inner pūrṇathvam is called santhōṣaḥ; and the person who has got is santuṣṭaḥ; If you remember, the sthithaprajñā portion;

prajahāti yadā kāmān sarvān pārtha manōgatān |

ātmanyēva"tmanā tuṣṭaḥ sthithaprajñastadōcyatē || 2.55 ||

So the one who is contended and why he is contended; because he has got the knowledge aham pūrṇaḥ; pūrṇatva jñānēna.

Then people ask if I already contended; then how I will work in the world; if there is contentment; then everybody sit quiet; then nobody will work for the progress of the society; nobody will love to contribute; our answer is: In fact contended people alone can contribute; if I have discontentment, I will work alright; I will earn alright; but I can never contribute because whatever I get; I will use for myself because any amount I take, I am not satisfied; And therefore discontentment will not help in contribution; contented people alone can contribute to the society; because whatever he gets; happily he can share with others. And therefore the entire life of a jñāni is dedicated to what: contributing the others; the time is for others; energy is for others; knowledge is for others; And therefore a jñāni alone can really contribute. Therefore santuṣṭaḥ; and when he is santuṣṭaḥ; because we also find santhōṣaḥ now and then; but the problem is contentment comes; the son has passed the 12th exam; crucial exam. So therefore I am so happy and contended; but next moment, which college; which American university; comes to the next; there is contentment, this transient contentment we are not talking: सततं सन्तुष्टः satataṁ santuṣṭaḥ; eternal contentment; the one who has: this jñāni and yōgi; So the one who is a great yōgi; once I say, you will say Shirsasanam only; yōga many people think, either it is various āsanās or the next thing they think is miracles. So here yōgaḥ means mōkṣaḥ or jñānam. so yōgi means the one who has got jñānam; how can the word yōga mean jñānam; the word yōga is derived from the root yuj; which means to combine; to unite; to bring together. Jñānam is called yōgaḥ because through knowledge alone, the distance between jīvātma and paramātma is removed. Because as I said before in the beginning of the class; the distance between jīvātma and paramātma is caused only by ignorance. Because in fact there is no distance between jīvātma and paramātma; Why there is no distance; why there is no distance; Bhagavān is in Vaikuntha, it is a great distance; if Bhagavān is defined as all pervading; what will be distance between all pervading Lord and me. Suppose I say that the all-pervading Lord is in Vaikuntha only; what a contradiction; in fact Vaikunthaḥ means hridayam; always remember, vaikuntha of purāṇa is the symbolic representation of our own hridayam only; If Lord is all-pervading, there cannot be distance and if I still feel the distance; it is a notional distance caused by delusion. Like a child sleeping on the lap of the mother; and getting a dream in which it misses the mother; and the child cries thinking that it has lost the mother and then the mother wakes up the child and the child discovers that I have never lost the mother. In fact I have been dreaming on the lap. Therefore distance is caused by ignorance; That distance is removed by knowledge; therefore knowledge alone unites jīvātma and paramātma and therefore it is called a uniting process; yōgaḥ means the means of union. jīvātma paramātmāna yujyate; anēna iti yōgaḥ. That with the help of which jīvātma gets united with paramātma; therefore he is yogi; means jñāni.

And what about miracles powers; miraculous powers; So this another confusion; people think that a jñāni should have miraculous powers; or else he is no jñāni; I have told you before; there is no rule at all that jñāni should have miraculous powers; jñāni should have what; jñānam. So the very word jñāni indicates jñānam asya asti ithi jñāni; the wise man one who has wisdom;

So I have told you: four types of people: do you remember: the one who has neither miraculous powers nor knowledge; majority; no siddhi or jñānam; type No.4, we have to start from bottom;

type No.3, one who has siddhi but no knowledge; so jñāna rahita siddhi; is the third variety; and the second variety is: can you guess; siddhi rahita jñānam; self-knowledge without any miraculous powers; is the second;

first one: the one who has both jñānam and the siddhi.

Of these four types, who are the liberated ones; one two three four; who are the liberated; the first one is liberated because he has got jñānam; siddhi is there of course is bonus; the second one is also liberated; because he or she has jñānam; without even an iota of siddhi; and the third one has got all siddhis without jñānam; In fact we get this category in Chandōgya upaniṣad seventh chapter; Nārada tells I have got all siddhis; I can read the mind of others; I can know what is under the ground without digging; digging we also do; I can know what is underground without digging; I can read the future; even though all the siddhis are there;

शोचामि तं मा भगवाञ्छोकस्य पारं तारयत्विति

śōcāmi taṁ mā bhagavāñchōkasya pāraṁ tārayatviti
taṁ hōvāca yadvai kiñcāitadadhyagiṣṭhā nāmaivaitat || 7. 1. 3 ||

So a person even if be the greatest siddha, if knowledge is not there; he is a siddha samsāri; miraculous samsāri; and the fourth one is also samsāri; therefore remember; jñānam is primary; never focus on siddhi; siddhi is an obstacle to moksha. And therefore yogi means jñāni with or without siddhis.

The next word is yathātma; which we will see in the next class;

Om

In the second part of the 12th chapter of the Gītā beginning from the 13th verse Lord Krishna talks about the characteristic of the highest bhaktha; the highest bhaktha being one who has gone through all the five levels of bhakthi yōga; and the final level of bhakthi yōga being nothing but jñāna yōgaḥ; And therefore the one who has successfully gone through all the five levels of bhakthi yōga will necessarily be a jñāni; who was called a sthira prañāḥ in the second chapter. And if you want to call him the greatest bhaktha, we can call him parā bhaktha and sthira prajñāḥ are synonymous.

And what are the characteristics of such a sthitaprañāḥ. That is the topic we are seeing now; we have covered the 13th verse and now we are seeing the 14th verse in which Krishna said satataṁ santuṣṭaḥ; and this bhaktha who is a jñāni has understood that I am not different from the pūrṇa īśvaraḥ; If the Lord is pūrṇaḥ, the infinite one, that pūrṇa īśvara cannot be away from me; because the pūrṇa īśvara is away, minus me, the īśvara will become apūrṇaḥ; because the infinite should include everything. And therefore the ultimate knowledge is pūrṇa īśvaraḥ is not away from me; pūrṇa īśvaraḥ is not different from me. In short I am pūrṇa īśvaraḥ. Pūrṇaḥ means what; pūrṇa means satyam anandam ānantham. And when I discover the fact that I am pūrṇaḥ, I do not lack in life; I do not miss anything in life; I never suffer from the problem of self-inadequacy. I can sing the well known Tamil Song, குறை ஒன்றும் இல்லை; kurai ondrum illai. It is not a mere verbal expression; but I can tell from my own inner heart; I do not lack anything in life; I do not miss anything in life.

And as long as I lack something or miss something; I cannot keep quiet, I will become restless. And therefore there is a constant struggle to make myself complete. And this struggle will continue eternally, until I discover that I do not lack anything; and in the case of the jñāni, he has discovered the fact I do not miss anything. And therefore ātmani ēva ātmana tuṣṭaḥ. It was said in the 2nd chapter, the same idea is conveyed here, santuṣṭaḥ; it is not English samtusṭaḥ; It is Sanskrit samyak santuṣṭaḥ. I do not miss anything in life.

If God suddenly appears in life in front of me and ask what do you miss in life; so that I can give that and you can die peacefully; In our head hundreds of things come; there are so many things; I do not have a son; I do not have a daughter; I do not have a grand child; I do not have this; And then comes I do not have a good body; then I do not have a good hair; I do not have a good nose; I do not have hair at all; later; so many things are there; physical lack, emotional lack; intellectual lack.

Lack is three fold, śarīrika apūrṇatvam; not being satisfied physically; in terms of height or weight or complexion or the length of the nose that is why plastic surgeons are thriving; so plastic surgeons thrive because of this lack alone.

Then there is emotional lack; my son does not talk to me everyday from Washington DC; so daily they want to phone; what to talk; so therefore, that is emotional talk, nobody talks to me; nobody asks me How are you; I have got cold for the last three days; and I want people to enquire.

And then comes intellectual lack.

There are many basic questions for which I do not have question; the fundamental question being why at all Bhagavān created this world; He could have kept quiet; Could he not kept quiet uttering sivane; why did He create the world; if He is omniscient and omnipotent; why could He could have created the world in a better way at least without the mosquitoes. I do not whether there are too many mosquitoes here. So thus santuṣṭaḥ means physically, emotionally, intellectually, I do not lack anything; and when not during morning, night, Sunday or Monday; satataṁ santuṣṭaḥ; I am ever free from all lack or want; and that does not mean this person should not be active in the world. Such a contended jñāni can also be active but the activity is not born out of incompleteness. When the activity is born out of incompleteness; it is called a struggle; life becomes a drag; life becomes a burden; life becomes a struggle; What is the definition of struggle? Any activity you do; which is backed by a sense of incompleteness; whereas in the case of a jñāni; not that he sits in a cave; he is also active like other people; as Krishna said in third chapter,

kuryādvidvāmsathā'saktaścikīrṣurlōkasaṅgraham || 3.25 ||

He is involved in activities; perhaps he is more busy than a samsāri; but the difference is the activities do not come from a wanting mind; an incomplete mind. Therefore the activities are not at all a struggle; activities are called the leela; jñāni's activities are called leela; ajñāni's activities are called struggle; And therefore satataṁ santuṣṭaḥ;

And yōgi; yōgi I told you in the last class is a jñāni, the one who has accomplished the knowledge which is the ultimate yōga; literally the word yōga means that which combines two things; the jīvātma, the seeker, and paramātma, the sought, these two are brought together by whatever means that means is called yōgaḥ, That is why karma yōga is called yōgaḥ; because that also helps upāsana yōga is called yōgaḥ; that also helps; but the yōga which really brings jīvātma and paramātma together is the knowledge that we need not bring them together; the knowledge that we need not bring them together; because we have never been away.

Therefore jñānam is the yōga in its primary sense; karma and upāsanas are called yōga; in the secondary sense; yōgartha tatva yōga yōgaḥ iti lakṣaṇaya uchyate. He is yōgi; up to this we saw in the last class.

Now the next word: yatātma; ātma in this context means body, mind sense organs complex; stūla, sūkṣma, śarīra dvayam; Otherwise the technical word used is kārya kāraṇa saṅgathaḥ; consisting of the body; the sense organs and the anthakaraṇam, the mind. All these three put together is called ātma in this context; Not the satcidānanda ātma; body mind complex is called ātma here; and yataḥ means regulated; well managed; well kept under control; mastered; Therefore yatātma means that person who has learned to manage or handle his own mind body sense complex. That means he knows how to use them as his own instruments; he is not enslaved by the jñānēndriyas or karmēndriyas; he is the master. To use the tatva bodha language; śamādhi ṣatka sampathi; self-discipline is indicated by yatātmatvam.

And for this self-discipline alone, we have got a special science called the aṣṭāṅga yōga of Pathanjali; it is a beautifully well-defined system; which takes care of our character through yama and niyama; I have talked about this in my introduction to the sixth chapter; yama, niyama takes care of my character integration; āsana takes care of my physical integration; prāṇāyāma takes care of my energy integration; prathyahāra takes care of my sense organs integration; dhāraṇa dhyāna samādhi takes care of my mental integration. Thus discipline and integration; at all the levels is accomplished by aṣṭāṅga yōga; and through that; this person has become yatātma; an integrated person.

And in fact, this self-integration is required before coming to vēdānta itself; and that is why it is one of the sādhanā catuṣṭaya sampathi; I do not know whether you remember this word; sādhanā catuṣṭaya sampathi; that means become coming to vēdānta; one requires integration; during the study of vēdānta one requires integration for reception; if you have to listen to one hour, without distraction; it is a very very great accomplishment; I do not whether you are capable or not, only you know; my thing is only assumption that one hour you are listening without distraction; So ṣṛāvanam requires integration; and ultimately after completing the ṣṛāvanam; the assimilation or nidhidhyāsanam; also requires integration. And therefore self-discipline is required life long; and a man or women without self-discipline cannot accomplish anything. Even reading a simple article in a magazine; will be difficult because 5 lines I read; then I require a cup of coffee. So much concentration I have done; then go round; then I read another 10 lines and watch a channel; and then I read another 10 lines; it is like that; the attention span is very very limited; therefore this person is yatātma, before as well as later;

And because of this self-disciple only, दृढनिश्चयः dr̥ḍhaniścayaḥ; he has been able to attain self-knowledge; dr̥ḍhaniścayaḥ means sthira prajñāha; drida means sthira, niścayaḥ means prajñā; dr̥ḍhaniścayaḥ means sthira prajñāḥ; dridaḥ niścayaḥ yasya saḥ; bahuvrihi; that means the one who has got knowledge with conviction. And that is why we have got two processes of vēdāntic study; the first process is you listen to the entire vēdāntic teaching systematically for sometime without raising any question; like the cow eating the grass wandering all over; which is called ṣṛāvanam; even if you get some doubts in the middle; you do not ask those doubts, you keep them aside; And generally you find as even you listen more and more; the doubts gets cleared; Generally people ask: Swamiji do you have any telepathy; because I came today with a doubt, you exactly dealt with that; I tell you, I do not have any pathy; This is how it is; This is how it works; therefore for a length of time; you do sṛavanam, giving the benefit of the doubt to the teacher and the teaching; whatever doubts you get, you keep it aside.

And once you complete the comprehensive listening generally much doubts do not remain; But if they are there; you start the second process called mananam; when you eliminate your doubt; and only when the doubts are removed; which are problems at the intellectual level; because fortunately or unfortunately, we have an intellect. and the job of the intellect is always to raise questions; And Swami Chinmayananda nicely says; longer the beard, greater the doubt; So out of respect for the guru you may nod your head; but if the intellect is not convinced; it will not swallow. Therefore until I am convinced, I have to raise questions and answer and when I do sravanam and mananam; I will get conviction, which is called drida niścayaḥ. From this it is very clear that the greatest bhaktha must have clear vēdāntic knowledge. How do you know; Krishna himself tells it very clearly; without vēdāntic knowledge, you will be a bhaktha; but there will always be a distance between the Lord and the bhaktha; Therefore bhakthi can reach its culmination only when the vēdāntic study is done and assimilated; therefore dridaḥ niścayaḥ;

And then the next characteristic of this para bhaktha is मय्यर्पितमनोबुद्धिः ayyarpitamanōbuddhi. I have told before; Our appreciation of the Lord takes place at three levels; initially God is ēka rūpa īśvaraḥ as a person who is the creator of the world; and therefore I place him in Vaikuntha; Kailasa, heaven or some place; called Iṣṭa dēvathā īśvaraḥ. Then there is further elevation; I learned to look upon God as not only the creator; but Lord is one who is the very cause which has manifested in the form of universe and therefore viśva rūpa īśvaraḥ is the next level; and the final is the arūpa īśvaraḥ; I had said. That is the Lord does not become the world; the Lord appears as the world.

And the most important point that you should note here is the higher levels of bhakthi do not displace or destroy the lower levels of bhakthi; if the higher levels of bhakthi displaces or destroys the lower levels, that means he has not understood Vēdānta properly. So therefore a jñāni who appreciates the formless God, he can still continue to have devotion to the formed Lord also; And that is why you can have a

bāṣyam: यत् तदद्रेश्यमग्राह्यमगोत्रमवर्णमचक्षुः; अशब्धम्, अस्पर्शम्, अरूपम् अव्ययम् yat taddrēśyamagrāhyamagōtramavarṇamacakṣuḥ; .. aśabdham, asparśam, arūpam avyayam; he can brilliantly deal with the formless; and then he can also write splendid poetical slokas on Lord Śiva; on Dēvi; on Sarasvati or on Subramaṇya; that means what advaitam cannot destroy dvaita bhakthi; And in fact one ācārya says; in fact an advaitin can enjoy dvaita bhakthi more than others;

द्वैतम् मोहय बोधत् प्राक्;

बोदे अद्वैते मनिषयाः “।

बोधात् उर्द्वम् तु तत् ज्ञेयम्;

अद्वैतात् अपि सुन्दरम् ॥

dvaitam mohaya bodhat prāk;

bōdē advaitē maṇiṣayāḥ |

bōddāt urdvam tu tat jñēyam;

advaitāt api sundaram ||

An advaitain never loses his Iṣṭa dēvathā bhakthi and therefore he has got now two channels; or even three channels; ēka rūpa channel; anēka rūpa channel; arūpa channel. So when he is in a temple or in front of the deity; ēkarūpa channel he enjoys; and when he travels around in Badrinath, Kedarnath, Himalayas, Ganges, wonderful flowers all of them, that also he enjoys; because nature for him is viśvarūpa īśvaraḥ; and then he close his eyes and enjoy aham brahmāsmi; the arūpa.

So when he has got emotional needs; then personal God is ideal; when there is emotional need; personal relationship is always ideal; because when we have emotional problems; you always would like to pour out in front of someone;. That is what they say; in the olden days; when there was a joint-family system; the children more psychologically healthy; because whenever they had some problem; there was someone or the other and in psychological language, they say, an empty lap was always there; You know what is an empty lap; somebody lap was there always; so that we can go; lie over the lap and cry; and does not matter; or grand mother says; grand father says; chittappa says; periyappa says; somebody or the other.
Now the family is shrinking; therefore empty laps are becoming empty. Because it is a nuclear family; that is why there are explosions; Nuclear means what happens;

explosion; Therefore father is busy; mother is also working busy. So when the child goes to the school, I had a quarrel with a friend; and he beat me, the mother is tired and therefore she also gives one and asks why did you quarrel with that child. As such he had got beating; now two more from the mother also; Therefore the other person need not do anything; we require only an intelligent listener to our problem and who will nod the head at the appropriate time; otherwise you do not know whether it is out of sleep or out of understanding; so personal relationship; psychologically is supposed to be very important and Iṣṭa dēvathā becomes as a back up relationship; you can have relationship at home; but if all of them fail; you can always cry in front of Rāma; Tyagarāja did; Mīra did; and all bhakthas did; and advaitins can also do that.

Śankarācārya does that in Śivananda lahari; he is pouring out as an individual person; and that is called the surrender of the mind at the feet of the Lord; Iṣṭadēvathā bhakthi; but there are times when our emotional personality lies low; but it is the intellectual personality that is dominant and therefore it begins to ask rational questions about God. Then personal God often does not satisfy or we have questions why God created world with lot of deficiencies; So many ticklish problems are there; so when intellect is dominant; then we have to know the real nature of God; God as the absolute reality; which does not have any form; but which is the substratum of all the forms. Therefore when the intellect is dominant; we have got nirguṇam brahma; And when the mind; emotional personality is dominant; we have got saḡuṇa īśvara; Thus keep shifting between saḡuṇa and nirguṇa; Śankarācārya says that

vāranasipura pathim bhaja viśvanātham;

Almost in all slōkās Śankarācārya will talk about saḡuṇa nirguṇa advvitiyam. Therefore use both of them and emotional level Iṣṭa dēvathā will be useful at intellectual level; God as Brahman.

And therefore Krishna says mayyarpitamanōbuddhiḥ; the one whose emotional personality and the one whose rational-intellect, questioning-intellect; both of them are at the feet of the Lord. And Iṣṭa dēvathā bhakthi; devotion towards personal God is always developed through puraṇās alone; for that only they have this ṣṛavanam, kīrthanam viṣṇō; smaranam pāda sevanam; arcanam vandanam dāsyam; sakyam ātma nivedanam. Gods are presented and the avathāra and their leela and the more you read, that particular aspect of the Lord becomes more and more solid, concrete for you. As I had often Tyāgaraja, the idol is not a piece of inert matter; and that is why he was shattered when he lost that; we can argue rationally; After all we can make another one and give donation. It not so; and how can one develop; only through that Bhagavad Gītā śṛavanam it is called; And therefore mayyarpitamanōbuddhiḥ yaḥ mat bhakthaḥ and such a devotee who has the appreciation of eka rūpa and anēka rūpa and arūpa Īśvaraḥ, that person is dearest to me. In fact, dearest is not the word, he is Mē; jñāni tu; always the remember the seventh chapter; jñāni tu ātmaiva mē matam; நான் தான் அவன்; அவன் தான் நான். nāṅ tāṅ avan; avan tāṅ nāṅ.

सः saḥ He यस्मात् yasmāt by whom, लोकः न उद्विजते lokaḥ na udvijate the world is not disturbed, यः च yaḥ ca who न उद्विजते na udvijate is not disturbed, लोकात् lokāt by the world, च यः ca yaḥ and who, मुक्तः muktaḥ is free from, हर्षामर्षभयोद्वेगैः harṣāmarṣabhayodvegaiḥ elation, envy, fear and anxiety, प्रियः मे priyaḥ me is dear to Me.

15. He by whom the world is not disturbed, who is not disturbed by the world, and who is free from elation, envy, fear, and anxiety is dear to Me.

There are two types of people. One type of person is he; who has got a rock like heart; stone like heart; and because his heart is like a rock; whatever experience he gets; he is not affected at all; because his heart is like a stone. Nothing affects him. In fact it is wonderful to have such a firm rock like heart; In fact we pray to the Lord; to get such a heart;

So during upanayanam; the brahmacāri is asked to stand on a rock; அம்மி மிதிக்கல் ammi mitikkal; then standing on he rock, he prays; अतिष्ठेमम् अस्मानम् अस्मेवत्वम् स्तिरो भवः atiṣṭēmam asmānam asmēvatvam stirō bhavaḥ. So the ācārya blesses the student; your heart must be strong enough to withstand the ups and downs; the vicissitudes of life; because you are becoming a responsible citizen; you are going to be a student; then you are come out; you are going to varieties of people; therefore you should have really well immunised heart;

And similarly the girl has to do the same thing at the time of her wedding; there also the same prayer is addressed; only thing the gender is changed; atiṣṭēmam asmānam asmēvatvam sthirā bhavaḥ. There stirō; here sthirā; because the girl is also entering the new family; and there is the mother-in-law; OK; I am not against mother-in-law and there is the sister-in-law or there is brother-in-law; father-in-law; unknown place and unknown people and unless you have rock like heart; the marriage wont last for long. So it is very good to have a rock like heart; and those people enjoy such a heart; and they have the advantage not hurt by any situation. But the problem is they are not heart by others; but since they have a rock like heart; they keep on hurting every other person; because rock. So therefore such people they are not hurt; but they keep hurting every other sensitive person; they are inconsiderate; they are not very careful of their language; because they are not affected; and therefore they think that others are also buffalo skinned like them; This is one type of people who are not hurt but who keeps hurting others.

Now we have got a second variety of people; they have got a very very very tender rose like heart; therefore they are extremely sensitive people; and therefore they are very considerate; therefore they can sense others' emotions; others' pain; they have got empathy And therefore, they are always careful with regard to handling others; they never hurt other people; the sensitive people do not hurt others; because they are sensitive; they can sense the difficulties of others. But what is the problem; since I am too sensitive; and since I am like a rose flower; I get very very easily hurt by others; any word; any casual thing happens; this person does not sleep for days; And that person is not mean anything; he only asked when did you come; or why did you come; and this fellow gives primary commentary; secondary commentary; Perhaps he does not want me to come to the house; that is why he is asking like this; that he is so sensitive and most of the time he is hurt. Like in science we have got sensitive balance; science students will know; which is kept within a glass case because the pointer of the balance is easily disturbed even a fine dirt or a light breeze; that is why they have kept in glass case; and even a part of hair falls on one of the balance, the pointer will not come to the center or rest. Therefore the definition of sensitive balance is that whose pointer never comes to rest.

Similarly a sensitive mind; it has to be kept in glass case; that means no transaction should take place; but how is possible; I am in the wide and wild world; And everybody talks in his own language; being sensitive, I do not hurt others; but I am hurt most of the time; Then what to do; how to handle the situation; either way I am in trouble; if I am gross; I hurt others; if I am sensitive; I am all the time hurt, Then who is jñāni; jñāni Krishna tells: he is like a flower when he handles others; and he is like a rock, when he receives experiences from the world. So as a kartā, he is like a flower; as a boktā, he is like. Kartā means what; I contribute to the world; so when I work in the world; I am sensitive; but at the same time, the sensitivity must be supported by wisdom and maturity; Because the more sensitive you become; the more gross you will see others. Like the musician; you know; a very very advanced musician; he will be adjusting the sṛuti of the tampura, for 45 minutes; kacheri is only 1 hour; But he takes 45 minutes; for us all sṛuti looks the same; he just adjusts and one string he moves little; again he hears, one string down; he is so sensitive that the minutest apasṛuti he can sense.

And therefore the greater the sensitivity, the more you are aware of insensitivity around; and therefore I should learn to accommodate the immaturity of others; if I have chosen to become sensitive. Like if I have a sensitive body; I have to protect it very well; I should not drink any water; Indian people health; is so rough that you drink any water; nothing will happen; but these people live abroad; so crystal clear water and they come to India. Next day, they never come out of bathroom; why; if you are so sensitive; you should also have the protection; Therefore sensitivity should be supported by maturity; maturity means understanding that different people have different levels of maturity and sensitivity;

So therefore, यस्मात् लोकः न उद्विजते yasmāt lokaḥ na udvijate; so jñāni is one who does not disturb the world. So he is so sensitive to the conditions of the people that he does not hurt others deliberately; unknowingly people may get hurt; that is a different thing; So he is so sensitive others' feeling; a considerate person; in simple language; ahimsaka; he does not do any hiṃsa to others. So lokaḥ means the people of the world; na udvijate; are not disturbed; yasmāt means because of this jñāni; the world is not disturbed because of the jñāni, because he is always sensitive and aware of his surroundings.

And at the same time, he is so tender like flower; when it comes to receiving the experiences; people talking nonsense insulting, criticising; when such situation comes, he makes his heart; hard like the Rock of Gibraltar; they say; any amount of waves lashing is not hurt; lokaḥ; because of the various experiences that he receives; na udvijate; he does not get disturbed; that is why there is a beautiful ślōkā on the glory of a jñāni;

वज्रात् अपि कटोराणी

मृदूनि कुसुमदपि ।

लोकोथराणाम् चेतांसि

कोणु विज्ञातुम् अर्हसि ॥

vajrāt api katorāṇī

mṛdūni kusumadapi |

lōkōtharāṇām cētāṁsi

kōṇu vijñātum arhasi ||

Jñāni's heart is harder than even a diamond; When it comes to receiving experiences, he is so firm; he is not disturbed; and at the same time, mṛdūni kusumadapi; he is more tender than even a flower when he is handling; But the problem is: many people in the world are the other way round; when they handle others' they are katorāṇī; when they receive experiences, mṛdūni; that is greater problem; so यस्मान्नो yasmānnō he does not hurt; in simple English, he does not; he is not hurt. This is the glory of jñāni.

And since he does not hurt; he does not have guilt also in life; only when we hurt others, we develop guilt; therefore jñāni is free from both hurt and the guilt which are too powerful mind disturbing emotions; hurt and guilt; jñāni is free from both.

Then हर्षामर्षभयोद्वेगैः मुक्तः harṣāmarṣabhayodvegaiḥ muktaḥ; muktaḥ means free; liberated; released. So jñāni is muktaḥ; so that word is common; jīvan muktaḥ; generally doubt whenever we say a jñāni is a liberated person free person, the question comes free from what; Does it mean free from family that he becomes a sanyāsi; that he is free from regular dress; that he has got kāṣaya vasthram; what do mean by free; free means free from what the question comes. Krishna gives the definition; we are not talking of freedom from external things; that is not the primary thing; internal freedom alone we are talking; vēdānta is bothered about your inner freedom; inner freedom from what; four items are enumerated here; harṣa amarṣa bhaya udvegaḥ. These are the four terrible things which can make the mind a bāram, a burden for me; and what are those:

the first one is harṣaḥ; harṣaḥ means excitement; over excitement; elation; What is difference between excitement and over excitement; Over excitement is that type of happiness; in which I loose my discriminative power; any emotion which cloudes the discriminative power is inimical to us; because ultimately the greatest wealth Bhagavān has given to us is viveka śakthi; discriminative power. Come what; I should never allow emotions to rob my discriminative power; So even excitement or happiness, if it goes beyond limits and I lose myself and I lose my discriminative power; then it is a danger. What is the danger; when I lose my discriminative power; I forget the fact that the greatest excitement is also temporary; that is the fact; and if I forget the fact that it is temporary; I am not required to loose it; I expect that to be permanently with me; which is a wrong expectation; And wrong expectation is born out of what; indiscrimination; And wrong expectation will always create shock in life because I expect things to be permanent; and that goes away; I am shattered; And therefore harṣaḥ is also not good; even physically, even from the standpoint of health angle, elation or excitement is not good; you would have heard of people who died of heart attack by hearing good news; so one person contested election regularly and got defeated; and after several times defeat; 27th time or 28th time; he was enjoying that; and then one time, that I am not going to win; some mistake perhaps, he won; and he was so happy; that he died of heart attack; and in cricket watchers also sometimes, die out of over excitement caused by not defeat; caused by victory; therefore, over excitement is not even good for heart; and therefore what to talk of spirituality; therefore harṣaḥ.

Then the next problem is amarṣa; amarṣa means intolerance; restlessness; impatient; etc. And that is another problem that we face; the more dynamic and perfect a person is; the more disturbed that person is; because he is used to getting things done in a day and half a day; he is dynamic; immediately he goes there; makes a phone call; does this. So he has such a way of doing things; that anybody is little slow; he cannot stand; so you will find dynamic people are generally irritable; and perfectionist also; perfectionism is very good; but we should remember, perfectionism is very rare. Therefore when I become a perfectionist, I want the pen to be in its place, and also how it should be; downside up or upside down; and then generally they get the children who are just the opposite; you have to keep it properly; Perfectionism is very good; but if I do not have patience and accommodation; it can be really a problem because, generally I am irritable; and if anybody is slow in doing things; at home the wife, he asks for a cup of coffee; and she says; coming; moment he says coffee; she should be in front with the coffee with the right temperature; Otherwise things will fly; many people they are very good; achievers; but very very irritable; So therefore amarṣa; perfectionism should go with tolerance; patience; because everybody has to grow in his own or her own pace; you cannot make everyone perfect overnight; that does not we should be loose everything; he need not be extreme.

Therefore amarṣa means irritability; and that you can generally see in traffic signals; in fact many people do not believe in signals and they think that it is a road decoration; but there are some people who still follow; but what do they do; as even the time goes inch inch; they come almost in the middle of the road; and if there are people behind, the moment green signal comes; honk honk; honk; you can see even today you watch; the moment red turns green; there will be one driver who will immediately horn as though we are enjoying the stay there; we are going to start; when there are so many cars; each car has to start; cumulatively it will take half a minute; half a minute; the IT people you know; in half a minute, he can achieve so much, so he is intolerant; Therefore inner leisure is called freedom from amarṣa; and constantly looking at the watch also; That is I why stop the class at 7 o'clock; OK; very time conscious; one minute excess, they are intolerant; I do not want to disturb those people and anyway, I will take 1-2 minutes and stop; I am aware of the time.

So the next one is: bhayam; so bhayam is fear; insecurity; this is one; Someone is horning or what; So bhayam means insecurity; fear which is innate in everyone; right from the womb we have got the sense of insecurity; that is why the child clings to the mother all the time; and if the mother is not there. I do not know whether you have watched the interesting thing, that child will keep the bit of mother's sari and walks around; that sari represents mother.

And this continues even now, because unfortunately, from physical plane, we are vulnerable; it is a truth; that physically we are never hundred percent secure; our physical body is fragile; that any situation can affect our body; little bit weather changes cough starts; or this or that; and above all; kālah is there; therefore we should remember physically we are ever insecure; that is a fact; even if there is a great medical advancement; they can never make the physical body immortal; there were ayurvedic vaidyās who talked about kāya kalpam; kāya kalpam is system by which you make your body immortal; and the authors of those works have died! Very clear.

After talking about the five stages bhakthi yōga, now Lord Krishna is talking about a person who has successfully gone all the stages of bhakthi yōga; and therefore he is the highest bhaktha whom we call parā bhakthaḥ, or advaita bhaktha or abēda bhakthaḥ or jñāni bhakthaḥ; a bhaktha in the highest level is necessarily a jñāni; and the jñānam or knowledge that he enjoys is that the Lord in his original nature is not away from me; and in fact, is not different from me in my original nature. And because of this wisdom; and this advaita bhakthi; this person enjoys a particular benefit or phalam; which the scriptures call jīvan mukthiḥ or mōkṣaḥ. And first thing we have to note here is that this benefit is something promised after death. If it is promised after death; we will never whether we will get or not; there is no way of verification at all; but here the benefit promised are here and now; and all benefits enjoyed by this jīvan muktha are the benefit at the mental level. We are not talking about certain mystical benefits, or certain types of miraculous powers etc. In fact Krishna does not mention about siddhi or miraculous powers. jīvan mukthi is enjoying a mind which is free from all the regular emotional disturbances. And what are the regular emotional disturbances which everyone goes through; which we put together called samsāra. They are nothing but samsāra; basic self-inadequacy. Not being happy with the present as I am; leading to krōdhaḥ; leading to lōbhaḥ; leading to mōhaḥ; leading to madaḥ, mātsaryaḥ. These are all the permanent disturbances which afflict us all during the waking hours. And therefore Krishna defines mōkṣa as freedom from these fundamental mental problems; fundamental problems. And that what is enumerating in the fifteenth verse which we were seeing in the last class.

Krishna mentioned four of the fundamental and chronic mental disturbances that we suffer from; they are harṣā, amarṣa, bhaya and udvṛgaiḥ. This constant fluctuating emotion; at one time, I am very hyped; I am extremely elated harṣāḥ and at another time, I am at the bottom of the world; amarṣaḥ; like a cricket match. So one wicket they take on the top and the other person hits a sixer on the bottom and again hopes are raised and again it comes down; this up-swinging mood all the time; and if they win, the series is going to be dropped; if we win, I am really happy that so many students came to the class; And I won't be surprised if a late comer is asked; what is the latest score. So therefore this swinging up and down constantly, and if this happens to according to my will and plan, it is an enjoyable game. But all these are happening, not with my control; I have to helplessly go through such situation, is called samsāra.

Therefore harṣā we talked about, next one is amarṣa; which I talked about; amarṣa is intolerance; intolerance at several levels and at the level of game. Intolerance is I cannot accept the success of the opposite party. If I cannot decently fail; decently succeeding is easy; but decency in failure is the most difficult thing; and that is called amarṣa; envy, I cannot accept the utkarṣa or better situation of other people. Especially if that person is my rival; if Pakistan and Australia plays cricket, I want Australia to win; You know why; it should be like that; para utkarṣam dṛiṣṭva, jāyamānaḥ santhāpaḥ amarṣa. When another person is thriving and I am not able to reach his level in that field, I cannot stand it. The very topic disturbs my mind; in fact I look for something to criticise; if somebody comes and tells that he is so great; then I add; do you know his private life: So always find something to put that person down; So this tendency; this jealousy; this envy is also called amarṣaḥ; and there is no remedy for jealousy; perhaps for all other, what you call weakness we might have a remedy, for jealousy, it is very very difficult to find a remedy; and that is why in all fields. Even in spiritual field it can happen; I have got hundred devotees but the other one has got hundred and ten; problem. So jealousy is a problem at all levels; to be free from that and to admire another person's superiority, and that too in my field; a doctor can admire the superiority of a cricketer; no problem; superiority of a musician; no problem; but in the same field; when somebody is superior, it is very very difficult to accept; that is why they tell; that doctors' do not listen; doctors do not misunderstand; doctor joke they say; a patient came; said I have got this problem; I went to that particular doctor first; so this person considers the other doctor an enemy; he is a foolish doctor; what advice did he give you; he asked me to come to you; what; what foolish advice he gave you; he asked me to come to you; like that a musician cannot appreciate another musician; A swami sometimes cannot accept another swami; it is a very big problem. You know what is mōkṣa; freedom from this; what a wonderful state of mind; you have got a good word about everyone; somebody asked what about that swami; everybody has got some wonderful character; he is doing that wonderful job; one swami may be serving the society another swami may be teaching; another swami may be using miracles for good purposes also; So therefore, the capacity to admire and have a good word for everyone is a wonderful character; which a jñāni enjoys;

Bhṛthari says: With a magnifying glass, a noble person looks at with a minutest good quality of others and their minus point, he sees with a concave lense. We also have both these lenses; but the problem is where we use what; that is the problem; whenever good virtues are there; concave lense we use; and minus minutest drawback, magnified. That is called samsāra; and therefore harṣād mukthaḥ; amarṣād mukthaḥ; free from envy.

And next one is bhayād mukthaḥ; so that word mukthaḥ must be added to each one. So the next problem is what; bhayam; fundamental insecurity; innate fear; which starts from our babyhood itself; and which continues until the last moment; constant nagging fear; and Bhṛthari in one of his ṣatakams (Vairāgya ṣatakam) talks about fear and says: The fear is because we hold on to wrong things and most of the things we hold on to; causes one form of fear or the other. And he gives a list of things which we generally hold on to; and how they all cause fear;

भोगे रोगभयं कुले च्युतिभयं वित्ते नृपालाद्भयं

माने दैन्यभयं बले रिपुभयं रूपे जराया भयम् ।

bhōgē rōgabhayam kulē cyutibhayam vittē nṛpālādbhayam

śāstrē vādibhayam guṇē khalabhayam kāyē kṛtāntādbhayam

sarvam vastu bhayānvitam bhuvi nṛṇām vairāgyāmēvābhayam || 31 ||

You can understand most of the words; bhōgē rōgabhayam; If you have a gala time, enjoying all sense pleasures; then it leads to what; this will create pressure, that will create sugar; that will cause decay to the teeth; that will cause this; this will cause that; etc. In fact all the items you like are generally not good for health. And only thing good for health, they will say: pavakkai bitter or puzhanikkai, which does not have any taste; all those things they will say wonderful; and whatever we like they say not good for health; So bhōgē rōgabhayam; it is nice to sit in front of TV and watch movie after movie all the time; but even though one may enjoy that; it creates varieties of problem; bhayam. kulē cyutibhayam; So if I am very very proud of my family lineage; kula gothra etc. that my father is ganapādi; my grand father is a jata vallabha; my great grand father is an agnihotri; you belong to such a great family. So I am so much proud of the family; that there is a constant fear that the children must protect the prestige of the family; what will they do; I am afraid; when we were growing up, we were under the control of the parents; but now they are all free without control அழிச்சிவிட்ட மாடுமாதிரிதான். Now we do not know what they will do tomorrow in the name of freedom; in the name of culture; whom they are going to marry; who is going to come; how they are going to leave the life; whether they will keep the sacred thread at all; all those things I am worried; and if they get married; what type of family I will get related to; I want to be proud of my sambhandis also. And in the Indian society all these matters, to maintain the prestige; often the choice of the bride or bridegroom is more for the maintenance of the prestige; than other things, What will the society think; Dayananada swami says: our biggest problem is what will the others say: and therefore constant fear is there. And if the children do something; I want to cover it up and unfortunately, this news will spread farther than; faster than, fastest Concorde airplane. Whatever you do good, that will not go; but these things somehow will spread; then I do not want to attend public functions; I cannot show my face outside. Should I survive at all; all these things; kulē cyutibhayam; cyuti means what; falling from grace or prestige. vittē ṅṛpālādbhayam; when I have plenty of money, tax bhayam; ṅṛpāla means king or government; And therefore I have to find out various methods of getting out of that problem; And therefore I do this; and I do that. And I put in some financial company; who promises 35% and then I do not get even 0%; all gone; money gone; vittē ṅṛpālādbhayam; mānē dainyabhayam. If I become famous, it is really a enjoyable thing; getting fame is enjoyable; but the thing is the more honoured I am; the more I am worried about my dishonour; as an ordinary person I can come and sit in any crowd. Anywhere no problem, but once I have become a VIP of some status; I cannot go anywhere I like; I should be welcomed; properly honoured; taken to the stage; offered a seat etc. Will they give a proper asana for me? if that is not there; what will happen to my honour; therefore more famous I become, more I have fear about dishonour; and that is why people also can blackmail; I will stories about you; so therefore do this; otherwise I will do this blackmail also. Therefore, mānē dainyabhayaṁ; dainya means apamānam. As Arjuna says: sambhāvitasya cākīrtimaraṇādatiricyatē. A person who has been honored, losing that honour is worse than even death; therefore mānam is good or bad; mānam is good; but apamaanam; bhayam it brings in. So mānē dainyabhayaṁ balē ripubhayaṁ; if I am a king with a big army; I am all the time afraid of the neighboring kingdom; which may attack. Therefore constantly there is a fear of a rival king; even if we have bhalam as power and position in life; then also we have got fear of rivals. If there is a possibility of elevation in my power and position, there is always somebody who does not like that. In every company there will be there; they will tell some stories to the boss; you have to give me the promotion. And then what happens; the rival, the competitor, whether he gets promotion or not; he does not want me to promoted; then I lost. Therefore fear of competition and rivalry is natural if you go to any field of power and position. That is why they call it power politics; where power comes; politics comes, rivalry comes. Therefore that bhayam is natural; So mānē dainyabhayaṁ; bhale ripu bhayam; ripuhu means rivals; competitor, enemy. Then rūpē jarāyā bhayam; so if I love my body; and its beauty (doubtful whether it is); I love my body, its figure, its height, its weight, its complexion and also the black hair; So all I have fallen in love; because nowadays your look matters. There are beauty parlours previously females, now for males also; So hundreds and thousands of rupees are spent; just to give facials; etc. Swamiji, how do you know, do not ask! Therefore all those things; how to cover up wrinkles; somebody defined powder as that which will not allow the other people read between lines! reading between lines; means your age; So therefore your age should not be shown and so many things are coming; it is a very big industry. And for all those people who are attached to the body; the greatest enemy is jara; jara means what: old age. How long you can cheat; it is impossible. Therefore यश्रीव तिष्ठति जरा परिथर्जयन्ति yagrīva tiṣṭati jarā paritharjayanti; the old age is waiting to deform the body; so rūpē jarāyā bhayam.

Then what about śāstra; various sciences fields of various sciences either in our scriptural field or even in scientific field; śāstrē vādibhayaṁ; when I am committed to various sciences and the theories; I am afraid of the other people in the field, who have got rivals theory; therefore vādibhayaṁ; so I am afraid of vādis; challengers; Any theory I hold there is a challenger; you read the newspaper, somebody comes and tells; coconut oil is bad;aa and another does research and says; generally must be Kerala, I think, coconut oil is good; coffee is bad; somebody comes and tell coffee is good; another person says liquor is bad; somebody says little bit is good for heart. So any theory you have, there is somebody to challenge that theory. Therefore śāstrē vādibhayaṁ; fear of challengers; guṇē khalabhayaṁ; if I am a dhārmic person; trying to follow some values some religion some spirituality; unfortunately maturity of people, others; they are not interested in that; and therefore they begin to put me down; they laugh at me; they fear; our children face this problem; they want to be traditional; vibūthi kumkum, etc. but there are other friends who do not admire that; What is this you are a saint or something what? Tell children tell like that; and then our child; therefore just before going to school, he removes that; because the other people tease; peer pressure; The more you try to follow this path; there are other people to distract; the other people to criticise; the other people to put you down; and if I have go forward in spite of this obstacle, it is an uphill task; Therefore guṇē khalabhayaṁ; For a dharmic person; the adharmic people are always there to do parihāsa; so guṇē khalabhayaṁ; and kāyē kṛtāntādbhayaṁ. If I am attached to the physical body; previously we talked about attached to the shape and beauty of the body; then the fear is of old age but if I am attached to the body itself. Then the fear is from whom; kāyē kṛtāntādbhayaṁ; kṛtāntā means what; Yamadharma rājaḥ who comes without advance notice; Should he not come with a letter; he does not give any notice; therefore I do not know when he will come.

Therefore Bhṛthari says that anything you hold on to in the perishable creation; you had it; and therefore what is the only source of fearlessness; vairāgyāmēvābhayaṁ; vairāgyam, learn to depend on yourselves; self-dependence; standing on your own foot; strengthening your own personality; so that you need not throw the world away; but you handle them as long as they are available; enjoy them as long as they are available; but you do not lean upon them. Because everything but who does not lean on anything; therefore there is no fear at all. I have given you the example; the 2nd chapter; two people using a stick; one person goes for an early morning walk; he also uses a stick; he does not call it a stick; a baton; early morning usage. I do not know whether you have seen that; stylishly like an Inspector carries; stylishing walks; he holds that but he does not lean upon that. Therefore even if the stick falls down; nothing happens to him; he can take and walk; but imagine there is another person who holds the stick and heavily leans upon the stick. When the stick falls; this person also falls. So one holds; another leans. Similarly, psychologically, you lean on anything; fear is inevitable; you hold on any number of things; no problem at all. So only ask the question am I holding; am I leaning; if I am leaning; bhayam is evitable; jñāni does not lean. So harṣa; amarṣa, bhaya; bhaya means fear.

And the next one is udvēgaḥ; udvēgaḥ means mental disturbance; sorrow, anxiety; caused by either amarṣa; or bhayam etc. all these negative emotions cause sorrow; mental disturbance; one who is free from the mental disturbances caused by all these things; Such a person is para bhakthaḥ; advaita bhakthaḥ.

And how did this jñāni achieve that. Krishna does not mention that here; but it is a very very gradual process; as I have said the seventh chapter, the travel is gradually from world dependence to God dependence to self-dependence; First learn to switch the dependence from the world to God; which is a better and safer dependence, because all the other things are subject to end; but not God. And thereafter I discover that Lord in myself; and once I discover the Lord in myself; God dependence will become equal to self-dependence. And self-dependence is independence. So therefore mukthaḥ; that person is dearest to me;

सर्वारम्भपरित्यागी यो मद्भक्तः स मे प्रियः ॥ १२.१६ ॥

anapēkṣaḥ śucirdakṣa udāsīnō gatavyathaḥ |

sarvārambhaparityāgī yō madbhaktaḥ sa mē priyaḥ || 12.16 ||

सः मद्भक्तः saḥ madbhaktaḥ that devotee of Mine यः अनपेक्षः yaḥ anapekṣaḥ who is independent, शुचिः śuciḥ pure दक्षः dakṣaḥ efficient उदासीनः udāsīnaḥ impartial गतव्यथः gatavyathaḥ undisturbed, free from sorrow, सर्वारम्भपरित्यागी sarvārambhaparityāgī free from all selfish activities प्रियः मे priyaḥ me is dear to Me.

16. That devotee of Mine who is independent, pure, resourceful, efficient, impartial, undisturbed, and a renouncer of all actions is dear to Me.

The one who is not emotionally dependant on any external factors to be happy; and since he is not dependant on external factors; absolutely there are no expectations also. Dependence expresses in the form of expectation. If you do not depend upon something, for example, cigarette; naturally, I do not have any expectation of a cigarette at a particular time, before food, after food, in the night time. So for some people, whenever they have tension; OK; if they smoke, the tension goes, they believe; I do not know.

When I depend on something, naturally I have expectation. And freedom from dependence; freedom from expectations. And freedom from expectations means freedom from disappointments also. Therefore ultimately freedom frustrations in life is possible only when I do not have any form of expectations. I want the children to be like that. Expectation need not be on things only; even if I expect a person to behave in a particular way; that is a form of expectation; the children should get 99.99% in every subject. First rank all the time; is it possible?; you are not sure; so even if your expectation is fulfilled in one field, your expectation is not fulfilled in another field.

Or if at all you want to have expectations; Śāstra says have expectations; a comprise; first version is what: Do not have at all; then what is your expectation; āgathe svagatham kuryāt; whatever comes, svagatham; If at all you want to have expectation; Śāstra says let those expectations be non-binding expectations; by which what we mean is: If it is fulfilled; wonderful; if it is not fulfilled also; I am willing to take that; Oh Lord; this is my preference; if this happens I will be very happy; if it does not happen also; I am willing to accept. Therefore developing the mental strength to hope for the best; and be prepared for the worst also; as they talk about stoic philosopher; if the expectation does not happen; First he asks: What: terrible news; he hears; some tragedy; Wha....t.; because he expected something to happen; it did not happen; child's CA examination.... and the CA is one thing; So this person failed in CA for 28th time and he came out and there was this board on the road outside: Jesus Never Fails: and this man wrote underneath; Let him try CA. So frustrated he was; he got angry with Jesus also; so natural what; so śāstra says what: but after a few minutes, we should be able to ask: so what; I will try again; I will change; there is always one way or another; this resilience of the mind is what is required. Not that we should be totally free from disappointment; disappointments are naturally; but the capacity to come out of it is inner strength.

And therefore अनपेक्षः anapēkṣaḥ means one who is free from all expectations; or one who is free from binding expectations; so anapekṣaḥ;

Then the next word is suchiḥ; suchiḥ means the one who is clean; externally and internally. So jñāni does not mean that he should be careless about things; So the one who is clean externally and internally; externally means the place he stays, the dress he wears, etc. and more than external cleanliness is: internal Cleanliness; that means thoughts are in keeping with dharma; dhārmica vrithayaḥ; is शुचिः śuciḥ;

Then the next word: उदासीनः udāsīnaḥ; udāsīnaḥ literally means indifference; but this word has got a negative connotation. So we should not take in that sense; here udāsīnaḥ or indifferent means, the one who is not partial; an impartial person; the one who is not a pakṣapāthi; the one who does not belong to any groupism. The society is full of groupism; politics; there are 10 people; then 3 people will join and form a group; and often the topic is what:

If it is Gītā it would have been good; but this group talks about the other group; and the other group talks about this group, and this politics is so natural; so udāsīnaḥ means one who does not belong to any group at all; Apakṣapāthi is udāsīnaḥ; the one who does not belong to anyone; and the one belongs to everyone; udāsīnaḥ; neutral; impartial.

Then gatavyathaḥ; the one who is free from sorrow; whatever be the type of experience that he faces; he knows that we do not have control over our experiences. Even the greatest jñāni does not have control over his experiences because experiences are determined by dēśa, kāla and prārabdha. So in winter, it will be cold; in summer, it will be hot; during rainy seasons, rains will be there. These are all depending upon dēśa and kāla; nobody can control; and there is the third factor called prārabdha.

Even jñāni's life is governed by prārabdha and therefore prarabdha brings favourable as well as unfavourable situations. Jñānam does not make all the situations favourable. So let us not have such an expectation: "After jñānam all situations will be converted into favourable situations". It is not. Vēdānta cannot change the world and situations; Vēdānta will help me in developing a healthy attitude towards all situations. So the change will not be external but the change will be in my attitude towards the situations.

And what is the attitude; as I told you during the new year talk, any experience that Bhagavan gives me; it is meant for my spiritual progress. This is one universal law. We have got one ultimate goal in life; and that is spiritual growth; and we all require different experiences for spiritual growth. Just as different seeds require different types of weather conditions for its growth; one seed requires lot of rain; another requires dry weather. It varies. Similarly we all require different types of experience for our spiritual growth; sometimes health; sometimes sickness; sometimes addition in the family; sometimes in the deletion; somebody dies. Every experience is specially chosen for me; by the sarvajñāna sarvaśakthiman īśvaraḥ. And an īśvaraḥ who never knows injustice. Therefore Lord can never be unjust; It is only for me, certain things appear unjust because I have got only a limited vision. I am not omniscient; I am not sure of even the spelling of omniscient சொல்லியிருக்கேனே இல்லையோ?; Therefore how can I say a particular experience is good or bad for me. It is only superficial judgement. Therefore let me not pass judgment upon what Bhagavān sends to me. Therefore my philosophy is: "whatever experience Bhagavān gives me, I have to learn something from that"

And therefore my question is why people are behaving like that is not question; Why death happens is not questioned; why robbery happens is not the question; why people leave me is not the question. My question is: from such an experience what spiritual lesson have I to learn? I may ask hundreds of other questions; Better not ask; even if you ask other questions; the final most important fundamental question is even if it is the most tragic experience; what valid spiritual lesson am I supposed to learn from this. And when I ask this question; I will find that from tragic experiences only; the really we learn more.

In fact, Arjuna himself learnt the lesson, that he requires Bhagavad Gītā; when did he learn; when he faced the tragic situation of killing his own kith and kin; wonderful Bhagavat Gītā śāstram. And that is why even sorrow becomes a spiritual sadana. The first chapter is titled Arjuna viṣāda yōgaḥ; we have heard karma yōga and bhakthi yōga; first chapter is called viṣāda yōga; That means what even sorrow is a spiritual sādānā, if I am willing to learn a spiritual lesson from even the most sorrowful experience; and therefore from jñāni's angle, no experience is unwelcome; he welcomes all experiences; Therefore गतव्यथः gatavyathaḥ he is free from negative reactions called "Why me?"; Why me reactions; all the other people are having gala time; you think that; go and interview them. If your story is Rāmayaṇam; their story is Mahabhāratham; but we always feel that everybody is having a good time. And Bhagavān is specially selecting the experiences for me; So there is no why me; so gatavyathaḥ;

Then सर्वारम्भपरित्यागी sarvārambhaparityāgī; the one who has given up all the āramba; āramba means binding actions; karma; bandaka karmāni.

What are the binding actions? Any action that you do thinking that once the action becomes successful my life will become complete; once that karma produces successful result; my life would become poorna. With this attitude; for the sake of pūrṇatvam; when you do any karma, it is a binding karma; no karma or karma phalam can really give pūrṇatvam. All these we have discussed several times before; because action is finite; result is finite; I am already finite; finite plus finite is equal to: apūrṇam plus apūpūrṇarṇam புர்ணம் வருமோ? Will it become pūrṇam? Finite by an addition cannot become infinite; And therefore if I am going to expect pūrṇatvam; that expectation is not going to be fulfilled; I will get the karma phalam and further desire something more something more something more:

फलमशाश्वतं गतिनिरोधकम् ॥ २ ॥

kṛtimahōdadhau patanakāraṇam |
phalamaśāśvataṁ gatinirōdhakam || 2 ||

I will become a workholic; thinking that after this it will be over; after this it will be over. You will find you will never be able to get out of that. And therefore the life becomes a struggle; any action for fulfilment is a struggle or bondage; and jñāni has understood this fact. And therefore he never does anything for fulfilment and all actions comes out of this fulfilment.

So I am pūrṇaḥ; and I am taking up a new venture; and as even I am taking up a venture; I am pūrṇaḥ; the venture may succeed; I am pūrṇaḥ; the venture may fail; I am pūrṇaḥ; So pūrṇatvam becomes a way of life; it is no more a destination of life;

pūrṇatvam as destination makes the life miserable; pūrṇatvam as a way of life makes life a leela; thus jñāni enjoys doing things; sarvārambhaparityāgī; यो मद्भक्तः yō madbhaktaḥ; and such a devotee of mine is मे प्रियः mē priyaḥ; he is dearest to me.

Om

In the second part of the 12th chapter of the Gītā, beginning from the 13th verse, Lord Krishna talks about the characteristics of the highest bhaktha the highest bhakth being one who has gone through all the five levels of bhakthi yōga; and the final level of bhakthi yōga being nothing but jñāna yōgaḥ. And therefore the one who has successfully gone through all the five levels of bhakthi yōga will necessarily be a jñāni, who was called a sthira prajñā in the 2nd chapter. And we were seeing the 16th verse:

sarvārambhaparityāgī yō madbhaktaḥ sa mē priyaḥ||12.16||

anapēkṣaḥ; he is not emotionally dependent on any external factors; the one who is emotionally self-sufficient; the one who can freely give love to other people; but the one who does not seek love from others; if they love him wonderful; if it is otherwise, their problem; as far as he is concerned, his source of love is himself only; he has got an UPS system of love; and uninterrupted love supply: ULS;

Similarly he is śuciḥ; śuciḥ means a master of his own mind; that he does not allow any thought which will disturb his mental health;

Then dakṣaḥ; I do not know whether I dealt with the word dakṣaḥ in the last class: I think I left off; the word dakṣaḥ means one who is efficient in all situations. The one who does take appropriate action at every situation.

Generally a samsāri gets into two extremes; one extreme is taking impulsive reaction when there are situations. When there is some problem; or somebody misbehaves;

this person is totally carried away and therefore without using any discriminative power; impulsively he takes action and often the steps that he takes happen to be unjust or inappropriate action. It will be inappropriate because in impulsive actions, discriminative power is not used; and this impulsive response we call reaction. Being carried away by the situation; this is one extreme.

The other extreme is whatever be the situation; this person puts up with the all the problem that he faces; he allows other people to exploit him; in the name of goodness and compassion.

Vēdānta never says: you should allow yourselves to be exploited by others. Vēdānta never says you should be a victim of injustice in the name of compassion and forgiveness. And this putting up with all nonsense; that is the other extreme; inaction; passivity.

So one is: I become a door mat and the other is, I punch everybody's nose; These are the two extremes; one I can call; the other one I call inaction; Vēdānta says: reaction is also wrong; inaction is also wrong; what is required is appropriate action; you need not put up with nonsense; but that does not mean that you should impulsively take action; think very well; give enough time; if somebody has committed some wrong action; allow him to defend himself; We have no right to punish another person without asking for an explanation; even the worst criminal is allowed to defend himself in a court, Because everybody is innocent unless otherwise provēd. Therefore just because I have got power over someone; I cannot depend on one sided report and based on one-sided report; I cannot punish another person, I have to enquire; I have to ask and if punishment has to be given, as Lord Krishna tells Arjuna; hey Arjuna, Duryōdhana requires punishment; you have to give.

Ahiṁsa should not be abused; abuse of ahiṁsa is also wrong. If Duryōdhana requires punishment, you should give after proper enquiry; and if Duryōdhana can be corrected through non-violent methods. Give a chance to a non-violent remedy first; and only when non-violent remedies fail; you have a right to make use of violent remedy and if violent remedy has to be used; you have to use it;

And this capacity to think well and without any impulsiveness; taking appropriate action is called dakṣatvam. Śankarācārya translates it as pratyutpanna madhi. Taking appropriate steps in any situation and every situation; Not be carried away by rāga and dvēṣa. So this appropriate response with the help of a mind; which is unclouded by rāga dvēṣa; is called dakṣatvam. Appropriate response with the help of a mind which is unclouded by rāga dvēṣa is dakṣatvam.

And the later words I explained, udāsīnaḥ; the one who is always impartial; gathavyathaha; the one who is not concerned about future; and sarvārambhaparityāgī; the one who has given up all binding actions is called a parā bhaktha. And such a bhaktha is dear to me; up to this we saw in the last class.

Continuing.

यो न हृष्यति न द्वेष्टि न शोचति न काङ्क्षति ।

शुभाशुभपरित्यागी भाक्तिमान्यः स मे प्रियः ॥ १२.१७ ॥

yō na hr̥ṣyati na dvēṣṭi na śōcati na kāṅkṣati |

śubhāśubhaparityāgī bhaktimān yaḥ sa mē priyaḥ || 12.17 ||

सः भक्तिमान् saḥ bhaktimān that devotee यः न हृष्यति yaḥ na hr̥ṣyati who neither rejoices न शोचति na śōcati nor grieves न काङ्क्षति na kāṅkṣiti neither desires, न द्वेष्टि na dveṣṭi nor hates यः शुभाशुभपरित्यागी yaḥ śubhāśubhaparityāgī and gives up good and evil प्रियः मे priyaḥ me is dear to Me.

17. The devotee who neither rejoices nor grieves, neither desires nor hates, and gives up good and evil is dear to Me.

The one who is free from extreme emotional reactions to situations; यः न हृष्यति yaḥ na hr̥ṣyati and यः न शोचति yaḥ na śōcati; those two words should be read together; hr̥ṣyati and śōcati. And similarly the word द्वेष्टि dveṣṭi and काङ्क्षति kāṅkṣiti should go together; na hr̥ṣyati; na śōcati means the one who is not overpowered by elation and depression. So when favourable situations come; certainly we will be happy; nothing wrong; we are exited; very nice. Similarly unfavourable situations we are certainly disturbed. So these two conditions are natural; but what Krishna says that these emotional responses should not be too intense to cloud your discriminative power; because one thing that we have to remember is under all circumstances our intellect must be intact; the greatest wealth of a human being is discriminative power; viveka śakthiḥ. That is why Śankarācārya calls it; vivekachūdamaniḥ. It is this discriminative power; which differentiates human beings from all others; and therefore what Vēdānta says is emotional upheavals are natural; but these upheavals should not go beyond a limit to cloud your discriminative power. Like when Daśarathā said that Rāma should go to forest; Lakṣmaṇa naturally got wild and angry, because Rāma's pattābhiṣēkam was fixed; and Kaikeyi asked for some old boons; and Daśarathā became a temporarily a hen pecked husband and he said OK; I will send Rāma to the forest; and all the people were unhappy; Lakṣmaṇa also was unhappy and angry and you have to see Lakṣmaṇa's outburst at that time; he violently explodes and uses all kinds of language against his own father Daśarathā; and he says that at this moment, I will cut off Daśarathā's head. This is where emotional upheavals make his intellect clouded and Rāma has to take lot of effort to cool down Lakṣmaṇa. Thus we also are bound to be angry at the moment; but the anger should not cloud my discriminative power. Or at least I should have sufficient discriminative power to know that my discriminative power is getting clouded. So that I can tell now I am extremely angry; I feel like exploding; and using language against people who are to be respected. Therefore I should have that much balance to postpone my response. So I am angry; I will not take any step now; I will postpone my response, That much balance; in psychological language, we call it inner space; inner space means to have that much mental balance to know that my mind is going out of balance. So that I may take rest; so that when a person is driving the car and he is having some giddiness: they say that if you feel giddy; keep the car on one side; park for sometime; but he must have sufficient self-control to keep the car on one side; if it has gone beyond his control; he gets into accidents. So he does not have that much control to continue driving; but he has got sufficient control; to keep the car on one side; Similarly when I am driving in my life, often we get emotional upheavals but I should have sufficient balance; but now my mind is not sufficiently alright; let me be careful in my talking. If I feel like blasting someone and phoning someone; Do not phone up now; if you feel like sending a violent email; postpone it; that much balance if you have; you are master of your mind. Nobody says you should be free from emotional disturbance; Krishna only says be aware of it when it comes and learn to be careful; And that is called not being carried away by harṣa and sōkhā; so yo na hr̥ṣyati na śocati; and

rāga dvēṣa; freedom from binding expectations; Here also we should be careful; Nobody can be totally free from expectations; everybody has expectations; So what I would have through my business; and how my children should grow up; and what my health should be in my old age; we all have expectations; it is natural. Krishna himself tells in the 4th chapter; Indriyāsya īndriyārthē, rāga dvēṣau vyavasthithau. Rāga dvēṣa is natural; you can easily find out, if you go to a buffet lunch or dinner. Varieties of dishes are there; and everybody is given a plate, each one rushes to his own rāga dvēṣa; one straight away goes to gulabjamun; another goes to roti; another goes to idli; another goes to bun; another goes to something. In fact, if you take Gods also; even they have got for each dēvathā they will dēvathā; pāyasam favourites; this dēvathā vadai favourite. So even Gods have favourite dishes; pāyasāna priyā tvakstha paśu loka bhayankari; one of the Lalitha Sahasranama is pāyasāna priyā. That means what; Lalitha also has got rāgaḥ; So then where are we; what is in having rāga and dvēṣa; and therefore Vēdānta says: have expectations; but be prepared for their fulfilment as well as their non-fulfilment; because only you can plan for the future; you can contribute to your future; but you cannot control your future; And since future is not under your control; you should be prepared for the non-fulfilment of the expectation. That is why we have a well known saying: Hope for the best and be prepared for the worst. This farsightedness; this mental preparedness; this shock absorber. Having that is here referred to as: na dvēṣṭi na kāṅkṣati. So he is free from binding rāga dvēṣa.

Then शुभाशुभपरित्यागी śubhāśubhaparitāgī; the one who has given up puṇyam and pāpam; śubhaam means puṇyam and aśubhaam means pāpam because from vēdantic angle; puṇyam and pāpam both are bondage only; no doubt puṇyam will give svargalōka phalam; higher lokas and enjoyment. But even that is considered to be bondage; ते तम् भुक्त्वा स्वर्गलोकं विशालम्, क्षीणे पुण्ये मर्त्य लोखम् विशन्ति tē tam bhuktvā svargalokaṁ viśālam, kṣīṇē puṇyē martya lōkham viśanti. Since puṇyam is finite in nature; after sometime it will get exhausted; leaving us high and dry; so we say puṇyam is a golden shackle; pāpam is an iron shackle; both are shackles.

Like in Saudi Arabia; I have heard, I do not how far it is true; they have capital punishment; for some member of the royal family; sometimes they have capital punishment; only difference is their head will be cut with a gold sword; because member of royal family. Tell me what is the difference whether the head goes off by iron sword or gold sword; So therefore puṇyam is a smiling villain; pāpam is a frowning villain; both are villains only; But that does not mean he does not do puṇya karmās; these people will do puṇya karmas but these puṇya karmas are not done for the sake of puṇyam; puṇya karmās are done for citta shuddhi or jñāna niṣṭaḥ. You can do the same karma; noble karma can be done for puṇyam; Noble karma can be done for jñānam and niṣṭaḥ. So these people never do karma for either puṇyam or pāpam. So śubhāśubhaparitāgī bhaktimān yaḥ sa mē priyaḥ; Such a bhaktimān; he is dear to me.

Continuing;

समः शत्रौ च मित्रे च तथा मानापमानयोः ।

शीतोष्णसुखदुःखेषु समः सङ्गविवर्जितः ॥ १२.१८ ॥

samaḥ śatrau ca mitrē ca tathā mānāpamānayōḥ |

śītoṣṇasukhaduḥkhēṣu samaḥ saṅgavivarjitaḥ || 12.18 ||

समः samaḥ (He is) the same मित्रे mitre ca च towards friend, च शत्रौ ca śatrau and foe, तथा मानापमानयोः tathā mānāpamānayōḥ as well as in honour and dishonour समः samaḥ (he is) the same शीतोष्णसुखदुःखेषु śītoṣṇasukhaduḥkhēṣu in cold and heat as well as comfort and discomfort, सङ्गविवर्जितः saṅgavivarjitaḥ and is free from attachment.

18. He is the same towards friends and foes, as well as in honour and dishonour. He is the same in cold and heat as well as comfort and discomfort and is free from attachment.

शत्रौ मित्रे च समः śatrau mitre ca samaḥ. So the one who has same attitude towards a friend and a foe; Of course a jñāni does not look upon anyone as his enemy; a jñāni does not have an enemy, That is why Dharmaputra was called ajāthaśatruḥ; na jāthaḥ śatruḥ yasya saḥ; ajāthaśatruḥ. So jñāni does not look upon anyone as inimical but the other people may consider jñāni as friend or enemy. Krishna may not look upon Duryōdhana as a śatru; but Duryōdhana looks upon Duryōdhana as śatru. Thus there are two sets of people; some look upon the jñāni as their friend; and some look upon jñāni as their enemy; And the friendly people may do favourable things to jñāni; and this enemical people may harm the jñāni. And whatever be their responses or action; samaḥ; jñāni is samaḥ. And what do you mean samatvam; jñāni does not develop rāga or dvēṣa towards them; He does not hate a person who is inimical to him; And he does not get attached to a person just because the other person is friendly, And therefore samatvam nāma rāga dvēṣa varjithatvam.

Then does that mean that the jñāni will put up with the nonsensical action of the enemy. Very careful; even though jñāni does not have dvēṣa towards an inimical person; it does not mean that the jñāni should put up with his wrong actions. So jñāni will strongly criticise an action which is to be condemned; a disapprovable action, he will disapprove and if an appropriate step should be taken, he will take, but even the worst step is taken; without even an iota of dvēṣa in his mind; The aim is not the other person should suffer; the aim is not in suffering; but the aim is that the other person has to be corrected. In fact, he feels bad that he has to correct him through violent methods. Remember the example of a mother punishing a child, Mother is never going to happily punish; even when she punishes in the heart, love alone is there. And therefore remember compassion does not mean putting up with wrong actions; let not compassion be misunderstood as putting up with nonsense; with compassion we can take appropriate steps and the jñāni will take appropriate steps with compassion.

And तथा मानापमानयोः tathā mānāpamānayōḥ. And that is why when the Lord kills the asuras; they generally use the word mōkṣaḥ; instead of vadham; pūthana mōkṣaḥ. What is the idea conveyed; mōkṣaḥ means through punishment, the Lord is removing the impurity of those people; mōkṣaḥ does not mean vēdāntic mōkṣaḥ; just because Lord kills pūthana, pūthana will not get mōkṣa. Remember, pūthana will get mōkṣa only through ātma jñānam; there mōkṣaḥ means freedom from that pāpam; because Bhagavān does that with compassion and love; Not with a tinch or retaliation or hatred or anger.

So samaḥ śatrau ca mitrē ca tathā mānāpamānayōḥ. Similarly one who is equanimous with respect to mānam, honour and dishonour. This is another problem: wherever honour comes; there is a possibility of dishonour also. And when you are an ordinary person, dishonour will not felt very much; but when the honour goes higher and higher; the dishonour also becomes more intend; And whether you like or not; honour and dishonour are not under our control; So any person can spread stories; and any person can cavil; and I cannot shut the mouth of other people. So Rāma faced apamāna; Seetha faced apamāna; Krishna faced apamāna. Even Gods have faced; therefore we can never totally avoid that; and therefore we have to be mentally prepared; that is also a jathaka viśeṣam. In jathakam-horoscope they say: that this person has to suffer apamānam. So better go through that; there is no other way; often such situations happen in our life. And the one who swallows both of them; so honour and dishonour, the one who is equanimous.

Then शीतोष्णसुखदुःखेषु śītoṣṇasukhaduḥkheṣu; śītam means cold; uṣṇam means heat; sukham means favourable conditions; duḥkham means unfavourable conditions. In short all the pairs of opposites; in fact life is nothing but a series of pairs of opposites known as dvandvās; if there is birth, there is death; if there is growth; there is decay; if there is health; there is ill-health; if there is gain; there is loss; if there is union; there is separation. In fact life is a series of dvandvās; nobody can escape. Therefore we can only prepare our mind to accept both of them equanimously. And therefore the one who is samaḥ; the one who has got jñānam shock absorber. And until jñānam comes, the only shock absorber; bhakthiḥ; iṣṭa dēvathā bhakthi; only our devotion to god in one form or the other. That alone has to strengthen us until jñānam comes; So these are two shock absorbers; for the human being; And here this person has got jñānam shock absorber;

And therefore only समः सङ्गविवर्जितः samaḥ saṅgavivarjitaḥ; since he knows that the pairs of opposite will come and go; when a favourable situation comes, he does enjoy that; but he remembers that this favourable situation need not last longer; So when everything is fine, do not expect that to be permanent in nature; That does not mean that you should think of loss and cry; like that person who drinks; coco cola or pepsi; he has got the straw. Therefore he drinks; now as the mouth is drinking and tasting; the eyes are seeing the level of the drink; So therefore instead of enjoying the taste, going down, going down; What to do; if you think. So how to avoid that; you should not drink; just keep and looking at it; So then you cannot enjoy; if enjoy the drink, it will be over; when it is over; allow that also. Similarly, as things come, take it as Bhagavān's gift; enjoy your relationship, the children, people your wealth, your health; and these are all Bhagavān's gift; but always remember, Bhagavān gives it; Bhagavān takes it and when Bhagavān chooses to take, remember, 'Returned with thanks'. Do not curse Bhagavān; So sanga vivarjithaha. This state of mind is called asaṅgatvam; enjoyment without attachment.

तुल्यनिन्दास्तुतिर्मौनी संतुष्टो येन केनचित् ।

अनिकेतः स्थिरमतिर्भक्तिमान्मे प्रियो नरः ॥ १२.१९ ॥

tulyanindāstutirmaunī santuṣṭō yēna kēnacit |

anikētaḥ sthīRāmatirbhaktimān mē priyō naraḥ || 12.19 ||

भक्तिमान् bhaktimān That devotee तुल्यनिन्दास्तुतिः tulyanindāstutiḥ who is the same towards censure and praise नरः मौनी naraḥ maunī who is person of limited speech सन्तुष्टः santuṣṭaḥ who is contented, येन केनचित् yena kenacit with any thing अनिकेतः aniketaḥ who is homeless स्थिरमतिः sthīRāmatiḥ and who has firm knowledge of the self प्रियः मे priyaḥ me is dear to me.

19. That devotee, who is the same towards censure and praise, who is a person of limited speech; who is contented with anything, who is homeless and who has firm knowledge of the Self is dear to Me.

So तुल्यनिन्दास्तुतिः tulyanindāstuti; nindā means criticism; censure; stutiḥ means glorification. Previously māna and apamāna were talked about; they are at the level of action. Here nindā and stutiḥ are at the level of words; So māna apamāna is kāyikam; nindā stutiḥ is vāchikam; iti bhēdaḥ; Why is kāyika māna and apamāna; somebody garlands; that is māna; and in another function somebody brings the garland and you stretch your head and they say it is not for you and honour the neighboring person. What a kaṣṭam; therefore māna comes; apamāna also comes; So that is at the action level; this is at the vāk level; this also you cannot avoid because whatever you do; there would be somebody to criticise. Any blessed thing you do; there will be somebody to criticise because criticism does not involve any expenditure; We have a got a free mouth and it is a free country; no tax for speaking; and we have nothing else to do; and people are around; therefore you go on commenting; gossiping. So in this gossip circle, everybody will come; and you also cannot escape; In the class also; you might quietly come; there might be somebody commenting your dress; how you come; how you walk; how you nod; or how you sleep; Some people you know, it happens; so what I am saying is you cannot escape from others' comments. And therefore if there are people who are willing to advise you with good intentions, they will directly tell you; And whatever I can learn from others, I learn; and I do actions according to my common sense and I completely ignore others' comments; somebody was preparing his ground for bringing up some crop; he has already consulted experts and he has decided what to do; everybody comes and asks what are you going to do; he says that I am going to raise tomatoes or something; you are going to raise that; he never asked for opinion; they come and pass them and he is not allowed to work at all; so what he did; he put a suggestion box; so that he can work; and the suggestion box had only one peculiarity; the box did not have any bottom and down-below there is a waste paper basket; direct to the waste paper basket. So anything you do; you will have so many suggestions; I know how many suggestions I get for my cough problem; if I take all medicines, I would have died long before; allopathy, homeopathy, all things are suggested And everybody says: my medicine will immediately cure and it is harmless; and suppose I say I am already taking some medicine. Then they say this also you add; now the problem is: if I take different medicine and it gets cured; how do I know which medicine cured. So everytime I get the problem, I have to take all the 10 medicines; I tell you, suggestions and comments are the cheapest thing in the world; And therefore what do you do; Be deaf all kinds of comments; world will be like that; if there are wise people; they will never make comments in front of others; they will call you and give you proper advice; And therefore this jñāni tulya nindāstuti; Let people glorify; he will not be carried away; let people criticize; he will not worry. In fact one jñāni nicely says:

तेयार्थिनो हि पुरुषः परतुष्टि हेतोः

क्लेशार्जितानपि धनानि परित्यजन्ति ॥ man nindayā yadi janā paratoṣamēti

nan vā prayāsa janitōya manugrahomē |

tēyārthinō hi puruṣaḥ paratuṣṭi hētoḥ

kleśārjitānapi dhanāni parityajanti ||

If there are some people passing comments on me and enjoying, I am very happy; because indirectly I am becoming a cause for others enjoyment; there are people who are spending lot of money to please other people in the society. Now here I am without spending any money I am giving happiness to others; How? by being a victim of their criticism; therefore by commenting upon me, if they get happiness; I am happy only; I should not be upset by their comments.

Then संतुष्टो येन केनचित् santuṣṭō yēna kēnacit; his mind is such that it can be very very easily pleased; the uniqueness of jñāni's mind is, it is a easily pleaseable mind;

whereas the more the sophisticated the mind is; pleasing those people become extremely difficult; because they are so fastidious and so particular about everything; So if they say coffee; they are particular about how much milk; how much decoation; how much sugar; how hot it should be, etc. etc. whatever it is; and then in what kind of cup it should be given; if slightly it is different; they throw away the coffee. The more sophisticated it is; we have bought finer rāga dvēṣa; finer our rāga dvēṣa; the most difficult it is to please;

And the most of the perfectionist people; perfectionist means what; they are very particular about everything; perfectionism is wonderful; how everything should be there. TO have that is wonderful; but the problem is if I am going to be disturbed by the slightest variation; my life becomes miserable; You can see perfectionists are generally irritated; they are never happy whatever you do; Keep a kerchief; you have kept like this and not like that; Anything you do; he is not happy; jñāni is perfectionist; he does everything properly at the same time, he is accommodative enough to put up with all the imperfections; And therefore yēna kēnacit; the one who is happy with anything that comes; and especially he is a sanyāsi; he cannot choose anything.

In fact Śankarācārya takes all these verses as the description of a sanyāsi only; and once a person is a sanyāsi; then he asks for bhikṣā; he cannot say: bhavathi dosai dehi; bhavathi poorim dēhi; You cannot ask; bhavathi bhikṣām dēhi; you have eat what you get; santuṣṭō yēna kēnacit; One day bhikṣā not available; that also is OK; Grihastha life is slightly better off. So therefore learn to be happy with anything.

अनिकेतः anikētaḥ; this is the word which indicates that he is a sanyāsi; anikētaḥ means the one who does not have a house of his own; do not ask rented house; the one who is not a householder; nikētaḥ means house; and anikētaḥ means the one who is a sanyāsi. And then where does he live;

सुर मंदिर तरु मूल निवासः

शय्या भूतल मजिनं वासः |

सर्व परिग्रह भोग त्यागः

कस्य सुखं न करोति विरागः ||१८||

sura maṅdira taru mūla nivāsaḥ

śayyā bhūtala majinaṁ vāsaḥ |

sarva parigraha bhōga tyāgaḥ

kasya sukhaṁ na karōti virāgaḥ ||18||

wherever, whoever gives a place, he stays; that place may be a palatial house or it can be an ordinary hut; whatever is available, he lives there; Therefore anikētaḥ.

And all these are possible; how does he enjoy such a mind; his mental strength he has derivēd form one source. What is that source; स्थिरमतिः sthiramatiḥ. It is self-knowledge that has given him this mental strength. Remember; knowledge is power. In fact, knowledge alone is power. If at all humanity is so powerful; it is only because of our knowledge; And among various types of knowledge also; self-knowledge is the most powerful thing; आत्मन विन्दते वीर्यम्, विद्यया विन्दते अमृतम् ātmana vindatē vīryam, vidyayā vindatē amṛtam. The greatest strength you derive from self-knowledge; So only such a jñāni can say: न्नाहं एनं ज्ञेयम्, ऊहाहं एनं ज्ञेयम्; வினை தான் என் செய்யும். nā! eṇ ceyyum; kō! eṇ ceyyum; viṇai tāṇ eṇ ceyyum, when I have got knowledge; so sthiramatiḥ means the one who has got doubtless knowledge; Must be vijñānam; sthira means firm; here firm means doubtless; Doubtless knowledge of what; aham brahma asmi; And such a jñāni is dear to Me.

So with this verse, Krishna concludes the description of a wise person's conduct or characteristic. Now in the 20th verse, Krishna winds up this discourse.

श्रद्धधाना मत्परमाः भक्तास्तेऽतीव मे प्रियाः ॥ १२.२० ॥

yē tu dharmyāmṛtamidaṃ yathōktaṃ paryupāsate |

śraddadhānā matparamā bhaktāstē'tīva mē priyāḥ | | 12.20 | |

ते भक्ताः te bhaktāḥ Those devotees, मत्परमाः matparamāḥ who keep Me as the primary (goal) तु ये tu ye and who श्रद्ध धानाः पर्युपासते śradda dhānāḥ paryupāsate – faithfully pursue, इदं धर्म्यामृतम् idaṃ dharmyamṛtam this righteous and immortal (teaching) यथोक्तम् yathoktam as mentioned above अतीव प्रियाः atīva priyāḥ are very dear मे me to Me.

20. Those devotees who keep Me as the primary goal and who faithfully pursue this Righteous and immortal teaching as mentioned above are very dear to Me.

So when he hear the description of such a jñāni, naturally we will all love to enjoy such a state of mind. It is so alluring; it is so tempting; that I am free from all hooksL nobody can threaten me, Naturally the question will come; how can I attain such a state of mind; Is there any short cut; or any treatment; electric shock or nervous adjustments. There is no short cut to enjoy such a state of mind; one has to go through the bhakthi yōga consisting of the five levels. There is no other way; there is no short cut; one has to necessarily go through the five staged bhakthi yōga. So therefore Krishna says; इदम् यथोक्तं पर्युपासते idam yathōktaṁ paryupāsate; suppose a seeker goes through the above mentioned bhakthi yōga. And what are the five levels of bhakthi yōga; do you remember; sakāma karma pradhāna karma yōga; niškāma karma pradhāna karma yōga; ēka rūpa īśvara upāsana; anēkarūpa īśvara upāsana; nirguṇa īśvara jñānam; So these are the five stage; the first two stages are called karma yōga; the then next two stages are called upāsana yōga; the last one stage is called jñāna yōga. In short, karma yōga plus upāsana yōga plus jñāna yōga; All these levels put together is called bhakthi yōga,

So this yathōktaṁ bhakthi yōgam ye upāsate; Suppose people practice; and what type of bhakthi yōga it is; धर्म्यामृतम् dharmyāmṛtam; which is called aaamṛtam because it leads to immortality; aaamṛtatva hētubhūtham bhakthi yōgam ithyarthāḥ; aaamṛtam means which leads to immortality; and not only that dharmyam; dharmyam means which is a teaching in keeping with the vēdās; Because remember, in our tradition, vēdas are considered to be the primary scriptures, the primary source of knowledge; and therefore everyone has to necessarily follow the vēdic tradition; anybody goes out of vēdic tradition; he will be called nāsthikāḥ; and in India; the vēdic teaching is so ingrained; that even the greatest person will be rejected the moment he rejects vēda; the best example is Buddhism; Buddha is considered to be a very great mahātma; So wonderful; So what you call rational; So compassionate; even though he glorified all over the world; in India it could not survive; it had to go out; You know one reason; because Buddha rejected the vēdas; so rejecting the vēda it is impossible to survive in our culture; because that is our foundation; Therefore every ācārya makes sure that he is following the vēdic tradition; And Krishna himself wants to claim that hey Arjuna I am also not giving My philosophy. Buddha may be an avathāra; may be considered an avathāra; but even an avathāra is rejected, if that avathāra rejects the vēdas. So Krishna also will be rejected if he goes against the vēda. Therefore Krishna says: hey Arjuna my teaching is dharmyam; dharmyam means vēda aviruddham. it is non-contradictory to the revelation given in the vēdas; And that is why Bhagavat Gītā is called a smṛti; smṛti means any literature which goes along with the vēdic teaching. So sṛuthi anusari sāstram is called smṛti, Bhagavad Gītā is called a smṛti grantha;

And suppose a person follows entire bhakthi yōga; And that too how; श्रद्धाना śraddhaḥ dhānā; so with faith in its efficacy; that will bless me with and mat paramāḥ and keeping me as the ultimate goal; not materialistic goal; but with spritiual goal; one who keeps, मत्परमाः matparamā means mumukṣu; being a spiritual seeker; if a person follows; ते भक्ताः अतीव मे प्रियः tē bhaktā atīva mē priyāḥ; jñāni bhakthās; they will become greatest bhaktha and they all will be nearest to me.

सदाशिव समारम्भां शङ्कराचार्यमध्यमाम्

अस्मद् आचार्य पर्यन्ताम् वन्दे गुरु परम्पराम्

asmad ācārya paryantām vandē guru paramparām

Today I will give you a summary of the 12th chapter. The 12th chapter happens to be the culmination of middle section of the Bhagavad Gītā; which is known as madhyama shatkam. I had told you before that the first six chapters of the Gītā are called prathama shatkam; then the next, beginning from the 7th to 12th is known as madhyama shatkam and the last six chapters are known as carama shatkam. And 12th chapter is the final chapter of the madhyama shatkam. And in the previous five chapters beginning from the 7th up to the 11th, Lord Krishna has elaborately dealt with the topic of Īśvara svarūpam. While the first six chapters dealt with the jīva svarūpam; from 7th to 11th chapters Krishna dealt with Īśvara svarūpam, the nature of God and naturally this topic of Īśvara svarūpam should culminate in bhakthi towards such an Īśvara. Bhakthi is love or devotion and love or devotion is possible only towards something or someone who is known. You can never have a positive or negative emotion towards an unknown person; when you meet an unknown person; your attitude is what; a neutral attitude only; only when you move with the person; and come to know more and more about that person you develop either liking towards the person or dislike.

And that is how locally also we hear of people moving together and falling in love; all because of what; more the contact is, the more a person comes to know and that knowledge is the basis for the attitude. You can never develop an attitude towards an unknown thing; if this is the general law, your attitude towards God also will depend upon your knowledge of God. I can never love an unknown God.

And therefore if I expect you to develop love or devotion; I should never command you to love, because you can never develop love towards unknown; I have to give you knowledge and knowledge alone contribute to a healthy attitude. If I want you to develop love towards the country; I have to talk about the glory of the country.

you may ask is there any glory at all; that is a different thing; I can never hold an attitude. An attitude is not command-based; an attitude is not will based; an attitude is generated based on your understanding; and Krishna knows this principle. Five chapters Krishna or Vyāsācārya devoted in giving you the knowledge of God; and now that we know what that God will be; the consequence will be what; a healthy attitude towards the Lord; and that attitude is called bhakthiḥ; Īśvara jñānam vina; Īśvara bhakthiḥ na sambhavathi, Ajñātha viṣaye; bhāvana naiva sambhavathi.

And therefore 12th chapter is natural consequence and culmination of the previous five chapters and this chapter even though a short one consisting of only twenty verses; it is a very very important chapter because in this chapter Krishna has condensed the essence of the entire vēdic teaching; Not even the entire vēdantic teaching; it is an entire vēdic teaching; both vēda pūrva bhāga as well as vēda anta bhāga; both are condensed in 20 pithy verses. And therefore only this chapter is considered important and of course people think this is important because it is small also. So easy to do pārāyaṇam and easy to byeheart; that is practical reason. But the real reason; this is vēda sāraḥ.

And that is why at the end to the 12th chapter, Krishna uses the word, yetu dharmya amṛtam idam; the word dharmyam indicates that this chapter is the essence of vaidic dharmāḥ; vēda sāraḥ. And this chapter has got mainly two topics; the first topic being bhakthi yōgaḥ; and the second topic is bhakthi yōga phalam; what is the benefit of result of bhakthi yōga. These are the two main topics,

But before entering into this topic. Lord Krishna incidentally answers a question raised by Arjuna and therefore the chapter begins with a question from Arjuna. which is based on the previous chapter; In the previous chapter, viz., 11th chapter, Lord Krishna has talked about saguṇa Īśvaraḥ, otherwise known as viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; the Lord as the very universe is called viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ; Viśva rūpa Īśvara comes under saguṇa Īśvara; because the world is full of guṇa s or attributes or properties and therefore viśva rūpa is saguṇa Īśvara.

And Arjuna has heard a lot about nirguṇa Īśvara also; and therefore Arjuna gets a doubt regard the relative superiority of saguṇa and nirguṇa Īśvara; And consequently another doubt is whether saguṇa bhaktha is superior or nirguṇa bhaktha is superior. Saguṇa upāsaka is superior; nirguṇa dyāthā is superior; Arjuna gets a doubt. And generally we are attracted to saṅuṅa Īsvara also; because nirṅuṅa, we are not even able to conceive of. Therefore this chapter begins with Arjuna's question;

ēvaṃ satatayuktā yē bhaktāstvāṃ paryupāsātē |
yē cāpyakṣaramavyaktaṃ tēṣāṃ kē yōgavittamāḥ || 12.1 ||

saguṅa dhyānam is better or nirṅuṅa dhyānam is better. And what was Krishna's answer; Krishna gives a peculiar and fictitious answer; But we should understand the implication of Krishna's answer; the implication is we should never ask; which one is better; because this question is relevant only when you want to choose one of them; the question is relevant only when you want to choose, And as far as Krishna is concerned, there is no question of choosing one of them; because every seeker requires saṅuṅa dhyānam also and every seeker ultimately has to come to nirṅuṅa also. Without saṅuṅa dhyānam; one can never come to nirṅuṅa dhyānam; because saṅuṅa dhyānam is the stepping stone to arrive at nirṅuṅa dhyānam. So without saṅuṅa dhyānam; one cannot come to nirṅuṅa dhyānam. And without nirṅuṅa dhyānam; I hope you remember, without nirṅuṅa dhyānam, saṅuṅa dhyānam is incomplete sādhanā.

So therefore everybody has to go through saṅuṅa first and everybody has to come to nirṅuṅa. One can postpone coming to nirṅuṅa; but one cannot avoid that. If a person feels that he is not ready he can postpone it; and postponement can be one year, ten years, or even ten janmās; we do not care; But one has to come to nirṅuṅa; because nirṅuṅa Īsvara is the ultimate reality; which is based on the well known Kenōpaniṣad saying; तदेव ब्रह्म त्वं विद्धि नेदं यदिदमुपासते tadēva brahma tvaṃ viddhi nēdaṃ yadidamupāsātē. Saṅuṅa Īsvara that you meditate upon is never the ultimate reality. You should remember the ultimate reality is a saṅuṅa object of meditation. And therefore Krishna's answer is what; everybody has to go through both of them; both of them means what; saṅuṅa and nirṅuṅa.

After answering Arjuna's question, Krishna enters the two topics; which is bhakthi yōga sādhanā; and bhakthi yōga sādhanā phalam; And what is bhakthi yōga sādhanā; I have told you several times; and I will repeat again; it is very important; Bhakthi yōga is not the name of a particular sādhanā but it is the name of a range of sādhanā, everyone has to go through; it is a series; it is a package; Now you have to use this words; package; And this package consists of how many levels; so the levels can be any number, depending upon the context; sometimes it is presented two levels;

sometime presented as three levels but here Krishna presents bhakthi yōga as a series consisting of five levels or five stages. And which is important; everyone is important; remember a flight of stairs; a staircase which rung or which step is important you cannot ask; every step is important to go to the next step; and what are the five levels;

The first level is sakāma karma pradhāna karma yōgaḥ; we can call it karma yōga level No.1; or karma yōga 1; this is the beginning stage; which everyone can easily start; in this level a person is allowed to do any karma; to fulfill his personal desires; because very one is born with countless number of desires; which are carried from previous janma; whatever things you bring or not; you bring these; कामान्य कामयते मन्यमानाः सः कामभिर् जायते तत्र तत्रः kāmānya kāmayatē manyamānāḥ saḥ kāmabhir jāyatē tatra tatra.

Because in this janma there are so many desires which are not fulfilled; one person used to tell; Swamiji I have one desire; very very strong desire; you know what; he likes a particular brand of car called Land cruiser; 60-70 lakhs or so; so Swamiji I need your special āśīrvādam for that; mōkṣa I want; But; Now if it is a simpler one, it is OK: but it is 70 lakhs; so a person may die meditating on land cruiser; and he will cruise or go to the next janmā and born as land cruiser.

So therefore he has to continue; therefore we carry forward not only the punyam papām we carry forward our desires also; our unfulfilled desires; and therefore we cannot help it; therefore kama karmas are bound to be there; and therefore sāstra says; let your initial stage of life be yōga kṣēma pradhāna life; Yōga kṣēma; 9th chapter I said; yōga means what; acquisition; கொண்டுவா; கொண்டுவா; accumulating; Not only I acquire for me but for handing over to the next generation; Something to leave in the Will; therefore I have to acquire for them also; if there are girls; one type of acquisition; boys one type of acquisition; all of them; It is called yōga; and once I acquire the next desire is what; maintenance and holding on to it; and that is called kṣēma; our initial stage of life is yōga kṣēma pradhāna; In fact we have no time for anything. Until we marry, it is only yōga kṣēma of myself and once we are married; it is yōga kṣēma of me and my family; Many of the parents come and do namaskāra nowadays; Swamiji public exams; where you have public exam; not for me but for my children; they do not have any boon to ask me but they all have tens and hundreds for their children; entrance or IIT; examination-āśīrvāda season; And tomorrow is exam; another extra namasakar. So what yōga kṣēma a parent is interested is; the children's yōga kṣēma; husband's yōga kṣēma pradhāna life. Krishna says you do pray for that; How to convert into karma yōga; you work for your yōga kṣēma; but whatever happens accepts the consequence as God's will.

Then comes the next stage; a person becomes more and more mature; and he understands that yōga kṣēma is an endless business and therefore he learns to transfer some of the yōga kṣēma to

tēṣāṃ nityābhīyuktānāṃ yōgakṣēmaṃ vahāmyaham ||9.22 ||

It is an important skill that we have to develop; we have to learn to transfer a part of our yōga kṣēma concern to the Lord. Then only we will have time; that too quality time and relaxed mind for another set of activity which is meant for citta shuddhi. Therefore the second stage of karma yōga is involvement in those activities which are meant for citta shuddhi. We call citta shuddhi pradhāna karma; or niṣkāma karma pradhāna karma yōga. So we do have time to pray to the Lord; and also for the child's examination; Also we add give me citta shuddhi. If the mind is too much concerned; We cannot think of citta shuddhi; we will not even know that such a thing exists. We cannot think of any other goal of life at all; because our mind is occupied with the settlement of the children; and settlement of the children will get postponed later to the grandchildren; that is later; so the second stage is niṣkāma karma pradhana karma yōga; otherwise called citta shuddhi pradhāna karma yōga. So in this, I do not ask for yōga; I do not ask for kṣēma; Oh! Lord whatever you give; I would learn to live with that; And whatever stays with me, I will learn to live with that. Very difficult stage; but we have to come to that.

Then once we have crossed these two stages; together called karma yōga; we are ready for the third stage; which is called iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana. And each one is called what; bhakthi yōga; remember; first is called bhakthi yōga; because devotion is required for the first stage; For the sake of yōga kṣēma; and second stage also I require bhakthi; And in third stage; I practice iṣṭa dēvathā upāsanam, and this is presented as the third stage; because in the first stage, when my mind is full of yōga kṣēma concern, I cannot sit in mediation; And even if sit in mediation, I will be either thinking of yōga or kṣēma only; meditation simply does not happen. In fact, you continue your worry in sitting posture; normally you worry in other postures.

Now in Padmanasana you worry; that will be only difference. Therefore only we are able to transfer our yōga kṣēma concern to the Lord. Mind finds some inner leisure; and only such a mind can spend some time forgetting the family; forgetting the future; forgetting the money, forgetting all those things; சரண கமலாலயத்தில் அரை நிமிஷம்; caraṇa kamalālayattil arai nimiṣam; if possible. So this is called īṣṭa dēvathā upāsanam; which will equip me to turn my mind inwards; The extrovert mind will learn to withdraw and that withdrawal is the third stage of sādānā; īṣṭa dēvathā upāsanam; And in the 12th chapter, it is called abhyasa yōga and which īṣṭa dēvathā is good; you need not ask; any dēvathā is good enough; any particular form of the God is OK.

And once a person has gone through this stage; then he is ready for the fourth stage; I said before in the īṣṭa dēvathā upāsanam; there are advantages; but there are limitations also problem you may think that there are so many Gods and you may begin to compare; Śiva is greater or viṣṇu is greater; idea of division etc. will be there; and also the Lord or the deity that I visualise is bound by time and space that is also another limitation and therefore to break these limitations; I have to learn to look at the īṣṭa dēvathā as the very Viśva rūpa īśvara.

And once I look upon God as the total universe; you do not have many gods at all; you have got only one God with many nama; what is the difference between Viśva rūpa Śiva; Viśva rūpa viṣṇu; there cannot be any difference because Viśva rūpa viṣṇu includes all names and forms; Viśva rūpa Śiva includes all names and forms; and therefore there is no division; there is no question of comparison also; And also I understand that the Lord is not bound by forms; and therefore this helps in the expansion of the mind; So it gives citta viśalatha; this is the fourth stage called Viśva rūpa dhyānam; or anēka rūpa dhyānam.

And once a person has gone through these four stages; he is ready for the fifth stage and only when a person goes through these four stages; he becomes sādānā catuṣṭaya sampannāha. So in tatva bodha we said; vēdānta begins; self-knowledge begins; only after acquiring sādānā catuṣṭaya saṁpathi and this sādānā chatuṣṭaya saṁpathi is possible only by going through these four stages of bhakthi yōga. Bhakthi I have explained in the tatva bōdha; you have to go through that; in simple language you can say that it is mental preparedness for self-knowledge.

And then for this self-knowledge a person has to go through the fifth level of bhakthi yōga; and the fifth and the final level of bhakthi yōga is called jñāna yōgaha; Fifth and final of bhakthi yōga is jñāna yōga itself; This alone Śankarācārya tells in his Vivekachūdamāṇi; svasvarūpanu sandhanaṁ bhakthirithabhi diyathe; The final level of bhakthi is self-enquiry; sva svarūpa anusandanaṁ.

And this jñāna yōga consists of vēdānta śravaṇa manana nidhidhyasanāni. So consistent and systematic study of vēdāntic scriptures for a length of time under the guidance of a competent ācārya; forgotten! Do not worry; no imposition; So śravaṇam is consistent and systematic study of vēdāntic scriptures; not puranas; vēdāntic scriptures which deal with nirguṇa īśvara. The first four stages you could manage with saḡuṇa īśvara; In the fifth level you have to come to nirguṇa īśvaraḥ; which is discussed only in the vēdānta. Therefore consistent and systematic study of vēdāntic scriptures for a length of time under the guidance of a competent ācārya.

And Swamiji how do you know this; Krishna does not say; you are adding whatever you like; Krishna himself has said this in the 4th chapter, I have only pulled out from the 4th chapter, and I am putting here;

upadēkṣyanti tē jñānaṁ jñāninastadvadarśinaḥ || 4.34 ||

Arjuna you have to necessarily go to a guru; and open yourselves and ask for this teaching and consistently follow the śravaṇam. But what about those people who never had guru; உடனே mind அநேபோகும்; immediately the mind rushes there. Here we are talking about the general rules; but for every general rule there are exceptions also; because there are spiritual geniuses. In the case of spiritual genius a guru is not required; therefore in their case, they gain knowledge in an exceptional way; just as there was Rāmānujan, a mathematic genius; he could mathematics without the help of a teacher; the teacher himself could not understand the things; just because Rāmānujan did not require if you abolish mathematics schools and teachers; that becomes ridiculous; When we are talking about general rule; never quote an exception; and every one requires a guru; and suppose you say: Swamiji I am a spiritual genius; and therefore I do not require a guru; then I will tell you that you do not require; But our problem is what? In spite of a guru we do not understand; without guru what you will understand. Therefore śravaṇam from guru is required;

Then comes the mananam; which is the removal of all the doubts. Until my intellect is convinced that the nirguṇa īśvara is not different from me; the real me; tat brahma aham asmi; aham brahmāsmi. Our intellect will not easily accept it; until we accept, we have to find out what is the intellectual obstacle for accepting this; and whatever be the obstacle in the form of doubt, we have to remove. It is a long process, we have to go through; which is called mananam; and once a person has gone through sṛavaṇam and mananam, he has to go through nidhidhyāsanam; by which we mean the assimilation of this teaching; by which we mean repeatedly reminding my higher nature to myself. So the nature I now know is that the lower nature; that I am so and so; born on such and such a time; qualification; so many years old; whatever, what you call, whatever bio-data I give now; they all belong to the incidental ahamkara. I have to remind myself of my higher atma nature; this self-reminder is called Nidhidhyāsanam.

Thus by following sṛavaṇam; mananam and nidhidhyāsanam; I assimilate this teaching. And once the teaching is assimilated; this intellectual knowledge will bring about an emotional transformation. Because most of our problems are at emotional level; rāga; dvēṣa; kāma; krōdha; bhayam; all these are emotional problems. Samsāra is experienced at emotional levels; and therefore this knowledge has to transform my emotional personality. Until then, I continue nidhidhyāsanam. And these three sādhanās put together sṛavaṇam manana nidhidhyāsana is called the fifth level of jñāna yōga;

And once a person has gone through all the five levels of bhakthi yōga; he becomes a jñāni; a sthira prajñāḥ; to use the second chapter expression. Thus Krishna talks all the five levels; the first four levels belong the vēda pūrva bhāghā and the fifth and final level belongs to vēda antha bhāghā. And this is given from verse No.3 to 12, Verse No.3 to verse No.12 is the five staged bhakthi yōga.

And incidentally you should remember that five levels are not clear cut divisions; Not that you follow one; and complete it and you go to the second one and once you come to the second one, the first one is gone; and once you go to the third level; the second level is gone; this is not a clear-cut division; everybody would be following all the sādhanās but one will be predominant; therefore it is not a clear cut division; that we should remember.

And now comes the second part of the 12th chapter, which is from 13th to verse No.19. and that topic is bhakthi yōga phalam; the benefit of bhakthi yōga; You should remember, when a person has gone through all the stages of bhakthi yōga; he has attained the knowledge aham brahma asmi. Therefore this direct benefit of bhakthi yōga is atma jñānam aham brahma asmi which means aham pūrṇaḥ asmi.

And what will any knowledge lead to; what is the benefit of any type of knowledge; the benefit of any knowledge is removal of ignorance. jñānasya phalam, ajñāna nivṛtiḥ; the benefit of knowledge is freedom from ignorance; and get physics knowledge; I will get freedom from what ignorance; chemistry ignorance?; No; physics knowledge removes physics ignorance; English knowledge removes English ignorance; self knowledge will remove self-ignorance.

Therefore directly the benefit is experienced at the intellectual level only; because I have got self-knowledge, I am free from self-ignorance; therefore the direct benefit is only at the intellectual level; the emotional benefits are only indirect benefits; they are only corollary.

And therefore you should know how removal of self-ignorance gives me emotional benefit. What is the connection between intellectual knowledge and emotional benefit. The connection is not very direct; therefore we have to understand how; So what I am doing is an intellectual exercise; but the benefit presented is what: emotional benefit.

How we should know; So this the fundamental of vēdānta; this I have not discussed during the course of 12th chapter; and being important, I thought that I should mention it. The vēdānta reveals that pūrṇatvam is our real nature; pūrṇatvam means; self sufficiency; self adequacy; is my real nature; But unfortunately, whatever be the reason, we do not know the fact that aham pūrṇaḥ asmi; we do not know; because we are born with ignorance of everything and therefore ignorance of our real nature also. We are born with mathematics ignorance; all ignorance we are born with; that is our capital; what capital; ignorance; And as we learn one by one; the ignorance goes away; when I learn English, English ignorance goes.

Just as other ignorance, if I can use plural; other types of ignorance are there; self-ignorance is also there; therefore I do not know aham pūrṇaḥ asmi; If I had known anybody asks who are you; I would have aham satyam jñānam anantham brahma.

We never say; nobody introduces that way; That means we are ignorant and vēdānta points out when I do not know I am pūrṇaḥ; naturally I am going to mistake myself as I am apūrṇaḥ. Ignorance of pūrṇatvam leads to the mistake of apūrṇatvam; when the fact is not known so many other things are imagined. To put in technical language, ajnānam leads to adhyāsa; ignorance leads to erroneous conclusions. And the erroneous conclusion is what; aham apūrṇaḥ. Apūrṇaḥ means what; I am a incomplete person. And this erroneous conclusion is at what level; it is at the intellectual level; ignorance belongs to intellect; error also belongs to intellect. Up to this is intellectual problem.

Then what happens; when I feel incomplete, naturally I have a desire to complete myself and therefore I gone on struggling in life to make myself apūrṇaḥ by various methods, As a child, I think a balloon or toy will make me complete one; bālastavat krīdā sakthā. And once this person is an adult he think life would be incomplete if there is no wife or husband; He is going by the motorbike and nobody to sit behind; somebody has to sit behind and put the hand on the round tummy; joke; OK; so I am complete now; So therefore this problem was for Brahmāji himself it seems; Brihadārṇya says: tasmāt ramate; tad dviteyam aichate; Brahmāji also wanted a Mrs. therefore I gone on thinking this will complete me; this will complete me; this will complete; and the whole life is searching for something which will make life complete.

This is called kāmaḥ; kāmaḥ is a problem at the emotional level. This apūrṇatvam kāmaḥ is the shifting of the problem from the intellectual to emotional; and when I am not able to fulfil my kāma; and somebody obstructs the fulfilment; then there is krōdhaḥ; because of you only I could not do that; Krōda is an emotional problem and when the kāma is fulfilled; then also I do not solve the problem because finite plus finite is equal to finite. Therefore fulfilment of desire leads to more kāmaḥ; which is lōbhaḥ; unfulfilled desire leads to krōdhaḥ; fulfilled kāmaḥ leads to lōbhaḥ; that is kāmaḥ, krōdhaḥ, lōbhaḥ, mōhaḥ, madaḥ, mātsaryaḥ. In fact all your emotional problems begin with this kāma. And this kāma is because of what; the erroneous conclusion that I am apūrṇaḥ.

Therefore the root of the problem is at intellectual level; problem is emotion; but the root is intellectual; and therefore you have to study the scriptures and solve the problem at intellectual level; then it will gradually transform your emotional personality; since I am pūrṇaḥ; I know; I am full and complete; whether things are around or not;

ātmanyēva"tmanā tuṣṭaḥ sthitaprajñastadōcyatē || 2.55 ||

Expectations are not there; frustrations are not there; complaints are not there; and therefore all the benefits mentioned in this portion are the emotional benefits; but the cause is what: at the intellectual knowledge. And therefore Krishna enumerates them from verse No.13 to 19. I am not going to each slōkā; but will present in a nutshell;

All our transactions are from three different levels;

I as a kartā in the world; as the doer of varieties of action; that is one role I play; and the second role I play is as a bhoktā; receiving varieties of experiences; and the third is I as a pramādha; how I look at the world; my perspective as an observer;

And Krishna says at all these three levels; there will be total transformation.

As a kartā; what is the transformation? My actions are no more born out of a sense of incompleteness; It is not because I am apūrṇaḥ; I am doing the action; knowledge I am pūrṇaḥ; Therefore all my actions are not meant for fulfilment; but they are done with fulfilment; and therefore there is no more any motive; karma phalam if it comes; aham pūrṇaḥ; karma phalam not comes; aham pūrṇaḥ; Therefore there is a very great relief; there is no concern; there is no tension. So therefore I act from pūrṇatvam; not from apūrṇatvam; one change.

And when I am full and complete; a mind which has fullness will always express only love. Fullness expresses in the form of love and compassion. Therefore all the actions are born out of love and compassion for others. This is the second transformation.

And the third transformation is since the action come from love, compassion without expectation and concern; to quality of the actions are excellent; because the mind is undisturbed; the performance is always better; And therefore every action is appropriate and sound action; dakṣaḥ;

Thus as a kartā; his motive is not fulfilment; comes with fulfilment; love, compassion.

Similarly as a bhoktā Krishna says: Since he operates from strength that aham pūrṇaḥ asmi, he is not vulnerable disturbance; like anger; impulsive reactions etc. cannot come; He has got a shock absorber. And therefore patience, freedom from impulsive reaction; not vulnerable to emotional disturbances. In fact, he is an emotionally immunised person; he is from bhoktā level; So emotional resistance is the second benefit.

And the third and final is as a pramātha; as an observer his perspective of the creation is samatvam; samatvam; whatever be the type of experience; maana apamāna, sukha, duḥkha; śīta uṣṇa etc. his mind enjoys samatvam or equanimity which means he is not subject to rāga and dvēṣa.

So these are the transformations which will take place as a result of this knowledge; and Krishna concludes by pointing that to get this particular benefit, there is no shortcut at all, everyone has to go through all the five stages if a person has to attain this benefit.

yē tu dharmyāmṛtamidaṃ yathōktaṃ paryupāsātē |
śraddadhānā matparamā bhaktāstē'tīva mē priyāḥ ||12.20||

One has to go all the five stages to attain this phalaam called jeevan mukthi.

THIRTEENTH CHAPTER

क्षेत्रक्षेत्रज्ञविभागयोगः

kṣetrakṣetrajñavibhagayōga

THE YŌGA OF THE DISCRIMINATION OF THE KSHETRA AND THE KSHETRAJÑĀ

In the last class I pointed out that the 12th chapter makes the end of the madhyama ṣatkam of the Bhagavat Gītā. The Bhagavat Gītā is divided into three ṣatkams; ṣatkam meaning a group of six chapters and the first ṣatkam consisting of the first six chapters is prathama ṣatkam; then from the 7th to the 12 is the madhyama ṣatkam and from the 13th up to the 18th is carama ṣatkam or anthima ṣatkam.

And I had also pointed out that in each ṣatkam certain topics are highlighted; predominantly certain topics are highlighted in each ṣatkam. And we saw in the prathama ṣatkam was highlighted the first topic being Jīva svarūpam, the nature of the individuals. In technical language we call it Tvam padārthaḥ. In the Mahāvākyam Tad Tvam Asi, the tvam part, called Jīva svarūpam, the nature of the individual, was highlighted.

The second topic that is highlighted is the karma yōga as a sādānā. Jīva svarūpam or Tvam padārthaḥ; and karma yōga sādānā was the second topic; and the third topic highlighted in the prathama śatkam is the importance of the individual effort, otherwise called prayathnaḥ.

So Krishna wants to point out that everything is not predetermined, everything is not totally the will of the God alone, you also do have a freewill. And therefore, never embrace fatalism; fatalistic approach is non-vēdic approach. We do not say that fate or destiny is not there; what we say by fatalism is when you think that fate alone determines everything, fate is the total contributor to our life, it is called fatalism; whereas the VĒDIC approach is fate is one of the contributors to our future. Through your horoscope or through Nādi jyotsyam, இப்போ அது popular அயிரிக்கு; through various methods, you may know your destiny, your karma, but you should remember that karma or fate is only one of the contributors of your future. In addition to fate, there is another important factor also, which contributes to your future; and that important factor is your freewill or your puruṣārtha, otherwise called prayathnaḥ. And therefore Lord Krishna said that you have to contribute your might.

ātmaiva hyātmanō bandhurātmaiva ripurātmanaḥ | |6.5 ||

You have to work your upliftment and in fact only when you work for your upliftment, God will come to your rescue. That is why we have the well-known Tamil proverb. தான் பாதி; தைவம் பாதி; tāṅ pāti; taivam pāti. Thus Jīva svarūpam, karma yōga and prayathnaḥ; these are the three topics in the prathama śatkam.

Then in the madhyama śatkam from the 7th to 12th chapters, Krishna shifted the focus to another three important topics, and they are:

1. Īśvara Svarūpam, otherwise technically called Tad padārthaḥ. In the Mahāvākyam Tat Tvam Asi, Tat refers to Īśvara svarūpam; Tvam refers to the Jīva svarūpam. Īśvara svarūpam is one topic,

2nd topic highlighted is Īśvara upāsana yōga. Meditation upon Īśvara called Īśvara dhyānam or upāsana, and this Īśvara dhyānam can be in the form of Iṣṭa dēvathā upāsana, which was called abhyāsa yōga by Lord Krishna or it can be in the form of Viśva rūpa upāsanam. Meditation upon the Lord, looking upon him as the very universe itself. In fact, the entire 11th chapter is training for Viśva rūpa upāsanam.

अनेकवक्त्रनयनम् अनेकाद्भुतदर्शनम् । अनेकदिव्याभरणं दिव्यानेकोद्यतायुधम् ॥ ११.१० ॥

anēkavaktranayanamanēkādbhutadarśanam |
anēkadivyābharāṇaṃ divyānēkōdyatāyudham || 11.10 ||

This is called upāsanam or upāsana yōgaḥ. Īśvara svarūpam, upāsana yōga as sādānā.

And the third topic that Krishna highlighted in the madhyama śatkam is the importance of Īśvara anugraḥ or Īśvara kripa, because even though prayantha or effort is very important, the human effort will fructify only when there is Īśvara kripa or anugraha also. And of course, Īśvara anugraḥ is always there, flowing, but we have to learn to tap the Īśvara anugraḥ which is there just as a waterfall has got electricity in potential form, but the electricity will be useful to us only when we learn to tap the electricity by the appropriate project. Similarly, solar energy is there all the time, but we have to tap that energy. Similarly, Īśvara anugraḥ also we have to learn to tap and every prayer is like hydro electric project, it is Īśvara anugraḥ project. In fact, we start the Bhagavat Gītā with a prayer, it is only to tap anugraḥ. And therefore, never underestimate the role of anugraḥ. Generally people think advaitins who are committed to dhyāna yōga; they do not have bhakthi at all, they think, they are all intellectuals, they are rational people, they think. But remember even the greatest advaitin, values the role of Īśvara anugraḥ and therefore Īśvara kripa or anugraḥ is the third topic in the madhyama śatkam. Īśvara svarūpam, ĩśvara dhyānam, and ĩśvara anugraḥ.

Thus six topics have been highlighted. Now we have to enter the carama śatkam or the anthima śatkam and in this śatkam also we have three topics highlighted. And what are those topics?

No.1. Jīva ĩśvara svarūpa aikyam. The essential oneness of Jīva svarūpam and Īśvara svarūpam which is technically called Asi padārthaḥ. Tat Tvam Asi. If you rearrange, Tvam Tat Asi. Tvam is Jīva svarūpam, Tat is Īśvara Svarūpam and Asi is Jīva ĩśvara svarūpa aikyam.

And by using the word essential oneness, we indirectly convey that there is a superficial difference between Jīva and Īśvara. And that is why we are using the word essential oneness and to understand this essential oneness, we generally take the example of a wave and the ocean. Wave and ocean are superficially different, that is why is called a wave, and ocean is called an ocean. Definitely there is a difference. Ocean is vast, wave is small. Ocean is cause, wave is effect; ocean is relatively eternal, wave is ephemeral. Thus between wave and ocean, differences do exist, but all these differences are only superficial differences. If you find out the essential nature of wave, it is nothing but what? Water. If you take the wave, it is nothing but water: H₂O, H₂O Satcidānanda. Similarly if you analyse the essential nature of ocean, it is nothing but water only. In fact there is no wave other than water, there is no wave other than water, there is only one water behind the wave and one water behind the ocean and if you shift your attention to the water aspect, if you shift your focus to the water, then you can say wave and ocean are essentially one and the same. Similarly Vēdānta says, Jīvātma is essentially ātma. That is why it is called Jīvātma. Jīvātma is essentially the ātma the caitanyam. Paramātma is essentially the ātma, the caitanyam. Even though superficially they are different, essentially both are one and the same; ātma the caitanyam only. This understanding by proper enquiry is called Jīvātma paramātma svarūpa aikyam; otherwise called Asi padartha ḥ. This is topic No.1 of the carama ṣatkam.

Then the second topic that we find is jñāna yōga as meant as sādānā which is meant to discover this essential oneness, known as Aham Brahmā Asi. Imagine the wave is a living being and the wave says that I am nothing but water. And the moment the wave understands I am water, the wave can say I do not have birth, because water does not have birth, I do not have death, and I am all pervading throughout the ocean.

And this discovery is Aham Brahmā Asmi, which is gathered through Jñāna Yōgaḥ. Jñāna yōgaḥ is understanding this Mahāvākyam, in English we called it the great equation. So the concept of equation is very beautiful. When do we have an equation? In mathematics or in physics or chemistry. When do we have an equation? When two things are totally different you cannot write an equation. $8 = 9$; Nobody would write; why because they are not the same. When two things are evidently equal, when two things are explicitly equal, then also you do not write an equation. $8 = 8$, or $9 = 9$, you do not write. When two things are equal, we do not write an equation. When two things are different, we do not write an equation. When do we write an equation. When two things are seemingly different, but essentially one and the same, then we require an equation. Suppose, I write, four plus three is equal to 9 -2. think. We have forgotten our skill, using the calculator. Why do we write, because when you look at the two sides of the equation, what I see is different. Here the numbers are 4 and 3, there are numbers are 9 and 2. Even the diagrams are different. the way you different. The numbers are different. and what about the arithmetic sign. here we have got 4 + is there, there we have got 9 -; Therefore the numbers are different, the signs are different, therefore eyes report that they are different. And since superficially difference is experienced, I have to teach a child; the differences are superficial but essentially 4 +3 is equal to 7, 9 -2 is equal to 7, and therefore, both are 7 svarūpam. So svarūpa driṣṭya, they are identical.

Similarly, when you look at the Jīva, and when you look at the Īśvara, they are very very different. One is omniscient, another does not even know the spelling of omniscient. Sarvajñāḥ, alpajñāḥ. Sarvaśaktimān, Alpaśaktimān. Sarvajñāḥ means omniscient. Alpajñāḥ means with limited knowledge. Sarvaśaktimān means omnipotent and Alpaśaktimān means with limited power. Sarvagathaḥ means omnipresent and Alpagathaḥ means limited pervasion. So Jīva and Īśvara seems to be totally different; even different is not the word, diagonally opposite. One is creator, the other is created; one is master, another is servant. But the upaniṣads say that the difference is only superficial like 4+ 3 and 9 - 2. If you make an enquiry and arrive at the essence of Jīvātma, and also arrive at the essence of paramātma or Īśvara, which is called Tvam pada sōdanam, and Tat pada sōdanam; sōdanam means vichāraḥ. You do Jīva svarūpa vichāra and Īśvara svarūpa vichāra on the lines taught by the teacher. Just as the mathematics teacher drives home the equation to the student. Similarly, Mahāvākya upadēśa karta guru has to help the student enquire into the Jīva svarūpa vichāra and Īśvara svarūpa vichāra. Then the thrilling discovery is what, Aham Brahmā asmi. Brahmā (carefully write, or else you will write it as brahmaḥ - which means confusion). I am confusion asmi. For that discovery, vēdāntic study is not required. It is a known fact. Aham Brahmā asmi. And this is called Jīvatāma-paramātma aikyam. Otherwise called Asi padārthaḥ. And this enquiry you make to arrive at the oneness is called jñāna yōgaḥ; otherwise called vēdānta sṛavaṇa manana nidhidhyāsana.

That is going to be highlighted in the 13th chapter, 14th chapter, 15th chapter; then the third topic, aikyam No.1, jñāna yōga, No.2, the next topic is the importance of values. Developing satguṇas; noble virtues, are extremely important, to enjoy a mind which will be capable of absorbing the teaching. Only a dhārmic mind can absorb Vēdānta. In Kathōpaniṣad, it is said:

नाविरतो दुश्चरितान्नाशान्तो नासमाहितः ।

नाशान्तमानसो वाऽपि प्रज्ञानेनैवमाप्नुयात् ॥ Part I. Canto.II. Mantra.२४ ॥

nāviratō duścaritānnāśāntō nāsamāhitaḥ |

nāśāntamānasō vā: 'pi prajñānēnainamāpnuyāt || Part I. Canto.II. Mantra.24 ||

If the mind is not a dharmic mind, if it does not have healthy values, the mind is not a prepared mind, and without a prepared mind, if vēdantic knowledge is given, it is like sowing the seeds on sand. On dry barren sandy ground, even if you sow the best of seeds, nothing will happen.

Therefore an intelligent person should prepare the ground before sowing the seed; Similarly, before sowing the Mahāvākya seed, make sure that you have the virtues. Then the question is what are the virtues. Krishna will himself enumerate them. In 13th chapter we get, 14 we get some of them, 15 we get, and in 16 and 17th fully we get virtues, we can call them satguṇāḥ. Satguṇāḥ. In Dharma śāstra, they are ātma guṇah. And if you want to present the values in Vēdantic language, we can call them sādhanā catuṣṭaya sampathī. So values is the third topic. Aikyam, jñāna yōga and guṇās, these are the three topics highlighted in the carma ṣatkam.

With this background, we will enter the carma ṣatkam, viz., the 13th chapter of the Gītā.

In the 13th chapter, in some books, we find a verse, in the form of Arjuna's question. In some books, 13th chapter begins with Arjuna uvāca, whereas in some other books, we get Bhagavān uvāca. Perhaps that slōkās was not there before, later perhaps somebody added, we are not going to go into details, but the question is useful and therefore I have incorporated that verse in our books; and therefore they start with Arjuna's question. And if you include that 13th chapter would have 35 verses; otherwise they would only have 34 verses.

अर्जुन उवाच arjuna uvāca Arjuna asked केशव keśava Oh ! Kesava इच्छामि वेदितुम् icchāmi vēditum I desire to know, एतद् etad the following प्रकृतिम् prakṛtim prakṛiti पुरुषं एव च puruṣaṁ eva ca puruṣa also, क्षेत्रम् kṣetraṁ kṣetraṁ क्षेत्रज्ञम् kṣētrajñam kshetrajñā also एव च eva ca as the knower of ज्ञानम् jñānam jñānam, knowledge च ज्ञेयम् ca jñeyaṁ and jñeyaṁ (what ought to be known).

1. Arjuna asked: - Oh Lord! I desire to know he following- prakṛti, puruṣa, kṣetraṁ, kṣētrajñā, jñānam, and jñeyaṁ.

Arjuna asks this question and in this question and Arjuna gives six technical words, generally used in the vēdānta. Technical words used in any science is called Paribhāṣa śabdaḥ. In English we call it jargons. And medical jargon, jargon is a technical word used in that particular science. Like in economics, they say inflation. Whereas when you talk of inflating your cycle tyre, it has a different meaning. So we have got technical words; they are called Paribhāṣa śabdaḥ; Arjuna introduces, six Paribhāṣa śabdāḥ, technical words, used in vēdānta and he asks for clarification; I have heard them and I would like to know what exactly those concepts are. So what are those six words. No.1 prakṛti; No.2. Puruṣaḥ; No.3 Kṣetraṁ; No.4 kṣētrajñā; No.5 Jñānam; and No.6 Jñeyaṁ. These are the 6 words, generally they go in pairs; prakṛti and Puruṣaḥ, one pair; kṣetraṁ and kṣētrajñā, another; then jñānam and jñeyaṁ. Ethat, the group of the technical words, vēdithum icchami. I would like to know, Hey Keśava. Keśava, Oh Lord Krishna. And here even though Arjuna has used six words, some of the words are almost synonymous. Still Arjuna perhaps is not clearly and distinctly enumerated. For our convenience, we can take them together. The word prakṛti, and the word kshetram are almost synonymous, both of them mean the material universe, which is the object of our experience. So the experienced objective material universe is known as prakṛti and kṣetraṁ. Even though there are subtle differences, at this moment, we can take them as almost identical. And when I say material universe, it includes the invisible energies also, because even scientifically energy is another form of matter only. Matter can be converted into energy and energy can be converted into matter; that is why we have $e = mc^2$ equation. Therefore, when I say this matter, it means the whole creation in visible and invisible form. And according to Vēdānta, it includes our mind also, because according to saastra, mind is also a product of the subtle five elements. Therefore mind is also a form of matter only and that is why the mind is influenced by matter. When there is a change in biochemistry, when there is a change in hormones, it changes your mind and emotions; from that it is very clear that mind is also another form of subtle matter. Therefore, prakṛti or kshetram includes the world, the mind and also the body, all of them are called prakṛti or kṣetraṁ. Krishna will himself will elaborate that later. Here for our convenience we can remember, matter.

Then we can take Puruṣaḥ and Kṣētrajñaṁ and Jñēyaṁ. All these are almost synonymous only, there is only a subtle superficial differences; essentially all these three being chaitanyam or consciousness principle. Thus prakṛti and Kṣētram means acēтана tatvam; Puruṣaḥ, Kṣētrajñā and jñēyaṁ means cēताना tatvam. Matter and spirit. Inert and sentient. Thus five words we have reduced into two. Then what is left out. There is only one word, i.e. jñānam. And the word jñānam has a popular meaning, it has several meanings. Popular meaning of the jñānam is knowledge but in the thirteenth chapter, the word jñānam is used in the meaning of virtues, or values: Satguṇas; Krishna will enlist 20 virtues later; amānitvaṁ, adaṁbitvaṁ, ahimṣa, śantiḥ and Krishna says all these virtues put together are called ethat jñānaṁ iti prokthaṁ, ajñānaṁ ethōnyatha. Jñānam means virtues or values.

These are going to be the six topics or three topics, which Arjuna wants to know, which Krishna will elaborate later. This is the background of the question. Even Krishna is answering a question paper. Examination season. it is not only for our children, Lord Krishna also has got: Write short notes on: I do not whether it is there now or not; we had it. Write short notes on. Only difference is we will have so many and choice will be given on any three; but poor Krishna does not have any choice, he has to write notes on all the six! And Krishna being a great student or master, he answers all of them beautifully! Now we will see Krishna's answer.

2. Lord Krsna said – Oh Arjuna! This body is known as kṣetraṃ. (There is a conscious principle) which knows this (body). Wise men declare that (knower principle) to be ksetrajñā.

When we write answers to the questions, generally, we write the answers for those questions which we know thoroughly; and wherever we want to bluff, wherever we are not sure, we will keep it for the end. What we definitely know, we write first. Similarly Krishna also perhaps, not that Krishna wants to bluff or something, he also rearranges the questions, perhaps for our convenience; even though Arjuna's order, Prakṛti, Puruṣaḥ, Kṣetraṃ, Kṣētrajña, Krishna starts with the third item, Kṣetraṃ. Of these six items, first one Krishna takes up is Kṣetraṃ.

What is kṣetraṃ Krishna says; he kaunteya, Kuntiputrah! Arjuna; this body that you are experiencing intimately, this śarīraṃ, this body is called kṣetraṃ. So this body is called kṣetraṃ. And why is this body known by the word kṣetraṃ? Śankarācārya gives several meanings for the word kṣetraṃ; Out of that we will see two meanings, which are relevant and beautiful.

First meaning is that which is subject to decay and destruction. So kṣiyathe iti kṣetraṃ. kṣathathvāt, kṣamānatvāt kṣetraṃ, kṣi means that which disintegrates, that which decays and ultimately dies. In fact, the very word śarīraṃ also means the same only. Sīryamāṇa svabhāvatvāt śarīraṃ. sīryathe means that which is decaying every moment. The cells, one set of cells are replaced by another and after 40 or 50, the replacement becomes slow or stops and ultimately it dies. All the words used for the physical body indicates that it is decay and destruction. And even the word dehaḥ, is because that which is burned by, afflicted by, tormented by three-fold sorrows; trivitha tāpaiḥ dahyathe iti dēḥ. Dēh, means to burn. Not in the physical sense, in the figurative sense.

What are the three-fold tāpās. One tāpā is rising from inside in the form of varieties of diseases etc. that is it is internal.

And the other type of tāpā, are coming from the outside or the environment, like dust pollution, noise pollution, carbon monoxide pollution, so many varieties of pollution they talk about, any tāpam coming from the surrounding is one type of suffering; known as adhi bouthika tāpam;

what comes from inside is adhyātmica tāpam; like BP, sugar, etc. And the third one is that which is not caused by external or internal, that which is caused by the nature, or the karma.

Adhi daivika tāpam caused by supernatural forces like thunder, lightening, or floods, all these things are the third ones.

Through these three fold tāpas, the body is constantly tormented and therefore trivitha tāpaiḥ dahyathe iti dēḥ. Siryathe iti śarīram, dahyathe iti dēḥ, kshiyathe iti kṣiyathe iti kṣetraṁ. And while living the three fold tāpas or burning, and after death also, the body is burned, by another type of fire; What is that? cremation fire. Therefore while living also it is burned (tavikkarom), after death also it is burned, therefore it is called kṣetraṁ. This is meaning No.1 given by Śankarācārya.

The second meaning given for Kṣetraṁ is any agricultural land or field is called kṣetraṁ. A wet land which is used for raising crops or plants is called kṣetraṁ. And our physical body is comparable to a field. And why is the body compared to a field, Śankarācārya says when we have got seeds in our hands, we can convert the seed into the plant. But that conversion requires a land. Only through the land, by sowing the seed, it can be converted into plants. If you are keeping the seed in your bureau and after a few days, it cannot grow into a plant and therefore we require what? an intermediary medium, through which alone the seed is converted into plant which can bear fruits. Similarly we have done lot of Puṇya pāpa karmas in the past janma and all those karmas are like seeds and every karma can fructify into sukham and duḥkham. Just as seed can fructify into plant; karma can fructify into phalam; puṇyam karma into sukha phalam pāpa karma into duḥkha phalam but that conversion requires a medium. Just as seed requires the medium of the field to become a plant and fructify, our karma also requires a medium; what is the medium, the physical body is the medium only through the body we can reap puṇya phalam, we can reap pāpa phalam. As long as you do not have a body, puṇyam will be there; but will never become sukham; pāpam will be there, it will never become dukham. The conversion requires a intermediary. Therefore Śankarācārya says Kṣetravat kṣetraṁ. Only one word Śankarācārya says. He is very very concise, precise, brief. He will not talk like me for half an hour. He writes only one word kṣetravat kṣetraṁ. And therefore the physical body is kṣetraṁ.

Even though Krishna has defined the physical body as kṣetraṁ, we have to include two more things, which Krishna would do later, but in this context we can add. The mind is also called kṣetraṁ. And not only the body and mind, even the external world is called kṣetraṁ. So three things; body, mind and the world. In short whatever you experience is kṣetraṁ. Whatever you experience is kṣetraṁ. The world is experienced by me; the body is experienced by me. Do you have any doubts? When the mosquito bites, you will know whether you experience the body or not. Even if you deliberately know, the hand will know. The body and pain and pleasures are experienced; the world is experienced. In the same way, the mind is experienced by me intimately. I know the arrival of every emotion and I know the departure. I know the emotional problems. That's why counselors are having a gala time. If I do not know my emotional problem, how I will go to a psychiatrist. So therefore, all the three, what is common to all the three, all of them are objects of experience and all of them are matter, made up of matter; world is made up of matter; body is of course made up of matter; mind also is made up of matter. All the three are objects. All the three are matter. And then all the three are subject to constant change also. The world changes all the time. There is nothing that is changeless. Some of them may change faster. Some of them may change slowly, but the change is the law of nature. And not only the world, the body changes, asti, jāyathe, vardathe, vipariṇamathe, kṣiyathe, iti ṣad vikarāvāt etat śarīram. Therefore the world is savikāram, body is savikāram. What about the mind, it changes or not? My God! That is the fastest changing thing; Thank God the mind changes also. I keep on talking and your mind remains still. What use. Nothing happens in the mind. What a terrible lot will be mine? So I am expecting my words to enter your mind, through your ears, and I expect your mind, your thoughts to change. Every word should create a thought in your mind. Whether you understand or not, accept or not, mind has to undergo transformation. Thus kṣetraṁ is object; kṣetraṁ is matter. kṣetraṁ is subject to change.

Even though kṣetraṁ consists of body and world, Krishna here focuses upon the body only, because we have got maximum attachment to the body matter. World is also matter; body is also another lump of matter, (மண்ணாம்புகட்டி mannankatti - mud pack), Only like porcelain, it is a refined mud. Even though the world is also mud, body is also mud, unfortunately, our identification with this body is so deep and therefore Krishna wants to specifically remind that the body is also an object of experience. Iti Kṣetraṁ. So topic No.1 temporarily over. Krishna will elaborate later.

Then what is the second topic. ētat yaḥ vētti, tam ksetrajñā iti prāhuḥ. Whatever illumines or experiences the kṣetraṁ. If the kṣetraṁ is an experienced object, every experienced object presupposes an experiencer, sentient subject. If my eyes are perceiving all of you, the very perception of every one of you pre-supposes the existence of the perceiver I. Even though the eyes themselves are not perceived by me; I do not see my eyes, even though the eyes themselves are not perceived; there is no doubt regarding the perceiver eyes, because without the perceiver eyes, there cannot be perceived forms and colours. Like every photograph that you see presupposes what? a photographer or minimum a camera. Earlier I used to talk about photographer, now they talk about an auto-camera. There is a camera. Every photo presupposes a camera, even though the camera is not in the picture. Similarly the entire kṣetraṁ consisting of the world, body and mind is an object of experience, it presupposes what a sentient, experiencer, illuminator, conscious principle. And that conscious principle which is called the subject, which is called the illuminator, which is called the enlivening principle, Krishna calls Kṣētrajñā.

and who says that: तद्विदः tadvidah; the great jñānis who know about them, they say that it is called Kṣētrajñā. Therefore, in short Kṣētrajñā means conscious principle. Kṣetraṁ means matter principle, Kṣētrajñā means conscious principle or Consciousness.

Now taking a little bit aside, what exactly is the nature of this consciousness is a fundamental question, because it is a mysterious thing which everybody tries to understand, all the sciences are even now struggling to understand what is the phenomenon of consciousness. According to vĕdānta, consciousness has the following features:

Do you remember: ஞுபகம் வரதா? கட கடந்நு போலாமா?

1. Consciousness is not a part of the body, it is not a product of the body, is not a property of the body. Consciousness is an independent entity, according to vĕdānta. So consciousness is not part, product or property of the body.

2. Consciousness is an independent entity which pervades the body, which body, inert body, and makes it sentient, cĕtanam. This is the second feature. Dĕha vilakṣaṇam. It is different and pervades the body. Dĕha vyāpihi.

3. The third feature is this consciousness which is independent principle is not limited by the boundaries of the body, which means it extends beyond the periphery of the body. Vyāpi sarvagatha; this is the third feature;

4. Then the fourth feature is: This consciousness will continue to exist, even when the body perishes. It is eternal. Previously we said all-pervading. Now we say it is eternal.

5. Final point is the surviving consciousness after the destruction of the body is not recognisable because there is no body through which it can manifest or express. For want of a manifesting medium, the surviving consciousness is not recognisable.

Om

In the beginning of thirteenth chapter, Arjuna introduced 6 technical words, Paribhāṣa śabdaḥ used in the scriptures and Arjuna asked for clarifications of these terms and from the 2nd verse, Lord Krishna begins to answer Arjuna's question. The six terms that Arjuna wanted to know are Kṣetraṁ, Kṣētrajña, prakṛti, Puruṣaḥ, and Jñānam and Jñēyaṁ. Of these six words, Lord Krishna takes up the first pair of words, viz., Kṣetraṁ and Kṣētrajña and since these two terms are closely connected, Krishna deals with both of them simultaneously.

And this is done from the 2nd verse up to 7. Verse No.2 to 7 is dealing with Kṣetraṁ and Kṣētrajña. And the word Kṣetraṁ, literally and from the standpoint of vēdānta means the entire objective universe which is experienced by us; which consists of the external world which is an object of experience, which includes the body, which is also an object of my experience, and finally, it includes the mind also, which is an object of experience. Thus the world, plus the body, plus the mind, the whole thing is Kṣetraṁ.

The only difference is among these three, the world is a little bit away from us, as it were, and the body and mind are intimately associated with me, the observer and therefore, the body and mind appear to me to my integral part. I have given you the example before: When somebody asks, what are the things in front of me, I enumerate various things, all of you, the mike, the book, the clip, the watch, the desk, this cloth on the desk, I will enumerate everything and I forgot to include one thing which is very much different from me, which is in front of me, which is very much an object and which is generally not enumerated, viz., what is that, my spectacle. The spectacles is very much part of this world, I have got it from the shop, but once I put on this spectacles and once it becomes an instrument of observation, the instrument is generally included in the subject itself. From this we come to know, an important law, "An object which serves as an instrument, is generally taken as the subject itself". An object, which serves as an instrument, is integrally connected with the subject and therefore generally we include this spectacles in the observer itself. But the fact is it is also an object only. In the same way, Vēdānta says, the body is also another instrument for my observation of the world, the mind is also another instrument for the observation of the world, but both of them also are an object different from me, because instrument is different from the one who is behind the instrument. And that is why when I am using the body and mind, during the waking and dream states, I experience the external world, when in deep sleep state, I am no more operating through the body mind complex, I do not experience the world. So body is one spectacle as it were, one glass of the spectacle, mind is another one; when both of them are used, I experience the world; when both of them are kept aside, when do you keep aside ~ during sleep state ~ I do not function through them, there is no world of experience. And therefore Vēdānta says: body is also an object, mind is also an object, but both of them serve as an instrument and therefore they appear to be an integral part of the subject. And since body is also an object, mind is also an object, both of them should be included in Kṣetraṁ, the objective universe. Thus Kṣetraṁ consists of three portions, the world, the body and the mind. And of these three, Krishna enumerates the body alone in this verse, because our identification with the body is stronger and therefore Krishna highlights the body part in this verse. Later, Krishna himself will elaborate the Kṣetraṁ in which he will include the mind as well as the external world. And therefore brief Kṣetraṁ in this verse elaborate Kṣetraṁ in the later verse No.6 and 7. That is Mahabhūtān Ahamkāra, and icchā dvēṣaḥ sukhaṁ duḥkhaṁ, their Krishna elaborates the Kṣetraṁ, here briefly enumerates only item, what is that? the body is Kṣetraṁ, and He also pointed out Kṣētrajña is something which is different from the body, which pervades the body and which makes the material body a live, living being. And that invisible principle, like the invisible electricity, which makes the fan go around, which makes the bulb bright, which makes the mike magnify my sound, that invisible principle behind the visible mike, behind the visible fan, behind the visible radio, behind the visible electricity instrument, that is the electricity principle; in the same way, behind the physical material body, the invisible principle is the chaitanya tatvam. And that invisible chaitanya tatvam is called Kṣētrajña; jñaḥ means the awaring principle, the experiencing principle, the observing principle, the sentient principle.

And therefore, the first job in Vēdānta is understanding that the individual is a mixture of two things, the body and consciousness. Just as recognising the fan is a mixture of two principles, one is the visible fan part, and the invisible electricity part. Mere electricity will you give you brief; if you have doubt, open the fan and see; mere fan cannot give you breeze, what gives you breeze is neither the fan nor the electricity but a mixture of both.

Similarly the functioning individual, the live individual, neither the mere body, nor the mere consciousness. Consciousness by itself cannot transact; body by itself cannot transact, the transacting entity is a mixture of body and Consciousness. And here Krishna calls them Kṣētrajña and Kṣetraṁ; In the 2nd chapter of the Bhagavad Gītā, they were called dēha and dēhi. Do you remember etc. you have to remember all those verses, second chapter verse No.12 to 25. go through the whole section. And this dēha and dēhi mixture is otherwise called ātma and anātmā. And not only that, by using the word ātma, the scriptures convey an important idea. Generally we tend to identify with the body only. I am the body is our general approach, because the date of birth of the body, I take as my date of birth, the growth of the body I take as my growth; therefore generally the word I is used for the body and after the study of Vēdānta, what we generally say that Now I know that I am the body and behind me there is a eternal consciousness. We will not be telling that earlier.

Before Vēdantic study, I am the body alone is the understanding, after Vēdantic study, I add one more statement, I am the body and in me there is an ātma. Krishna says that is not the right approach. You should not say that I am the body and in me there is ātma. You have to train your mind, that is called nidhidhyāsanam, spend weeks, months and years, and what should be the new training, I am the consciousness because I am conscious principle and body is an incidental medium through which I am transacting with the world.

Therefore instead of saying I am the body with an ātma, I should learn to say I am the ātma with an incidental body. And since the body is only an incidental medium, I am willing to accept the fact that this medium is bound to go back to the Kṣetraṁ, the external world. It has come from the world, I am using it temporarily, and I have to give it back to the world and even when I give the Kṣetraṁ back to the world, I the Kṣētrajña the invisible consciousness will continue to survive. This shift of the identification from Kṣetraṁ to Kṣētrajña is called aparōkṣajñānam or aparōkṣikaraṇam. As long as I say that I have an ātma, it is called parōkṣajñānam, the moment I say I am the ātma, it is called aparōkṣajñānam 'Have' to 'Am', is parōkṣajñānam to aparōkṣajñānam. This is the essence of the 2nd verse. Now continuing.

kṣētrajñam cāpi māṁ viddhi sarvakṣētrēṣu bhārata |

kṣētrakṣētrajñayōrjñānam yattajjñānam mataṁ mama || 13.3 ||

भारत bhārata Oh ! Arjuna, the descendant of Bharata अपि च api ca moreover विद्धि viddhi know क्षेत्रज्ञम् kṣētrajñam kshetrajñā,(the knower of the field, body), माम् mām to be Myself सर्वक्षेत्रेषु sarvakṣētreṣu obtaining in all bodies तद् ज्ञानम् tad jñānam that knowledge यद् क्षेत्रक्षेत्रज्ञयोः yad kṣētrakṣētrajñayoḥ which deals with kṣētram and kṣētrajñā, ज्ञानम् jñānam is (true) knowledge मम मतम् mama matam this is my teaching.

3. And know Me as the kṣētrajña in all the kṣētras, O Bharata. The knowledge of kṣētra and kṣētrajña is deemed by Me as true Knowledge.

Now Krishna goes to the next step of knowledge. Each step is a solid. We have to take years to assimilate. We will take only a minute to hear, but it will take years to assimilate. What are the steps we have seen till now. First I said I am the body, that is where we begin. Now what is the second step. I am the body backed by another principle called consciousness; this is the second step; what is the third step? In fact I am not the body with consciousness, but I am the consciousness with an incidental (whenever you say body, keep practising saying it as 'incidental body'.) incidental body/borrowed body. So that we will not have ownership; Bhagavān has allowed me to use it, he can take up; the modern law of trouble with vacating the tenant who stays for 15 or 20 years is not there; Do not apply that principle with God, he will forcibly vacate you from the tenement. Normally, he will say; he will also bring gūndās, called yama dhūtas. He will forcibly take. So therefore the third step of knowledge, I am the consciousness with an incidental body.

Now we are going to the fourth step. Very important step. What is that, I have now known and hopefully assimilated that I am the consciousness behind this body. So body is the container, I am the content, the tenant, the invisible consciousness. If I look upon myself as consciousness within my body, what should be you? If I am consciousness within my body, what about you? You are the consciousness in your body; So Rāma is the consciousness in Rāma śārīram; Krishna is the dehi-consciousness in Krishna śārīram. The Dēhi in Krishna Śārīram, any other person, Lakṣmi is the consciousness in the Lakṣmi śārīram; mosquito is the consciousness within mosquito śārīram; Indra is the consciousness in the Indra śārīram; in fact, each one of us, is, nothing but, the consciousness in the respective body.

Now the question is: How many consciousnesses are there? This is the question: How many consciousnesses are there? Generally our conclusion will be what, each one is the consciousness the body; therefore, within my body there is one consciousness; and within your body there is another consciousness. Therefore as many bodies are there, so many consciousnesses also must be there. This will be our general conclusion. It is not only our conclusion, this is the conclusion of certain philosophers like Sāṅkya; Sāṅkya philosopher says, each body has one one ātma. And therefore how many ātma are there? As many bodies are there, so many ātmas are there, the Sāṅkya philosopher contents. Here, what Lord Krishna says you have to note the difference. What is the difference? The container bodies are many, but the Consciousness within is the same in everyone. The bodies are many, but the dēhi, the Kṣētrajña the ātma the consciousness is the same in every one. And not only is the consciousness in every body, we should also know that the consciousness is there in between the two bodies also. The only thing is consciousness is recognisable in the body because life is manifest. In between consciousness is existent, but not recognisable, why? The bodies are not there in between to manifest or recognise the consciousness. Like electricity is recognisable in fan No.1, recognisable means what not physically visible, I can appreciate the presence of electricity in fan No.1, and also in fan No.2, in between through the electric cable, electricity is flowing, I do not have any instrument to recognise the electricity.

Or to give you another example, you can recognise the light in my first finger, two fingers are there, you can recognise the light in the second finger; though finger No.1 is visible and though finger No.2 is visible, you recognise the light reflected in finger No.1 and also in finger No.2; between the two fingers, light is there, or not? Light is there or not? Light is there or not? Here also doubt comes. It appears as though the light (I am not talking about the bulb), is as though not there, but remember, the light principle Prakāśaka is in-between also but not recognised because there is no object to reflect. Suppose I finger keep a finger between the two fingers, along with the reflecting medium, the finger, you will recognise the light. Above my head also light is there, The moment I keep my hand, you can recognise. When I take away the light, the light above my head, you do not recognise; you recognise the light on the screen alone. Now Vēdānta says that consciousness pervades everywhere, Wherever bodies are there; consciousness is manifest as life principle, where bodies are not there, consciousness is not manifest. And therefore, there is only one all-pervading consciousness which is manifest in some places, and which is unmanifest in some other places; manifest or unmanifest, the consciousness is sarvagathaḥ.

This is the challenge of science also. What is consciousness? and where is consciousness? Vēdānta gives the answer; consciousness is different from matter and pervades all over; matter is only a medium for the expression of consciousness. When matter goes away, consciousness does not die, but its expression dies. OK.

Then the next step, we have to go, to understand this verse is. Even though this consciousness is all pervading, this Consciousness is known by two different names, based on the angle from which you look at the consciousness. Just like one member of the family is known by different names based on the angle from which the person is seeing. Your own child will call you parent; whereas your own parents will not call you parent; they will call you child; so thus person remaining the same, one person looks at this person as husband, another as brother, another as son, another as father. Similarly, consciousness has two names, based on the angle from which it is looked at.

When the consciousness is looked from the stand point of a single individual body, it is called jīvātma. Ātma, the consciousness, looked from the stand point of the individual body, making enlivening my body, my mind, experiencing my surroundings, is consciousness is called jīvātma.

Whereas the very same consciousness looked from the standpoint of all the bodies, otherwise called the samaṣṭi, the total, the very same ātma is called paramātma; or paramātma. So from my microcosmic angle, the consciousness is called jīvātma, vyaṣṭi dristya jīvātma, from macrocosmic angle, samaṣṭi dhṛṣṭya it is paramātma.

And suppose you negate my microcosm and macrocosm. negate vyaṣṭi and samaṣṭi. It is neither jīvātma nor paramātma. Then what is it; ātma. Therefore consciousness is ātma, the adjective 'jīvā' is looking at consciousness from individual angle, the adjective 'parama' is given looking at it from the total angle. When the prime minister or the President of the angle is looked at the stand point of his family, he is called householder, but when the very same person, occupies the Presidential office, or Prime minister's office, the very same person is called the Prime Minister or President. What is the difference in his weight? As a householder what is his weight. 75 kgs. and as the PM what is his weight. 75000 tons? Because he is PM!!, the person is the same, to name from the standpoint of the observation. Therefore, jīvātma is ātma, paramātma is ātma; both are essentially one and the same. This recognition is called jīvātma paramātma aikyam.

So what is my knowledge now. I am the ātma. When I the consciousness am functioning through an individual body, I am called a jīvaḥ and the very same I, the consciousness, manifesting through the whole creation, I am called the paramātma and when I forget the body, and forget the world also, when I forget the body and the world also, I am what? Neither jīvātma nor paramātma, but ātma. So this is called jīvātma paramātma aikya jñānam.

And the example we generally give in the śāstra is like seeing, the essential oneness of the wave and the ocean. When water is looked at from the standpoint of a small name and form, it is called a wave; when the very same water is looked at from the standpoint of total name and form, it is called ocean, but remove the wave name and form, remove the ocean name and form, what is the essence; wave is water; ocean is water; there is only water. This is called jīvātma-paramātma aikya jñānam or ātma ekatva jñānam.

And in this third verse, Krishna is revealing this fact and therefore this verse is called Mahāvākya slōkaḥ. A very very very very important verse. Śankarācārya a very elaborate commentary running to pages, and the sub-commentators write still more elaborate commentary, if you take the commentaries and sub-commentaries, this one verse itself, you can make a voluminous book. What is the definition of Mahāvākya. Any statement, which reveals the essential oneness of jīvātma and paramātma. So jīvātma paramātma aikya bodhaka vākya. Mahāvākya.

Now look at the verse. Krishna says: Arjuna carefully understand and assimilate. What should you understand. क्षेत्रज्ञं मां विद्धि kṣētrajñam māṃ viddhi. Kṣētrajña, means jīvātma, that is the consciousness obtaining in one body, and Maam viddhi, who says, Krishna says māṃ, means Me, here the word Me means the Paramātma. Therefore, jīvātmānam, paramātvatvena viddhi. May you know Kṣētrajña jīvātmā as Krishna Paramātma. You know the Kṣētrajña jīvātma as Krishna paramātma. The Kṣētrajña jīvātmā body is different; Krishna Paramātma's body is different, containers are different; but the content consciousness is one and the same. The bulbs are different; one is the bedroom bulb, 0 watt, another is the search light or whatever it is; bulbs are different, electricity behind is only one. Do not ask ātma is electricity? It is comparable to electricity; it is not exactly electricity. Therefore Krishna says kṣētrajñam māṃ viddhi, know Me to be paramātma.

And where is the paramātma, सर्वक्षेत्रेषु भारत sarvakṣētrēṣu bhāratha; which is the consciousness obtaining in all the other bodies. And if I look at myself and yourself as consciousness, I can say I am you and you are me. From body's standpoint, I cannot say. My body is different, your body is different; from mind standpoint I can never say; my mind is different; my own emotions, your mind has your emotions, from intellect standpoint also I cannot say, my knowledge and ignorance are different; your ignorance and knowledge are different; but when I come to the experiencer-consciousness, I can say I am you and you are me. Saḥ aham asmi and Aham saḥ asmi. That is the well-known sōham mantra. Sōham Aham Saḥ. That is why it got the name, hamsa mantra. Hamsaḥ means Aham Saḥ, I am that paramātma. I am Brahmāsmi is the revelation.

And then Krishna says: this knowledge is a very very useful knowledge and therefore this is the real knowledge to be acquired by all people. All other types of knowledge can be acquired but they are really worthless; because they do not improve the quality of life. previously miserable BA. Now previous miserable MA. Now miserable Ph.d. The degrees go on changing. the misery continues to be same. Whereas this alone is 'the real knowledge', which changes the very quality of your life.

Therefore Krishna says ks̥ētra ks̥ētrajña yoh jñānam, this knowledge, regarding the ks̥ētra and ks̥ētrajña, tat jñānam, that alone is the real knowledge. In Mundaka upaniṣad this knowledge is called parā vidyā and all other types of knowledge are called aparā vidyā. And Sankaracharya tells elsewhere aparāvidyā hi avidyā. Apara vidyā all other forms of knowledge, are as good as ignorance only. தெரிஞதும் தெரியாததும் ஒன்றே; Therinjathum, theriyathathum onne.

Now the question will be, how do you see that this knowledge will make or bring about a quality change in the life. How does it change my life? Again go back to the example. Imagine there are two waves, both of them are like waves, imagine they are living being waves, they can know, they can talk, and one wave, knows I am a wave. Whereas the other wave knows I am water. What difference this knowledge brings about in the second wave. You imagine. As long as the first wave considers that I am a wave, its thinking will be what? I am just born out of the ocean, and I am growing, because the wave becomes bigger and bigger, dēhinōsmin, kaumāram, yauvanam, jarā, etc. ripple, wave, bigger wave.

And as even the wave is growing, it is also aware of the fact that I am going to towards the shore and once I go as a wave, will be destroyed. Therefore, I am a mortal finite entity is the thought that the wave will have. As long as it thinks itself as a wave. As long as there is a conclusion that I am mortal, the insecurity feeling is unavoidable. The wave, as long as it thinks it is a wave, it can never get out of insecurity and all its actions are driven by the sense of insecurity. In the same way, as long as I am going to think I am the body, I am a mortal individual, every moment of my life is driven by the sense of insecurity. In fact, the very admission to the school and my education is based on the career opportunity and all the counseling are based on what? In which you can earn more? if possible with minimum work or no work. I never bother about which subject I like. I do not want to take a course that I will enjoy. Enjoyment is not the consideration, my inclination is not the consideration; all my activities from LKG is based on the consideration which will give me a good job, with a five-year or six-figure salary. Even after I enter into a job, I have served; wonderful rapo has been created, if there is another job which will give me more money, headhunters; I heard; it was not in our times. there are people who are ready to pull you out for better salary. And therefore loyalty or relationship all I do not care, only consideration, which will give me better retirement benefits ` even before joining the job ~ what do you mean by that - I want security. And often we get children, only as an investment; that in future, if I pay through my nose, the children will hopefully take care of me in the old age. And when that becomes doubtful, and I have to go to old age home. Everything you see; all we are running after money, remember, money is seen is an equivalent of security. Money and security are synonymous for an ignorant person. ignorant means Vēdāntically ignorant person. Vēdānta calls a person a samsāri, samsāri is defined as one, who sees money as security. And I will see the money as security because, now I am insecure. Now I am insecure, because I am the body.

Whereas imagine the other way, the enlightened wave, the jīvanmuktha wave. It is not bothered because this wave is nothing but a name and a form; name and form is subject to destruction; nobody can hold on to that; I am not attached to the incidental nāma rūpa, I know I am water, I will be water, I was water, and I the water am not destroyed. Even during summer, when it is evaporated, when I become invisible to people, then I exist in what form? In the form of steam; in the form of water vapour, I exist. And therefore, the difference between knowledge and ignorance is: the difference between security and insecurity.

And according to Vēdānta, this knowledge alone will give security; other than this knowledge whatever you do, there will be the lingering sense of insecurity. All the others will give a false sense of security, a fake sense of security; therefore do you want security; gain this knowledge. If you think that there are sources of security, Vēdānta does not want to contradict you; Vēdānta tells try: Just go and have a merry go round, either through money or status, or position or possession or relationship. Try all of them, and then when you know and you are convinced that none of them will give you real security; then you come to vēdānta.

In fact, when you come to vēdānta, after such a maturity, then your listening also will be intense. Or else, vēdānta will be a hobby. In the home it is a noisy, because of TV and I can sleep peacefully in the vēdānta class. I just joked and do not take seriously.!! Vēdānta gives you to a challenge, Try to find security anywhere else.

And still now the challenge is Open and Krishna says this is the knowledge, which removes the sense of insecurity.

And just one more aside point. OK. You say that nothing else will give you security, then do you mean say that Vēdāntic knowledge will give me security? It is just a next step. Not very important in this context. But I could not by-pass. Vēdānta says, in fact Vēdānta also does not give you security. In fact Vēdānta also does not give you security. Vēdānta reveals the fact that you do not require any security from outside. In your real nature, you are ever secure. Therefore, Vēdānta does not give security, vēdānta removes the sense of insecurity. Vēdānta removes the sense of insecurity, and that is why those jñānis and many of them are sanyāsis and they do not have any thing to hold on to, they do not have their own family, they do not have bank account, they do not have any other possession, they do not have a kitchen for food, they do not know from where the next meal will come; they must be the most insecure people, but you look at those jñānis, they are more secure than all the others with possessions. In fact greater the possession, you require more security guards. Therefore Krishna says: क्षेत्रक्षेत्रज्ञयोजनं kṣētra Kṣētrajña yoh jñānam, this knowledge between the kṣētra and the knowledge of the kṣētra and Kṣētrajña is the real knowledge. And this is called ātma jñānam.

Continuing.

तत्क्षेत्रं यच्च यादृक् च यद्विकारि यतश्च यत् ।

यत् च तत् क्षेत्रम् yat ca tat kṣetram what is that kshetram? यादृक् yādr̥ka ca च what are its properties or nature? यद्विकारि yadvikāri what effect or modification is it? यत् च यतः yat ca yataḥ which effect (comes out) of which cause? यः च सः yāḥ ca saḥ What is that (kshetrajñā)? च यत्प्रभावः ca yatprabhāvaḥ and of what glory or power is it? शृणु तत् śr̥ṇu tat hear that मे me from Me, समासेन samāsena briefly.

4. What is that Kṣetraṁ? Of what nature is it? Of what effects is it? Which effect (comes out) of which cause? What is that (kṣētrajña)? And of what glory is it? – Hear that from Me briefly. .

Krishna says that in the previous two verses that is the 2nd and 3rd, Arjuna I have briefly defined Kṣetraṁ and Kṣētrajña, and it is too brief and therefore I will elaborate these two topics a little bit. And therefore Krishna gives an introduction for that in the 4th verse. Hey Arjuna, listen to the following thing: yat tat, Kṣetraṁ. What exactly is the kṣētra, which we have seen as what? the objective physical body.

Now he says I will give you a comprehensive list of what includes the Kṣetraṁ. What all are included in Kṣetraṁ. तत्क्षेत्रं यच्च यादृक् च tatkṣētraṁ yacca yādr̥k ca, what is the nature of Kṣetraṁ, the objective universe, Kṣetraṁ, you can roughly translate, the objective universe, as different from the subjective experiencer. So what is Kṣetraṁ. First topic.

Second topic what is the nature of that Kṣetraṁ.

Then the next topic: यद्विकारि yadvikāri, yadvikāri means what are the causes out of which various effects are born. So the details regarding the causes, Kāraṇam.

यत्तश्च यत् yataśca yat; what are the effects born out of various causes. yadvikāri refers to Kāraṇam, yataśca yat refers to kāryam. One refers to the cause and the other to the effect. The idea is the whole objective universe consists of cause-effect chain only. If you take any individual, I am the effect and my parents are the cause. And the parent themselves are the effect, and their parents are the cause. Thus anything you take, it is an effect of something, and it is the cause of something else. Therefore what are the causes, and what are the effect. What is Kṣetraṁ. what is his nature. what are the causes included in the Kṣetraṁ and what are the effects included in the Kṣetraṁ; All these are details of the Kṣetraṁ.

And not only that, some more details of the kṣētrajña also Krishna wants to give. Therefore he says; sa cha yaha. What exactly the kṣētrajña? Some more features of kṣētrajña. What is kṣētrajña, the consciousness principle. Previously Krishna has only briefly defined consciousness is what, the experiencer of the universe. This is a very brief definition. Krishna wants to deal with more details regarding consciousness. Therefore, what is consciousness or awareness.

And यत्प्रभावश्च yatprabhāvaśca; and what are the glories, the features, the great features of the kṣētrajña. So that we will be seeing later, that consciousness is indivisible, consciousness is beyond time; consciousness is beyond space, consciousness is not subject to change; all these are different and important features. In fact, one scientist beautifully says: Consciousness is that, which is not subject to the laws of the creation. All the physical and chemical laws of the creation cannot influence the consciousness principle. And he says it cannot be located because it does not have a location, which means that it is beyond time and space. Those features, I will give you later, Krishna introduces thus. तत्समासेन मे शृणु tatsamāsēna mē śṛṇu. May you listen to that, which we will see in the next class.

Om

In the beginning of the 13th chapter, Arjuna asked for clarification of six technical words used in the scriptures, Prakṛti, Puruṣaḥ, Kṣetraṁ, kṣētrajña, Jñānam and Jñēyaṁ. Of these terms, Lord Krishna has taken up two terminologies; Kṣētrajña and Kṣetraṁ; which starts from verse No.2 onwards and continues up to verse No.7. First he defined the two words, Kṣetraṁ and Kṣētrajña. Kṣetraṁ means the physical body which represents any experienced object in the creation. Krishna defined Kṣetraṁ as the body and the body represents any experienced object in the creation and then he defined kṣētrajña as the experiencer subject. In short, I am kṣētrajña and whatever I experience is Kṣetraṁ.

And having defined Kṣetraṁ and kṣētrajña, now Krishna wants to give a simple elaboration of these two words; for which he gave the introduction in the 4th verse. In the 2nd and 3rd verse, he gave the definition of kṣētra and kṣētrajña and he now wants to give a little elaboration of these two words for which Krishna gives an introduction in the 4th verse, which I introduced in the last class.

Arjuna may you know what is objective universe, may you know what is the nature of the objective universe. May you know what are the products belonging to the objective universe, and may you also know the various causes which produce these effects. And therefore what is Kṣetraṁ, what is the nature of the Kṣetraṁ, what is that part of the Kṣetraṁ which is called effect, and what is that part of the Kṣetraṁ which is called the cause, and from this we get a corollary that all the causes come under Kṣetraṁ and all the effects also come under Kṣetraṁ.

So that means all the causes and effect, the entire, kārya kāraṇa prapañca comes under Kṣetraṁ, from which we get a very important corollary, we Krishna does not mention but we have to note aside, what is that, if cause and effect come under Kṣetraṁ; kṣētrajña, the consciousness principle should be other than cause and effect. That kṣētrajña is kārya kāraṇa vilakṣaṇa is an indirect hint that Krishna is giving here. Therefore यद्विकारि yat vikāri what are the effect: यतश्च यत् yataśca yat what are the causes from which these effects come. All these different features of Kṣetraṁ, I am going to mention now and in the 2nd line Krishna says: Hey Arjuna, not only I am going to briefly elaborate, I do not know what is brief elaboration, what is Kṣetraṁ and I am also going to elaborate on kṣētrajña.

So He tells in the 2nd line, सः च यः सः saḥ ca yaḥ saḥ; saḥ here means kṣētrajña. I will also tell you what is kṣētrajña, because previously I have given only definition; hereafter I am going to give an explanation of the definition; not only I will elaborate on kṣētrajña, यत्प्रभावश्च yatprabhāvaśca and I will also talk about the prabhāva of kṣētrajña. Prabhāva means glory. Vibhūtiḥ, Mahimā is called prabhāvaḥ, the glories of kṣētrajña also I am going to elaborate in the following verses, Arjuna may you learn it very carefully. And why should Arjuna learn very carefully. Reason has been given in the 2nd verse. In the 2nd verse, kṣētrakṣētrajñayōrjñānaṁ yattajjñānaṁ mataṁ mama. The knowledge of these two alone, is the real knowledge. That is the liberating knowledge; all other disciples of knowledge are not really worthwhile, this knowledge alone is worthwhile, and therefore may you listen to very carefully. तत्समासेन tatsamāsēna. Samāsēna; briefly I am going to mention. शृणु śṛṇu. Listen carefully.

Having given the introduction, now Krishna wants to enter the elaboration and before that, one more verse Krishna uses to glorify the topic. Verse No.5.

ब्रह्मसूत्रपदैश्चैव हेतुमद्भिर्विनिश्चितैः ॥ १३.५॥

ṛṣibhīrbahudhā Gītāṁ chandōbhirvividhaiḥ pṛthak |

brahmasūtrapadaīścaiva hētumadbhirviniścitaiḥ || 13.5 ||

गीतम् Gītāṁ (this has been taught) ऋषिभिः ṛṣibhiḥ by the sages बहुधा bahudhā variously पृथक् pṛthak (this has been revealed) distinctively विविधैः

छन्दोभिः vividhaiḥ chandobhiḥ through various Vēdic hymns हेतुमद्भिः hetumadbhiḥ (This has been taught) through logical च एव विनिश्चितैः ca eva viniścitaiḥ and well-ascertained ब्रह्मसुत्रपदैः brahmasūtrapadaiḥ upaniṣadic statements which reveal Brahman.

5. (This) has been taught by the sages variously. (This has been revealed) distinctly through various Vēdic hymns. (This has been taught) through logical and well-ascertained Upaniṣadic statements which reveal Brahman.

This topic of kṣētra and kṣētrajña is so important is that all the scriptural texts have talked about this because kṣētra includes the entire material universe; kṣētrajña is consciousness; the whole creation is a mixture of spirit and matter only. Therefore, if you have really understood what is matter, the inert principle, and if you have really understood what is the spirit, the conscious principle, you have understood the whole creation.

In fact, all the scientists claim that they are working for the theory of everything. They call it TOE, and what is TOE, theory of everything, they want to come to one theory which will explain every phenomenon in the creation. Still this theory is eluding the scientists. Vēdānta has given the theory of everything. What is that? Everything is nothing but consciousness plus matter. Therefore, scriptures deal only with these two topics.

Therefore Krishna says ऋषिभिः गीतम् ṛṣibhiḥ gītam, all the rishis have through their scriptural work have sung about or talked about only this topic, kṣētra-kṣētrajña viveka Jñānam. So through their literature, like purāṇa, sūtra, etc. they talk about this only.

And not only they talk about, vividhaiḥ chandobhiḥ, all the Vēdic mantrās, chandaḥ, mantrāḥ, through the various Vēdic mantrās also only this subject matter has been dealt with. Therefore छन्दोभिः विविधैः पृथक् इदम् chandobhiḥ vividhaiḥ pṛthak idam, we have to supply the verb idam; these two have been talked about in the vēdās also.

Suppose they talk about various lōkās, it will come under what topic. Kṣetraṁ only. And all the material sciences like astronomy and atomic science again deal with Kṣetraṁ only. If you are talking about anatomy, physiology, etc. and various subdivisions of those sciences, again Kṣetraṁ only. If you deal with psychology, it is again Kṣetraṁ only. Therefore you have to talk about only one of these two.

Therefore all the vēdās have talked about it only; how; पृथक् pr̥thak, distinctly, that pr̥thak is important because science has not been able to understand the relationship between matter and consciousness. So whether consciousness is distinct from matter; is it identical with matter; is it part of the matter; is it a temporary phenomenon, epiphenomena; epi means temporary, of matter, still consciousness-matter relationship is a mystery for all branches of science. In fact, the mystery is so deep, that the even do not know in which branch of science it would come. Whether it should become part of psychology or neurology or this or that, they do not know; whereas Vēdānta has distinguished matter and consciousness and they have distinctly talked about this; pr̥thak means what distinctly.

What is this distinction; consciousness satyam; matter mithya and I am (this is important) consciousness satyam; consciousness is the reality; matter is mithya, the unreal principle, and who am I, I am the consciousness principle, this has been talked about in the vēdās.

Not only this has been dealt with in the vēdās, brahma sūtra padais chaiva. Brahma sūtra is a literature written by Vyāsācārya in which all the upaniṣads have been logically analysed. Brahma sūtra is logical analysis of the philosophical portion of the vēdās; whereas we have a set of purva mimamsa sūtra, which is a logical analysis of the ritualistic portion of the vēdās, whereas brahma sūtra is the logical analysis of the philosophical portion or the Upaniṣadic portion of the vēdās. The upaniṣadic portion of the vēdā is called the vēdā antha portion. Therefore, Brahma sūtra has another name, Vēdāṅga sūtrāni, and since this is done by Vyāsācārya, it is called Vyāsa sūtrani; they are called sūtram because they are in the form of brief capsule statements called aphorisms. So Sūtram means aphorisms. Aphorisms means brief packed statements. Athatho brahma jijnasa is one sūtram. Janmādyasya yadah is another sūtra. Śāstra yōnitvat tatttu samanvayōt īkṣathe naśabdām. All brief statements. But it has got packed ideas. And through these sūtras, Vyāsācārya logically analyses the upaniṣadic teachings, whether consciousness is part of matter; different from matter; or product of matter; because different systems of philosophy presents different things. Nyāya Śāstra says that consciousness is a property of matter; Sāṅkya philosophers say that consciousness is a distinct entity from matter. Thus there are several views; Vyāsācārya analyses all of them and establishes the vēdāntic conclusion.

And therefore Krishna says that this is not an ordinary topic this is a very very significant topic. Therefore ब्रह्मसुत्रपदैः brahmasutrapadaiḥ, through the words of Brahma sūtra.

And what type of brahma sūtra, they are, हेतुमद्भिः hētumadbhiḥ, which are full of reasoning; logical analysis of various views

And विनिश्चितैः viniścitaiḥ and which is conclusive well ascertained logically established. There are 555 sūtras. In the Brahma sūtra, divided into four chapters, sixteen sections, one hundred and ninety two topics. And Śankarācārya has written a pioneering commentary on it; and we have got commentaries, sub commentaries, subsubsub commentaries, commentaries. Somebody gave me a 4 volume work on Brahma sūtra. I think I have told you. Each one like a pillow. And having 9 commentaries on brahma sūtra; and then I was wondering whether to keep it or not, already place problem, and at the end of the fourth book, I saw what is written. It is written thus ends the fourth sūtra; enna? So this is our tradition. You can study and study and study, you will never complete it;

अनन्तशास्त्र बहुवेदितव्यम्
अल्पस्य काला भवस्व विघ्नाः ।
यत् सारभूतम् तत् उपसितव्यम् हम्सो यता क्षीरमिवांभु मिस्रात् ॥ anantaśāstra bahuvēditavyam
alpasya kālā bhahavasca vighnāḥ | yat sārabhūtam tat upasitavyam
hamsō yatā kṣīramivāmbhu misrāt ||

We can never complete the scriptural study. Therefore generally try to study four sūtras; that itself is a great task.

Anyway that is all aside. Here brahmasūtrapadaiścaiva hētumadbhirviniścitaiḥ. We have only one topic, kṣētra-kṣētrajña viveka. And therefore, Arjuna carefully listen. Do not sleep, He says:

6 &7. The five subtle elements, ahankara, mahat, Prakṛti. The ten sense organs, the mind, and the five gross elements, desire, hatred, pleasure, pain, the body-mind complex, sentiency, fortitude --- all this, enumerated above briefly, is Kshetram, together with its modifications.

So Krishna elaborates on the topic of Kṣetram, namely the namely objective universe. And in our tradition, all the philosophers have analysed the objective universe and categorised them into various divisions. In Sanskrit they are called tatvāni. Tatvā means category. Just as any study is done by dividing a particular science into various subject-matter, physic is subdivided into heat, electricity, magnetism, etc., Chemistry is divided into organic chemistry, inorganic chemistry, etc. physical chemistry, etc. If you take mathematics, algebra, calculus, etc. categorisation is one of the methods for intellect to understand things clearly.

And therefore all the philosophers, we have got mainly 12 branches of philosophy in our tradition; all of them try to categorise the universe into various tatvāms; Vaiṣeṣika philosophy, has divided the whole creation into seven tatvās. Nyaya philosophy has divided into 16 tatvās. Sāṅkya philosophy has divided the whole objective universe into twenty-four tatvās. And here Vyāsācārya temporarily borrows from Sāṅkya philosophy and he categories the universe into 24 tatvāms. And what are those 24 tatvāms. In Tatvā bodha also, when we talked about the creation, अथ चतुर्विंशतितत्त्वोत्पत्तिप्रकारं वक्ष्यामः | atha caturviṁśatitattvōtpattiprakāraṁ vakṣyāmaḥ. It is there; their categorisation. There is no rule that the category should in this way only; it can be categorised according to our convenience. Suppose I want to categorise the whole class into groups. I can divide into two groups, male and females; or I can divide based one the between one and 10, 10-20,20-30 according to qualification, graduates, postgraduates, non-graduates; according to mother tongue. Here we are borrowing the categorisation of Sāṅkya philosophy and they talk about the evolution of the universe in four stages; gradually increasing the number of tatvāms.

The first basic matter principle they call Prakṛti. During pralaya, before the evolution of the universe, before the emergence of the universe, it was in potential form, that potential form of the universe they call Prakṛtiḥ. In Vēdānta we use this term, in Sāṅkya also they use. Then Prakṛti is beginningless principle in Sāṅkya, and Krishna also borrows the same idea; Prakṛti does not have origination. Prakṛti is basic matter. If you want to understand in scientific language, the condition just before the big bang. The condition before Big Bang. Then they say, the Prakṛti evolves partially and the first stage of evolution they call mahat tatvām. Prakṛti, then mahat; so Mahat is also total matter in the first stage of evolution.

Then from Mahat, the then stage of evolution, they call ahamkāraḥ. Ahamkāra, is the name of total matter; we are not talking about the individual ego. Individuals are not at all born, even before the birth of the individual, the total matter has evolved into Mahat and the next one is the Ahamkāra, let us call it cosmic ego. Prakṛti to Mahat; this is stage No.1, mahat to ahamkāra is stage 2.

In stage 3, from ahamkāraḥ, 15 tatvāms originate or emerge; and what are the 15 tatvās?

No.1 the cosmic mind; Manaḥ; not the individual mind of yours or mind; we are talking about the cosmic mind, Manaḥ,

No.2 then daśa indriyāṇi; So the ten sense organ principle or powers of perception, daśa indriyāṇi; one plus 10; eleven,

And then pañca sūkṣma bhūtāni, 5 subtle elements, 1+5+5+5 or 1+10+5; jñānēdriyāṇi pañca, karmēndriyāṇi pañca; sūkṣma bhūtāni pañca; 3 x 5 =15 + and then mind. So in the third stage 16 principles come; Prakṛti, mahat and ahamkāra, 16.

And then in the fourth stage from the subtle elements; from the subtle elements, the five gross elements come, pañca stūla bhūtāni, Prakṛti, mahat, ahamkāra = 3; then 16 principles, 16+3; nineteen; and then at the 4th and final level, pañca stūla bhūtāni, 19 +5 =24. And all these twenty-four tatvams put together is Kṣetraṁ, the inert material objective universe. And consciousness is not the nature of any one of them. All of them are matter and therefore Krishna enumerates. Now look at the slōkā.

In the first line, you see the avyaktham, which represents Prakṛti, the topmost one;

then buddhiḥ means the mahat tatvām, the second stage; buddhiḥ careful note, not the individual intellect, but buddhiḥ is the cosmic intellect, the mahat tatvām, the second stage;

then ahamkāra, is the cosmic ego the third stage; avyaktham, buddhiḥ, ahamkāraḥ, (three) and then from ahamkāra 16 items; what are they, mahābhūtāni, mahābhūtāni means the 5 subtle elements: ākāśa, vāyu, agni, āpaḥ, pṛitvi; space, air, fire, water and earth; in their subtle form; subtle form means invisible form. In Tatvā bodha we have dealt with this.

And then indriyāṇi means the ten sense organs; daśa indriyāṇi. Krishna himself says: daśa indriyāṇi, mahābhūtāni, how much 15, ekam means the mind, manaḥ tatvām, the cosmic mind; so mahābhūtāni, daśa indriyāṇi, ēkam, these are the 16 tatvās at the third stage;

And then comes the fourth stage; पञ्च चेन्द्रियगोचराः pañca cēndriyagōcarāḥ, indriya gōcarāḥ means the five gross elements; thus 1+1+1+16+5; this is the addition; If you add it will be 24 tatvams; all of them come under Kṣetraṁ.

And not only that, these 24 tatvams do not remain changeless; they constantly undergo change and as a result of their change and interaction, various properties are generated. And they are called the various gunas or vikāras of the Kṣetraṁ; and what are the generated properties? Krishna enumerates them in the next ślōkā. This is the explanation of the yadvikāri yataśca yat. In the fourth verse, Krishna had promised yadvikāri yataśca yat; what are the various products of the Kṣetraṁ I will tell; now he gives the product and what are they:

एतत्क्षेत्रं समासेन सविकारमुदाहृतम् ॥ १३.७ ॥

ētat kṣētraṁ samāsēna savikāramudāhṛtam || 13.7 ||

Now we have got a material universe of 24 tatvams, and in that material universe, our physical body is also one, because it is the modification of the five gross elements, we have seen in tatvā bodha an we have our mind also which is also a modification of the five subtle elements.

Thus body is matter; mind is also matter; but mind is a peculiar form of matter. And what is the peculiarity of the mind? Even though mind is an inert matter; it has got a unique nature to manifest or reflect the consciousness and appear as though sentient. Just like when electricity passes through water, nothing happens; When electricity passes through water nothing happens but when the electricity passes through a filament in a bulb, tungsten filament, or whatever be the special filament, that is made up of such a material, that it is able to become bright and aglow. Why water does not glow when electricity is passed; because that is the nature of water. Why the tungsten filament glows; because that is the nature of the element, even though both of them are material in nature; they have got different capacity. So we have got wood, which does not allow electricity to pass through; why; because that is its nature; why metal allows; because that is its nature; similarly, like the tungsten filament, the body is like the bulb, and is like a tungsten filament, it has got a unique nature. Even though mind is made up of matter, what is the unique nature, it is able to absorb the consciousness principle, called kṣētrajña, and the reflected consciousness makes the mind seemingly sentient. This borrowed sentiency is called cētanah.

Now look at the slōkā. सङ्घातः चेतना saṅghātaḥ cētanā cētanā. saṅghātaḥ means what, the body mind complex is called saṅghātaḥ, and cētanā means borrowed sentiency. And if you want another example, imagine you have a mirror in hand and up above the Sun is there during the day time, the mirror is able to reflect the sunlight; and the non-luminous mirror; mirror does not have a light of its own, but with borrowed sun-light, mirror itself becomes itself a luminous and a bright object and what is the uniqueness of its luminosity; it is not intrinsic luminosity; but it is borrowed; whereas the light of the sun is intrinsic but the light of the mirror is borrowed. Like the kṣētrajña is like the Sun; mind is like the mirror and borrowed consciousness is like the reflected Sun. And in Vēdānta it is called cidabhāsa; or cit prathibhīm̐ba or prathibhīm̐ba caitanyam.

And this reflection also can exist where? wherever the reflecting medium is present; And reflecting medium is Kṣetraṁ, and therefore the reflection also must be part of Kṣetraṁ only. Very careful, original consciousness is not part of Kṣetraṁ; but the reflected consciousness becomes part of the Kṣetraṁ; means the material universe.

And therefore Krishna says saṅghātaḥ, the body-mind-complex, chetana, the borrowed consciousness, therefore the mind has become a live mind, and therefore the mind is able to experience the world and moment the mind becomes a live mind, capable of experiencing the world, the job of the mind is to categorise. इच्छा द्वेषः icchā dvēṣaḥ. It has started. icchā means rāga, I develop attachment towards a segment of the universe. It is the job of what, the mind; what type of mind, the live mind; How has the mind become live, with borrowed consciousness; and therefore icchā, rāgaḥ has come.

And not only rāgaḥ, the other side of the coin is what; dvēṣaḥ, I would not like to see him at all with the eyes. Therefore, I do not like these people; I like those people; we divide the world. In fact, the objective-Lord-created-world is replaced by the subjective-private-world. Bhagavan has created only a neutral world, but I cover the world with my coloration; and I always see a colored world, world like a person wearing a colour glasses and he says that everything is dark. Similarly, rāgaḥ and dvesha are the colored glasses born by the mind; and it always lives in its own private world.

And once the world is divided into desirable and undesirable; then what is the next consequence; sukham, dukham; the desirable world produces सुखं दुःखं sukhaṃ duḥkhaṃ. The undesirable world also produces sukhaṃ duḥkhaṃ; In fact every object in the public world does not produce sukhaṃ duḥkhaṃ; but every object in my private world; every colored object is capable of producing sukhaṃ duḥkhaṃ. How? a desirable object produces happiness when it comes towards me. Every desirable object produces joy, by its arrival. And fill up the blanks, every desirable object produces sorrow by its departure. எது வறபோது ஸுகத்தை உண்டாகறதோ; அது போகறபோது துக்கதைதான் உண்டாக்கும்; So what brings joy while it arrives, will surely give me sorrow while it leaves; So every desirable object is sukha kāraṇam, duḥkha kāraṇam cha. Similarly, every undesirable object is sukha hētu and duḥkha hētu. You can fill up. What is that; every undesirable object is sukha hētu; when it goes away பொநாண்டாப்பா; Some people give happiness wherever they go; some people give happiness whenever they go. OK. Which category you belong to you can decide. Therefore, an undesirable object gives happiness by its departure; and gives sorrow by its arrival. 43.45

And this capacity of the world is not intrinsic. The world has no capacity to give joy or sorrow. But when I classify the world as favourable and unfavourable; world gains the capacity. That is why in Vēdānta we have got two words. Suppose this clip is there. In Vēdānta it is called padārthaḥ. padārthaḥ is a neutral name for this. It is an object. The moment I develop rāgaḥ or dvēṣaḥ towards it; then the clip is capable of hurting me. The moment I label the clip as good or bad, it gains the unique capacity blessed by me; it gets the unique capacity to hurt me or to please me. And the moment the object gets this capacity, Vēdānta calls this as a Viśayaḥ. Viśayaḥ means an object capable of binding me. Before that, it was a padārthaḥ, now it has become Viśayaḥ.

Thus the whole world is a padārthaḥ, but I convert the padārthaḥ world into a Viśayaḥ; Viśayaḥ is derived from the root, vi + ṣi; si root 5th conjugation parasmai pada, sinothi sinutha, sinvanthi, iti rupāni, vi is the prefix, vi sinothi iti Viśayaḥ; That which binds you is called Viśayaḥ; What do we do; we convert the whole world of Kṣetraṁ into a Viśayaḥ by developing rāgaḥ and dvēṣaḥ and making the world capable of giving sukhaṁ and duḥkhaṁ.

Thus icchā is Kṣetraṁ; dvēṣaḥ is Kṣetraṁ, sukhaṁ is Kṣetraṁ; saṅghātaḥ, the body mind complex is Kṣetraṁ; the cētanā, the reflected consciousness is also Kṣetraṁ.

Then धृतिः dhṛtiḥ; dhṛtiḥ means will power. Because once we have classified the world as the cause of sorrow and happiness, then you use your will power to acquire the so-called object of joy, which is called pravṛthi; I want this, that, etc. you have got an increasing list. And you use your will power to run after those objects. And similarly, you have got of list of objects to be removed, which is called nivṛthi, one is run towards, another is running away. So pravṛthi-nivṛthi-hētu-bhūta- dhṛtiḥ or will power.

In fact the whole life is what? making decision, what else has to come; what else to go and this list constantly changes and life long it is only a struggle to take care of this list.

And therefore dhṛtiḥ; all these come under kṣētra vikāra; 24 tatvams are Kṣetraṁ and these are the Kṣetraṁ vikāra, properties born out of them.

So Krishna says: एतत् क्षेत्रम् समासेन etat kṣetram samāsēna; etat means the 24 tatvams mentioned in the sixth verse, is the Kṣetraṁ briefly, savikāram, along with its modifications and what are the modifications, icchā, dvēṣaḥ, sukhaṁ, duḥkham etc. described in the scriptures.

With the previous verse, that is the seventh, Krishna concludes his analysis of Kṣetraṃ and kṣētrajña, which He started from verse No.2. But when we study this portion, we see that there is an incompleteness in Krishna's teaching. If you go back to verse No.4, in verse No.4, Krishna has promised: Hey Arjuna I will talk about Kṣetraṃ and kṣētrajña, a little bit elaborately. That is His promise in the 4th verse, 1st line, the discussion on kṣētra ḥ. In the 2nd line He promised discussion on kṣētrajña. But in verse 6 and 7, Krishna has elaborated Kṣetram, but He seems to have to elaborate kṣētrajña. All these you will note only when you go back and forth; Krishna has not kept up his promise.

If Krishna himself forgets, there is nothing wrong in my forgetting. So Śankarācārya comes and he gives an explanation that Krishna is not an ordinary teacher and that He would not make a promise and not teach; Śankarācārya gives an explanation, kṣētrajña is identical with jñēya and Puruṣaḥ, I have said before; I do not whether you remember; I said kṣētrajña, Jñēyam and Puruṣaḥ all the three are identical, all the three represent this spirit consciousness principle. Even they are identical, Arjuna does not know this fact, and therefore he separately asked for the explanation of each one. Like some people saying, Swamiji, I would like to learn Vēdānta and Upaniṣads. If anybody says I want to learn Vēdānta and Upaniṣads, it is like people saying; അജ്ഞാനമെന്നതു ഞാൻ അറിയും; മഞ്ഞളുപോലെ വെളുത്തിരിക്കും. ajñanamennatu ñān-ariyumuḥ; maññaḷupōle veḷuttirikkuṁ. I know what is the ajñanam, so the black dye used for the eye; it is white like turmeric powder. he does not know all these three. Similarly not knowing separately asks for all these three, but Krishna feels even though he leaves out kṣētrajña now, he is going to elaborate that through the discussion on Jñēyam later, as well as Puruṣaḥ later. Therefore Jñēya and Puruṣaḥ description. Therefore Śankarācārya says Krishna has not forgotten; He must get the full marks in the exam.

Having completed the topic of kṣētra and kṣētrajña, now Krishna comes to the third topic and the third topic Krishna takes up is Jñānam. From verse No.8 to 12. When I giving the verse Nos. you should be very careful, this is based on our book, the first verse is Arjuna's question. If Arjuna's question is not included, the second verse will become the first verse. Therefore you should appropriately calculated. If you include Arjuna's question, it is the 8th verse to 12th verse.

What is the meaning of Jñānam. In this chapter, in this verse, Krishna takes Jñānam with a special meaning. Normally, Jñānam means knowledge; Any knowledge is Jñānam and in the context of philosophy, Jñānam means spiritual knowledge. So generally Jñānam means any knowledge and in the context of philosophy or vēdānta, it means atma Jñānam or brahma Jñānam, spiritual knowledge; but in this particular context, Jñānam has got still different meaning, and that is all the values of life are all the virtues of a person is called sadguṇāḥ is called Jñānam. Guṇaḥ means virtues. Krishna is going to enumerate twenty virtues in these verses and these twenty virtues are called Jñānam. And Śankarācārya gives the reason also for that; He says if these virtues are there, knowledge is very very easy to gain. In fact, Jñānam is as good as attained. Since these virtues promote self-knowledge, these virtues themselves are called Jñānam. So jñāna kāranatvat Jñānam iti uchyate. The details we will see in the next class.

Up to verse No.7, beginning from the 2nd verse, Lord Krishna dealt with two topics, viz., Kṣetraṁ and kṣētrajña which are nothing but anātma and ātma only. This has been elaborately dealt with in the second chapter, in the form of Dēha and Dēhi. And in the second chapter from the verse 12 to 25, Lord Krishna has elaborately dealt. Here the only difference is anātma or deha is called Kṣetraṁ and ātma the dēhi is called kṣētrajñaḥ. That is the only difference. One is the matter principle and the other is consciousness principle. And these two are few of the six topics that Arjuna asked for clarification.

Now from the 8th verse, which I introduced in the last class, up to 12th verse, in five verses, Lord Krishna is dealing with jñānam. And in this context, as I said in the last class, the word jñānam is used in a peculiar meaning; the normal meaning is knowledge; whereas in this context, the word jñānam, the group of mental virtues, the group of mental virtues required to enjoy a fit mind for gaining spiritual knowledge. So spiritual knowledge friendly virtues. Like environment friendly paper, like that, spiritual knowledge friendly virtues, which means in the presence of these virtues mind will be jñāna yōgya and in the absence of these virtues, the mind will be jñāna ayōgyam. And in an unprepared uncultivated unfit mind, if spiritual knowledge is injected by the Guru is imparted by the mind, the unprepared mind will resist the knowledge; it will not receive the knowledge even if it receives the knowledge, it will not be assimilated. And unassimilated Vēdānta or for that any śāstra, unassimilated is like poison, like the undigested food. Food is nourishing when it is digested; but if it remains undigested it is a poison; and that is why it is said: अनाभ्यासे विषं शास्त्रम्, अजीर्णं भोजनम् विषम् anābhyāsē viṣaṁ śāstram, ajirṇē bhōjanam viṣam., Similarly ajirṇa śāstram can be counter productive and therefore more than vĕdānta, one has to focus on a vĕdānta-friendly virtues and this is otherwise called dharmah. And that is why we repeatedly say dharmah is a stepping stone is mōkṣa puruṣārtha; without going through the set of virtues a person cannot hope to attain jñānam or mōkṣa and therefore, these values are extremely important; many virtues are enumerated throughout the Gītā; many virtues are enumerated throughout the śāstram, one great ācārya known as Bhṛthari, wrote a work called Neeti śatakam, 100 verses on inner virtues. Thus it has been very elaborately dealt with. Here Krishna enumerates around 20 virtues. And Krishna will deal with the same topic again later; but this is the beginning of the introduction of this topic. We will take each virtue one by one and see its meaning and significance.

The first one, given by Lord Krishna is अमानित्वम् amānitvam. Mānitvam means self-conceit, self-glorification, self-admiration is called mānitvam. In Sanskrit, Ātmani puṅyatva bhāvana. Looking upon oneself as a great person. This self-admiration is called mānitvam. And amānitvam is freedom from self-conceit or in positive language, humility. Vinayaḥ or humility is the first virtue that Krishna emphasises.

And we should know why vĕdānta looks upon self-conceit as a big obstacle. When we accomplish something in our life, in any field, be it education, or in our work field, or social field, we accomplish something, naturally the society admires. Because it is the duty of the society, to recognise any accomplishment. Society has to recognise, the society has to reward with one award, Padma, in the newspaper we read about, Padmasree, padma vibhūṣan, the King has to do that, the society has to do that; and when accomplish something, It often starts with the family itself; the parents admire when we do even a small thing. When we listen to this glorification, admiration of others, generally our tendency will be, easily join that group, and along with the society, we also start enjoying admiration of ourselves. When the society admires or rewards or awards, it is the duty of the society and it is perfectly OK, but unknowingly we also start others and admiring ourselves. This self-admiration is the beginning; the seed for self-conceit.

What is the problem in the self-admiration? After all we all enjoy admiring ourselves; When we consider even it as a punyam, but even though we tend to enjoy relish the admiration from others and self-admiration, Vĕdānta says that it is a very big trap. It is a very big obstacle for a spiritual seeker. And therefore one has to be extremely careful, when there is a possibility of getting into the trap of self-admiration. What are the problems in self-admiration. Why do you consider it as an obstacle? The first problem is once we have started enjoying admiration, from others' as well as ourselves, it causes an addiction. Admiration is like an addiction-causing drug. An addiction-causing drug, once we use, we need it more and more. We look for more and more admiration from others and we tend towards self-admiration more and more and once we have got addicted to that, we want it all the time. And when we do not get admiration from others; and when we do not do that, the deprivation of this admiration causes lot of disturbance. Like a smoker, suffers deprivation symptoms when he quits smoking, like a liquor addict suffers when he tries to stop it; once we get addicted to the glorification of others, the deprivation causes lot of problems and therefore, just as any other sense addition has to be carefully avoided. Similarly admiration addiction one has to carefully avoid. Therefore the first problem is what; it causes addiction.

And the second problem is once we start enjoying admiration from others, and also self-admiration, joining the group and blowing our own trumpet, we get so excited by it; everybody taking about myself, I am the centre of attention; and the focus of the whole world including the newspaper is on me. So once I get excited by this, any excitement is such that I will be carried away by that; and my discriminative power gets robbed by name and fame. By glorification, my discriminative power is lost. Once my discriminative power is lost by this admiration, I get into delusion, which makes me forget important facts of life. Once discrimination is lost, I lose sight very significant and important facts. What are the important facts I lose sight of, which I am supposed not to lose sight of. The first fact is whatever be my accomplishment, for which the society admires me, the fact is I can never take full credit for any accomplishment. Whatever be the accomplishment, my contribution is only one of the factors, for every accomplishment, there are innumerable people involved, innumerable factors involved, I can never take full credit, but in excitement, I do lose sight of this fact and I claim and feel that "I", with my full power, I have accomplished that. This is the forgetfulness caused by excitement. I should remember that whatever be the name and fame I get, 99% of the credit goes to so many other factors; I can perhaps take a little credit. This is the first fact which is lost sight of by a self-conceited person.

And the second fact that is forgotten in self-conceit is, even if I have contributed something for an accomplishment; whatever it be; may be music; may be education, may be sport; according to the Gītā which we have seen,; even that little contribution from me, is really speaking not my contribution. I find I am born with that talent; that talent is a gift from the Lord, which is a fact, revealed in the 10th chapter of the Gītā, called Vibūthi yōga: I do not enjoy any credit, any glory, it is a grace of the Lord's glory which is expressing, manifesting through me, and therefore, so-called limited contribution I cannot claim. That is the fact; But in self-conceit; I forget this fact also. I forget others' contribution; I forget Lord's contribution. Self-conceit is an obstacle to devotion. Self-conceit and bhakthi cannot co-exist, because a self-conceited person forgets Lord's contribution, which is the only contribution.

tattadēvāvagaccha tvam mama tējōṃśasambhavam || 10.41 ||

This is the second fact forgotten, in mānitvam or conceit.

And the third fact is however great I am, I can never claim myself to be the greatest one. However great I am, I can never claim myself to be the greatest one, because I live in a world where there are people; there were people and there will be people, who will be greater than me. It is a world of śadiśayatvam. It is a beautiful word used in śāstra. This is world of śadiśayatvam. śadiśayatvam means anything can be bettered. Anything can be improved. So if I have created a record, that record is a breakable record. Any record in any field can be improved and therefore, I should remember that there are people who are either as great as me, or greater than me. When self-conceit robs my discrimination, I get into a delusion that I lose sight of the fact that there are people who are as great as me, or greater than me. And since I forget this fact, in fact, I love to forget this fact, so that I can claim that I am the greatest. Because of the forgetfulness of this fact, what happens is I can never appreciate another person who is as great as me. I can never admire another person who is greater than me and when I find someone who is equally great or greater than me, my self-conceit does not allow the acknowledgement of that fact. A self-conceited person cannot admire another person; because he wants to be in the centre of all the admiration coming from all directions; it never allows any other person to be the centre of admiration. Either he avoids those people, or he avoids the topic of those people, and he develops jealousy, anger, etc. These are all the consequences of self-conceit. And when this self-conceit is extreme, a person can even tend to eliminate the other people from the field. Because my superiority goes, my glory is threatened by others, and therefore that person has to be eliminated; that anger, jealousy all these are consequences of this conceit. And if I have to find out whether

I have self-conceit or not, it is very easy I should ask a question; can I comfortably admire the glory of other people. The more conceited I am, the more difficult it is to admire or glorify; especially if the other person, is in my own field, I can never acknowledge.

In our village, there was a temple nagaswaram person. He used to play in the temple rituals, daily. It is told that he was so self-conceited, he thought that he is the nagaswaram vidwan. And just to tease him, somebody asked him: Hello Sivarama, how is Karikurichi Arunchalam? He was one of the nagaswara vidwan. How is he? And you know what was his answer: ஆ! அவனும் ஊதுவான் ! Ah.., he will also blow air'. He cannot accept others' greatness. That is the indication of self-conceit. And once this self-conceit comes, the door of devotion is blocked; and without bhakthi, jñānam is never possible. And therefore the scriptures say that the first value you have to develop is amānitvam, which translated positively means, humility or vinaya ḥ. Cultivate humility. In our Upaniṣads, and in Puraṇās, we find stories after stories where people get conceited, even dēvas get into mānitvam, if you remember Kenōpaniṣad story, they have to be humbled by the Lord. Humiliation is called humbling experience. Every conceited person will be humiliated at one time or the other; what do you mean by humiliation; a lesson in humility is humiliation. Humiliation means humility creation. And all our ācāryas you find in any field, they all were embodiments of humility. They were all great in their field and they were all embodiments of humility. If you read the works of Kalidāsa, he has written, (he is supposed to be, or the greatest sanskrit scholar) several poems and several dramas. In all of them, he writes an introductory verse. In all of them, you can see how humble. And not only he expresses his humility, he teaches humility to others. In one work, he says:

Manda kaviyasa prarthi,
gamishyam upahasyatham
pramsu labye phale lobhaat udbhaahoriva vaamanaaha.

I am Mandhah. Kalidāsa, the greatest Sanskrit scholar says that I am mandhaha. What about us? So we learn Rāma śabhdā up to 4th vibhakthi; then we claim we are Sanskrit scholars. Kalidāsa is the greatest scholar in history is saying that he is mandah; kaviyasa prarthi, through this poetry, I seem to seek name and fame, as a great poet, and the whole world is going to laugh at me. gamiṣyām upahāsyatham.

And he gives an example, there he gives his glory as a poet, upamā kalidāsasya: So his capacity to give simile is supposed to be fantastic; he says it is like what: there is a tall tree; with lot of fruits hanging; and it is so tall that there is a dwarf; a vāmanaḥ, a short person, he is standing on the ground and he is jumping up to pluck that fruits. When you see a dwarf, jumping up to pluck a fruit which is inaccessible, how you laugh. Similarly, I am the dwarf who is trying to pluck the fruit of kavi yeśa. And in other work he says:

o suryaprabhavo vamsaha;
va chalpa vishya mathihi;
thithirshu dustharam mohaat, udubhe neva sagaram.

I am trying to write the Raghu varṁśa; which is so great; where is the glory of Raghu varṁśa and where is my capacity to express that glory and still foolishly I am trying to bring out the glory of Raghu's family. Mohat udebhe neva sagaram. It is like holding to a catamaran, a small float, and I am trying to cross the ocean, how it is impossible. Similarly, with a small raft of my fragile mind, uneducated mind, I am trying to write the story of Raghu varṁśa. And in another work he says:

A parithoshaat vidhusham na sadhu manye prayoga vijñānam, balavatha shikshitaanam ātmani apratyam chetaha.

I have learnt some Sanskrit; who says: Kalidāsa; I have learnt some Sanskrit; and I have tried to work something, I think this is the introduction to Śakuntala, I have tried to attempt to write something, yet I am not confident that my writing is up to the mark, and therefore I am offering this work to the great scholars, and I wait for their validation. And only when scholars validate, I consider I know some Sanskrit. So this is Kalidāsa. Similarly, Śankarācārya, Similarly Sureshvācārya. Similarly, Madusudhana Saraswati. They are giants and they say I know a little bit of śāstram.

From this we come to know how much importance is given to humility. And in one of the work, known as ṣatpadi sthothram, Śankarācārya's first prayer is: Oh Lord. अविनयम् अपनय विष्णो avinayam apanaya viṣṇō. Oh Lord remove my self-conceit; make my humble; Humility is required in all the field; humility is particularly required for vēdāntic seeker, because without humility bhakti cannot come, without bhakthi jñānam cannot come. That is why all the rakṣasās, Do not say Om Namō Narayana, they say Om Hiraṇyakaśapave nama. Bhakthi and conceit can never go together. Therefore the first prayer is what: Oh Lord, give me, amānitvam. Humility.

Then the next virtue is adāmbitvaṁ. Dāmbitvam is physically expressed version of mānitvam. Mānitvam is an inner feeling, I think I am wonderful, I am great; I am learned; nobody is equal to me, this inner sense of bhāvana is called mānitvam. When that mānitvam is expressed outside physically, through various means that expressed vyakta mānitvam is dāmbitvam. Avyakta dāmbitvam is mānitvam. That means what: At the physical level also, I want admiration. Because I consider that I am great; all the people should look at me and talk about me. Physically also, I conduct myself beginning from the very dress onwards. Vēṣaḥ. One should have body attractive dress; and my aim is I should be a head-turner. Have you heard this expression. head turner, means what? When that person walks, every head turns. And therefore, self-decoration all beauty parlors become important. I should be the centre of attention. So through dress, and through my walking, and always coming to the centre stage, there would be no work, he will come and tap the mike and go; so the whole audience thinks that he is behind the whole programme. Nothing he would not have done; and till yesterday, he would not have come to the scene; And somehow he manages a volunteer badge and does like this and goes; So therefore all these are attention seeking expression; ornamentation; pretensions; So dāmbitvaṁ means all forms of pretensions through Vēṣam; through ābharaṇam; through actions; that is called dāmbitvaṁ; And adāmbitvaṁ means what? just the opposite of that; I do not want to seek attention; in positive language, simplicity. In terms of dressing, in terms of movement, in terms of ornamentation, that person is so simple and inconspicuous in a crowd, even though the greatest person in the world, he does not seek attention. And therefore only the small-timers; அரை குறைய, half-boiled seek attention. As the English proverb goes, empty vessel makes noise. Full vessel does not. Therefore dāmbitvaṁ means pretension; a dāmbitvaṁ means simplicity. All great people are simple.

And then the third one is ahimṣa. Ahimṣa means non-violence. Not injuring other living beings. Himṣa means injury; or violence, and we do not talk about only human beings; all living beings avoidance of injury and at three karana level; at the level of three instruments, because we have got three instruments which can cause injury. Like different weapons to hurt others, we already have three weapons to hurt others. You may ask, I do not have any weapon in my hand? your mere existence is enough, there are inbuilt weapons, three Nos.

And what are those three weapons; what are they? kāyika, vācika, mānasa. the very body is a weapon, which can cause injury to others; hands and legs, which bhagavān has given with good intention, but we weapon to use it terribly. And similarly vāk is another instrument; animals do not have this instrument; Therefore animals cannot verbally injure; human beings are the unique ones who have the most wonderful instruments. It can be used or it can be terribly abused; verbal abuse you know is worse than physical ones. So there is kural saying also; that the wound caused by the tongue will not heal easily. And therefore verbal hiṁsa and there is a third instrument called mind, anthakaranam and that is mentally also hiṁsa is possible through thoughts. Mentally cursing others. நாசமா போட்டும்; nācamā pōṭṭum; you think. So mentally cursing others. and remember thoughts are powerful forces and therefore kāyika, vācika, and mānasa hiṁsāvarjanam is ahiṁsa.

And why do say, ahiṁsa is a value to be practised? In fact, in the Yōga śāstra, Aṣṭāṅga yōga, they talk about ten important virtues; I call them the ten commandments of Hinduism. In the form of yama and niyama groups. We have seen this in the 6th chapter of the Gītā, in the 10 commandments of Hinduism, the first commandment is ahiṁsa; ahiṁsa, satyam, asthēyam, brahmacaryam, aparigrahaḥ, soucha, santhoṣa, tapa, svādyaya, īśvara praṇidānāni.

Dealt with in the 6th chapter introduction. I have also separately dealt with talked 10 commandments of Hinduism. ahiṁsa is supposed to be mahā vṛatham. A major vow. A spiritual seeker has to be committed. Why do we consider a major vṛatham. It is another topic which we can deal with on and on and on; but some important features we will see.

The first significance is very simple. I should not do what I do not expect others to do to me. Very simple law. I do not want any living being to injure me, even mosquitoes. And if I do not want others to hurt me, it becomes a universal law and it is an instinctive expectation; nobody teaches this; it is instinctive and natural expectation; what is my expectation; nobody should hurt me, which means everybody else has got the same instinctive expectation that I should not hurt him and therefore this becomes a universal law and therefore only when I follow a universal law, as Dayananda swami says, only when I do not rub against universal law, I can have peace of mind. Any time I am violating a universal law called dharma, I am hurting myself. Dayananda swami gives a beautiful example, if you want to know; Suppose there is an old tree; puliyamaram or veppa maram; and you see the trunk, it has got a very very rugged surface; very very rough and rugged surface. And suppose you go and remove your dress, shirt, banian and all, and rub against the trunk of the puliyamaram, the tamarind or neem tree, when you rub against the tree, what happens to the tree; nothing. On the other hand, depending upon the intensity of the rubbing, you are hurt; when I rub against a tree; I am rubbing myself; I am injuring myself; Dharma, the universal law, is like puliyamaram; any time I rub against universal law, or violate a universal law, nothing happens to the law, I am hurting myself. And therefore, ahimsa is following the universal law. This is one significance.

Secondly the whole world is a bank. Whatever I am contributing to the world, remains in the world as a deposit. And whatever I have deposited now that alone I can take later; what I deposit, that alone I can withdraw. If I am going to contribute Himṣa, I am depositing hiṁsa in the world, which means in future, from the world what I can draw is only hiṁsa. I get from the world, what I give to the world. If I give compassion I get that. If I give what you call, sharing, love, I get that; if I am giving hiṁsa, I get back that only. And therefore, if I do not want to be injured by the world, I have to deposit what only ahimsa, because I get what I give; I reap what I sow. Not even what I sow. In English there is a saying. if you sow a wind, you reap a whirlwind. So it gets multiplied and comes. Therefore, ahimsa becomes important for my own future good.

And thirdly this is more important from the angle of psychology and vādānta. The tendency to hurt others is impulsive and natural. Our tendency to hurt others is very very natural. When do we hurt others; if you see the psychology behind it, We have got lot of expectations from out set up. From our family members; and from our neighbours, from the government, we have certain expectations; and if these expectations, otherwise called rāga dvēṣa, they are fulfilled very well, I am comfortable and happy with the set up. And most of the time, our expectations are not fulfilled because, the other people behave not according to what I expect; other people behave according to their own freewill. Unfortunately they have a freewill. If Bhagavan has given freewill only to me and not to others, then it would have been fine; but unfortunately they have. And therefore most of the time, my expectations are not fulfilled; and the more grown up I am, the more the number of expectations are, and they become even finer and finer and finer; finer means what when I say I want colour, within the green also, this green and that green; and if that expectation is not fulfilled I get into a rage. When expectations are not fulfilled, the natural consequence is that I am hurt. Non fulfillment of expectation is bound to hurt me. And once I am hurt, the immediate reaction is attacking that object which is the cause of my hurt. The object means, the person who did not behave, and the set up which was not up to the mark, a hurt person, reacts causing hurt to others. So the psychology is hurt person hurts others. An injured person injures others. And there is no gap between my injury and my causing injury to others. So the child misbehaves; there is no time gap. Immediately giving one; then only we think, or we shout; it is so impulsive.

If this natural impulsive hiṁsa should not happen, it is possible only under one condition. Hiṁsa is natural when anybody does not behave to my expectations I am bound to react, and if this natural reaction should stop, it is possible only under one condition, and you know what is that condition, my mind should become sensitive. And so sensitive that when I hurt somebody else; the sensitive mind should feel the pain of the other person also. We have to think very well. A sensitive person is one which feels not only the pain of oneself, it feels the pain of others also. And once I begin to feel the pain of others, what happens; what is the consequence. When in anger I impulsively hurt another person, not only the other person is hurt. what happens, when the other person is hurt, I also sense the pain. I also go through the pain like the mother who beats the child; and afterwards the mother is never comfortable because the mother goes through the pain which the child goes through. And therefore what happens, for a sensitive mind, hurting another person is as good as hurting oneself. For a sensitive person, sensitive mind hurting another person is like self-injury. And we never like to hurt ourselves. கத்தியால் நம்மளயெ குத்திப்போமா?. So since I do not like to hurt myself, I will never like to hurt others also; because when I am hurting another person, I am hurting myself. Can you see the psychology behind it. For once I become a sensitive person, I become incapable of hurting another one because every time, I hurt another, I go through sleepless nights. How he feels humiliated; how he feels disturbed; how she is disturbed, sometime the other persons says; does not matter; then also I am so sensitive, that for days together I cannot sleep because my mind registers others' pains. and therefore, following the value of ahiṁsa, is possible if I make my mind sensitive. Sensitisation is required for following ahiṁsa. In psychological language, they call it empathy, and that has to be developed and therefore following ahiṁsa, makes my mind sensitive; and a sensitive mind is required to appreciate the subtle topics of vēdānta. Vēdānta is so subtle, that I require a sensitive mind. And therefore ahimsa means sensitise your mind. Even when you read the newspaper of violence happening somewhere, my mind should feel the pain. If my mind does not feel the pain, that mind is called a gross mind. a Gross mind alone can comfortably hurt others; a gross mind alone can comfortably hurt others; a sensitive mind is very much hurt in hurting others. And that is why somebody said, crime itself becomes a punishment for a sensitive mind. Crime itself becomes punishment for a sensitive mind; ஸென்ஸிடிவ் மைண்ட் அடுங் போடலை; For a gross mind, others are hurt, nothing happens. And therefore, we require what? Sūkṣma buddhihi. So ahimsa is a very important value. Ahimsa paramō dharma.

The next value is क्षान्ति kṣānti. The word kṣānti has got several connotations. We will see some of them. One meaning of the word kṣānti is mental resistance or immunity so that it is not disturbed when the expectations are not fulfilled. In fact it is an extension of ahimsa. Only when my expectations are not fulfilled, I get hurt; When I get hurt, my immediate response is hiṃsa. And therefore hiṃsa is only when I get hurt; when my expectations are not fulfilled. Kṣānti means developing that mental immunity, that the set up is incapable of disturbing my mind; developing an immunity, so that I am not vulnerable to external fluctuations, weather-wise fluctuations, behavioral fluctuations, or economical fluctuations. So many fluctuations are there; all these fluctuations do not disturb me; developing that mental immunity is called kṣāntiḥ.

Just as if a person has got a physical immunity, what happens. Whatever be the diseases around in the city, if I have the immunity, the diseases are around, germs are around, bacteria are around, even tuberculosis, today being TB day. In fact one doctor said, giving a talk, TB is supposed to spread when a diseased person breaths or sneezes in front of others; and a doctor, he said; that you take 20 people who have not got TB, and you call a person who has got the TB in advance condition, and you ask this sick person to directly sneeze and breath into the mouth of these 20 people. it is only hypothetical; 20 people and he said even though these 20 people directly receive, all these twenty will not get, because Bhagavān has created an immunity. That does mean that you should try. Swamiji, do not ask should I try. An immune system will not be affected, we are physically immune, but what is our mental immunity. If you have mental immunity, you have kṣāntiḥ. I do not want to test your mental immunity by going beyond time.

Having talked about the topics of Kṣetraṁ and kṣētrajña up to verse No.7, now from verse no.8 onwards, up to verse no.12, Krishna deals with the topic of jñānam which in this context means, those virtues which will make the mind fit for receiving the self-knowledge. And he gives a list of 20 virtues here; which has to be carefully cultivated by every person. In fact, gaining self-knowledge really does not take time; it is relatively easier but cultivating these virtues alone involves time and effort.

And therefore, this is as important or more important than even vēdāntic study. And therefore Krishna will deal with this topic again and again. The 16th and 17th chapters are exclusively dedicated to deal with this topic. So we will deal with this again later. And now we have seen some of the virtues mentioned in the 8th verse, amānitvam, adambitvam and ahiṁsa. Amānitvam is freedom from self-glorification, humility, vinayaḥ, and adambitvam is simplicity and ahiṁsa is non-violence at the physical, verbal and even mental levels. Up to this we saw in the last class.

Now the 4th value mentioned here is Kṣānti. Kṣānti also is a very important virtue, it has got two aspects, the first aspect of Kṣānti is called titikṣa; and titikṣa means acceptance of all choiceless situations of life. Acceptance without resistance of all choiceless situations of life.

Even though, as human beings we have a free will and we have the capacity to control many things, the unfortunate fact is that there are many things over which we have no control at all. We are utterly helpless. And all such uncontrollable helpless situations I call choiceless situations and in the second chapter, Krishna uses the word, aparihārya artaḥ; artaḥ means a situation, aparihārya means over which I do not have a control at all. And since I do not have any control over the situation, I have to only change my attitude in such a way that I welcome, I accept the situation and this acceptance of the situation is called titikṣa.

And if you look at the life, our entire past life is already over, and I have no control over my past. By regretting over the past, I will never be able to change it, even God cannot change the past. Therefore, past comes under choiceless situation and I have to prepare my mind to accept my past as it is; my parentage, my education, my date of birth, all of them; date of birth means age; So by giving a false age, you do not become younger. By covering the wrinkles by thicker powder you do not become younger. Accept the age; accept the grey hair; accept no hair. Therefore the past is choiceless. Therefore I accept the past with titikṣa.

Then the next is present is also choiceless, but present is that which has already arrived. Not arriving. If it has not yet arrived, you can send a telegram, do not arrive; but the present has already arrived and therefore, I have no choice over the present and therefore I prepare the mind, to accept the present which is choiceless. This acceptance of situations around, all the people around is titikṣa. Sahanam sarva duḥkhānam aprathikāra purvakam.

Without resistance. The more the resistance. the more you get heated up. And this acceptance is also of two types; one is a healthy acceptance; and another is a unhealthy acceptance. What is unhealthy acceptance? Taking to the philosophy what cannot be cured, has to be endured. So there is an acceptance, but the acceptance is with bitterness. The acceptance is with self-pity. The acceptance is with frustration. Acceptance is with anger towards the world and God.

This unhealthy acceptance is not titikṣa, because when I accept with bitterness and self-pity, my mind is not available for any other constructive activity. A mind which accepts the situation with bitterness will dwell upon the situation all the time murmuring, all the time grumbling, எனக்கு ஏன் இப்படி ஆச்சு; எனக்கு ஏன் இப்படி ஆச்சு; why me; why it has happened to me? And not only this person has depression, whoever comes around, this person freely does dānam; other dānam whether he does one does not know, his grief he distributes to others. And therefore in unhealthy acceptance, my resources are not available for any constructive work. I am immobilised. I am a complaining person.

Whereas acceptance that is talked about here is a healthy acceptance wherein I do not allow the choiceless situations to overpower me. I do not allow the choiceless situation to clog my resources. I do not allow the choiceless situations to immobilise me. I ignore that situation and I allow my resources to work in a constructive manner. And often it appears very difficult but it is possible for a person to ignore unfavourable conditions and still go ahead with life and even accomplish things. If you have any doubt, read the biographies of some of the handicapped people who have accomplished greater things than even a non-handicapped normal people. We have the Stephen Hawkins phenomenon, for whom no organ of the body works, except the brain. A person can curse himself and take to self-pity, but a person can ignore that and accomplish greater things also. That means I do not allow the situation to overwhelm me and that is called healthy acceptance; titikṣa. This is aspect No.1 of Kṣāntiḥ. This is with respect to the present.

Even though past cannot be changed by me, because it has already gone and even though the present cannot be changed, because it has already arrived; as far as future is concerned, I do have a capacity to change the future.

Astrology can perfectly talk about the past. But with regard to the future, astrology can never totally predict the future, because future can be changed by the human will. In fact astrology itself talks about prayascitta karmaṇi, by which we can change the future. And therefore, with regard to future, what I require is not acceptance. I have to accept the past, because it is choiceless. I have to accept the present; because it is choiceless. But I need not accept the future blindly, because future is not choiceless; future is choicefull (if I can use that word). That means what, I can use my freewill, my resources:

आत्मैव ह्यात्मनो बन्धुः आत्मैव रिपुरात्मनः ॥ ६.५ ॥

Uddharēd ātmana"tmānaṃ na"tmānamavasādayēt |

ātmaiva hyātmanō bandhurātmaiva ripurātmanaḥ | | 6. 5 ||

I can work for improving and transforming the future. But here also we should remember any transformation requires time. Any transformation, any growth, any change requires its own time. And therefore with regard to transformation, I require patience. If I have got some disease, it is not that I have to suffer the disease permanently, medical science is advanced I can take the appropriate remedy but it will take its own time; it may be a week, it may be a month, it may be even years. And when you want to change people, when you want a change people, it is almost impossible because you cannot change others unless they want to change, and if others want to change we can work on others and try to change; but changing a person requires lot of time, which means with regard to future, I require the capacity to wait. And this capacity to wait with regard to the future is the second part of the titikṣa, second part of Kṣāntiḥ, which is called Kṣāma. Kṣāma means the capacity to wait for the future to unfold; even in front of the traffic signal. There it starts. The red signal has come; and it has got its own duration; may be only 1-2 minutes but you can see the lack of Kṣāma. Inch, inch, almost the other side போயாச்சு; gone and if there are so many rows of cars, you can see, even after the green signal has come it will take a minute for your car to move. The first car will take a few seconds, the second will take a few more; by the time you are able to move, it will take a few more seconds; but you can see all the people clamouring with the horn; no patience. And therefore the second part of the Kṣāntiḥ is every thing takes its own time. A child takes ten months in the womb to grow and therefore Bhartṛhari says; Oh Human beings.

स्वयं भवति यद्यथा भवति तत्तथा नान्यथा ।
अतीतमननुस्मरन्नपि च भाव्यसंकल्पायन्
नतर्कितसमातमाननुभवामि भोगानहम् ॥ paribhramasi kiṃ mudhā kvacana citta viśrāmyatāṃ svayaṃ bhavati yadyathā bhavati tattathā nānyathā | atītamānanusmarannapi ca bhāvyaśaṅkalpāyan
natarkitasamātamānanubhavāmi bhōgānaham ||

Paribhramasi kiṃ mudhā kvacana citta viśrāmyatāṃ. Oh Mind, why are you always in a hurry; you want tomorrow to come today itself. You want next year to come this year itself. Ask your mind to wait and be patient. மனமே இரு; இரு; அவஸர படாதே; maṇamē iru; iru; avasara paṭātē. svayaṃ bhavati yadyathā bhavati tattathā nānyathā. The future has to unfold in its own time; and you cannot hasten the process. Let the future unfold; you face it when it comes; we will cross the bridge when it comes. atītamānanusmarannapi ca bhāvyaśaṅkalpāyan. Not brooding over the past too much; not getting concerned over the future too much. natarkitasamātamānanubhavāmi bhōgānaham.

Develop patience in the present. And if I do not have titikṣa with regard to present, and I do not have Kṣāma with regard to future, titikṣa means what, acceptance, Kṣāma means what, the capacity to wait; if I do not have acceptance and waiting capacity, the result is stress and strain in the personality, which is the curse of the modern fast life. Every body says stress and strain and there are so many programs conducted to neutralise stress and strain. And the organisers are stressed out; this has to work out; money will come or not, etc.

In śāstra it is called, anayasaha; freedom from stress; learn to sit for some moment daily, just relax. That's why kept sandhyā vandanam at regular intervals so that you learn to sit without stress. And doctors talk about two fold stress; the physical stress of the body; the muscles are always tensed; and there is mental stress; this physical and mental stress; accumulates over time; and that makes you irritable all the time. The indication of stress and strain is you are all the time at the flashpoint. Somebody has to ask something; flare up, மூக்கில சுண்டி; anger at the nosetip; I am all the time irritable; and Dayananda swami says when this irritable father comes home, the children run all around. அப்பா வந்தாச்சு; அப்பா வந்தாச்சு; Father has come, one goes to this room, and another in another room, the poor wife has to choicelessly deal with him. And this irritable condition is the accumulated stress and often the children are the victims; and previously when father is stressed out, mother was there as a cushion; now both of them are working; therefore generally the temperature at home is above 100. And children becomes victims and they also get the internal stress, when they grow out, they take it on their wives and spouses, and thus we have to got a nuclear family, ready to explode. I was wondering why it is called nuclear family. My explanation that it is in a critical moment to explode. Therefore Shanti is an extremely important value to avoid stress; Stress is inflicting injury on myself. And when the stressful person explodes it is inflicting injury on the other people. Therefore a stressed person is always practising hiṃsa, upon himself and others. Therefore if ahiṃsa has to be followed, Kṣāntiḥ is required. Kṣāntiḥ is the only method to develop ahiṃsa. And therefore it is very important value in the śāstra, it is called anayasaha. A stress free relaxed mind.

Then the next value is अर्जवम् ārjavam. Ārjavam means alignment of the three fold personality; kāyika, vāchika, and mānasa. Our personality has three layers or components; one is physical, another is verbal; and another is mental; and if all of them are in alignment; thought, word and deed are in alignment, that person is integrated personality; harmonised personality; a healthy personality. But when there is no alignment; I think one thing, and by the time I speak out, it has become different; and when I implement, it is a third thing.

मनसि अन्यत्, वचसि अन्यत्, कर्मणि अन्यत् दुरात्मनाम् ॥
manasyēkam, vacasyēkam, karmasyēkam mahātmanām
manasi anyat, vacasi anyat, karmaṇi anyat durātmanām ||

When there is no alignment, it is a split personality. And when there is no alignment, there is a strain taking place in the personality. Like any machine with several different parts; when there is a machine with several parts, all of them should be in alignment. Adjustment is required, when you erect a huge machinery; the mechanics have to come and align. Even in a tape recorder, the head has to be aligned; there also it is said 'head', aligned and cleaned in regular intervals; otherwise recording does not take place. Similarly your head, not only tape recorder. And your ears, they all must be aligned; otherwise after one hour, if someone asks, how was the class, you will say it was wonderful; what did swamiji say; that is what I do not know. What is wonderful, I do not know.

And therefore alignment is very important. If alignment is not there, you would not feel the strain immediately, but gradual build up would be there. After some time, personality becomes a disharmonious, disintegrated personality and that is why disintegration and destruction are synonymous. Disintegration and destruction are synonymous. When my organs are not integrated, then I am destroyed. Destroyed not in the physical sense, but destroyed in the spiritual sense. I cannot accomplish anything higher. And therefore integrity, or uprightness or alignment or harmonisation of the personality is important. If you go to a music concert, there are so many instruments. Mridangist; gadam, vionalist, ganjira, and musician. You will find that they are spending a lot of time adjusting the sruthi. Aligning the throat, aligning the tampura, is required. If it is a north music concert, they are so particular about sruthi. According to them, carnatic musicians do not have sruthi at all. The North Indians take more time to adjust the sruthi than even the concert time. So if a music concert requires alignment, life is the greatest music, which should give happiness to me and which should give happiness to others. There should be no apasṛuti, that means my thought, word, and deed should be harmonised. That is why we have one of the most wonderful upaniṣadic prayers.

वाग् मे मनसि प्रतिष्ठिता

मनो मे वाचि प्रतिष्ठिता ॥

vāg mē manasi pratiṣṭitā

manō mē vāci pratiṣṭitā ||

Let me not have a split personality. Let me not have a multiple personality syndrome. And Dayanada Swamji beautiful says that Rāvaṇa shown with 10 heads indicates his multiple personality and the best method to develop ārjavam is starting with punctuality. I feel the first exercise in ārjavam is punctuality. And that is one thing, we do not have at all in India. And if a punctually goes for a public function, he has to start sweeping the room; he has to start from that. Only he has to go. And start the programme. Out of utter frustration, I dropped all public programmes. Because nobody values punctuality. First exercises in ārjavam is punctuality. And I find another disturbing thing. I want to be punctual. Suppose because of some reason, I am not able to be punctual, I have promised someone that I will come at 7 o'clock. And I start at 6 o'clock, because it takes one hour for me to reach. When I start, some visitor comes, or phone call comes, and I am not able to keep up the time, most people keep quiet, I consider ārjavam requires informing that person that I have promised to come at 7, I will not be able to come, I will not come or I will come at 8. But I find that many of the people do not have the tendency to call and inform; we have to phone and ask.

First Arjavam is being punctual. Second ārjavam is informing the person if I am not able to be punctual. If we start with that, we will gradually develop ārjavam. I promise someone I will give an information tomorrow at 9 o'clock. I hoped to get the information by tomorrow. But tomorrow by 9 o'clock I did not get the information. By tomorrow 9 o'clock, whether I have the information or not, I should ring up the person and give the information and if I do not have I should tell, I hoped to get, I did not get. All these things, people are so gross and insensitive, where is the question of higher things.

So ārjavam starts with the word and punctuality. Thereafter bigger things. Even Satyam is a sub-division of ārjavam only. Truthfulness is a sub-division of ārjavam arjavam only. This is another important virtue.

Then the next one is आचार्योपासनम् ācāryopāsanam. This is another important virtue for a vādāntic student. ācārya upāsanam literally means worship or reverence towards the teacher. ācāryaḥ, and we should remember when worship a teacher, a guru, really speaking, the worship does not go to the person itself. Because as a person, Guru is as such limited as any other person. Then why do we worship the ācārya. ācārya represents the śāstra jñānam which is in him. Therefore my namaskara to ācārya, is my namaskāra to the vēdas which are in him. ācāryaḥ is a temple of the scriptures and scriptures represent īśvara and therefore through the scriptures, the worship goes to the Lord the revealer of the śāstras.

And then the next question is: Why I should worship the sastram? Why should I worship the Vēda. This is also a very very important thing for us to know. The knowledge that we want to acquire through the śāstra is a knowledge which can be acquired through śāstra alone. It is not a knowledge which can be acquired through any other source of knowledge. The śāstra is like the sixth sense organ. Every sense organ like eye, ears, etc. is capable of giving a unique knowledge which the other sense organs cannot give. Eyes can give the knowledge of colour, the other four sense organs cannot give that. Similarly, ears can give the knowledge of sound, the other sense organs cannot give. And Vēda is like the sixth sense organ and it gives me a knowledge which cannot be gained through any other means of knowledge. And since it is a unique knowledge, which cannot be gained through other sense organs, other sense organs cannot, even confirm that knowledge, nor can contradict that knowledge. Other sense organs can never verify the vedic knowledge. So we have to accept what vēdas reveal as a new knowledge and this accepting capacity is called śraddhaḥ. śraddhaḥ means learning to accept the knowledge given by the vēda as a unique knowledge which is not available for any other sense organs to verify. And this śraddhaḥ is an extremely difficult thing to develop and one of the methods to develop śraddhaḥ is worship; Upāsana. Imagine there is a person with only four sense organs. From birth he has got only four sense organs. he does not have eyes. he is a blind person from birth. And he has got total faith in these four sense organs. And in between at the age of 50, I give him the fifth sense organ called eye, and I tell him eyes are another means of knowledge; and the eyes give a unique knowledge which you have to accept as a fact. And suppose this person argues. No; I would not accept. whatever the eyes reveal, I want to verify through the other four sense organs. because I have faith only in the 4 sense organs. the 5th sense organs I do not want to accept, therefore I want to verify the colour which the eyes reveal with the ears. The ears can never confirm the colour, ears cannot contradict also. Therefore, I should never attempt to verify the knowledge given by one sense organ with the help of the other sense organ. Then what is my attitude. Every sense organ reveals a fact, which cannot be proved or disproved by the other ones and in our tradition we say that vēda is like the sixth sense organ And that is why in our tradition right from birth, they tried to create śraddhaḥ in the vēda; learn to look at the vēda as the sixth sense organ, so that the knowledge received from the vēda, I accept as a fact. And suppose a person says; this blind man; He says I will not accept the eyes, if it cannot be verified by the other four sense organs, and he says I will not accept the eyes. And who is going to be the loser. If I refuse to accept the eyes, only I will not get the new knowledge of colour. Similarly, if I refuse to accept the vēda as another instrument of knowledge, I will never get unique knowledge given by the Vēda and I will continue to prove the vedic wisdom by other means. I will never be able to prove; That is why science is never able to prove God; science is never able to disprove God. Because God can be understood only through the sixth sense organ, called the Vēda. And therefore the śraddhaḥ towards the vēda should be exactly like my shraddha towards my sense organs.

And how to develop that śraddhaḥ. It has to come from birth itself and that is why they kept ācārya upāsana, as part of our culture. Vēda is another form of eye. Vēda cakṣu and therefore ācāryopāsanam, the capacity; the attitude towards Vēda as a pramāṇam. This is extremely important.

Then the next one is called शौचम् śaucam. śaucam means purity. Cleanliness and purity at different levels. Purity at the level of the surroundings. So therefore house, the street in front, (not to throw our rubbish in the street), house, they all should be clean. And then coming to my dress, that should be clean. So simple dress does not mean, unclean dress. Simple dress means clean but simple dress. Many people connect simplicity with impurity. Therefore at the level of dress cleanliness. Then at the level of physical body cleanliness. They are all relatively easier. In fact, in India we have problem with external cleanliness itself.

And then comes the tougher things, that is anthara śaucam; inner cleanliness, cleanliness at the verbal level; the words should be healthy words; we will be seeing that later in the 17th chapter; cleanliness at the verbal level. It will be called vak tapas. We will analyse that later.

Then cleanliness at the thought level. And that means ultimately all those virtues which will keep my mind healthy. And what are those virtues which keep the mind healthy. Amānitvam, adambhitvam, Ahimsa, Kṣāntiḥ, ācāryopāsanam, etc. they are called mental hygiene, which will lead to mental health.

And the opposite of each one of them. Amānitvam opposite is mānitvam. Adambhitvam opposite dambhitvam. Ahimsa opposite hiṃsa. எதுவெ ஆ இல்லயோ; ஆ சேர்த்திக்கணம்; எதுவெ ஆ இருக்கோ, அதுவெ, ஆவை நீக்கணம். Anārjavam opposite of ārjavam. The opposite of each one of these virtues is mental unhygiene if that quality is there; which will cause mental sickness And therefore enjoyment of a healthy mind, by cultivating all the virtues prescribed here is called śaucam.

And the next virtue is स्थैर्यम् sthairyam. sthairyam is sthirathā. Will power. Perseverance. Commitment is called sthiram. When we start any pursuit, certainly there will be obstacles and set back. Some of them are actual obstacle, some of them are imaginary obstacles. And because of the actual or imaginary obstacle, if I withdraw from my pursuit, it is asthirathvam. Sthirathvam means any type of obstacle may come, I will continue.

विघ्नैः पुनः पुनरपि प्रतिहन्यमानाः

प्रारब्धमुत्तमगुणा न परित्यजन्ति ॥ २७ ॥

prārabhyatē na khalu vighnabhayēna nīcaiḥ

prārabhya vighnavihatā viramanti madhyāḥ ||

prārabdhamuttamaguṇā na parityajanti || 27 ||

Bhartṛhari, in his Neethi Satakam, talks about three grades of people. The lowest category is that who will not start anything at all because they are afraid of failure. They will tell everyone that I have never failed in life. What did you do. Nothing. This is the first category. Never start anything.

There is a second category; they start; the slightest obstacle appears, they drop. prārabhya vighnavihatā viramanti madhyāḥ, they are mediocre. They start. And who are the uttama jana. vighnaiḥ punaḥ punarapi pratihanyamānāḥ. Any amount of obstacle, they again get up; they have a resilient mind, they fall and they get up and continue. As they say: when the going gets tough; the tough gets going. prārabdhamuttamaguṇā na parityajanti. And to highlight this value only the story of Bhagiratha prayathnam, which we saw in the 10th chapter. How Bhagiratha brought Gaṅga. Gaṅga avatharaṅgam story. I do not want to get into that story. We have got the story of Samudra madanam. How many obstacles. Until it is achieved, the uttama guṇā continues and that capacity, will power is called sthairyam. This is another virtue, especially in spiritual path.

The next one is आत्मविनिग्रहः ātmavinigrahaḥ. Atma vinigrahaḥ means self-mastery. Self management. Being the master of my own equipments or instruments. We have seen in Tatva bodha, we have got seventeen organs. pancha jñānedriyas, karmēndriyas five are there; praṇās, five are there; mind, the emotional faculty and buddhi, the intellectual faculty; seventeen instruments, we have got inbuilt in us and through these instruments alone, I have to accomplish any goal in life. And before using any instrument, I have to make sure that instrument is healthy and the instrument is under my control. In Kathopaniṣad, we saw the example of the chariot, the horses, and the reins, the driver, etc. The horses are like the sense organs and the reins which control the reins are like the mind and intellect is comparable to the driver. We required an informed driver and we require the controlled steering or reins and the horses must be tamed and obedient, then alone I can reach the destination. In the same way, we have the body, senses, the mind and the intellect. Unless I can manage myself, there is no question of managing a company.

So in management science, what is first lesson? Can you manage yourselves? Can you manage your tongue; the eating tongue; the talking tongue? Can you manage your own emotion? If I cannot manage myself, how can I hope to manage anything and therefore Vēdas says start with self-management. And that self-management is called ātmavinigrahaḥ, Ātma means stūla sūkṣma sariram. Not satcidananda ātma. vinigrahaḥ means mastery. And the entire Aṣṭāṅga Yōga of Patanjali is meant for this purpose. If you take Aṣṭāṅga yōga, they prescribe various āsanās. This is to manage your annamaya kōśaḥ. Is your body listening to you. If I say my body to sit, whether it will listen. First problem is the knee joint. Knee joints are saying I am here; I am here; and similarly back. So therefore āsanās is the fundamental thing to keep your body obedient to you. Very important thing. We think that it is meant for some people to do extra ordinary feat. Just to sit in the class, for an hour, we require a healthy body. Āsanās is a beautiful system of Aṣṭāṅga yōga. Then they have praṇāyama to get mastery over prāṇamaya kōśa, prāṇa, apana, vyana, udana, samana, the physiological system must be healthy and therefore they got prathyāhāra mastery over the sense organs. Then they got dhāraṇa, dhyāna and samādhi, mastery over the mind, developing attention span, developing focusing capacity. For that three exercises dhāraṇa, dhyāna and samādhi; absorption. Swami Chinmayanda used to tell that the student must be so absorbed in the class so much and even if the ceiling comes down, student should not know what is happening. Otherwise, if someone comes late, we will be watching his movements, what dress, colour, etc. That the I should die to the world, that is samādhi.

Samādhi is not a mystical thing. samādhi is the absorbing capacity; absorption capacity in any action I undertake. Thus yama, niyama, asana, praṇāyama, prathyāhāra, dhāraṇa, dhyāna, samādhi; the entire yōga system is not for jñānam. Yōga never gives jñānam. Not for mōkṣa. Yōga gives only ātmavinigrahaḥ. Then you have to come to guru and சமத்தாய் வேதாந்தம் படிக்கணம் .start learning vēdānta. Yōga is not to skrit vēdānta but yōga is a preparation for vēdānta sṛavaṇam.

More in the next class.

Having talked about the topics of Kṣetraṁ and kṣētrajña up to verse No.7, now from verse no.8 onwards, up to verse no.12, Krishna deals with the topic of jñānam which in this context means, those virtues which will make the mind fit for receiving the self-knowledge. And he gives a list of 20 virtues here; which has to be carefully cultivated by every person. In fact, gaining self-knowledge really does not take time; it is relatively easier but cultivating these virtues alone involves time and effort.

And therefore, this is as important or more important than even vēdāntic study. And therefore Krishna will deal with this topic again and again. The 16th and 17th chapters are exclusively dedicated to deal with this topic. So we will deal with this again later. And now we have seen some of the virtues mentioned in the 8th verse, amānitvam, adambitvam and ahiṁsa. Amānitvam is freedom from self-glorification, humility, vinayaḥ, and adambitvam is simplicity and ahiṁsa is non-violence at the physical, verbal and even mental levels. Up to this we saw in the last class.

Now the 4th value mentioned here is Kṣānti. Kṣānti also is a very important virtue, it has got two aspects, the first aspect of Kṣānti is called titikṣa; and titikṣa means acceptance of all choiceless situations of life. Acceptance without resistance of all choiceless situations of life.

Even though, as human beings we have a free will and we have the capacity to control many things, the unfortunate fact is that there are many things over which we have no control at all. We are utterly helpless. And all such uncontrollable helpless situations I call choiceless situations and in the second chapter, Krishna uses the word, aparihārya artaḥ; artaḥ means a situation, aparihārya means over which I do not have a control at all. And since I do not have any control over the situation, I have to only change my attitude in such a way that I welcome, I accept the situation and this acceptance of the situation is called titikṣa.

And if you look at the life, our entire past life is already over, and I have no control over my past. By regretting over the past, I will never be able to change it, even God cannot change the past. Therefore, past comes under choiceless situation and I have to prepare my mind to accept my past as it is; my parentage, my education, my date of birth, all of them; date of birth means age; So by giving a false age, you do not become younger. By covering the wrinkles by thicker powder you do not become younger. Accept the age; accept the grey hair; accept no hair. Therefore the past is choiceless. Therefore I accept the past with titikṣa.

Then the next is present is also choiceless, but present is that which has already arrived. Not arriving. If it has not yet arrived, you can send a telegram, do not arrive; but the present has already arrived and therefore, I have no choice over the present and therefore I prepare the mind, to accept the present which is choiceless. This acceptance of situations around, all the people around is titikṣa. Sahanam sarva duḥkhānam aprathikāra purvakam.

Without resistance. The more the resistance. the more you get heated up. And this acceptance is also of two types; one is a healthy acceptance; and another is a unhealthy acceptance. What is unhealthy acceptance? Taking to the philosophy what cannot be cured, has to be endured. So there is an acceptance, but the acceptance is with bitterness. The acceptance is with self-pity. The acceptance is with frustration. Acceptance is with anger towards the world and God.

This unhealthy acceptance is not titikṣa, because when I accept with bitterness and self-pity, my mind is not available for any other constructive activity. A mind which accepts the situation with bitterness will dwell upon the situation all the time murmuring, all the time grumbling, எனக்கு ஏன் இப்படி ஆச்சு; எனக்கு ஏன் இப்படி ஆச்சு; why me; why it has happened to me? And not only this person has depression, whoever comes around, this person freely does dānam; other dānam whether he does one does not know, his grief he distributes to others. And therefore in unhealthy acceptance, my resources are not available for any constructive work. I am immobilised. I am a complaining person.

Whereas acceptance that is talked about here is a healthy acceptance wherein I do not allow the choiceless situations to overpower me. I do not allow the choiceless situation to clog my resources. I do not allow the choiceless situations to immobilise me. I ignore that situation and I allow my resources to work in a constructive manner. And often it appears very difficult but it is possible for a person to ignore unfavourable conditions and still go ahead with life and even accomplish things. If you have any doubt, read the biographies of some of the handicapped people who have accomplished greater things than even a non-handicapped normal people. We have the Stephen Hawkins phenomenon, for whom no organ of the body works, except the brain. A person can curse himself and take to self-pity, but a person can ignore that and accomplish greater things also. That means I do not allow the situation to overwhelm me and that is called healthy acceptance; titikṣa. This is aspect No.1 of Kṣāntiḥ. This is with respect to the present.

Even though past cannot be changed by me, because it has already gone and even though the present cannot be changed, because it has already arrived; as far as future is concerned, I do have a capacity to change the future.

Astrology can perfectly talk about the past. But with regard to the future, astrology can never totally predict the future, because future can be changed by the human will. In fact astrology itself talks about prayascitta karmāṇi, by which we can change the future. And therefore, with regard to future, what I require is not acceptance. I have to accept the past, because it is choiceless. I have to accept the present; because it is choiceless. But I need not accept the future blindly, because future is not choiceless; future is choicefull (if I can use that word). That means what, I can use my freewill, my resources:

आत्मैव ह्यात्मनो बन्धुः आत्मैव रिपुरात्मनः ॥ ६.५ ॥

Uddharēd ātmana"tmānaṃ na"tmānamavasādayēt |

ātmaiva hyātmanō bandhurātmaiva ripurātmanaḥ ||6. 5 ||

I can work for improving and transforming the future. But here also we should remember any transformation requires time. Any transformation, any growth, any change requires its own time. And therefore with regard to transformation, I require patience. If I have got some disease, it is not that I have to suffer the disease permanently, medical science is advanced I can take the appropriate remedy but it will take its own time; it may be a week, it may be a month, it may be even years. And when you want to change people, when you want a change people, it is almost impossible because you cannot change others unless they want to change, and if others want to change we can work on others and try to change; but changing a person requires lot of time, which means with regard to future, I require the capacity to wait. And this capacity to wait with regard to the future is the second part of the titīkṣa, second part of Kṣāntiḥ, which is called Kṣāma. Kṣāma means the capacity to wait for the future to unfold; even in front of the traffic signal. There it starts. The red signal has come; and it has got its own duration; may be only 1-2 minutes but you can see the lack of Kṣāma. Inch, inch, almost the other side போயாச்சு; gone and if there are so many rows of cars, you can see, even after the green signal has come it will take a minute for your car to move. The first car will take a few seconds, the second will take a few more; by the time you are able to move, it will take a few more seconds; but you can see all the people clamoring with the horn; no patience. And therefore the second part of the Kṣānti is everything takes its own time. A child takes ten months in the womb to grow and therefore Bhartṛhari says; Oh Human beings.

स्वयं भवति यद्यथा भवति तत्तथा नान्यथा ।
अतीतमननुस्मरन्नपि च भाव्यसंकल्पायन्
नतर्कितसमातमाननुभवामि भोगानहम् ॥
paribhramasi kiṁ mudhā kvacana citta viśrāmyatām svayaṁ bhavati yadyathā bhavati tattathā nānyathā | atītamānanusmarannapi ca bhāvyaśaṁkalpāyan
natarkitasamātamānanubhavāmi bhōgānaham ||

Paribhramasi kiṁ mudhā kvacana citta viśrāmyatām. Oh Mind, why are you always in a hurry; you want tomorrow to come today itself. You want next year to come this year itself. Ask your mind to wait and be patient. மனமே இரு; இரு; அவஸர படாதே; maṇamē iru; iru; avasara paṭātē. svayaṁ bhavati yadyathā bhavati tattathā nānyathā. The future has to unfold in its own time; and you cannot hasten the process. Let the future unfold; you face it when it comes; we will cross the bridge when it comes. atītamānanusmarannapi ca bhāvyaśaṁkalpāyan. Not brooding over the past too much; not getting concerned over the future too much. natarkitasamātamānanubhavāmi bhōgānaham.

Develop patience in the present. And if I do not have titikṣa with regard to present, and I do not have Kṣama with regard to future, titikṣa means what, acceptance, Kṣama means what, the capacity to wait; if I do not have acceptance and waiting capacity, the result is stress and strain in the personality, which is the curse of the modern fast life. Every body says stress and strain and there are so many programs conducted to neutralise stress and strain. And the organisers are stressed out; this has to work out; money will come or not, etc.

In śāstra it is called, anāyāsaḥ; freedom from stress; learn to sit for some moment daily, just relax. That's why kept sandhyā vandanam at regular intervals so that you learn to sit without stress. And doctors talk about two fold stress; the physical stress of the body; the muscles are always tensed; and there is mental stress; this physical and mental stress; accumulates over time; and that makes you irritable all the time. The indication of stress and strain is you are all the time at the flashpoint. Somebody has to ask something; flare up, மூக்கில் சுண்டி; anger at the nose-tip; I am all the time irritable; and Dayananda swami says when this irritable father comes home, the children run all around. அப்பா வந்தாச்சு; அப்பா வந்தாச்சு; Father has come, one goes to this room, and another in another room, the poor wife has to choicelessly deal with him. And this irritable condition is the accumulated stress and often the children are the victims; and previously when father is stressed out, mother was there as a cushion; now both of them are working; therefore generally the temperature at home is above 100. And children becomes victims and they also get the internal stress, when they grow out, they take it on their wives and spouses, and thus we have to got a nuclear family, ready to explode. I was wondering why it is called nuclear family. My explanation that it is in a critical moment to explode. Therefore Shanti is an extremely important value to avoid stress; Stress is inflicting injury on myself. And when the stressful person explodes it is inflicting injury on the other people. Therefore a stressed person is always practising hiṃsa, upon himself and others. Therefore if ahiṃsa has to be followed, Kṣāntiḥ is required. Kṣāntiḥ is the only method to develop ahiṃsa. And therefore it is very important value in the śāstra, it is called anāyāsaḥ. A stress free relaxed mind.

Then the next value is अर्जवम् ārjavam. Ārjavam means alignment of the three fold personality; kāyika, vāchika, and mānasa. Our personality has three layers or components; one is physical, another is verbal; and another is mental; and if all of them are in alignment; thought, word and deed are in alignment, that person is integrated personality; harmonised personality; a healthy personality. But when there is no alignment; I think one thing, and by the time I speak out, it has become different; and when I implement, it is a third thing.

मनसि अन्यत्, वचसि अन्यत्, कर्मणि अन्यत् दुरात्मनाम् ॥
manasyēkam, vacasyēkam, karmasyēkam mahātmanām
manasi anyat, vacasi anyat, karmaṇi anyat durātmanām ||

When there is no alignment, it is a split personality. And when there is no alignment, there is a strain taking place in the personality. Like any machine with several different parts; when there is a machine with several parts, all of them should be in alignment. Adjustment is required, when you erect a huge machinery; the mechanics have to come and align. Even in a tape recorder, the head has to be aligned; there also it is said 'head', aligned and cleaned in regular intervals; otherwise recording does not take place. Similarly your head, not only tape recorder. And your ears, they all must be aligned; otherwise after one hour, if someone asks, how was the class, you will say it was wonderful; what did Swamiji say; that is what I do not know. What is wonderful, I do not know.

And therefore alignment is very important. If alignment is not there, you would not feel the strain immediately, but gradual build up would be there. After some time, personality becomes a disharmonious, disintegrated personality and that is why disintegration and destruction are synonymous. Disintegration and destruction are synonymous. When my organs are not integrated, then I am destroyed. Destroyed not in the physical sense, but destroyed in the spiritual sense. I cannot accomplish anything higher. And therefore integrity, or uprightness or alignment or harmonisation of the personality is important. If you go to a music concert, there are so many instruments. Mridangist; gadam, violinst, ganjira, and musician. You will find that they are spending a lot of time adjusting the śṛuti. Aligning the throat, aligning the tampura, is required. If it is a north music concert, they are so particular about śṛuti. According to them, carnatic musicians do not have śṛuti at all. The North Indians take more time to adjust the śṛuti than even the concert time. So if a music concert requires alignment, life is the greatest music, which should give happiness to me and which should give happiness to others. There should be no apasṛuti, that means my thought, word, and deed should be harmonised. That is why we have one of the most wonderful upaniṣadic prayers.

मनो मे वाचि प्रतिष्ठिता ॥

vāg mē manasi pratiṣṭitā

manō mē vāci pratiṣṭitā ॥

Let me not have a split personality. Let me not have a multiple personality syndrome. And Dayananda Swamiji beautiful says that Rāvaṇa shown with 10 heads indicates his multiple personality and the best method to develop ārjavam is starting with punctuality. I feel the first exercise in ārjavam is punctuality. And that is one thing, we do not have at all in India. And if a punctually goes for a public function, he has to start sweeping the room; he has to start from that. Only he has to go. And start the programme. Out of utter frustration, I dropped all public programmes. Because nobody values punctuality. First exercises in ārjavam is punctuality. And I find another disturbing thing. I want to be punctual. Suppose because of some reason, I am not able to be punctual, I have promised someone that I will come at 7 o'clock. And I start at 6 o'clock, because it takes one hour for me to reach. When I start, some visitor comes, or phone call comes, and I am not able to keep up the time, most people keep quiet, I consider ārjavam requires informing that person that I have promised to come at 7, I will not be able to come, I will not come or I will come at 8. But I find that many of the people do not have the tendency to call and inform; we have to phone and ask.

First Arjavam is being punctual. Second ārjavam is informing the person if I am not able to be punctual. If we start with that, we will gradually develop ārjavam. I promise someone I will give an information tomorrow at 9 o'clock. I hoped to get the information by tomorrow. But tomorrow by 9 o'clock I did not get the information. By tomorrow 9 o'clock, whether I have the information or not, I should ring up the person and give the information and if I do not have I should tell, I hoped to get, I did not get. All these things, people are so gross and insensitive, where is the question of higher things.

So ārjavam starts with the word and punctuality. Thereafter bigger things. Even Satyam is a sub-division of ārjavam only. Truthfulness is a sub-division of ārjavam arjavam only. This is another important virtue.

Then the next one is आचार्योपासनम् ācāryopāsanam. This is another important virtue for a vēdāntic student. ācārya upāsanam literally means worship or reverence towards the teacher. ācāryaḥ, and we should remember when worship a teacher, a guru, really speaking, the worship does not go to the person itself. Because as a person, Guru is as such limited as any other person. Then why do we worship the ācārya. ācārya represents the śāstra jñānam which is in him. Therefore my namaskara to ācārya, is my namaskāra to the vēdas which are in him. ācāryaḥ is a temple of the scriptures and scriptures represent Īśvara and therefore through the scriptures, the worship goes to the Lord the revealer of the śāstras.

And then the next question is: Why I should worship the sastram? Why should I worship the Vēda. This is also a very very important thing for us to know. The knowledge that we want to acquire through the śāstra is a knowledge which can be acquired through śāstra alone. It is not a knowledge which can be acquired through any other source of knowledge. The śāstra is like the sixth sense organ. Every sense organ like eye, ears, etc. is capable of giving a unique knowledge which the other sense organs cannot give. Eyes can give the knowledge of colour, the other four sense organs cannot give that. Similarly, ears can give the knowledge of sound, the other sense organs cannot give. And Vēda is like the sixth sense organ and it gives me a knowledge which cannot be gained through any other means of knowledge. And since it is a unique knowledge, which cannot be gained through other sense organs, other sense organs cannot, even confirm that knowledge, nor can contradict that knowledge. Other sense organs can never verify the vēdic knowledge. So we have to accept what vēdas reveal as a new knowledge and this accepting capacity is called śraddhaḥ. śraddhaḥ means learning to accept the knowledge given by the vēda as a unique knowledge which is not available for any other sense organs to verify. And this śraddhaḥ is an extremely difficult thing to develop and one of the methods to develop śraddhaḥ is worship; Upāsana. Imagine there is a person with only four sense organs. From birth he has got only four sense organs. he does not have eyes. he is a blind person from birth. And he has got total faith in these four sense organs. And in between at the age of 50, I give him the fifth sense organ called eye, and I tell him eyes are another means of knowledge; and the eyes give a unique knowledge which you have to accept as a fact. And suppose this person argues. No; I would not accept. whatever the eyes reveal, I want to verify through the other four sense organs. because I have faith only in the 4 sense organs. the 5th sense organs I do not want to accept, therefore I want to verify the colour which the eyes reveal with the ears. The ears can never confirm the colour, ears cannot contradict also. Therefore, I should never attempt to verify the knowledge given by one sense organ with the help of the other sense organ. Then what is my attitude. Every sense organ reveals a fact, which cannot be proved or disproved by the other ones and in our tradition we say that vēda is like the sixth sense organ And that is why in our tradition right from birth, they tried to create śraddhaḥ in the vēda; learn to look at the vēda as the sixth sense organ, so that the knowledge received from the vēda, I accept as a fact. And suppose a person says; this blind man; He says I will not accept the eyes, if it cannot be verified by the other four sense organs, and he says I will not accept the eyes. And who is going to be the loser. If I refuse to accept the eyes, only I will not get the new knowledge of colour. Similarly, if I refuse to accept the vēda as another instrument of knowledge, I will never get unique knowledge given by the Vēda and I will continue to prove the vedic wisdom by other means. I will never be able to prove; That is why science is never able to prove God; science is never able to disprove God. Because God can be understood only through the sixth sense organ, called the Vēda. And therefore the śraddhaḥ towards the vēda should be exactly like my srāddha towards my sense organs.

And how to develop that śraddhaḥ. It has to come from birth itself and that is why they kept ācārya upāsana, as part of our culture. Vēda is another form of eye. Vēda cakṣu and therefore ācāryopāsanam, the capacity; the attitude towards Vēda as a pramāṇam. This is extremely important.

Then the next one is called शौचम् śaucam. śaucam means purity. Cleanliness and purity at different levels. Purity at the level of the surroundings. So therefore house, the street in front, (not to throw our rubbish in the street), house, they all should be clean. And then coming to my dress, that should be clean. So simple dress does not mean, unclean dress. Simple dress means clean but simple dress. Many people connect simplicity with impurity. Therefore at the level of dress cleanliness. Then at the level of physical body cleanliness. They are all relatively easier. In fact, in India we have problem with external cleanliness itself.

And then comes the tougher things, that is anthara śaucam; inner cleanliness, cleanliness at the verbal level; the words should be healthy words; we will be seeing that later in the 17th chapter; cleanliness at the verbal level. It will be called vak tapas. We will analyse that later.

Then cleanliness at the thought level. And that means ultimately all those virtues which will keep my mind healthy. And what are those virtues which keep the mind healthy. Amānitvam, adambhitvam, Ahimsa, Kṣāntiḥ, ācāryopāsanam, etc. they are called mental hygiene, which will lead to mental health.

And the opposite of each one of them. Amānitvam opposite is mānitvam. Adambhitvam opposite dambhitvam. Ahimsa opposite hiṁsa. எதுவெ ஆ இல்லயோ; ஆ சேர்த்திக்கணம்; எதுவெ ஆ இருக்கோ, அதுவெ, ஆவை நீக்கணம். Anārvavam opposite of ārvavam. The opposite of each one of these virtues is mental unhygienic if that quality is there; which will cause mental sickness And therefore enjoyment of a healthy mind, by cultivating all the virtues prescribed here is called śaucam.

And the next virtue is स्थैर्यम् sthairyam. sthairyam is sthīrathā. Will power. Perseverance. Commitment is called sthīram. When we start any pursuit, certainly there will be obstacles and set back. Some of them are actual obstacle, some of them are imaginary obstacles. And because of the actual or imaginary obstacle, if I withdraw from my pursuit, it is asthīrathvam. Sthīrathvam means any type of obstacle may come, I will continue.

विघ्नैः पुनः पुनरपि प्रतिहन्यमानाः

प्रारब्धमुत्तमगुणा न परित्यजन्ति ॥ २७ ॥

prārabhyatē na khalu vighnabhayēna nīcaiḥ

prārabhya vighnavihatā viramanti madhyāḥ ||

prārabdhamuttamaguṇā na parityajanti || 27 ||

Bhartṛhari, in his Neethi Ṣatakam, talks about three grades of people. The lowest category is that who will not start anything at all because they are afraid of failure. They will tell everyone that I have never failed in life. What did you do. Nothing. This is the first category. Never start anything.

There is a second category; they start; the slightest obstacle appears, they drop. prārabhya vighnavihatā viramanti madhyāḥ, they are mediocre. They start. And who are the uttama jana. vighnaiḥ punaḥ punarapi pratihanyamānāḥ. Any amount of obstacle, they again get up; they have a resilient mind, they fall and they get up and continue. As they say: when the going gets tough; the tough gets going. prārabdhamuttamaguṇā na parityajanti. And to highlight this value only the story of Bhagiratha prayathnam, which we saw in the 10th chapter. How Bhagiratha brought Gaṅga. Gaṅga avatharaṅgam story. I do not want to get into that story. We have got the story of Samudra madanam. How many obstacles. Until it is achieved, the uttama guṇā continues and that capacity, will power is called sthairyam. This is another virtue, especially in spiritual path.

The next one is आत्मविनिग्रहः ātmavinigrahaḥ. Atma vinigrahaḥ means self-mastery. Self management. Being the master of my own equipments or instruments. We have seen in Tatva bodha, we have got seventeen organs. pañca jñānēndriyaṅis, karmēndriyaṅis five are there; praṇās, five are there; mind, the emotional faculty and buddhi, the intellectual faculty; seventeen instruments, we have got inbuilt in us and through these instruments alone, I have to accomplish any goal in life. And before using any instrument, I have to make sure that instrument is healthy and the instrument is under my control. In Kathōpaniṣad, we saw the example of the chariot, the horses, and the reins, the driver, etc. The horses are like the sense organs and the reins which control the reins are like the mind and intellect is comparable to the driver. We required an informed driver and we require the controlled steering or reins and the horses must be tamed and obedient, then alone I can reach the destination. In the same way, we have the body, senses, the mind and the intellect. Unless I can manage myself, there is no question of managing a company.

So in management science, what is first lesson? Can you manage yourselves? Can you manage your tongue; the eating tongue; the talking tongue? Can you manage your own emotion? If I cannot manage myself, how can I hope to manage anything and therefore Vēdas says start with self-management. And that self-mangement is called ātmavinigrahaḥ, Ātma means stūla sūkṣma sariram. Not satcidanada ātma. vinigrahaḥ means mastery. And the entire Aṣṭāṅga Yōga of Patanjali is meant for this purpose. If you take Aṣṭāṅga yōga, they prescribe various āsanās. This is to manage your annamaya kōśaḥ. Is your body listening to you. If I say my body to sit, whether it will listen. First problem is the knee joint. Knee joints are saying I am here; I am here; and similarly back. So therefore āsanās is the fundamental thing to keep your body obedient to you. Very important thing. We think that it is meant for some people to do extra ordinary feat. Just to sit in the class, for an hour, we require a healthy body. Āsanās is a beautiful system of Aṣṭāṅga yōga. Then they have praṇāyama to get mastery over prāṇamaya kōśa, prāṇa, apana, vyana, udana, samana, the physiological system must be healthy and therefore they got prathyāhāra mastery over the sense organs. Then they got dhāraṇa, dhyāna and samādhi, mastery over the mind, developing attention span, developing focusing capacity. For that three exercises dhāraṇa, dhyāna and samādhi; absorption. Swami Chinmayananda used to tell that the student must be so absorbed in the class so much and even if the ceiling comes down, student should not know what is happening. Otherwise, if someone comes late, we will be watching his movements, what dress, colour, etc. That the I should die to the world, that is samādhi.

Samādhi is not a mystical thing. samādhi is the absorbing capacity; absorption capacity in any action I undertake. Thus yama, niyama, asana, praṇāyama, prathyāhāra, dhāraṇa, dhyāna, samādhi; the entire yōga system is not for jñānam. Yōga never gives jñānam. Not for mōkṣa. Yōga gives only ātmavinigrahaḥ. Then you have to come to guru and சமத்தாய் வேதாந்தம் படிக்கணம் ;start learning vēdānta. Yōga is not to skrit vēdānta but yōga is a preparation for vēdānta sṛavaṇam.

More in the next class.

Om

From the 8th verse of the 13th chapter, Lord Krishna has taken up the third topic for analysis. He has already dealt with two topics; Kṣetraṁ and kṣētrajña and now Krishna is dealing with the third topic called jñānam and we saw that in this context, the word jñānam refers to a set of virtues which will keep the mind a healthy one. Just as there are certain physical parameters, which will indicate the physical health, like the pressure, the level of cholesterol, the level of hemoglobin, etc. will indicate the physical health; similarly there are certain parameters or virtue, which indicate mental health. And this mental health is useful for every human being to enjoy peace of mind and this mental health is particularly required for a Vēdāntic seeker because only if the mind is healthy, the intellect will be freely available for higher pursuit. If the mind is not healthy, the intellect will be a hostage of a sick mind. You will not allowed to think properly because a disturbed mind will suppress your intellect and that is why when you are mentally disturbed, you can never read anything where intellectual application is required. You cannot hear any discourse where intellectual application is required; intellectual application is possible only when the mind is relaxed. Mind is relaxed only when the mind is healthy; mind is healthy only when these parameters are handled and maintained. And therefore Krishna gives the list. We covered the 8th verse in which some of them have been mentioned; amānitvam, adambitvam, ahiṁsa, Kṣānti, ārjavam, ācāryopāsanam, śaucam, sthairyam, ātmavinigrahaḥ; 9 virtues have been enumerated; now in the next verse, we are going to get some more virtues. We will read;

इन्द्रियार्थेषु वैराग्यम् अनहङ्कार एव च ।

जन्ममृत्युजराव्याधि - दुःखदोषानुदर्शनम् ॥ १३.९ ॥

indriyārthēṣu vairāgyamanahaṅkāra ēva ca |

janmamṛtyujarāvyaḍhiduḥkhadōṣānudarśanam || 13.9 ||

इन्द्रियार्थेषु वैराग्यम् indriyārthēṣu vairāgyam; these two words together, refers to the next virtue, viz., mastering of the sense organs. Sense organs are a set of instruments gifted to us by the Lord and they are very important instruments because through them alone we interact with the world. We have got two sets of sense organs one set is called jñānēndriyāṇi, through which we receive the input from the world, they are the entrance gate through which the world enters into us, and we have got a set of sense organs called karmēndriyāṇi, through which we express ourselves, we respond to the external world; therefore, they are exit gates. So therefore, sense organs are extremely important for interaction with the world and not only for all ordinary interaction, for all the spiritual sadhanas also, you require these organs. And since they are a set of instruments given to us, we have to make sure that they are under our control and we are not the slaves of our sense organs. This avoidance of slavery to the sense organs; otherwise called indriya nigrahaḥ; otherwise indriya jayaḥ; otherwise called damaḥ; otherwise called prathyahara; that is mentioned by Krishna. And this requires a constant alertness on our part, because the sense organs or generally in contact with the sensory world; and we have five sense organs and we have got five segments; śabda, sparśa, rūpa, rasa, gandha; these five sense objects and we have got sense organs, which one functioning in its own respective fields. And when the sense organs come in contact with any object on a regular basis, unknowingly the sense organs develop an attachment to the sense objects. So every sense organ is prone to develop attachment to any particular sense object; addiction forming nature is there, in every sense organ. So you see an object or a person or a particular programme in the TV for a few days. Initially you say it is nice, it is wonderful, gradually the sense organs demand association with the sense object. And when they demand it is for us to decide whether we should fulfil the demand of the sense organ. Exactly bringing up a child. A child you give some thing, after some time, the child begins to demand; give me chocolate. Give me chocolate. The mother gives initially; thereafter, the child gets addicted; then the child demands; It begins to throw tantrums also; and the mother does not know how to handle to avoid the tantrums and the problems; and she succumbs and agrees to give the child the chocolate saying that it is the last time. Then a time comes, then the child knows how to make the mother do what it wants. Every sense object is like such a child. Initially you allow the sense organ to function in a field; later the sense organs begins to demand; and once you pamper the sense organs you have become an addict or slave. And afterwards you try to master, the sense organs has become now powerful enough and if you say no, to any addicted thing, you say no, the sense organs know how to throw tantrums. They will not allow you to do anything. If you go on reading, it is coffee time; and one day you say that I won't give you coffee. Then you do anything, there is only one japa; even Namasivaya would not happen like this. Only coffee japa. It will not allow you to do anything. It can even create headache in some people. That is why Krishna said in the second chapter,

इन्द्रियाणि प्रमाथीनि हरन्ति प्रसभं मनः ॥ २- ६० ॥ yatātō hyapi kauntēya puruṣasya vipaścītaḥ |
indriyāṇi pramāthīni haranti prasabhaṁ manaḥ || 2.60 ||

Pampered by me, the sense organs can become so powerful that they can even drag the mind to its field. and then the intellect tells that it is not good; I should not pamper, I should not become a slave; because I want to attain Moksha from the whole creation. And being the slave of a coffee, a cigarette, liquor or something, if I am not a master of even few little small things, how can I become a master of, how can I get the freedom from the whole creation. And therefore the intellect begins to feels the guilt and that is how the tug-of-war begins; intellect decide I want to get out of the habit and even I give up the habit for a few days and thereafter he gets addicted. Mark Twain or somebody said: Who said giving up smoking is difficult. I have given up many times. Then begins the big tug of war or the intellect says that I am a Gītā student, and I should be a master, I should not be a weakling, and its takes wonderful decision, a few days they are implemented, and again gets to the old rut. Called relapse. And then once the intellect fails a few times, intellect does not how to handle the guilt. Then intellect uses another method; because the guilt is really painful at the same time the intellect is not able to find out a method of getting out of the addiction. So what is the best method. If you cannot defeat your enemy, join. And the joining is called, justification. So the intellect knows how to justify every addiction. It will argue, even though the manufacturers have to live. if we do not buy, how wil they live. And therefore we have to help them survive by somehow. Like that person who wanted to show the harm in taking liquor and he did an experiment, he just put an insect inside the liquor and the insect died. In front were sitting a lot of liquor addicts. He showed the experiment and asked them what is the conclusion you arrive at? Because the insect died in the alcohol. This fellow got up and said: Whoever takes liquor will have a clean stomach without any germs. Because it will all be killed and I will have a clean stomach. புரியலாமா? So therefore regularly take. Any argument you give, the intellect knows how to manipulate. And therefore only the best solution is with regard to any addiction, prevention is always better than trying to cure. And therefore alertness becomes important and that is why they say, once in a while say No to anything that you regularly do. So all forms of tapas, vrthams etc. we practice, they are all meant for avoidance of sense-slavery. In yōga śāstra, it is called pratyahara ḥ. In Vēdānta śāstra, it is called damaḥ; damaḥ, in sādānā catuṣṭya sampathi, śamaḥ, damaḥ, uparathi, etc. are said. So indriyārthēṣu vairāgyam means damaḥ, and vairāgyam means dispassion, not hatred; you are allowed to enjoy legitimate pleasures without becoming a slave of that pleasure. That you enjoy the pleasure, you decide what the sense organs should do, the sense organs should not decide what you should do. So that is the important virtue.

Then the next virtue is अहङ्कार anahaṅkāra. Ahamkāra means self-conceit, which we saw before mānitvam. And anahaṅkāra free from self-conceit or humility. Freedom from egoism, arrogance, pride, vanity; any word you can use. Now the question is, amānitvam also means freedom from self-conceit; anahaṅkāra also means freedom from self-conceit. Why should Krishna repeat that. After-all we have wonderful memory power! Why should Krishna repeat.

Even though in normal context, amānitvam and anahaṅkāra means the same; in this context, we make a subtle difference between these two. Amānitvam means freedom from self-conceit at the thought level. Mananam is thinking at the thinking level I do not have self-conceit; I do not think I am the greatest person in the world; I very well know my limitations, and therefore at thought level freedom from self-conceit is called amānitvam, whereas anahaṅkāra means freedom from self-conceit at the verbal level; Aham iti kāraṇam, ahaṅkāraḥ. All the time, நான்; நான்; நான்; என்று போசண்டு இருக்கொமோ இல்லயோ? Me Me Me, you are talking. All the time using only first person singular either aham, avam, mam, maya, or mahyam; all the time centered around aham. Any subject-matter you talk about, this person of self-conceit will convert into a subject matter relating to himself. You talk about an event in America; when I went to that place, he will convert it into 'I'. Any topic under the Sun, this fellow will convert into 'I' topic, that is called self=-propagation, self-proclamation, blowing his own trumpet; that is ahaṅkāra. And anahaṅkāra means freedom from that. So thus amānitvam, adambitvam, anahaṅkāra, all the three convey the same idea at three different levels; Amānitvam means freedom from conceit at the mental level; anahaṅkāra is freedom from conceit at the verbal level; Adambitvam is freedom from conceit at the kāyika level; by pomp and show, body things and all, simplicity. All these are the similar nature only. Therefore, anahaṅkāra eva cha.

Then the next virtue is: जन्ममृत्युजराव्याधि दुःखदोषानुदर्शनम् janma mṛtyu jarā vyādhi duḥkha dōṣānudarśanam. Do not be body-oriented. Do not consider your life as something connected to only to physical existence. Physical existence is only a limited external aspect of yours. You are something other than the physical body. You have got a higher nature, different from the body. This body orientation will obstruct your higher pursuit and not only that, this body orientation will lead to a lot of problems also.

And what are the problems of body oriented life; and especially nowadays so much importance is given to body; beauty objects even for men; body care; teeth care, eye care; brow care; hair care; all inch by inch I am particular about how I look. This body orientation can be carefully. Very carefully. This should not be misunderstood. Vēdānta never says that you should neglect your body; because body is the instrument, which is required for all spiritual pursuit as well as material pursuits. But what Vēdānta says is that body is only a means; it is not an end in itself. In fact, it is only an outermost kōśa called annamaya kōśa; And how to get detached from the body. For that Krishna says: see the problem of body attachment. Dōṣa anudarśanam. Anudarśanam means constantly reminding; Reminding of what? Dōṣa. The various defects; deficiencies; problems involved in dēha abhimāna; body orientation. And what are the Dōṣas; janma, mṛtyu, jarā, vyādhi duḥkha. The body is subject to five-fold problems; and what are the five fold problems. The first one is janma; any way fortunately the problem is over; நம்ம பொறந்து வெச்சாச்சு. The body has lived in solitary confinement in the womb of the mother for 10 months without any freedom; and coming out is also a struggle. Anyway that is over.

Now what are the later problems? Jarā. Jarā means the old age and attendant problems, where I do not have any will power in deciding my conditions of the body. My willpower will be strong and functioning only in the initial part of my life; as I become older and older, helplessness becomes more and more. In addition to various other problems. Jarā means old age. Then vyādhi; vyādhi means what? Diseases. And then finally what? mṛtyu; mṛtyu means maraṇam; leaving everything that is near and dear to me; separation. All these problems duḥkham, all these duḥkhams are the defect of physical life. And if you remember these dōṣas, then you will never be interested in deha abhimāna; and therefore, dēha abhimāna dōṣa darśanam is a requisite for Ātma jñānam.

Continuing.

असक्तिरनभिष्वङ्गः पुत्रदारगृहादिषु ।
नित्यं च समचित्तत्वम् इष्टानिष्टोपपत्तिषु ॥ १३.१०॥ asaktiranabhiṣvaṅgaḥ putradāragṛhādiṣu |
nityam ca samacittatvamiṣṭāniṣṭōpapattiṣu || 13.10 ||

असक्तिः asaktiḥ; asaktiḥ means mental detachment. Avoidance of mental slavery with regard to any external object, situation or person. Previously we talked about indriyārtheṣu vairāgyam. Now we are talking about asaktiḥ. Both mean detachment only but the difference is previously it is detachment from the standpoint of sense organs; it was indriya nigrahaḥ; here asaktiḥ deals with manō nigrahaḥ. So previous one is damaḥ; the present one is śamaḥ. And why does Krishna talk about both of them.

Mental detachment cannot be easily attained, because mind is a subtler instrument. Therefore taking the mind away from the object of attachment is extremely difficult; whereas sense organs are external instruments; they are grosser instruments and therefore they can be controlled in a relatively easier way. And how can you control the sense organs? By physically being away from the place. If a person has a tendency to use a particular object, addiction causing object; he can be physically separated. In all the de-addiction centers; the object will not be available. பாரத்தாலே வேணம் என்று தோன்றும் பிஸிக்கலா எடுத்தாடறது. The problem is: even when the sense organs the physically separated from the sense objects, the mind can continue to dwell on that. And as long as the mind dwells on that, again re-addiction or relapse is possible. Therefore as long as the person is physically away, he will have control. அதற்கு அப்பால் திரும்பி வந்தால்; அதும் திரும்பி வரும்.

indriyārthān vimūḍhātmā mithyācāraḥ sa ucyatē || 3.6 ||

So initially you start from sense control; and even after sense control; mind continues to have a vāsana and therefore we have to handle the mind also. And for that the mind has to be educated of the evils involved in the addiction and once the mind is mastered; thereafter, even if the object of addiction is in front. I have got out of habit of smoking or drinking. If the other person is using that right in front; I can remain there without having a temptation. So that is the higher stage of detachment born out of viveka śaktiḥ. And only when I say NO out of discrimination; it becomes transcending. If I stop them because of the others' pressure. it becomes suppression only. Therefore suppression should be converted to transcendence. And that transcendence is inner detachment. After inner detachment, I am not worried about temptation. I move anywhere. rāgadvēṣaviyuktaistu. Krishna tells all this beautifully in the second chapter; towards the end;

ātmaśāyairvidhēyātmā prasādamadhigacchati || 2.64 ||

Once the mind is mastered; let this person be in any field; he can never get addicted to anything or temptations. Until that possibility is there, I have to physically get away from the tempting situations and therefore asaktiḥ. Detachment or dispassion at the mental level.

And then what is the next virtue. पुत्रदारगृहादिषु अनभिष्वङ्गः putradāragrḥādiṣu anabhiṣvaṅgaḥ. Those two words should be read together. Not anabhiṣvaṅgaḥ one virtue; putradāra another virtue. Both together. That is putradāragrḥādiṣu anabhiṣvaṅgaḥ. Anabhiṣvaṅgaḥ means over attachment. Intense attachment. Thīvra rāgaḥ; and Anabhiṣvaṅgaḥ means absence of over attachment or absence of excessive attachment. Towards whom: Krishna gives a list of important things. What are they? Putra; Putra means what; putri also; putraḥ or putri means child. Dāra; Dāra means wife; Wife indicates husband also. Therefore we will translate as spouse. Putra means child. Apathyam and dāra represents spouse. Gr̥ham. Gr̥ham our own house; அதிலயும் விதியாசம் இருக்கு. Rented house சொன்ன detachment வரும். ஆரோடோ வீடு; அடி ஆணி. So own house. Gr̥ham ādi; means etc. a few other close things. You can supply. May be the bed; dog; you think. With regard to those few things or people, with whom you move constantly; with whom you live not merely years; but decades and your life is closely intertwined with them. Thus there are a few things and beings with which you are intensely connected. And with regard to them you can never avoid attachment. Krishna admits that attachment cannot be avoided with regards to a few things and beings with which you regularly move. And if you should not have any attachment, it is possible only under once circumstance; you should be Paramahansa parivarācāryaḥ; you should never stay with a person regularly; you should never stay in one place regularly; constantly you have to move. Then there is no scope of attachment. But as long as we are living in a set up, our live is intertwined with a few people and things; attachment will be there. And therefore Krishna says, I do not ask you to avoid attachment. I am only saying, avoid over attachment. Excessive attachment, do not have. A little bit attachment permitted. So this is particularly a concession given to Gṛihasthās. இல்லைனா,புத்ர தாரா எல்லாம் ஆருக்கு; ஸன்யாஸிக்கா? It is clear. So one Sanyāsi read this. If I have to follow this virtue, I have to get married? Na Na Na. Because Krishna has said 20 values should be followed. Therefore I do not have a wife; So let me get married and get detachment. Idiot. This is with regard to Gṛihasthās. Attachment is allowed; but Krishna says avoid excessive attachment.

Now the next question is: How to differentiate attachment and excessive attachment? Is there a barometer, thermometer; if you keep on the head and if yellow comes, attachment and if red comes, excessive attachment. How do you know? So Anandagiri, who writes a sub commentary on Śankarācārya's commentary, he gives a beautiful explanation, differentiating attachment and over attachment. He defines attachment as mamakāraḥ; claiming a thing or a person as mine; He belongs to me. I belong to you; you belong to me. நீ என்னை சேர்ந்தவன்; நான் உனக்கு; நீ எனக்கு; Somebody said: That is how marriage starts; Mēra Mēri; Mēra Mēri and then after sometime; Māra Māri. In Hindi Māra Māri means ஆடிதடி; quarrel. Mēra Mēri; I for you; You for me; Therefore Mamakāra is attachment. And as long as I claim a thing or being as Mama, it is only a related object or person which remains even when the object is gone. I am very much there; only the object is gone; I am there as a complete person. My life is there. My journey continue. Only associated person or thing is gone; and my journey has to continue. But when the attachment is excessive; then it is no more mamakāra; my identification becomes so complete; that I become one with that object; and therefore I do not see any difference between that object or person and myself. That means whatever happens to that person I take as happening to myself. And naturally, when that person is dead, instead of saying that person is gone and I continue to survive; I feel that I myself is dead and gone; that means my life appears to be empty. If I think my life has no meaning, without another person; it is excessive attachment. If I think my life has no meaning without another person, it is excessive attachment, because the fact is every life has got its own meaning, irrespective of other people being there or not; because we have all come to the earth for the particular purpose of spiritual evolution and every one of us has come independently; we are never born together.

We are never going to die together. As Chinmayananda says: Alone to the Alone is All alone is Life. And therefore we have come here for our spiritual growth; and Bhagavān has connected a few people; so that our growth is helped. And the people will be around as long as there is need of them for my growth and once that purpose is served; thereafter each Jeeva has to continue his own journey. It is like a train journey. I have entered the compartment in a particular station and I have started the journey. Another particular station another person enters. And then our seats in the neighboring No. And therefore we enquire; Who are You etc. and there is mutual exchange also; and thereafter we become friends; but both of us have got our own destination. Either I get down first or the other person gets down first; but the journey has to continue. The whole earth is a compartment alone; We have all come together and we progress and thereafter we have to continue our journey in our own direction. If this is forgotten; I think my life is purposeless. without another person; and once that thought comes, it has become excessive attachment. That means I cannot imagine living without that person. My life is empty. எதுக்காக நான் வாழணம்? ஆருக்காக வாழணம்? I will take potassium cyanide; and I will go immediately. Blabbering indicate excessive attachment. Krishna says you can cry. Nothing wrong. Attachment will give grief; but you should never forget; that everyone is an individual and we have to make our own journey. And therefore not forgetting this fact: what fact; Life is like a train journey.

That is called absence of over attachment. Mamakāram இருக்கட்டும், தப்பில்லை; Not being total Tādātmyam, especially with regard to these closer ones; So putradāragrḥādiṣu anabhiṣvaṅgaḥ.

Then the next virtue is: नित्यं च समचित्तत्वम् इष्टानिष्टोपपत्तिषु nityam samacittatvam ca iṣṭāniṣṭopapattiṣu. So this gives the essence of karma yōga.

yōgasthaḥ kuru karmāṇi saṅgaṃ tyaktvā dhanañjaya |
siddhyasiddhyōḥ samō bhūtvā samatvaṃ yōga ucyatē || 2.48 ||

excitement in both situation. In a happy situation also; do not be carried away; because even that situation is temporary. As in extremely sorrowful situation also; do not be carried away, because remember; this will also part away. But the worst situation will go; even the worst எழரை சனி will remain for 7 and half years; and generally after one or two years we get used to; like our roads; we do not complain about roads; because we are now accustomed; In fact, if we they all become alright, we will become uncomfortable. So any griha and all you will get used to. Therefore whether it is favourable or unfavourable situation, learn to maintain the equanimity; not that the mind will not be disturbed at all; we are not machine; mind will be disturbed; it will not be a violent upheaval; let it be a manageable disturbance; Let it not be a violent carrying away disturbance. Let it a manageable disturbance.

And how to do that; Krishna does not say. But learn and practice that. And from this advice we come to know one important thing. Krishna says every human being should practice equanimity in favourable and unfavorable situation. From this one idea becomes clear. What is that. Every human being will have both favourable and unfavourable situations. No śāstra gives you a method of making all situations favourable all the time. அதுக்கு வழியே கிடயாது. Even if you have got prayascitha karmāṇi, remedies and all, those remedies are not useless; they can make certain situations favourable; but no human being can make the life hundred percent favourable. And that is why we are asked to read the Puranas all the time, so that we will come to know that even great kings; even great dharmic people like Dharmaputra and even Avathārās; all of them have gone through ups and downs. If they themselves cannot avoid opposite experiences, what this ordinary fly. This ordinary human being I;

तता दुःखैर् लिप्येरन् नळराम युधिष्ठिराः ॥

avaśyam bhāvi bhāvānām apratikāram bhavēt yati

tatā duḥkhair lipyēran naḷarāma yudhiṣṭirāḥ ||

If there is a remedy for all the problems of life, then Naḷa would not have suffered in life. Being a great king, Rāma would not have suffered; Yudhiṣṭirāḥ would not have suffered. The very fact that they suffered indicates that life is a mixture of both. And why it Bhagavān keep philosophical question comes; Why did Bhagavān keeps them. because according to Bhagavān and śāstra; spiritual growth requires suffering also. According to Bhagavān and śāstra; spiritual growth requires suffering also. In fact, spiritual growth is more in suffering. Because then only you remember God. இல்லைனா பகவானை யார் ஞாபகம் வெச்சிண்டு இருப்பா. Therefore opposites are bound to be there. Vēdānta does not avoid opposites; Vēdānta teaches you how to maintain the equanimity in opposites. And what is the method? There are two methods:

In the first stage, the method is called Karma yōga; and then the higher stage is jñāna yōgaḥ; karma yōga is like the first aid; jñāna yōga is like the ultimate cure. So when a person is bleeding in an accident; first aid is very important. The first aid is not there, the person would not survive. Even though the first aid is a temporary remedy; he is taken to hospital to serious treatment. He has to be given the permanent treatment also. Similarly karma yōga is the first aid method and jñāna yōga is the permanent method of getting permanent peace. What is the karma yōga method. I do not want to get into that. Care of third chapter. To put in a nutshell; accept every experience as Isvara prasada; Bhagavān has specially designed this experience: made to order. Specially designed my experience. So it means Bhagavān takes care of me specially for my spiritual growth. துன்ப புடத்தில் இட்டு தூயவனாக்கி வைத்தாய்; So thus prasāda bhuddhi; helps in sama cittatvam; When should you have the samacittatvam. Morning or evening; So Krishna says: nityaṁ; throughout the waking hours; During sleep, you need not sama cittatvam; because there is no experience. therefore throughout the waking hours, there should be the attempt to maintain peace. Iṣṭāniṣṭopapattiṣu. Karma yōga. The entire second line is one value. and that value is samatvam through karma yōga.

विविक्तदेशसेवित्वम् अरतिर्जनसंसदि ॥ १३.११॥ mayi cānanyayōgēna bhaktiravyabhicāriṇī |
viviktadēśasēvitvam aratirjanasaṁsadi || 13.11 ||

So in the previous verse it was pointed that we should maintain equanimity and Krishna does not give the method and I told you the method. I told you means I borrowed it from the 3rd chapter and that method is what: prasāda bhāvana; prasāda means gift coming from the Lord. And why is it called prasādaḥ; the word prasādaḥ, I think I have told you before; literally the word means tranquility of mind; and when you look upon anything as a gift from the Lord; it gives you tranquility of mind; and therefore the object is called prasādaḥ; So by implication vadai, kadalai, chundal; why are they prasadam; They are not prasādam. When you receive them, as a gift coming from the Lord, because of your devotion, you have got a sense of fulfilment; and that gives you tranquility and that produces tranquility is prasādaḥ; prasāda Janaka; prasādaḥ iti uchayate; therefore I should have prasāda bhāvana; that it is coming from the Lord. And this prasāda bhāvana is possible only if I have devotion to the Lord. Without devotion to the Lord; karma yōga does not exist. And that is why Dayananda Swami repeatedly says: there is no karma yōga separate from Bhakthi yōga and there is no bhakthi yōga separate from karma yōga, because karma yōga exists and is possible only for a person who has got devotion to the Lord and therefore Karma yōga is itself is a level of bhakti yōga only because karma yogi must have intense devotion to the Lord; and therefore Dayananda Swami says; there is no question of secular karma yōga. So without touching Lord, if you ask whether you can practice karma yōga; one has to say No; atheist cannot be a karma yogi. Karma yōga presupposes faith in God. And of course karma yogi does not know the ultimate nature of God. If he knows, he will be a jñāni; So he has got his own concept of God, in any form he likes a iṣṭa dēvathā; as ēka rūpa īśvara or anēka rūpa īśvara. Remember; ēka rūpa īśvara means Lord as a personal God as the viśva rūpa īśvara; jagatha īśadhi yukta sevanam; aṣṭa mūrṭi brk dēva pūjanam. And therefore Krishna wants to say without bhakthi karma yōga is not possible. And therefore Arjuna, Mayi bhakthi is the next important virtue. So Mayi means in Me. In Me means in īśvara; and what type of devotion it should be. That we will see in the next class.

सदाशिव समारम्भां शङ्कराचार्यमध्यमाम्

Om

In this 13th chapter, Lord Krishna is now dealing with the topic of Jñānam, from verse No.8 up to verse No.12 and in this context, the word Jñānam has a unique meaning and that meaning is all the virtues of the mind which are conducive to the attainment of knowledge. Jñāna upakāraka Guṇāḥ. Jñāna sahāyaka guṇāḥ. Can you get the meaning? Guṇāḥ means those virtues; sahāyaka meaning promoting or favouring, Jñāna self-knowledge. Any virtue which makes the mind eligible for receiving this spiritual knowledge, all of those virtues are called here together as Jñānam.

We have seen three verses in the group, 8, 9 and 10, and we have entered into the 11th verse, where Lord Krishna emphasises the importance of bhakthi as a very important virtue. Spiritual knowledge is now possible without devotion to the Lord. Only in the atmosphere of bhakthi, Jñāna yōga is possible; and that is why in the 12th chapter, we saw karma yōga also should take place only in the atmosphere of bhakthi; upāsana yōga also must take place only in the atmosphere of bhakthi and finally, Jñāna yōga also is possible only when devotion is there and that is the reason in the 12th chapter, we named each yōga as bhakthi yōga itself. Karma yōga itself is called bhakthi yōga stage No.1, upāsana yōga itself is called bhakthi yōga stage II, and Jñāna yōga is also called bhakthi yōga stage III, because Jñāna yōga also requires the background of bhakthi, therefore Krishna says: मयि भक्तिः mayi bhaktiḥ, devotion towards me. Here the word Mayi does not refer to Krishna as a person, but it refers to the Lord who can be invoked in any form that you like. Krishna has already said in the 7th chapter:

तस्य तस्याचलां श्रद्धां तामेव विदधाम्यहम् ॥ ७- २१ ॥
yō yō yāṃ yāṃ tanuṃ bhaktaḥ śraddhayā'rcitumicchati |
tasya tasyācalāṃ śraddhāṃ tāmēva vidadhāmyaham ॥ 7.21 ॥

Lord does not have a form of his own but the formless Lord can be invoked through any particular form that we like and therefore any form is OK. Krishna it can be or Rāma or Gaṇapathi. Mayi is only upalakṣaṇa; we should not conclude only Krishna bhakthi gives liberation; that is not the idea. And when Krishna prescribes Bhakthi as a necessary condition, we should ask the question; what type of bhakthi; because in the 7th chapter, Krishna has talked about arta bhakthi, artharthi bhakthi, jijñāsu bhakthi and Jñāni bhakthi. Do you remember? If you remember those four types, naturally the question will be which type of bhakthi is talked about here. Certainly, it cannot be Jñāni bhakthi, because these is a sādānā for the attainment of Jñānam and therefore it is practised by ajñāni only. Because here we are talking about the sādānās to become a Jñāni and therefore at this moment, this person is ajñāni. Therefore Jñāni bhakthi is ruled out. And then what are the other three types; arta, artharthi, and jijñāsu. Arta bhaktha, artharthi bhaktha also is not going to seek self-knowledge, because the very name shows he is interested in something. Arta Bhaktha is a person in crisis, a problem, and therefore he will ask for only freedom from that crisis and that bhakthi will not help in gaining knowledge. In fact, he cannot even study vēdānta properly, because his mind will be (என்த ஸ்வாமிக்கு; என்த விரதம்: என்ன வேண்டுதல் பண்ணினா, என்ன ப்ரொப்லம் போகும்? which God, what vrtham). So when a person is obsessed with worldly problem he is not going to be interested in self-knowledge. Therefore arta bhakthi is never conducive and artharthi bhaktha is interested only in arta and therefore that also is ruled out. So therefore by elimination, three are gone, so only one is left out, what is that, jijñāsu bhakthi. The one who considers that the Lord is the goal itself; not that I want to accomplish something through God.

In the seventh chapter, I pointed out God can be used as a means for worldly ends or God can be looked upon as an end in itself. And the bhakthi talked about is that devotion in which God is the end in itself. And if I have to choose God as the end or destination, I should have the maturity enough to understand that everything other than God is perishable and therefore cannot give what I want. Thus, this bhakthi requires vairagyam towards the world; without vairagyam, this bhakthi is impossible. Therefore, viveka janya, vairāgya janya bhakthi is a devotion, in which I know God alone can give me pūrṇatvam, security, fulfilment, etc.

And that Bhakthi Krishna calls अव्यभिचारिणी भक्तिः avyabhicāriṇī bhaktiḥ, a devotion which is unswerving, unflinching, which is one pointed.

And ananya yōgēna, with undivided attention, that is even when the worldly transactions are going, and even when the worldly responsibilities are fulfilled, this devotee remembers: That my goal is something else. So now and then, he should be reminded, like New Year or something like that, what is the purpose of this life. Often people ask what is the purpose of this life. Pūrṇatvam prāpṭhi is the purpose of this life. I have to keep on expanding enough to reach a stage beyond which I should not be able to expand, i.e., possible only in infinitude and that pūrṇatvam is the goal. And reminding it off and on, is ananya yōga bhakthi and that is very very important.

Then the next virtue is, विविक्तदेशसेवित्वम् viviktadeśasevitvam. This is also considered to be an important virtue. Resorting to a secluded place, now and then. Developing the habit of going to a secluded place, not with a friend; then it is no more a secluded, resorting to solitude, in which I do not have anyone around. And I do not carry a walkman. Very important. Therefore carrying walkman or runman or anyman, I should be able. And I should find out whether I can confront myself. So more than facing other people in the society, I should ask a question whether I can face myself, whether I can accept myself, those problems will surface only when I am alone. In fact, seclusion introduces me to myself. And in fact the fundamental problem of samsara also we come to know only when we are alone, otherwise we try to escape ourselves by various diversions. In fact, a materialistic society is one, which provides maximum diversion route. And the more you take to diversion, the less you diagnose your problem, and if you do not diagnose the problem, how will you work for a solution. Therefore, solitude is to know more about myself and my problems. And this solitude has got another purpose also; that one expression of Samsāra. Samsāra expresses in different forms; in the form of anxiety, in the form of fear; in the form of security; there are several versions of samsāra, and one expression of samsāra is: sense of loneliness. And this problem of loneliness can attack any person at any time in life, because that is one version of samsāra. And this can happen in the middle age, when the children leaves the nest, it is called the nest-leaving phase; I enjoyed the company of my children, even though I complained a lot; when the children go out for either studies or they are married and they go, there is a sense of loneliness. Or as we grow old and old, the people who are around, they may leave me. Again sense of loneliness comes. Thus loneliness is a potential problem which can attack any human being at any time. If you have to learn to face it, you cannot do that when it comes. Trying to fight loneliness when it comes, is like digging a well when the house is on fire. And that too in Madras, you try to dig a well. And therefore better learn to be alone; better learn to enjoy solitude. And what is the best method; once in a while, just go for a walk, without walkman. Go for a walk, sit on the beach; do not take any friend or anyone. And find out how you feel. Old age will be wonderful if you have learned to tackle loneliness. It is wonderful because, the loneliness can be made use of, for vĕdāntic nidhidhyāṣana. When we are alone, we cannot do much work; because physically unfit. And the people are all busy. They have no time to talk to me at all. Because everyone is working. And they do not have the time to talk also. And they also know our weakness. The moment someone asks you: How are you, we start from 1947. Before freedom, and we talk on and on, and on without full stop, coma, dash, hyphen, semicolon, and the person keeps on looking at the watch, out of respect, he does not walk out, and therefore nobody wants to talk also. I am not frightening you, but everyone of us has to go through that. So why can't we go through the training rehearsal to gracefully grow old. The best rehearsal is learn to enjoy solitude. Not eternally. Once in a while, be alone and see what happens. Who says? Not me, do not get angry with me; viviktadeśasevitvam; viviktadeśa means secluded place, sevitvam, regularly resorting to, now and then resorting to. You need not go anywhere, even to the terrace, you go, it is OK. Many of us have not seen our terrace at all; unless you go to dry the karuvadam. Ok. Otherwise where is time to stand and stare. And therefore viviktadeśasevitvam.

Then does that mean that you should not mingle with people at all. Krishna says I am not saying that you should hate company of people. What Krishna says do not get addicted to people's company. जनसंसदि janasaṃsadi, people's company, neighbours, relatives, etc. and रतिः ratih means getting lost; aratih is derived from the root, rum, and there is an intoxicant called rum. ratiḥ, Ramaṇam etc. rum effect; do not carried away by people's company because people's company provides you an ideal condition for forgetting yourselves. Forgetting the problems and therefore intially you may go out of necessity. Then make it a habit; hanging around in the village and all, we are never allowed to remain out after sunset. We have to come back and we have to do our japa, pūja, etc. but nowadays the habit is hang around, in the coffee, pizza corner, in the Nungambakkam road, they had written in Tamil, பிட்சா கோர்னர் piṭcā kōṇṇar; I read it as பிக்சா கோர்னர்; pikcā kōṇṇar. So I thought wonderful; so we have advanced etc. That once in a while, for emergency etc பிக்சா கோர்னர்!. Then only I read the English version. Pizza corner. Therefore, coffee pub and all those things, we hang around till 10, 11p.m. it is revelry, but it is wonderful, but we are becoming mentally weak, that we are not able to spend time with ourselves. And therefore Krishna strongly warns never take to people's company as an addiction or an escapism. And Śankarācārya in his commentary writes a note, but it is OK, if it is the association with satpurūṣaḥ. So sajjana saṃsadi ratiḥ is OK, because they will guide you properly. Any other place, you should be careful. Therefore, जनसंसदि अरतिः janasaṃsadi aratiḥ.

अध्यात्मज्ञाननित्यत्वं तत्त्वज्ञानार्थदर्शनम् ।
एतज्ज्ञानमिति प्रोक्तं अज्ञानं यदतोऽन्यथा ॥ १३.१२ ॥
adhyātmajñānānityatvaṃ tattvajñānārthadarśanam|

Then the next virtue; in the first line in the second word, तत्त्वज्ञानार्थदर्शनम् tattvajñānārthadarśanam. All these virtues or values are prescribed for the sake of Jñāna yōgyatha prāp̥thi. And by gaining the eligibility for knowledge, what do you accomplish at the end. Jñānam itself. And if I have to have a value for Jñāna yōgyatha, then I should have a value for Jñānam. When I will value the examination of GMAT, TOFEL, etc. I value all those examinations when I value benefit or the result of those examinations. I want to join an American university. The more value I have with regard to the end, then I will have the value for the means. So the love of the means, is directly proportional to the love of the end. And therefore, these virtues I will value if I have a value for Jñānam. Then when will I have value for Jñānam. That I will have only if I know the benefit of Jñānam, tattva Jñāna artha; tattva Jñānam, the knowledge of tattvam, the reality; arthaḥ means prayōjanam or phalam. Tattva Jñāna arthaḥ means Jñāna phalam, I should know what will I get out of this knowledge. Otherwise I will wonder why should I study and know. And that is why, of and on, Krishna gives the benefit of this knowledge, while dealing with sthira prajñā lakṣaṇāni, while dealing with para bhaktha lakṣaṇāni, He said what is the benefit of this knowledge.

And what is the main benefit given in the second chapter. ātmanyēva"tmanā tuṣṭaḥ. Latest benefit is I am comfortable with myself, irrespective of external conditions.

Things may be favourable. may not be favourable. I have got the psychological immunity and therefore I am not vulnerable to the mood disorder முட் இல்லை சொல்லறோமோ இல்லயோ?; Dayananda swami says that the one who is given to moods, is called Mūdāḥ. Correct? So for everything I need mood. For coming to the class, there is no mood. So therefore I am not vulnerable external conditions, I am ever balanced. Imagine that jīvan mukthi state. If I should enjoy that emotional immunity; the only injection that gives you the immunity is Jñānam. The more I appreciate this fact, the more I will have value for Jñānam. And the more I have value for Jñānam, the more I will have value for Jñāna yōgyatha. So Jñāna yōgyatha to Jñānam to jīvan mukthiḥ. This route I should understand. Therefore Krishna tells, regularly remind yourselves that Jñānam gives inner freedom; So that I can tell the people: போனால் போகட்டும்; வந்தால் வரட்டும்; யாரை நம்பி நான் புறந்தேன்; போங்டா போங்; (pōṅṅāi pōkaṭṭum; vaṅṅāi varattum; yārai nampi nāṅ purantēṅ; pōṅgaṭā pōṅga). Do not go and tell these things; I have got the inner freedom; The world cannot blackmail me. So if you see that you will value all these virtues.

And then comes the final and most important virtue that is adhyātma Jñāna nithyatvam. So systematic and consistent study of vēdāntic scriptures for a length of time, under the guidance of a competent ācārya. உங்களுக்கு அலுத்துதோ என்னவோ; எனக்கு அலுக்கலை. Systematic, and consistent study of vēdāntic scriptures for a length of time under the guidance of a competent guide is a must. I say it should be systematic and consistent study, because without that, I will get a stray idea here and there.

I have talked about this in the fourth chapter; if you have a lorry load of bricks which is dumped on the ground, you have got only a heap of bricks which will not be of any use at all. On the other hand, if you arrange those bricks one after the other, well cemented together, then out of those bricks, you get a wonderful room in which you can live. So in both conditions bricks are there; one is well arranged and the other is heap. Similarly when you study vēdānta in a class like situation; systematically, step by step, we are collecting ideas and arranging it one after the other. What is karma yōga; what is upāsana; what is Jñānam, Arranged and therefore this knowledge will be like a house, which will protect you. Suppose you read one book of one author in 1975, and another book of another author in 1982, then you hear some stray lectures here and there, somebody talked about Jñānam, somebody talked about bhakthi, somebody talked about japa; you gather ideas, but they all remain in your head, as a heap of ideas without any harmonisation. Therefore if the knowledge should be useful, Krishna tells it should be systematically studied. It is Krishna's advice, not mine. Look at here; Adhyātma Jñānam. Adhyātma meaning dealing with ātma, Jñānam here means enquiry, śravaṇa manana nidhidhyāsana trayam is here called Jñānam, otherwise called vicāra, Otherwise called mimāmsa, and you do not think of this by yourselves. if your intellect speculates what is the truth; you are only going to imagine things; we do not want imaginations; we want scriptural śravaṇa, manana, nidhidhyāsana. In fact the very word śravaṇam means that there must be a guru. Because śravaṇam means hearing. If you hear, somebody must speak. The very word śravaṇam, presupposes the study of scriptures as handled by a competent ācārya. And that is why in the beginning; in the beginning means, i.e. the 8th verse, Krishna talked about ācārya upāsana, which means śāstra and guru go together. Without śāstra, any guru teaches his own philosophy, better avoid it. Because he will be transferring his personal prejudices upon you. And therefore we are not interested in a guru who gives his personal philosophy, Guru is a guru only when he deals through the śāstram. Similarly, śāstram will convey the meaning to you only when it is conveyed through or taught by an ācārya. That is why in Guru sthōthram, guru is called the Sun for the blooming of the lotus, called śāstra. Vēdānta ambuja suryoyaḥ. Śāstra is closed to an ordinary person; like a lotus but śāstram will convey the meaning, open up only in the presence of the vēdānta sūryaḥ, i.e. guru. Therefore ācārya upāsana, and अध्यआत्मज्ञाननित्यत्वम् adhyātmajñānanityatvam stands for śāstra vicāraḥ. And all the other virtues prepare the mind and this listening to the teaching produces the knowledge. One is preparation, another is production of knowledge, both should go hand in hand. Śankarācārya tells elsewhere, it is like pathyam and auṣadam. Pathyam means the discipline to be followed by a patient. So if he has sugar problem, they will say do not eat too much. Pressure problem, avoid salt.

They all come under pathyam. But pathyam alone cannot cure the disease; it should go along with aushadam, medicine. Imagine a patient taking auṣadam without pathyam. Insulin from this side and mysurpak from that side, in kilos, That will not work. Therefore, pathyam provides the condition; auṣadam cures the disease. Śāstric study is the auṣadam and all other virtues is pathyam. If you follow only virtues and do not study the śāstra, it means you are not taking auṣadam at all. Pathyam without aushadam is not pathyam, it is பெத்தியம். paithyam. And therefore, adhyātmajñānānityatvam. Study, study it is very important. Unfortunately śāstric study is not emphasised nowadays. More you study, you know the uniqueness of the benefit. And if you follow all of them, knowledge will definitely take place even if you do not want. And therefore Krishna concludes एतत् ज्ञानम् इति प्रोक्तम् ए एतज्ज्ञानमिति प्रोक्तम्. These 20 or so virtues, including the śāstric study together is called Jñānam.

Etat Jñām iti proktham and Krishna says anything opposite to that is ajñānam. yat athaha anyatha, means the opposite of these 20 virtues. And how do you find the opposite, i.e. simple you take every word, amānitvam, what is the opposite, mānitvam, adambitvam, what is the opposite, dambitvam; ahimsa, i.e. himsa, then kṣāntiḥ, aṣāntiḥ, you add 'a'; the opposite of all these together is called ajñānam, that means those negative virtues will solidify your ignorance. Ignorance will get more and more knotty and more and more difficult to remove. And that alone in the 16th chapter Krishna calls daivi sampath and āsūri sampath.

Continuing.

13. I shall teach you that which is to be known, upon knowing which one attains immortality. It is the supreme Brahman which is beginningless. It is said to be neither an effect nor a cause.

With the previous verse, the topic of Jñānam is over. So how many Krishna has completed three topics. What are they: Kṣetraṁ, kṣētrajña and Jñānam. How many Arjuna wanted to know. 6 of them. Remaining three are there. What are those, Jñēyam; prakṛti and puruṣaḥ.

Of those three topics, now Krishna takes up the topic of jñēyam which is from verse No.13 up to verse No.19. Jñēyam. And I have already told you that the jñēyam is similar to or same as kṣētrajña itself. kṣētrajña itself is called Jñēyam from another angle. Krishna gives the introduction here: Hey Arjuna, यत्तत्प्रवक्ष्यामि yattatpravakṣyāmi, Now I shall talk about that which is to be known by everyone. It is one subject matter every human being has to study and know at one time or the other. Every other subject is an optional one, you can learn, you need not learn it; even without learning it, you can happily survive. In fact you may be happier if you do not know that. There are many people who do not anything about economics, anything about astrophysics, anything about physics perhaps, everybody does not know every science, still they are surviving.

Krishna says that this subject matter, every body has to necessarily know. Why? What will happen if I do not know? Krishna gives the answer. यज्जन्त्वाऽमृतमश्नुते yajjñātvā'mṛtamaśnutē. Because this is the one which solves the fundamental problem of every human being and which every human being is struggling to solve. And what is that fundamental problem? The sense of insecurity. As I have often told, the fear of mortality is there all the time, right from birth itself. Not only for human beings, even for animals that is there. As a child, I was struggling with that fear only, as we grow up, every action of ours is driven by only the sense of insecurity. Therefore whatever you do, saving money, having extra house, having relation, and for many people, children is also a form of investment. So that in future hopefully they will take care of, if the arriving spouse is favourable. So therefore this insecurity or mortality is the problem not of a particular person; it is a universal problem. Whether he is a Hindu, or a Muslim or a Christian, an atheist or theist, man or women, young or old, there is a constant sense of insecurity and it grows more and more as we are growing.

Even the other day, in Hindu, they had put that story. One old woman was praying, He was willing to die for someone else. When actually death comes, he says go to that person! Otherwise he was telling; Oh Lord, take my life and give that to that person who is sick. I am already old and can afford to give up my life. That girl is a young girl. she has to enjoy life; Oh Lord: give my life to that girl. And then death comes in the form of a buffalo or a bull; oh, Lord, that girl is already sick, she can afford to die. So when actually it comes, it is frightening. Therefore, who wants freedom from mortality. If you ask, what will be your answer. Every single person wants freedom from mortality and the fear of it. And if every human being wants every being has to take the medicine and the only medicine is Brahma vith, apnoti param. And therefore Krishna says yat jñātvā, knowing which alone, amṛtamaśnutē, one attains immortality, and freedom from the sense of insecurity.

And therefore, Arjuna, listen to this carefully, and what is that jneyam to be known by all; Krishna says: Param Brahma, that ultimate thing to be known is called Brahman. The word Brahman means the infinite one; sathyam, Jñānam, anantham, Brahma, we saw in Taittiriya. Infinite means that which is free from threefold limitations; one limitation is called space-wise limitation; another limitation is called timewise limitation; another is called attribute-wise limitation. Space-wise limitation is when I am here; unfortunately I cannot be elsewhere; You wish it would have been fine, to be in the house and also be attending the class also; but it is not possible; this is called dēśa pariscēda. Kāla pariscēda means I am limited by time, I have got a date of birth, and date of death also. We only do not know. But we have; and this is called time-wise. Attribute-wise limitation; having certain attributes, if you have a particular attribute, the very presence of one attribute excludes all the other attributes. So if there is particular colour, all other colours are not there; If I am a human being, the very humanness excludes cowness and horseness, all the other ness. That is called attribute-wise limitation. And Brahma means that which is free from all the three limitations; dēśa Kāla vasthu pariscēda shūnyam Brahma. And that is therefore called param Brahma, which is the absolute. And that param Brahma is to be known by all, to cross over mortality.

And I do not know I told you that story; when this Brahmin was crossing the river in a boat, the Brahmin asked do you know vyakaranam, the boat man asked व्याकरण से क्या कर्ना. vyākaraṇa se kya karna, then the Pandit said one fourth of life is gone. Then the Brahmin asked; do you know tarka sāstram. No. So two fourth of life or half is gone. Then do you know mimāmsa śāstra. I know meen and māmsa. Then the Pandit said that three fourth of the life is gone. As they were talking the boat develop leak and the water was gushing him and boatman tried to stop that leak and he was not able to; then he asked Oh Panditji do you know how to swim. I do not know. Then your whole life is gone.

Thus you might have any number of degrees that will not make the life; THE knowledge which can make a difference is this knowledge alone and therefore it is called the absolute knowledge; that Brahman is absolute Brahman and what is its nature. Anandi mat param Brahma.

Now he begins the description of Brahma. Anadi mat; that which does not have aadhi. aadhi means beginning means both spacial and timewise and therefore it is anantham; the limitless one. And na sat tat na asat uchayate. In this context, the word asat means karanam. Any cause is called asat, and the sat in this context means any effect or product or karyam. A cause is called asat because any cause is in potential form; and any thing potential is not available for our utility. Oil in the seed is potentially there; but I cannot use it. Butter in the milk is there; but I cannot use it; therefore any cause is in potential form; therefore, I cannot use it; therefore it is as though non-existent. Therefore the word used is asat; seemingly non-existent, which means potentially existent kāraṇam. And na sat, sat means kāryam; Kāryam is as good as existent, because it is available for our use. And what is Brahma? Krishna says Brahma is neither kāraṇam or Kāryam. Brahma is beyond the realm of cause and effect.

Now it is becoming mind-boggling, because the entire universe you experience is nothing but a flow of cause and effect. Yesterday is the cause for today's condition. Today is the cause for tomorrow's condition. The entire creation I experience is nothing but cause effect flow. And Krishna says Brahma is beyond cause and effect. That means it is beyond time. Because, cause and effect wherever they exist, there Time is there. How do you know. Because the difference between cause and effect is determined by time. Yesterday's cause is today's effect. Yesterday's Idli is today's body. Your blood. Therefore the difference between kārāṇam and kāryam is determined by kāla only. Therefore whatever is beyond kārya kārāṇa, is kālāthītham.

सान्द्रानन्दावबोधात्मकमनुपमितं कालदेशावधिभ्यां
निर्मुक्तं नित्यमुक्तं निगमशतसहस्रेण निर्भास्यमानम् sāndrānandāvabōdhātmakamanupamitaṁ kālādēśāvadhībhīyāṁ nirmuktaṁ nityamuktaṁ nigamaśatasahasrēṇa nirbhāsyamānam

Therefore Brahman has no form, it has no attribute, it has no time. And Swamiji, how will I conceive; better do not conceive and deliver later. Therefore it is not a concept to be conceived. And therefore Krishna is bringing in the essence of the Upaniṣads. From 13th onwards, we get Upaniṣad sāra. Upaniṣad says.

अशब्धम्, अस्पर्शम्, अरूपम् अव्ययम्, तता रसम् नित्य अगन्धवच्चयत् asparśam, aśabdham, arūpam avyayam, tatā rasam nitya agandhavaccayat.

Brahman does not have śabda, sparśa, rūpa, rasa and gandha. So no form, colour, taste or touch and therefore you cannot see it; hear it, smell it, taste it or touch it and you are supposed to know that Brahman. How to know? That Krishna will tell you in the following verses, which we will see in the next class.

Om

From the 13th verse of the 13th chapter, Lord Krishna is introducing the 4th topic of discussion, which is called jñēyam. He has already discussed Kṣetraṁ, kṣētrajña and jñānam and now he has introduced the topic of Jñēyam. The word Jñēyam means that which is to be known by everyone. That which is the ultimate truth of the universe which has necessarily to be known by everyone, because without that knowledge, one cannot attain immortality. And every human being wants to conquer mortality, and therefore every human being should necessarily gain this knowledge.

And what is that ultimate reality to be known by everyone. Krishna names that as Param Brahma. The absolute Brahman is the ultimate reality, the ultimate truth of the universe. And this param Brahma alone has been discussed in all the Upaniṣads and that is why the Upaniṣads are known as Brahma vidya, because they deal with this topic mainly. And therefore having introduced Brahman as the ultimate reality to be known, Krishna wants to give us the essence of this Upaniṣad, in a condensed version in this portion, up to verse No.19. So 13 to 19, we get Upaniṣad sāra or Brahma vidya. We will go into the details of this topic.

सर्वतः श्रुतिमल्लोके सर्वमावृत्य तिष्ठति ॥ १३.१४ ॥

sarvataḥ pāṇipādam tat sarvato'kṣiśirōmukham |

सर्वतोऽक्षिशिरोमुखम् sarvato:'kṣiśirōmukham it has eyes, heads, and mouths everywhere श्रुतिमत् śrutimat it has ears, सर्वतः sarvataḥ everywhere तिष्ठति tiṣṭati it remains आवृत्य सर्वम् āvṛtya sarvam pervading everything लोके lōkē in the world.

14. It has hands and legs everywhere. It has eyes, heads, and mouth everywhere. It has ears everywhere. It remains pervading everything in the world.

In the Upaniṣads, Brahman is revealed as the ultimate substance out of which the whole creation is made up. Therefore Brahman is defined as the basic stuff of the universe; basic essence of the universe; the ultimate content of this universe. And all the sciences are also trying to find out only the ultimate substance, out of which the world is made.

Once upon a time, they were talking about a few elements. 110 or 120, they said the whole universe is permutation combination of these few elements only. Thereafter they want to find out whether there is some fundamental truth or substance out of which the elements themselves are made and they arrived at the molecules, whose combinations are the elements. And thereafter they said, all the molecules are nothing but the combination of atom; and the whole universe is atoms in motion. What type of atom; invisible atoms in motions, creates an experience of a visible universe. Atom is invisible, but when all of them join together, it creates a visible tangible universe. And they thought THAT atom was the fundamental substance. In fact the very word atom means that which cannot be further divided at all. Atom was thought to be the ultimate substance; and thereafter the scientists broke the atom into sub-atomic particles and therefore they said that there is only particles as the ultimate stuff. The particles are invisible but when they join together, create an appearance of a tangible universe. Then the particles also, they tried to divide further, and they said energy, the intangible energy is the ultimate stuff of the universe. Thus they are going deeper and deeper, and their aim is what, to find out, what is the basic, ultimate substance.

And the interesting thing that we see is as you go deeper and deeper, the visible becomes the invisible. The tangible becomes the intangible. The concrete becomes the abstract. Therefore we come to know that the ultimate substance must be intangible formless abstract substance. And what is that final abstract substance, the scientists have not yet arrived at; they are still in the process of enquiry.

Vēdānta has analysed the same subject matter and Vēdānta has arrived at the ultimate substance and Vēdānta calls it Brahman. Brahman is the basic substance of this creation, and the being the ultimate substance, it is going to be abstract, it is going to be intangible; it is going to be invisible; aśabdham, asparśam, arūpam , arasam avyayam. And therefore understanding that Brahman is going to be a relatively tougher prospect.

So we are going to analyse a substance which is not available for seeing, hearing, smelling, touching and therefore this portion is going to be an abstract portion; I am giving you a warning. Therefore it looks like a jumble of words; it appears as though a jumble of words only, because we try to concretely conceive of something, but we are not discussing a concrete tangible thing. But still if you go on dwelling upon this teaching, slowly, the words will begin to make sense but it requires lot of intellectual acclimatisation.

What I mean is, when you come from the outside world, to your house, inside the room, you have come from a brighter spot, and as you enter the house, it appears as if the whole house is dark. You have to wait a minute or two; gradually the eyes get used to that dimmer light of the room; and that is called acclimatisation or preparation of the eyes. Similarly to understand Brahman, it requires certain acclimatisation; therefore, for those students who are beginners, this topic will look like a bunch of words, but do not be disappointed, but slowly if you dwell on, it will make sense.

How should we approach this topic. Normally, we have seen a lot of substances in the world. So when we see a person, you qualify him and say that this is a tall man; and this person is a fat woman; OK, or lean man. I am not disturbing by saying fat woman, slender woman; and a fair person. We use a noun and an adjective. An adjective generally refers to a property like tall, short, fat, fair, round; these are all adjectives and in English, adjectives refer to properties of an object. And generally, the noun, like the tall tree, the fat man, the nouns like tree, man, etc. refer to substance. Adjectives reveal properties, attributes and nouns reveal substances. This is where we have to begin. Adjectives reveal properties and nouns reveal substances; this is one thing we generally experience.

Now there is another experience we have, which also we have to notice. When I say a fat man, a tall tree, a round object, etc.; this is what I experience. Now I will give you another set of words; I say there is a golden bangle. There is a wooden chair; golden bangle when I say, what is adjective and what is noun? Golden bangle, when you say, what is adjective, golden is adjective; and bangle is the noun. And when I say wooden chair, wooden is adjective; chair is noun. Now in this particular case, when I say golden bangle, the adjective golden reveals a substance or a property. The golden when you say, the word golden does not refer to a property, even though the word is an adjective; here in this unique peculiar case, the word golden refers to the very substance of the bangle. Golden refers to the substance gold and not a property. And when I say a wooden chair, the word wooden is an adjective, but still it is not referring to a property at all; the wooden adjective means the substance is nothing but wood.

And therefore in this particular case, adjective reveals a substance and not a property. Whereas when I say a tall person, adjective reveals a property, tallness. but when I say golden bangle, adjective reveals a substance. Therefore rule No.1, I want to convey is that: Adjective can reveal either a property or an adjective can reveal a substance. Both possibilities are there.

Similarly, when I say golden bangle, the word bangle is a noun; the word bangle is a noun; But the beauty, even though the word bangle is a noun, really speaking, it does not reveal a substance at all; because there is no substance called bangle. கரக்ட் தானா பாருகோ: There is no substance called bangle; there is only the substance called gold; bangle is a noun, but still it does not reveal a substance. If bangle is not a substance, then it reveals what? It reveals what? If you analyse, Gold when it is in a particular form or shape, when the gold is in a particular form or shape, that shape alone is called bangle. Similarly when you say golden ring, there is no substance called ring; ring is the name of what? a particular shape. Similarly when you say wooden chair, there is no substance called chair; chair is the name of a particular shape alone, what is the name of the substance; chair is not the name of the substance, name of the substance is what? wood alone. And therefore, I find, bangle is a form; chain is a form, ring is a form. So even though, bangle etc. are nouns; these are peculiar nouns, which are revealing only a form which is a property. Therefore, golden bangle when you say, the adjective is revealing what? Substance, noun is revealing what? A property. Tall tree, when you say, adjective is revealing property. Tree the noun is revealing the substance. So we have two examples, in example No.1, tall tree; adjective reveals property; Noun reveals substance. When I say golden bangle, adjective reveals the substance; the word bangle reveals not a substance but a particular form. That is why when form is changed, bangle is gone. When form is changed, bangle is gone. Therefore the word bangle refers to the property.

And therefore what Vēdānta says is adjectives can reveal either a property of a substance. Similarly, nouns can reveal either a property or a substance. Should I remind you of the four examples.

Adjective revealing property. What is the example. Tall.

Adjective revealing the substance. What is the example; golden, wooden;

What is the example for noun revealing the substance; tree;

What is the example for noun revealing the property; bangle.

So now we have come to these four points. Now having come to this, Vēdānta tells all these!, 2000-3000 or several thousand years before. They have analysed all these things.

Now Vēdānta comes to this world. All this is only example. Now only we are coming to the original. When I experience a world, I say here is a book, and here is a fan; and there is a wall; there is a man; there is a woman. So when I experience the world, I refer to everyone as there is a man; there is a woman, there is a table, there is a chair. What is common to all of them, It is, It is, It is, and the verb "IS" refers to the existence of the world. When I say there is a clock, it means clock is existent. When I say there is a planet, the planet is existent. Therefore, every object that I experience is what type of object; existent tree, existent man, existent woman. Whatever I experience is, existent, existent, existent. If anything is non-existent, then I will not experience. Do you experience my horn. If I say, some of you may say: I see you "halo"; that is a controversy statement; that is why I did not ask a 'halo'. Do you see a horn on my head. You do not. Why you don't. Because it is non-existent. Whereas you see my head, because it is existent. Therefore everything that you experience in the world is existent object. Everything is existent. In Sanskrit they say: San ghataḥ; san phata; sat pātram; san puruṣaḥ; san or sat means, existent-object.

Now when I say an existent tree, an existent man, an existent woman, etc. what is the noun in this and what is the adjective in this. Vēdānta asks the question. All the philosophers analyse this. Tarka śāstra and all, they are experts in these topics. What is the noun here; and what is the adjective. When I say existent-man, existent-woman, table, chair, sun, moon, stars, etc. the word existent is adjective; and man, woman, table, chair, sun, moon, etc. are nouns. So the word existent is adjective and every object is a noun.

Now Vēdānta asks the question. If the word existent is a adjective, and if the word man, woman, sun, moon, etc. are noun, tell me what type of adjective it is and what type of noun it is. And why this question, because previously we saw, an adjective can either reveal a property or an adjective can reveal a substance. Example, adjective revealing substance is golden. Adjective revealing property is tall or short; So the word 'existent' is an adjective, does it reveal the property of the world or does it reveal the substance out of which the world is made. When you say existent word, the 'existent adjective', does it reveal a existence as a property or attribute of the object or does it reveal the very substance; like what example, the word golden reveals the very substance out of which the bangle is made.

Generally, until we come to Vēdānta, our general conclusion is world is the substance and the word existent is an attribute or property; this will be our general assumption. And Vēdānta says that is the handiwork of māya. Māya makes you commit a very big blunder. And what is the blunder, which is forced by Māya. It makes me think that the existent adjective is revealing an attribute and the world is a substance we think; but Vēdānta says that is not correct; If that that is not correct, what should be correct? What is left out? If the word existent adjective is not revealing an attribute, according to Vēdānta, the word 'existent' reveals what? the basic substance just as the word golden reveals the substance. Similarly, the word ;existent; reveals a substance, the substance is called existence. According to Vēdānta, it is called sat Brahma. Chandoyga Upaniṣad begins the teaching with this topic. Effortlessly it is talking, as if it is talking to an LKG student.

तदेव सौम्य इदम् अग्र असित्, एकम् एव अद्वितीयम् tadēva saumya idam agra asit, ēkam ēva advitīyam. According to Upaniṣad, the basic substance is existence and existence is not an attribute of an object, but it is the fundamental absolute substance. And being the fundamental absolute substance, it is invisible, it is intangible; it is the abstract principle.

So this is one part; second partக்கு போறோமா; shall we go. Are you surviving?

So the word existent reveals the substance called existence. If the word existent adjective revealing the substance, then the word World, existent world we say, the world noun, is revealing what? We have confusion. If adjective here is revealing the substance, according to Vēdānta, all the nouns are revealing not a substance at all; every noun is a property. Just as bangle is the name of a property; what property, a particular shape, what is the substance; bangle is not substance; chain is not substance, ring is not substance; substance is gold only. The property alone keeps on changing. Dayanand swami says, really you should be naming bangle gold, ringly-gold, chainly-gold, because they are all forms; gold alone is the substance; that must be used as a noun; நம்ம என்ன பண்ணிட்டோம். நெளனை அஜக்டிவாய் பண்ணிட்டோம்; what we have done, we have made the noun into an adjective.

And therefore according to Vēdānta, the whole world is not a substance at all. Just as chair is not a substance, the desk is not a substance, when I am touching the desk, I am not touching the desk at all, but I am touching what? the wood alone. There is no substance called desk; no substance called table; no substance called chair. Therefore Vēdānta says world is nāma rupātmakam. Traiamva: nāma rāpam karma jagat. Brihadārṇyaka, says the whole world is different names, different forms and different functions; there is no substance called world. Bangle is a name, given to a particular form, to serve a particular function. If it is a bangle name and form, what is the function; decorating the hand; If it is chain name and function, what is its function, decorating the neck, if it is a ring name and form, the function is decorating the finger; there is no substance called bangle, chain, ring, etc. and the substance is gold and how many golds are there; gold is ekam.

Applying this principle, Vēdānta says existence is the only basic substance, and everything else is name, form and functions. So what you are experiencing when you are experiencing a bangle, you are experiencing gold alone, which is the only substance. When you are experiencing the ring, you are experiencing what, the gold alone, the fundamental substance. Similarly, when you are experiencing the world, you are experiencing only one fundamental substance which is inherent in all of them. What is that substance; IS, IS, IS, IS. Śankarācārya tells all these which I have struggled for 35 minutes, in just one line, यस्यैव स्फुरणं सदात्मकमसत्कल्पार्थकं भासते yasyaiva sphuraṇam sadātmakamasatkalpārthakam bhāsatē. When you are experiencing different ornaments, you are experiencing the fundamental substance, the gold; Similarly when you are experiencing the different object, you are experiencing the basic substance, எண்ணா? what? existence. OK.

Now can we go to the next stage; It is not finished. That means what? Wherever I see any object, I am experiencing the basic substance, what is that: existence and How I do prove it; my language itself proves, there is a wall, there is a chair, there is a pen, existence I am experiencing. What is that existent, Brahman. So where do I experience Brahman, Brahman where do you see? Everywhere. Just as in and through the bangle, chain, ring, etc., the basic substance golden, golden, golden, is inherent; Similarly, existent, existent, existent, I experience everywhere.

But in this experience, I have a small difficulty. What is that difficulty? Even though I am experiencing the basic substance, what is that? existence, I am experiencing the existence, along with different along with different names and forms; tree name and form; man name and form; chair name and form; existence is never experienced in pure form, but it is experienced along with some name and form; man is, when you say, Is_ness is associated with man name and form; clock is, when you say, Is_ness is associated with clock name and form; Therefore through my sense organs, I experience nāma rūpa sahita sat. புரியறதோ பாருங்கா. See whether you are understanding. Through my sense organs I am experiencing, existence along with nāma and rūpa; because the sense organs are capable of revealing only the nāma rūpa sahita sat.

Now the question is, how can I experience the pure existence? After filtering out, after removing all the nāma rūpa. Now, when you remove all the nāma rūpas, ie., names and forms, what should be left behind. Pure existence must be left behind; if I remove all nāma rūpa; but the problem is, if I remove all the nāma and rūpa, the sense organs can never experience pure existence. Because sense organs are meant to experience existence with either with sabda, or with sparśa, rūpa, rasa or gandha; கலப்படமான existenceயை தான், the sense organs can reveal only the mixed existence; not the pure existence.

Then you come to pure existence; suppose you remove all the names and form; how do you do that? close all your sense organs; you close your eyes; all forms and colours are gone; close your ears; all the sound gone; close your nose, you will be all-out. go to a place where you do not smell; imagine you close all your sense organs; all the nāma rūpas are gone; What should be left behind, the basic substance without name and form, what should be the basic substance; the pure existence.

Now the question is how can I experience that pure existence? Can I open the eyes and see? If you open the eyes, it will never be the pure existence. It will be associated with form is; form will come; if you open the ears, sound is mixed.

So the pure existence, how do you experience. Chāndōgya 6th chapter, this is the most well known section of the entire Upaniṣadic literature, because it begins with pure existence and the student is now eager to know how to experience the pure existence. The teacher says: Oh Student, you can never experience the pure existence, because it is never an object of experience. Then the student raises his eyebrows; if I can never objectify the pure existence, how do I know it is there? You may be bluffing, that your existence is there? How do you know? Then the teacher gives the well known statement of the Upaniṣads. Aithadatmaya idagum sarvam dhruvam; tat satyam; sa ātma, tat tvam athi svetaketu;

The pure existence is never an objectifiable substance; it is nothing but YOU the witnessing consciousness. Sat, the ultimate substance, you can never see because the ultimate substance is YOU the seer principle. Therefore to start in sat and to end in chit, the consciousness. Vēdānta ends there. Therefore it says: Tat tvam asi. Therefore what is pure existence. It is nothing but pure consciousness and what is pure consciousness; I am. Aham Brahma asmi. And what is my nature, existence, Consciousness, sat, chit, ātma eva Brahma asmi. This is the essence of Vēdānta.

என்னவாவது பரியறமாதிரி இருக்கோ? Are you understanding anything. You have to go on dwelling. I am the ultimate substance and I am sat rūpaḥ; and I am cid rūpaḥ; and the whole world is nāma and rūpa resting upon me.

मय्येव सकलं जातं मयि सर्वं प्रतिष्ठितम् ।

मयि सर्वं लयं याति तद्ब्रह्मादव्यमस्म्यहम् ॥ Kaivalya I.19 ॥

mayyēva sakalaṁ jātaṁ mayi sarvaṁ pratiṣṭitam |

mayi sarvaṁ layaṁ yāti tadbrahmādvyaṁasmayaham || Kaivalya I.19 ||

When this is said, it will be very very difficult to swallow. And that is why scientists are not able to find because they are looking for the substance; they are not going to come across the substance, why. Why they are not able to come across the substance, because the searcher the searched for object. தேடி தேடி யெனோ ஓடுகின்றார்; tēṭi tēṭi yeṅō oṭukinrār; I am the substance. It is extremely difficult to swallow;

And to help us accept this truth; the Upaniṣad gives a well known example, and that example is our dream experience. When I am dreaming, and seeing varieties of objects, giving me happiness, giving me sorrow giving me fear, in fact, many people, special prayers, before going to bed. so that so would not have frightening dreams. That means what? Dream is capable of terribly frightening you. And imagine you are in dream and you are seeing terrible things and in the dream a dream guru comes and tells: you do not be frightened of all these things, you are the essence of this dream world, the dream has come out of you, the dream is resting on you, on waking up the dream will resolve, if he says, in the dream it is unbelievable. It is so realistic. But on waking up, he knows there is no dream river, dream man, dream object; none of them exist separate from me-the-waker. Vēdānta tells that this world is also another dream channel. Different channel. Channel D or something you can name. Now it is unbelievable; it is very difficult to accept that I am the substance, but the ultimate truth is I (not this body, not this body, because body is also part of this world only), I, the witness, sakshi chaitanyam. Dream it is unbelievable I am the substance of the dream world; Similarly, during the time of ignorance, it is unbelievable, it is difficult to accept that I am the substance; but according to Vēdānta, I am the salt of the earth. And that I is Brahman, that Brahman is existent and that existent Brahman alone appears as the world with different nāma rūpa. And when Brahman, the existence, the only substance, appears with different nāma rūpa, it is called Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ. Viśva rūpa Īśvaraḥ யாருக்கு பேரு; whose name it is. It is the name of Brahman, the existence which is along with all the names and forms. Therefore, सहस्रशीर्षा पुरुषः सहस्राक्षः सहस्रपात् sahasraśīrṣā puruṣaḥ sahasrākṣaḥ sahasrapāt;

அந்த ஒரே substance Brahman தான்; நிறய காலோட, நீயாகவும்; நானாகவும்; எல்லாமாகவும் தோன்றது. the one Brahman alone, has become you, me, that and this, etc. This is the teaching here.

Now with this background, let us try to understand the verses. It begins with the sat and ends with the cit. This is the essence of Vēdānta. Krishna says tat, TAT means that means that Brahman, the existence principle, to remember that the Existence is a noun, substance and not a property, we write with capital E, you know it is not a property, it is a substance itself. What is the example, not tall, but golden, the word golden, golden is an adjective but it reveals a substance. Similarly Existence is the fundamental substance and that existence सर्वतः पणिपादं Sarvadaḥ pāṇi pādām, it pervades everywhere. Just as God is inherent in all ornaments, existence pervades everything. Imagine anything or just start existence is there; what is the proof, you say there is a star. Imagine an object, which does not have existence. You can never imagine an object which does not have an existence, if an object does not have existence, it will be a non-existent object. And therefore, existence is everywhere. Between the pillar and the mike, in between you may say nothing exists; there is vacuum only, I ask you the question, What do you say, there is vacuum. What is there in that place. Existence. You cannot think of anything without existence. Therefore Sarvadaḥ pāṇi pādām. Sad Brahman has got hands and legs everywhere,

सर्वतोऽक्षिशिरोमुखम् sarvato:'kṣiśiromukham; that sat Brahman alone has got akṣi, means eye, śira, the head, mukham, the face or mouth; there is only virāt Īśvaraḥ who has all these limbs and सर्वतः श्रुतिमल्लोके sarvataḥ śrutimallōkē; it is everywhere with śṛuti; śṛuti here it means ears. It pervades everywhere, with countless ears and lokhe, in this universe, सर्वमावृत्य तिष्ठति sarvamāvṛtya tiṣṭhati. It remains pervading surrounding everything. sarvamāvṛtya tiṣṭhati. Tat sat Brahma.

Continuing.

15. It is manifest through the functions of all organs. (Yet) it is free from all organs. It sustains everything. Yet it is unattached. It is the experiencer of the gunas. Yet it is free from gunas.

All the sense organs are revealing that Brahman all the time; for example, the eyes can reveal only colours; they cannot reveal sound; ears reveal only sound; and when I experience sound, I do not experience colours; When I experience colours, I do not experience smell; Therefore śabda, sparśa, etc. are mutually exclusive; śabda comes sparśa is not there, rūpam comes, sparśa is not there; but all the sense organs experience one thing commonly. What is that sound IS: when you hear, sound IS: Similarly, when you use the eye, the form IS: therefore all sensory operations, uniformly reveal that Brahman alone, all sensory operations uniformly reveal that Brahman alone, in the form of śabdaḥ san, sparśa san, rūpam sat, etc.

But the problem is you are attracted by nāma rūpa, and you lose sight of what; you lose sight of the inherent existence in all of them. Therefore, what should you do to experience Brahman. What should you do to experience Brahman. Krishna says, you are experiencing Brahman alone every moment. When you say, śabda IS, sparśa IS, rūpam IS. But because of काल्पलम्; mixture, because of mixing up of nāma and rūpa, we are absorbed in nāma rūpa and lose sight of this fundamental truth and therefore we require a sensitive and subtle intellect to appreciate that.

Arjuna, in this 13th chapter, had asked Krishna for the clarification of six technical words used in Vēdānta: Kṣetraṁ, kṣētrajña, Jñānam, Jñēyam, Prakṛti and Puruṣaḥ. And Lord Krishna is explaining one by one. Of these six terms, three have already been explained and they are Kṣetraṁ, kṣētrajña and jñānam. And now Krishna has entered the fourth topic and that is of Jñēyam and the word Jñēyam in this context means the param brahma, the ultimate reality; and it is known by the word Jñēyam because according to Vēdānta that is the ultimate truth to be known by all; knowing which one will get necessarily liberated. And therefore Brahman is also known as Jñēyam here. And the word vijneyaha is used, in the Māndukya Upaniṣad, sa ātma sa vijñēyaḥ. And this Brahman is explained by Krishna from verse No.13 onwards, which goes up to the verse no.19, of which we are seeing the 15th verse and in these verses, Krishna is primarily revealing Brahman as pure existence, which is one of the subtlest concepts of Vēdānta. Two important words are existence and consciousness. Two most subtle topics and these two words have totally different meaning from what we generally think of. That is why Brahman is called sat cit rūpaḥ or satyam jñānam etc.

This word existence I was explaining in the last class. According to Vēdānta, existence is the unique, the most unique thing. And all the principles that we talked about for consciousness, we can extend to the existence also. With regard to consciousness, we had seen certain fundamental principles. I do not know whether you remember. I had said consciousness is not a part, a product or property of matter. Consciousness is an independent entity, which pervades and enlivens matter. Consciousness goes beyond the dimensions of matter or the body. Then I said consciousness survives even when the body is destroyed. And fifthly and finally I said that the surviving consciousness is not recognisable, not because it is not there, but because there is no body-medium for manifesting it. Just as if you do not see light in this point, not because light is absent here; but it is because there is no manifesting medium. The moment I keep the hand here, the light which was not manifest before becomes manifest through the hand. Therefore hand is not producer of light, but hand is the medium which manifests the light. Similarly, the surviving consciousness cannot be recognised because the manifesting medium is not there. All these five principles regarding the consciousness must be extended to the existence principle also. Existence with capital E, because according to Vēdānta, existence is the same as consciousness. Sat eva chit, cid eva sat. And therefore all the five principles applicable to consciousness will have to extend to existence also. What are the five principles? If we enumerate the principles, assimilation will take lot of time.

Principle No.1. Existence is not part, product or property of the body or any object. What is existence? Vēdānta says existence is not a part, product or property of any body.

Then secondly, what is the second principle, existence is an independent entity. According to Vēdānta, existence is the ultimate substance independent entity, which pervades the body, and makes the body existent. Existence pervades the body, and makes the body existent.

And what is the third principle. This existence, which pervades the body extends beyond the periphery or the dimensions of the body; just as the light that falls on my body is not on my body alone, the light extends beyond my body; similarly, existence is not limited by the boundaries of the body.

Then what is the fourth principle. This existence survives even after the death of the body. Just as the light that falls on the body will survive even if remove my hand. But no reflecting medium. That is why in space travel, when they go beyond our atmosphere, you will have eternal darkness. There is no day night division at all. We are able to have day upon the earth because the earth has an atmosphere which is capable of reflecting the sunlight; that is why blue canopy we are seeing. What is the blue canopy is nothing but sunlight blue-colour scattered by dust particle. That is நீல வானம். nīla vāṇam. It is dust particle, scating the blue colour of the sunlight. You go beyond the atmosphere where the dust particle is not there to reflect, what will you experience is eternal darkness. Even when you see the Sun, between the Sun and you in space you in space travel, there is no nothing, no atmosphere, அப்போ எப்படி இருக்கும்; இருட்டாய் இருக்கும்; only darkness. So if someone asks there is there sunlight, what reply one should give; it is but not recognisable. அது மாதிரிதான் existence. Like that is existence. So Vēdānta says the existence survives even after the fall of the body.

And what is the fifth and final point is that the surviving existence is not recognisable because of the absence of a manifesting, a reflecting medium. So wherever reflecting media are there, you will feel existence. Wherever reflecting media are not there; there will be existence, but you would not recognise and that existence is the consciousness. That existence consciousness is Brahman and that Brahman Arjuna are you. Tat Tvam Asi.

So you have to travel a lot. First you have to conceive a pure existence. Then appreciate it as pure consciousness. Then you should claim that the pure existence consciousness is I myself. This is tattvamasi. It is not a easy topic. And therefore Krishna adopts a method which is used in Vēdānta. What is the method? I want to show you or teach you what is the light. But I am not able to show you the pure light, because light without medium cannot be demonstrated. So what I should I do. I put my hand here. What do I want to teach. Not hand. I want to teach the light. Therefore I introduce my hand and ask, what do you see. You will say only hand; முன்னாலெ அப்படிதான் சொல்லுவேள்; first you will say like that only. Then I have to tell you that that it is not the hand alone, there is something other than the hand, and because of that alone you are able to see the hand, etc. if I say for an half hour, you will say that there are two things; what are the two things; hand and the light pervading. Thereafterwards I have to tell you please focus your attention on the light and forget the hand; So I introduce the hand, through the hand introduce the light, and thereafter quietly withdraw the hand and then I tell you that in that place, where the hand was there continues the formless light principle and what is that formless light principle; it is that because of which the hand is recognised. So introduce the hand, introduce the light; remove the hand and reveal the pure light. This method of teaching is adyaropa-apavada nyaya. Introducing the hand is called adyaropa and after revealing the light, removal the hand is called apavāda. In fact this we do all the time. Suppose I ask you, please get me some water, and then you went and brought me a cup of water; and I get angry with you as guru; I have a privilege to get angry. Therefore I tell: What did I ask? Water; I never asked you to bring the cup. Why did you bring the cup? Then what will the Shisya think. I thought Guru is sane. He seems to have some problem. How can I bring water alone; water requires a container to communicate/transfer. And therefore, for the sake of communication/transaction/transference, we keep the container; so that shishya brings water with the container, I also take the water with the container, then when I drink what I do, the śiṣya knows, the guru knows, the cup is only used for transferring the water, I take the water part and leave the container. Similarly, pure existence can never be understood. So you introduce an object and appreciate object plus existence and having gathered the knowledge of existence What do you, remove the container and container is the object, nāma rūpa. Mike IS; Minus mike is, IS. Table IS. Minus table is what: IS. Therefore, understand existence with the world, adyārōpa and then retaining the existence, remove/dismiss the world, it is called apavādha. And this method Lord Krishna is using here; sarvēndriyaguṇābhāsaṃ sarvēndriyavivarjitam. This existence is all the time appreciated by you through all the sense organs. Sarva indriya guṇāḥ, means what, operation or usage or application. So sarva indriya guṇāḥ; vyāpāraḥ, application, usage; ābhāsaḥ means manifest. The existence is manifest is recognised through every sensory operation. Just as light is recognised; when I see the clip, do I recognise the light or not; It is not pure clip, clip plus what is there; light is there.

When I look the clock, what I do I experience, clock plus light. I look at the wall. Wall plus light. In and through every perception, light is recognised. Similarly in and through every sensory operation, existence is recognised. In and through every sensory perception. How do you recognise? When you use the ears, you say there is a sound; how do we say; There is a sound; that Is what. Existence. When you use your eyes, you say that there IS a colour or form. Sound is gone; colour has come; but what is common to both; There IS, there IS. Similarly you use your nostrils, smell IS; the śabdaḥ asthi, sparśaḥ asthi, rūpam asthi, rasaḥ asthi; that asthi is existence. And therefore Krishna says that ābhāsaḥ means manifest; what is manifest; existence Brahman through all the sensory operation.

At the same time, sarvēndriyavivarjitam. The existence or Brahman is free from all the sense organs or objects. At the same time, the Brahman or existence is free from them, that means that they are not the intrinsic nature of Brahman. Light is illumining the hand alright; because of the hand, light is visible alright. But you know that the hand is not an intrinsic part of the light. Light is not the intrinsic part of the hand; hand is not intrinsic part of light also; if hand is intrinsic part of light, what will happen; wherever light is there, there will be hand. Wherever you see Congress. Thus you appreciate existence through the mike, but mike is not intrinsic part of Brahman. Thus you appreciate existence through the world but the world itself is not an intrinsic part of Brahman. Therefore Brahman is world free sarvēndriyavivarjitam. Free from all the sense organs.

At the same time, असक्तम् asaktam. Brahman is free from all the objects of the world that means those objects are not innate part of Brahman. Asaktam means like ākāśa. ākāśa supports everything but nothing is an intrinsic part of ākāśa. So sarvabhṛt, askatham, sarvabhṛt is adhyārōpa, askatham is apavāda. sarvēndriyaguṇābhāsaḥ is adhyārōpa, sarvēndriyavivarjitam is apavāda. Everytime you take with the glass, it is adhyārōpa, and when you leave the glass after drinking the water, it is apavāda.

Then निर्गुणं गुणभोक्तृ च nirguṇaṁ guṇabhōkṭṛ ca. Guṇabhōkṭṛ means it is associated with all the properties; all the properties it is associated with; How do you know; because you say every property IS. That IS is represents association. Green colour IS. ISness is associated with the property. Therefore guṇabhōkṭṛat the same time nirguṇaṁ. The properties are not the intrinsic nature of Brahman. So the nearest example you can have is the screen and the movie. All the movie objects are associated with the screen, at the same time, screen is free from all those movie objects. If it is a movie Towering Inferno; the fire in the movie is associated with the screen, but the screen is not affected by the fire; that is why at the end of the movie, screen is still present; as far as screen is concerned, there is no fire; and suppose you see the movie of Titanic; the ship sinking; throughout the movie, water you have seen on the screen; and at the end of every show, do you have a dryer to dry the screen which is wet before the next show. No, the wettest movie will not make the screen wet; the dry screen continues to be dryest, even when you have water. Similarly, Brahman accommodates all, but from Brahman's standpoint, they are not there intrinsically. So nirguṇaṁ. That is Brahman is said to be nirguṇaṁ.

सूक्ष्मत्वात्तदविज्ञेयं दूरस्थं चान्तिके च तत् ॥ १३.१६ ॥

bahirantaśca bhūtānāmacaramṇ caramēva ca |

sūkṣmatvāttadavijñēyaṁ dūrasthaṁ cāntikē ca tat || 13.16 ||

बहिः bahiḥ it is outside च अन्तः ca antaḥ and inside भूतानाम् bhūtānām living beings अचरम् acaram it is unmoving एव च चरम् eva ca caram and moving, तद् दूरस्थं च tad dūrasthaṁ ca it is far च अन्तिके ca antike and near सूक्ष्मत्वात् sūkṣmatvāt being subtle तद् अविज्ञेयम् tad avijñeyam it is unknowable.

16. It is outside and inside living beings, It is unmoving and moving. It is far and near. Being subtle, it is unknowable.

So the existence consciousness Brahman is not only in the Body, but it is outside also. It is both within and without. Remember the example, light is upon the hand also; light is beyond the hand also. Then the question will come; how come I see the light only on the hand; what answer will you say. That is because of reflecting medium; upon the hand is light is manifest light; in Sanskrit, it is vyaktha prakāśa, beyond the hand, the light exists, but in what form; in unmanifest form; In Sanskrit, Avyaktha prakāśa. Wherever people are sitting, it is vyaktha prakāśa. In this fan in vyatha prakāśam, in that fan, vyaktha prakāśam; in between the two fans, it is avyaktha prakāśa. I am talking about the light, the prakāśa is, but in what form; unmanifest, but if you put any object in between it will become vyaktham.

Similarly, the Upaniṣad says Consciousness is in this body; consciousness is in the other body. Between the two bodies also, consciousness IS. Similarly existence is also here, there, in between also exist. In fact, even when you say, nothing is, there also what we say; Nothing IS; there also you are talking about Is. You can never think of the absence of existence anywhere. Even when you talk about total blankness, what will you say, there is blankness; there also IS.

Therefore, बहिरन्तश्च bahirantaśca, bahi means outside the body, anthah means inside. And because this concept is very very subtle only, instead of using the word sat, chit, etc. we use the word Rāma, Krishna, Nārāyana etc. अन्तर् बहिश्च तत् सर्वं व्याप्य नारायण स्थिता antar bahiśca tat sarvaṁ vyāpya nārāyaṇa stithā. There we can conceive and appreciate because there is form. We do not question ourselves, if Nārāyana is with saṅka, cakra, etc. what do you mean by what is inside and outside. Or is he sitting at every place with saṅka and cakra? If you think you will have problem. If Nārāyana has to be both inside and outside, he has to be formless existence alone. You can never think of an all-Pervading Nārāyana unless you can think of pure existence. And therefore bahirantaśca bhūtānām. bhūtāni means all living beings.

And अचरं चरमेव च acaram̐ caramēva ca. It is moving and it is non-moving. See it is confusion over confusion. What a சோதனயோ? trial you say. If anybody has come today, and that too for the first time in this Gītā class, I am sure from the next Sunday, you cannot see him.!!

Gītā has got a few tough portions and one such tough portion is thus. So it is moving and it is non-moving. How to understand. If it is moving, it cannot be non-moving. Both are diagonally opposite. How do you say it is both. The answer is: It is really non-moving; but it is seemingly moving when the medium moves. It is really non-moving; but it is seemingly moving; when the medium moves; What is medium;

it is not the 'medium' which talks and tells about your forefathers; it is the medium which manifests. Let us take the example itself. The all-pervading light does not move at all. Light is all over the hall. It does not move. It cannot move also. But what happens. When I keep the hand here, you are able to see the light here and imagine I am moving the hand; the visible light which was at this point now, the visible light has come to this point now. Again I move to another place, the visible light has moved to that point. As the medium, the reflecting medium moves, it appears as though the light is also moving. There is an aberration; there is a seeming feeling of movement, exactly like when we are coming to Madras, after vacation; Let us assume that we had gone out for vacation or some of you have gone or some of you have decided to do justice to 44 degree centigrade therefore you are here, suppose you go and when you come back, by train or any other medium, what do you say: மதூராஸ் வந்தாச்சு; Madras has come. You are travelling by train; You have crossed Bassein Bridge, as the train was halted; there you were irritated; and when the Madras station comes, you jump to the platform and say at last Madras has come. Does Madras come and go. Does not come. The arrival of the train, the movement of the train is falsely transferred to the place Madras. The movement of the earth is transferred to the Sun. Even in the newspaper you see, Sunrise 6.15, sunset 6.45, etc. You know the Sun never rises or sets. It is stationary. What is happening? The attribute of one thing is transferred to the other. Similarly what do we do; the movement of the hand is falsely transferred to the light and therefore the light appears to be moving. You would have seen the Lighthouse also. I thought that there are three lights; powerful lights are kept; spot light or something; we see three beams moving, rotating. I thought that there are there 3 lights that is moving. And therefore I read in a book, I think that book is reliable only. They say: three lights are not there; there is only light. And not only that, that one light does not move also. So there is one non-moving light; but what is my experience. Ēkam is becoming anēkam; acalam is becoming calam. So I read that; later I tried to go and see also. Nowadays they do not permit because of LTTE problem. So what exactly is this. There is only one motionless powerful light in the middle and there is a device around the light; and that device has got a wooden or some other fake thing which has got three holes; lights are not three; but there are three holes or slit and that device is moving.

And therefore what do we do; the motion and the number belonging to the device we falsely transfer to the light. All these topics are very elaborately discussed in Vēdānta. This is called dharma adhyāsa. Property of one transferred to other. When we feel gloomy, we say today was a gloomy day. Day is the same only. Something is bad with me I say the day is gloomy. Black day, etc. Day is neither black, nor white nor gloomy. Whatever I feel, I transfer and ascribe it to the day. Similarly the Upaniṣads say that the body travels; the mind travels, the jīvarāśis travel; but the consciousness, the Existence does not travel. But it seems to travel along with the medium. Therefore acaram, really motionless, caram; but seemingly moving; because of the transference of the property.

And दूरस्थं चान्तिके च तत् dūrasthaṃ cāntikē ca tat. second line, last portion. That Brahman is far away. dūrasthaṃ means far away. Then we will decide; we have to start because it is far away and that too Vaikuntha, so much distance is there; And not only they say it is far away, they say, if you keep two steps forward, Bhagavān will keep four steps. all these they tell when they talk about Bhakthi and we also enjoy. Five feet we take and Karuṇamūrthy takes ten feet and tears roll down our eyes on the compassion of the Lord, etc. It is all OK, as long as you do not use your Buddhi. If Bhagavān has to come near me by travelling, that Bhagavān cannot be all pervading. Daily we would be saying also Ananthāya Nāma; Ananthāya Nāma, etc. In one place, one direction, we say that Bhagavān is all pervading; and at the same time, we thoughtlessly say that Bhagavān will keep 10 steps when you keep two steps.

Therefore dūrasthaṃ, we have a wrong concept that Bhagavān is far away and therefore Krishna says that āntikē ca tat. When you say Bhagavān is far away. How should you understand. Whenever anyone says that Bhagavān is in Vaikuntha, what should you do: you add another word, Bhagavān is in vaikuntha also. Bhagavān is in Kailsa, you add in Kailsam also. That also means what: he is in vaikuntha also, kailasam also, bhulokha also, Adayar also, Vidya Mandir also, the lecture hall also; and he is also in the mat in which I am sitting; which means that He is in your heart also. So dūrasthaṃ cāntikē ca tat. Brahman is far and near; in short Brahman is everywhere.

Śankarācārya gives another interpretation. For a wise person, Brahman is nearest, because he knows that Brahman is not away from me. For an ignorant person, Brahman is far away; because he continues his search; going on and on and on. So for an ignorant person, it is far away. For a wise person, Brahman is nearest, nearest is not the word; He is one with me.

Then comes the final question. If Brahman is everywhere; how come I do not recognise that Brahman. If it is everywhere, I how I do not recognise that Brahman; for which Krishna answers: Sukṣmatvāt; Even though Brahman is everywhere it is of the subtlest nature, which means that it is free from attributes; attributes alone help me recognise things. When an object produces a sound, I can recognise through the ears; If the object has got a touch, I can recognise through the skin. If it has got form or colour, I can recognise through the eyes. Attribute alone helps me recognise.

And Brahman is sukṣmam; means what, without attributes. and therefore avijneyam, extremely difficult to comprehend. Lesser the attributes, more incomprehensible a thing becomes. More the attributes, the easier to understand. And that is why when you take the pañca bhūtāni; ākāśa, vāyu, agni, jalam, prithvi, you will find that prithivi, the earth is the grossest thing you can recognise, because it can be recognised through śabda, sparśa, rūpa, rasa and gandha. All the five are there; When you come to water, it has got only four attributes; śabda, sparśa, rūpa, rasa. Water does not have smell. Do not tell, Swamiji tell our corporation water is the smelliest thing. When I say water, I mean pure water. And whatever smell you get in the water, does not belong to it, but to whatever is contaminating it. But water is smell_less. Only four attributes; therefore it can be recognised only through four sense organs.

Agni; three attributes; śabda, sparśa, rūpa. Agni does not have taste. If you have doubt, taste it. You do not have to taste Agni; taste only over hot coffee. You cannot taste anything for an hour later. Agni has got three elements and three attributes can be recognised through the sense organs.

Vāyu has become still subtler. It has got only śabda and sparśa. That is sound and touch; no form. If you want to teach what is air to a child, you will have a tough time.

And when you come to ākāśa, it does not rūpa, rasa, gandha, all these things; ākāśa is supposed to have only śabda, means the echoing capacity. And that is why ākāśa has only one property and therefore it is very difficult understand.

Even now science does not know what is space. They are coming up with various theories, sometimes they had the theory of ether, sometimes that it is emptyness, now they say it is a positive thing; particle just come out of space, that means it is not a empty space. Space is a positive matter. Einstein says: கண்ணுக்கு தெரியலை; அதிலேயும் curvature ஆம்; with curvature and elastic அது வேற; space is a curved elastic matter. We are not able to conceive of it at all. Because the lesser the properties, the subtle the thing, and we say Brahman is subtler than even ākāśa. Therefore comprehending Brahman is going to be the toughest job.

And therefore Krishna says, if you do not understand, it is not your mistake, it is the mistake of Brahman. Why should Brahman came like that? Can't He have come and jumped in front of us. The problem is with Brahman.! Sukshmatvat tat avijneyam. Difficult to comprehend. This is jñēyam.

अविभक्तं च भूतेषु विभक्तमिव च स्थितम् ।

avibhaktam ca bhūtēṣu vibhaktamiva ca sthitam |
bhūtabhartṛ ca tajjñēyaṃ grasiṣṇu prabhaviṣṇu ca || 13.17 ||

च ca Moreover स्थितम् sthitam it remains,, अविभक्तम् avibhaktam undivided च yet (it appears), इव विभक्तम् ca iva vibhaktam as if divided भूतेषु bhūteṣu in creator, ग्रसिष्णु च grasiṣṇu ca the destroyer, च भूतभर्तृ ca bhūtabhartṛ and the sustainer of all beings.

17. Moreover, it remains undivided. Yet (it appears) as if divided in beings. That Brahman is the creator, the destroyer, and the sustainer of all beings.

So that Brahman is indivisible, like space which cannot be divided; that Brahman the pure existence-consciousness is विभक्तम् vibhaktam; na vibhaktam; vibhaktam means division, it is indivisible. Therefore he says. अविभक्तम् avibhaktam, it is undivided and at the same time, bhutesu vibhaktam iva sthitam. It is seemingly divided. It is really undivided but it is seemingly divided, which it is seemingly divided; Why it is seemingly divided: Consciousness is all pervading, but we experience consciousness only where the body-medium is available. So therefore,

Out of that Brahman alone all the nāma rūpa has come. More we will see in the next class.

Om

In this 13th chapter, from verse No.13 onwards, Lord Krishna has come to the topic of Jñēyam, which is the fourth topic of the six topics that Arjuna wanted to know and Lord Krishna made it clear that this word Jñēyam is nothing but param Brahma of the Upaniṣad.

अनादिमत्परं ब्रह्म न सत्तन्नासदुच्यते ॥ १३.१३॥

anādimatparaṁ Brahma na sattannāsaducyate || 13.13 ||

And having said this much, Lord Krishna started the description of Param Brahma as given in the Upaniṣads and as I said, this is the subtlest topic of the Upaniṣads, and the subtlest topic of the Bhagavat Gītā also. In fact, this is the main topic. And the description was all inconceivable descriptions; Param Brahma is nirguṇaṁ, it is free from all attributes and therefore available for any kind of sensory perception and while it is Nirguṇaṁ, it is all pervading, it exists everywhere; in fact, in the form of the very existence itself. Nirguṇaṁ Brahma is the very existence principle which is everywhere, and not only that, it is only one; it is not plural; the objects in the creation are many; but the all-pervading attributeless existence is Ēkam.

So Nirguṇaṁ, sadrūpam, sarvagatham and Ēkam and this existence even though it appears to be divided really speaking, it is an indivisible principle; it has got only a seeming division. As I gave the example, the light pervading the hall or pervading the fingers cannot be divided; it is all over; but you see the light only on the fingers and in between the fingers you do not see the light and therefore it creates a misconception that one light is on this finger, second light is on this finger, the third is on this; thus there are five fingers and it appears as though there are five lights; and in between it appears as though there is no light. But the fact is that it is only seemingly divided light, but the light is continuously there; in between the fingers also. Exactly like that, existence is seemingly divided but it is one indivisible Akandam Brahma. Thus Nirguṇam, Sarvagatham, Ēkam, Akandam, Sadrupam, all these descriptions Lord Krishna gives.

Now we know that it is almost impossible to conceive of such a Brahman. That we may almost conclude that it is non-existent and that is why later Krishna will point out that you have to train your mind to understand Brahman and one of the training suggested in the śāstra is meditating upon this space. Trying to understand or conceive of ākāśa tatvam. We very loosely, very loosely use the word Ākāśa. When I use the word ākāśa, what do I see. I do not see ākāśa, I do not touch ākāśa, I do not smell ākāśa, I do not taste ākāśa; even though ākāśa is not a perceptible substance, I am able to talk about ākāśa. I am telling: இடம் இருக்கு; வந்து உக்காருங்கள்; (come and sit here, there is space here). What do I mean by it; it means that nobody is there; nobody is there means what; you may empty space; empty space means what; we use the words, but we have never thought of the meaning of the word space. And if think of space, you will know, it is something, which is not perceptible or tangible and which is all pervading, which is only one: How many spaces are there, which is only one; which is also indivisible and it looks as though space means emptiness. But remember, science has proved space is not emptiness or void, but it is a positive substance. So by meditating upon ākāśa, in Taittiriya Upaniṣad, in the Brihuvalli, third chapter, we will see the Upaniṣad describing ākāśa dhyānam.

Sarva mithya ākāśe; san that prathiste ith upaaseetha; prithashtavan bhavathi. Tan maha ithupaseetha. mahan bhavathi.

Ākāśa dhyānam is prescribed to make the intellect extremely subtle to understand Brahman, which is subtler than even ākāśa. Similarly, the Brahman description creates an impression, that it is a void or nothing. Krishna says it is a positive entity. பாக்கலாமா? முடியாது; கேகலாமா? முடியாது; தொடலாமா? முடியாது; நக்கலாமா? முடியாது; எங்கே இருக்கு? எங்கும் இருக்கு. (Can you see, No. Can you hear; No. Can you touch. No. Can you taste, No. Where is it. It is everywhere).

So then it appears that it is void. It is positive bhava padarthaḥ and therefore we have to make the mind subtler and subtler; ultimately grasping this our aim. Let it take months, let it take years; let it take janmās; ultimately only by knowing this Brahman, jñēyaṃ yattatpravakṣyāmi yajjñātvā'mṛtamaśnutē. Knowing this inconceivable Brahman, or unconceivable Brahman is our ultimate goal. And therefore Krishna struggles to describe and you should also struggle to understand. I will also struggle to explain.

Continuing.

ज्योतिषामपि तज्ज्योतिः तमसः परमुच्यते ।

ज्ञानं ज्ञेयं ज्ञानगम्यं हृदि सर्वस्य विष्ठितम् ॥ १३.१८ ॥

jyōtiṣāmapī tajjyōtistamasahaḥ paramucyatē |

jñānaṃ jñēyaṃ jñānagamyam hṛdi sarvasya viṣṭhitam || 13.18 ||

तद् ज्योतिः tad jyotiḥ – it is the light ज्योतिषाम् अपि jyotiṣām api of all lights, उच्यते ucyate it is said to be, परं तमसः param tasmaḥ beyond ignorance ज्ञानम् jñānam it is knowledge ज्ञेयम् jñeyam – the object of knowledge, ज्ञानगम्यम् jñānagamyam and the goal of knowledge विष्ठितम् viṣṭhitam present हृदि सर्वस्य hṛdi sarvasya in the heart of all.

18. It is the light of all lights. It is said to be beyond ignorance. It is knowledge, the object of knowledge, and the goal of knowledge, present in the heart of all.

So here Krishna says that Satrūpam Brahma; that Brahman which is in the form of pure Existence; formless Existence; is the same as the ātma which is the formless consciousness principle. Sadrūpam Brahma is the same as cidrūpaḥ ātma. And when I use the word consciousness you have to remember all those points. Consciousness is not a product, part or property of the body; Consciousness is an independent entity which pervades and enlivens the body; Consciousness is not limited by the boundaries of the body; Consciousness survives even after the fall of the body; the surviving Consciousness is not accessible to us, not because it is absent, but because there is no medium for its manifestation. And that consciousness is Existence-Brahma and Krishna describes the Consciousness by a special word used in the Upaniṣad, jyōtiṣām mapi jyōti. Krishna borrows the Upaniṣadic expressions throughout; because whenever the topic of Brahman comes, one has to run to the Upaniṣads. Everybody has to come to that. And in Mundaka Upaniṣad there is this expression.

हिरण्मये परे कोशे विरजं ब्रह्म निश्कलम् ।

नच्छुभ्रं ज्योतिषां ज्योतिस्तद् यदात्मविदो विदुः ॥ Mundaka II.9 ॥

hiraṇmayē parē koṣē virajaṁ Brahma niśkalam |

nacchubhraṁ jyōtiṣāṁ jyōtistad yadātmaavidō viduḥ || Mundaka II.9 ||

Then comes the

न तत्र सूर्यो भ्राति न चन्द्रतारकं नेमा विध्युतो भ्रान्ति कुतोऽयमग्निः ।

तकेव भ्रान्तमनुभाति सर्वं तस्य भासा सर्वमिदं विभाति ॥ Mundaka II.१०॥

na tatra sūryō bhāti na candratāraḥ nēma vidhyutō bhānti kutō:'yamagniḥ |

takēva bhāntamanubhāti sarvaṁ tasya bhāsā sarvamidaṁ vibhāti || Mundaka II.10||

A mantra which is used in all temples when the deepārādhana is done. What is the meaning of this word. ज्योतिषाम् ज्योति jyotiṣām jyoti. jyotiḥ means light. And jyōtiṣām jyōti means the light of all lights. Like in Kēnōpaniṣad, the eye of the eye, the ear of the ear, the mind of the mind, like that, light of all lights.

In Vēdānta, the word light is used in a technical sense, I have told you before, I would like to remind you in Vēdānta light means that in whose presence things are known or recognised. Light is defined as that in whose presence things are known. And from that standpoint, all the luminaries in the sky are called light. Sūryaḥ, chandraḥ, Nakṣatrāṇi, vidyut. Sūryaḥ means the sun, moon, the stars, as well as the lightning, all of them are called lights because in their presence we are able to know things. During the daytime, because of the sunlight alone, I am able to know what is in front of me. In the night, I recognise things with moonlight. And if it is amavasya night, then I have to use a fire to know things. Thus Sūryaḥ, chandraḥ, Nakṣatrāṇi, then agni and vidhyut, vidhyut meaning, lightening; even electricity comes under vidhyut, electricity is called in Sanskrit, vidhyut śakti. In Malayalam also it is vidhyut śakti. All of them are called lights; why? in their presence things are known, if the current goes now, You are all there, but I cannot know you.

Now extending this principle, the Upaniṣad says that every sense organ can also be called light. Every sense organ also can be called light; because in the presence of sense organs, things are known; in their absence, things are not known. A blind man cannot see anything even if the sun, moon, and electricity everything is there. Similarly, the ears are called light, because in the presence of the ears, the sound is known, in its absence, sound is not known. Similarly, nose is a light; in the presence of the nose, smells are known; in their absence they are not known. Thus every pramanam, every instrument of knowledge is a light. Even logic is a form of light, because through reasoning, I come to know things.

And then the Upaniṣad says there is a special chapter, section in Brihadārāṇya dealing with this subject matter. It is called svayam jyōti brāhmaṇam, section in Brihadārāṇya Upaniṣad is based. The Upaniṣad says, even words can be called light. And suppose, there is a visitor in your house, and when he enters the power goes. And he does not know where is what in your house, and you are worried and then you give a verbal light; turn to the right, turn to the left, etc. and now he comes to know of the things in front of him, with what light, not the torch light, not electric light, not any other light, he cannot even use his eyes because of the pitch darkness, and he is able to guide and what is that light; vacha agnina. Brihadārāṇya says: words are lights.

And coming in this direction, the Upaniṣad says the ultimate light is nothing but the consciousness principle, because in the presence of consciousness alone, you can know everything and if consciousness is not there, an inert thing cannot know anything. And therefore the ultimate light in whose presence you can know everything, in whose absence you do not know anything, that light is consciousness. And if that light of consciousness is not there, then even the sun, the moon, etc. become useless, even if the sense organs are there, they are useless, even a wonderful brain is there; Einstein's brain is persevered in a bottle; but that powerful you go and ask, what is two plus two cannot answer. So therefore the greatest brain, the sense organs, the sun, moon, all the lights become meaningful, only when the consciousness principle is there, and therefore consciousness is called the light of all lights, the light in whose presence alone, the other lights become meaningful. And therefore Krishna says jyōtiṣāmapi tajjyōti. It is the light of all lights.

And not only that तमसः परं उच्यते param tamasah ucyate. And this light is a unique light, which light, the light of consciousness, is a unique light, with which you can illumine or know even darkness. This is a very interesting thing you have to know. If you take local light, that light can illumine everything. So the light can illumine the wall, all your bodies, your head, this mike, the book, the letter; the light can illumine everything, but the light cannot illumine one thing; you know what, it cannot illumine darkness. If you take a torch to see darkness, what happens?

That is why Swami Chinmayananda nicely says: some people went and told Sūrya Bhagavān it seems that there is a very beautiful girl, if you want to marry; and that girl's name is Miss Darkness or Miss Night, because in Sanskrit language night is feminine gender; niṣa; rātriḥ, feminine gender; we have a prayer in Vēda, which is called rātriḥ sūktham. Have you seen in any other literature like this? A sūktham prayer dedicated to rātriḥ. So therefore the rātriḥ dēvathā, the night is a beautiful dēvathā, if you want, you can marry. Sūrya Bhagavān wanted to go and see Miss Night. And somebody said, she is on the other part of the earth. Miss Night is on the other part of the earth. And therefore Sun started travelling to reach the other side; and then somebody said: No No No, she has gone to the other part; in search of Miss Niṣadēvi, (even girls keep that name), Sūrya Bhagavān, started going round; still he is continuing. He wants to meet the darsanam of Miss Night. Thereafter only Sun rise and sunset started. So sunlight however powerful it might be, it cannot illumine darkness; Whereas the consciousness is the only unique light, which is capable of illumine making you know what is darkness. ராத்திரி, இருட்டை எப்படி பார்க்கிறேள்; கண்ணால பார்க்க முடியாது; In the night, darkness how are you seeing. You are not seeing the darkness through your eyes. Eyes can never see darkness because eyes stop functioning when there is no light; eyes can function only in the medium of light and how can that I ever illumine darkness, but still we are able to know, experience darkness. So how do we gain the knowledge of darkness. It is by unique method. The consciousness alone illumines darkness and therefore all other lights are opposed to darkness, because when light is there, darkness will go away; Consciousness is the unique light, which can co-exist with darkness. And therefore it is said to be tamasah paramucyatē. Param means unopposed to. Unopposed to and therefore only absolute, is the light of consciousness.

And not only that ज्ञानं ज्ञेयं ज्ञानगम्यं हृदि सर्वस्य विष्ठितम् jñānam, Jñēyaṃ and jñāna gamyaṃ hṛdi sarvasya viṣṭhitam. This sad chit Brahman alone is in the form of everything. Sarvaṁ Brahma mayam jagat. This formless existence, consciousness alone appears as this formed universe. A formless existence consciousness alone appears as the formed universe. You may ask, how is it possible? Again you have to go back to science alone. Just as formless energy gets converted into formed and tangible matter. Energy is intangible and when energy is converted into matter, it becomes tangible. And when matter is converted to energy, again it becomes intangible. So if intangible energy can appear as tangible matter, Vēdānta says, the non-tangible Brahman is the ultimate cause of this universe and that alone appears as the tangible universe. It is jagat karanam. It is in the form of everything. And therefore jñānam, Jñēyam, that Brahman alone is jñānam, jñānam means the means of knowledge. so that through which we come to know that means of knowledge is also Brahman and Jñēyam, the object that you know is also Brahman, so the subject is Brahman, the object is Brahman, the instrument is Brahman, sarvaṁ Brahma mayam jagat.

So jñānam, Jñēyam, and jñāna gamyaṁ. And through this knowledge, Brahmajñānam, the destination that you want to reach that destination is also Brahman. The knower is Brahman, the knowing instrument is Brahman, the known object is Brahman, and the destination you want to reach ultimately is also Brahman. In short, sarvaṁ Brahma mayam jagat.

And where should you discover that Brahman. Even though Brahman is everywhere, you have to discover that Brahman only in a particular place. Like the electricity is there all over the cable. It runs, it passes through, but if you want to find out whether there is power or not, what do you do, you look at the fan, electricity is not in the fan alone; is all over the cable, but to recognise you look at the fan; or you look at the light; and suppose there is neither the fan nor the light, where there is a plug point, there the tester is kept and tested. And once I test and electricity in the plug point, I know that electricity is not only there, but it is also throughout.

In the same way, sat cit ātma Brahman is everywhere but if you want to recognise you require plug point, what is the plug point, every one of us is one one plug point. Do not ask whether the tester is to be kept on the head! Even though consciousness is everywhere, you recognise only in your mind. sarvasya hṛdi viṣṭhitam. hṛdi means mind; and I recognise consciousness in my mind, you recognise consciousness in your mind; I cannot recognise consciousness in you, That you are conscious people, I cannot see, because when I see a body and a dead body, I do not see the consciousness in you. I see only the material body. Consciousness is not seen by me. When you nod your head, I assume that you are conscious and that you are aware of the words, and somehow you are managing to understand and you are nodding the head out of understanding and not of dozing, because in dozing also, the head shakes. Anyhow, I have to be optimistic; that you are not sleeping. Remember I have no way of recognising the consciousness in your body; That is why, scientists are struggling to recognise the consciousness in the brains of people; how consciousness is happening, any amount of brain research, they are not able to understand, because it is not visible. Therefore how do I understand consciousness. only in one way. I am a conscious being. For that I hope you want ask for proof.

That I am conscious being is self-evident fact. And I am consciousness in my own mind; in what way? Being conscious of all the thoughts that arise in my mind, I am Consciousness, the words that are coming from outside, which form thoughts in my mind, I am conscious, whether the words I understand or not, I am conscious. Because you say that you understand; you also say that I do not understand. and when all these thoughts are resolved, and the mind goes blank, that blankness of the mind also I am conscious of. What is the proof. I am using the word blank. What I have not experienced, I cannot talk about. The very fact that I am talking about mental blankness or mental blackout, I am able to talk, because I am conscious of that.

And that consciousness is the vṛitti bhāva abāva sākṣi; the witness of the presence or the absence of thought in the mind is the consciousness and it is this consciousness which is in everyone's mind and it is this consciousness which is in between the living beings also. Thus we have to go a long long way to appreciate. Therefore Krishna says sarvasya hṛdi viṣṭhitam. viṣṭhitam means available, literally it means present, present being accessible; available, recognisable. And Arjuna this is Jñēyam Brahma. So with this, the fourth topic is also over.

And incidentally one point you should remember is: the topic of kṣētrajñaḥ which we discussed in the beginning and the topic of Jñēyam which we have just completed, both of them, are ultimately one and the same principle alone. kṣētrajñaḥ is Jñēyam Brahma, jīvātma the kṣētrajña, is the paramātma the Jñēyam Brahma.

Then the question is if both of them are one and the same; why do you use two words and confuse us. Normally itself it is difficult to understand; when why you confuse by using different expressions also. We say that this is not new to Vēdānta and even in our daily transactions, we have got different words to indicate one and the same substance. In fact, in Viṣṇu sahasranama thousand names are used to reveal whom, one Viṣṇu. And if you look at home at itself, one and the same member of family is addressed by different names by different people, one calls mother, another calls sister, another calls wife, another calls granny; So one and same substance can have different names, when the point of reference is different. From the reference point, from the stand point of the child, the man is father. From the standpoint of the wife, the very same man is the husband. Not that the stomach is father, the head is the husband. The whole person is the father and the whole person is the husband. the whole person is the brother; So when the angle differs, the nama differs; this place itself, suppose one person says this is Adyar. Another person says that this is Tamil Nadu. Another person says that this is India. Another person says this is Asia. Who is correct. All are correct. When you are talking from the standpoint of local area of Tamilnadu, you call it Adayar. In the context of various States of India, you call it Tamil Nadu. When you are talking from the standpoint of different countries, you call it India. When the topic is in the context of continents, you call it Asia. When the topic is planet, you call it Earth. When the topic is solar system, this is the solar system. When it is galaxy, our galaxy is what, milky way. (no milk is seen, it is named milky way).

Same way, even though consciousness is all pervading, when you look at consciousness from the standpoint of the individual, consciousness obtaining in the body, the individual, we call it kṣētrajñā, the jīvātma, from microcosmic standpoint, whereas the very same consciousness as the all pervading principle, macrocosm, we call it paramātma or Jñēyam Brahma. kṣētrajñam is only Jñēyam Brahma.

मद्भक्त एतद्विज्ञाय मद्भावायोपपद्यते ॥ १३.१९ ॥

iti kṣētram tathā jñānam jñēyam cōktaṁ samāsataḥ |

madbhakta ētadvijñāya madbhāvāyōpapadyatē || 13.19 ||

इति iti thus क्षेत्रम् kṣetram kshetram तथा ज्ञानम् tathā jñānam jñānam च ज्ञेयम् ca jñeyam and Jñeyam उक्तम् uktam have been taught, समासतः samāsataḥ

briefly विज्ञाय एतत् vijñāya etat knowing this मद्भक्तः madbhaktaḥ My devotee उपपद्यते upapadyate becomes fit मद्भावाय madbhāvāya to attain My nature.

19. Thus kshetram, jñānam, and Jñēyam have been taught briefly. Knowing this, my devotee becomes fit to attain My nature.

So in this verse, Lord Krishna is consolidating. Lord Krishna tells Arjuna that I remember all the 6 topics you wanted to know, whether you remember or not, I remember. Of the six topics, I have discussed 4; two more are remaining. So this is a consolidating sloka.

So this is one of the method of teaching; when the teacher progresses from topic to topic and that too when it is a tersely developed discussion; it is nice to stay in a place and just look behind and take stock of what has already been discussed and make sure that the śiṣya is following. Or else, suddenly when you look back, no one would be coming with you. So this method is called Simha avalōkana nyāya. The Lion does like that it seems. Just goes forward and makes sure that there is no challenger at all; I am the king of the forest; and everybody has to accept me; and having gone forward it looks around as having made sure that the portion covered, I have proved myself; then it goes forward. Similarly, the teacher has to give an opportunity to the student to think what has been covered and then go forward. And therefore Krishna here says; Hey Arjuna, I have discussed four topics; What are they. (1) Kṣetraṁ and (2) you have to supply kṣētrajña, which is not said here, but which goes together; and (3) jñānam, that is the third topic and (4) Jñēyam, fourth topic, चोक्तं cōktaṁ, means I have taught. Jñēyam cōktaṁ means I have taught you Arjuna, समासतः samāsataḥ, I have taught you only briefly.

If you want to know more details; if your intellect is tickled and stimulated, because two things can happen. Some people it is a challenging topic, and therefore their intellect is tickled, therefore they want to know more. There is another group of Intellect says enough is enough of Vēdānta, and let me just stick to Krishna Rāma japa, etc. and take the chundal and go home. Who wants all these kinds of hair splitting analysis etc. So therefore I have given you sample, if you are interested, care of the Upaniṣads. The Upaniṣads exclusively and predominantly deal with this subject matter alone. And therefore, this is the முன்னோட்டம்; trailer, next week what are the serials. Two minutes script they show; husband and wife about to fight and ... next week. This person will definitely see that.

Like that Krishna shows the trailer here, samāsataḥ, briefly I have taught you and मद्भक्त एतद्विज्ञाय madbhakta ētadvijñāya. So every seeker who is my devotee will certainly know this and one of the conditions is what he should be my bhaktha from which Krishna indicates Bhakthi is an important qualification for gaining self-knowledge. Which Krishna has already mentioned mayi ananya yōgēna bhakthi avyabhicāriṇi. So a Vēdāntic student should be necessarily a devotee. Vēdānta teacher should be a religious person and that is why in all our scriptures, philosophy and religion; philosophy and theology, they are mixed together. Whereas in other systems, especially western and all, philosophy and theology are separated an atheist philosophy is possible; but we insist if you want the philosophical knowledge, you should start with devotion. The discussion may be of pure formless truth; even though the discussion is the ultimate truth, we keep the photo of the Lord and start with the Sahanabhavathu prayer. So that we end with prayer slōkā, because without devotion, jñānam does not take place. There is no secular Vēdānta. Even if somehow knowledge takes place for a non-devotee, it remains an academic knowledge; that is called arm-chair philosophy, he will be an expert in the Upaniṣad, but there will be no transformation in his personality.

And therefore Krishna insists that you should be necessarily a devotee. In fact, at the end of the 18th chapter, Krishna even gives a warning to every Gītā teacher. The warning to the teacher is: never teach Gītā to a person who is a non-religious person.

इदं ते नातपस्काय नाभक्त्या कदाचन ।
न चाशुश्रूषवे वाच्यं न च मां योऽभ्यसूयति ॥ १८.६७॥
idaṃ tē nātapaskāya nābhaktāya kadācana |
na cāśuśrūṣavē vācyaṃ na ca māṃ yō'bhyasūyati || 18.67 ||

नाभक्त्या कदाचन इदं न वाच्यं nābhaktayā kadācana idaṃ na vācyaṃ; the one who is non-religious never give it. Therefore Krishna here says: mat bhaktha, He goes a next step; mat bhaktha, he must be My devotee. mat bhaktha means īśvara bhaktha. Etat Vijñāya, such a devotee will necessarily gain the knowledge and even if he feels that this is too subtle for understanding, his devotion will refine his intellect. Second time he listens; he will understand better. But he will not say, he has improved; but he will say Swamiji you are teaching better. Anyway, The teacher is not bothered who takes the credit; whether I have improved or you have improved, or both have improved. If you understood, good. That is why Vēdānta has to be listened again and again. First time listening certain aspects you will understand; next time some other will be cleared, and like that. Kaun Punyena sravanam kuryat. Avrithihi asakrut upadeśa. A special Brahma sutra is dedicated for this subject. Keep on listening. So Etat vijñāyaya, my devotee will certainly know this in due course, what is the benefit he will get. That is important; what will I get. Krishna says; Mat bhavaya upapadyate. He will also attain the same nature as mine. Just as I am ever free. He will also discover the eternal freedom which is his very nature. So mat bhavaḥ means Brahma bhavaḥ, īśvara bhavaḥ, bhavaḥ means svarūpam, therefore mat bhavaḥ, īśvara svarūpam; which means pūrṇatvam. Previously we considered himself to be a finite individual, now he does not have that problem. He knows I am the all pervading Brahman. There is no sense of isolation. There is no sense of rejection; No feeling of: no one is attending me, கேள்வி கேள்பயார் இல்லை; kelvi keppar illai. I am this old person sitting at home and so many children, and nobody has time to ask how are you, they are not bothered about whether I am alive or dead, etc. these are all called samsāra. Sense that the children are not loving me, not taking care of me, not talking to me, these are all sense of isolation, sense of rejection. And in fact it becomes more and more as we grow older and older. because when we are younger, we can forget this samsāra by diversion. Go to beach, or go to a movie, or move with friends you can be busy and forget samsāra, as we grow old, we have no escapist route, lying on the bed without able to get up, therefore no fear of that. How wonderful it is. The children are talking; they have time, wonderful, if they are busy in their career, in America, Russia, Japan, other than India; I never feel lonely. I never feel rejected, because all are existing in Me. Mai eva sakalam jatham. This pūrṇatvam is the benefit of this knowledge. Therefore Krishna says, मद्भावायोपपद्यते madbhāvāyōpapadyatē. he will become qualified.

Continuing.

प्रकृतिं पुरुषं चैव विद्धि अनादि उभावपि ।

विकारांश्च गुणांश्चैव विद्धि प्रकृतिसम्भवान् ॥ १३.२० ॥

vikārāṃśca guṇāṃścaiva viddhi prakṛtisambhavān || 13.20 ||

In 19th verse, Lord Krishna has consolidated and concluded four topics. Now Krishna wants to discuss, the last two topics, which he has not discussed; they are puruṣa and prakṛti. And these two, Krishna wants to discuss together, because they are closely interconnected principles, just as Kṣētraṁ and kṣētrajña are closely interconnected. Similarly, these two are connected, therefore together Krishna wants to discuss from this verse, that is from verse No.20 up to verse No.24. 20-24 is puruṣa and prakṛti. And this puruṣa and prakṛti are very much similar to Kṣētraṁ and kṣētrajña. We saw in the beginning Kṣētraṁ represents the matter principle. And kṣētrajña represents the consciousness principle. Vēdānta takes consciousness as an independent principle, because as we have seen, Vēdānta does not look upon consciousness as part or product of matter. it does not look upon. And therefore it is enumerated as a separate entity. Remember the example, even though I see one fan functioning, in my understanding there are two principles, one is the visible fan and the invisible electricity, which is a separate principle, which continues even when the fan stops. Similarly, when I look at you, it is not one principle, it is a mixture of two; the visible-matter-principle and the invisible consciousness principle; And in the seventh chapter, Krishna used the word para prakṛti and apara prakṛti, para prakṛti being consciousness and apara prakṛti being matter. Now the same Krishna is discussing again in the name of puruṣa and prakṛti; puruṣa means caitanya tatvam; the independent-consciousness-principle and prakṛti means the matter-principle. The fundamental basic invisible matter, which can be compared to energy. compared to energy. Energy is invisible version of matter. And these two, Krishna is going to talk about in the following verses; details of which we will see in the next class.

Om

With the 19th verse of this chapter, Lord Krishna has completed four topics, out of the 6 topics that Arjuna wanted to know. The four completed topics are Kṣētram, kṣētrajña, jñānam and jñēyam. And now from the 20th verse onwards, up to 24th verse, Lord Krishna is going to deal with the final two topics, namely, Puruṣa and Prakṛti. And since these two topics are closely connected, Krishna is dealing with them parallelly, simultaneously. And for all practical purposes, we can understand the word Puruṣa as Brahman and we can understand the prakṛti as Māya and therefore the discussion is regarding Brahman and Māya of the upaniṣad. These two words puruṣa and prakṛti are generally used in Saṅkya philosophy, but rarely in Vēdānta also, we use the word puruṣa and prakṛti for Brahman and Māya.

And Krishna begins the discussion here saying प्रकृतिं पुरुषं चैव विद्धि अनादि उभावपि prakṛtiṁ puruṣaṁ caiva vidhyanādi ubhāvapi. Arjuna may you understand puruṣa and prakṛti as the two basic principles which are beginningless-principles. Anādi means without a beginning and it is in dual number which means puruṣa is also Anādi, prakṛti is also Anādi. And this puruṣa prakṛti mixture alone we call Īśvaraḥ. Prakṛti plus puruṣa is equal to Īśvaraḥ. Brahman plus Māya is equal to Īśvara. And Krishna wants to point out that this Īśvara alone existed even before the origination of this universe. Since the universe has an origination; the world has a beginning, and since the Īśvara has no beginning, it is clear that even before the world originated, before the beginninged-world, there was the beginningless Īśvara, which means even before Sṛiṣṭi, Īśvara existed. And since Īśvara alone existed before Sṛiṣṭi, the Sṛiṣṭi must have come out of whom; out of Īśvara only, because Īśvara alone was the beginningless principle. And this Īśvara consists puruṣa and prakṛti and if you remember the 7th chapter, it was presented there as para prakṛti and apara prakṛti. The same idea you have to bring here.

Now from this verse we come to know that puruṣa and prakṛti have got one common feature. And what is that common feature? Both are beginningless. Anānditvam is one common feature; and the second common feature is that both of them together are the cause of the universe. Therefore puruṣa is also cause prakṛti is also cause, together alone they enjoy causal status; exactly like the father and mother. Father by himself cannot be the cause of a child, mother by herself can never be the cause of a child; father and mother alone can together enjoy the causal status. And that is why jagatapitharau vandē parvathi paramēśvarau. Thus they have got two common features. First common feature is: both of them are beginningless. And the second one is that both are together cause of the universe.

And these two principles have got uncommon features also. Common features are two; uncommon features or differences are many and out of many differences, four differences are very important for our study which I had discussed in the 7th chapter; but since years have gone, I forget and therefore I will remind myself.

What is the first difference between puruṣa and prakṛti. Puruṣa is cētana tatvam; it is consciousness-principle; whereas prakṛti or Māya is acētana tatvam, it is the basic matter principle. Even if you like to call it energy, I do not mind, matter and energy are one and the same in different states. That is why they are inter-convertible; whereas Consciousness is neither matter nor energy. Very careful. Consciousness is neither matter nor energy. Thus Puruṣa is consciousness principle Prakṛti is basic matter; or energy principle; this is the first difference.

The second difference is the puruṣa is nirvikāra tatvam; consciousness principle is not subject to modification or change. It is ever the changeless principle, time cannot influence consciousness. Time cannot touch consciousness. Consciousness is not within the field of time. In fact, some scientists themselves are saying this. Whereas prakṛti or matter principle is subject to time and therefore subject to modification; in Sanskrit savikāra tatvam. So cētana tatvam-acētana tatvam is the first difference; nirvikāra tatvam-savikāra-tatvam is the second difference. And because of the influence of time alone, matter is violently undergoing change, even becoming energy is a form of change; matter becomes energy. In fact in an atomic explosion; in a nuclear explosion, what is happening, matter is converted into tremendous energy. And therefore, matter is subject to change to energy form; energy is subject to change into matter form; and within matter itself, it violently undergoes change; the sun is changing violently, the planets are changing and even the minutest atom is undergoing change. Therefore savikāra tatvam. And the other one nirvikāra tatvam.

Then the third important difference or uncommon feature is that Puruṣa, the consciousness principle is free from all attributes. It is absolutely property-free. Whether you enumerate the properties as satva rajas tamō guṇa, then we say consciousness is free from all these three; If you enumerate the properties as śabda, sparśa, rūpa, rasa and gandha, śabda means sound, sparśa, means touch, rūpa means form, rasa means taste, gandha means smell; then consciousness is free from all these five properties. Or if you are chemistry student; who is used to salt analysis in the lab; then we talk about the physical properties and chemical properties. Physical properties and chemical properties determine a chemical as a particular chemical; physical property means what the colour, etc. chemical property varieties of reactions we do, add hydrochloric acid pass hydrogen sulphide, then. Therefore we have got a salt analysis. 1st group, 2nd group, 3rd group, etc. And if you are a chemistry student, then we say consciousness is free from all types of physical and chemical properties. In short, consciousness is property-less-attributeless. In Sanskrit Nirguṇa tatvam. Whereas matter is endowed with all the properties. So from one angle, we say matter has got three guṇas; three means satva, rajas, tamo guṇaḥ, we say; Or from another angle we say, matter has five guṇa, sabda, sparsa, rupa, rasa, gandha; Or from chemistry angle, matter has got innumerable physical and chemical properties. And therefore to simply, matter is attributed. In Sanskrit we say satguṇa tatvam. So cētana-acētanam, nirvikaram-savikaram, nirguṇa-saguṇa (you should not change the order).

And then comes the fourth and final property for our discussion. You can have several but four only for our discussion. This is technical thing which is not directly relevant, but for future questions this will be required. And what is that difference; cētana or the consciousness-principle has got an independent existence and therefore it is said to be satya tatvam. The existence of consciousness is intrinsic, it is independent, it is unborrowed; That is why we say, cit ēva sat. And therefore it is satya tatvam; whereas the matter principle does not have an independent existence; the existence of matter depends upon the consciousness principle. Even to prove that you are all sitting in the class, I should be conscious of you, what I am not conscious, I cannot talk of its existence at all. And therefore the existence of a thing, a material thing, depends upon the consciousness principle and therefore matter enjoys or suffers dependent existence. In Sanskrit we call it mithyā tatvam. Satyam and mithyā. We will keep it aside, which we will deal later.

These are the four fundamental differences between Puruṣa and Prakṛti. Such a puruṣa-prakṛti mixture called God was there even before the origination of the world. And the most interesting thing is that when we say God alone existed before the creation, we cannot even answer the question, where was He located. Heன்னு சொல்லமுடியாது; என்னவாவது சொல்லணமே என்று சொன்னோம். (He and all we cannot say; but we have to say something therefore we say He). Where was He located; even location of God we cannot talk about because, before creation, even ākāśa was not there. Ākāśa comes only after creation. how do you know; care of taitariya upaniṣad. Do you remember by mistake. तस्मात् वा एतत् अत्मनः आकाश संभूतः tasmāt vā ētat atmanah ākāśa sambhūtaḥ.

Even scientists point out that you cannot imagine space at the time of or before the big bang. How they have reached Vēdānta. They will say Vēdānta has borrowed Science. Long before science came, it has been said. Therefore you cannot conceive of even ākāśa, before Sṛiṣṭi. Therefore ākāśa uthpathēhē purvam, Īśvaraḥ asith. Then if ākāśa was not there, (ākāśa, ākāśa I have been telling in Sanskrit, but you should not look at the ākāśa without understanding what it is!), ākāśa means space. So when I talk about God before the origination of space, how can I talk about the location of God, because the concept of location, requires space. Therefore do not ask where was He. And such an unlocatable God who is a mixture of Puruṣa and Prakṛti was there before Sṛiṣṭi. Adau Kirthanarambhu, Sṛiṣṭi arambau, Bhagavān was; Who says; Bhagavān. Puruṣam Prakṛtim ubau chaiva. Ubau means both. Anādi, beginningless. So when we tell this story, children will ask, then, then, then, ... then the mother gets tired; go and do homework. Similarly, here also, the student asks, then what happened?

Of these two mixture, that Puruṣa and Prakṛti, nothing will happen to puruṣa tattvam, because puruṣa tatvam is not conditioned by time and therefore Puruṣa, the cētana tatvam will remain the same. Before Sṛiṣṭi; during Sṛiṣṭi, after pralayam, all the time, chaitanyam is Nirvikāram,

ना अयं भूत्वा भविता वा न भूयः ।
अजो नित्यः शाश्वतोऽयं पुराणो न हन्यते हन्यमाने शरीरे ॥ २.२० ॥

na jāyate mriyate vā kadācit nā ayam bhūtvā bhavitā vā na bhūyaḥ |
ajo nityaḥ śāśvato'yaṁ purāṇo
na hanyate hanyamāne śarīre || 2.20 ||

If this Nirvikāra puruṣa tatvam does not undergo any change, then all the changes must happen to only what: the other one; because only two are there; Only the other one can undergo change; and what is that: Prakṛti tatvam, basic matter or energy principle. And therefore Krishna says at the time of creation, what happens:

....
विकारांश्च गुणांश्चैव विद्धि प्रकृतिसम्भवान् ॥ १३.२०॥
vikāraṁśca guṇāṁścaiva viddhi prakṛtisambhavān ||13.20||

Out of the prakṛti tatvam evolves this universe. The matter evolves into the universe just as a seed evolves to become a sprout. Then as time goes, again it evolves into a plant and finally it evolves into a full fledged tree. Similarly, the universe also, from kāraṇa avastha to sūkṣma avastha to sthūla avastha, this gradual evolution takes place and in this matter-evolution, what are born, vikāraṁśca, vikāraḥ means kāryam, all the products are born out of the basic prakṛti, otherwise called Māya. That is why we call the creation Māyikam.

And what are the materials born out of prakṛti. Initially, the five basic elements are born; called the five bhūthāni, ākāśa, vāyu, agni, āpaha and prithvi; and later the five elements through varieties of permutation and combination, they mix together, they produce all the other things which we call bhauthika evolution. Bhūtha evolution, then bhauthika evolution. Elements evolved THEN Elementals evolved. And what are the elementals. All the 14 lōkās are the combination; then the mountains, the stars, the planets, and not only that, according to scriptures, our physical body is also evolved prakṛti. The physical body also is the prakṛti's evolute only. What is the proof. How do you prove that? The proof is that the first of all the physical body is matter; it consists of only chemicals. it consists of only elements; elements ~ you can take two meanings ~ the śāstric meaning, ākāśa, vāyu, agni, āpaha, prithivi ~ and if you are chemistry student, elements means what ? Aluminium, antimony, barium, carbon, etc. so those elements. So all those elements alone have produced the body; body is nothing but a chemical bundle. That is why we call it bio chemistry. And therefore body being matter, it is born out of prakṛti. And the second and important proof is body is subject to modification. Does anyone has any doubt. Body is subject to modification, so your food that you have taken, I do not know when, sooner or later, it gets digested and again hunger comes. So all physical modifications and of course the gross modification we put on weight and join jindal and reduce 25 kgs in 10 days and then in the next 30 days add another 30 kgs. You will eat for the 10 uneaten days, because you consumed only the pumpkin juice only all the three times. So this expansion and contraction of the body proves that it cannot be puruṣa tatvam, because puruṣa tatvam is Nirvikāram, body is savikāram; therefore body has to be a product of prakṛti only.

Then what about mind. The mind is also material in nature. And that is why the changes in the chemistry of the body changes your mind also. Enzyme changes, hormonal changes, etc. can cause tremendous mood disorders. Dayananda swami calls Mūdāḥ. Mood disorder is mental, but it is caused by what the disorder in the physical hormones. And they talk about HRT. Hormone replacement therapy. All these are possible, because the mind is also matter and it is influenced and changed by material. And not only that, mind is also subject to change. should one tell for us to understand. Mind is subject to violent changes, that mind is an evolved version of prakṛti. So world is prakṛti's evolute, body is prakṛti's evolute or product, mind is the product of prakṛti. Only you may get a doubt, if you do not get, I will create that; the doubt may be: if body is a product of prakṛti, mind is also a product of prakṛti, both of them must be acētana tatvam; because we have said prakṛti is acētana tatvam.

If prakṛti is acētana tatvam, body and mind which are its products, they also must be acētanam, acētanam means insentient. And mind seems to be sentient; not seems to be, if doubt, pinch and see yourselves; you know it is sentient. So for that the scriptures give the answer, body and mind are prakṛti only but they are such a fine version of prakṛti, it means refined clay. Body is refined clay, And sometime the brain also is acting like a refined clay. So being a refined version of matter, they are able to manifest consciousness; it is not their own intrinsic consciousness; it is only reflected or manifested consciousness.

Like if my cloth is bright now, visible to you now, light from the cloth is hitting your eyes, you are able to see and when light comes from the cloth, it is not the cloth's own light, but it is the light reflected on the cloth. It is not intrinsic but borrowed. Similarly, body is prakṛti with borrowed sentiency; mind is prakṛti with borrowed sentiency. Therefore all these are the creation of prakṛti.

And therefore Krishna says; Arjuna note it; vikārāṁśca prakṛtisambhavān; sambhavān means born out of, products of prakṛti.

And not only all the objects are born out of prakṛti; the various properties of these objects; every object has its own property. It has got a colour, form, weight, and all these properties are born out of prakṛti alone. Because the rule is what: Kāraṇa guṇāḥ kārye anuvarthante; the properties of the cause will inhere in the effect also. I have told this many times. If Gold has certain combination of other elements; alloys, then the all the ornaments also will have the same proportion of the other elements. And that is why the children also will have the combination of properties or character borrowed from whom? எல்லாம் அப்பா அம்மாதான்; the parents.

Sometime father dominant, sometime mother dominant and in the olden days, interesting things used to happen; in some family they will have 10-11 children or at least 7-8. One looking like father; another looking like mother, Even complexion. One will be dark, one will be fair, it will come interchanging. What I want to say is kāraṇa guṇāḥ, kārye anuvarthante, which means prakṛti guṇāḥ, prapañce anuvarthante. And that is the world also has got satva rajas tamō guṇāḥ, and the world also has got śabda, sparśa, rūpa, rasa, gandha. Therefore vikārāṁśca guṇāṁścaiva viddhi prakṛtisambhavān.

And Śankārācārya points out that the even the properties, like rāga dvēṣā etc. do not belong to the Puruṣa, they all belong to prakṛti alone.

bodies, पुरुषः उच्यते puruṣaḥ ucyate Puruṣa is said to be, हेतुः hetuḥ the cause भोक्तृत्वे bhoktṛtve in the experience सुखदुःखानाम् sukhaduḥkhānām of pleasure and pains.

21. prakṛti is said to be the cause in the creation of the physical and subtle bodies. Puruṣa is said to be the cause in the experience of pleasures and pains.

The first line is almost the repetition of the previous verse. Everything in the creation is born out of prakṛti, which includes the body, mind complex also. So kāryam means the body. It is a technical meaning here; normally kāryam means a product in general; but in this context, kāryam means stūla śarīram, the physical body. And similarly, the word kāraṇam in this context means the mind or the subtle body in general. Sūkṣma śarīram is called kāraṇam. कार्यकरणकर्तृः kāryakāraṇakartṛtvē, kartṛtvē means in the creation. In the creation of the physical and subtle bodies, not only the human beings, but all the living beings, in the origination of them, who is the contributor; प्रकृति हेतुःरुच्यते prakṛti hētuḥrucyatē; prakṛti alone does lot of work, highly active, Puruṣa is the laziest person; that is why, in home also, it so happens, இவன் சுமமா உக்காந்து பேபர் படிச்சிண்டு இருப்பான்; reading only the newspapers. It has begun at the time of creation itself. Evam parampara praptham. Because the original puruṣa does not do anything. Therefore cooperate with your wives a little bit. kāryakāraṇakartṛtvē, in the creation of the body and mind, prakṛtiḥ is the hetu.

And there is another reading also. Kārya karaṇē kartṛtvē, there also the meaning is almost the same. In the creation of the world, which can be divided into kāraṇam and kāryam. For example, pañca bhūtani is kāraṇam and all the bhautikams, elementals are kāryam. kāryakāraṇakartṛtvē, in the creation of elements and elementals, or the better reading this I have chosen, in the creation of body mind complex, prakṛti is alone work.

Now comes the basic question. If everything is a product of prakṛti, where is this blessed Puruṣa!! Because Īśvara is a mixture of two. Of these two, one principle we find pervading everywhere, because the pañca bhūtas are prakṛtiḥ and all the other combinations mountains, rivers, sun, and moon. In short the entire visible universe; experienced universe is prakṛti; because everything I experience undergo a change; whether it is the minutest atom or the biggest galaxy. So therefore the experienced world is changing; therefore prakṛti. Then what about the body; body is also experienced by me clearly, I am experiencing my body, that is why pleasures pains hunger thirst I am able to talk about. What I do not experience, I cannot talk about. And the physical body is also an experienced principle and Krishna says that also is prakṛti because it is subject to change. Therefore experienced world is changing therefore prakṛti. Experienced body is changing; therefore prakṛti. Then what about mind, mind is also experienced by me; In fact the mind is experienced by me alone; at least in the case of the body, I am experiencing, and you are also experiencing, whereas mind is experienced by me because I am aware of emotions, my calmness, my anger, my knowledge, my ignorance, if there is blankness of the mind, that also. The mind is also experienced and it is subject to change and therefore that is also prakṛti.

So experienced world is prakṛti, experienced body is prakṛti, experienced mind is prakṛti; if everything experienced is prakṛti, where is this blessed puruṣa. ஆளை காணவே இல்லயே. He is not to be seen. Where is the Puruṣa hiding. Therefore we go on searching. Some people search outside. Whatever they search and find is an experienced, changing object; that is not going to be Puruṣa. Suppose I look within the physical body, what is there; (do not look inside, but if you look you see blood, marrow, ~ within also you experience changing prakṛti). If I look within the mind, within the mind also what do I see ~ varieties of emotions, all changing thoughts; outside also I experience prakṛti, inside also I experience prakṛti, everything experienced is prakṛti; where is the blessed puruṣa? இதில் ஸந்தேஹம் வரும். Doubt will come; Krishna says; Do not search for the puruṣa. because the puruṣa is who? The experiencer I. The basic subject of I, the basic conscious principle. Because I the experiencer is conscious or inert. This is a big question. I the experiencer am conscious or inert. An experiencer has to be necessarily a conscious sentient principle only. Krishna says it is that experiencer, I, the subject witness of the world. The witness of the body, the witness of the mind. How to look that; do not ask; the moment you see, it will become an object, and again it will be within body, mind, etc. That which is ever the subject of experience and never the object of experience that I am the Puruṣa. Aham Brahma asmi.

Who says: Krishna says. पुरुषः सुखदुःखानां भोक्तृत्वे हेतुरुच्यते puruṣaḥ sukhaduḥkhānām bhōkṛtvē hēturucyatē. Puruṣaḥ is not located anywhere as an object, the puruṣa, the cētana, nirvikāra, nirguṇa, satya tatvam puruṣa, is I, the very subject, who is enclosed in the material body; who is enclosed in the material mind, the enclosure is prakṛti, the enclosed consciousness I, am Puruṣaḥ. And therefore Krishna says Puruṣaḥ is bhōktā, means what; here bhōktā the witness the sakshi caitanyam, the subject experiencer principle. The experiencer of what? If puruṣa is the experiencer, he will be experiencer of what? What is there other than puruṣa? prakṛti. Therefore he is the experiencer of prakṛti. Prakṛti means the body mind complex, and not only the body mind complex prakṛti, sukhaduḥkhānām, as well as all the conditions of the body mind complex. Like favourable healthy condition; as well as the unfavourable unhealthy condition; all of them belong to what, the object prakṛti, rāga, dvēṣā, kāma, krōdha, lōbha, mōha, all are properties of what, observed prakṛti; None of them is the property of the observer puruṣa.

So this is a very important law in Vēdānta. All the observed properties can belong to only observed objects; all the observed properties can belong to only the observed objects. No observed property can belong to what? the observer subject. I will repeat. All the observed properties can belong to the observed object alone. The observed properties can never belong to the observer-subject. Therefore the observer is always property-free. Therefore I am the experiencer of properties but I am without those properties. And therefore Krishna says puruṣaḥ sukhaduḥkhānām bhōkṛtvē hēturucyatē. Therefore in the created world, prakṛti is available as an object; puruṣa is available as the subject. In the created world, prakṛti is available as the object, puruṣa is available as the subject, and the subject puruṣa is never objectifiable.

And remember, I have given you the examples before. The eyes can see everything in the world, but the eyes can never see themselves. Maximum the eyes can see its reflection in the mirror; even the reflected eye is objectifiable but the original eye is never objectifiable, perceivable. What a tragedy. உங்க கண்ணாலெ உங்க கண்ணை பார்க்கவே முடியாது. You cannot see your eyes, with your own eyes. Suppose a person asks:

If the eyes can never be seen, what is the proof that there are eyes. Big question, cornering question?! you have to call him idiot. Even though, eyes are never seen, you do not require proof for the eyes because every sight of every object is the proof for the existence of the eye. Every perception is pre-supposes the existence of the perceiver, even the perceiver is never perceived. Every perception presupposed the perceiver. Even though camera is never photographed, every photograph is the proof for the existence of camera. In the photograph, camera did not come. what is the proof that there is the camera?! What to tell such persons. To be taken to Kilpauk.

Therefore the subject does not require proof. Subject does not require proof; because the very search for proof presupposes the existence of the subject. The prover need not be proved. Prover does not require a prover. And therefore where is puruṣa. It is like the tenth man story. Where is the puruṣa? I am the puruṣa. What a terrible discovery. What a wonderful discovery.

22. Residing in prakṛti, Puruṣa experiences the guṇas born out of prakṛti. Attachment to the guṇas is the cause of birth in superior and inferior wombs.

Originally, before the creation evolves or the world evolves, the puruṣa was neither the subject, nor the prakṛti was object; there was no subject-object transaction at all, before the creation evolved. Then when did the puruṣa get the subject status? When the universe evolved, naturally the body was also created, the mind also is created; and after the creation of the body and mind, the all-pervading puruṣa got enclosed within the body-mind-enclosure. Previously the enclosures were not there; therefore this consciousness was an all-pervading unenclosed consciousness; but after the creation of body-mind, we have got what, enclosed consciousness. Just as we have got a enclosed space, when, after the creation of wall. Before the creation of the wall, space was there or not; It was; but it was unenclosed space. Once the walls are created, it become enclosed. Similarly, you create, previously it was plot, and then built the walls, and why did you build the walls. By building the wall, what are you the accomplishing? The open space is converted into enclosed space. And once it becomes enclosed space, it is called a house. What is the definition of house, not the walls; walls do not make a house; then what is a house; enclosed space is a house, and once it is enclosed, it becomes a useful transactable thing. In the same way, previously it was unenclosed consciousness. Now it is body mind enclosed consciousness; and that becomes what?; the subject principle. And then the whole world become object.

Therefore consciousness becomes a subject, when it is enclosed. An open space becomes a house when it is enclosed. Therefore you never build a house, you build only the walls. What is a house, the enclosed space is a house, because that alone is lending you the place for transaction. Wall is not useful. All your movement, study, etc. is what houses is not the wall, what houses is the enclosed space. Thus, puruṣa becomes the subject, prakṛti becomes object. Then what happens. go and do homework.

Om

Lord Krishna has come to the last pair of topic, viz., Puruṣa and Prakṛti and he starts the discussion from the 20th verse which goes up to verse 24. And we saw the Puruṣa and Prakṛti are the two basic principles, which existed even before the origination of the world and this mixture of Puruṣa and Prakṛti alone we fall God. And we also saw that this Puruṣa and Prakṛti have got two common features; one common feature is that both are anādi or beginningless and the second common feature is both together become the cause of the universe. Puruṣa by itself cannot be the cause, nor can Prakṛti be cause by itself. These are the two common features and then we saw they have got four uncommon features. Puruṣa is conscious principle, Prakṛti is inert; Puruṣa is changeless principle, Prakṛti is changing principle; Puruṣa is without any attribute, attributeless whereas the Prakṛti has all the attributes and finally Puruṣa is satyam, Prakṛti is mithya. So Nirguṇa, Nirvikāra, Satya, cētana tatvam Puruṣa. Saguṇa, Savikāra, Mithya, Acētana tatvam Prakṛti. Nirguṇa Nirvikāra satya cētana tatvam Puruṣa. Saguṇa savikara mithya acētana tatvam Prakṛti.

And then Krishna pointed out from this mixture alone creation evolved and in the evolution of the creation, the primary role is played by Prakṛti alone, because Prakṛti alone is capable of evolution; Prakṛti being basic matter and as a result of this Prakṛti's evolution, otherwise called the manifestation, the pañca bhūthās have come, all the fourteen lōkās have come and all the physical and subtle bodies also are born, which means my own body-mind-complex is an evolute of Prakṛti.

And then comes the basic question where is this Blessed Puruṣa. Because whatever I see outside Prakṛti. How do I prove? Because they are all subject to modification. The very physical body I experience is Prakṛti, because it is subject to change, and the very mind that I experience is Prakṛti, because it is violently changing. Thus the world is Prakṛti, the body is Prakṛti, the mind is Prakṛti, where exactly Puruṣa, the question comes. Krishna said that Puruṣa alone is now available behind the body-mind-complex as the very experiencer principle, the Sākṣi caitanyam. Which alone we refer to by the word Aham or I, because the very word I indicates a conscious principle not an inert principle. And therefore Krishna's conclusion is, the I, the subject, the experiencer, the witness, am Puruṣa, and whatever I experience is Prakṛti. I, the experiencer, am Puruṣa. I, the subject am Puruṣa. I the witness am Puruṣa. Whatever is experienced; whatever is an object; whatever is witnessed is Prakṛti.

And we should remember to include the body-mind-complex also in which group? In I group or the Prakṛti group. அஃநாதான் Confusion வறது. The body-mind should not join the I-party, the body-mind should not be included in the subject-list, the body-mind also must be included in the object-of-experience list. But generally there is a confusion because, even though body-mind-complex is object of experience, it is so intimately associated with me; that I use the body and mind as a medium for experience the world and therefore it appears as though part of the subject. I have talked about this before, the spectacles are very much object of experience only. I just take the spectacles, and I alone put on the spectacle. The moment I put the spectacle and start using the same as an instrument, it is so intimately associated with the perceiver, that I include the spectacle also as an integral part of I, the perceiver. And that is the reason when I have to enumerate various objects, I enumerate everything; but I carefully forget. I forget to include the spectacles as one of the objects.

And therefore what is the cause of the mistake. An object used as an instrument appears as though an intrinsic part of the subject. When you say I am writing a letter, in the word I, you are including the pen also. Without pen can you become a writer. When you say I am a writer, unknowingly you have included the pen also in you. Similarly when I say I am a seer, hearer, etc. the body mind complex used as an instrument also is mistaken as the subject. Of course for transactional purposes, you can include the body and mind in the subject, but I should always be aware that body is part of Prakṛti. World is matter, body is matter. Similarly mind is part of Prakṛti; world is Prakṛti; the mind is Prakṛti; whereas I am different from the body Prakṛti, the mind Prakṛti; I am the Sākṣi tatvam. I illumine all of them; I witness all of them; at the same time, I am different from them. This is what Krishna said: puruṣaḥ prakṛtisthō hi bhuṅktē prakṛtijān guṇān. The word bhuṅktē means witnesses; even though the literal meaning of the word bhuṅktē is experiences; the word experiences should be understood as witnesses or illumines whatever happens to the body as well as to the mind, And witnessing or illumining the body-mind complex is an activity of Puruṣa, but in the presence of Puruṣa, the body and mind gets illumined. Just like we say, the fire burns the fuel. We use the verb that fire is burning the fuel; but if you analyse; Śankārācārya analyses, burning is not a willful action done by the fire; if burning is an action done by the fire; the action will have a beginning, and action will have an end. But really speaking, fire does not do the action of burning; fire just exists. When you put your finger in the fire, at that time also, fire does not do any special job. Before putting my finger, fire was fire. After putting my finger also, fire is fire. No transformation; no will; no action on the part of the fire; fire exists, my finger gets burned; but I make a statement, fire burns the finger. Here is a verb which does not have verbal meaning. When we say the Sun illumines the earth; it is the same thing; Sun does not will or plan and do the action of illumining. The sun just exists; in the presence of the Sun, whatever objects fall within the range, those objects get illumined; before the objects arrive, Sun is the same, after the objects arrive, Sun is the same; but still we use a verb, Sun is illumining the earth.

Here also verb indicates, mere sānnidhyam only. Similarly, Sākṣi does not plan, decide and illumine the body, mind, as a positive action, Sākṣi like the fire, like the Sun, it just IS, and in the presence of the Sākṣi, body gets experienced or illumined or awared. And therefore we say Puruṣaḥ bhuṅktē. Sākṣi experiences; experiences means changelessly witnesses; actionlessly witnesses; will-lessly without involving a will, Sākṣi "experiences", whatever happens in the body-mind-complex. And even when nothing happens in the body mind complex, and even when the mind is blank, the blank condition of the mind, is witnessed, experienced, known, awared by the consciousness principle. That consciousness am I. Anyway.

So Puruṣa prakṛtisthaḥ. Prakṛti means śarīram. In this context, Prakṛti means products of Prakṛti. Prakṛti kāryam is called Prakṛti and what are the two products of Prakṛti to be kept in mind; the body-mind-complex container is called Prakṛti, प्रकृतिस्थः prakṛtisthaḥ means enclosed within the body mind complex. I was telling you in the last class, the enclosed space is useful for living and that is why we build walls, because enclosed place is only vyavahāra योगyam. Similarly, the all-pervading consciousness, when it is enclosed within the body-mind-complex, it is called prakṛtisthaḥ Puruṣaḥ Sākṣi caitanyam.

And this I, bhūktē, experiences without action; without will. What does it experience? Prakṛti jān guṇān. all the consequences, all the products of Prakṛti in the form of varieties of thought, Prakṛti jān guṇāḥ means vṛitti pariṇāma; various thought modifications like pleasure thought; pain thought; rāga thought; dvēṣa thought; kāma thought; they are called Prakṛti ja guṇa; certain types of thoughts are called sātvic thoughts, certain other types of thoughts are called rājasic thoughts, in the next chapter we will be seeing. Sukam is sātvic vṛitti, duḥkam is rājasa vṛitti, mōha or delusion is tāmasic vṛitti, all those mental conditions, guṇāḥ means condition, the Sākṣi experiences, experiences means witnesses.

And what attribute the Sākṣi has got. The body has got attribute, the mind has got attributes. I, illumine the attributes but I myself do not have any attributes. But the problem is what? When I illumine the attribute, unknowingly I take the attributes as though they are mine. This is called the problem of transference. The transference of body attributes, transference of mind attributes, upon the I, the Puruṣa, creates all the problems. Exactly like viewing the movie; initially I know very much I am not the hero of the movie. Thus I start the movie as a mahajñāni with popcorn in hand. And thus when the movie goes on, when the plot is getting thickened and I am almost on the edge of the seat. If there is problem for the hero, why should I sit on the edge of the seat. Hero and villain are fighting and hero is wanting to marry the heroine. We also want that to happen. Unknowingly the problems of the observed-hero are falsely transferred to the observer. And this transference is called anonya-adhyāsa. In the case of the movie, we voluntarily do that, and we know that it is meant only two three hours, and we know we are going to come out of the movie, again as jīvanmukthaḥ and even give compliments to the actor, அவன் நன்னா அழுதான் avan nannā alutān. We are able to detach from the hero. But in life the problem is what: our attachment to the observed-body-mind complex is so permanent and complete, that samsāra is a continuous process and Krishna says that it is not only continuous, it goes to next janma also.

And therefore he says: सदसद्योनिजन्मसु sadasadyōnijanmasu kāraṇam. Sadasas yoni janma means samsāra cakram. The word yōni means must be read twice. sat yoni and asad yōni. Sad yōni means good sariram. Asat yōni means inferior body. So Sad yōni means superior body; which means better janma; asad yōni means inferior body. Thus punarapi jananam, punarapi maraṇam, taking higher birth of devas, taking lower birth of animals, plants and asura, in short the entire samsāra cakram.

For this samsāra cakram, what is the cause? Krishna says; गुणसङ्गः guṇasaṅgaḥ ēva adhya samsārasya kāraṇam. Guṇa means the attributes of the body mind complex; to that attributes which belongs to the Prakṛti I get attached.

Guṇēna, Prakṛti guṇēna saṅgaḥ; saṅgaḥ means identification, tādātmyam, tanmayatvam. Remember the movie, totally identifying with the hero, and when the heroine dies, this person also cries as though his wife has died. And his wife has to shake him and say and I am alive. So tādātmyam or abhimāna with Prakṛti is samsāra kāraṇam, Puruṣa by itself does not have janma na jāyatē mriyatē vā kadācit; just as nothing happens to the space, when the walls are pulled down; When the walls are raised, ākāśa is the same, when the walls are removed, ākāśa is the same. Similarly I-the-Puruṣa, the caitanyam am the same, whether the body, mind walls continue or whether the body, mind walls, resolves. But instead of claiming this birthlessness of Puruṣa, I identify with Prakṛti and suffer.

Lord, अपि च परमात्मा api ca paramātmā and the supreme Self

23. The supreme Puruṣa in this body is said to be the proximate witness, the supporter, the sustainer, the experiencer, the great Lord, and the supreme Self.

So Lord Krishna is training us. He is giving a training programme. What is the training. He is training us to learn to dis-identify from the Prakṛti-enclosure and learn to identify with the Puruṣa, the enclosed-content chaitanyam. So Krishna says: Asmin dēhē Puruṣaḥ; that Puruṣa tatvam, what type of Puruṣa, nirguṇa, nirvikāra, satya, cētana tatvam; NNSC tatvam. That Puruṣa, do not search anywhere, it is like looking outside for ākāśa. You need not search anywhere, that Puruṣa is there asmin dēhē. Just as ākāśa is in every container; this particular body mind container also has got the Puruṣa in the form of Sākṣi caitanyam and do not search for the Sākṣi also; because that Sākṣi caitanyam, I am the subject. And this Puruṣaḥ; what is its nature? Its nature is quiet opposite to the nature of Prakṛti. in every feature, Prakṛti Puruṣa is different from Prakṛti.

And what are the great features of Puruṣa; I told you only four; Krishna adds many; first he says; परः paraḥ, this container the content-consciousness is not only within the body, it extends the beyond the container body. First I say the space is within the hall; because of which alone we are all accommodated; and later I say the space is not within the hall alone, the space is outside the hall also. And finally I have to say, really speaking the space is neither within the hall or outside the hall, the hall is existing within space. எல்லாம் தலைகீழாகும்) Everything should be upside down). Similarly, I say consciousness is inside the body; and then finally I say consciousness is outside the body; then finally I say consciousness is inside or outside, all the bodies are inside the consciousness and therefore where is consciousness? The answer is; you should ask a counter-question, where is it not? Therefore it is called paraḥ. paraḥ means free from all limitations.

And उपद्रष्टा upadraṣṭā, go to the first line, this Puruṣa, the consciousness alone is the intimate witness everything happening inside you. So upadraṣṭā is a beautiful word. Suppose I say consciousness is a witness; like the Sun, I give the example of the sun or light; we commit a mistake; the Sun is the light illuminator, witness alright. And the Sun is existing 9 crores miles away. And if I talk about the light illumining the hall, again you will think of the bulb as the light. The pervading effulgence, we have to take but light means we think the bulb which is away; similarly when I say the ātma is Sākṣi, you will think that it is somewhere and looking at everything. So here Krishna says Atma is a witness, not remaining far away; but upadraṣṭā, intimately pervading the body, mind complex, it illumines the body mind complex; just as the light illumines the hand; how, by pervading the hand. Bulb is far away; but the light, the prākāśa is the luminosity is upon the hand, therefore it is a proximate illuminator. Proximate illuminator means one who is near, pervading the hand is illumining. Similarly, Puruṣa pervades every cell of my body. This inert body of chemicals, which does not have consciousness of its own; this inert bundle of chemicals is now sentient and alive, only because Puruṣa pervades and makes this body experienceable to me. And therefore upadrashta. Close witness.

Then अनुमन्ता च anumantā ca (careful not Hanumanutha, in Tamil Ha is not there, wherever ha comes they have to write as ah. Therefore hanuman one should pronounced as anumantha. This is anumantā, that which blesses the activities of the Prakṛti. Consciousness blesses the inert body and mind; and because of its blessings alone, body is what it is. Exactly like the electricity blesses the fan, without doing anything. In the presence of the electricity, the fan is able to do, what it is made to do. Electricity does not ask the fan to go round. The fan is made to go round. In the presence of electricity, fan does its job. Similarly, in the presence of electricity, the mike does its job of amplification. Similarly, every organ is build to do a particular function and all of them do their function only in the presence of consciousness and therefore it is anugrahatha. A blesser. And how does it do that. Not by showing hand and legs. it does not have legs and hands; it blesses by sānidhya mātrēṇa. That is what is said in Kenōpaniṣad.

॥ श्रोत्रस्य श्रोत्रं मनसो मनो यद् वाचो ह वाचं स उ प्राणस्य प्राणः ।
kēnēṣitaṁ patati prēṣitaṁ manaḥ kēna prāṇaḥ prathamāḥ praiti yuktaḥ | kēnēṣitāṁ vācamimāṁ vadanti cakṣuḥ śrōtraṁ ka u dēvō yunakti || 1 || śrōtrasya śrōtraṁ manasō manō yad vācō ha vācaṁ sa u prāṇasya prāṇaḥ.

All beautiful mantrās. Krishna condenses in one word; anumantā, śrōtrasya śrōtraṁ manasō manō yad; so He blesses all the activities; when I say all the activities, whether those activities good or bad, moral or immoral; the consciousness is not going to discriminate, judge and if there are good contentions to support it, if they are bad actions, Consciousness will say No and withdraw support, etc.; whatever be the action, consciousness blesses. Therefore, it is called anumantā.

Then भर्ता bhartā; bhartā means; If you see the dictionary it will be 'husband' and then you will also conclude, that because Puruṣa is husband. Here bhartā should not be taken in the literal sense or husband; that which lends existence, sthithi kāraṇam, because Puruṣa alone is satyam having independent existence; Prakṛti is mithya and therefore it borrows existence from Puruṣa. And therefore it is bhartā, the sustainer; kartā, pradātā.

Then भोक्ता bhōktā; and the very same Puruṣa I the Sākṣi is called bhōktā, the experiencer, from the standpoint of an ignorant person, I am really only the Sākṣi, and I am the illuminator of the pleasure and pain and envy and all those anger etc. in the minds. Anger belongs to what; the Prakṛti, mind; therefore what should I say: I am the illuminator of the anger of the mind. But instead what do I say; I am angry. போச்சுடா. When you say I am angry, which is the attribute of the mind, I have transferred to Me, the illuminator. And with the transferred attributes, ātma appears, as though bhōktā. bhōktā means what; seeming bhōktā, as though suffering them attribute. bhōktā.

Then what is the real nature; महेश्वरः maheśvaraḥ; but really speaking for a wise person, this Puruṣaḥ is maheśvaraḥ; maheśvaraḥ means what svatantraḥ, the free one; free entity. So body alone is a bound entity because body being Prakṛti, it is affected by the other Prakṛti; we have seen earlier; guṇaḥ guṇeṣu varthanthe; body is matter, world is matter, therefore body will be definitely be affected by the body. Nobody can stop. In summer body will sweat; In winter, if there is one, (Not in Madras,) the body will shiver. And in old days, the body will collapse. It will lose all its faculties. Similarly, mind is also matter; the world is also matter; mind also will be influenced by the matter. If you read about the earthquake, children are starving; however great you may be, the mind is going to empathize with that situation. Nobody can stop. And therefore body is bound by Prakṛti, the world, the mind is also bound; but Puruṣa the maheśvaraḥ, can never be affected by the matter principle and therefore Puruṣaḥ is maheśvaraḥ; means Swāmi. Svatantraḥ. Master. That is why as body, you are never free. Not only the world will affect, even the planetary position. Guru peyarchi will affect, how many people are afraid, I do not know. And for some people, wonderful things are going to happen. For some other people, certain things are going to happen, they say, the planetary change which indicated your prārabdha. Planet is not affected. Planetary changes which indicate your prārabdha. prārabdha will affect the body, Whereas the Puruṣaḥ, mahesvara. நாள் என் செய்யும்; கோள் என் செய்யும்; ஆரோ எழுதியிருக்கா. (nāḷ eṇ ceyyum; kōḷ eṇ ceyyum) Somebody has written). Kolar pathikam. Many people read as Koolar pathikam. It is Kol aru parthikam. Anyway.

Mahēśvara, when I learn to separate myself from Prakṛti and its attributes, I the jīvātma will itself get the name paramātma. So I am called jīvātma when I take on the attributes of the Prakṛti and I talk about my date of birth, my age, my physical condition, etc. the attributed I is am jīvātma; but when I take the attributes and understand, they do not belong to me, but they belong to the Prakṛti alone. Handover unto Ceaser, what belongs to ceaser. Attributes belong to whom? Prakṛti. Give them to the Prakṛti. Attributeless-I am called paramātma. Attributed-I am called jīvātma. Whether I am attributed or attributeless will depend upon whether I am ignorant or wise. Therefore ignorant-I is jīvātma, wise-I is paramātma. Who says: Krishna says: Paramātma iti ukta. The very same I am called paramātma, Arjuna.

This is a mahāvākya. The jīvātma is equated to paramātma. Therefore this slōkā is another mahāvākya slōkā. Previously we had one mahāvākya.

क्षेत्रज्ञं चापि मां विद्धि सर्वक्षेत्रेषु भारत ॥

क्षेत्रक्षेत्रज्ञयोर्ज्ञानं यत्तज्ज्ञानं मतं मम ॥ १३.३॥

kṣētrajñam cāpi māṃ viddhi sarvakṣētrēṣu bhārata |

kṣētrakṣētrajñayōrjñānam yattajjñānam mataṃ mama || 13.3 ||

This is also another mahāvākya. You should not ask these fundamental questions. jīvātma paramātma aikya bodhaka vākya. A statement which reveals the oneness of jīvātma and paramātma.

न अभिजायते na abhijāyate is not born भूयः bhūyaḥ again सर्वथा अपि sarvathā api

in whatever manner वर्तमानः vartamānaḥ he lives

24. He who knows thus Puruṣa and prakṛti along with the guṇas, is not born again, in whatever manner he lives.

And here Krishna points out the clear knowledge about Prakṛti and Puruṣa will give a person will a great relief from the burden of saṃsāra. A life which appeared a struggle till now; a life which is very big drag, which is full of cares and worries, that life becomes a very very great relief, if I have made this discriminative knowledge and I have learned to claim I am Puruṣa and all the attributes belong to Prakṛti. This is called Puruṣa Prakṛti viveka jñānēna mōkṣaḥ. So phalam he gives.

य एवम् वेत्ति ya ēvaṃ vētti, suppose a person gains this knowledge; The first knowledge itself is that I am a mixture of Prakṛti and Puruṣa. I have told you the example, first when you see the hand, you will only say there is a hand; I have to tell you, it is not hand alone, there are two things here; and I have to tell you that the hand is pervaded by a light principle; the light falls on the hand; it gets reflected and according to the science, the reflected light travels and hits your retina; therefore it is not one; there are two things. Similarly when I use the word I, there is a Prakṛti and there is Puruṣaḥ. This is my first level of wisdom. Therefore Krishna says suppose a person knows this clearly, What? Puruṣam, means Nirguṇa, Nirvikāra, satya, cētana tatvam Puruṣa and Prakṛtim cha. Saguṇa, savikāra, mithya, acētana tatvam, both of them are distinctly knows. The separation between the light and the hand, we do not physically do, because light cannot be scrapped out of the hand; No. You need not separate here outside; the separation is an internal affair. It is a cognitive separation; it is not an external event. Similarly, body and ātma, physically need not separate and you cannot. It is a cognitive separation. Puruṣam and Prakṛtim vedha.

Not only that. He also knows guṇai saḥ. He also knows that there are many attributes, like fat, lean, old, bald, haired, all are physical attributes. There are subtle attributes like anger, envy, etc. They are all internal attributes, belonging to sukṣma śarīra guṇaḥ; stūla śarīra guṇaḥ; kāraṇa śarīra guṇas. Primarily what? Ignorance. So all the attributes I should know and how should I know; that all attributes belong to the śarīram which is Prakṛti. Whereas Puruṣa does not have stūla śarīra attributes; body is fat, I am not fat. What a relief. Otherwise everybody will ask: Why did not you go for walking, being obese. That does not mean that tomorrow onwards, you should stop your walking. Even though you are not fat, you can keep the body in good condition and therefore you can walk; it does not require an abhimāna. Similarly, all the emotions,

न मे द्वेषरागौ न मे लोभमोहौ

मदो नैव मे नैव मात्सर्यभावः .

न धर्मो न चार्थो न कामो न मोक्षः

चिदानंदरूपः शिवोऽहं शिवोऽहम् .. ३..

na mē dvēṣarāgau na mē lōbhamōhau madō naiva mē naiva mātsaryabhāvaḥ .

na dharmō na cārthō na kāmō na mōkṣaḥ cidānaṁdarūpaḥ śivō:'ham śivō:'ham .. 3..

Thus the one who has understood the difference between Prakṛti and Puruṣa very clearly and also one who has learned to train his mind to identify with Puruṣa. That training is called nidhidhyāsanam. For all transactions, you have to identify with Prakṛti. In any application form, when somebody asks for date of birth, you should not write Nil. Aham, na jāyathe, na mriyathe, etc. Application form etc. you should fill properly with correct dates. In all vyavahāra-transactions, we have to identify with Prakṛti and therefore we have to neutralize; we have to do prāyascitham for that; spend some time daily telling, for vyavahāra purposes for life's drama to go on. Like the Tamil saying, when you put a beggar's role and vesham, one should know how to beg, etc. Even though he might be a Rajanikant, very very rich person, when that vesham is put, he has to do that. Similarly, as a husband, or wife, father and son, laugh or cry. You also put the vesham and go the green room once in a while. In the green room, learn to say मनोबुद्ध्यहंकारचित्तानि नाहं, न च श्रोत्रजिह्वे न च घ्राणनेत्रे manōbuddhyahamkāracittāni nāham, na ca śrōtrajivhē na ca ghrāṇanētrē.

And once a person knows the whole life is a drama, then what is the advantage, सर्वथा वर्तमानोऽपि sarvathā vartamānō'pi. Let him play any role in his life or in her life because life is a series of role playing. You cannot avoid role playing. The moment you are born, whether you like or not, you are related to your parents as a child; you are related to siblings, as a brother or sister; and when your brother gets married, whether like it not, you become a brother-in-law or sister-in-law. So life is a series of role playing, and it would not be a tragedy, if you are aware of the fact that it is a role playing. When the role becomes serious, as a beggar, and take yourself to be a beggar, and after the drama is over, if you continue with the begging bowl, then there is some problem. Therefore, Krishna says: sarvathā vartamānō'pi. You need not change your role; if you are a brahmacāri, you can continue. If you are a grihastha, you need not change your varṇa, you need not change the āśrama, you do not change your profession; no external change is required; only an inner transformation is required. Once the transformation has taken place, any role, sarvathā vartamānaḥ, taking any role, vartamānō'pi, सः भूयो न अभिजायते sa: bhūyō na abhijāyatē. Such a jñāni does not have a rebirth at all. I do not have a punarjanma. And if somebody asks the question to a jñāni? jñāni jñāni, how do you know you do not have punarjanma, what is the guarantee that I will not be reborn; jñāni gives a very big smile. where is the question of rebirth; I have understood I am the atma which does not have the first janma itself; janma is what: What is the definition of janma; stūla sukṣma śarīra samyōgha, janma. And what is the definition of maraṇam; stūla sukṣma śarīra viyōgha, maraṇam. The mind is there, the body is there; now the mind and body are together; At the time of death happens; what happens, the mind and body snap their connection; body is here, mind with go away, saying tata. This mind-body separation is called maraṇam, and what is punar janmam, this travelling sukṣma śarīram, getting associated with another stūla śarīram; body-mind; new body association is called punarjanma. Mind is Puruṣa or Prakṛti? Prakṛti. Body is Puruṣa or Prakṛti? Prakṛti. Therefore Prakṛti one and Prakṛti two; Body is one type of Prakṛti and mind is one type of Prakṛti; two forms of Prakṛti, coming into contact is punarjanma; two forms of Prakṛti getting separated is maraṇam. And who am I; which form of Prakṛti I am? I am Prakṛti No.1 or Prakṛti No.2? I am neither Prakṛti one or Prakṛti two. Why should I bother about how countless bodies and mind, getting together and separated; I do not care, I am the Puruṣa, who does not have the first janma itself; where is the question of punarjanma. This wisdom is called mōkṣaḥ. Through this wisdom, I do not get liberated. Through this wisdom I know or I claim that I was liberated; I am liberated and I will ever be liberated. I am incapable of getting bound; that after this knowledge, even if you want to become a samsāri, you cannot be a samsāri.

With the 24th verse of the 13th chapter, Lord Krishna completes the last pair of topic, viz., the topic of Puruṣa and Prakṛti. He started the topic from verse No.20 and completed in verse No.24 and while concluding he pointed out that this knowledge is a liberating knowledge.

य एवम् वेत्ति पुरुषं प्रकृतिं च गुणैः सह । सर्वथा वर्तमानोऽपि न स भूयोऽभिजायते ॥ १३.२४ ॥
ya ēvaṁ vētti puruṣaṁ prakṛtiṁ ca guṇaiḥ saha |
sarvathā vartamānō'pi na sa bhūyō'bhi jāyate | | 13.24 | |

A person who knows that the body-mind complex is Prakṛti and also knows that I am, the Puruṣa that very wisdom releases him from the cycles of janma-maraṇam; because birth and deaths are only incidents happening in the plane of Prakṛti. The physical body is Prakṛti; the mind is also Prakṛti, the mind and the body coming together is called birth and the mind and the body separating is death. So when an individual dies, what happens is: the mind which was occupying the body quits the physical body and the body becomes an evacuated house as it were and therefore the body perishes. The separated mind, goes in search of another physical body and gets the body at the right time according to the Karma and the association with the new body is called janma. So śarīra-mana samyōgha janma; śarīra-mana viyōgaḥ maraṇam. Śarīram is also Prakṛti, manas is also Prakṛti and therefore their samyōga-viyōga; Samyōgam means association; Viyōgam dissociation, all are happening at the level of Prakṛti. And the jñāni is one who has a recognised the fact that I am the Puruṣa, in which there is neither samyōga nor viyōga and therefore where is the question of one birth itself? And when one birth itself is not possible; where is the question of re-birth, the second birth? And therefore Krishna concluded Bhuyaha saha na abhi jayathe. He gets mukthi or freedom from this cycle. And with this Krishna has completed all the six topics that Arjuna wanted to know: Kṣētra, kṣētrajña, jñānam, jñēyam, Prakṛti and Puruṣa.

And therefore Krishna's task is over now. And therefore he wants to wind-up the discussion in the following verses from 25 up to the 35. We will read.

ध्यानेनऽऽत्मनि पश्यन्ति केचिदात्मानमात्मना।

अन्ये साङ्ख्येन योगेन कर्मयोगेन चापरे ॥ १३.२५ ॥

Karma yōga

25. Some (seekers) see the Self in the mind with the mind through meditation. Some others (see) through Jñānayōga. Some others (see) through Karmayōga.

In these 11 verses, 25 to 35, including both verses Lord Krishna deals with jñāna sādhanāni and jñāna phalam. So what are the preparatory disciplines which will lead a person to self-knowledge and what are the benefits that this person will enjoy. First Krishna emphasis the ultimate goal of all spiritual sādhanās is self-knowledge only. Let there not be any doubt in that. The ultimate goal is ātmani ātmana ātmānam paśyanthi. ātmani means in oneself. Because the all-pervading ātma is available within one's own body-mind complex and therefore I need not identify the ātma elsewhere. I have to discover the ātma in myself. Therefore, ātmani means within oneself, as we saw in Taitariyam. Yō Vēda Niṣdam Guhāyam Paramevyōman. Therefore, ātmani means hṛdaya ākāśē.

So ātmani paśyanthi and what do they see or know? Ātmānam paśyanthi. ātmānam means the satcidananda ātma. So the first ātmani refers to the hṛdaya ākāśam; the second ātmānam does not refer to hrdaya ākāśam, the word ātmaanam means satcidananda ātmānam. Thus, a seeker has to recognise the ātma in his own hrdayam. And with what instrument should a person gain the knowledge. The instrument of knowledge is ātmana. So 3 ātma is there; confusing. Ātmani, ātmānam, ātmana paśyanthi. 7th case ātma, 2nd case ātma, 3rd case ātma. 7th case ātma means within one's own hrdayam; 2nd case ātma means satchidananda ātma and now we have to see the 3rd case ātma, What is the instrument? The instrument is one's own buddhi. ātmana means buddhya. Because every knowledge is to be acquired only through the instrument of buddhi. There is no other instrument which can gain knowledge. So body cannot get knowledge; Of course ātma by itself cannot get knowledge; any knowledge has to be through the instrumentality of buddhi; But what type of buddhi? A refined buddhi; aided by, supported by guru-śāstra-upadeśa. A refined and guru-śāstra-upadeśa supported buddhi has to gain the knowledge. Śāṅkārācārya uses the expression śāstra-ācārya-samskṛita-antakaranēṇa. With the help of the mind, which is supported by guru-śāstra upadeśa. So with that mind, one has to gain ātma-jñānam. And if this ātma jñānam is the culmination, the ultimate sādhanā, the question is how many preparatory stages are there for reaching this climax.

So what are the preparatory steps a person has to go through for the climax of self-recognition through the mind within oneself. And these are presented the stages or presented in different ways in different contexts and one type of presentation which is intended here is five-fold stages. A person has to go through five stages to reach this culmination. In each stage one gets rid of one obstacle for self-knowledge. Each stage helps in removing one, one obstacle. Pratibanda nivṛithiḥ. What are the five stages and what are the obstacles removed? I have dealt with this in the 12th chapter also. And also in some other context; I will remind you those five stages; I am not going to elaborate.

The first stage called Karma yōga stage, wherein the mental impurities are removed. In Sanskrit it is called mala-nivṛithiḥ. Malam means dirt; what are the impurities? rāga, dvēṣa, kāma, krōdhaḥ, lōbhaḥ, mōhaḥ, madha, mātsaryam, etc. etc. Still more. Thus Karma yōga helps in the removal of malam and it refines the mind.

Then the next stage of sādhanā is called Upāsana or meditation upon saguṇa Īśvara; the Lord with attributes or glories. And this upāsana helps in the removal of the next obstacle; that obstacle is called Vikṣēpa; otherwise called bahirmukhatvam. The restlessness of the mind, the extrovertedness of the mind is the 2nd obstacle, upāsana helps in the mind's focusing capacity. It integrates the mind. It harmonises the mind. It gives the focusing power and the extrovertedness, the outgoing mind is withdrawn. So therefore the 2nd sādhanā is called upāsana. What is the obstacle removed? Therefore Vikṣēpa nivṛtti. Means removal.

And the third stage is called Vēdānta śravaṇam. Systematically and consistently studying the upaniṣadic or Vēdāntic scriptures under the guidance of a competent ācārya; which is called śravaṇam, which will help in the elimination of ajñānam, self-ignorance. So the third obstacle is ajñānam, which is removed through śravaṇam. So karmaṇa mala nivṛtti, upāsanēna Vikṣēpa nivṛtti, śravaṇēna ajñāna nivṛtti, (3 steps are over);

Then the fourth stage of sādhanā is called mananam. Asking myself whether am I convinced of the teaching given by the teacher and the scriptures. Am I intellectually satisfied, because any knowledge should convince the intellect. As long as there are doubts or reservation, that doubt is an obstacle. A doubtful knowledge is as good as ignorance.

And therefore mananēna, by raising all questions and finding out the answer; either by my own enquiry or with the help of the ācārya. Therefore, the 4th stage is mananam and what is the benefit is śamśaya Nivṛtti. Converting knowledge into conviction. Removal of the intellectual obstacle.

And then comes fifth and final stage of sādhanā called nidhidhyāsanam, which is meant to remove my habitual reaction; the removal of vāsanā, because of my regular unhealthy responses in life, I have developed a habit.

And habit is developed in-time and habit can go only in-time. This deliberate invocation of the Vēdānta, so that I can get rid of unvēdāntic reactions in life. Every disturbing reaction is unvēdāntic reaction. So anxiety, frustration, self-pity, sense of insecurity, fear, attachment; all of them are unhealthy vāsanās. This vāsanā nivṛtti or viparītha bhāvana nivṛtti is the fifth and final stage called nidhidhyāsanam.

And every body has to go through all the five stages. They are not optional stages. They are compulsory for all. But suppose, a person has gone through the first two or three stages in this life, and then without completing the journey he dies; suppose.

Each stage takes long time. And if a person dies without the completion, the advantage is in the next janma, the journey need not begin with Karma yōga; The journey can be like getting transfer certificate from one school; and in the next school the child can go to the 6th standard; why in the earlier school, he has passed the 5th. and therefore, depending upon a person's spiritual evaluation, a person should start either from karma yōgah, or from upāsana or from sravana; either all the five, one to five, or two to five, or three to five, or four to five. One to five, means karma, upāsana, śravaṇam, mananam, nidhidhyāsanam. Like that. And in the case of spiritual prodigies, extraordinary spiritual prodigies is different. Spiritual prodigy means the one who has gone through the first four stages in the purva janma. Prodigy means that. There is no other specialty. Already the four stages are passed through in the pūrva janma and therefore, in this janma, the prodigy has to go through only the fifth stage. śravaṇam need not be done. There is no need of any guru itself. A great relief, it seems! They do not require śravaṇam, mananam, all those things. Even from early stage, they feel that they have gone through these stages. For them it is a very very walk over for them.

But seeing those people I should not argue; that I would start doing like that. Because everybody is a spiritual prodigy. And therefore Krishna says: Karma yōgēna apare paśyanthi. Some seekers start from karma yōga itself, because they require to go through all the five stages. Why because there are powerful rāga-dvēṣa, kāma-krōdhaḥ obstacle. and here the word karma yōga includes the 2nd stage also. Krishna does not mention, we have to supply; Some other people start from the 2nd stage, viz., upāsana. So karma yōga, refers to the 1st two stages.

And there are some other people, they come with a refined mind, with an integrated mind; and they are naturally not interested in material things; in early childhood itself they are attracted to spirituality. For them, they can start with the third or fourth stage. And that is indicated by anye saṅkyēna yōgēna. The word sankya indicates the third and fourth stages. Third stage is what? Forgotten? śraṇēna, or mananēna; depending upon where they stand. So saṅkya refers to śravaṇam and mananam and there are some rare people who have gone thorough all the four stages in the purva janma. This Lord Krishna discussed in the 6th chapter of the Gītā. Listened to it very long ago? Forgotten the 6th chapter itself. Looks like the purva janma. It is like that. tatra taṃ buddhisamyōgaṃ labhatē paurvadēhikam. This person gets saṁbhanda with purva janma jñānam. Even he does not know how he got the saṁbandam. For those people, they require to go through only the final stage, i.e. said here, dhyānēna ātmani paśyathi. So dhyānam refers to nidhidhyāsanam, the final stage, which is a reinforcement; reassertion of what they have gathered. In one of the Upaniṣads. Aithareya upaniṣad, it talks about a Ṛṣi Vāmadēvā, who declared Aham Brahmāsmi in the womb of the mother itself.

निरदीयमिति . गर्भ एवैतच्छयानो वामदेव एवमुवाच .. II. ५ taduktamṛṣiṇā garbhē nu sannanvēṣāmvēdamahaṁ dēvānāṁ janimāni viśvā śataṁ mā pura āyasīrarakṣannadhaḥ śyēnō javasā niradiyamiti . garbha ēvaitacchayānō vāmadēva ēvamuvāca ..II. 5

How come the mother herself does not know Aham Brahmāsmi? And in the mother's womb itself; how can Vāmadēvā declare and he cannot do śravaṇam in the mother's womb, how does it happen, if you ask, 95% job over in purva janma. Here it is a little bit left out and therefore for those spiritual prodigies, meditation is: what type of meditation nidhidyāsana meditation is enough and depending upon my level I have to take to five, four, three, two or one sādhanā.

अन्ये त्वेवमजानन्तः श्रुत्वाऽन्येभ्य उपासते।

तेऽपि चातितरन्त्येव मृत्युं श्रुतिपरायणाः॥ १३.२६॥

anyē tvēvamajānantaḥ śrutvā'nyēbhya upāsatē |

tē'pi cātitarantyeva mṛtyum śrutiparāyaṇāḥ | | 13.26 | |

अजानन्तः एवम् ajānantaḥ evam not knowing thus, अन्ये तु anye tu some others उपासते upāstate pursue (Self-knowledge), श्रुत्वा अन्येभ्यः śrutvā anyebhyaḥ by hearing from others, श्रुतिपरायणाः śrutiparāyaṇāḥ being committed to listening, ते अपि te api they also, एव च अतितरन्ति eva ca atitaranti definitely cross over मृत्युम् mṛtyum mortality.

26 Not knowing thus, some others pursue (self-knowledge) by hearing from others. Being committed to listening, they also definitely cross over mortality.

So here Krishna points out that Vēdānta śravaṇam need not necessarily be the study of the original scriptures themselves. We do not insist that one should study Upaniṣad only; Gītā only; Brahmasūtra only; we do not insist upon the text; we insist upon the teaching part only. Therefore if there is a guru who does not teach the Gītā upaniṣad or Brahma sūtra or pañcadaśi etc. but he takes the essence of all these books and presents in a different language; without touching any of these books, in his own language, maybe English, may be vernacular, may be Russian, may be Chinese, Vēdānta does not refer to the actual language, Vēdānta refers to the content teaching. As Dayananda swami says, You are the Whole, this teaching is Vēdānta, whatever be the language. You are the Whole (hole, what spelling? Put it correctly, h o l e, if you put it is a problem; it is the state now. Therefore pūrṇam, adaḥ pūrṇam idaṃ; I am full and complete; this wisdom it may be in a South American language, we do not care, and therefore Krishna says there are some people who do not have access to the originals but still they gather the teaching from other people; from the Gurus, the Gurus themselves have the knowledge of the originals. Even if I do not know the original, it does not matter, I can gain mōkṣa, if even I am taught in any language.

अन्ये तु anyē tu; there are some other people, एवम् अजानन्तः ēvam ajānantaḥ, they do not gain the knowledge through the original scriptures; the most original and fundamental scriptures being the upaniṣads, they might not study the upaniṣads, or prasthāna thrayās, consisting of Upaniṣads, Gītā and Brahmasūtra, they do not study. Evam refers the traditional scriptural study, they do not do; but what do they do? Anyebhya struthva. So they go to some ācārya, who has studied the original and who is capable of paraphrasing, arranging and systematically communicating, in what language? In any language that the student can grasp. That is why in India you can find that in every State, Vēdāntic wisdom is there in vernacular language. Even in the folk songs there is Vēdānta. Whether you take Malayalam; one lady sang a laluby, whatever you say, to put the baby to sleep they have some traditional song. And she sang those songs, in which the avastha thraya sākṣi, etc. are coming. And the lady also did not know what it is and of course the baby also. And after attending the class, she says I never knew that even in the songs to put the babies to sleep, there is Vēdānta. Similarly in Hindi and all other languages. Similarly take Abaṅgās of Tukaram, Namadev, etc. and see. Vēdānta is there. You gain the knowledge through any source. Source is not important, the content is important.

If a person knows the content without studying the Upaniṣad, he is liberated; on the other hand, fill up the blanks. Another person who has gone through all the Upaniṣad, but does not know the content, he is not liberated. Therefore Krishna says अन्येभ्यः श्रुत्वा उपासते anyēbhyaḥ śrutvā upāsate. They follow the sādānā of understanding and assimilating and Krishna says: Tē api; even those people who are śṛuti parāyaṇa, who are committed to the words of the Guru.

They are not exposed to the words of the scriptures; they do not know; but they are committed to the words of the guru; so śṛuti parāyaṇaḥ, means guru vākya śravaṇa parāyaṇaḥ. Here for śṛuti you should not take Vēdā. Here śṛuti means the Guru vākya śravaṇam. In any other language; parāyaṇa; committed to that as much śraddhaḥ a person has got, in the Vēdā, this disciple has got so much śraddhaḥ in the guru vākya; śṛuti parāyaṇaḥ,

Such committed students also मृत्युं तरन्त्येव mṛtyuṃ tarantyeva; certainly cross mortality. Finitude; otherwise called samsārah. That means that they will also attain moksha. So what a broad vision. And therefore even if in the olden days Vēdā was not accessible to all people. They kept some of the scriptures secret for some reasons but even though the originals were not accessible to all; the content of the scriptures were accessible to all people at all the times. Whether a person is Brahmaṇa, Kṣatriya, Vaisya, Sūdra, Brahmācāri, Grihastha, Vānaprastha, Sanyāsi, male, female, Hindu, Christian, or Muslim, anyone, whether the originals were accessible or not; the contents in one form or the other was accessible. What liberates is not the vedah, but liberates is the content-teaching in the Vēdāh. Even if one does not study Vēdās, any can get liberation, Krishna declares.

27. Whatever being, moving or stationary, is born --- know that to be out of the union of kṣētram and kṣētrajña, Oh, Arjuna !

In the previous two verses, Lord Krishna pointed out that everybody has to go through all the stages of sādhanā and also he said all the sādhanās should culminate in ātma jñānam. ātmani ātmanāḥ ātmānam pasyanthi. To ātma jñānam everybody has to come to. The purification of the mind through karma yōgah can be accomplished through different types of activities; we have choice; may be japa, may be pūja, may be social service; one has a choice here; but everybody ultimately has to go through the door of jñānam. That is why Swami Dayananda beautiful says, a temple might have four doors, four gopurams, but the grabha griham has got only one door. Four doors are there for the temple, only one door is there to the Lord.

Similarly, for preparation many doors are there, but for moksha, there is only one door; jñānam. This Krishna mentioned in the previous two verses. Naturally we will have a question, why do we insist on jñānam. It looks as though we are adamant, as though we are fanatic; Why are we so insistent? Krishna says it is not fanaticism or adamancy, but that happens to be the fact. If I say darkness can be removed only by light; it is not fanaticism; I cannot have compromise or consideration; you can remove darkness by broomstick; is not possible; I cannot afford to accept many paths, not because I am narrow-minded, but the fact is that the darkness goes only by light. So if still you charge me with fanaticism, Dayananda Swamiji says: Better I be a fanatic rather than a lunatic.

And why do we say that it is a fact. Krishna says because samsāra is caused by ignorance and error. Samsāraḥ is caused by ignorance and error. What is the ignorance and what is the error? I am the Puruṣaḥ, this fact I am ignorant. Puruṣaḥ, not male-female Puruṣa. Vēdāntic Puruṣa we saw; that is the 4 things you ought to remember: Cētana, nirguṇa, nirvikāra, sathya, cētana tatvam Puruṣa, purṇa Puruṣaḥ aham; this fact I am ignorant of. This is called the ignorance problem.

And this ignorance has led to an error; and what is that error? Since I do not know I am the Puruṣaḥ, I have chosen to identify myself with Prakṛti. When I do not know I am ātma; I mistake myself to be anātma. This is what is happening in dream also. When I forget this body of mine during sleep, the ignorance of this body leads to my identification with what? The svapna śarīram. Why do I identify with the dream body? Because I am ignorant of this body, which is lying on the bed. And that is why the moment I wake up to this physical body, automatically, I decide to disidentify from the dream body. And therefore, Puruṣa ajñānam has lead to Prakṛti abhimanam. Do you understand. Puruṣa ajñānam has lead to Prakṛti abhimana, or to put in another language, kṣētrajña abhimānam has led to kṣētra abhimāna. Abhimāna means identification. ātma ajñānam has led to anātma abhimāna. Or in English self-ignorance has led to body identification.

And therefore Krishna says: kṣētra kṣētrajña samyōgāt, because of the samyōgaḥ, samyōgha means abhimāna, identification of "I" the kṣētrajña on what? the body the kṣētram. So samyōgaḥ means identification, mistaking; in English itself, mistake means what? You miss the original and take the wrong one; called miss take. I miss the Puruṣa and take the Prakṛti as myself. This is called kṣētra kṣētrajña samyōga, ātma-anātma adhyāsaḥ. Śankarācārya, in his most famous introduction to Brahma Sūtra, he writes a bhāṣyam called adhyāsa bhāṣyam. Just one and half pages only he writes. The commentators and sub-commentators and sub-sub-commentators they write a huge book on it and you know what is adhyāsaḥ, kṣētra-kṣētrajña samyōgaḥ. I, the Cētana tatvam, take myself to be the material body. I, the consciousness, take myself to be the matter. See the great foolishness. But we successfully manage; not only we manage, we successfully perpetuate also; I am the body; i am the body.

And because of the dēha abhimāna, there are two fold problem; the first problem is: I the immortal Puruṣa mistake myself to be the mortal body. Therefore mortality I take to myself. Finitude I take to myself. And once finitude comes, I cannot withstand the limitations in life and therefore start the grabbing project. Bring to me, Bring to me, give me; I grab, so that I, the finite can become, the desire is to get rid of finitude.

And therefore apūrṇathvam leads to kāma; Kāma leads to karma, karma leads to puṇya pāpam, puṇya pāpa leads to sukha duḥkha, and later to punar janma. In fact entire cycle of birth and death is dēha abhimāna.

And therefore Krishna says यावत् सत्त्वं सञ्चयते yāvat sattvaṁ sañcāyatē. Sattvaṁ means living being, Every living being is born; goes through the cycles of births and death; स्थावरजङ्गमम् sthāvarajaṅgamam, whether it is a non-moving living being; what is the non-moving living being: the trees; naga siṣyaḥ (we saw in the morning), the trees are called sthāvara prāṇi; and all the other animals etc. human being, they are all called jaṅgama satvam. So sthāvara satvam, non-moving prāṇis, jaṅgama satvam, moving prāṇis; all these go through jāyathe; birth and death only because of fundamental mistake; I am the body is the mistake.

इदि विदि iti viddhi. Arjuna you understand and this body identification is a mistake and every mistake is born of ignorance. Every error is a product of ignorance. And therefore if an error has to be eliminated, you can never attack the error directly, you have to attack the cause of the error. What is cause? Ajñānam. If you have to destroy a tree, cutting the branches would not accomplish that. You go on cutting the branches; what happens? it comes again and again. Never destroy the symptom; destroy the disease. An ideal medicine is that which destroys the disease not the symptom. And that is what is indicated through Rāvana vadham also. Rāma destroys the heads of Rāvana. The heads indicate the errors. And Rāma keeps on cutting the heads, the head keeps on coming. And then Rāma is frustrated. Then Agasthya comes and does the upadēśa of Aditya Hṛdayam, which is the essence of Vēdānta. And the brahmāstra is meant to strike the Hṛdayam dēśam. Do not cut the head which is an error; but in the Hṛdayam, ignorance is there; by tatvamasi brahmāsmi, destroy the ajñānam here. Then the heads will not come again and again. And therefore Jñānam destroys ajñānam and ajñānam destroys error or adhyāsa. With that problems are solved.

And therefore Arjuna jñānat ēva mōkṣa; in which Yuga. That is also a confusion. In which Yuga? In which Yuga darkness goes by light? Any yuga, if darkness has to be removed, you need light. So in Kali yuga bhakthi is the way to mōkṣa, we will never accept. Whether it is dvapara yuga, treta yuga or kali yuga, to remove ajñānam, one needs jñānam. There is only one remedy, jñānam. So thus Krishna talked about sādhanās in these three verses; 25, 26 and 27.

समं सर्वेषु भूतेषु तिष्ठन्तं परमेश्वरम्।

विनश्यत्स्वविनश्यन्तं यः पश्यति स पश्यति ॥ १३.२८॥

samaṃ sarvēṣu bhūtēṣu tiṣṭhantaṃ paramēśvaram |

vinaśyatsvavinaśyantaṃ yaḥ paśyati sa paśyati || 13.28 ||

सः sah He,यः पश्यति yaḥ paśyati who sees परमेश्वरम् parameśvaram the supreme Lord, तिष्ठन्तम् tiṣṭantam who dwells समम् samam alike सर्वेषु भूतेषु sarveṣu bhūteṣu in all beings अविनश्यन्तम् avinaśyantam and who is imperishable विनश्यत्सु vinaśyatsu among the perishables पश्यति paśyati (alone really) sees.

28. He who sees the supreme Lord who dwells alike in all beings and who is imperishable, (alone really) sees.

So from this verse onwards, Krishna talks about the benefit of this knowledge. Jñāna phalam. There are several benefits and Krishna enumerates a few of them and the first benefit mentioned here is sarvatra sama darśanam. Seeing one ātma, seeing means not with the physical eye, through the eye of wisdom; jñāna cakṣu, being aware of the changeless ātma which is in and through all the changing anātma. Body changes; mind changes; thoughts change; all these change; but in and through all of them, the caitanya tatvam, the consciousness does not undergo a change. Just as there is one water permanent water; in and through the changing impermanent waves and bubbles; in and through the changing bodies and mind; there is the changeless ātma; the wise person does not lose sight of that.

Therefore, he says: विनश्यत्सु सर्वेषु भूतेषु vinaśyatsu sarveṣu bhūteṣu. Here Bhūtha means what? The body mind complex, which are innumerable. Just as waves are innumerable, there are innumerable infinite number of bhūtams, body-mind-complex, and what type of body-mind-complex, vinaśyatsu, which are subject to birth and death; like the waves rising and setting; and all of them are viṣamam in nature. viṣamam, different. Physically everyone of us is different; mentally you do not have to ask; intellectually different; thus there are difference all through; and amidst the different innumerable perishable bodies, समं परमेश्वरम् samaṁ parameśvaram, there is one imperishable thing. You call it either sat principle the existence, or you call it cit principle, the consciousness, that sat cit ātma is called parameśvara. Here Krishna says that parameśvaram is not somebody sitting above the clouds. That are all LKG, they are the first lessons; but parameśvaram is who? the very changeless ātma in everyone. Īśvara sarvabhūtānam ḥṛddēśe. Yō vēdā nihitam guhāyām paramēvyō man; dēhō dēvalaya prōkta; body is the temple and the ātma is the Lord; Wise person is one who does not loose sight of the Lord while transacting. So at the level of the conscious mind, I am aware of the impermanent and changing bodies and mind, but in the background, the wise man or wise women, wise person; let us be safe, the wise person does not lose sight of the ātma; that is why our very greeting is what?; Not hi ~ Swami Chinmayananda used to say that we used to say hi, to manage the cows and the horses ~ now the American culture we say hi ~ it is not hi ~ Namaste means what. Ātma in you and the ātma in me; both of them are one and the same and to remind that alone we have some indication, either put chandanam, or kumkum or vibhuthi or thiruman or anything that is to remind the presence of the divinity in you and me.

And if I am aware of the permanent one, I will not depend upon the impermanent for security. If I am aware of the permanent one, I will handle the impermanent but I will not depend on the impermanent one; just as a drowning man trying to catch hold of a straw. What will happen? He will go down with that. So Krishna says samaṁ sarvēṣu bhūtēṣu tiṣṭhantaṁ paramēśvaram Ātmānam yaḥ paśyathi. One who does not lose sight of this ātma; that is one who has got sama darśanam, advaita darśanam, abēda darśanam, स पश्यति saḥ paśyathi; he alone has got the right vision; he is called a seer.

A sage is called a seer even though we also see so many things, nobody calls us a seer; Why? எதை பார்த்துமோ அதை தவிர வேறே எல்லாம் பாற்கரோம் (because we see all other things except that which has to be seen). So the one who sees that thing to be seen is called Seer. Such a person is called a பார்ப்பான். pārpān. Pārpān means the seer is called Pārpān. Every body should become pārpān.

Om

Up to the 24th verse, Lord Krishna dealt with all the six topics that Arjuna wanted to know. Prakṛti, Puruṣa, Kṣētram, kṣētrajña, jñānam and jñēyam. And thereafter, from verse No.25 up to 27th in three verses, Lord Krishna talked about the sādhanās or preparatory disciplines required to gain this knowledge. Knowledge given in the first 24 verses. And he talked about all the levels of sādhanā, starting from Karma Yoga; then passing through Upāsana, then Śravaṇam, Mananam and Nidhidhyāsanam and the culmination of the sādhanā should be only in knowledge.

And also Krishna pointed out why he is insisting on knowledge, the reason is that the problem of samsāra is because of a error with regard to our perception of ourselves. So self-error, or error with regard to self-understanding is the problem and any error is caused by ignorance alone and therefore without the removal of ignorance, self delusion cannot go away. And therefore, knowledge is compulsory and through the knowledge self-delusion goes away and through that the samsāra also goes away. Thus the sādhanās were talked about in three verses from verse 25 to 27 and then from 28 onwards Lord Krishna is talking about the phalam, the benefit of this knowledge.

And this benefit Krishna presents in various ways. In the 28 verse, the phalam that he talks about is right perceptive of the world. The right vision of the world, the complete understanding of the world which we call samyak darśanam. A proper perceptive.

And what is this proper perceptive. This is purely based on the teaching; the teaching being, that the whole universe is a mixture of Prakṛti and Puruṣa, because the whole universe is born out of Prakṛti and Puruṣa and therefore the universe will be a mixture of the two. Just as every child will have the features of both the parents; the father and mother; Prakṛti and Puruṣa together are like the parents and therefore, the universe is a mixture of both.

And our vision will be right vision and balanced vision only if we are aware both the Prakṛti aspect as well as the Puruṣa aspect. If we are going to be preoccupied with Prakṛti and lose sight of Puruṣa, then also problem. If we are going to be preoccupied with Puruṣa and lose sight of Prakṛti, then also problem. A right balanced vision is being aware of both Puruṣa and Prakṛti; not only in the entire creation; every living being, every human being is also a mixture of Prakṛti and Puruṣa. The only thing is the Prakṛti part of a human being is physically perceptible because it is made up of solid tangible matter. Prakṛti being saṁguṇa, (do you remember), saṁguṇa, savikāra, mithya, acētaṇa tatvam. It is visible to the fleshy physical eyes; whereas the Puruṣa being Nirguṇa, Nirvikāra, Sathya, Cētaṇa tatvam. It will not be visible to the physical eye but it has to be appreciated through our understanding. Just as when I look at the fan, only one aspect of the fan is visible to the eyes and that is the physical part of the fan; but behind the physical part, there is an non-tangible invisible electricity principle, which the eyes do not see but the jñāna cakṣu; physics jñāna cakṣu gives me the appreciation. What I see is one; what I appreciate is a mixture of two. The visible and the invisible. Similarly when I look at every living being, what the eyes see is one, but with the other called, śāstra jñāna cakṣu, which is called the third eye of wisdom; jñāna cakṣu has to "see"; what do you mean by seeing? Appreciating and understanding the invisible Puruṣa in every one. It is not that the Lord Śiva has only got the third eye; we all should acquire the third eye. The two eyes will see the Prakṛti, the third नेत्रत्रिकण; netri kan and that they say is symbolically indicated by the tilakam that we wear. Now nobody wears it; especially the younger generation feel ashamed to put the pottu. Our śāstras say that it represents the third eye of wisdom and why do you put on the netthi. Why not on the face? Why do you put there? Because in the tantra śāstra, they talk about various chakras, symbolically and there is supposed to be a cakra called ājñā chakra; and ājñā means pūrṇa jñānam. ā being pūrṇam and jñā means jñānam. So this third eye symbolised through ājñā cakram and tilakam is supposed to be the invisible eye, which is aware of the Puruṣa also.

And of these two principles, the Prakṛti part will be subject to change; savikāram; the Puruṣa part is not subject to change; Prakṛti part is variable from individual to individual; varṇa bhēda is there; āsrama bhēda is there; liṅga bhēda is there; it is viṣamam; whereas Puruṣa is samam in all the people.

Therefore, Krishna says samaṃ sarvēṣu bhūtēṣu tiṣṭhantaṃ paramēśvaram. This eye will be seeing what? viṣamam paśyati. So the local physical eye, even without the study of scriptures, you do not require a guru or a śāstra or vēdānta, without any training the physical eyes are going to see the viṣamam bhūtāni; anitya bhūtāni; the śāstra cakṣu should help me in seeing what; viṣamam anitya bhūtēṣu sama nitya ātma darśanam. Darśanam not with the physical eyes but with the third eye of wisdom through vēdāntic study.

And therefore Krishna said: sarvēṣu bhūtēṣu viṣamam anitya Prakṛtiṣu samam Puruṣam. Here the word paramēśvaram indicates Puruṣa. Do not imagine a personal God is sitting in everyone. Here, the word paramēśvara represents Nirguṇa, Nirvikāra, Sathya, Cētana Tatvam paramēśvaram, yaḥ paśyati. And that does not mean in his preoccupation with Puruṣa darśanam, he loses sight of Prakṛti; he sees the Prakṛti also, he is also aware of the Puruṣa. Just as I appreciate both the fan aspect as well as the electricity aspect. And according to the context, he emphasises Prakṛti or Puruṣa.

As I said, when somebody asks who are you?, or bio-data, somebody asks, in that context I am nirguṇa, nirvikāra, sathya cētana tatvam you should not say; context you can identify with Prakṛti and handle. But there are occasions when Prakṛti problems. Mortality frightens. Actions become a burden. Life becomes a bore. And when a person troubled by life, when it appears noisy, constant activity and becomes a drag, then a person requires a different channel. This channel problem, what should you do. Change the channel. When you look for stability, when you look for permanence, when you for pūrṇathvam, then the Prakṛti will not be able to provide; in fact all the higher needs of human beings, Prakṛti will not provide. It is very useful and entertaining in all transactions; But whenever there is a higher need; sometime people tell, one lady was telling me; Swamiji I have everything but I am missing something. I do not have anything to complain, because wonderful husband, wonderful children, beautiful house, no water problem; and the business is going well; I cannot give any complaint at all; but there is something missing. This is called higher spiritual need; when such a need comes, I should be able to withdraw from Prakṛti and own up the Puruṣa tatvam. Which alone gives peace, pūrṇathvam, security, immortality, stability, etc. And once you are rejuvenated and fresh, then you are ready for all the activities. Like getting up after sleep. Therefore, that balanced vision of Puruṣa and Prakṛti; not losing sight of Puruṣa in and through the transaction is called ātma niṣṭā. They call it sahaja samadhi. Sahaja samadhi means in and through all the transactions, not losing sight of the Puruṣa tatvam. Up to this we saw in the last class.

Continuing.

समं पश्यन् हि सर्वत्र समवस्थितमीश्वरम्।

न हिनस्त्यात्मनाऽऽत्मानं ततो याति परां गतिम् ॥ १३.२९ ॥

samaṃ paśyan hi sarvatra samavasthitamīśvaram |

na hinastyātmanā"tmānaṃ tatō yāti parāṃ gatim | | 13.29 | |

हि hi for समम् samam uniformly पश्यन् paśyan seeing ईश्वरम् īśvaram the Lord
समवस्थितं सर्वत्र samavasthitam sarvatra who dwells everywhere alike न हिनस्ति na hinasti आत्मानम् ātmanam he does not ruin himself आत्मना ātmanā by himself ततः tataḥ thereby याति yāti he attains, परां गतिम् parāṃ gatim the supreme goal. Freedom from insecurity is Moksha.

29. For, uniformly seeing the Lord who dwells everywhere alike, he does not ruin by himself. Thereby he attains the supreme goal.

So the previous verse gave the first phalam and first phalam is what: right vision: samyak darśanam and which is a very very anti-depression tablet. So once in a while, everybody goes through either serious or mild depression; anti-depression tablets will all create problems; what is the best tablet; this darśanam is the only permanent solution; samyak darśanam.

Then in this verse, Krishna gives the second benefit of this knowledge, which is amruthathva prapthi. Transcending mortality. Or immortality is the second benefit. As the prayer goes asatō ma sat gamaya, tamasō ma jyōtir gamaya, mrutyōrma amrutam gamaya. Ma means, Me, please take me from untruth to truth from darkness to light, from mortality to immortality.

The word 'ma' also means 'do not'. You should understand very clearly. If you take that meaning, what will happen? It will mean, do not take me to truth. Let me continue in the untruth. Here Ma is not the indeclinable Ma; it is declinable Dvithiya vibakthihi, Ekavachanam; Take me. That amrutathva prāp̄thi is the benefit he gives. Samam p̄syan. This wise person learns to have the sama darśanam, in and through the vishama darśanam, which is required for transaction. Transaction requires vishama darśanam. Even at the end of the class, when you see several chappals, there you should not say: Sarvatra sama darśanam. You cannot walk away with another's chappal. There you should have the Viṣama darśanam; this is their chappal; this is my chappal, etc. Transaction requires Viṣama darśanam, but behind, samam p̄syan sarvatra, sarvatra means in and through all the transactions p̄syan, sṛnvan, spr̄san, jhnan. Because the moment you lose sight of the sama darśanam, Prakṛti will frighten you. It is like the dream. The moment you lose sight of the fact that you are lying down on the bed comfortably; that is forgotten, the dream is capable of frightening You. The moment you lose sight of the screen in a movie, the characters become more real than they actually are, and the movie can terribly frighten you; not only at that time, afterwards when you go home also. Similarly, the moment Puruṣa is lost sight of, Prakṛti becomes a nightmare. And therefore samam p̄syan sarvathra; in all the states, all the conditions. What does he see; समवस्थितमीश्वरम् sama vasistitham īśvaram. Again īśvaram here means Puruṣa the ātma. It is not ēkarūpa īśvaram that is talked about here; not even aneka rupa īśvaram. Anēka rūpa īśvara was discussed in the 11th chapter, whereas here the īśvaram neither referring to ēkarūpa īśvara nor the Anēka rūpa īśvara but Arūpa īśvaram, free from all attributes. Therefore only samam, which is same in everyone.

And sama vasistitham, which is very much present as the very adhiṣṭānam, the support of Prakṛti. Because Puruṣa is sathyam, Prakṛti is Mithya, without the support of Puruṣa, Prakṛti cannot exist. Just as without the support of the screen, the movie does not exist. Whether you are aware of the screen or not; screen alone supports the movie. Similarly, samyak adhistanathvena avasthitham. īśvaram p̄syan. The wise person sees all the time; in all these places, p̄syan, should not be taken as physically perceiving; but appreciating through jñāna cakṣu.

And what is the benefit he attains; परं गतिम् याति parāṁ gatim yāti. He attains the highest goal of immortality. Amruthathvam yāti. He attains immortality. He thereafter does not subject himself to mortality. And here Krishna presents that in a beautiful way that this jñāni does not destroy himself thereafter. So according to Krishna, every ajñāni_samsāri is destroying himself. Even though he puts the blame on the world and the people, according to Vēdānta, world does not create any problem because of ignorance, we are killing ourselves. We are all self-destructive people. This is based on the Īśāvāsya Upaniṣad which says Everyone is committing a suicide. Everyone is committing a suicide. How? Śankarācārya explains this in two different ways beautifully: we will see both meanings; interesting.

How does a person destroy himself? Because of the self-ignorance, ignorance of the fact that I am ātma, he identifies with the body, the anātma. So ignorance leads to body identification. And once I identify with the body I become a kartā. As ātma I am not a kartā, but once Dēhabhimāna comes, I become a kartā. And as a Kartā, means Doer of actions. As a kartā I perform varieties of actions, earning puṇya papāh karmāṇi. And therefore what are my earnings? Whether in the local bank any deposit is there or not, in our other bank we have got a very huge deposit of puṇya-pāpa karmāṇi. And according to vēdānta, it is these puṇya pāpa karmas which are responsible for the creation of the body. And therefore, I create a body for myself by my own karma. If in the next janma, I am going to acquire a body who is responsible? Not the next janma parents. Not God. Not anything. if I acquire a body in the next janma, I am responsible for the arrival of that body. Through what? My own karma. So therefore, I create a body and then after the body hangs around for sometime, when the body perishes, the end of the body is also caused by what? The doctors will give various reasons; heart attack or this attack or that attack, or accidents and various other causes; but doctors may say, but according to the śāstra, it is again the end of the karma, prārabhda karma, that puts an end to the body. Therefore, body's arrival is because of whom, myself and the body's departure or death is again because of whom? Because of me alone; how? through my own karma. and once that body is gone. what happens. that is not the end of the journey. Payanangal mudivadillai. (in Tamil ~ the journey never ends). Therefore, another body I acquire and again that body is again killed by me by my own karma, and another body create another body and who kills that body, again I alone. Therefore I alone are responsible for the repeated birth and death of myself; through the arrival and departure of the body. Therefore I am creating myself and I am destroying myself from the standpoint of the body. And therefore, I am self-destructive. I kill myself. And how long this will continue? As long as Karmas continue. Punarapi Jananam, punarapi maraṇam, Punarapi Jananam, punarapi maraṇam. I am responsible for my death. So therefore I am a ātmāhā; ātmāhā means killer of myself, from the standpoint of my body.

And then Śankarācārya gives another meaning also. From the standpoint of my higher nature also, that is my ātma svarūpam nature also, because of self-ignorance, i am killing as though my higher nature. I am destroying myself; myself means not the body; my own higher nature. Then Śankarācārya raises the question: how can a self-ignorant person, kill his own higher nature, the ātma, because after all the ātma is indestructible; how can you say ignorant person kills the ātma? Śankarācārya ignorant person kills the ātma as it were. Figuratively kills the ātma.

What do you mean figuratively killing the ātma? When I am not aware of my higher nature, I disown my higher nature. Just as a person who does not know the treasure which is lying underneath the ground; his own land; is not going to claim it, he is going to disown because of his ignorance; Similarly, an ignorant person disowns his higher nature and therefore the benefit that he can derive from his higher nature is denied to him. Is it not? When I have got treasure underneath and I am ignorant of that fact, the benefit of the richness that I am going to loose and since I am not enjoying the benefit of my higher nature, it is as though the higher nature is absent. The higher nature is present. But the higher nature is as though absent, why, because I do not derive the benefit of my higher nature; because of sheer ignorance; and since the higher nature is as though absent; Śankarācārya says: we have killed or destroyed the higher nature as though. If something is destroyed, you do not derive the benefit of that. Similarly, ātma is as though destroyed; because I do not derive the benefit of it. And therefore, a self-ignorant person has "destroyed" his own higher nature, because he does not enjoy the benefit of pūrṇatvam, abayathvam, etc. And therefore from that standpoint also, he is a suicide; he is destroying himself.

And therefore every ajñāni destroys himself from the standpoint of the body also and every ajñāni destroys himself from the standpoint of ātma also. And therefore every ajñāni is a suicide. And if every ajñāni is self-destroyer, what is the definition of a jñāni? Opposite.

Therefore, Krishna says a jñāni does not destroy himself; he is not a self-destroyer. That is said; look at the second line. न हिनस्त्यात्मनात्मानं na hinastyātmanā"tmānaṃ. Unlike an ajñāni, a jñāni does not destroy himself, either by the standpoint of the body or from the standpoint of the ātma. And therefore he is not a self-destroyer; he has discovered immortality. And that is said in the last portion, parām gatim yāti. parām gatim means immortality; amruthatvam.

प्रकृत्यैव च कर्माणि क्रियमाणानि सर्वशः।

यः पश्यति तथाऽऽत्मानमकर्तारं स पश्यति ॥ १३.३०॥

prakṛtyaiva ca karmāṇi kriyamāṇāni sarvaśaḥ |

yaḥ paśyati tathā"tmānamakartāraṃ sa paśyati || 13.30 ||

सः saḥ he, यः पश्यति yaḥ paśyati who sees कर्माणि karmāṇi all actions क्रियमाणानि kriyamāṇāni as being done प्रकृत्य एव च prakṛtya eva ca by Prakṛti alone, सर्वशः sarvaśaḥ by all means तथा tathā, and likewise (sees), आत्मानम् ātmānam the Self, अकर्तारम् akartāraṃ to be actionless पश्यति akartāraṃ paśyati (alone really) sees.

30. He who sees all actions as being done by Prakṛti alone by all means and likewise (sees) the self to be actions (alone really) sees.

The third benefit of the knowledge is given here. We have seen two: first one is sama darśanam; the second one is amruthathva prāp̥thi. The third prayōjanam akartṛtva prāp̥thi. Discovering the fact that I am akartā. I am not a doer of any action. And this is a very important thing because kartṛtvam alone is the cause of all the problems. Because as long as I am a kartā, I can never avoid karmas and therefore Kartā will be eternally associated with karma. And karmas will never remain the same, they will gradually ripen. The karmas will gradually ripen and get converted into favourable and unfavourable conditions. Even now our prarabdha karmas are ripening. Next year எப்படி இருப்போமோ? பகவானுக்கு தான் வெளிச்சம். (how we will be, is only known to God) and you cannot stop it. You cannot do anything. The karmas, whether you like it or not, they are ripening. When the karmas ripen, the ripened karma phalam in the form of favourable and unfavourable situation, they will come back to me alone. What goes as karma outside will come back to me as karma phala, without any address-mistake. Whether your number is new number or old number, there will be no mistake, it will land properly. Sharp shooter; correctly it will land. When the karma phalas comes to me and I have to face the music, I become a bhoktā. If I am a kartā, I can never escape from being a bhoktā and that bhoktā status is a choiceless, helpless situation.

That is why they say also. That somebody was told that he is getting into seven-and-half saturn. This fellow thought that he will escape, and therefore he dug a tunnel and hid himself and closed himself, to escape from the Saturn. How long 7-1/2 years. After 7-1/2 years he came out, he called Śani and said how he escaped from you. Śani said that you sat in that corner underneath in the tunnel without proper food and any other facilities, is itself because of Me, the Śani effect.

So therefore, you can never escape from being a bhōktā. For you want to get out of bhōkṛtvaṁ, there is only one way, you should get out of kartṛtvaṁ. You will definitely have kartṛtvaṁ as long as you have dēha abhimāna, because dēha means karma will be there, because there are jñanēndriyaṇi, karmēndriyāṇi; and therefore, Prakṛti abhimāna makes me a kartā. And the moment you drop the Prakṛti abhimāna, and claim that aham Puruṣa, that Puruṣa-owning up alone will take you out of both kartṛtvaṁ and bhōkṛtvaṁ.

Therefore, Krishna says: Karmāṇi, all the karmas, good and bad actions, are Prakṛthya ēva kriyamāṇani, they are all done by Prakṛti alone, Prakṛti alone can do karmas, because doing karma requires modification. Any karma, change is required. If I have to talk, my mouth has to undergo change. Even if I have to do a thinking action, there should be thought change. So karma means vikāram. Prakṛti alone can do karma, because it is subject to modification.

Whereas Puruṣa means what Nirguṇa, Nirvikāra, Satya, Cētana Tatvam, that Puruṣa is incapable of doing action and therefore Krishna says all the actions by all means, whether it is kāyikam, vāchikam, or mānasam, whether it is dhārmikam, or adhārmikam, all of them are done by Prakṛti. Prakṛti means what? The body mind complex. You can call it śarīra thrayam or you can call it kōśa pañcakam, but if you do not know what is śarīra thrayam, and kōśa pañcakam, you can understand as body-sense-mind complex alone. Sarvaśaḥ.

And this wise person is very much aware of that. But he does not identify with the body mind complex. Then he identifies with what? Ātmanam. He does not say I am doing. He says in my presence Prakṛti does everything. In my presence, Prakṛti does everything, body mind complex does everything. Then who am I. Akartharam cha paśyathi. I am akartā and therefore I do not have sañcitam; I do not have āgāmi; I do not have prārabdham. Or else how is it possible to experience and finish off the karmas? It is impossible for you to exhaust all the karmas, because they are all anathakoti janmarjithani karmani; you can never experience and exhaust the karmas. In one life itself, if you are going to exhaust 2,783 karmas (just a number). Even if you exhaust 2700 karmas, while exhausting you are going to add 27000. So it is impossible to put an end to the cyclic arrival and departure of karmas. The only way out of is you do not stop the cycle, but you get away from the cycle. Like the huge merry go round. Huge one, you know, in the cycle you sit and goes round. So if it is one minute or two minutes, it is merry go around. But imagine, it is going on, going on, and the switch cannot be go, and the power also does not go. Imagine you go round and round, and you cannot do anything. So if you cannot switch off the cycle, the only way is what? Jump out of the cycle, let it continue, you come out of it. Similarly, Prakṛti cannot be stopped; I transcend Prakṛti, like waking up from dream. and therefore, ātmanam akarthāram paśyathi.

गुणा गुणेषु वर्तन्त इति मत्वा न सज्जते ॥ ३.२८ ॥

tattvavit tu mahābāhō guṇakarmavibhāgayōḥ |

guṇā guṇēṣu vartanta iti matvā na sajjatē || 3.28 ||

Prakṛti will continue. Let me now identify with that. Of course this verse should be carefully understood. It should not be misunderstood and abused. Suppose a person argues, this is a very very convenient sloka. So you do all the akramams and say that prakṛtyaiva ca karmāṇi kriyamāṇāni sarvaśaḥ. Aham the ātma is the akartā, aboktā, etc. everything is done by the body. Imagine a criminal who is tried in the court and the judge passes a verdict and therefore 7 years RI. Sukh Ram might have become Duḥkha Ram. So 7 years RI or something verdict was passed and that criminal quotes this Gītā verse. प्रकृत्यैव च कर्माणि क्रियमाणानि prakṛtyaiva ca karmāṇi kriyamāṇāni, Oh Judge, the body does all the karmas, I the ātma does not do any karma at all, why are you giving me RI. What will judge the say: My dear, I am not imprisoning you. In fact, I cannot imprison you because you are the all-pervading ātma, which cannot accommodated in a prison. In fact, all prisons are existing in you; I am not imprisoning you, because you are akartā and aboktā, you said body only did all the crimes and therefore I am only imprisoning the body. Dhaniki Dheeniki saripoyindhi.

So therefore: Remember Vēdānta should never be used for promoting adharmā. Whenever we feel like supporting adharmā through vēdānta, it means we have not assimilated vēdānta properly. If vēdānta is correctly assimilated, it will promote dharmā. In fact Vēdānta is the best method of promoting dharmā. So whether I have assimilated vēdānta properly or not, how do I know? If vēdānta promotes dharmā in my life, dharmā means what, ethical life it should promote, if it is supporting adharmā, the best thing is keep aside the vēdānta for sometime; follow dharmā sastra after studying it properly and therefore vēdānta is not for abuse. This should not be misinterpreted. Thus what is the third benefit of ātma jñānam. Akartṛtva prāp̥thi. Discovering the fact that I am akartā.

31. When one sees the diversity of beings o be based on the one (Self) and (their) origination o be from that (Self) alone then, one becomes Brahman.

So this is a deeper and significant verse wherein several steps of vēdāntic understanding are hidden. The understanding of ātma has to grow through several stages. And to understand those several stages, we will first take the example of ākāśa or space. Initially, I do not understand space at all, because it is too intangible, invisible. Generally we think space is emptiness and nothingness and therefore we take space for granted. So first I should learn, this hall, for example, or any enclosure for that matter, has got space within. So when I am looking into a hall, there are two things. Not hall alone, but the hall with space inside. When space alone is there, generally we think, we say there is nothing. It is not nothing, space is not nothingness but it is a positive substance. Even scientifically space is not emptiness or nothingness, it is a positive substance; a subtle substance. முதலில் என்ன புரிஞ்சிக்கறேன்? What I understand first. There is space inside.

Then later I understand that space is not only within this hall, but the space is inside all the enclosures; big halls, small halls, or even a vessel or our own stomach; all space is there. That is the next stage. Space is not only within one hall, but in all enclosures, next stage.

The next stage I understand is that even though halls are many and varied, the space within is not many and varied; space is one and the same within every hall. The halls are different but space is not different. This is the next stage.

Then the next stage I go through is not only there is one space inside all the halls, but there is space outside the halls also. Space is not only within every hall, but the space is outside; both inside and outside.

Thereafter the next stage is (it seems there is no end), really speaking, space is not inside and outside the hall, that is not the right expression, there is only one space, in which all the halls are resting. So space is not in the hall; but it is the reverse; halls are within spaces (you should not say 'spaces'). I will say that there is space within. Therefore space is only one. Within one space, all the halls exist. So space is the stithi kāraṇam of all the halls. That is the next stage.

And then the final stage is; Space is not only the stithi kāraṇam, means what, the support for the existence of all the hall, according to śāstra, all the things in the creation are even born out of space alone. ākāśāth (Taittiriya, do you remember). ākāśāth vāyu, from ākāśa is vāyu, vāyōr agni, agne āpaḥ, adhyā pṛithivi. pṛithiviam oṣadāya. From the so called empty space alone, everything is born, and in the space alone, all of them survive and into that space alone, all of them resolve.

See how many stages we have seen. First we said that there is the hall and space. Then space is in every hall. Then space is the same in every hall; thereafter space is not only inside the hall but outside also. Then really speaking space is not inside; all the halls are in the space; And finally what we said; Space is the one which holds all the halls and space is the one from which all of them are born and into all of them resolve.

If you understand in space, you have to extend to the consciousness. So space should be equated to consciousness and hall should be equated to the body. After all these steps one has to go through. What is that? Within the body there is consciousness. Then what is the next stage? Consciousness is not only in my body but also in every body. Then what is the next stage. Even though the bodies are many and varied, consciousness behind all the bodies is one and the same. Then what is the next stage. Consciousness is not only within the body, but consciousness is outside the body also. Then what is the next stage? Really speaking, consciousness is not inside the body; then all the bodies are resting in one consciousness. And then the final stage is not only all the bodies are resting in that consciousness, they are all born out of that consciousness; rest in that consciousness, resolve in that consciousness and that consciousness I am. If you can tell this, you can say, Aham Brahma asmi. This is the essence of this verse. The details in the next class.

Om

Up to the 24th verse of this chapter, Lord Krishna dealt with the six topics that Arjuna wanted to know and from verse No.25 up to the end Lord Krishna winds up the present discourse by talking about jñāna sādhanāni and jñāna phalam. In three verses, 25, 26 and 27, the sādhanās were talked about in the form of karma yoga, upāsana, vādānta vichāra, etc.

And now from the 28th verse onwards, the jñāna phalam is being talked about. Of that, we have seen up to verse No.31; first phalam that was mentioned by Krishna was sarvatra sama darśanam. Even though superficially, the sense organs continue to see the differences; the eye of wisdom sees the inherent non-duality. The inherent oneness behind this superficial duality, the jñāni sees and this very sama darśanam, saves him from strong rāga dvēṣa. Powerful rāga dvēṣa alone is the cause of samsāra. Rāga dvēṣa gets weakened because of the sama darśanam. This is benefit No.1.

Then the second benefit mentioned was amṛtatva prāpthiḥ. When a person sees plurality and limitation, finitude and mortality are inevitable. When I see the variety of waves, certainly I will see the birth and death of the wave, mortality is my vision; but when I see the water behind the waves, from the standpoint of the water, there is neither birth nor death and therefore, ēkatva darśanam or sama darśanam leads to amṛtatva prāpthiḥ that is the second phalam mentioned.

And the third phalam mentioned in the 30th verse is akartṛtva darśanam. Recognition of the fact that all the actions belong to the Prakṛti, the matter principle only and I the Puruṣa who is the sākṣi behind the Prakṛti, who is the kṣētrajña behind the Kṣētraṁ that I do not do any action. In my presence actions take place but myself am akartā. This akartṛtva prāp̥thi, freedom from the notion of doership is the third phalam. Sama darśanam, amṛtatva prāp̥thithi, akartṛtva prāp̥thi,

And then the fourth phalam which I introduced in the last class, in verse No.31 is brahmahva prāp̥thi. I recognise I am Brahman; the jagat kāraṇam. The jagat adhiṣṭānam. And to assimilate this idea, in the scriptures self-knowledge is compared to waking up from a dream. Imagine I am transacting in dream, when I am in dream identified with the dream body; I feel I am a small creature, located within dream time and dream space. And within the dream itself I see varieties of things and beings who are all capable of frightening me, giving me Rāga, dvēṣa, and even I run away from some of the dream objects. And I run towards some of the other dream objects; pravṛtti, nivṛtti, all of them are there. Therefore, when I am in dream, I feel that I am located within the dream world. I am a creature in the dream-world. But the moment I wake up, what is my discovery? I am not a member within the dream-world; on the other hand, the whole dream-world, including the dream-time; dream-space, dream-objects; dream-mountains, stars, my pravṛtṭiḥ, my nivṛtṭiḥ, everything is existing within me, the waker. As a dreamer, I am a creature within the dream, whereas as a waker, I am the creator of the dream.

A big reversal, the creature becomes the creator. And this conversion did not require any change at all; it only required waking up; which is nothing but dis-identifying with the dream body and claiming my waker nature. And therefore this reversal is not an impossible thing. What reversal? Reversal from creature to creator. Creature within the dream, to creator of the dream. Not only I am the creator of the dream, I am the one who sustains the dream. Not only sṛṣṭi kāraṇam, sthithi kāraṇam and at the time of waking up, the whole dream-world resolves where? It resolves within my own mind. Not only dream-world, even dream-time and space are followed. I am not within the dream-time; On the other hand, dream-time is within me. I am not within the dream space; but the dream- space is within me. I am not a product within the dream-world, the dream-world itself is a product of my mind. But this we will nod our head wonderfully when it is dealing with dream. அது நன்னா இருக்கு; That is good.

What vēdānta says is: This universe is also another channel of the dream and just as I convert myself from dream-creature to dream-creator, I can convert myself from the waking-world-creature to waking-world-creator and this conversion is accomplished by dis-identification from the body. Dis-identification from the dream body made me waker No.1. Dis-identification from this body will make me a higher waker. And as a higher waker, what do I claim. I am the consciousness principle from whom, this world, this time, this space, including this body is born. Just as I create a special dream-body for myself for transacting in the dream world, this body is also created by me who am the original waker, which is called the consciousness principle and therefore, I create this world along with time and space. I sustain this world along with time and space; and ultimately I resolve this world into what? Myself. This is revealed in the well-known Kaivalya upaniṣad mantra:

मयि सर्वं लयं याति तद्ब्रह्माद्वयमस्म्यहम् ॥ 1.१९ ॥ Kaivalya

mayyēva sakalaṁ jātaṁ mayi sarvaṁ pratiṣṭitam |

mayi sarvaṁ layaṁ yāti tadbrahmādvayamasmyaham || 1.19 || Kaivalya

The waker is able to make this statement with regard to the dream creation. Jñāni is able to make this same statement with regard to this creation. What is this creation? mayyēva sakalaṁ jātaṁ. Everything is born out of me. which me. Not this miserable body. Body is a created thing. I am talking about the creator conscious principle. And the day I am able to claim this glory. What glory? I am not a kāryam, but I am kāraṇam. I am not a creature, but the creator himself. Krishna says, then and then alone, you can claim aham brahma asmi.

These are all wonderful verses giving you the sāram of the upaniṣads. Look at the slōkā. भूतपृथग्भावम् एकस्थमनुपश्यति bhūtaprthagbhāvam ekasthamanupaśyati. The wise person sees this following fact and how does he recognise this fact. Who helps him wake up; just as for waking up from this dream; some parent mother or father has to wake up? Like that, the guru and the śāstram shakes me, Uthiṣṭatha, jāgratha, prāpyavarān nibhodatā.

For how long are you going to sleep? For how long are you going to see the dreams? wake up. Anupasyathi. Means what? discovers this fact in keeping with the teaching of the śāstra. Anu śāstra ācārya upadeśam anu. Supported by the teaching of Guru and śāstra, this wise person sees the fact. What fact? bhūtaprthagbhāvam, the existence of this manifold universe? Bhūta means what, the manifold things and beings, bhāva means existence, in whom? Ekastham, to be located in one ātma, which is himself. ekastham means ekasmin ātmani mayi sthitham. So when the wise person recognises the fact that this pluralistic universe of things and beings is resting in me, the non-dual self.

That means what? I am sthithi kāraṇam and not only the sthithi kāraṇam, तत एव च विस्तारं tata ēva ca vistāraṁ, vistāraṁ, means the origination, the emergence. Emergence of what? The pluralistic universe of things and beings. The emergence of the pluralistic universe of things and beings to be from where? Thathaha eva. From the very same ātma. So in me alone the world rests, from me alone the world emerges. Just as we can say that the dream world rests in me, and the entire dream world emerges out of me. But the tragedy is what: the dream comes out of me; and the very same dream which I create becomes a nightmarish experience for myself. So it becomes a Frankenstein. I create something and my own creation becomes problem for me. Like some times our own children; parampara praptham. We are the cause, the children are the effect and they themselves become headache for me, not always. sometimes. Thus, this creation is my creation; now it is threatening me, frightening me. tata ēva ca vistāraṁ means I am sṛṣṭi kāraṇam also.

So ēkastham indicates sthithi kāraṇam. vistāraṁ, sṛṣṭi kāraṇam, what is left out which we have to supply? Laya kāraṇam also I am. Ithi yatha anupaśyathi. When I can make this statement, not merely verbally, but I can make this statement from my own inner heart. I can say it and mean it. When I can do that, then alone I can claim what? Aham brahma asmi. So Krishna says; तत tata, then and then alone, ब्रह्म सम्पद्यते Brahma sampadyatē, jñāni has become one with his higher nature. Just as the dreamer on waking up, has become one with what? his own higher waker nature, fearless waker nature. Similarly, I have become one with Brahman, my own higher waker nature. Adriśye, anātmeye, aniruddye, anilayane, abhayam prathiṣṭām vindathi. After waking up, dream is not a problem. In dream, dream is a problem. So what is the fourth benefit. Brahmahva prāpṭhi.

शरीरस्थोऽपि कौन्तेय न करोति न लिप्यते || १३- ३२ ||
anādityānirguṇatvāt paramātmā'yamavyayaḥ |
śarīrasthō'pi kauntēya na karōti na lipyatē || 13.32 |

अनादित्वात् anādhitvāt being birthless, निर्गुणत्वात् nirguṇatvāt and attributeless, अयं परमात्मा ayaṁ paramātmā this Supreme Self अव्ययः avyayaḥ is changless, अपि शरीरस्थः api śarīrasthaḥ though dwelling in the body, न करोति na karoti it neither acts न लिप्यते na lipyate – nor affected कौन्तेय kaunteya Oh! Arjuna.

32. Being birthless and attributeless, this supreme Self is changeless.
Though dwelling in the body, it neither acts nor is affected Oh! Arjuna.

I said that self-knowledge can be compared to waking up from dream. Even though there are many similarities between self-knowledge and waking up from dream, there is one major dissimilarity which we have to remember. So whenever we give an example, the example and the original will have many similarities; but we should remember the example and original will have dissimilarities also. If there is no dissimilarity at all, it will not be an example, it will be original.

So Jñānam is comparable to waking, but there is a small difference. What is that? When I wake up from dream, the dream totally disappears from my experience. When I wake up from dream, the dream-world physically disappears. But in the case of Self-knowledge, I do wake up from this dream alright; but even after waking up, for some time, this world continues to appear in front of me. In this respect, there is a difference between waking from the dream and waking up from ignorance.

And therefore Jñāni knows I am the kāraṇam and the world is my projection only but the world continues to appear and this state is called jīvan-mukthi and you can imagine that a person wakes up from dream and continues to have the dream. Imagine. It is not like that. Imagine the dream world continues. But somehow you have known that this is a dream, you come to know. Thereafter the dream continues. What will happen? You will enjoy the glory of the dream, but you will not be frightened; because of the dream-ness of the dream is known to you.

Similarly, the jñāni continues to live in the world, continues to be in the body also, but he has the knowledge that the body is like dream and I am like the waker, and whatever gain and loss in dream, will not make any difference for the waker, money loss, money gain, all those things will not make any difference. Similarly, gain and loss in this world also, will not make any difference for me, who is the waker, who has the higher nature.

And therefore, Krishna says here, अयं परमात्मा अव्ययः ayaṃ paramātmā avyayaḥ. I the ātma my own higher nature of consciousness is avyayaḥ is not subject to any change. Nirvikāraḥ. Just as the waker is not wet by the dream rain; not burned by the dream fire, not to wounded by the dream tiger biting; whatever happens in the dream world, the waker is not affected. Similarly, I the paramātmā avyayaḥ. and what is the reason? anādithvāt. Because the ātma is without a beginning. Janma rahitavāt. And you should remember Tatva Bodha; Janma is one of the six modifications; asthi, jāyathe, vardhathe, viparinamathe, apakiṣiyathe, vinaśyathe. Birth is one of the six modifications. If birth modification is not there, all the other modifications are also not there. And therefore, ātma is avyayaḥ. avyayaḥ means nirvikāra. ṣad vikāra rahitha;

And निर्गुणत्वात् nirguṇatvāt. And since ātma is attributeless, there is no attribute-wise modification also. Modification is two fold. When milk becomes curd, the modification is substance modification; substantial modification; the milk substance itself has undergone a change. So this is called substantial change. When you are making ornaments out of gold, when gold becomes a bangle, there is no change in the substance. If there is change in substance, nobody will give the gold for making ornaments. So when gold becomes ornaments, what type of change takes place; not substantial change; substance is the change; but the change is only in the superficial form or an attribute.

Thus change is two-fold; substantial and attribute change. Ātma does not have both changes. Being birthless, it does not have substantial change; being attributeless, it does not have attribute-change. Attribute இருந்தால் தானே; For change ஆகறத்துக்கு. For change, some attribute should be there, is it not? So when it is Nirguṇam, how can there be change in the attribute of the ātma. Therefore, it is absolutely changeless.

And this ātma शरीरस्थः अपि śarīrasthaḥ api. Even after up waking up and knowing that I am the ātma, I continue to be in the body, In the body also, śarīrasthaḥ.

But what is the advantage; न करोति न लिप्यते na karōti na lipyatē. Ātma remains akartā; free from actions; and na lipyatē. Continues to be aboktā, without the phalam. The śarīram has got action and results, mind has got action and results, but ātma does not have karma or phalam.

And therefore, what is the next benefit of ātma jñānam. I know that I am aboktā. Akartā we have talked about earlier. We are now adding aboktā. I have akartṛtvaṁ, and abhōkṛtvaṁ.

And remember, samsāra is defined as akartṛtva and boktṛtvaṁ only; doership and enjoyership is samsāra; ātma is free from both.

Continuing.

यथा सर्वगतं सौक्ष्म्यादाकाशं नोपलिप्यते |
सर्वत्रावस्थितो देहे तथात्मा नोपलिप्यते || १३- ३३ ||
yathā sarvagataṁ saukṣmyādākāśaṁ nōpalipyatē |
sarvatrāvasthitō dēhē tathā"tmā nōpalipyatē | | 13.33 | |

यथा yathā just as, सर्वगताम् आकाशम् sarvagatām ākāśam the all pervading space न उपलिप्यते na upalipyate is not affected सौक्ष्म्यात् saukṣmyāt due to its subtlety*, तथा tathā so also, आत्मा ātmā the Self, अवस्थितः avasthitaḥ which is present सर्वत्र देहे sarvatra dehe in everybody न उपलिप्यते na upalipyate is not affected

33. Just as the all pervading space is not affected due to its subtlety, so also, the Self, which is present in everybody, is not affected.

In the previous verse Lord Krishna said, ātma is associated with everything; but not affected by anything. So this is called immanence and transcendence. Immanence means it is associated with everything and transcendence means what, it is not affected by anything. Just as the screen of the movie is associated with every object in the movies; so when there is the lac-bungalow show in the Mahabhāratham, the screen is intimately associated with the fire, but it is not burned. Similarly, when it is a titanic movie, the water is all over; screen is intimately associated with the water, but it not wet by water. Otherwise, after every show, they have to dry the screen with a dryer. They do not do it. Its pervasion is called immanence but remaining untainted is called transcendence. Antharyamithve sathi asaṅgathvam. And to assimilate this idea; which idea?; ātma is associated with all but not affected by any; Krishna wants to give two examples: most well known example; very widely quoted in the Upaniṣad, Krishna borrows from the Upaniṣads, one example is ākāśa, another example is prakāśa. Ākāśa means space and remember space is not emptyness, but it is the subtlest form of matter. Space is not nothingness or emptyness, it is the subtlest form of matter. Space is one example, and prakāśa, the light is another example.

Space and ātma have got several common features. That is why it is an ideal example. What are some of the common features:

Ēkathvam. Both are only one. Ātma Ēkaḥ. ākāśaḥ Ēkaḥ.

Sarva vyapakathvam. Ātma is all-pervading. ākāśaḥ is all pervading.

Acalatvam - Being all pervading, ātma cannot move from one place to another, ākāśaḥ cannot also move. ஆகாசம் மும்பாய் போயிட்டு வருமோ? Your body can go. You cannot go.

Ēkathvam; Sarva vyapakathvam; Acalatvam; Nirvikārathvam. ākāśaḥ remains the same. It does not get older or younger. it does not get out of shape; all these are for objects in ākāśaḥ, ākāśaḥ itself is Nirvikara, ātma is also nirvikāra.

Akhandathvam. ātma is part-less. Khanda means part. ākāśaḥ also does not have part. ākāśaḥ is indivisible and akasha and ātma are asaṅgaḥ. This is the main thing Krishna is going to talk. ākāśaḥ is associated with everything but ākāśaḥ is not polluted; is not tainted by either the good qualities or the bad qualities; ākāśaḥ does not become turbid. it does not become fragrant or foul smelling; asaṅgatvam.

And finally; ākāśaḥ is sarva adharatvam. It accommodates, supports everything. The whole cosmos is located in ākāśaḥ, therefore ākāśaḥ is viśvādhāram, and Bhagavān is also; ātma is ALSO viśvādhāram. That is why in Vishnu Sahasranama, after viśvādhāram, what comes; gaganasadruśam. gaganam, means ākāśaḥ. And therefore, ātma is like ākāśaḥ. Ātma is not akasha being, ākāśaḥ is jadam, acētana tatvam; whereas ātma is cētana tatvam; therefore it is only comparable to ākāśam. In next week in Taitariya Class, we will see ākāśaḥ dhyānam.

And one more, Sūkṣmatvam. ākāśaḥ cannot be easily comprehended intellectually. That is why scientists had confusion in determining the nature of ākāśaḥ. Some time they thought that it is emptiness; for some time, they thought that it is ether; they postulated that even now, I do not know whether Scientists clearly know what space is: Therefore it is not easily comprehensible, you cannot see; you cannot hear it; you cannot touch ākāśaḥ, see ākāśaḥ, but somehow you conceive of ākāśaḥ. Therefore Sūkṣmatvam is another common feature between ākāśaḥ and ātma

And therefore Krishna gives this example: सर्वगताम् आकाशम् न उपलिप्यते sarvagatām ākāśam na upalipyate. All pervading space is not affected by anything. Because of what: saukshmyat. Because of its extremely subtle nature; Fine nature; minute nature; it is not affected by anything; tatha;

In the same way; ātma na upalipyate. The ātma also is not tainted by polluted by anything.

सर्वत्र देहे अवस्थितः sarvatra dēhē avasthitaḥ. Even though it is associated with everybody. body may be fat; but ātma is not fat; you need not slim the ātma. Ātma is not lean; mind may have rāga dvēṣa kāma krōdha, but ātma does not have: न मे द्वेषरागौ न मे लोभमोहौ na mē dvēṣarāgau na mē lōbhamōhau. So thus ātma is comparable to ākāśaḥ.

Then the next example.

यथा प्रकाशयत्येकः कृत्स्नं लोकमिमं रविः ।

क्षेत्रं क्षेत्री तथा कृत्स्नं प्रकाशयति भारत ॥ १३- ३४ ॥

yathā prakāśayatyekaḥ kṛtsnaṁ lōkamimam raviḥ |

kṣētraṁ kṣētrī tathā kṛtsnaṁ prakāśayati bhārata || 13.34 ||

यथा yathā just as एकः रविः ekaḥ raviḥ one sun प्रकाशयति prakāśayati illumines, इमं कृत्स्नं लोकम् imaṁ kṛtsnaṁ lokam this entire world, तथा tathā so also, क्षेत्री kṣētrī. the kṣētrajñā प्रकाशयति prakāśayati illumine, कृत्स्नं क्षेत्रम् kṛtsnaṁ kṣētraṁ the entire kṣētraṁ भारत bhārata Oh! Bharata (Arjuna)

34. Just as one Sun illumines the entire world, so also does the Kshetrajñā illumines the entire kṣētraṁ, O Arjuna.

The second example is surya prakāśaḥ. The sun light. Not the soap.! OK. So sunlight and I am not talking about the Sun also; Sun is thing located at 9 crores miles away; we are not talking about the source of the light; but we are talking about the sunlight, the formless light which pervades the entire earth during daytime. And ātma is comparable to the sunlight. And here also you can find several common features; many of them similar to the ākāśaḥ example.

So here also Ēkathvam Sunlight is only One, because there is only one Sun. do not say stars are there; from the solar system angle; and here also sarvagatatvam, the sunlight pervades the entire earth, at least relatively, and acalatvam; sunlight does not move because it is already everywhere;

Nirvikāratvam, the light does not undergo any change at all when I move the hand; light is not moving or changing.

And similarly, asaṅgatvam, the light does not get polluted, even when it falls on my hand. Light falls on my hand but light does not get dirty.

Similarly, akandavtham, light is partless. cannot cut; acchēdyaḥ, adāhyaḥ, aklēdyaḥ, aśōṣyaḥ;

And finally, the light illumines everything and like the light ātma also illumines. Illumines means what; makes everything known, because of consciousness alone, things are known or illumined; without consciousness, if matter alone is there; in the universe, there will be nobody to know anything. Imagine, without us being present, things like, light fan, etc. are there, Who is conscious of whom?

There is no subject object relationship at all. Subject can come only when consciousness comes and therefore consciousness is the illuminator of everything like the Sun.

And therefore Krishna says here, ekaha ravi, one sun or sunlight, इमं कृत्स्नं लोकम् प्रकाशयति imaṃ kṛtsnaṃ lokam prakāśayati; illumines this entire universe but without getting polluted by that.

And similarly sūkṣmathvam, the light also cannot be touched by me; light is here; I cannot touch it; you cannot taste it; light cannot be smelled; you cannot hear the light; in fact you cannot even see the light here. I have often told you when the light is there; without a reflecting medium, the light by itself is incomprehensible. So therefore light is what sookshmam. Similarly, ātma also cannot be touched, cannot be smelled; cannot be heard; cannot be seen; अप्पो इल्ले एण्णु सल्लपपडलतु; Therefore you cannot say that it is not there; since I cannot touch the ātma, therefore ātma is not there; one cannot tell that way; since I cannot touch the light, you cannot say that light is not there; you cannot say that: light is there; even though intangibly. Similarly,

अशब्दमस्पर्शमरूपमव्ययं

तथाऽरसं नित्यमगन्धवच्च यत् ।

अनाद्यनन्तं महतः परं ध्रुवं

निचाय्य तन्मृत्युमुखात् प्रमुच्यते ॥ Part I. Canto III. १५॥

aśabdamaśparśamarūpamavyayaṁ

tathā:'rasaṁ nityamagandhavacca yat |

anādyanantaṁ mahataḥ paraṁ dhruvaṁ

nicāyya tanmṛtyumukhāt pramucyatē || Part I. Canto III. 15||

This is the definition of ātma given by Kathōpaniṣad. Therefore, previous slōkā compared ātma to ākāśaḥ, this slōkā compared ātma to prakāśaḥ.

And that ātma I am; and therefore, what is my knowledge. I am like ākāśaḥ and I am like prakāśaḥ. This is an aide for meditation. so thus, two brilliant examples Krishna gave. They are not original examples of Krishna; they are humbly simply borrowed from the upaniṣad; in Kathōpaniṣad,

सूर्यो यथा सर्वलोकस्य चक्षुः

न लिप्यते चाक्षुषैर्बाह्यदोषैः ।

एकस्तथा सर्वभूतान्तरात्मा

न लिप्यते लोकदुःखेन बाह्यः ॥ Part II. Kanto 2. ११॥

sūryō yathā sarvalōkasya cakṣuḥ

na lipyatē cākṣuṣairbāhyadoṣaiḥ |

ēkastathā sarvabhūtāntarātmā

na lipyatē lōkaduḥkhēna bāhyaḥ ||Part II. Kanto.2. 11||

Kathōpaniṣad has given that example. That is borrowed. Now Krishna concludes in the 35th verse.

क्षेत्रक्षेत्रज्ञयोरेवमन्तरं ज्ञानचक्षुषा ।

भूतप्रकृतिमोक्षं च ये विदुर्यान्ति ते परम् ॥ १३- ३५ ॥

kṣētrakṣētrajñayōrēvam antaram jñānacakṣuṣā |

bhūtaprakṛtimōkṣam ca yē viduryānti tē param || 13.35 ||

ज्ञानचक्षुषा jñānacakṣuṣā with the eye of knowledge, ते ये विदुः te ye viduḥ those who know एवम् evam thus अन्तरम् antaram the distinction क्षेत्रक्षेत्रज्ञयोः kṣetrakṣetrajñayoḥ between the kshetram and the kshetrajñā च भूतप्रकृतिमोक्षम् ca bhutaprakṛtimokṣam as well as the absence of Prakriti which is the cause of beings, यान्ति परम् yānti param attain the supreme

35. With the eye of knowledge, those who know thus the distinction between the kshetram and the kṣētrajñā, as well as the absence of prakriti which is the cause of beings attain the supreme.

So the final benefit of this knowledge is given here in the form of moksha itself. Freedom. Freedom for whom; the one who has got the discrimination between Kṣētra and Kṣētrajñā. क्षेत्रक्षेत्रज्ञयोः अन्तरम् एवम् विदुः kṣētrakṣetrajñayoḥ antaram evam viduḥ; the wise people recognise the difference between Kṣētra and Kṣētrajñā; or to put in another language, the difference between Puruṣa and Prakṛti; or to put in English, the difference between consciousness and matter. The difference between consciousness and matter. The wise people recognise. How do they see the difference; Jñāna cakṣusa. With the penetrating discerning eye of wisdom. So the sense organs cannot differentiate. Just as I cannot differentiate the electricity and fan by this eye, but the differentiation is in terms of my understanding. The light and hand are not physically separated, but intellectually you know the difference between the light and hand. Similarly, brain and consciousness; they are not one and the same; brain is matter; consciousness is a separate principle. The one who knows the difference and what are the differences. We saw four differences:

One is cētanam, another is acētanam; sentient; and insentient; one is nirguṇam another is saguṇam; one is attributeless; the other is attributed; one is means which one; consciousness is attributeless; matter is attributed. Nirvikāram-Savikāram, Consciousness is changeless; matter is ever changing.

And Krishna wants to emphasise the fourth difference in this sloka, which is the most important and technical difference. Do you remember the fourth difference. Cētanam-acētanam, nirguṇam-saguṇam, Nirvikāram-Savikāram. Then? Sathyam, and mithya. Consciousness alone exists independently, matter cannot exist independently. So consciousness has got intrinsic existence; matter has got only borrowed existence. Just as the screen exists independent of the movie; but movie characters cannot exist, independent of the screen. If Screen goes, movie characters cannot be there, movie characters goes, screen will be there. Interval we see the screen, is'nt. Similarly I the consciousness exist independently; the whole world is like a movie running in me and just as movie cannot taint the screen, the mithya prapañca cannot affect I, the sathya Puruṣa.

Therefore, भूतप्रकृतिमोक्षं च bhūtaprakṛtimōkṣaṁ ca. So here mōkṣaṁ refers to mithyathvam. Very careful. Very misleading mōkṣa means the absence of real existence. mōkṣa, absence of real existence; That means it has got only borrowed existence; like the dream or movie. So mithyathvam of what? Puruṣa or Prakṛti? रामयणम् எல்லாம் கேட்டு, கடசிலே ராமனுக்கு ஸீதை யாருன்னு கேக்கறமாதிரி; mithyathvam of what: bhūtaprakṛti. The mithyathvam of Prakṛti as well as the other inert things and beings. So bhūtaprakṛti mōkṣaṁ cha. The mithyathvam of matter, which indirectly includes the satyathvam of consciousness.

ते ये विदुः te ye viduḥ. Those who recognise aham sathyam jagan mithya. And therefore world cannot touch me.

इति ये विदुः ते परम् यान्ति iti yē viduḥ tē param yānti. They alone attain freedom from the fear of the world. That is called jivan mukthi, they attain. Param means mōkṣa. This is the final benefit of self-knowledge.

With this Krishna concludes jñāna phalam topic also.

Om

Today I will give you a summary of the 13th chapter. I had pointed out that the thirteenth chapter is the beginning of the 3rd ṣatkam of the Gītā, the third group of the six chapters. In the first ṣatkam consisting of the first six chapters, Lord Krishna highlighted karma Yōga sādhanā; while in the 2nd ṣatkam, the 2nd group for six chapters beginning from the 7th chapter up to the 12th chapter, Krishna highlighted upasana Yōga and now in the third and final ṣatkam, beginning from the thirteenth is going to highlight Jñāna Yōga and especially in the three chapters, thirteen, fourteen and fifteen, Krishna brings out the essence contained in all the Upaniṣads, and therefore all these three chapters are important and among them also, the thirteenth chapter is considered to be very important from philosophical angle.

The entire Upaniṣad sāra is given in this chapter and this chapter, like most of the other chapters, begins with a question from Arjuna which is given in some Gītā books. In certain Gītā books, this question is not there; but we can supply the question because it is useful and in this question found in the first verse, Arjuna asked for clarification regarding six technical terms, occurring in the śāstra.

प्रकृतिं पुरुषं चैव क्षेत्रं क्षेत्रज्ञमेव च ।
एतद्वेदितुमिच्छामि ज्ञानं ज्ञेयं च केशव ॥१३.१॥
prakṛtiṃ puruṣaṃ caiva kṣētraṃ kṣētrajñamēva ca |
ētadvēditumicchāmi jñānaṃ jñēyaṃ ca kēśava ||13.1||

Prakṛti, Puruṣa, Kṣētra, Kṣētrajña, Jñānam and jñēya. एतद्वेदितुमिच्छामि ētadvēditumicchāmi. Six topics only. And on scrutiny, we find that even though six topics are mentioned by Arjuna, really speaking they can be reduced to three topics. Because some of the topics repetition.

What are the repetitions. The word Kṣētrajña, the word Puruṣa and the word jñēyam; all these three talk about the same principle. Kṣētrajña, Puruṣa, and jñēyam. and all these three we can refer by the general term ātma. So Kṣētrajña is equal to Puruṣa, is equal to jñēya, is equal to ātma. So three we have reduced into one.

Similarly, the word Kṣētram, and Prakṛti are two words implying the same topic. We can refer to it as anātma. So Kṣētram is equal to prakrithi is equal to anātma.

Therefore, three topics we have reduced into one, two topics we have reduced into one, put together 5 topics, we have reduced into two.

So, thus ātma is one topic; anātma is another topic. Then the 6th and final topic that Arjuna wants to know is jñānam. And this jñānam should be separately taken because it does not come under ātma, it does not come under anātma also; therefore jñānam should be taken as separate topic. Thus 6 topics can be reduced into three; ātma, anātma, and jñānam.

Now these 6 topics are to put in our present language; 3 topics, ātma, anātma and jñānam, Lord Krishna discusses from the second verse up to the 24th verse; Verse No.2 to verse No.24, Krishna gives these three topics; ātma, anātma, and jñānam.

Now we will briefly see what is Krishna's description. First I will take up the word anātma, which is equivalent, which two words, Kṣētram and Prakṛti, put together, we are referring together as anātma.

And what is anātma as revealed by Krishna here. Krishna says whatever I experience; whatever I experience in front of me, whatever driśya padārtha is there, will come under anātma. In Sanskrit, we use the word driśyam, in English we can translate it as, as anything experienced is anātma. Then what all things will fall under this anātma. The entire universe will fall under anātma, because it is an object of experience. It is an object of experience. It may not be an object in the present, which can become an object of experience. So any objectifiable thing is called anātma. Even the heavens will come under anātma; because even though I do not objectify the heavens now; if I gather sufficient punyam and go there, then the heavens will become objectifiable. And therefore, we do not say what is objectified. We say what is objectifiable, whatever is experiencable, is anātma; therefore the world is anātma.

And then Krishna points out that the very body comes under the object of experience, because I am able to intimately experience the conditions of the body and therefore the body also will come under anātma.

And coming further closer, even the mind is an object of experience, because I am able to intimately feel and know the conditions of my mind; which includes the intellectual conditions also. And therefore, the mind also comes under anātma.

And therefore, putting them together, the world plus the body plus the mind along with all their conditions put together is called anātma.

And what is the nature of this anātma? If you analyse, the nature of this anātma is: No.1, it is acētana svarūpam; it is jadam, material in nature; so the entire driśya prapañca, the anātma is made up of matter and therefore, it is inert in nature. Even though, the body seems to be sentient; according to the scriptures, the sentiency of the body is not intrinsic or natural sentiency but it is borrowed; and that is why at the time of death, this sentient body becomes insentient; indicating that sentiency is not the intrinsic nature. So therefore, body even though seemingly cētanam, body is also naturally acētanam, and extending that Krishna says, the mind also is material; only it is made up of subtle matter, and therefore mind is also intrinsically acētanam. So therefore world plus body plus mind is equal to anātma, and this anātma is acētanam; that is its first feature;

And its second feature is this anātma is full of attributes or sagunam endowed with varieties of properties, varieties of attributes. So it is acētanam, it is saguṇam, and finally, this entire anātma is subject to constant fluctuations or modifications. So it is savikāram in nature, it does not remain the same even for one moment. Within one moment and the other, everything has undergone a change. And therefore anātma is acētanam and anātma is saguṇam and anātma is savikāram.

And because of its changing nature, it will not remain in this visible condition all the time. Because of its changing nature, it will broadly go through two conditions; one is called the manifest visible condition; in Sanskrit called kārya-avastha, vyaktha avastha, vyakatha means manifest or visible condition, and very same thing will at the time of destruction it will go back to kāraṇa avasthya, avyaktha avastha.

Just as when you boil the water, the visible water is gone but you know the water is not destroyed; but what has happened to water? The visible vyaktha-jalam has become avyaktha vapour. Similarly, this cosmos also has got vyaktha avastha called prapaṇca and it has got an avyaktha avastha, when you call it māya. Therefore, maaya is also an unmanifest form of matter only.

So manifest matter is called universe; unmanifest matter is called māya. So therefore, māya or the universe, including the body, including the mind, all of them come under what? anātma; which is acētanam, saṅuṇa, savikāra tatvam. So this is the description of anātma.

Then we have to go to the description of the next topic, viz., ātma. And the word ātma refers to three things in the 13th chapter; What are those three? The word ātma includes three names, Kṣētrajña, Puruṣa and the jñēyam; all these three can be referred to by the word ātma.

Now the question is what is that ātma? Krishna says if the whole universe falls under driśya prapaṇca and object of experience, an experienced-universe; then an experienced-universe presupposes the presence of fill of blanks. The experienced-universe, presupposes the presence of what? An experiencer-subject. Without the experiencer-subject, the experienced-object is never possible. And therefore, every object presupposes the existence of a subject and the unfortunate fact is this subject can never become what? an object. So object is never possible without the subject and the subject is never available for objectification. Remember the example I gave. If I am seeing different colours and forms in front of me, the perception of every form, the perception of every colour, presupposes the existence of the eyes, but the unfortunate fact is what? the eyes themselves are not perceivable. But even though the eyes are not perceivable, I can never doubt the existence of the eyes, because the very perception is possible because of the perceiver alone. Thus, extending this principle, we can say, all the experienced-object proves the existence of the experiencer; but the experiencer himself cannot become an object of experience. And this unobjectifiable experienter principle is called ātma. The unobjectifiable experienter is called Ātma. And since ātma is the unobjectifiable-experiencing-principle, it will be cētanam or acētanam? You do not require a Phd to answer this question. The experiencing principle has to be necessarily a chetana tatvam. If, every driśyam is acētanam, the drk has to be cētanam. If every object is acētanam, the subject has to be what? Consciousness-principle only. And who is that experienter principle. Who is experiencing the world? What will your answer. You will say. I myself am experiencing. And therefore ātma is I, the consciousness principle, which objectifies everything but which itself is not available for objectification. This is the ātma.

Now the question is, what are the features of this ātma tatvam, the chaitnam tatvam. We saw the features of anātma? What is it? Acētana, saguṇa, savikāra. Like that, what are the features of I, the ātma, the consciousness principle. Then as an answer, we have to remember the five points I have repeated several times. What are those five?

I, the observer consciousness-principle who objectifies the body and mind, that I the consciousness, am not a part of the body, not a product of the body; not even a property of the body. So I the consciousness and neither a part, nor a product, nor an attribute or property of the body. I prefer the word property, because, one can remember easily, P P P. part, product, property.

Then the second point I would like you to remember is: I, the consciousness am an independent entity, who pervade and enlivens the inert body. Because we have said body is inert, I, the independent consciousness principle pervade and enliven; just as the electricity, the independent principle pervades and enlivens the fan. Then what is the third point, we said: I, the consciousness principle, am not limited by the boundaries of the body. Just as electricity is not located in the fan alone; similarly, I, the consciousness, am not limited by the boundaries of the body, which means I the ātma is all-pervading. In fact, one of the meaning of the word ātma is all-pervading.

The word ātma in Sanskrit is derived from four different roots and one root out of which the word ātma is derived is āp to pervade. Not the Hindi āp. Sanskrit. āpnoti, sarvatra vyapnoti iti ātma. And therefore what is the third point; I, the observer consciousness pervade everywhere. The limitations and location belongs to the body which is an object of consciousness but the subject-consciousness, am not located. So, therefore, I am all pervading.

Then what is the next point, we had seen. That I the consciousness principle, will continue to exist even when the body, the manifesting medium collapses or dies; I will survive and therefore, mortality is a feature of the body; but not of me, the consciousness pervading the body. So I am sarvagataḥ, I am nityaḥ; ātma sarvagataḥ, ātma Nityaḥ.

And fifthly and finally, we had seen (we have to remember in this context) what is that? If the body medium dies, I, the consciousness will continue to survive, but that I will not be available for transaction; not because I am absent but because the medium for transaction is not there. It is exactly as it happens in deep sleep state; the body is not functioning, resting, the mind is not functioning, resting; transactions have ended; but I have not ended. While sleeping, whether the transactions are ending, or I am ending? Thank God, only the transactions are ending and not I, the transactor, continue to survive.

And that I is the ātma the cētana tatvam and to conceive of this consciousness principle, Krishna gives two beautiful examples later, which we can remember in this context. What are the two examples; consciousness is comparable to ākāśa, the space-principle, is comparable to the Prakāśaḥ-tatvam. 2 kāśa. Ākāśa and Prakāśa.

And that means what? If you want to conceive of consciousness, we have to see the features of these two examples, then we will get a nearer picture. And what are the features in these two.

Both are ekam. Ākāśa is one. Surya Prakāśa is one. Krishna says consciousness is also one. Ēkatvam.

And then, Ākāśaḥ is achalam; Ākāśaḥ cannot move from place to place; everything moves in Ākāśaḥ but Ākāśaḥ itself does not move. Suppose this hall Ākāśaḥ moves? What will happen? We will be flying? Similarly, Surya Prakāśa also. Even this Prakāśa in the hall, the light, does not move. My hand moves in light, but the light itself does not move. Exactly like that consciousness principle itself is achalam. Nithya sarva gatha sthanu achaloyam sanatham. Like Ākāśaḥ and Prakāśa, ātma is achalam.

Next feature is akandhaḥ. Space is indivisible. You cannot apportion space. The earth can be divided. Water can be divided and we have quarrels also between Karnataka and Tamil Nadu, but the space itself cannot be divided. Similarly, Prakāśa also cannot be cut and therefore both of them are akhanda; Similarly ātma the caitanyam is akhandam. So Achalam, it is akhandam, it is Ē kam, Next, akaash is assangam. Space is everywhere but it is never contaminated by anything. Space is uncontaminable or uncontaminatable. It is unpollutable. Water can be polluted; earth can be polluted; everything else can be polluted; vayu can be polluted; not space. Similarly Prakāśa, the light is also asaṅgha. It cannot be contaminated by anything. Śankarācārya says whether the light falls on dirty coovam water or gaṅga water, the light cannot be polluted by the dirty water. and therefore asaṅghatvam is the next feature.

And Ākāśaḥ is sarvādharam. It is the support of everything and similarly, consciousness is the support of matter. Not vice versa. We think matter is supporting is consciousness but Krishna says, it is not so. Consciousness is not located in brain. All the brains are located in one all-pervading consciousness. And if it becomes a dead brain, Einstein's brain is preserved it seems; not because consciousness has departed or gone away; what has happened is that the capacity of the brain to manifest the consciousness is lost. The medium has lost the capacity like a fused bulb; power is very much there; but the bulb has become fused. If there is any doubt, touch and you get instant realisation! So therefore, it is not the absence of electricity but absence of a functioning medium which can manifest. And therefore consciousness is sarva ādhara like Ākāśaḥ and finally, consciousness like the Surya Prakāśa, the light of the Sun, it illumines everything, because of the presence of consciousness alone; things are known; and therefore, sarva ādharaha and sarva Prakāśa, is that ātma and that ātma I am.

So this is called ātma-anātma viveka jñānam; discriminating between consciousness and matter and claiming that I am the consciousness principle who am functioning through the body but I myself am not the body. So the medium comes, the medium goes, but I never come and go. So these are the features of ātma.

Anātma, ātma, two topics are over. According to 13th chapter, we have covered 5 topics. ātma means two and anātma means three; 2+3 FIVE.

Now lastly one more topic is left. What is that? Jñānam. And we saw that the word jñānam in the 13th chapter has got a unique meaning and what is that: all those virtues which are required for gaining ātma jñānam. All virtues, sat gunah, required for gaining ātma jñānam, the preparatory values or virtues. In short a dharmic way of life. This is how ethics and morality enter vēdānta śāstra. People ask the question in vēdānta philosophy, is there any scope for ethics and morality, our answer is there is a scope; what is the scope. Only a mind which has ethics and morality; that mind alone can receive ātma jñānam. And without these values, twenty values are enumerated by Krishna; without these values, one cannot understand vēdānta; and even if one understands vēdānta, it will become an academic knowledge. It will not transform my personality. Value plus study is equal to transformation. Study minus values, is equal to information.

So do you need information or transformation. The decision is yours. The difference is caused by the presence and absence of morals. And these values alone are generally presented in the vēdānta śāstras, as sādhanā chathuṣṭaya sampathi. Four Ds. Discrimination, Dispassion, Discipline and Desire. D D D D.

Discrimination means the understanding that God alone can give Pūrṇatvam and security in life. Fullness or peace or security can come only from one source and that is nitya vastu, the Īśvara tatvam. And the world; however wonderful, beautiful it might be, you can experience it, enjoy it, you can possess it, you can handle it, but the world cannot give peace, security and Pūrṇatvam. This understanding is called Discrimination.

And what is Dispassion? Dispassion is after this understanding, changing the priorities of life; between God and World. which one is primary and which one is subservient. With regard to this, I have to do some reshuffling and in that reshuffling, when world becomes subservient and secondary, that attitude is called dispassion,

And when God or Brahman or Nitya vastu becomes the top priority, it is called spiritual Desire. God as priority is called spiritual desire, world being lesser than that is dispassion. Remember not hatred, we do not prescribe hatred. But what we say prioritisation must be proper.

Then the fourth one is Discipline; the integration of the entire personality. Physical body, the 10 sense organs, organs of action and organs of knowledge, the mind, the intellect, all of them when they are disciplined and organised. And instead of I, becoming their slave, I become their master. Then I am the master of my sense organs; when I master of my mind, self-mastery; self-integration is called discipline; Discrimination, Dispassion; Desire and Discipline; these four are called sādhanā chathushtayam. These four alone have been expanded by Krishna into 20 values. So 20 condensed is four. Four diluted is twenty. So in the summary, we will see four. The expansion we will see 20. That is what.

So sādhanā chathuṣṭaya sampathi is here called jñānam. With this, all the six topics, Krishna has covered. And this is from verse No.2 to 24.

Now from verse No.25 to 35, Krishna wants to conclude his teaching by presenting jñāna sādhanāni and jñāna phalam. What are the stages that one should go through to attain this knowledge. And what is the phalam that I get out of this knowledge.

And Krishna presents five stages to attain the knowledge; what are they? Karma Yōgaha, upāsanam, śravaṇam, mananam, nidhidhyāsanam.

Karma Yōga is the first stage to remove the impurities of the mind; mala nivṛthi or to attain purity.

The second stage is upasanam. That is meditation on Lord with attributes or form and the upasana is to remove the restlessness of the mind; the extrovertedness of the mind; vikṣēpa nivṛtti, so that the mind becomes tranquil and focussed. This the second stage.

The third stage is śravaṇam, which is consistent, (do you remember), and systematic study of vēdāntic scriptures for a length of time, under the guidance of a competent āchārya. It is not a-day affair. It is for a length of time. That is why, many people say, after 6 years listening, now I think I am understanding your teaching better! Does not matter! So it requires soaking like the pickle. This is called śravaṇam, which removes ignorance. Ajñāna nivṛtti is the third,

And the 4th one is called mananam, after comprehensively studying Vēdānta I begin raising my doubt. During śravaṇam, doubts are not allowed; first you dump all the data; and having done śravaṇam for a length of time, then generally most of the will be cleared, even if some are there; raise the question and answer and it is called samsaya nivṛtti, removal of doubt;

And the fifth and final stage is called, Nidhidhyāsanam. Dwelling upon the teaching. because I have to change my perspective of myself. Because all the time I have been looking upon myself as the body. The body orientation is the most powerful vasana. And therefore, whatever happens to the body, I take it as happening to myself and therefore, the response is different; that is called samsāra and therefore I have to spend some time and tell myself, I am not the body; but I am functioning through the medium of the body. In sleep, I have dropped all the transactions but I continue to exist. Similarly in death also, the body may end, but I continue to survive. And therefore, I am not a mortal one; the shift of self-perspective. And when I change my opinion about myself, my opinion about the world also will change. And this process is called Nidhidhyāsanam or meditation to remove old orientation. Otherwise we can call, deconditioning.

Thus after five levels. karma, upasana, śravaṇam, manana, and nidhidhyāsanam. At the end of all these five levels of sādhanā, I own up this fact that Aham Nithyah Caitanya Rūpa Ātma Asmi. So these are the sādhanās.

Then comes the phalam. The benefit of this knowledge. Krishna mentions a few. First benefit he mentions is sarvatra sama darśanam. Because this person's vision has shifted from anātma-pradhāna to ātma-pradhāna. So instead of different waves, I see one underlying water. Instead of seeing different ornaments, I see one underlying gold. I keep the words bangle, ring, chains, for transactions, but in and through the transactions, I have got what darshanam? Gold darśanam. whatever ornament I transact. Similarly this person has got the ātma-darśanam, and ātma being the same in all, it is sama darshanam and the practical benefit is freedom from Rāga and Dvēṣa, which are the two primary problems of samsāra. Rāga Dvēṣa abhāva. Freedom from attachment and aversion. This is one benefit.

The next benefit Krishna gives is amṛtatva prāp̄thi. When I took myself as the anātma-body, I concluded I am mortal. When I know I am the ātma, now I claim I am immortal. When the wave thought that it is a wave; it was afraid of its mortality. But the moment wave shifted the vision, and claims I am the water, the wave is not afraid of mortality; because as water, it does not die. Therefore, amritathva prapti, immortality is the second benefit.

Next benefit is akartṛtva, abhokṛtva prāpti. I come to know that I am neither a kartā, nor a bhoktā; but in my presence, matter is interacting. All the changes belong to the matter. I, the consciousness, am like the Sunlight; I illumine everything but I am not tainted by anything. So this is akartṛtva, abhokṛtva prāpti.

Finally Krishna says, this alone is called brahmatvam. Aham Brahma asmi iti brahmatva prāpti. brahmatva. Limitlessness. As a wave, I am limited; but once I know I am water, I can claim that I am everywhere. So these are the benefits, in simple language, jeevan mukthi.

Jīvan mukthi is the benefit of this knowledge and therefore Krishna concludes. Hey Arjuna, gain this knowledge, which makes a difference in your life. All the other disciplines of knowledge will not make any fundamental difference, whereas this knowledge makes a crucial difference, takes you from bondage to liberation. So,

क्षेत्रक्षेत्रज्ञयोरेवमन्तरं ज्ञानचक्षुषा ।

भूतप्रकृतिमोक्षं च ये विदुर्यान्ति ते परम् ॥ १३- ३५ ॥

kṣētrākṣētrajñāyōrēvam antaraṃ jñānacakṣuṣā |

bhūtaprakṛtimōkṣaṃ ca yē viduryānti tē param | | 13.35 | |

With this, Krishna concludes the 13th chapter, and the chapter is kṣētra kṣētrajñā vibhāga Yōga; because in this chapter, Krishna clearly differentiates consciousness and matter. kṣētram meaning matter, kṣētrajñā meaning consciousness.

CHAPTER – 14: The Yōga of the Division of the Three Guṇas

|| caturdaśo'dhyāyaḥ - guṇatraya-vibhāga yōgaḥ||

Having completed the 13th chapter, now we will enter into the 14th chapter of the Gītā as I had pointed earlier, the 14th chapter also falls within the last ṣatkam or group of the Gītā and the last ṣatkam is focusing on jñāna yōga or self-knowledge. And in these six chapters also, the first three chapters, viz., 13th, 14th, and 15th mainly focus upon jñāna yōga or self-knowledge; and therefore all these three chapters are important, and all of them have the essence of the Upaniṣads. Sarvōpaniṣadō gāvō dōgdhā gōpāla-nandanaḥ. He said in the Dhyāna slōkās, that means Krishna has milked the essence of the Upaniṣads, from the Upaniṣadic cow it is mentioned; that Upaniṣadic essence is throughout the Gītā but especially in these three chapters, 13th, 14th, and 15th, the self-knowledge, viz., the knowledge of our higher nature.

And in the previous chapter, the knowledge of our higher nature was presented as "I" the kṣētrajña or the witness principle. Ātma is revealed as the dṛk the kṣētrajña the observer and everything else is presented the kṣētram, the observed, the Driśyam. The differentiation was done based on the observed-observer principle and this method of teaching is called, Dṛk-Driśya viveka. It is a popular method used in the śāstra, to arrive at my true nature; I go on negating all that I experience. Nēti Nēti method; whatever I experience, I am not. And if I go on negating everything that I experience, finally there will be only one thing left out, and that is the experiencer who can never become an object of experience. And this method of arriving at the subject by negating every object, including the body, mind and the thoughts; this method is called Dṛk-Driśya vivēka, the thirteenth chapter employed this method.

Now in the 14th chapter also Krishna is going to deal with the same subject matter, but here ātma, my nature is going to be revealed as Guṇatithaḥ, or Nirguṇa tatvam and everything that has got guṇas or attributes, they are all anātma, the object and by negating everything Saguṇa, what will be left behind is the guṇathithaḥ, the Nirguṇa ātma. So what was presented as the observer in the thirteenth chapter, the same ātma is presented here as the attributeless principle. And therefore this chapter is in the form of guṇa thraya, guṇāthithaḥ, vibhaga yōga. Previous chapter is kṣētra-kṣētrajña vibhāgaḥ, subject-object differentiation; here the topic is Saguṇa-Nirguṇa vibhāgaḥ; Saguṇa means with attributes, Nirguṇa means without attributes.

And the Saguṇa is going to be here termed as Guṇa traya. The three-fold guṇas. The details we will see in due course. And the Nirguṇa tatvam is called guṇāthithaḥ. That which transcends all the attributes. And we are going to differentiate guṇa trayah and the guṇāthithaḥ and we are going to claim that I am the guṇāthithaḥ ātma; I am not the guṇa-traya anātma. This is going to be the subject matter of this chapter; a small chapter but an important chapter. With this background, we will enter into the chapter proper.

1. The Lord said – Once again I shall impart (that) supreme knowledge which is the greatest among all forms of knowledge, and gaining which all sages have reached the supreme goal from here.

The chapter begins with Lord Krishna's voluntary offer to teach further. In the thirteenth chapter, Arjuna asked a question. And therefore Krishna answered, whereas here we do not find Arjuna raising any question, at all. Krishna himself out of sheer compassion offers to teach the same thing once again. Why should Krishna do that. Is it because he had nothing else to do? Or because he had a captive audience? Not even audience; only one person; because he has got a captive student or he loves the teaching, what is the reason.

Sankaracharya often says when the subject matter is very very subtle, a teacher has to repeat it again and again. When the subject matter is shallow, you need not repeat. You know there was one Swami, who used to make very very deep and significance sentences and used to say: think. and he will give a half minute gap. Because it is worth thinking.

And somebody observed that Swami and they found Swami is making statements and asking the audience to think, and he wanted to imitate that Swami and therefore this Swami started a discourse and said "Gītā has 18 chapters. Think". என்ன தின்க் பண்ண இருக்கு? What is to be thought of it here; So therefore, we should know where to repeat, where to give a pregnant silence, one cannot repeat at each and every place. One should not also be silent at each and every place.

Similarly, Lord Krishna knows which deserves repetition. And this ātma jñānam being durvignēyatvāt ati sukṣmatvāt, repetition is not a defect. When the subject matter is simple, repetition becomes a dōśa, it is called punaruthi dōśa. But when the subject matter is deep, punaruthi is not a dōśa, but it is an ornament to the teacher. Therefore Krishna says Hey Arjuna, what I taught in the 13th chapter or previously, is an extremely subtle; you are a good student; you would have understood; but still for my satisfaction, I would like to present it again. But if I give the same title, you will be bored; and therefore, in another fashion, I will present it; Just as the very same 'Sēvai' is presented as Lemon-Sevai and Coconut Sevai, Ulundu sevai, etc. people want different ruchi or taste; similarly, Krishna presents from a different angle. Previously it was Kṣētra-Kṣētranja vibhāgaḥ, Puruṣa-Prakṛti vibhāgaḥ, now it is guṇa traya- guṇāthithaḥ vibhāgaḥ.

So Krishna says here: Sri Bhagavān ucāva. Bhagavān voluntarily offers: भूयः प्रवक्ष्यामि bhūyaḥ pravakṣyāmi: I shall once again give you the same teaching; what jñānam; the same jñānam; ātma jñānam I shall impart once again and what type of jñānam it is;

परं उत्तमं ज्ञानम् param uttamam jñānam. So it is the greatest knowledge in the world. Param means greatest, uttamam means greatest; so the greatest knowledge I am going to give.

So Śankarācārya in his commentary raises a question, param also means the greatest knowledge, uttamam also means the greatest knowledge; why should Krishna say the greatest-greatest knowledge. Why not say only once? Śankarācārya says there is a subtle difference.

The first 'greatest' indicate a knowledge which deals with the greatest thing, Reality in the world. In terms of the subject-matter, this knowledge is the greatest, because it does not deal with the ordinary perishable thing, but it is dealing with the greatest reality, the pāramārthika satyam and therefore the first greatest indicate viśaya driṣṭya uttamam.

And then the second greatest means not only the subject matter is the greatest one; that is ātma or brahman. The result that we derive out of this knowledge, the phalam also is the greatest. First greatest represents the subject matter; viśaya driṣṭya uttamam; the second one refers to Phala driṣṭya also uttamam. Because this is the knowledge which gives the greatest result of mōkṣa whereas all other branches of knowledge can give the result of the perishable artha, perishable kāma, perishable dharma, whereas this is the only knowledge, which gives the result of imperishable mōkṣa. Thus uttama viśyatvāt, uttama phalatvāt, this knowledge is the greatest knowledge. And that is why in Mundaka Upaniṣad, this knowledge is called Parā vidya. In the 9th chapter, it is called Rāja vidyā. And therefore Arjuna, I shall keep you that knowledge which is the greatest among jñānam, all the branches of knowledge.

And what is the result that they are going to get; I said mōkṣa. So naturally, we will ask the question What is mōkṣa. So mōkṣa is a technical term; and therefore Krishna himself explains that mōkṣa phala.

यत् ज्ञात्वा yat jñātvā, by gaining this wisdom, the greatest wisdom, सर्वे मुनयः sarve munayaḥ; all the seekers and the word Muni literally means a sanyāsi, and the word sanyāsi indicate the detachment and the word detachment indicates sādhanā catuṣṭaya sampathi. Therefore, munayaḥ means those seekers who have got all the necessary qualifications in abundance.

In the last class summary, I talked about 4 Ds, Discrimination, Dispassion, Discipline and Desire for mōkṣā. So the one who has got all these qualifications is called Munihi, in this context. Muni does not refer to the external qualifications like a flowing beard, etc. munayaḥ means Adhikāriṇaḥ. All those prepared seekers.

What did they get? परां सिद्धिम् इतः parāṃ siddhiṃ gatāḥ itaḥ; they attained mōkṣā which is the highest accomplishment in life. Gaining which alone the life can be called worthwhile. Kenōpaniṣad points out:

इह चेदवेदिदथ सत्यमस्ति न चेदिहावेदीन्महति विनष्टिः iha cēdavēdidatha satyamasti na cēdihāvēdīnmahati vinaṣṭiḥ

Any other thing you get, life is not worthwhile; life is validated; made meaningful only if this knowledge is attained; And therefore parāṃ siddhiṃ; the highest accomplishment of mōkṣā;

itaḥ gatāḥ. they have attained while living. Not only while living; even after death; they have gained the vidēha mukti also. So itaḥ means marāṇāntharam. Liberation while living is called Jīvanmukti. Liberation after death is called vidēha mukti. These people have attained both.

इदं ज्ञानमुपाश्रित्य मम साधर्म्यमागताः ।
सर्गेऽपि नोपजायन्ते प्रलये न व्यथन्ति च ॥ १४- २ ॥
idaṃ jñānamupāśritya mama sādharmaṃyamaḡatāḥ |
sargē'pi nōpajāyantē pralayē na vyathanti ca || 14.2 ||

उपाश्रित्य upāśritya resorting to, इदं ज्ञानम् idaṃ jñānam this knowledge, आगताः āgatāḥ they have attained, साधर्म्यं मम sādharmaṃyamaḡatāḥ as Mine, न उपजायन्ते na upajāyante they are not born, अपि सर्गे api sarge even during creation, न च व्यथन्ति na ca vyathanti nor do they suffer (death), प्रलये pralaye during dissolution.

2. Resorting to this knowledge, they have attained the same nature as Mine. They are not born even during creation; nor do they suffer (death) during dissolution.

Introduction continues. In the previous verse it was pointed out that this jñānam is superior_most, because it deals with the greatest reality; and the benefit is also the greatest, which consists of jīvanmukti and vidēhamukti.

Now the next question is what is jīvanmukti and what is vidēhamukti. Krishna briefly defines them; इदं ज्ञानम् उपाश्रित्य idaṃ jñānam upāśritya; by taking recourse to this knowledge, by acquiring this knowledge, मम साधर्म्यं आगताः mama sādharmaṃyamaḡatāḥ. The seekers have attained oneness with me. They have also attained Īśvara svarūpam, dropping their jīvātman. So mama sādharmaṃyamaḡatāḥ, means Īśvara svarūpam.

And what do you mean by Īśvara svarūpam. Īśvara has got pūrṇatvam, and these people enjoy the pūrṇatvam even while living. So the first indication of jīvanmukti is total inner sense of self-sufficiency. Not missing anything in life; as Krishna said in the 2nd chapter, ātmana ēva ātmanaha thushta. Bhagavān is ever pūrṇaḥ; this jñāni also enjoys pūrṇatvam.

And the second feature or glory of Bhagavān is abhāya svarūpaḥ. Bhagavān is free from the sense of insecurity; whereas Jīva is full of insecurity feeling. This jñānam will remove the sense of insecurity. अदृश्ये, अनात्मिये, अनिरुद्धे, अनिलयने, अभयम् प्रतिष्ठाम् विन्दते adṛśyē, anātmīyē, aniruddhē, anilayanē, abhayam pratiṣṭām vindatē.

So Īśvara svarūpam means abhāyam, freedom from insecurity; freedom from finitude; freedom from slavery. Bhagavān is called Swami. Swami means what the one who is the master of everything and a samsāri is called bṛtya-dāsāḥ, a slave. A slave of what? slave of people; slave of circumstances; slave of karma. A jñāni by this knowledge attains Īśvara svarūpam, means this jñāni also becomes a swami. He is no more a slave of karma phala; ihaiva tairjitaḥ sargō yēṣāṃ sāmyē sthitaṃ manaḥ.

They are the masters of the situation; and mastery means no regret over the past, and no anxiety with regard to future. So this svamītvam, pūrṇatvam, abhāyam, ānanda svarūpaha, ānanda, all these are indicated by the word साधर्म्यं sādharmyam. This sādharmyam indicates jīvanmukti. So even while living, they enjoy the glories which belong to the Lord. This is called jīvanmukti.

And then what happens to them after death. After death they attain vidēhamuktiḥ and what do you mean by vidēhamuktiḥ. vidēhamuktiḥ means freedom from punarjanma. Punarjanma leads to: you can easily fill up the blanks. punarjanma leads to punar maraṇam and punar maraṇam will lead to punar janma. Punarapi jananam, punarapi maraṇam cycle, they are free from.

And therefore, vidēhamuktiḥ is defined in the second line सर्गे अपि न उपजायन्ते sargē api na upajāyante; they are not born again as miserable individuals and therefore sargē means in the next sṛiṣṭi, they are not created again.

And therefore प्रलये न व्यथन्ति च pralayē na vyathanti ca. They do not come to grief again, caused by mortality. So pralayē at the time of pralayam, they do not grieve. They are not afflicted by the pain of death. In short; they are free from janma-maraṇa cycle, which is called vidēhamuktiḥ and therefore Arjuna, if you want to enjoy this jīvanmukti and also get the benefit of vidēhamuktiḥ, concentrate on this jñānam.

मम योनिर्महद् ब्रह्म तस्मिन्गर्भं दधाम्यहम् । सम्भवः सर्वभूतानां ततो भवति भारत ॥ १४- ३ ॥

mama yōnirmahad-brahma tasmīngarbhāṃ dadhāmyaham |
sambhavaḥ sarvabhūtānām tatō bhavati bhārata || 14.3 ||

महद् ब्रह्म mahad brahma the great Prakriti मम योनिः mama yōniḥ in My womb, अहं दधामि ahaṃ dadhāmi I place गर्भम् garbham the seed तस्मिन् tasmin in that, ततः भवति tataḥ bhavati thereupon takes place, सम्भवः sambhavaḥ the origination, सर्वभूतानाम् sarvabhūtānām of all beings, भारत bhārata Oh Arjuna !

3. They great Prakriti is My womb. I place the seed in that. There upon takes place the origination of all beings, Oh Arjuna!

The introduction continues. In the first two slōkās, Krishna introduced the subject matter, subject matter is what: ātma jñānam, and he also talked about the glory of the subject matter, the glory is that it is a liberating knowledge; so having introduced the subject matter, now in these two verses, the 3rd and 4th, Krishna summaries the process of creation which he had dealt with in the 13th chapter. So as a reminder, Krishna is summarizing the process of creation; because the development of the teaching depends upon the knowledge of the creation. And therefore, as a foundation, He reminds that. And what was the creation that He talked about in the 13th chapter. There He said:

प्रकृतिं पुरुषं चैव विद्ध्यनादि उभावपि।
विकारांश्च गुणांश्चैव विद्धि प्रकृतिसम्भवान्॥ १३.१९ ॥
prakṛtiṃ puruṣaṃ caiva viddhyanādi ubhāvapi|
vikārāṃśca guṇāṃścaiva viddhi prakṛtisambhavan || 13.19 ||

He said before the creation, there were originally two principles, known as Puruṣa and prakṛti. And He said both Puruṣa tatvam and prakṛti tatvam are anādi; anādi meaning beginningless. They are the cause of the creation; but they themselves are not created entity. There Krishna said both are anādi. And we talked about 4 differences, if we remember;

Puruṣa is cētana tatvam, conscious principle. prakṛti is acētana tatvam, inert principle,

Puruṣa is nirguṇa tatvam, without any attributes;

prakṛti is saguṇa tattvam, with guṇas; Puruṣa is Nirvikāra tatvam, without any modifications; whereas Prakṛti is savikāra tatvam, subject to modification.

Fourthly and finally, Puruṣa is satya tatvam having independent existence of its own; whereas prakṛti is matter; Does not have independent existence. Mithya.

So Nirguṇa, Nirvikāra, Satyah, Cētana Tatvam is Puruṣa; Saguṇa, Savikāra, Mithya, Acētana Tatvam is Prakṛti.

In English consciousness and matter existed from beginningless time. And He also pointed out that this mixture Puruṣa-prakṛti, consciousness-matter is the cause of the creation. And this mixture alone is called Īśvaraḥ. Īśvara is neither pure-Puruṣa, nor pure-prakṛti, but it is a mixture of these two. And either of them cannot independently become the cause of the creation and to convey this idea, Krishna takes the comparison of the Father principle and the Mother principle. The Puruṣa tatvam is compared to the father principle and the Prakṛti tatvam is compared to the mother principle. It is only a comparison: because male alone can produce; female alone can produce a child; male and female together alone can be the cause of the creation; and therefore Puruṣa is compared to a male and Prakṛti is symbolized as female. It is only a symbolism. Do not extend it too much and ask whether all the ladies are inert!!! When I say females are compared to prakṛti, it is only a comparison; do not extend it too much; you will have problem. Then why this comparison, only to show that both the tatvams put together alone can cause the creation.

Then Krishna wants to point out; if the Puruṣa and Prakṛti, i.e. father and mother, and that too inseparable father and mother, like what?

वागर्था विवसंप्रित्तो वगर्त प्रतिपत्तये, जगत पितरो वन्दे, पार्वति परमेश्वरो vāgarthā vivasāṃprittō vagarta pratipattayē, jagata pitaro vandē, pārvati paramēśvaro; inseparable like Shiva and Pārvati; the Ardhanārīśvara, inseparable like Viṣṇu and Lakṣmi, who is occupying viṣṇu's chest; like Brahma and Saraswati, who is occupying Brahma's tongue. Similarly father principle Puruṣa, mother principle Prakṛti, put together is called Īśvara; you may call it Ardhanārīśvara; i.e. the cause of the creation.

And then Krishna wants to point out that if this mixture is the cause of the creation; all the products will have the features of both the father and mother. Because the general rule is what; kāraṇa guṇaḥ, karyē anuvartantē, the features of the cause will inhere, pervade the effect also. If gold is the cause of the ornament, the ornament is also golden in nature. And if the cause-Gold has a percentage of copper, the ornament also will have a percentage of copper. If the children are born out of the couple, the children will have some features of the father; some features of the mother; both will be there. Only thing is the proportion. One child might have more of the mother and less of the father; another might have more of the father and less of the mother; but the principle you have to note, the causal features will inhere in the effect. And therefore Krishna wants to extend that principle and say every individual is a mixture of Puruṣa and prakṛti tatvam. Every individual jīva, whether it is plant or ant or elephant; whether it is a human being, male or female; every one of us is a mixture of Puruṣa, father principle, as well as prakṛti the mother principle.

If we do not recognise this nature of ours, which nature, I am a mixture of Puruṣa tatvam, what type of Puruṣa tatvam; nirguṇa-nirvikāra-sathya-cētana Puruṣa tatvam; and saguṇa-savikāra-mithya-acētana prakṛti tatvam, if I do not understand my composition very clearly, I will not know how to handle myself properly.

Self-knowledge is required for self-mastery. Anything you want to master, what is the first step, learn to understand. If a disease has to be cured, before finding a remedy for the disease, what is the first step, I have to understand the nature of the disease. What is cancer bug, what is a HIV virus, what is hepatitis, whatever is, B, A or C. If I should handle myself properly, which is a prerequisite for handling my set up. If I do not know how to handle myself, how am I going to be the master of my family. Child is not listening. You are not able to obey yourselves. What is the complaint. Therefore, self-mastery requires self-knowledge. Self-knowledge involves knowing my composition.

And Krishna wants to say that I am composed of Puruṣa aspect as well as prakṛti aspect. And to show and proof that I am the mixture of both, Krishna wants to point that I am the mixture of both, because my cause Īśvara is a mixture of both. so karanam is a mixture of both, kāryam the jiva is also a mixture.

For that, he is introducing the creation. Therefore, Krishna says here: Hey Arjuna, I am the Puruṣa Tatvam and inseparable from me is the prakṛti tatvam, otherwise called Māya tatvam and māya is comparable to my wife. Therefore I am Brahman the husband; Puruṣa the husband; and māya is like my wife, indicating I cannot create the universe without prakṛti, the māya. That Soundarya lahari begins with that.

शिवः शक्त्या युक्तो यदि भवति शक्तः प्रभवितुं

न चेदेवं देवो न खलु कुशलः स्पन्दितुमपि । ॥ ? ॥

śivaḥ śaktiyā yuktō yadi bhavati śaktaḥ prabhavitum

na cēdēvaṁ dēvō na khalu kuśalaḥ spanditumapi ।॥ ? ॥

That is why we have an idiom, சக்தி இல்லையானால்; சிவனே என்று இரு. If there is no śakti, you have to keep quiet. (In Tamil). Vedāntam. பர்க்ரிதி இல்லையானால் புருஷனுக்கு ஒன்றும் பண்ண முடியாது. If prakṛti is not there, Puruṣa cannot do anything. Even now, in many houses, the wife you ask, she will say, I will check up and say. Many houses the parampara continues.

And therefore Krishna says; मम योनिः mama yōniḥ, yōniḥ literally means womb, in this context, womb, means wife, the female principle, my wife, Krishna says; is Mahat brahma. That is very very misleading verse; the word brahma here is Māya, the prakṛti tatvam; the word brahma in this context means prakṛti. The matter principle, the māyatatvam.

And what type of wife she is: महद् ब्रह्म mahad brahma, is a universal mother, and therefore mahat means what: infinite; because the pregnancy of the universal mother should be a great pregnancy because the universal mother has to conceive the universe. Therefore Krishna says Mahat brahma, infinite māya is my wife as it were; and who am I, we have to supply, I, the Puruṣa tatvam am comparable to the father principle. I, the consciousness am the father, māya is the mother principle.

And what do I do; when the right time for creation comes; what do I do तस्मिन् अहं गर्भम् दधामि tasmin garbham ahaṃ dadhāmi. I transfer the garbham; means the life principle, the power to create; power to reproduce; I hand over, I transfer to the Mother. Just as at the time of conception, the male transfers the seed of the baby to the female. Similarly at the time of creation, I bless māya with the power to produce the universe. Tasmin garbhaṃ dadhāmyaham.

And philosophically speaking, garbādānam is supposed to be blessing the māya tatvam with the cidabhāsa or the reflected consciousness; blessing the māya is considered to be garbha dānam. I activate the māya. So tasmin garbhaṃ dadhāmi. I activate māya; I impregnate māya, I give māya the power to evolve itself into a universe.

And once the conception has taken place; father, male principle has done the job, female principle has conceived, and thereafter the male principle need not do anything, the baby foetus will grow in the body of the mother, perfectly according to the law of nature. Father need not know all the laws. Even the mother need not know all the laws to conceive the baby and every week growth appropriately and whatever transformation is needed in the mother's body, that also will take place; Similarly, here also Krishna says: once I bless the māya, I need not do anything; māya will evolve into this creation. The subtlest form of matter, which you may call as energy itself, that will evolve like after the big bang things evolve perfectly according to the law. Similarly evolution happens.

सर्वभूतानां सम्भवः sambhavaḥ sarvabhūtānām; sambhavaḥ, origination, emergence. Just as the baby grows in the mother's body, and at the appropriate time, 9th month or the 10th month, by the same law of nature emerges:

तस्मात् द्वा एतस्मात् अत्मन आकाश संभूतः tasmāt dvā ētasmāt atmana ākāśa sambhūtaḥ. Before big bang cannot talk about time and space. Even the concept of time and space is impossible before big bang; During the time of singularity (scientists call it singularity) you cannot talk about anything, it is a state of non-information. Singularity they call, it is a state of non-information. In Vēdānta non-information is called māya. It means that you will not understand. This people call it state of non-information. In Sanskrit it is called māya. In this place what is there, If we say māya, we will not understand. If you have understood māya well, then you know māya is un-understandable.

Sannappya sannapya ubhayathmikhaano, bhinnapya bhinnapyo ubhayathmikhaano, nangaapya nangaapya ubhayathimikaano, mahabhutha anirvachiniya rupam.

Anirvacaniyam means where information is lacking. At the time of big bang, information was not there; but out of that evolved this universe; Similarly, आकाश संभूतम् ākāśa sambhūtam, thereafter we can trace how the creation evolved.

आकाशात् वायुः, वायोर् अग्निः, अग्नेर् आपः, अद्य पृथ्वी, पृथ्व्याम् ओषदयः, ओषधिभ्यो अन्नम्, अन्नात् पुरुषः
ākāśāt vāyuh, vāyōr agniḥ, agnēr āpaḥ, adya pṛthvī, pṛthvyām oṣadayah, oṣadhibhyō annam, annāt puruṣah

Everything happens. therefore Krishna says sarvabhūtānām. bhūtāni, means all things and beings; sambhavaḥ, the origination of all these.

tatah bhavathi; tatah, Thereafter, and that moment of big bang, the inexplicable moment, from that moment, everything evolves naturally. भारत bhārata, hey Arjuna.

So then what happens:

सर्वयोनिषु कौन्तेय मूर्तयः सम्भवन्ति याः |

तासां ब्रह्म महद्योनिरहं बीजप्रदः पिता || १४- ४ ||

sarvayōniṣu kauntēya mūrtayaḥ sambhavanti yāḥ |

tāsām brahma mahadyōnirahaṁ bījapraḍaḥ pitā || 14.4 ||

कौन्तेय kaunteya Oh Arjuna! याः भूतयः yāḥ bhūtayaḥ whatever forms सम्भवन्ति sambhavanti are born सर्वयोनिषु sarvayoniṣu in all the wombs तासाम् tāsām all of them महद् ब्रह्म योनिः mahad brahma yoniḥ the great prakriti is the womb अहं पिता ahaṁ pitā I am the father बीजप्रदः bījapraḍaḥ who provides the seed.

4. Oh! Arjuna, whatever forms are born in all the wombs – for all of them the greatest prakriti is the womb. I am the father who provides the seed.

So Krishna said that I am the universal father; and māya is the universal mother; and we the universal couple, jagata pitaro, are comparable to any local couple, there also because of their combination the child is born, the child has the features of both of them.

Then what is the difference between the universal couple Bhagavān and Bhagavati and the worldly couple; Krishna says even though many things are common; there is one main difference. What is that; if you take any couple in the world; any male and female, humans species, you take, the human couple can produce only what child; human child; Thank good; if something is born as a monkey; we do not expect that; we do not want like monkey; what to talk of monkey itself; so when you take any one couple in the universe that couple is the cause of only one species, whereas the universal mother has given birth all the species.

And therefore Krishna says, अहं बीजप्रदः पिता ahaṃ bijapradah pitā; second line, I am the universal father; who activate, who impregnate māya, who enliven māya by blessing it with reflected consciousness, chidabhāsa pradhānēna, I bless the Māya and therefore I am the universal father;

And महद् ब्रह्म योनिः mahad brahma yoniḥ; mahat brahma as we saw in the previous verse, mahat brahma, means the infinite māya. Here also the Brahma means, māya, very careful, mahat, the infinite māya is yoniḥ the mother principle; comparable to the mother principle.

And blessed by me; the māya becomes the universal mother not for one species, but for all the species. And therefore Krishna says सर्वयोनिषु याः मूर्तयः सम्भवन्ति sarvayōniṣu yāḥ mūrtayaḥ sambhavanti. So whatever species of living beings is born in the world; whatever we see, the monkey species is there; buffalo species is there; locally the buffalo child is born out of buffalo mother; monkey child is born out of monkey mother; whatever species is born out of the corresponding mother; all of them when you go to the original cause, the original cause is what only one māya, which is the cause of all the monkey species also; buffalo species also; octopus also; snails also; whatever.

Therefore Krishna says; sarvayōniṣu yāḥ mūrtayaḥ. Murthy means whatever types of body, murthy means here śarīram. So whatever bodies or whatever species you experience here, born out of the local mothers. For all of them, the immediate cause may be the immediate mother, but the original cause is māya only.

So, yāḥ sambhavanti. Whatever living being is born; तसं tāsām; for all of them, brahma yoniḥ, māya is the universal mother. And therefore we are all children of brahman plus māya. Puruṣa plus prakṛti. Consciousness plus matter; nirguṇam plus saguṇam. And therefore we also will have a mixture of both. This is going to be studied later which we will see from the next class.

Om

In this 14th chapter, the first 4 verses happened to be introductory verses, in which Lord Krishna first mentioned that he is going to deal with Self-knowledge in this chapter also; just as in the 13th chapter he dealt with ātma jñānam; this is also a chapter on self-knowledge and he glorified self-knowledge, as the liberating wisdom and therefore worthy of study by everyone.

After giving a brief introduction to the subject matter, in the first two verses; in the third and fourth verses, which we saw in the last class, Krishna talked about the creation. And the purpose of dealing with this topic is to point out that every product in the creation including every individual is a mixture of two parts; one is the Puruṣa part and the other is the prakṛti part. And for this purpose, He talked about the cause of the creation, as none other than Īśvara himself; who is a mixture of Puruṣa tatvam and prakṛti tatvam; otherwise called brahma tatvam and māya tatvam; or to present symbolically, the father-principle and the mother-principle. The Puruṣa tatvam represents the father principle; prakṛti tatvam represents the mother principle and this is to show that Puruṣa cannot create the world without the support of prakṛti and prakṛti cannot create the world without Puruṣa and therefore whenever we talk of God, it is a mixture of both; father and mother are inseparably there. That is why in the purāṇa also, Pārvathi cannot be separated from Parameśvara, because they are Ardhanārīśvara and Lakṣmi cannot be separated from Viṣṇu because she occupies the chest of Viṣṇu. That is why you keep the pocket here, for keeping the money; because Viṣṇu keeps Lakṣmidevi there; and therefore Lakṣmidevi never separate from Viṣṇu. and we are supposed to do the same thing; but not knowing this fact, we are keeping the packet elsewhere; so where to keep money. It is not money to be supposed to be done; money is Lakṣmidevi, supposed to occupy your back, and that too lower back. Thus Lakṣmidevi cannot be separated; Viṣṇu is called Sreenivasaḥ, Sriyaḥ Lakṣmyaḥ nivāsa sthanam hi. Similarly, Saraswati cannot be separated from Brahmāji; she occupies Brahmāji's tongue itself. All these are to indicate that Puruṣa and Prakṛti are inseparable; this mixture alone is called God. And what Krishna wants to point out is since the cause of the creation, viz., the Lord is a mixture of two principles, the effect also must be a mixture of these two because the components of the effect will be exactly the same as the components of the cause. If the Gold has got 6% silver or copper, then all the ornaments also will have the same percentage; because the law is kārana gunāḥ, kārye anuvarthante. You can understand easily: kārana gunāḥ,, the features of the cause will inhere the effect also. And therefore every individual Jīva; you and I, is also a mixture of Puruṣa tatvam and Prakṛti Tatvam, and therefore to understand oneself thoroughly, we should clearly know how to differentiate/distinguish these two features within ourselves. And therefore for the sake of self-study, Krishna is introducing the creation and there we saw in the fourth verse

तासां ब्रह्म महद्योनिरहं बीजप्रदः पिता ॥ १४- ४ ॥
sarvayōniṣu kauntēya mūrtayaḥ sambhavanti yāḥ ।
tāsāṃ brahma mahadyōnirahaṃ bījapradaḥ pitā ॥ 14.4 ॥

Hey Arjuna, I am the Puruṣa Tatvam and what is Puruṣa Tatvam, do you remember the definition: Nirguṇa, Nirvikāra, Sathya, Cētana tatvam. Puruṣa means the changeless, attributeless, consciousness principle, which is an independent and absolute reality. Whereas prakṛti tatvam is saguṇa, savikāra, mithya, acētana tatvam, that which has attributes, that which is subject to changes, and that which is of the nature of jada, acētana, inert principle. In English we can say consciousness plus matter is equal to Īśvara tatvam and Īśvara paramātma is kāraṇam, jivātma is kāryam. If a kāraṇam is a mixture consciousness plus matter, kāryam is also a mixture of consciousness-principle-plus-matter-principle.

So in me also, both are there, and therefore, I should understand both these features. And this analysis is going to be the subject matter of the 14th chapter. So you have got the changing feature also and you have got a changeless feature also. You have got a nature which is attributed, saguṇa feature also and you have got a nirguṇa feature also, and similarly, you are a mixture of matter and consciousness and you are a mixture of lower Mithya principle and higher Sathyam principle. And therefore I should thoroughly understand both and that analysis is going to start hereafter.

So from 5th verse, the analysis is going to begin.

We will read verse No.5

सत्त्वं रजस्तम इति गुणाः प्रकृतिसम्भवाः |
निबध्नन्ति महाबाहो देहे देहिनमव्ययम् || १४- ५ ||
sattvaṃ rajastama iti guṇāḥ prakṛtisambhavāḥ |
nibadhnanti mahābāhō dēhē dēhinamavyayam || 14.5 ||

सत्त्वं रजः तमः satvaṃ rajaḥ tamaḥ Sattva, rajas and tamas इति गुणाः iti guṇāḥ
these are the three guṇas, प्रकृतिसम्भवाः prakṛtisambhavāḥ born of prakṛiti निबध्नन्ति nibadhnanti they fasten अव्ययं देहिनम् avyayam dehinam the changeless self देहे dēhē in the body, महाबाहो mahābāho Oh Arjuna!

5. Sattva, Rajas, and Tamas – these are the three guṇas born of prakṛiti.
They fasten the changeless Self in the body, Oh Arjuna!

Before entering into the analysis proper, I will give you a bird's eye-view of the development that is going to come hereafter. I said Bhagavān is a mixture of consciousness and matter, and therefore every one of us is also a mixture of both. And what is the material aspect of the individual. The physical body is material in nature; it is made up of prakṛti tatvam; because body is made up of matter and body has got attributes; properties are there; it is fat; it is lean; it is healthy, it is sick, it is saṅga, and body is savikāram or nirvikāram? Subject to change or is it changeless? you clearly know body is violently changing and therefore body comes under the prakṛti part of the individual; Similarly the mind also comes under the prakṛti part of the individual; And other than the body mind complex, there is the puruṣa tatvam, which is the consciousness principle. And what is that consciousness? I hope you remember, consciousness is not part, product or property of the body, consciousness is an independent entity which pervades and enlivens the body and consciousness principle is not limited by the boundaries of the body, it goes beyond and the consciousness principle does not die when the body dies; and finally, this surviving consciousness principle cannot be contacted by us; not because it is non-existent, but because there is no medium of contact. I have given you the example of light, which is pervading this body and this consciousness principle in me which enlivens the body-mind-complex is called puruṣa tatvam.

And in vādānta, we use two technical words; I would like to introduce. The pure consciousness principle, which is nirguṇa, nirguṇa means attributeless, nirvikāra, which is changeless, that consciousness is called sākṣi tatvam. The witness principle; the changeless-witness of all the changes that happen. Now the mind is in peaceful condition; there is a witness of the peaceful state of mind; Next moment the mind is turbulent; the mind changes kaleidoscopically it changes, but there is a changeless-witness-consciousness is aware of the previous condition of the mind- aware of the present condition of the mind. This changeless witness consciousness is called sākṣi tatvam, which is one aspect of mind. This Vādānta calls my higher nature; my superior nature; my diviner nature; my loftier nature.

Then, of course, I have got this body principle, the mind principle, which is by itself inert in nature; body by itself is inert in nature, why because it is made up of matter, it is a bundle of chemicals; a bundle of five elements; this body by itself is inert; but even though intrinsically the body is inert, because of the pervasion of consciousness, the body has got borrowed consciousness. Just like now, my body is shining for you; not because the body has got its own luminosity; now my body is shining because of what? the light pervading the body.

Similarly, this body is inert; but because of the pervading consciousness, body has got borrowed consciousness; like the hot water. The hot water is not hot because heat is its intrinsic nature but water is hot because it is pervaded by the invisible agni tatvam. You cannot see it with the visible eyes. If you put your finger, you will know. Water looks the same; hot water is hot; not because heat is its nature, but it is borrowed from the fire principle. Similarly, this body is now sentient; not because of the intrinsic-sentiency but because of borrowed-sentiency; in Sanskrit we call it; Cidabhāsa pratibhimba caitanam, reflected consciousness; we had discussed this long before in Tatva Bodha; OC, RC, RM. If you have forgotten better you have to brush through your notes.

So now this body has got borrowed sentiency; therefore it is a live body. It is prakṛti but a live prakṛti. Similarly, the mind also is made up of subtle matter only; subtle elements only and therefore the mind is also intrinsically-insentient; but the mind has become sentient due to what? borrowed sentiency which is technically called cidabhāsa; So thus we have got a live body; with borrowed-consciousness, we have got a live mind with borrowed consciousness. In short we have a got a live prakṛti, prakṛti means the body mind complex, with borrowed consciousness. And in Vēdāntic parlance, this body-mind-complex, otherwise called prakṛti, with borrowed-sentiency, borrowed-consciousness, this body-mind complex is Ahamkāraḥ. Ahamkāraḥ is equal to body-mind complex; otherwise called prakṛti-plus-borrowed-consciousness; i.e. cidakāsa. So Sariram-plus-cidabhāsa is equal to ahamkāra. Prakṛti-plus-cidabhāsa is equal to ahamkāra. Matter plus borrowed consciousness is called ahamkāra. And what is the name of the original consciousness? What is the name of the original consciousness? Sākṣi Tatvam. So sākṣi is the name of the original consciousness; Ahamkāra is the name of the body mind complex, plus the reflected or borrowed consciousness. And every individual is a mixture of Sākṣi and ahamkāra. Every individual is a mixture Sākṣi plus ahamkāra. When I say, Sākṣi, you should remember; OC, the original consciousness, ahamkāra means the body plus reflected consciousness. In Tatva Bodha we used the expression RM plus RC. RM means reflecting medium; what is the reflecting medium, body-mind-complex, RC means the reflected consciousness.

So now let us put the formula. OC is the sākṣi, RC plus RM is equal to Ahamkāra. I hope it is not confusing. And every individual is a mixture of Ahamkāra and Sākṣi. Therefore when I use the word I, it has got an ahamkāra-aṁsa as well as sākṣi amsa. Whenever I use the word I, it has got the ahamkāra-aṁsa, is equal to body with borrowed consciousness and also sākṣi-aṁsa, which is what the original-consciousness. Of this, if you make a comparative study, the sākṣi-amsa is nothing but original consciousness, which is Nirguṇa, Nirvikāra, Sathya tatvam. The Sākṣi part of mind; the sākṣi aspect of mind is nothing but attributeless changeless, real, absolutely real-consciousness and when a jñāni says Aham brahmāsmi, that Aham refers to which aspect? the sākṣi aspect, the original consciousness, which is nirguṇa, nirvikāra, sathya, caitanyam, whereas when you take the ahamkāra aspect of mind, what is the nature of ahamkāra; your mind should shift to the body mind complex with borrowed consciousness.

That will be saḡuṇam or nirḡuṇam? Ahamkāra being body mind complex, body mind complex being prakṛti, ahamkāra is saḡuṇa. Ahamkāra is savikāra or nirvikāra? Ahamkāra is maha savikāra. Ahamkāra is cētanam or acētanam? Confusion will come. Ahamkāra is cētanam or acētanam? It is cētanam alright; but not intrinsically cētanam but it has got borrowed cētanatvam. And Krishna wants to say Arjuna you are a mixture of ahamkāra and sākṣi. And you should be able to differentiate the ḡuṇāthitha sākṣi and saḡuṇa ahamkāra. You should be able to differentiate the ḡuṇāthitha sākṣi, another name for nirḡuṇa sākṣi, and saḡuṇa ahamkāra.

And Krishna wants to point out Ahamkāra is your lower nature. It is your individuality, whereas Sākṣi is your higher nature. And then Krishna wants to point out as long as you are taking yourselves as ahamkāra, as long as you remain as ahamkāra only, samsāra cannot be avoided. Ahamkāra is vulnerable to samsāra and the only way of getting out of samsāra is you have to transcend your lower ahamkāra-nature and you have to own up your higher sākṣi-nature.

And for this purpose, Krishna wants to point out, how the Ahamkāra is poison. it is a problem. And why it is a problem? Because it is saḡuṇa. The very saḡuṇa nature of ahamkāra makes it a problematic aspect of yours. And naturally the question will come; how the ḡuṇas or saḡuṇātvaṃ, becomes responsible for samsāra.

And for that Krishna wants to talk about the various ḡuṇas of ahamkāra. And he points out that ahamkāra has got three ḡuṇas; because it is made up of prakṛti, which has got three ḡuṇas. Are you understanding? What is the split up. Body-mind-complex plus borrowed-consciousness. Body mind complex is Puruṣa or prakṛti? It is prakṛti. Since prakṛti has got three ḡuṇas, body-mind-complex also has got three ḡuṇas, therefore Ahamkāra also has got three ḡuṇas. Sātvika ahamkāraḥ, rājasa ahamkāra, and tamasa ahamkāraḥ, and Krishna says all the three ahamkāras are samsāri-ahamkāra. எங்கே போனாலும் மாட்டிப்பய. Wherever you go, you will be in trouble. And each ahamkāra is bound in a different way. Sātvika ahamkāra is bound by satva ḡuṇa; rājasa ahamkāra is bound by rajō ḡuṇa; and tāmasa ahamkāra is bound by tamō ḡuṇa.

And therefore Krishna wants to talk about the nature of each ḡuṇa and how each ḡuṇa binds a person and what are the indications of the presence of each ḡuṇa and what will be the consequences of the respective bondage; all these Krishna is going to analyse; that is why the very chapter is called guṇa traya vibhāga yōgaḥ. Domination of each guṇa binds the ahamkāra.

And in Sanskrit language, the word Guṇa has two meanings; one meaning is a property or an attribute. And the second meaning is a 'rope' or a shackle. So the very word guṇa indicate that it is a rope which will bind you to samsāra and which will never allow you to be a free person. Therefore, you have to break the shackles of three guṇas and discover the freedom of moksha.

And now, we will briefly see the expressions of each guṇa. At the time of creation, in the prakṛti or in matter all the three guṇas are there; but they are in equilibrium. Equilibrium means what? the same proportion. So before the creation emerges, at the time of pralaya, the condition is guṇanām sāmya avastha. Sāmiam means equilibrium. And in equilibrium state, there is no creation. And when the time for creation comes, the guṇas are disturbed; the proportions are disturbed, and the creation has got all the three guṇas alright; but not in sāmya avastha, but in viṣama avastha. The proportion will vary; the percentage of these three guṇas will vary.

And according to the scriptures, even the most inert object in the creation also has got three guṇas and the plant kingdom has also three guṇas; the animal also has three guṇas; human beings also have got three guṇas; every one is a mixture of three guṇas; but the differences in a particular thing is because of different proportions in the guṇas.

And in the human being, how does the domination of each guṇa expressed itself. Krishna points out satva guṇa makes the character or the nature of the individual to be jñāna pradhāna Puruṣaḥ. Satva represents jñāna pradhānam. It makes a person a cognitive individual; an intellectual person interested in; or thirsting for more and more knowledge. So in his case, the jñānēndriya, the five sense organs of knowledge, as well as the controlling intellect will be highly active. And diagonally opposite is the raja pradhānam. In a rajasic character, it will be karma pradhāna; activity oriented. So jñānēndriyas are generally passive; do not ask me what are the jñānēndriyas; the eyes, the ears, nose, the tongue and the skin and the intellect; the analysing-intellect; the thinking intellect, judging-intellect; that will be active, whereas in a rājasic personality, it will be karma pradhāna which means karmēndriyas will be active. Vāk, (will never to silent, can go on non-stop, you can see this in any group, some people not talking at all ~ the other person would be dominating all the time) vāk pradhāna, and if you do not allow him to talk in a lecture hall or something, vāk cannot be active, but the hands and legs cannot be quiet. So therefore vāk, pāni, pāda, pāyu, upastha and behind that the pañca prāṇās, the energy is highly active, hyper-active.

So satva guṇa is jñāna pradhāna, rajō guṇa gives a karma pradhāna personality. And Tamō guṇa will be the suppression of both. Neither the jñānēndriyas will be active, nor will karmēndriyas be active; more inertia will be there; So mainly if you study satva and rajas, tamas you can easily find out, it is the suppression of both of them.

And when a person is a jñāna pradhāna person; generally that person will be turned inwards, internal oriented; mind a person will have, because a mind which seeks knowledge is always intellectually-active, analysing, thinking, hypothethising, theorizing, in fact, intellectuals live in their own world of ideas; they are not even aware of the surroundings. Therefore Satva dominant will express itself in the form of Nivṛitti pradhāna. Nivṛitti means turning inwards or withdrawal.

Whereas when rajōguṇa is dominant, it will be pravṛitti pradhāna, the person will be highly turned outwards. One is inward, another is outward. When satva guṇa is dominant, and a person is thinking, contemplative, etc.; naturally that mind will not like to relate itself with the external world of objects, because very relationship or interaction or transaction will make the mind extrovert; whereas sātvic mind being turned inward, it does not like saṅga, saṅga means what interaction, transaction, etc. it does not like. Therefore, this is asaṅga- pradhāna whereas a rājasic mind loves turning outward. Socialising, interacting, talking to people. So if you go for a camp, you will find that one person would love to be inside the room, the other people will love to go out and socialise, meet, talk and enquire, all those things. What makes the difference, one is satva pradhāna and another is raja pradhāna. One is asaṅga, the other sasaṅga.

The fourth difference that we can see is that a thinking mind would naturally love a set up which is conducive for contemplation, and therefore it loves silence. Tranquility, quietitude; It wants niśabdathā, whereas the silence is poison for the rajasic mind, it cannot withstand silence. It will switch on the TV to the top decibel. Cannot withstand silence. or one has to call someone on the phone. Something or the other or use the walkman. Something or the other, it likes noisy activity; that is why we say that there is buzzing activity. We never say silent activity. Buzzing activity; lot of noise. Noise will be there. And Tamōguṇa is just the opposite, it suppresses both satva and rajas and Krishna wants to point out that all the three guṇas are bondage. All the three guṇas cause bondage in different ways.

How all the three guṇas cause bondage? A sātvic mind will love a set up which is quiet, and which is conducive for thinking, contemplation, study, etc. and if that set up is disturbed, by any sound or any visitor; then a sātvic mind is upset. And therefore, it is a duḥkha-misritha condition, Because as long as the set up is favourable to me, the sātvic mind enjoys. In fact many people after studying Vedanta, they would like to spend more time in study, meditation, etc. at home, and they complain, Swamiji, lot of disturbances. Irritating disturbances. And even if no other sound is there, the sound of the clock, this person gets irritated. Or even the lizard says ki, ki, ki; this person gets irritated. A sātvic mind is also a bound-mind because it cannot totally control the set up, when the set up is disturbed, it has to come.

Similarly, a rājasic mind, of course hates silence and quietude, and if there are no people around, that person is upset and disturbed and therefore, he wants to disturb the neighbour. Cannot keep quiet. because he cannot face silence. Therefore a rājasic mind also will face duḥkham because, as long as it is able to order the set up as it wants, it is fine; but when the set up is disturbed, it is unhappy and tamasic mind, that also will have problems. Krishna will tell the details later; the greatest problem being there is no scope for progress at all. So, therefore, all the three guṇas are mixed with pain or sorrow. And Krishna points out that all the three guṇas cause dependence. A person who loves silence is addicted to silence. And he is not a free person because to enjoy happiness, he requires silence. And therefore he is mukthaḥ or baddhaḥ? Sātvic person is also bound, because he is addicted to silence.

What about rājasic person? That person is also bound, because he is addicted to noise; company he wants. If all the people go out, this person will feel lonely and disturbed. Therefore, bandakatvam, dependence and bondage is common to all the people; pain is common to all the people, wherever dependence is there; pain is also there.

And thirdly, all the people will have athrupthikārathvam (this is said in Upaniṣads), duḥkha-misrithatvam, athrupthikārathvam, bandhakatvam. Athrupthikārathvam is also common to all the three. How, a sātvic person wants to gain more and more knowledge. He has a got a great hunger for knowledge. And without knowledge, he feels a limited person; and therefore he wants to remove the knowledge-wise limitation; which limitation, the rājasic person will never feel. Sātvic person alone will have the unique sense of limitation; what I know is less; and therefore, he goes on acquiring knowledge; because he wants to become omniscient, sarvajñā. But to his utter desperation and dismay he finds out any amount of knowledge he gathers, his limitation, knowledge-wise limitation does not go away.

In fact, the more you learn the more you know about you do not know. Therefore greater your knowledge, more you know about your ignorance, and that is why in every field, he goes on specialising, specialising, specialising, and the whole life time is not enough to concentrate on one subject. One medicine into so many parts; whole body is divided into ophthalmology, ENT Department, dentistry and dermatology. Swamiji says dermatologists has skin-deep knowledge. If you go little deeper, he will say that it is not my department, and you have to go to the bone specialist. Orthopedist. whatever it is.

So therefore, as somebody nicely defined, a specialist is one who learns more and more about less and less things. And therefore I am never going to become omniscient in the field of any branch of science and therefore samsāra; this is called intellectual samsāra. I want to know more about; and I am not able to know.

Similarly, a rājasic person also suffers from samsāra, not in terms of knowledge but in terms of activity. He wants to do more and more; accomplish more and more. He becomes a workholic; he says a miles and miles I have to travel; and do all these things. And at any time he looks at himself, he is not satisfied. Satvic person travels from finitude to finitude, rajasic person travels from to finitude to finitude, tamasic person does not travel at all; therefore he is from finitude to? There is no From; he continues in finitude. And therefore Krishna says: all the three guṇas will bind you. And all the three forms of ahamkāra are bondage. Sātvic ahamkāra is also bondage; rājasic ahamkāra is also bondage, tāmasic ahamkāra is also bondage.

If you want to transcend bondage, you have to transcend ahamkāra and own up your higher nature and what is your higher nature. The Sākṣi, guṇāthitha Sākṣi.

But Krishna wants to point out one important thing; even though the three guṇas are causes of bondage, for liberation, you will have to use the three guṇas only as stepping stone. Even though they are the causes of bondage, you will have to intelligently use them and transcend them; like a poll vaulter; what does he do, he has got a poll. To vault himself. and what does he do; he uses the poll; runs, fixes down and with the help of the pole alone, he goes up, and cross the bar, thereafter what does he do; he should not say that because of this pole alone, I am on the top now; I should show my gratitude; at this time, if I leave the pole, I am not loyal to the pole, therefore nicely I will hold on to it; etc. if someone says, he is a fool. You have to drop. So one person uses the pole, goes up and refuses to drop. He is an Fool No.1. There is another person who says, anyway after reaching up, I have to drop the pole, why take the pole at all; प्रक्षालनाति पन्कस्य दूरात्, अस्पर्शनम् वनम् prakṣālanāti pankasya dūrāt, asparśanam vanam.

Therefore he refuses to use the pole. This fellow is super idiot. An intelligent person uses the pole, goes up, drops the pole and wins the Commonwealth gold medal. Similarly use the ahamkāra pole. You require tamōguṇa also. If you do not have tamōguṇa at all, if you are all the time jñāna pradhāna and karma pradhāna, you will never go to sleep. And if you have no sleep at all for you and more than that problem for others; therefore we require Tamōguṇa for sufficient rest; and recuperation, use tamōguṇa and you have to use rajōguṇa and become a karma pradhana person to follow karma yōga. Karma yōga requires a rājasic ahamakāra. and thereafter you have to go to jñāna yōga and jñāna yōga requires what ahamkāra? sātvic ahamkāra. Suppose in the class you have got tāmasic ahamkāra, what will you be doing?; dozing. If you have a rājasic ahamkāra, what will happen? wandering all over; who are all come; who are all sleeping, etc. you will be watching. There are some people who love to watch who are all sleeping. Rājasic ahamkāra. So a wandering mind cannot learn, a dozing mind cannot learn, an alert, vigilant and non-wandering mind absorbs the teaching like sponge. And once it gets it wisdom; what is the wisdom, the wisdom is I am not this inferior saṅguṇa ahamkāra nature; because it is mithya and inferior; my real nature is Aham guṇāthitha sākṣi asmi.

Thus, we have to know the nature of the three guṇas and how they bind us and we also should know how to intelligently use the three guṇas, and become guṇathithaḥ and guṇathithaḥ is a liberated person. This is going to be the analysis in the verses beginning from the 5th verse onwards, the details fo which we will see from the next class.

Om

For analysing the three guṇas, Lord Krishna has given the introduction and in the introductory portion we saw that every individual is a mixture of two portions; one is called sākṣi-aṁśa, the higher part of the individual and second is ahamkāra-aṁśa, the lower part of the individual. Of these two portions, the sākṣi portion the higher part consists of only consciousness which is pure caitanyam; whereas the ahamkāra the lower part consists of two things, one is the inert-body-mind-complex, is part of ahamkāra, and this inert-body-mind-complex, enjoys the reflected consciousness or borrowed consciousness and because of that, the body-mind-complex has become sentient. Just as a mirror, a non-luminous-mirror becomes a bright-mirror when it has got a reflected sunlight. So when I look at a bright-mirror, I should remember it has got two parts; one is the mirror part and the second is the reflected sun. In the same way, the ahamkāra, like the bright-mirror has got two parts, one is the inert-body-mind-complex, like the mirror, and the second is the borrowed or reflected consciousness; in Sanskrit we call it Prathibhimbha caitanyam plus the body. And this mixture prathibhimbha-caitanyam plus the body together is called ahamkāra and what is the sakshi? Sākṣi is neither the body, nor is the reflected consciousness. Sākṣi is different from both the body and the reflected consciousness and what is that? the original consciousness. If you remember Tatva Bodha, RM + RC = Ahamkāra. RM means the reflecting medium, the body + RC, the reflected consciousness is equal to the ahamkāra.

Then what is the sākṣi? It is neither the RM, nor is it the RC, but it is OC. In OC itself our life is running!!!. So this OC part is called the higher part, the sākṣi-aṁśa, RC plus RM is called the lower part, the ahamkāra aṁśa, the sākṣi-aṁśa and the ahamkāra aṁśa is together inseparably. When I use the word, I, it is a mixture of both the sākṣi and Ahamkāra. And of these two aṁśas, the sākṣi is the nirguṇa aṁśa, because it is pure consciousness; whereas the ahamkāra contains the body-mind-complex, and the body-mind-complex is matter. It is prakṛti and therefore Ahamkāra is endowed with three guṇas. So Ahamkāra aṁśa is saguṇa aṁśa, whereas Sākṣi-aṁśa is (aṁśa means aspect, facet or part). So my lower nature is saguṇa nature and my higher nature is Nirguṇa sākṣi.

And having said this much, Krishna wants to point out that the ahamkāra can never escape from the three guṇas; because ahamkāra consists of prakṛti, it is made up of the prakṛti and therefore ahamkāra (when I say, ahamkāra, you should remember, body-mind-complex plus the reflected consciousness) body-mind complex is born out of prakṛti principle. You have to remember that always, then only ahamkāra and saguṇa can be understood clearly.

Therefore, my lower part; the ahamkāra aṁśa can never escape from these three guṇas and the only juggling that I can do is change the proportion of the guṇas. Like some political parties do, they change the ministers to party work and from party work to ministry and then to governorship. The party consists of the same type of people. I am not telling whether they are good people or bad people. You can decide the composition!

Ahamkāra can never escape from the three guṇas. Ahamkāra can only be dominant in satva guṇa; in which case it will be sātvic ahamkāra, dominant in rajō guṇa in which case it will be rājasic ahamkāra or it can be tāmasic ahamkāra. And Krishna wants to say that whether it is sātvic, rājasic or tāmasic; all these three guṇas are bound to bind the individual. Only the type of saṁsāra caused will change; the mode of bondage will change, one may be a golden shackle; another may be silver shackle; another may be an iron shackle; but all the three are shackles. Like in Saudi Arabia, when a member of the royal family commits a crime and they have to behead, they will use a gold sword. What will be difference, when it will be cut by a gold sword or silver sword? Therefore Krishna wants to say that all these three guṇas would bind; therefore you want to be free you have to transcend the saguṇa ahamkāra, and you have to own up your higher guṇāthitha, nirguṇa, sākṣi-aṁśaḥ.

But one thing that Krishna admits is to become a guṇāthitha, initially you will have to use the three guṇas as a stepping stone; as I gave the example of the pole, used by the pole-vaulter. The pole will have to be used to go above the bar; but having gone above, the pole will have to be dropped. Not using the pole is also foolishness, not leaving the pole is also foolishness; use the pole, cross the bar and leave the pole. Similarly use the guṇas and then drop the guṇa; drop means, transcend the guṇa and become guṇāthitha. This is what Krishna is going to teach. For that purpose the analysis of the three guṇas is started from verse No.5, which will go up to verse no.18. And Krishna gave the introduction in fifth verse. There are three guṇas associated with ahamkāra; dēhīnām, dēhī means what: the Ahamkāra pradhāna jīva. And that ahamkāra, the jīva is associated with all the three guṇas in different proportions and nibadhnanti; all the three guṇas will bind differently.

Up to this we saw in the last class. Now continuing.

6. Among them, satva is bright and harmless due to (its) purity. It binds by causing attachment to pleasure and by causing attachment to knowledge, Oh Arjuna!

For the sake of our convenience, this analysis of the three guṇas can be divided into five topics.

The first topic is the definition of each guṇa. In Sanskrit, we call it Lakṣaṇam. Lakṣaṇam means the definition. What is the definition of Satva, similarly Rajas and Tamas.

Then the second topic that Krishna will discuss is the mode or method of bondage. How each guṇa binds a person in its own unique way. In Sanskrit we call it bandana prakāraḥ. Bandanam means bondage, prakāraḥ means mode or method. This the second topic.

The third topic is the indication or clue to find out which guṇa is predominant in a person. Whether I am a satva predominant person, having a sātvic ahamkāra, or whether I am a rājasic or tāmasic; how can I know. So we should have some indicator or test that indicator is called Liṅgam. So thus satva liṅgam, rajō lingam, and tamō lingam. Liṅgam does not mean Śivaliṅgam; liṅgam means an indicator.

Then the fourth topic is the gathiḥ. What will be the type of travel taken by, the course of travel taken by a jīva, after death. If a person dies, with satva predominant, which direction he will travel; if he dies with rajas predominant, which direction he will travel; similarly, tamasaḥ gathiḥ. So the word gathiḥ means marana ananthara prayāṇam. This is the fourth topic.

Then the fifth and final topic is: the consequences of the domination of each guṇa in this life itself. If satva is predominant in a person, what consequences we can find, here when we are alive. In Sanskrit, we call it phalam. Satva phalam, raja phalam, and tamō phalam. What is the difference between gathiḥ and phalam? gathiḥ is the consequence after death; phalam is consequence before death. These are the five topics. Lakṣaṇam, bandana prakāraḥ, liṅgam, gathiḥ and phalam.

Of these five topics, first we are going to take up lakṣaṇam and bandana prakāraḥ. In verse No.6, Krishna talks about satva lakṣaṇam and satva bandana prakāraḥ. Then in the 7th verse, rajō lakṣaṇam and bandana prakāraḥ; and in the 8th verse, tamō lakṣaṇam and bandana prakāraḥ.

Now let us look into the verse. Tatra. Among these three guṇas of ahamkāra or sakshi;? Sākṣi does not have. The ahamkāra, tatra, satvam, when satva is predominant in a person, in the ahamkāra, nirmalatvāt; it is called śuddha satvam or nirmala satvam. And what do you mean by śuddha satvam or nirmala satvam; it means when satva guṇa is dominant, the other two guṇas will not contaminate, influence or pollute satva guṇa. If rajō guṇa and tamō guṇa contaminate or pollute the satva guṇa, it will be called malina satvam, but when satva is dominant, rajas and tamas will not affect it. And when rajas and tamas do not affect, what will be the nature of that satva. Prakāśakam.

When tamō guṇa influences the satva, tamō guṇa being dullness, tamō guṇa being ignorance and darkness and dullness. If tamō guṇa pollutes satva guṇa, the mind will be turbulent; like a water mixed with particles will be turbid water, will not be bright and pure. When tamō guṇa influences satva, the mind will be turbid; but when tamō guṇa does not influence satva, it is like a clean filtered water; treated water, zero-B water; the mind will be clear; in thinking there will be clarity. So when will there be clarity in thinking; When satva guṇa is nirmala, that means not influenced by tamō guṇa. Dullness. Tamas stands for dullness. Therefore Prakāśatmakam. Therefore a satva pradhana mind will have clarity of thinking. That is why in English also, we use the expression, he is a bright boy; bright; means clarity of thinking.

And similarly, if rajō guṇa pollutes the satva, what will be condition, rajō guṇa stands for activity; restlessness; as I said in the last class, extrovertedness etc. when rajō guṇa pollutes the satva, the mind will be restless, wandering, vacillating, wavering; but when satva guṇa is predominant, and rajō guṇa does not influence, that satva guṇa is nirāmayam. Prakāśatmakam means unpolluted by tamō guṇa. Nirāmayam means unpolluted by rajō guṇa. Nirāmayam means free from tension; free from stress; free from strain; free from restlessness. When rajō guṇa pollutes, the mind cannot relax. Whereas satva is predominant it becomes a Prakāśatmakam, bright and calm. and therefore, what is the definition of satva guṇa; it is Prakāśatmakam, it is of the nature of brightness and calmness, quietitude, tranquility And this seems to be a wonderful nature; if the mind is bright and calm, it is capable of learning things; it is capable of observing; it is capable of contemplation, it is capable of self-analysis.

Satva guṇa seems to be a wonderful thing; how do you say, satva guṇa binds? Krishna says: satva guṇa is also bondage, because a sātvic mind seeks always a tranquil atmosphere; a sātvic mind seeks seclusion; a satvik mind seeks freedom from noise pollution. OK, அதுல என்ன தப்பு? what is wrong in it. The problem is you can never control the external atmosphere. So if you are addicted to seclusion and quietitude, you become a dependant person, dependant on what, quietitude and seclusion. And if a situation comes in the family, where you cannot order quietitude and seclusion, you become highly disturbed. Nobody allows me to be peaceful even for a small time; the phone calls, the door bell, the noise, neighbours, etc. you want quietitude, quietitude becomes a cause of bondage.

Whereas a liberated person is defined as a person who does not depend even quietitude or seclusion for fulfilment and happiness. Any type of dependence is bondage, satva guṇa leads to noble dependence, but noble dependence is also a dependence.

And therefore Krishna says: Sukha saṅgēna; the sātvic ahamkāra sees seclusion, quietitude, etc. and that becomes, that need becomes a bondage. And unfortunately, in India, with such a big population you go anywhere, one thing you cannot avoid is noise. So many festivals and there is no connection to the cinema music blaring all-round in the temple compound!! And you get irritated and go there; there is one, he switches on and he goes away for tea. So you get highly irritated, because you need tranquility. So sukha saṅgēna badnāthi;

And second type of bondage is jñāna saṅgēna cha Anagha. Satvic mind is attached to knowledge. It is an introvert mind which wants to think and know and study and increase the range of knowledge. Just as a rajasic mind we will see is attached to karma, rajasic mind is karmēndriya pradhāna, a sātvic ahamkāra is jñānēndriya pradhana, it wants to increase knowledge. And both have got greed. There the greed for action; here the greed is for knowledge. OK, what is wrong; if a sātvic ahamkāra wants more and more knowledge; the problem is any amount of knowledge you gather; you can never become full and complete, because of omniscience is impossible. Just as you gather any amount of money, you are finite, you gather any amount of knowledge, you are intellectually finite. And therefore a rajasic person is dissatisfied with his external possession; a sātvic person is dissatisfied with his internal possession of jñānam. And therefore here by jñānam I mean the material knowledge. I am not talking about ātma jñānam; I mean aparā vidya; he wants to gather more and more. Satvic person suffers from intellectual saṁsāra. He wants to solve the fundamental problems of science and when he dies incapable of solving a crucial scientific problem, he dies a restless person, because he could not solve that problem. And they think that you can solve all the problem, always there will be some scientific unsolved problem. For knowledge is bound. Hey अन्घ anagha, means Arjuna and by using the word Anagha, Krishna indirectly says Arjuna you have a pure mind. Because he asked for knowledge. śiṣyastē'haṁ śādhi māṁ tvāṁ prapannam. So thus in the first line, tatva lakṣaṇam is given, in the second line is tatva bandana prakāra is given. What is lakṣaṇam; Prakāśātmakam. What is bandana prakāra. Sukha Saṅgēna. Attachment to quietude is the bondage.

Now we will come to the rajō lakṣaṇam and bandana prakāra.

रजो रागात्मकं विद्धि तृष्णासङ्गसमुद्भवम् ।
तन्निबध्नाति कौन्तेय कर्मसङ्गेन देहिनम् ॥ १४- ७ ॥

rajō rāgātmakaṃ viddhi tṛṣṇāsaṅgasamudbhavam |
tannibadhnāti kauntēya karmasaṅgēna dēhinam || 14.7 ||

विद्धि viddhi understand, राजः रागात्मकम् rājaḥ rāgatmakam rajas to be of the nature of passion, तृष्णासङ्गसमुद्भवम् tṛṣṇāsaṅgasamudbhavam (and) to be the cause of desire and attachment, तद् निबध्नाति tad nibaghnāti it binds, देहिनम् dehinam self कर्मसङ्गेन karmasaṅgena by causing attachment to activity, कौन्तेय kaunteya Oh Arjuna !

7. Understand Rajas to be of the nature of passion (and) to the cause of desire and attachment. It binds the self by causing attachment to activity, Oh Arjuna.

First line deals with rajō guṇa lakṣaṇam. रजो रागात्मकं विद्धि rajō rāgātmakaṃ viddhi. It is of the nature of attachment and passion; a rājasic mind is highly extrovert; and it always wants to relate with things and people. The nature of rajō guṇa is that the mind is always extrovert and it always wants to have relationship with things and people. If satva is nivṛttiḥ pradhāna, seclusion and withdrawal; rajas makes a person pravṛtti pradhāna; interested in companionship; in people, in relationship, in interaction. And it never loves quietude; all the time it wants to talk to someone or the other. If you put a rajasic person in a room alone, he cannot survive for five minutes; he will break the door and come out. Whereas if you put a sātvic person, you will not know that such a person is there. it is just the opposite. Therefore Krishna says: rājaḥ rāgātmakam, rāgā means relationship, attachment, passion. All the time trying to stick to people. And even while sitting there are some people, so much space would be there; they will sit others also. In sleep also they have to embrace someone; if nobody is there; then the pillow is there. It is the type of mind.

I am not saying it is good or bad; I am saying the two types of mind; it is a non-judgmental observation. We require each guṇa to attain liberation. Because karma yōga will require activity. Pañca maha yajñā will require activity, in which case, we will require rajō guṇa and of course the study of vēdānta will require satva guṇa; Therefore no guṇa is good or bad, each guṇa plays its own role. In fact, if you see the range of sādhanā, in each level of sādhanā, we are making use of one guṇa or the other.

And therefore rājaḥ rāgātmakam viddi, sticky type, passionate. And naturally, तृष्णासङ्गसमुद्भवम् trṣṇāsaṅgasamudbhavam. Since it is an extrovert mind, a restless mind, a dynamic mind, it has got lot of ambitions and wants to achieve; always wants to achieve something or the other; it is an ambitious mind; and therefore it has trṣṇa; trṣṇa means desire for external thing; Lot of possession; lot of people; And if husband is sātvic and wife is rājasic or wife is sātvic and husband is rājasic, you had it. One wants peace and one wants blah blah. You have to manage. So trṣṇa means what?

Of course the desire we will into two, either selfish desire or selfless desire; the mind is full of desire by which a person wants to become a workaholic person and not only trṣṇa Kāma;

And after acquiring things, asaṅgaḥ, he wants to hold on to everything. The old pen, with which he wrote the SSLC examination 3 times. It is not writing now; it is an ink pen; who needs that now: yet he keeps that. Even the disposable cups and bottles all of them he does not want to give up anything. Because fashion is there, the gum is there and therefore parigraḥ pradhanā. Parigraḥ means possession.

Whereas satva guṇa makes a person. aparigraḥ pradhanā; aparigraḥ, he wants to drop things. One wants to hold and the other wants to drop. And therefore Asaṅga. Sticking to everything. Samudbhavam means it is the source. What is the source? Rajō guṇa is the source of desire and attachment. Desire for things not possessed and attachment to things which are already possessed. In fact you begin to wonder he possesses the object or he is possessed by the object. So this is the rajō guṇa definition; what is the definition? rāgātmakam: of the nature of attachment.

And how does the rajō guṇa bind the individual. Hey Kaunteya. Tat Nibadnanti. Rajō guṇa also binds, dēhinām, the individual, karma saṅgēna, by making him attached to karma, all the time. karma saṅga make him a workaholic. And we may argue karma is required for accomplishing them. Even karma yōga is required for citta shuddhi, what is wrong in doing karma. Since you ask, what vēdānta says, karma is required upto a particular stage; after that particular stage, one has to shift to jñāna yōga. Karma yōga has to be followed by jñāna yōga, but the problem with rajasic person is, he can never come to jñāna yōga. Karma, Karma Karma, Karma, Karma; fall dead. So that is called attachment. Therefore Karma saṅgēna, attachment to karma is binding. What about satva guṇa, jñāna saṅgēna. Here it is karma saṅgēna.

pramādālasyanidrābhiḥ by (causing) negligence, indolence, and sleep, भारत
bhārata Oh Arjuna !

8. Understand tamas to be born of ajñāna and to be the deluder of all beings. It binds by (causing) negligence, indolence, and sleep, Oh Arjuna.

So now comes the Tamō guṇa lakṣaṇam and tamō guṇa bandana prakārah. Krishna says Tama ha tu ajñānam thu viddhi. Tamō guṇa also is born out of ajñānam. Ajñānam in the context means prakṛti. Because Prakṛti is the original source of the creation. From prakṛti alone satva guṇa also flows; rajō guṇa also flows; tamō guṇa also. Therefore, this tamō guṇa is also equally born out of prakṛti or māya. and therefore one cannot escape from tamō guṇa.

But here we are dealing with what problems? the predominance of tamō guṇa, will cause what all problems; தூங்குதல் problem இல்லை; ஆனால் தூங்கிண்டே இருக்கிறது தான் problem (sleeping is not problem; then what is the problem. Continuing to sleep is the problem) Sleeping is not the problem; Everyone has to sleep. If one does not sleep, there is some problem; insomnia is a problem; for that person also; and more than that for the other people also. Therefore, we do not condemn tamō guṇa but we are talking about the predominance of tamō guṇa will create the following problems:

The first problem is that it suppresses the satva guṇa and rajō guṇa. Since satva guṇa is suppressed, there is no clarity of thinking. And therefore one even does not ask what is the purpose of life. Human life is never taken seriously. The precious time is never taken seriously. The young age is never taken seriously. All because of the lack of clarity of thinking. And because of that, mōhanātmakam; mōhanam means delusion; Mōhanam, is not mōhana rāga here, mōhanam means of the nature of delusion, that means there is no clear thinking and also often there is no goal in life; it is just moving along with the current; there is no goal and even if goals are there; the priorities are not clear. How much money is important; how much health is important; how much knowledge is important; with regard to all these, there is no clarity and therefore Mōhanam sarvadēhinām; it causes delusion for all those people, and therefore what is the definition of tamō guṇa; mōhanātmakam of the nature of delusion.

And there are some people who are so intensely deluded that you try to talk to them and help them, they are so powerful that they make you also confused. They transfer the confusion to you also. Nothing can be done, except prārthana. Sometime such children are born in our own family; they do not take to study seriously, mother is worried; Swamiji, is there some prayer, this boy is not studying; and in this highly competitive society, if he does not study properly, in future which girl will marry him; girls are all Phds, this fellow does not want to go beyond SSLC ~ so therefore, will he get married; will he get a good job; parents are worried; but the child does not know the seriousness of the life itself. Therefore of the nature of delusion; at least for the children, if it is up to a particular stage, it is OK but there are people even grown up not clear about life and its goals.

And how does Tamō guṇa bind a person; प्रमादालस्यनिद्राभिः तन्निबन्धाति pramādālasyanidrābhistannibadhnāti. Pramāda, means carelessness; negligence with regard to the proper utilisation of the body, लब्ध्वा कथचिन्नरजन्म दुर्लभं labdhvā kathacinnarajanma durlabham. Getting narajanma is very very rare. Nari janma is possible. Nara janma is durlabham; and that too we are born in a vedic culture which talk about the higher goal, and if I do not make use of this wonderful opportunity, இப்பிறவி தப்பினால்; எப்பிறவி வாய்க்குமோ? (If this life is missed, what life will we get?) No guarantee that next janma will be manuṣya janma. We do not want; we are all liberated! other people; So pramādha. Not Tamil pramādha, is the Sanskrit pramādha, carelessness, negligence, Alāsyam, laziness or indolence; idling the time;

And then Nidrā, means sleep. Therefore, most of the time, this person is asleep or sleepy. This two avasathas he is aware only. He is not aware of the third stage of jāgrat avastha at all. Either he is asleep or sleep with half closed eyes; you think he is meditating, but he is sleeping. For such people, never prescribe meditation. So if you prescribe meditation, they will continue sleeping in sitting posture. Therefore you have to prescribe Karma. And therefore, Pramāda, negligence; laziness and sleep. through these three, tannibadhnāti bharatha.

Tamō guṇa binds a person. This person does not acquire puṇyam or pāpam. There is an advantage in Tamō Guṇa. this person does not acquire puṇyam or pāpam, why? puṇyam and pāpam are karma phalam; and this person does not do any karma; if only you do karma, to get puṇyam and pāpam. Therefore the advantage for this person, he will not acquire much āgāmi, he will not acquire fresh puṇyam and pāpam, but remember that is not a great achievement, animals also do not acquire puṇyam or pāpam. If I stay I have not acquired any puṇyam or pāpam, it means I have been like a buffalow. Is it a credit, therefore it is perpetuation of bondage. So tannibadhnāti Bharatha.

Continuing.

सत्त्वं सुखे सञ्जयति रजः कर्मणि भारत ।
ज्ञानमावृत्य तु तमः प्रमादे सञ्जयत्युत ॥ १४- ९ ॥

sattvaṃ sukhē sañjayati rajaḥ karmaṇi bhārata |
jñānamāvṛtya tu tamaḥ pramādē sañjayatyuta || 14.9 ||

9. Sattva binds (one) to pleasure, Rajas (binds one) to action; Whereas Tamas binds (one) to negligence by veiling the discriminative power, Oh Arjuna!

In this verse, Krishna repeats the topic of bandana prakāraḥ; even though he has talked about it; he is putting that in a nutshell in this verse; how each guṇa binds a person; by creating a particular form of addiction. Each one binds by creating a particular form of addiction, which is called saṅghaḥ.

And what are the three addictions?

सत्त्वं सुखे सज्जयति sattvaṃ sukhē sañjayati; Satva guṇa causes addiction to quietude, Nivṛitti, withdrawal, silence; addiction to silence is also a form of addiction. So Sukham means tranquility, quietitude, seclusion, etc. So sukha saṅgha is the mode of bondage.

Whereas rajō guṇa causes another form of addiction; karma saṅgēna, so it causes addiction to karma; doing karma is harmless; addiction to dharma is the problem. Enjoying silence is wonderful but addiction to silence is a problem. Like meditation is wonderful, but addiction to meditation is a problem. In fact, Vēdānta goes to the height of saying; even addiction to śāstra is an addiction. So do not say: I will leave all this now. We have not formed an interest all. So we can think of leaving after some time. Addiction to some guru, śāstra.

Vēdānta goes even up to God: அசை அறுமின்கள்; ஆசை அறுமின்கள்; ஈசனோடாகிலும். That kind of detachment we need not develop now; but Krishna wants to say is karma is OK, karma addiction is a bondage.

Similarly, Tamō guṇa binds how: Pramādē; as we saw before is carelessness. lack of attention. So no job is done wholeheartedly, whatever job he does, there are mistakes, there are corrections required; so pramāda saṅgaḥ, or you can say, Nidra Saṅghaḥ also; And how does it cause that? ज्ञानमावृत्य jñānamāvṛtya; by way of covering the clarity of thinking. So by covering the discriminative power, the tamō guṇa makes a person addicted to lose jobs all the time. So that means what; you cannot make that person responsible. Whatever job you give you have to stand behind. For that, we can ourselves do; he can never be a responsible person. More we will see in the next class.

Om

In the last few classes, we saw that our higher nature known as the sākṣi svarūpam is ever nirguṇam and therefore free from the influence of the three guṇas; but our vyāvahārika nature, our lower nature, which is called ahamkāra is a mixture of the body-mind complex, as well as the reflected consciousness. And till the ahamkāra consists of the body-mind complex and till the body-mind complex is born out of prakṛti, the ahamkāra can never escape from the three guṇas. And therefore, our body-mind complex is made up of three guṇas and the ahamkāra which consists of this body-mind complex is the necessarily made up of these three guṇas, and therefore, we can never escape from them. We have to live with these saguṇa ahamkāra. And once we are forced to live with this ahamkāra, it is better that we understand the ahamkāra well, so that we know how to handle it properly. If you have to live with some people at home, if you have no escaping from them, better you try to, whether to succeed or not, try to understand those people, because understanding will help in handling anything. Science is able to handle the nature more and more only because science has been able to know nature more and more. Knowledge gives the capacity for better handling. And therefore Krishna says: you have to understand your own ahamkāra very well. For that, you must know what type of ahamkāra you have; which guṇa is dominant, which guṇa is in middle; the second place, and which guṇa is the lowest; better you understand and you also know how these guṇas influence your vyāvahārika life; both material life, as well as the spiritual life.

And therefore Krishna stated into an enquiry into the three guṇas which we divided into 5 topics: the first topic being the definition of the three guṇas and he gave the definition; satva guṇa is Prakāśātmakam and rajō guṇa is rāgātmakam; and tamō guṇa is mōhanātmakam. By the word Prakāśātmakam it means, their mind would be inclined to gain more and more knowledge; a mind which is pre-disposed to the pursuit of knowledge. A mind with more and more knowing tendencies, a mind which want to use jñānendriyas more is called a sātāvika mind.

Whereas rajō guṇa is said to the rāgātmakam which is a personality with tend to add to more, more than knowing tendency; this personality has doing tendency; it is a dynamic mind which want to use the karmēndriyas more than the jñānendriyas. And therefore, karma pre-disposition or karma tendency is rajō guṇa lakṣaṇam, knowledge tendency is satwa guṇa lakṣaṇam.

And tamō guṇa is defined as mōhanātmakam, which means a personality, which is always in doubt; always indecisive; always procrastinating; always not sure what to do. A mind which is in eternal conflict and delusion and procrastination and if you try to help them resolve the conflict; not only you do not resolve their conflict, they will put conflict in your mind also. So powerful is their mōhaḥ. So this constant vacillation tendency is the expression of tamō guṇa which we called mōhanātmakam. This is the first topic, the definition. Then the second topic that we did was banda prakāraḥ, how the three guṇas bind a person which we can easily infer, a calm mind has always a knowing tendency; learning tendency; therefore, naturally it is addicted to any infrastructure which is conducive for learning. It always loves learning infrastructure which means quietitude, which means seclusion, which means silence, which means withdrawal, which means reduction of relationships, because relationships requires extrovertedness. And therefore, a calm mind is attached to knowledge infrastructure whereas a rājasic mind hates knowledge infrastructure of quietude, withdrawal etc.

A rājasic mind craves for a karma infrastructure. It wants to do something or the other; therefore it wants gadgets, it wants to go out, i.e. it wants an infrastructure in which karmēndriyas can be active. And this is called bondage it is addicted to such a set up and if such a set up is not available, that person is a fish out of water. He is unhappy and therefore, whether unhappiness is caused by silence, or whether unhappiness is caused by noise, unhappiness is unhappiness and Vēdantā defines mōkṣa as that state of mind, in which there is no unhappiness in noise also, there is no unhappiness in silence also, it is not one which is not bound by either noise or silence. Therefore, sattvaṁ sukhē sañjāyathi, i.e. called sukha saṅgha or jñāna saṅgha, the bondage, and rajō guṇa binds through karma saṅgha, attachment to karma; and tamō guṇa binds to nidrā and ālasya, tamō guṇa mind is not bothered about what infrastructure it wants. It does not even know what it wants. Still groping in darkness. And also it does not want to decide. Decision making is tamō guṇa mind, does not want, it is attached to vagueness, it is attached to negligence; it is attached to carelessness. So this is Pramāda saṅgha. Up to this we saw in the last class. Now we have to go to the next topic verse No.10.

10. SATTVA manifests by overpowering rajas and tamas. Rajas (manifests by over powering) sattva and tamas. Tamas (manifests by overpowering) sattva and rajas, Oh Arjuna!

For the third topic that Krishna is going to deal with is the liṅgam or the indicatory mark to know, whether one is sātvic, rājasic or tāmasic; but before entering into this third topic, Krishna is taking a small diversion. The 10th verse is a diversion verse. Of course, it is a deliberate diversion, because Krishna considers this topic, this diversion topic important and what does Krishna wants to say here: He says everything and being is made up of three guṇas; because everything and being is born of prakṛti. From an inert object to the most intelligent human being, every blessed thing in the creation is the product of prakṛti and therefore, everyone has got all the three guṇas.

But there is only one difference and that difference is even though everything is made up of three guṇas, the proportion is not uniform. The proportion was uniform before the creation; during the pralaya avastha, the three guṇas were in equilibrium, in saṅkya philosophy, they called it guṇānām sām̐ya avastha pralaya. Once the creation has started, there is no more equilibrium; there is viṣam̐ya avastha, viṣam̐yam means inequilibrium.

And therefore in the case of an inert object, there also three guṇas are there, but tamō guṇa will be the most dominant one in an inert object and that is why the object does not have a learning tendency. You do not find a wall interested in Vēdānta. Does it mean that the wall does not have satva guṇa? Not that; but tamō guṇa is dominant, therefore it does not have the learning capacity nor has the wall the doing capacity. Thank God, if the wall wants to do some action; like going for an evening walk; it is a problem; it does not do that; it has got inertia. By inertia, we mean neither knowing capacity nor doing capacity, because tamō guṇa is dominant.

And once you come to the plant kingdom, it has got some amount of satva and rajas, even though the plant is almost like an inert object; but the plant has a little more of satva and rajas, and it has got some sentiency about the environment, which the inert object does not have. It does not have the extraordinary satva guṇa, to learn; therefore you do not have schools and colleges for plants; it does have that capacity; And similarly, the activities also in the case of a plant is limited, the plant has a limited activity of growing, but you wont see a plant going for a walk. Thank God. Or else the tree in the side of the road will come to the centre, while you are driving!! The plant has more satva, and rajas than an inert object but it has got only a limited.

And when we come to animals, we find satva and rajas are still more dominant; their capacity to learn and understand is more than the plant. And also they are not sthāvāra; not stationary living being; but the animals are moving living being, that means rajō guṇa is still more; higher grade;

And once you come to the human being, satva and rajas are still more dominant and therefore the human beings have got schools and colleges, and books and knowledge goes on increasing going up to Brahma jñāna. Similarly, the number of activities the human beings undertake also are innumerable, many, so thus find a gradual change in the proportion of the three guṇas and within the human beings themselves, Krishna points out that all the human beings do not have the same proportion of guṇas; among the human beings themselves, some of them have got more satva, some of them have got more rajas, some of them have got more tamas, and therefore, their svabhāvās, their character vary.

And therefore, a sātvic person is defined as one who has got the predominance of satva; it does not mean he does not have rajas and tamas, it only means satva is dominant and similarly in rājasic person, rajas is dominant, and in a tāmasic person, tamas is dominant.

And this tamas can be so dominant that some people can be closer to animals and some people can be closer to plants; and some people can be closer to stones. All these are possible even among human beings.

And therefore, Krishna points out that satvam bhavathi; In a sātvic person, you have to supply that: in a sātvic person, satva guṇa is overpowering: how: abhibhūya: raja and tamō; overpowering rajaḥ and tamaḥ; satva is dominant. Hey Bhāratha, Hey Arjuna.

Then रजः भवति rajaḥ bhavati, bhavati; you have to supply, rajō guṇa is present 'in a rājasic person' also we have to supply. So Rajō guṇa is present in a rājasic person, sattvaṁ tamaścābhibhūya, abhibhūya; you have to add; overpowering satva guṇa and tamō guṇa. Rajas is dominant in rājasic people and तमः भवति tamaḥ bhavati, in a tāmasic person, tamō guṇa is present; how? sattvaṁ raja cha abhibhūya, we have to add abhibhūya, overpowering satvam guṇa and rajō guṇa, tamas is dominant in tāmasic people.

Then comes a very very important question. If a person is Sātvic, Rājasic or Tāmasic, is it a fixed character or is it possible for us to change the character of a person? Is it possible for a person to change the proportion of the guṇas. If we cannot change the character of a person, we are doomed, because we are helpless; our future is already decided. Fortunately scriptures point out that the svabhāvā of a person can be transformed. The rate of transformation will defer from individual to individual and the amount of transformation also will defer from individual to individual but transformation is possible. In fact, all spiritual sādhanās are meant to change the proportion only because every sādhanā requires a particular guṇa as a dominant thing. And according to śāstra, generally, most of the people are born with tamō guṇa; predominant only, because as baby what were we doing; only two things; Undal uranganam. Urangiyal, as babies. We were sleeping for 10-15, 18 hours and babies wakes up only for one purpose, for feeding. And after feeding is over, again it goes to sleep.

Therefore generally, we are all janmana tama pradhāna and therefore śāstras prescribe the initial sādhanā, to convert from tamō guṇa pradhāna person to rajō guṇa pradhāna person; the scriptures want us to be active in life; and that is why Vēdā begins not with jñānam kāndam, Vēdā begins with karma kāndam. Your life has to start with karma or activity. And this karma kanda also they divided into two; because a rajō guṇa itself is of two types; one rajō guṇa is a rajō guṇa, which is backed by tamō guṇa. That is rajō guṇa dominant, say 70% and next one is tamō guṇa, say 20% and last one is satva guṇa 10%. So in one rajō guṇa, it is backed by tamō guṇa and such a rajō guṇa will hold the person for selfish activity for the fulfilment of personal desires. Vēdās say: Let your life start with selfish activity; you might have, why might have, you have any number of personal desires; and even if you do not have karma kanda itself, give advertisement for various types of desires, the scheme of karma kanda is, to make one get up. therefore, the Vēdās tempt a person to fulfil the worldly desires of artha-kāma h, earn money, buy house, a have TV, computer, car all of them Vēdā encourages, and we do not have time for any service to the society; Vēdās say does not matter, serve yourselves. This is called selfishly active type of person, which I discuss Cāturvarṇyam context; i do not know whether you remember. And once a person has been selfishly active, Vēdās says, gradually change the character of activity; or previously it is RTS, and the composition should be changed to S, instead of tamō guṇa in the second position, let satva guṇa be in the second position, and the tamō guṇa be the bottom. So when a person converts himself form RTS to RST, a person is active because of rajō guṇa, but the activity is self-centered activity. Even though there is selfish activity it is limited, more and more activities are beneficial, to more number of people. So sakāma karma to niṣkāma karma. And once a person has gone through these three stages, thereafter Vēdā says that if the rajō guṇa is predominant and you are extrovert and active, you can never find time for jñāna yoga. And therefore let Karma continue up to a particular stage, when the mind has become mature and a time should come when your rājasic tendency should be converted into satva guṇa (you should not tell that I will convert it right now). Be active, what karma can give, upasana can never give. What upāsana gives, karma can never give. And therefore karma yoga is also must, upasana is also must, upāsana will convert a person from RST to SRT; What is SRT, satva guṇa pradhāna, and rajō guṇa is in the middle position (or else he will not come to the class even, for that at least rajō guṇa is necessary), Swamiji, you can come to my house!!! No No No. You have to come, so that he will have to have sufficient rajō guṇa to come to the class, and of course, tamō guṇa is also required. Therefore, inactivity to selfish activity to selfless activity to enquiry. This is our gradual transformation. Inactivity to selfish activity to selfless activity to enquiry is our journey and in fact if you take the four ashrams, bramacharya āśrama, grihastha āśrama, vānaprastha āśrama and sanyāsa āśrama; these four āśramas also represent the gradual transformation.

And then a person a person finally comes to enquiry. Even though predominantly knowledge, he does not have any regret, he has already contributed to society through karma yoga. Contribute and then withdrawal, there will be no guilt. Without contribution if I withdraw, I will always have a guilt. What have I done to the world? And therefore, contribute, withdraw, learn, know and be free. And therefore character can be changed or not; and final character that is required is what: satva guṇa pradhāna. To use the 4th chapter language, we all should become guṇa brāhmaṇa, from a guṇa śūdra to guṇa vaiśya, guṇa kṣatriya to guṇa brāhmaṇa. Guṇa śūdra is lazy, guṇa vaiśya is selfishly active; guṇa kṣatriya is self-lessly acting; guṇa brāhmaṇa is pursuing knowledge, withdrawn or contemplative.

Therefore, Arjuna you have to understand where you stand and you have to adopt the appropriate sādhanā and finally come to self-knowledge, which is an important aside, this is only to change our character, do not apply this to change others. OK.

We are not here to study and judge other people unless they are or they are under our care. If they are our children, it is OK. otherwise our primary concern is how to change our svabhāva. Then, now how and where do I stand. Am I a guṇa sudra; am I a guṇa kṣatriya, am I a guṇa brāhmaṇa, which guṇa is dominant in me, how to know. Krishna says, I will give you the clue to find out, which is the third topic, guṇa lingaani, the indicator to find out where I stand.

What are the indicators we will read: Verse 11.

सर्वद्वारेषु देहेऽस्मिन्प्रकाश उपजायते |

ज्ञानं यदा तदा विद्याद्विवृद्धं सत्त्वमित्युत || १४- ११ ||

sarvadvārēṣu dēhē'smin prakāśa upajāyatē |

jñānaṁ yadā tadā vidyādvivṛddhaṁ sattvamityuta || 14.11 ||

यदा प्रकाशः ज्ञानम् yadā prakāśaḥ jñānam when the light of knowledge, उपजायते upajāyate grows सर्वद्वारेषु sarvadvāreṣu in all the sense organs, अस्मिन् देहे asmin dehe in this body, तदा विध्यात् tadā vidhyāt tada vidyat then, one should know इति उत iti uta that सत्त्वं विवृद्धम् sattvaṃ vivṛddham sattva is predominant.

11. When the light of knowledge grows in all the sense organs in this body, then one should know that Sattva is predominant.

So the third topic we are entering. Liṅgam, the indication and in the 11th verse, satva liṅgam is given. 12th verse gives rajō liṅgam, 13th verse tamō liṅgam. How to know? Krishna says:

अस्मिन् देहे सर्वद्वारेषु प्रकाशः उपजायते asmin dēhē sarvadvāreṣu prakāśaḥ upajāyate. Here dvāra means the five sense organs. dvāraṇi means indriyāṇi, and they are called dvāram or hole because through the five holes alone, we gather the knowledge of the external world. śabda jñānam comes through srothram. Similarly through the eyes, similarly smell through the nose; sarva dvārēṣu, and prakāśa brightness, the absorbing capacity. When all the five sense organs are bright and alert and have great absorbing capacity, and therefore jñānam and when they are able to acquire knowledge faster. because the absorbing capacity is more, the rate in which a person gathers knowledge also is high and if we have got such a photograph memory, like they have the drill, they will have a few objects, either drawn or the objects themselves are kept, they will ask you to observe you for 2 minutes and after that they will close, and you will have to tell what all items were there; 10 to 13 items; you can try this exercise; a diagram is there; you are asked to observe the diagram for a minute or two, and then you have to reproduce the diagram and try to find out how much percentage you are able to reproduce. Or you look at a Gītā verse and read slowly. And find out how many times reading is necessary to close the eyes and repeat the verse. If you have to read 10 times, I can read 8 times, he can read one and reproduce, the sense organs are really powerful. The mind is really alert. Satva is really top. And there are some people who can do that once in a day. That is not enough. Generally itself, if I have the capacity, the jñānis are very active and efficient; it indicates satva pradhāna. Therefore prakāśaḥ upajāyate. So this is always an experience. Any announcement I give, there are always some people who miss the date. who miss the month. who miss the venue; or for the morning programme of 6 a.m. that person will come at 6 p.m.; and once we had announced Dayananda swami's jñānam particular date, in a particular month, mistake committed was about a month; So next month 25th was the date. So many people came to the Kāmaraj hall; all noted the date, but they forgot the month. Then only I understood that after the particular date of that month only, one should give an advertisement should be given. I always do lot of research to announce; more research than how to teach Gītā; and my aim is that no student should have doubt. But I have never succeeded. There is an announcement for one minute. Any way wanted I wanted to say is: ज्ञानं यदा jñānaṁ yadā, jñānaṁ prakāśaḥ upajāyate, when the sense organs are bright and therefore there is more knowledge acquisition; yadā tadā, one can judge oneself to be a sātvic person; sattvam vivṛddhaṁ iti vidyā. Ok. If rajō guṇa is dominant, what will be the indication. Verse No.12.

रजस्येतानि जायन्ते विवृद्धे भरतर्षभ || १४- १२ ||

lōbhaḥ pravṛttirārambhaḥ karmaṇāmaśamaḥ sprhā |
rajasyētāni jāyantē vivṛddhē bhatarṣabha || 14.12 ||

12. Greed, activity, commencement of works, restlessness, and craving – these appear when rajas is predominant, Oh Arjuna!

So rajō guṇa is dominant, lōbhaḥ, lōbhaḥ means inordinate greed to achieve worldly things; super ambitious person, of course such people accomplish so many things in the society, in fact, a country's material progress is dependant on such people, we should be very careful, we are not criticising rājasic people here, because if a nation has to progress, we require lot of activity also. At least, Swami Vivekananda felt that our country required more rajas than satvam; because this people are more tāmasic, and to the tāmasic people you prescribe meditation, they will land in sleep; therefore he whipped up people into activity. Therefore activity is very important for material progress, but the problem is there should a limit and after some time a person should gradually change to satva pradhāna. So these people are highly ambitious, even at the age of 95. And therefore, scheming, planning, endlessly, and it will go on, and naturally planning to implement those plans, pravṛitti, they are workaholic people, all the time, running about; they have no time for nithya karma; they have no time for japa, they have no time for puja. they have no time for Gītā; they have no time to question what is the real goal of life. So therefore, pravṛittiḥ, and कर्मणामशमः karmaṇāmaśamaḥ, initiating many activity, without bothering whether they can take care of all of them. They will start initiate umpteen projects; but everything will be in standstill.

Therefore karmaṇām arambhaha; therefore what is the condition of their mind; aśama; ever restless mind; ever restless mind; ever impatient mind; not only they are overactive, they expect the same amount of speed from the people around. and then call someone, they want the other person before them like Bhagavan, instantly. Or else, they get angry, otherwise things will fly. Generally rājasic people are impatient; generally they are highly irritable, generally they cannot stand other people; they become very very unpopular; they are very high achieving people, but generally people who are close by, they know the problem of working with them. Generally angry, you know, the anger is at the tip of their nose. Anything happens, they are violent. They become violent also. They will be beat also, even though they are grown up. Also those things will be there; though they are great achievers, they are aśamaḥ, highly restless; short-tempered.

and स्पृहा sprhā, they have strong attachment to their accomplishment, to their achievement, ie. highly egoistic; They want their place. Dayananda Swami says, those people who says: Self-made man: most dangerous people. All the time saying: I started from the scratch and have now become a millionaire; and keep on saying that. They will repeat this umpteen times; and we have to listen; if we do not listen, they will get angry. Therefore, highly arrogant. Sprhā; attached to their egos. And therefore if there is no acknowledgement also, of their contribution, again they will get disturbed, therefore they are subject heavy disappointment when the expectations are high, disappointments is big. Therefore, frustrated and therefore they will throw things and run away. and they will come back again after a day or two. highly volatile. But positive side is that Great achievers. They are great achievers but highly volatile. People volcano. And all these things will increase when rajasi vivṛddhē sathi, when rajō guṇa increases; all these things will also increase. Therefore somebody had written how a rājasic people pray to God. Oh Lord! Give me Darśan!. Right Now. Or else I will beat you!. Even prayer is in this state.

Continuing.

अप्रकाशोऽप्रवृत्तिश्च प्रमादो मोह एव च ।

तमस्येतानि जायन्ते विवृद्धे कुरुनन्दन ॥ १४- १३ ॥

aprakāśō'pravṛttiśca pramādō mōha ēva ca |

tamasyētāni jāyantē vivṛddhē kurunandana || 14.13 ||

13. Dullness, inaction, negligence, and delusion – these appear when tamas is predominant, Oh Arjuna !

So the tāmasic person. No problem, no problem for himself as well as others; because he does not take part in living itself. Therefore, aprakāśaḥ, all the jñānēndriyas are dull. So even to read a news-item, he will have to read several items, simple news. They have to read several times; just to hear several times; dull jñānēndriyas, then what about karmēndriya, अप्रवृत्तिः च apravṛtṭiḥ ca, karmēndriyas are dull, neither ambitious or contemplative;

so aprakāśaḥ, indicates the absence of satva, and apravṛtṭiḥ indicates the absence of rajas, absence means what, rajas is absent, rajō guṇa is overpowered by tamas, satva guṇa is also overpowered by tamas.

And therefore, generally, he does not do anything. And if you force him to do things, you will have to go behind and make him do anything and if he does independently invariably you have to rectify. Later you have to decide, that it is better to do it yourself.

So therefore pramādaḥ, negligence; all the time oversight problem is there; mistakes are many, therefore pramādaḥ, carelessness, mōhaḥ, delusion, conflict; life-long he does not know what he wants to do. You just ask that person what do you want; there is no proper answer. He is slippery. He is not very clear about what he wants. At least if we decide, he will not listen. He will not know himself and he will not listen also (like our son-in-law!). Neither he can decide, nor he will follow what I ask him to do. Only thing you can do is what: Prayer, and if you have to live with such people, not only he requires prayer, you also require lot of prayer.

Therefore, mōhaḥ, all the time in conflict, procrastinating, tamasi vivṛddhē sathi, when tamō guṇa is dominant, all these expressions will come. From these expressions you can infer the dominance of three guṇas. Śankarācārya says why do we require inference; inference is required because three guṇas are not pratyakṣam. Where pratyakṣam do not work, anūmāna has to be made. If I cannot see the fire, I have to indirectly go to the indicator and through the smoke, I have to infer the fire, because the fire is not seen. Similarly which guṇa is dominant in me, I cannot see with the physical eyes, because guṇa apratyakṣatvāt. Wherever prathyakṣa pramāṇam does not work, we have to look for clues, indicators, and the indicators are the details of the lingam and therefore judge yourself, find out where you stand and choose appropriate sādhanā, never develop a complex, never compare yourselves with other people; be happy with what you are at present, and gradually progress. This is the third topic. Now we have to enter the 4th topics; which we will do in the next class.

Om

Analysing the three guṇas, Lord Krishna has dealt with three topics, the first topic is the definition of each guṇa, which we called Lakṣaṇam; and the next topic was bandana prakāraḥ; how each guṇa binds a person and finally Krishna discussed the topic of lingam the indicator to find out which particular guṇa is dominant in us. And there, he pointed out when satva guṇa is dominant jñānēndriyas will be more operational, whereas rajō guṇa is dominant, karmēndriyas will be more functional; whereas when tamō guṇa is dominant, neither jñānēndriyas nor karmēndriyas will be operational. I hope you remember the meaning of the word, jñānēndriyas; instruments responsible for knowledge, karmēndriyas meaning responsible for activity; therefore Krishna said in the 13th verse, अप्रकाशः अप्रवृत्तिः च aprakāśaḥ apravṛttiḥ ca. Tamō guṇa will suppress the jñānēndriyas and therefore all the jñānēndriyas will have aprakāśaḥ, meaning non-bright; not bright means, they will be dull. And similarly when Tamō guṇa is predominant, it will suppress the karmēndriyas also, and apravṛttiḥ ca; there will be no dynamism and there will be no activity and there will be no ambition also. In fact, they will support vēdānta very much and they will talk about vairāgyam, not because of their evolution or superiority, but because of sheer laziness. And therefore aprakāśaḥ apravṛttiḥ ca pramāda mōhaeva ca; they will be riddled with conflicts. Every moment will be a conflict or delusion and whatever little do, will be full of omissions and commissions. All these indicate the predominance of tamō guṇa and as we have seen before, a tamō guṇi should never attempt to directly become satva pradhāna. From tamō guṇa a person can never directly go to satva, and therefore, we should never prescribe Vēdānta to tamō guṇa pradhāna person; we should never prescribe upāsānās for a tamō guṇa pradhāna person, we should prescribe only karma. And even among the karmas, as I said before, one has to start with sakāma karma, because that alone will tempt him and push into activity. Thus, he has to be pushed into sakāma karma, then he should graduate to Niṣkāma karma, then he can think of upāsana, then alone he can think of vēdānta vicāra. Up to this we saw in the last class.

Now we are going to enter into the 4th topic. What is the 4th topic I said, gathiḥ; what do you mean by gathiḥ, the travel after death; maraṇa ananthara prayāṇam is called gathiḥ. If a person dies with satva guṇa domination, pre-dominance, what will be the direction of his travel; if a person dies as a rajō guṇa pradhāna person, what will be the direction of the soul's travel; soul means the jīvātma and if a person dies as a tamō guṇa pradhāna, which direction will his soul take. That is the topic, we are going to enter into. Verse 14.

तदोत्तमविदां लोकानमलान्प्रतिपद्यते ॥ १४- १४ ॥
yadā sattvē pravṛddhē tu pralayaṃ yāti dēhabhṛt |
tadōttamavidām lōkānamalān pratipadyatē || 14.14 ||

यदा तु, yadā tu If देहभृत् dehabhṛt a person, प्रलयं याति yāti pralayaṃ dies, सत्त्वे प्रवृद्धे sattve pravṛddhe when sattva is predominant, तदा tadā then प्रतिपद्यते pratipaddhyate he attains अमलान् amalān lokān (those) pure worlds, लोकान् उत्तमविदाम् uttamavidām belonging to the Upāsakās of great deities.

14. If a person dies when satva is predominant, then he attains (those) pure worlds belonging to the Upāsakās of great deities.

So satvagathi is talked about in this verse. Satva gathiḥ means, satva pradhāna puruṣasya maraṇa ananthara gathiḥ, i.e., the topic of this verse. Krishna says: यदा सत्त्वे प्रवृद्धे देहभृत् प्रलयं याति yadā sattvē pravṛddhē dēhabhṛt pralayaṃ yāti. dēhabhṛt means a jīvā; a jīvātma; pralayaṃ yāti, here pralayaṃ means maraṇam, not the deluge of the whole universe; pralayaḥ means maraṇam. Suppose a jīvātma dies when a yadā sattvē pravṛddhē, when satva guṇa is dominant; and here we are talking about what type of jīvātma; ajñāni or jñāni, we should be very very careful. What will be direction of jñāni's travel, we have seen. Jñāni does not travel at all; all the three śarīrams are dissolved here and now; he is ONE with the all-pervading Brahman.

न तस्य प्राणः उत्क्रमन्ती, ब्रह्मैव सन् ब्रह्माप्येति na tasya prāṇaḥ utakramanātī, brahmaiva san brahmāpyēti is the Brihadāraṇya vākyam. His prāṇa, his sūkṣma śarīram does not leave the physical body and travel on the other hand stūla śarīram will merge into stūla prapañjā, sūkṣma śarīra will merge into stūla prapañjā. Just as an iceberg dissolves into the ocean; similarly jñāni dissolves; jñāni does not have travel; and therefore, we are dealing with ajñāni, you should remember.

So if a satva guṇa pradhāna ajñāni, satva guṇa pradhāna ajñāni dies, what will happen to him; अमलान् लोकान् प्रतिपद्ध्यते amalān lokān pratipaddhyate; that satva guṇa pradhāna ajñāni will go to purer lōkās, higher lōkas, purer and higher means, puṇya pradhāna lōkaha. Like bhuvan lōka, suvar lōka, mahar lōka, jana lōka, etc. and in that higher lōkas, since puṇya is dominant, that person will enjoy greater levels of happiness, as we saw in Taittiriya upaniṣad, ते येष तमम् मनुष्य गन्दर्वाणाम् आनन्दः, स एको देव गन्दर्वाणाम् आनन्दः tē yēṣa tamam manuṣya gandarvāṇām ānandaḥ, sa ēko dēva gandarvāṇām ānandaḥ. better body, better world, better sense objects. And therefore Krishna says amalān, pure, i.e. puṇya pradhāna lōkān pradipadyathe. And these lōkas are generally attained by whom, उत्तमविदाम् लोकान् uttamavidām lokān; a lōka, which is reached by great upāsakas. Uttama vidāḥ, Uttamaḥ means Īśvara, and Vith means Upāsaka, and therefore Uttamaḥ vidāḥ means Īśvara upāsaka. What type of upāsaka? saḡuṇa or nirguṇa; very careful, being Ajñāni, they will not know what is Nirguṇa Īśvara, Uttamaḥ vidāḥ are ajñānis saḡuṇa upāsakās; these upāsakās will go to higher lōkas, this satva guṇa pradhāna people will go. In simple language, Urdhva gathi, upwards travel. This is for the satva pradhāna puruṣa.

What about raja pradhāna? that is said in the next verse No.15.

रजसि प्रलयं गत्वा कर्मसङ्गिषु जायते ।

तथा प्रलीनस्तमसि मूढयोनिषु जायते ॥ १४- १५ ॥

rajasi pralayam gatvā karmasaṅgiṣu jāyatē |

tathā pralinastamasi mūḍhayōniṣu jāyatē || 14.15 ||

प्रलयं गत्वा pralayaṃ gatvā Having died रजसि rajasi when Rajas is predominant जायते jāyate one is born, कर्मसाङ्गिषु karmasaṅgiṣu amidst those who are attached to action तथा tathā Likewise प्रलीनः pralīnaḥ having died तमसि tamasi when tamas is predominant जायते jāyate one is born मूढयोनिषु mūḍhayoniṣu in the wombs of deluded beings.

15. Having died when rajas is predominant, one is born amidst those who are attached to action. Likewise, having died when tamas is predominant, one is born in the wombs of deluded beings.

So in this verse, the travel of both the rajō guṇa pradhāna puruṣa as well as tamō guṇa pradhāna puruṣa; both are dealt with. In the first line, raja pradhāna puruṣas are talked about. Pralayaṃ gatva; So here also Pralayaṃ means maraṇam, so having died, having left this physical body, rajasi; rajasi means rajasi pradhānē sathi, when rajō guṇa is predominant. So having died when a rajō guṇa is dominant this person will be reborn; he is ajñāni, remember, and this ajñāni rajō guṇa pradhāna puruṣaḥ jāyathe, he will certainly be reborn; where? karma saṅgiṣu, in a lōka in which people are given to lot of karmās; karma pradhāna lōka.

And in the śāstra, karma pradhāna lōka is manuṣya lōkāḥ, or Bhulōka, because the higher lōkas are said to be the lōkas of only bhōga; one cannot acquire puṇyam or pāpam in the higher lōkas; they can only exhaust their karmas. Similarly in lower lōkāḥ also, one can only exhaust the karma; earning karma is not possible; either in higher lōkas or lower lōkas; only in manuṣya lōkāḥ it is possible; and that is why we say that manuṣya lōkā janma is very rare. And therefore कर्मसाङ्गिषु karmasaṅgiṣu, manuṣya lōkēṣu, they are in the Bhu lōkahs, which is neither in the higher lōkās, or lower lōkas, their travel is neither vertical; it is not up nor down, but it is horizontal travel; satva guṇa person will go that way; tamō guṇa pradhāni would go down; rajō guṇa pradhāni would be hovering around. The middle lōkā called manuṣya lōkā. karmasaṅgiṣu manuṣya lōkēṣu jāyate; whereas तथा प्रलीनः tathā pralīna, suppose a person dies pralīna means maraṇam prāpya, pralayaṃ prāpa, when तमसि tamasi, with tamōguṇa predominance when a person dies, then मूढयोनिषु जायते mūḍhayōniṣu jāyatē; then that person is reborn in lower janmas, or lower planes of existence. The lower planes can be defined as the lower lōkās, satpa lōkās are talked about; during Avani Avittam they will say: athala, vithala, suthala, rasatala, mahatala, talatala, pathalaakyeshu; seven lower lōkas are there; either the people will go to the lower lōkas, or even if they are born in Bhu lōkā, they will not get manuṣya janma where free will and buddhi are there; but they will be born as animals. They will be born as plants; where also they will never have a freewill to acquire fresh karmas and that is why they are called mūḍhayōni; mūḍhayōni means Buddhi is not evolved. And that is why in the Gītā Class you do not find any of the animals coming. So they have only bhōga; they do not have a freewill to acquire karma; and therefore mūḍhayōniṣu jāyatē. So thus the gati of the three types of people also has been talked about; and that is consolidated later.

Continuing. Verse No.16.

कर्मणः सुकृतस्याहुः सात्त्विकं निर्मलं फलम् ।

रजसस्तु फलं दुःखमज्ञानं तमसः फलम् ॥ १४- १६ ॥

karmaṇaḥ sukṛtasya"huḥ sāttvikam nirmalam phalam |

rajasastu phalam duḥkhamajñānam tamasaḥ phalam || 14.16 ||

आहुः āhuḥ (scriptures) say that फलम् phalam the result, सुकृतस्य कर्मणः karmaṇaḥ sukṛtasya of Sattvic action निर्मलं सात्त्विकम् nirmalam sāttvikam is pure puṇya, phalam फलं रजसः phalam rajasah the result of rajasic (action), दुःखम् duḥkham is sorrow, तु tu whereas, फलं तमसः phalam tamasaḥ the result of tamasic (action) अज्ञानम् ajñānam is ignorance.

16. (Scriptures) say that the result of sattvic action is pure puṇya. The result of rajasic (action) is sorrow. Whereas the result of tamasic (action) is ignorance.

In this verse, Lord Krishna comes to the fifth topic; and that is the phalam for the predominance of each guṇa; so the previous two slōkās talked about gathi, now this slōka talks about Phalam, what is the difference between Gathi and Phalam; I told you before ~ do you remember ~ Gathi is the consequence after death; whereas Phalam is the consequence in this life itself. So if satva is predominant, what will be the consequences experienced here and now. Similarly if rajas is predominant, etc. All the three are given in this one verse itself;

That we have to read a small rearrangement. Instead of reading sukṛtasya"huḥ karmaṇaḥ sāttvikam, we will rearrange as sāttvikasya karmaṇaḥ phalam sukṛtam. sukṛtasya you have to read as sukṛtam, and sāttvikam, you have to read as sattvikasya. So sāttvikasya karmaṇaḥ phalam. When a sāttvik person undertakes activities, they are good and noble activities, and therefore, the phalam is sukṛtam means Puṇyam. Spiritually elevating; that which will promote, peace, balance, tranquility; etc. which is Nirmalam. Nirmalam means pure, freedom from stress, freedom from tension; freedom from anxiety. In fact, in the very presence of those people, you can tangibly feel the śantiḥ; if you go to certain places, you can feel the peace tangibly. If you to certain other houses, you can feel the tension all around. We do not know, when the flare-up will comes. It will be little unsettling. Therefore Krishna says: So when Sātvic persons deal with their life's interactions, you can see harmony and peace, where the house will be a home. In fact that is called a Home; there is an understanding, there is love; there is love; there is consideration; there is harmony, there is peace, that is called Nirmalam phalam;

Whereas रजसस्तु फलं rajasastu phalam, when a person is a rajasic person, naturally there will be a tremendous amount of activity; but the main problem is what, there is a tension; there is anxiety; there is stress; there is strain; there is irritation; there is intolerance; and where there is stress and strain, there is neither physical health nor is there mental peace. And therefore Krishna says rajasastu phalam duḥkam; wherever transactions are taking place among rajasic people; you can find there is stress and strain. And not only that, because of the very tension and irritability, there are flare ups very often. There is anger; there is angry exchanges and therefore, there is hiṃsa involved; each one will be hurting the other member; husband hurts the wife; and wife hurts more; or other way round ~ do not get angry with me ~ wife hurts and husband hurts more. If there are elders, they are hurt. There is a chain reaction going; nobody is happy; there is no home. This is called a non-functioning home. It is not a home. It is a house only. Where there is harmony, it is home; where it is no harmony, there are walls, there is bricks, there is food, there is kitchen, there is money, but in spite of all these, you cannot have a home. Home means harmony among the members. Even communication, after some time stops, like living in a hostel, each one comes, and does his or her job, and goes. So therefore, duḥkam; it is a broken down environment. But there is lot of money, lot of achievement, because of dynamism is there; lot of activity is there; material prosperity will be there; but the inner peace and harmony will not be there; And therefore, superficially looking, that place is full of riches, but something is missing; ~ you might have heard, everything is there except நம்மதி; Nimmadhi ~ and unfortunately, any amount of money cannot buy even one gram of nimmadhi. So then you begin to wonder, what is the use of all these accomplishments. Whereas in the case of satvic people, material accomplishments will be lesser definitely, but there is atmosphere of peace and harmony. That is why, Nirmalam there and duḥkham here. So rajasthathu karmaṇaha, (which have to supply) phalam duḥkham.

and तमसः कर्मणः फलम् tamaṣaḥ karmaṇaha phalam, wherever tamasic transactions are going on, which means tamasic transactions are going on ~ meaning sleeping in this room and that room ~ there is no dukham also ~ because one has to get up and be awake to be aware of dukham ~ so what is the problem ~ if one keeps on sleeping, it is good is'not it ~ no problem? Ajñānam tamasaha phalam ~ human life is wasted; ignorance will be perpetuated. So therefore, all forms of ignorance including self-ignorance will be perpetuated; the wonderful advantage of human birth is lost. So Ajñānam is the result of tamasic karma; Very careful, when we say ignorance is the result of tamasic karma, ignorance is not produced by that karma; ignorance need not be produced by, why ~ as it is we are very rich in ignorance ~ therefore, ignorance is the result means, perpetuation of the ignorance is the result of tamasic life; exactly like animals, animals do not quarrel like human being; animals cannot learn anything out of this life. So these are the three phalams of satva pradhāna, raja pradhāna and tama pradhāna lifestyles. So with this the 5th topic is also over.

sattvātsañjāyatē jñānaṃ rajasō lōbha ēva ca |

pramādamōhau tamasō bhavato'jñānamēva ca || 14.17 ||

प्रमादमोहौ pramādamoho Negligence and delusion,.एव च eva ca along with, अज्ञानम् ajñānam ignorance भवतः bhavataḥ are born, तमसः tamasaḥ out of tamas.

17. Knowledge is born out of Sattva, Greed (is born) out of Rajas. Negligence and delusion along with ignorance are born out of Tamas.

So the same idea is repeated in this verse also. That is the consequence of the predominance of the three guṇas in this life itself. That is triguṇa phalam. Topic is continued. सत्त्वात्सञ्जायते ज्ञानं sattvātsañjāyatē jñānam. Out of satva guṇa jñāna is born, because when satva guṇa is dominant, the jñānendriyas are all operational and bright, and therefore the learning capacity; the absorbing capacity; the retaining capacity; the building up capacity, everything is high. Therefore, knowledge increases in leaps and bounds, whether it is material knowledge or even spiritual knowledge; for both knowledge, satva is required. So sattvātsañjāyatē jñānam.

Whereas, रजसः लोभः सञ्जायते rajasah lobhah sañjāyate; when rajō guṇa is dominant, lobhah sañjāyate; lobhah means greed, ambition, plans, scheme, till the last breath, this person will turn like a top. Therefore lobhah, there is no tripti at all; greed is the result of rajō guṇa pradhāna;

And तमसो प्रमादमोहौ सञ्जायते tamasō pramādamōhau sañjāyatē. Out of tamō guṇa are born pramādaḥ; pramādaḥ I have told, not tamil pramādham, this is Sanskrit pramādaḥ. In Sanskrit means oversight, forgetfulness, omissions, etc. will come and mōhaḥ, means delusion or conflicts; indecisiveness, incapacity to decide anything; eternally 'to be' or 'not to be'. 'To go' or 'not to go'. 'To eat' or 'not to eat'. In everything this conflict; that is the tamō guṇa phalam, and not only these two increases, ajñānam eva cha, ajñānam means the perpetuation of ignorance will also continue, because of tamō guṇa. Thus 16 and 17 talk about of the phalams of 3 guṇas.

सत्त्वस्थाः sattvsthāḥ Sattvic people गच्छन्ति gacchanti go ऊर्ध्वम् ūrdhvam up jaghanyaguṇavṛttasthāḥ abiding by the functions of the lowest guṇa गच्छन्ति gacchanti go अधः adhāḥ down.

18. Sattvic people go up. Rajasic people remain in the middle Tamasic people, abiding by the functions of the lowest Guṇa, go down.

So in this verse, Lord Krishna is talking about the gathi topic once again, which topic we have already dealt with in verses 14 and 15. The same topic is repeated and therefore, the 18th verse should be read along with 14 and 15, because this verse also talks about the gathihi, means the travel after death. How do they travel? Satvsthaha urdhvam gacchanti, you can understand. Satva guṇa pradhāna, those people in whom satva is predominant, urdhvam gacchanti, they go to higher lōkas, 6 of them, bhuvah, suvah, mahaha, janaha, tapaha, satyam. Out 14 lōkas, 6 are up, 7 are down. $7=6 = 13$, DO NOT ASK WHERE THE one is missing. 6 up, 7 down and this one. ऊर्ध्वं गच्छन्ति सत्त्वस्था ūrdhvaṃ gacchanti sattvsthā.

What about the rājasic people मध्ये तिष्ठन्ति राजसाः madhyē tiṣṭhanti rājasāḥ, they neither go up or down, they are only in the manuṣya lōka only or bhu lōka only and they stagnate; plus point is that they have not come down; the minus point is that they have not gone up; therefore both are there.

जघन्यगुणवृत्तिस्था jaghanyaguṇavṛttisthā, those who continue in the lowest guṇa, the lowest, the inferior most guṇa, tamō guṇa, those who remain in that vritam; lifestyle or way of life, those who remain in a tamasic way of life, तामसाः अधो जच्छन्ति tāmasāḥ adhō gacchanti; they go downwards. adhō gati.

And of course incidentally we should remember, when we saw svarga lōkā is higher, patala lōkā is lower etc. the word higher and lower do not indicate any spatial location. Lower means this and higher means this side, you should think, because the higher and lower itself is a relative thing. So for the people who are in America, higher is different from for those who are in India. Therefore, Higher and lower have nothing to do with particular time and space, because according to śāstra, each lōkā has got a different time and space. So we can never locate another lōkā in terms of our time and space. If you have to understand this, it is like our dream objects. So you experience objects in dream, they are all located in which time and space? they are located only in dream time and space; you can never talk about the location of dream object in terms of this particular time and space; dream elephant was on this side or that side, if someone asks, can you answer? You can never locate the objects of one lōkā in the time and space of another lōkā. Then how do you say svarga is higher. There the higher does not mean spatial location at all. And similarly, time location also we cannot talk about and that is why in dream, you have got months of experience, but in terms of waking time, you have dreamt for 1-1/2 minutes. During that time itself, your grandson is got married and had a children and he also got married; WHY? because dream time is different from our time. That is why when we offer food etc. for the pitrus or dēvās, we do not have to feed them every 3 hours; that is in this lōkā. but the dēvās lōkā, our one year is 1 day for them. That is why the word higher is not in terms of time and space but in terms of quality. higher lōkā means qualitative superior lōkā, which means the body and sense organs enjoyed by them is of a higher refinement. And similarly the sense objects also are of higher refinement. Like within the earth itself, in some other country, everything is good, including water. They say in some other country, they can drink water directly from the tap. Here, even if you buy Bisleri, one has to suspect. Why? We are in this lōkā. So therefore, when we find the refinement relative within the bhu lōkā itself, what to talk of higher lōkā and therefore Urdhvam qualitatively superior and location wise, where is it? Svarga is here and now, you cannot say beyond the cloud, etc. You cannot say that. In fact, you are able to change this body even while here; suppose you can remove this physical body and put on Indra śarīram, just suppose, then, here itself you can experience svarga, therefore the field of experience depends upon the type of medium that you use. So if you have got a top body, then you hear certain sound, which you do not hear now. Now even the normal sound is itself difficult to hear. If you have 'dog-ears'; when everybody says it is silent for you it will be very noisy. And therefore remember, different lōkas are different planes of experience. It has nothing to do with our time and space and that is why, by travelling in this lōka, you can never reach svarga lōkā. Just as by taking the vehicle of the jāgrat avastha, can you travel and reach the Kasi of the dream; there is no corridor or road connecting the jāgrat prapañca and svapna prapañca; by travelling any amount of distance in svapna, you cannot reach jāgrat avastha; by travelling any amount of distance in waking state, you cannot reach svapna lōkā, there is no corridor connection these two lōkās. Therefore, do not say that those people who went in the rockets etc to the space, etc. did not see the svapna, etc. Any amount of travel, you cannot reach svarga. For reaching svarga, what is the first qualification; you should die. Ok. Therefore, "do not mistake me", with this body and this time this space and this vehicle, you can never, because it is totally different plane. Thus ūrdhvaṃ, madhyē and adhaḥ, they are all in terms of the quality, not in terms of spatial location.

गुणेभ्यश्च परं वेत्ति मद्भावं सोऽधिगच्छति || १४- १९ ||

nānyaṃ guṇēbhyaḥ kartāraṃ yadā draṣṭā'nupaśyati |
guṇēbhyaśca paraṃ vētti madbhāvaṃ sō'dhigacchati | | 19 | |

यदा yadā when, द्रष्टा अजुपश्यति draṣṭā ajupaśyati the seer understands कर्तारम् kartāram doer न अन्यं गुणेभ्यः na anyam guṇebhyaḥ to be none other than the Guṇas, च वेत्ति ca vetti and knows (the Self), परं गुणेभ्यः param guṇebhyaḥ which is beyond the Guṇas, सः अधिगच्छति saḥ adhigacchati he attains, मद्भावं madbhāvam MY name

19. When the seer understands the doer to be none other than the Guṇas and knows (the Self) which is beyond the Guṇas, he attains My nature.

So with the previous Krishna completes the analysis of the three guṇas which he started from verse 5. Through this analysis, he revealed some fundamental point; the first point is that nobody can escape from these three guṇas. The body mind complex otherwise called the ahamkāra; do you remember the definition of ahamkāra? very important, ahamkāra is defined, body-mind complex with the reflected consciousness; the cidabhasa. The live body-mind complex is called ahamkāra, this ahamkāra, which is my lower I, which is called the ego, can never escape from these three guṇas. Either I have to be satva pradhāna or I have to be raja pradhāna or I have to be tama pradhāna; you can only reshuffle the guṇas; the ahamkāra cannot escape from the guṇas. That is point No.1.

And the second important point that Krishna indicated is whatever be the type of guṇa, bondage cannot be avoided. Because each guṇa binds a person; and that is why the second topic discussed was what? How does each guṇa bind a person. So from that it is clear, each guṇa will bind; only difference is what? the method of binding would be different; like a person asking should I kill by shooting or cutting the head; which is better? this is better or that is better; the result is what: death only. The mode of destruction may vary. Therefore all these three guṇas are going to bind me, how the three guṇas bind we saw, a satvic ahamkāra will naturally be addicted to a particular type of environment and if that is not available, it will be disturbed. And what is the environment we seek is what; that which is knowledge-friendly environment.

Similarly rajasic ahamkāra is going to seek another type of set up; it will be attached to; it will be addicted to; and if that type of set up is there, it will be happy; if it is not there; it is going to be unhappy. You ask him to remain in a room for a long time; he will break down the wall.

Similarly tamasic person; expect his own environment; and therefore all the three guṇas are going to bind;

And therefore what is the solution; the only solution is I should transcend the three guṇas. I should transcend the three guṇas; I should become guṇa athitha; that is the only solution.

Now the question is: How can I become guṇa athithaha? guṇa athithaha, is another word for Nirguṇa, remember. Now here alone, we face the problem. Ahamkāra is nothing but the body-mind complex with the reflected consciousness and therefore ahamkāra can never become guṇa athithaha. So the greatest what is call distressing news is that ahamkāra can never escape from the three guṇas. ahamkāra by a process of change, can become only a satva guṇa pradhāna to rajō guṇa pradhāna to tama guṇa pradhāna; therefore ahamkāra cannot become guṇa athithaha.

Now the next question is other than ahamkāra, there is another entity in me. What is the other entity other than the body-mind complex and the reflected consciousness. What else is there? Do not say there is nothing. If there should be a reflected consciousness (if the mirror and reflected face is there, there must be something other than the mirror and the reflected face). What is that? This fellow is searching. There is one thing. What is that? The original face, without which reflection is impossible. That original one is called the chit, the original consciousness which I called sākṣi caitanyam; the higher nature of the personality. And this higher I, the sākṣi has got what guṇa? Consciousness has got which guṇa? The consciousness fortunately or unfortunately is free from all the guṇas and therefore, the higher I, is nirguṇaha; and therefore the question is can the sakshi become guṇathithaha? That is the question; What we asked first? Can ahamkāra become guṇa athithaha? What is the answer; ahamkāra cannot become guṇathithaha.

Now the question is: Can Sakshi become guṇa athithaha? What will be the answer? If you say cannot, it is wrong; if you say, can, it is also wrong. You cannot say that Sākṣi cannot become guṇa athitha, you cannot say sākṣi can become guṇa athitha, because there is no question of becoming guṇa athitha, because Sakshi is already guṇa athitha; therefore it need not become guṇa athithaha. ahamkāra cannot become guṇa athithaha, sākṣi need not become guṇa athithaha and therefore who becomes guṇa athitha. Nobody becomes guṇa thitha; therefore the very question how to become guṇa athitha is wrong.

OK. Now I have understood. Now tell me: how to become guṇa athithaha. If you insist upon answering that question, I can give you only a compromised version of the answer, if you become guṇa athithaha, by shifting your identification from ahamkāra to sakshi. You become guṇa athithaha, "become" in quotation, you become guṇa athithaha, when you shift your identification from the lower I; the ego to the higher I; the consciousness. From anātma to ātma; from body to consciousness; from kṣetraṁ to Kṣētrajñā. As long as I take myself to be the body-mind complex, I will be saguṇa ahamkāra. As long as I identify, with my body-mind complex, I will be saguṇa ahamkāra, and as long as saguṇa ahamkāra, I can never escape from samsara. Therefore the only way is what; shift the identification from the body-mind-complex to the sākṣi caitanyam. Instead of saying I am the body with a sākṣi; instead of saying I am the body with a sākṣi, you have to practice, reversing the statement; what is that? I am the sākṣi, with an incidental and temporary body given by the Lord.

And incidentally for the sake of transaction, there is nothing wrong in identifying; but this is done with an awareness; just like an actor identifies with the role; with the awareness that I am not the role. You need not tell that in the middle; that I am not the Ravana; etc. I am Amitabh bhachan or Rajnikanth; Babaa; I am not baba, I am Rajani kanth; So therefore you need not disclose this outside, but you remember the fact that I am ever the guṇa athitha sākṣi, and I am functioning in the world through the saguṇa ahamkāra, and as long as I am playing the role, I have to do everything properly, and therefore the only solution is knowing about the higher nature and owning up of the higher nature. Knowing and owning.

And therefore, in these two verses; which are the most important verses of the 14th chapter, viz., 19 and 20th, Krishna tells you can become guṇa athithaha only by knowing your higher nature and it is not enough that you know, but you should learn to identify with your higher nature; and look upon the ahamkāra as a temporary vēṣa. Make your life into a drama with the ahamkāra role. ahamkāra is only the vēṣa. This is going to be said. ahamkāra ātma vivekaḥ; is going to be said in the next two verses. We will see in the next class.

Om

Lord Krishna analysed the three guṇas elaborately from verse No.5 to 18, and pointed out that each guṇa binds a person in one way or the other. Because each guṇa demands a particular set up;

if it is satva guṇa, it demands knowledge and a conducive set up for knowledge;

if it is rajō guṇa, it expects activity and an infrastructure for activity;

if it is tamō guṇa it wants to sleep and conducive atmosphere for sleeping.

Thus each guṇa is a demanding guṇa, asking for a specific set up and if that set up is not provided, it throws lot of tantrums, and the creates lot of mental disturbances. And therefore, I can never accept the set up as a baktā, if it does not suit my particular guṇa and therefore there is a struggle either pravṛtti or nivṛtti, looking for a conducive set up and getting away from the unconducive set up. Each guṇa leads to lot of pravṛitti and Nivṛitti; pravṛitti means going after a favourable set up and Nivṛitti is running away from the so-called unfavourable set up. This favourable and unfavourable classification is determined by the type of guṇa. So a particular set up, satva will consider as favourable. The very same set up, rajō guṇa will dislike. When a satva guṇi says that it is silent like an āsrama, the rajō guṇi will say that it is quiet like a cremation ground. Silence remaining the same, one gets a positive thinking; for another it is a negative thinking.

And therefore, as a baktā, I divide the set up into favourable and unfavourable and I want to adjust and fine tune the set up and therefore, I develop strong rāgā and dvesha and to change the set up, I have to become a kartā. As a baktā I am not satisfied; and therefore I want to change the set up and to change the set up I have to do what? I should become a kartā. And having done a few things, I again look up at the set up as a boktā; no satisfaction. Like a painter, painting, going behind and again goes a gives a touch up. And this goes on; adjusting, dissatisfied boktā becomes a kartā and again he becomes boktā and again he begins a kartā; in short, he is never allowed to think of his higher nirguṇa sākṣi svarūpam. The three guṇas keep this person busy with the body complex only and that is why Krishna said in the 5th verse, nibhadnanthi mahābhāhō, dēhē dēhinam avyayam. I am the sākṣi caitanyam which is all pervading; I am never allowed to own up my infinite nature, and I am all the time made to identify with the limited body. Thus the three guṇas tie me up the physical body, never allowing me to think of the possibility of something else. All the time throwing tantrums like a baby, in some houses, the parents sometimes ask some question to the visiting Swami. And there will be a baby. 3 months or 4 months or something. And keeping that baby on the lap, they ask vedantic questions to the swami. What is mahāvākyam. And the poor Swami tries to serious explain, the baby will be crying: KAY.... and the father is sitting, the baby will say I want to go to the father. Swami has to wait and then again goes to the father; Swami restarts something and then again the crying AYYYYYYY started. Where is the question of listening to something when there is something else drawing my attention all the time. Similarly, the saguṇa physical body, the saguṇa mind and the saguṇa set up, keeps me so busy all the time, that I can never think of the Nirguṇa-I and this is the tantrum thrown by the three guṇas which keeps me in deha abhimāna, and therefore Krishna said there Dēhinām; the sākṣi-I is tied down to the physical body which I-the-sākṣi is never allowed to think of the all-pervading Brahma svarūpam and I am made to think of my limited ahamkāra svarūpam only.

This is the called guṇa dragging the Sākṣi to this ahamkāra level and by adjusting the set up you are never going to improve the situation, because there is no such thing called ideal set up at all. And even if some how you are able to manage the change the set up you cannot retain the set up permanently like that; Surēśvara says elsewhere it is like balancing an apple on the tip of your sharp nose. Not Japanese nose, it may be possible. Like balancing an apple on the sharp tip of the nose, how it is impossible, the three guṇas are constantly fluctuating and therefore the set up fluctuates, the body it becomes a pumpkin and then a drumstick. There is constant expansion/contraction and mind (you do not have to ask itself) now satvik, now rajasic, now tamasic, and therefore this person is in eternal struggle; and this a few people understand and come to the conclusion that the only remedy is transcending the triguṇa ahamkāra. Transcending the triguṇa body mind complex or anātma. This is the only remedy.

And how do you transcend the saguṇa ahamkāra. As I said in the last class, ahamkāra can never be made Nirguṇa. Because ahamkāra, is body-mind complex and it is made up of prakrithi and therefore the three guṇas are bound to be there. Even the Māhajñāni will have a sātvic, rājasic or tāmasic mind. Nirguṇa mind does not exist at all. Jñāni's mind is saguṇa or nirguṇa. Do you have doubt. Mind, jñāni's or ajñāni's or Bhagavān's mind, which is called Māya; even Bhagavān's mind Māya is triguṇathmakam, the mind will be saguṇa, body will be saguṇa, and therefore there is no question of converting anātma into nirguṇa; transcending the guṇa. Then what about the sākṣi? You cannot make the sākṣi nirguṇa, because need not be made Nirguṇa, because it is already Nirguṇa. Therefore the only remedy is switching the identification from saguṇa ahamkāra to nirguṇa sākṣi. This is called ātma-anātma viveka and knowing the fact that I am not the body with consciousness, but I am the consciousness with a temporary body. I am not a body; temporary body with permanent consciousness, but I am the permanent consciousness with a temporary body. And as ātma, the sākṣi, I am ever Nirguṇa, I am ever akartā, and I am ever aboktā and this jñānam alone is the solution.

And therefore transcending the guṇa is equal to ātma jñānam. And ātma jñānam means guru mukathaḥ vēdānta śravaṇa manana nidhidhyāsanam. We have to apply all that, though it is said here, we saw that in the 4th chapter.

upadēkṣyanti tē jñānaṃ jñāninaḥ || 4.34||

You have to have śāstra guru upadeśa and know that I am ever the Nirguṇa sākṣi.

And that is said here by Krishna, गुणेभ्यश्च परं वेत्ति guṇēbhyaśca param vētti, so this seeker comes to know the sākṣi caitanyam. And what is that sākṣi caitanyam?

param, which is guṇēbhyaḥ, beyond the three guṇas, which includes the physical body which is also three guṇas, which includes the mind, also which is the three guṇas, guṇēbhyaḥ param means beyond the body-mind complex, beyond the anātmā. So consciousness is beyond the material body.

Now the next question is what do you mean by beyond. Because we normally we use the word beyond to convey something farther in distance. If I say that particular house is beyond the car, and what do you think, what do you understand, car is here, and the house is beyond. A physical distance is understood. Similarly we may misunderstand when we say that Sākṣi is beyond the body; as the sākṣi is somewhere in the clouds, etc. So here beyond does not mean physically; remote; Then what is the meaning of the word beyond? It is in and through the body mind complex, but not related to or affected by the body-mind complex, just as the light principle is beyond my hand; here beyond means that light is in and through the hands, pervades the hands, but whatever happens to the hand, light is not affected. In Sanskrit it should be translated as asaṅgatvam. The sākṣi, the consciousness is in and through the triguṇātmaka śarīram; it enlivens the triguṇātmaka śarīram; but it is not tainted by:

न मंत्रो न तीर्थं न वेदा न यज्ञाः na puṇyam na pāpam na saukhyam na duḥkham na mantrō na tīrtham na vēdā na yajñāḥ

the diseases of the body do not belong to the consciousness; the disturbances of the mind do not belong to the consciousness, this asaṅgatvam, is said here as param. So guṇēbhyaḥ param, is the sākṣi caitanyam, and that sākṣi caitanyam I am.

Aham iti vētti, we have to supply this. This person recognises the consciousness which is beyond the three guṇas as himself.

यदा द्रष्टा yadā draṣṭā. draṣṭā, means the intelligent seeker, who is tired of adjusting the set up in keeping with the three guṇas. Likes a particular set up now; after one week, you are not satisfied; change this chair to there, and shift the table to here, etc. some adjustment and if that is not possible, cut the hair and start growing the beard; that is the cheap thing; therefore you go on changing, because the mind fluctuates. Your idea of ideal set up changes, you go on tuning endlessly but some people understand the problem is not with the set up, the problem is the way I look at myself. And the day I know my pūrṇatvam, is not dependent on the set up, that day I stop all my struggles to change the set up or health improvement. Changing the set up for practical purposes is different. If the table is in this place, and if you change to the other side, and it is convenient for working, that is a different thing, when I change the set up to improve my image, then that is called samsāra, once I discover that I am pūrṇa sākṣi, I do not expect a change in the set up for my improvement. I am perfectly satisfied with myself; whether the set up is sātvic set up, or rajasic set up or tamasic set up. duḥkhēṣvanudvignamanāḥ, he is going to tell, the one who is not moved by set up.

And therefore draṣṭā, an intelligent person changes himself, rather this set up. अनुपश्यति anupaśyati. Discovers that higher I, the sākṣi-I, the guṇathitha-I. And here the word is anupaśyati. So anu means in keeping with the teaching of guru and śāstra. This discovery will never come independently. If I am left to myself, without śāstra, I will continue my mistake of changing the set up, all the time hoping that one day everything will be ideal. Wife will be exactly as I expect here to be, the son will be exactly as I expect him to be; the roads will be exactly as I want to be; he will be the working the ideal set up, without questioning his pursuit. Śāstra alone gives a jolt and asks: Did you ask or Did you think whether there is some other method of discovery fulfilment? And that method is adjusting the button inside. And therefore that insight, the śāstra and guru alone will give. Therefore in keeping with guru śāstra upadeśa, yadā anupaśyati. So the intelligent seeker, recognises this fact.

And also he knows Guṇabhyaha anyam kartāram na pasyathi; and he also recognises the fact that all the karmas belong to the anātma. So guṇēbhyaḥ, means anātmabhyaḥ, and anātma means what sthoola, sūkṣma, kāraṇa śarīram, or the pancha kōśas; this anātma will be eternally a kartā. There is no retirement for anātma. Retirement is what? taking up some other work; and not only that, if anātma really retires, it will become sick also. Therefore, Anātma has to be eternally a kartā, if you have to transcend kartṛtvaṁ, we have to come to ātma alone.

So guṇēbhyaḥ anyam kartāram na paśyati. Of course, Krishna uses a double negative language. What Krishna wants to say is anātma is the kartā, this is what he wants to say. anātma means the body mind complex is the kartā. But to emphasise this fact, he uses the double negative language, and that language is what there is no kartā other than anātma. If you put it in positive language, how will it be? Anātma alone is Kartā. Negative language, there is no kartā other than anātma. Both are the same. do you doubt? Go home and think. Anātma alone is kartā, is equal to there is no kartā other than anātma. And who am I? ātma or anātma? I am the ātma; therefore eternally akartā-aboktā; iti yadā paśyati; the day a human being recognises this fact; Only then, he will be free from the rat-race called life; the eternal journey of boktā; not satisfied; therefore, becomes kartā; improves the status of boktā; improved but not totally satisfied; again become kartā, again become boktā, and at the time of death also, you ask are you satisfied: You say I am satisfied, But! Only one small thing; Something or the other will be there. Since the ahamkāra dies with dissatisfaction, it can get liberated; kāmanya kamāyathe manyamānaḥ, sa kamabhir jāyathe tatra tatra;

the dissatisfied ahamkāras to again take to birth and continue the struggle and at the time of death, again dissatisfied; பயணங்கள் முடிவதில்லை. (the journey never ends); punarapi jananam, punarapi maraṇam. The struggle will end like the poori (I hope you remember the pūri example) when it is in the oil, it will be running around. And as it runs it expands and once it has become pūrṇam, full, then you will find that it is ātmana eva ātmaiva thushta, it will be floating there itself; why, it has become pūrṇam. And that is why it is called pūri; pūri is shortened form of pūrṇam. Similarly the day I discover I am the pūrṇa sākṣi, the running about for pūrṇatvam will stop. Thereafter also I may run around, but not for pūrṇatvam but it is out of pūrṇatvam. If I am acting for pūrṇatvam, there is eternal anxiety; I cannot sleep properly. If I am acting out of pūrṇatvam, there is no anxiety; When I am in the bed, I forget the days ups and down the moments my head hits the pillow, snoring can be heard; no anxiety; no tension;

And therefore Krishna says: Madbhāvam adhi gacchathi. The one who has discovered the sākṣi, he attains Īśvara bhāvam. Krishna says मद्भावं madbhāvam, Krishna being the Lord, it is Īśvara bhāvam; Īśvara Bhāvam means Īśvara Svarūpam. Īśvara Svarūpam means pūrṇatvam. So any time, the inner most mind says everything is OK. As they say in transactional analysis, You are OK. I am OK. Everything else is OK. Or else, always something is not OK. And therefore Madbhāvam means pūrṇatvam, means jīvan mukti, सः अधिगच्छति saḥ adhigacchati.

The most important point to be noted here is what? Krishna says this pūrṇatvam is only through knowledge. So the word Vētti should be underlined. Vētti means the one who knows; discovers pūrṇatvam. And therefore how many paths are there for Moksha? Karma yōga, bhakthi yōga, raja yōga, hatha yōga, kundalini yōga, etc. so many yōgas; Krishna says nothing doing; even if there are many other yōgas, we are willing to accept all other yōgas, but they are all for preparation of the mind; ultimate discovery of pūrṇatvam is vēdānta śravaṇa, manana, nidhidhyāsana; otherwise called jñāna yōga.

Continuing.

So Very important verse. This verse is also very important. Not only in the 14th chapter, but in the entire Bhagavat Gītā, this is one of the important verses:

गुणानेतानतीत्य त्रीन् देही देहसमुद्भवान् ।
जन्ममृत्युजरादुःखैर्ह विमुक्तोऽमृतमश्नुते ॥ १४.२०॥
guṇānētānatītya trīn dēhī dēhasamudbhavān |
janmamṛtyujarāduḥkhairvimuktō'mṛtamaśnutē || 14.20 ||

अतीत्य atītya having gone beyond, एतान् त्रीन् गुणान् etān trīn guṇān these three guṇan, देहसमुद्भवान् dēhasamudbhavān which are the cause of rebirth देहि dēhi a person विमुक्तः vimuktaḥ becomes free जन्ममृत्युजरादुःखैः janmamṛtyujarāduḥkhaḥ from death, old age, and sorrow अश्नुते aśnute and attains अमृतम् amṛtam immortality.

20. Having gone beyond these three guṇas which are the cause of rebirth, a person becomes free from birth, death, old age, and sorrow, and attains immortality.

The jñāna phalam is clearly mentioned here; देहि एतान् त्रीन् गुणान् अतीत्य dēhī ētān trīn guṇān atītya; dēhi means this jīva, this individual, with the help of the knowledge learns to disidentify from the three guṇas. atītya means transcending; here transcending is dis-identifying from the three guṇas; and the three guṇas represent the three śarīrams, the five kōśas, in short, the entire anātma. Instead of claiming I am the body, I say that I have a body; gifted by the Lord for the temporary use;

And what is the purpose of this temporary use? Not for eating, the body is given by the Lord that too the human body is given by the Lord only for gathering the knowledge; What knowledge? I am not the body, I have the body for my temporary use. This is called atītya. In Taitariya Upaniṣad, it was said

prānamaya ātmanam upasamkramati,

atītya, means upasamkramya; And all these three guṇas belong to what? देहसमुद्भवान् dēhasamudbhavān, so dēhasamudbhavaḥ, dēhasamudbhavaḥ means kāraṇam, and dēhaḥ means body. So dēhasamudbhavaḥ, means the cause for the physical body, and cause for the body means cause for janma. Because janma is defined acquisition of a new body. Therefore the three guṇas have given me this body and the three guṇas alone will give me the next body also. And what type of body will be given will depend upon, ūrdhvaṃ gacchanti sattvsthā; satva guṇa will give a higher body. Perishable or imperishable? Is there any doubt? perishable body; rajō guṇa will again give body alone and not mōkṣa.

Thus all the three guṇas are the cause of the body; cause of punar janma. So dēhasamudbhavaḥ, punarjanma kāraṇa bhūthān, so these three guṇas which are the causes of repeated acquisition of bodies; this jñāni disidentifies from these three guṇas.

And when a person disidentifies the guṇas and the body, what happens? vimukthaḥ, he is free; free from what? free from all the problems which belong to the body. When I identify with the body; the body's problems are my problem. When I identify with the car, and if it is brand new car, every small scratch is like a scratch on my heart; It is my car; the conditions of the object of abhimāna becomes my own condition. Similarly, the bodily conditions will be my conditions when I identify with the body and therefore when the body is mortal, I do not say body is mortal. The problem is what? I say I am mortal. Body is mortal is not a problem; because hundreds of bodies are mortal and daily dying. Obituary column you read; what happens to you. You read the news-item. Somewhere boat tragedy. 35 people died. you read, drinking coffee; and you may maximum say: chu chu chu. Pavam. Then you have forgotten even. So the mortality of the body itself is not problem. Death itself is not problem, because hundreds and millions of death we are seeing, hearing, etc. The problem is I-am-mortal is the problem. Mortality is not the problem; I-am-mortal is the problem. And Vēdānta does not remove the mortality of the body; vēdānta removes the idea that I-am-mortal. And how does it remove the idea; by teaching me the fact that I am not the mortal body, but I am the immortal-I, behind the mortal-body.

And therefore, विमुक्तः vimuktaḥ, he is free from all the problems of the body. What are the problems of the body; the first problem is janma, it is birth, birth itself is a problem in the sense, initially one has to be in solitary confinement, one has to remain in the womb of the mother, and coming out is a problem for both the mother and the baby, and once there is janma, the inevitable consequence is what; jātasya hi dhruvō mṛtyurdhruvaṃ janma mṛtasya ca. Maraṇam is the next problem, then there are people who say: Swamiji I am not frightened of death. It is a bluff only; but many people say I am not frightened of the death; but only prayer is that I should die instantly. I just should pop off, preferably in sleep. So those people who say I am not afraid of Maraṇam, they are afraid of jarā; means old age. And all the consequent problem. I need not describe and remind all those things; and you may not come to the class, and jarā, and dukhaihi, and all other problems and the beauty is what? These are really speaking not problems. The body being born growing decaying and dying, they are really speaking not problems, they are the nature of the body. Just as heat is the nature of the fire; it is svarupam of the fire, similarly, the cold is the nature of Ice. Similarly vikārāḥ, asthi, jayathe, vardathe, vipariṇamathe; the vikāra, means modification is the nature of body. And a nature becomes a problem if I refuse to accept the nature of a thing as it is. Resistance to the fact is sorrow. Imagine I complain fire is hot, fire is hot, fire is hot; that is foolishness. Similarly, body's vikāra becomes a problem, when I resist the vikāra. And I will resist the modification if I have got strong abhimāna in the body. Abhimāna becomes; abhimāna removes my objectivity. Identification removes my objectivity. I will say let everybody else die, because that is nature; except people from my house. That's why Krishna warned in the second chapter,

तस्मादपरिहार्येऽर्थे न त्वं शोचितुमर्हसि ॥२- २७॥

jātasya hi dhruvō mṛtyurdhruvaṃ janma mṛtasya ca ।
tasmādaparihāryē'rthē na tvam śōcitumarhasi ॥ 2.27 ॥

When I discover the fact that I am the sākṣi, I learn to look at my body objectively. And the moment I get the objectivity I accept this body does not have any speciality; ருட்ட கொம்பா? ருட்ட கொம்புன்ன, மாடா? Therefore this body is like any other body, therefore it has to grow and it has to go. Thus the sākṣi jñānam gives me objectivity with regard to my own body. Therefore old age is a fact; it is welcome; even if it is not welcome, at least I have no resistance; And along with old age, joint will say that I am here, I am here, and the ear will hear less, eye will see less; buddhi is always a problem; therefore these things are natural. I objectively see and accept. And once the objectivity comes, the intensity of the problem comes down. This is called Abhibhava method; you do not remove the problems of the body; I body would have to go through its condition. But you develop a different perspective and from the new perspective; problems will not appear to be a major tragedy in life. Like when the sun rises, what happens to the stars? During the day time, there are stars in the sky or not? There are stars in the sky or not? We know there are stars during the day time also. But what happens; stars are as though removed, because of the powerful sunlight. So what does the sunlight do; it does not destroy the stars, but it makes the stars as though non-existent by making their light extremely insignificant. Similarly, I am the Sākṣi jñānam, will not change the physical conditions; will not change the family members, it would have been better; will not change the water situation in Chennai; all the prārabhdā conditions will be there, but I develop new perspective from which, they are not worth talking about.

That's why they give the example of Anjaneya. Anjaneya thought that crossing the ocean is big task. But the moment he thought of Rama, the ocean became a small pool of water; gōṣpathi kritha vāraśim; the ocean became what? a small pool of water; the ocean did not change its size; but because of the remembrance of the Lord, he got the extra strength and from that standpoint, the big ocean became small. Then what about the powerful rakshasas. Maśaki kritha rākṣasām. All the rākṣasāms became mosquitoes. Means what? even if they bite, it is not felt; destroying the mosquito, what preparation you require?

You do not require any great effort. You effortlessly destroy. Therefore this knowledge gives me a new perspective; from which all the so-called problems are insignificant pinpricks. And therefore vimuktaḥ; They are not worth talking about. And this is called Jīvan mukti. So jīvanmukti is making the lives' problems insignificant, by changing the perspective through knowledge is called Jivan mukthiḥ.

And a result of this knowledge; अमृतम् अश्नुते amṛtam aśnute, not only the mortality of the body is not a serious problem for him and he has also owned up his immortality nature and therefore amṛtam aśnute, he attains immortality. And again what is meant by attaining immortality? The ahamkāra attains immortality or sākṣi attains immortality? Ahamkāra or body cannot become immortal. Ātma आत्मन् need not become immortal. Attaining immortality is shifting my abhimāna identification from the mortal body to the immortal Ātma. This is called Jīvan mukthiḥ.

And this is called guṇathithatvam. Therefore, Jñāni is called here guṇathithaḥ;

21. Arjuna asked --- Oh Lord! With what characteristics (does a person) who is beyond these three guṇas appear? What is his conduct? And, how does he go beyond these three guṇas.

Arjuna is inspired by the Lord's teaching. And naturally he wants to know more about that jñāni who becomes a guṇāthitha. And therefore Arjuna asks the Lord: arjuna uvāca; प्रभो एतान् गुणान् अतीतः कैः लिङ्गैः भवति prabho etān guṇān atītaḥ kaiḥ liṅgaiḥ bhavati. Liṅgam means characteristics; indicators. So what are the characteristics of the indicators of a person, who has transcended the three guṇas successfully. Exactly as he asked in the 2nd chapter: sthitaprajñasya kā bhāṣā? Will there be any change in his physical body; whether he will slim or become fat, or will there be a halo around him; because in the pictures, you see a halo. jñāni's back.

Now you are wondering when you are going to become a jñāni. Daily morning, or atleast fresh after the Sunday class, you stand in front of the mirror and look for a halo; The only halo is the bald; getting developed. Will there be any halo or will I develop some extraordinary siddhis. There are some people who believe that a jñāni will automatically get siddhis, like the capacity to read the mind of the other. Ask Swamiji, do you read our minds? and we had come with certain questions, you answered exactly that question till that that is the proof. Even a few people think that Swamiji reads. Nothing like that. Vēdānta deals with all the questions and therefore what I talk will answer somebody's some question. So therefore the thought reading, siddhis, etc. they expect. Arjuna also is curious to know whether there will be any such indications. Lingam means indications. kai lingai guṇan athithaha, guṇathitha jñāni with what indicators does he exist. Second question: Kim ācāraḥ. How does he conduct himself? How does he relate to the people? How does he interact with the people; because a jñāni also lives in the same society; therefore will there be a change in his language; Will he start talking in Sanskrit suddenly? katham. In the second chapter he asked; how will he walk? So therefore will he walk sideways, etc.!! How does he eat; all misconceptions and that is why anybody who is physically different with long thadi, a shabby head, he must a jñāni, we conclude. We have that misconception; there should be external change. Or else have a shaven head; some change people want; therefore we have to do something for the others also; there is no other change. The whole difference is fear inside. We look for what is over the head; we should look for what is inside the head. There is no other difference other than a clear understanding about what is what? There is no mysticism connected to Vēdānta. Any thing mystical belongs to non-vēdāntic subject. Vēdānta has no mysticism, even an iota in it. This confusion even Arjuna has; therefore how does he conduct himself. This the second question: What are his characteristics; how does he conduct himself.

And the third question is कथम् च एतान् गुणान् अतिवर्तते katham ca ētān guṇān ativartatē; katham ca ētān, (do not read Chaithan - There is no Shaithan in Gītā. ca ētān) How does he transcend the three guṇas. Is it a physical journey, some people expect some kind of a physical journey for moksha; going to some other lōkā, some people expect a transformation in time. And some people expect some kind of a sudden flashy event. So there is no event called liberation; there is no timewise transformation; there is no spacial journey, it is nothing but a clean understanding of an ever obtaining fact. What is the fact? Fortunately I am ever free. So therefore, he asks the question. How does he transcend the three guṇas? So this is Arjuna's question for which Krishna gives the answer in the following verses; which we will see in the next class.

Om

After elaborately talking about the three guṇas, and also how they bind a human being, Lord Krishna pointed out the method of becoming guṇāthitha which is the only means to liberation and that method which gave in the two important verses, 19 and 20; is अत्म ज्ञानम् only, because the anātma cannot become guṇāthitha and the ātma is ever guṇāthitha and through knowledge I come to know that I am ever the guṇāthitha, and using the saguṇa anātma as a medium of transaction. And when this much was taught by the Lord, Arjuna raised a question in the 21 verse, which we saw in the last class.

In this question which has three parts; the first part is guṇāthitha liṅgam; the second part of the question is guṇāthitha ācāraḥ; and the third part of the question is guṇāthithava sādhanam. Guṇāthitha liṅgam means what is the indicator by I can know whether I have become guṇāthitha or not; so that then I can decide to attend the next class or not. So the indications to know whether I am guṇāthitha. The second is guṇāthithaḥ ācāraḥ, the way of the life, or the conduct of the guṇāthitha purusha or the jñāni. This is the second part. And the third part is: guṇāthithatva sādhanam; the sādhanā by means of which one can become a guṇāthithaḥ. So liṅga, ācāraḥ, sādhanāni; these are the three questions for which Lord Krishna gives the answer in the following verses. We will read.

प्रकाशं च प्रवृत्तिं च मोहमेव च पाण्डव ।

न द्वेष्टि सम्प्रवृत्तानि न निवृत्तानि काङ्क्षति ॥ १४.२२ ॥

śrībhagavānuvāca

prakāśam ca pravṛttiṃ ca mōhamēva ca pāṇḍava |

ta dvēṣṭi sampravṛttāni na nivṛttāni kāṅkṣati || 14.22 ||

श्री भगवान् उवाच śrī bhagavān uvāca The Lord said पाण्डव pāṇḍava Oh Arjuna ! न द्वेष्टि na dveṣṭi He does not hate, प्रकाशं च prakāśam ca brightness, प्रवृत्तिं च pravṛttiṃ ca activity, एव च मोहम् eva ca moham delusion, सम्प्रवृत्तानि sampravṛttāni as they arise; न काङ्क्षति na kāṅkṣati nor does he desire (them) निवृत्तानि nivṛttāni as they withdraw..

22. The Lord said --- Oh Arjuna ! He does not hate brightness, activity, and delusion as they arise, nor does he desire (them) as they withdraw.

In the first two verses, that is 22 and 23, Krishna answers the first question guṇāthitha liṅgam, then in the next two verses, 24 and 25, Krishna talks about the guṇāthitha ācāraḥ, the conduct, and then in the 26th verse, Krishna answers, the last question guṇāthithatva sādhanā. So two verses to answer the first question, two verses to answer the 2nd question and one verse the answer the last question.

But in the indicator to know whether I am guṇāthitha or not, Krishna says a guṇāthitha is one who is detached from his own body-mind complex. So guṇāthitha is one who is detached from this own body-mind complex, and therefore, he is able to look at his own body-mind complex as part of the world and therefore he enjoys an objectivity with regard his own body-mind complex. So this objectivity, freedom from too much worry and anxiety with regard to one's own body-mind complex is the indication of guṇāthitha. This jñāni, or this guṇāthitha, because of his very source of sādhanā, enjoys a better health at the body and mind level, because he has gone through karma yoga sādhanā, upasana sādhanā, etc. and therefore his mind is predominantly a sātvic mind. A jñāni's mind is a predominantly sātvic mind, which he has attained through sādhanā. And because of the very same sādhanā, jñāni has got a strong mind, Jñāni has got a refined mind, and jñāni has a mind which is free from violent reaction. In fact that is the definition of the satva pradhāna mind and therefore, the reactions are less to life's situation, and even if there are reactions in the mind, they are milder and even if there are milder reactions, he has got the capacity to recover by himself quickly. Thus a jñāni enjoys a healthy mind. But a jñāni knows that even if I enjoy a healthy mind as a result of the sādhanā, there is no possibility of 100% healthy mind at all possible. Just as there is no possibility health at the physical level, no mind can be 100% healthy at the psychological level also. And therefore jñāni accepts the fact that his mind is generally healthy, but his mind also is subject to the fluctuations of the three guṇas. And when the mind has got some times disturbances or fluctuations, even towards such a mind, jñāni does not violently react or get upset. And therefore, he has got objectivity with regard to his own mind, and therefore, if the mind has got certain problems, which are generally feeble, with regard to those problems also, jñāni has got a healthy response.

What do you mean by healthy response?. He is neither too indifferent or inactive, if the mind has certain problems, he is not going to be indifferent. At the same time if the mind has certain disturbances he is not going to be over-reactive also to that situation. Therefore he is aware of the mental situation, and he enjoys improving the mind, all the time remembering the fact that the improvement of the mind has nothing to do with my pūrnathvam. I enjoy improving the mind, I enjoy making the mind more and more healthy. So that life is good for myself and others, but all the time I remember the fact that the conditions of the mind have nothing to do with my pūrnathvam, because I am the ātma who is different from the mind also.

And therefore Krishna says प्रकाशं च प्रवृत्तिं च prakāśam ca pravṛttiṃ ca; I mind enjoys prakāśam predominantly; prakāśam means satva guṇa; pravṛttiṃ ca, Jñāni's mind has also rajō guṇa, and mōham ēva ca; mōhaḥ means tamō guṇa. Jñāni's mind also has got satva, rajas and tamō guṇa; the only difference is Jñāni's mind is dominantly satvic, and rajō guṇa is in the middle position and tamō guṇa is in the lower position. But he knows his mind is not 100% sātvic. For that matter, no mind is 100% sātvic. And therefore his mind is subject to, what you call, the differences in the proportion in the three guṇas; and not only there is difference, these proportions will vary also. Vary also means what? There are times when tamō guṇa is predominant; afternoon after a good lunch anybody has got what type of mind, Unda urakkam Thondanukkum, therefore Jñāni mind has also tamō guṇa predominance, Jñāni mind also has got a rajō guṇa predominance, but it you take the duration; most of the time, he is sātvic. And Jñāni is aware of this fact.

And because of this the appreciation of this fact, how does he respond? सम्प्रवृत्तानि, sampravṛttāni when the three guṇas are ripe at different times, न द्वेषति na dvēṣṭi, he does not hate his own mind, when tamō guṇa is predominant or rajō guṇa is predominant, he does not hate his mind, based on its guṇa; न निवृत्तानि काङ्क्षति na nivṛttāni kāṅkṣati. And when the guṇas go away or recede at particular times, satvic guṇa is receding at a particular time, na kāṅkṣati; he is not attached to the satva guṇa also. So he is neither attached satva guṇa or rajō guṇa or tamō guṇa, nor does he hate satva guṇa, rajō guṇa or tamō guṇa, he knows these three guṇas are inevitable compositions of everything including my own mind. And therefore he is able to accept his own mind. Accepting one's own body and accepting one's own mind is the indication of guṇāthithatvam.

गुणा वर्तन्त इत्येव योऽवतिष्ठति नेङ्गते ॥ १४.२३ ॥

udāsīnavadāsīnō guṇairyo na vicālyatē |
guṇā vartanta ityēva yō'avatiṣṭhati nēṅgatē || 14.23 ||

यः आसीनः yah āsīnaḥ he remains, उदासीनवत् udāsīnavat as if indifferent, न विचाल्यते na vicālyate he is not disturbed गुणैः guṇaiḥ by the guṇas न इङ्गते na iṅgate he does not waver यह अवतिष्ठति yah avatiṣṭhati he remains firm इति iti (with the understanding) that गुणाः एव वर्तन्ते guṇāḥ eva vartante the guṇas alone interact.

23. He remains as if indifferent. He is not disturbed by the guṇas. He does not waver. He remains firm (with the understanding) that the guṇas alone interact.

Krishna explains the same idea in this verse also. What do you mean by the acceptance of one's own body-mind-complex; or objectivity, or healthy response? Generally, the problem an ajñāni faces is extreme response to situations. One extreme response is total indifference. It is a tamasic response. When the physical body has got some disease or sickness, imagine I do not feed the body at all; I am not careful at all, indifferent or carelessness or inaction is one extreme response, which is called tamasic response.

Then there is another extreme response, the moment the doctor says that you will have to go through the blood test, this fellow presses the panic button, this fellow is extremely worried about the body, the moment the body is sick, he imagines only the worst possible disease; would it be cancer? would be aids; leukamia, this or that? that is called violent reaction; which is called rajasic response; which causes anxiety, tension, fear, stress, strain, etc. This is one extreme.

So one extreme is inaction; another extreme is reaction. What is healthy response neither inaction nor reaction; but healthy action to improve the situation. If the body has some problem, there is no panic; at the same there is no complacency also; what is to be done, I do.

Similarly, the mind is there; it is not going to be all the time sama, the mind will have disturbances, because the mind is a dynamic instrument and therefore disturbances are going to come; And when the mind is not healthy, then also I do not panic; After studying the Gītā for so many years, and my mind is like this and therefore I do not feel guilty, or inferiority complex or frustration. I do not frustrated with my own mind. Then what do I do. Mind has got a problem and therefore I have to handle, neither inaction or reaction; but whatever can be done to improve. And even when I choose improve my mind, I remember the fact, the improvement of the mind has nothing to do with my pūrṇatvam. The mind can be infinitely improved. There is no question of 100% perfection of the mind, No jīvan muktha has got 100% perfect mind; just as no jñāni has got 100% perfect body, no jñāni has got 100% perfect mind. Mind can be refined eternally and I enjoy refining the mind; not to for liberation; but as a liberated person; as an ever liberated ātma, I enjoy the game of refining this mind objectively.

And therefore Krishna says: उदासीनवत् आसीनः udāsīnavat āsīnaḥ; Jñāni appears as though he is indifferent, because when the body falls sick he does not violently react to the sickness, it appears as though Jñāni is indifferent to his health. But Krishna says he is not indifferent; he is as though indifferent; as though indifferent, means there is no violent reaction but at the same time, there is no inaction also; whatever is to be done; he will do to the body; therefore, udāsīnavat means he is balanced with regard to his own body mind complex.

गुणैः न विचाल्यते guṇaiḥ na vicālyate. So in the fluctuation of the three guṇas, he is not disturbed at all. So whether the mind is satva pradhāna, or raja pradhāna or at times tama pradhāna, he is not going to be upset because he knows I am not the imperfect mind. That does not mean he let loose the mind. He always tries to keep the mind in a refined condition; but all the time detached. Therefore, guṇaihi, because of the three guṇas, na vicālyatē, he is not shaken.

Then what is his attitude, guṇāḥ varthanthē; everyone, everything in the creation, has the three guṇas in different composition; my own mind has got the three guṇas, no doubt, due to my sādhanās, I have made it predominantly sātvic, but even then, there are moment, when it is rajasic. And if he is heavily rajasic and he feels that the mind may hurt others, he will withdraw, so that he does not disturb others. Therefore, गुणाः एव वर्तन्ते guṇāḥ eva vartantē; these three guṇas will be there; and these three guṇas will fluctuate also.

इत्येव ityēva; with this knowledge. अवतिष्ठति avatiṣṭhati. He remains balanced without self-criticism. Without self-judgement. Without low self-image. Yaḥ avatiṣṭhati. He remains with a balanced mind;

न इङ्गते na iṅgate. means he is not disturbed. न विचाल्यते na vicālyate. He is balanced. So this objectivity with regard one's own body and mind, is the indication of the guṇathitha; or a jñāni.

समदुःखसुखः स्वस्थः समलोष्टाश्मकाञ्चनः ।

तुल्यप्रियाप्रियो धीरः तुल्यनिन्दात्मसंस्तुतिः ॥ १४.२४ ॥

samaduḥkhasukhaḥ svasthaḥ samaloṣṭāśmakāñcanaḥ |

tulyapriyāpriyō dhīrastulyanindātmasaṁstutiḥ || 14.24 ||

धीरः dhīraḥ the wise man स्वस्थः svasthaḥ abiding in the self, समदुःखः samaduḥkhaḥ is the same in pleasure and pain, समलोष्टाश्मकाञ्चनः samaloṣṭāśmakāñcanaḥ he is the same towards a clod of earth, a stone, or gold तुल्यप्रियाप्रियः tulyapriyāpriyaḥ he is the same in desirable and undesirable situations तुल्यनिन्दात्मसंस्तुतिः tulyanindātmasaṁstutiḥ he is the same in censure and praise of himself (by others).

24. The wise man, abiding in self, is the same in pleasure and pain. He is the same towards a clod of earth, a stone or gold. He is the same in desirable and undesirable situations. He is the same in censure and praise of himself (by others).

So with the previous two verses, Krishna has answered the first questions; what is the indication of a guṇāthitha, the indication is the objective acceptance of my own body mind complex. Now Krishna answers the second question in these two verses. The second question is: How does he respond to the worldly situation? And answer is the same. Just as the body mind complex is made up of the three fluctuating guṇas, the entire world is also made up of the three guṇas only and therefore you will have to interact with people who are sātvic, which will be happy interaction and you will have to interact with rājasic people, all the time tense and angry and irritable and all and you will also have to interact with Kondimādu, those people who will not move at all. After half an hour repetition, they will just ask what did you say? And thereafter they will say and they will just do it; and you will have to wait and wait for eons for them to complete the job. How much you screw them up, they would not move; these three types of people will be there eternally in the world; and not only that; one and the same person, himself or herself, will not be sātvic all the time, or rajasic all the time, and therefore the people in your own family will change. And that is why they said with regard to marriage and all: Do not choose based on the character because nobody's character will remain the same; Marriage is dharma based and not compatibility based according to our śāstra, because compatibility is impossible; and even if there is a compatibility, husband is also changing, wife is also changing, after a few years, the compatible couple would have changed sufficiently to become a bayankara incompatible couple, because one has developed interest in Gītā; which was not there at all, because the other person does not like the Gītā/swami at all, etc. There are such chances. Therefore different people are different, and the situations are also made up of the fluctuating prakṛti; therefore situations will change. And Jñāni accepts this fact of the creation and the very acceptance gives him a balanced state of mind and therefore samatvam is the ācāraḥ. Tranquility, balance, poised in all situations.

And therefore Krishna says धीरः dhīraḥ; dhīraḥ means this Jñāni's avasthaḥ, Jñāni is one who always abides in his higher nature: Sva means svarūpam, svarūpam means his real nature, and what is his real nature, guṇāthitha ātma and sthaḥ means abiding. So he always abides in guṇāthitha ātma svarūpam. And what do you mean by abiding in ātma. Does it mean that he sitting on the ātma? abiding in the ātma means not forgetting the fact that I am guṇāthithaḥ. Self-abidance is equal to non-forgetfulness of my nature. Just as a saṅgītā vidvān, whatever song he sings, one corner of the mind is aware of the tamera sṛuti. It is not that 100% he thinks of sṛuti only; then he cannot sing the song properly; it is not that he forgets the sṛuti 100%; then apasṛuti would come; in one corner of the mind is aware of the sṛuti and whenever there is a doubt he will go behind and check up, just as a musician he is aware of the sṛuti, Jñāni is aware of the sṛuti. What sṛuti? Vēdaḥ. and what is the sṛuti teaching? I am not the changing guṇa; guṇāḥ guṇēṣu varthante, body is saḡuṇa; world is saḡuṇa, saḡuṇa body and saḡuṇa world will interact, varieties of situations would arise, but I am different from both the saḡuṇa body and saḡuṇa world. This constant awareness is called svasthaḥ.

And because of this awareness, what does he enjoy. समदुःखसुखः samaduḥkhasukhaḥ. There is no resistance to favourable and unfavourable situations which are inevitable in life; so dēśa, kāla and prārabdhā, these three things will affect our life all the time. Dēśaḥ; if you are in a tropical country, you are affected in one way; means what: through weather condition. Summer will be always there; this is called dēśa affecting. Kāla, the time will affect the situation, the body will grow older and older and older, and the people around will grow older and older, dēśa will affect, kāla will affect, and finally our own prārabdhā, so gurupeyarchi, śani peyarchi, rahu peyarchi, etc. ketu peyarchi, So the prārabdhā will also fluctuate and they are bound to bring sukhaḥ and duḥkham. Health and ill-health. Financially better and in an adverse situation; they are bound to happen; and when such situations come; samaḥ; and what do you mean by samaḥ, it is not indifference to the situation, nor is it overreaction to the situation; but whatever can be done to improve the situation, it is done, but all the time poised.

Therefore samaduḥkhasukhaḥ. Similarly समलोष्टाश्मकाञ्चनः samalōṣṭāśmakāñcanaḥ; lōṣṭam means a clod of earth (மண்ணாம்புக்கட்டி maṇṇāmkattī), aśma means a rock and kāñcanaḥ, means gold; towards all of them: samaḥ; So sama lōṣṭam aśma kāñcanaḥ; sama means what: there is neither rāga nor dvēṣa, because things will come, gold will come; gold will go; wealth will come, wealth will go, मा कुरु धन जन यौवन गर्व हरति निमेषात्कालः सर्वम् | mā kuru dhana jana yauvana garvaṁ harati nimēṣātkālaḥ sarvam; lakṣmi sthoya taranga bhaṅga capala vidhyut chalam jīvitham; Lakṣmidēvi is the most fickle women on earth; who never loves to stay in one place; leaves a place as she thinks, in an instant; Therefore they will all come and go; samaḥ,

Then, तुल्यप्रियाप्रियो धीरः tulyapriyāpriyō dhīraḥ, priyaḥ means that which gives sukham; sukha sādhanām priyaḥ and apriyaḥ means what? dukha sādhanām because of dukham. Previously, it was said that he was balanced towards sukham and dukham, now he says, he is balanced towards the sukhaḥ duḥkha sādhanāms, which is the cause of sukham and duḥkham; pleasant and unpleasant situations,

And तुल्यनिन्दात्मसंस्तुतिः tulyanindātmasaṁstutiḥ, nindā means what? criticisms coming from people and saṁstutiḥ praise or glorification coming from people, whatever you do some people will glorify; and there will be some other people to criticize, if you want 100% approval from all people, you can never do anything in life. Therefore, approval seeking is an indication of low self-image. And therefore a Jñāni whatever be the course of action he has to take, he will see the pros and cons, the demerits and merits, and if he has to take opinion from known people, he will take, perhaps he will consult the śāstra, and thereafter, once he has decided a course of action, he will plunge into that; whatever be the opinion of others. And whatever you do, there would be some people, who will question everything. You decide to buy a house, they will threaten; you decide to sell a house, they will threaten. You decide to marry, they will ask, are you going to marry this chap? OK, then they will say ALL THE BEST, in a sorry mood. You decide to marry, people will criticise. You decide to take sanyāsa; my God! there will be others who criticise that. Do not be over-bothered about nindā and stutiḥ; Nobody is left out; Rāma has been criticised; Krishna has been criticised; Śankarācārya has been criticised. Nobody can escape the criticism of others; and therefore do not be carried away by nindā and stutiḥ. And if somebody criticises and enjoys in the process; they say you be happy because at least somebody is happy criticising me. If they are getting some santhoṣam out of it, why should I disturb that happiness;

Man nidhaya yadi jana parithoshamethi,
nanva prayasa janithoya manugrahame, sreyarthino hi purusha para thushti hetoho, klesharjithani api danaani parithyajanthi.

I am supposed to give happiness to all the people; here I am giving happiness to others in the cheapest way; I do not do anything, they are happy, by talking ill of me; why should I disturb it; let him talk. Once you say that; they will stop talking. That is the way. Therefore, tulyanindātmasaṁstutiḥ. One who is balanced in censure and praise.

मानापमानयोस्तुल्यः तुल्यो मित्रारिपक्षयोः ।

सर्वारम्भपरित्यागी गुणातीतः स उच्यते ॥ १४.२५॥

mānāpamānayōstulyastulyō mitrāripakṣayōḥ |

sarvārambhaparitṙāgī guṇātītaḥ sa ucyatē || 14.25 ||

तुल्यः tulyaḥ he is the same मानापमानयोः mānāpamānayōḥ in honour and dishonour तुल्यः tulyaḥ he is the same मित्रारिपक्षयोः mitrāripakṣayōḥ towards a friend and a foe, सर्वारम्भपरित्यागी sarvārambhaparitṙāgī he is a renouncer of all actions, सः saḥ he उच्यते ucyate is said to be गुणातीतः guṇātītaḥ a guṇatita

25. He is the same in honour and dishonour. He is the same towards a friend and a foe. He is a renouncer of all actions. He is said to be a Guṇatita.

Samatvam is further explained here. मानापमानयोः तुल्यः mānāpamānayōḥ tulyaḥ. Again you cannot escape maanam or apamānam. After all, your own family members, May be your son, daughter, son-in-law, daughter in law, sambandhi, all those things. I am a sambandi and I am not respected; all these things samaḥ.

Difference between Nindha sthuthi and Māna apamāna, I have talked about before; nindāstutiḥ is at the verbal level; vāchikam; māna apamāna is at the kāyikam level; at the level of action; So tulyaḥ, this Jñāni is samaḥ;

मित्रारिपक्षयोः mitrāripakṣayōḥ; again he is the same towards friends and foes; enemies; you should not ask whether Jñāni has an enemy. Jñāni does not have enemy, but there are people who look Jñāni as their enemy. What can be done for that? So therefore, towards both types of people, who look upon me as a friend and as a foe, tulyaḥ, samaḥ; this is samatvam.

And सर्वारम्भपरित्यागी sarvārambhaparitṙāgī. ārambhaha means all the binding activities; ārambhaḥ means bandhaka karmāni and parityāgī means the one who has given up. What do you mean by binding activity? A binding activity is that by the fulfilment of which I consider that will become pūrṇaḥ. When I expect pūrṇatvam through an activity, it is a binding activity; because there are expectations.

Non-binding activity is one which is done out of pūrṇatvam. And therefore the success of the activity and the failure of the activity has nothing to do with my pūrṇatvam. At the anātma level activities are going on; but whatever happens at the anātma level, pūrṇamadha, pūrṇamidham, aham pūrṇaḥ asmi. Even the activity to improve your own body mind should not be a binding activity. I should remember I tried to improve the body and mind, but that also has nothing to do with my pūrṇatvam. Aham pūrṇaḥ, whatever be the conditions of the body mind complex. With this awareness, I enjoy improving everything, including the improvement of the body mind complex. Such a lifestyle is a game.

I have told you the example. When they have got a 5 match series cricket match, and our team has won three and therefore we have won the series and 4th and 5th match, how do we play? That is called jīvan mukthaḥ. We play very well, because we want to win those two also. But all the time, pūrṇaḥ, pūrṇaḥ, series won, series won, series won. not like our England match. So imagine the state of mind of that team. This is the life of a jīvan muktha. Whole life is a game; both the success and failure has nothing to do with my pūrṇatvam. So sarvārambhaparitāgī. Saha guṇāthithaḥ ucyatē. So with this, the ācāra part is also over. Two main things are samatvam and also freedom from binding activities.

Continuing.

मां च योऽव्यभिचारेण भक्तियोगेन सेवते ।
स गुणान्समतीत्यैतान् ब्रह्मभूयाय कल्पते ॥ १४.२६ ॥

māṃ ca yō'vyabhicārēṇa bhaktiyōgēna sēvatē |
sa guṇān samatītyaitān brahmabhūyāya kalpatē || 14.26 ||

सः यः सेवते saḥ yaḥ sevate he who worships मां च māṃ ca Me alone अव्यभिचारेण भक्तियोगेन avyabhicārēṇa bhaktiyogena through the yoga of unswerving devotion कल्पते kalpate becomes fit ब्रह्मभूयाय brahmabhūyāya to attain the nature of Brahman. समतीत्य samatītya by going beyond, एतान् गुणान् etān guṇān these guṇas.

26. He who worships Me alone through the yoga of unswerving devotion becomes fit to attain the nature of Brahman by going beyond these guṇas.

The third question is answered here: What is the third question? Guṇathithatva sādhanam? What is the means of 'becoming' guṇāthithaḥ. In fact, Arjuna should not have asked this question, because Krishna has already answered that verse No.19 and 20. Krishna has answered the question. What is the answer? Jñānam is the only means of "becoming" (becoming within quotes) guṇāthithaḥ, jñānam is the only part. Krishna has already told and therefore Arjuna's question must be a reshuffled here. Arjuna has understood the means of becoming guṇāthitha is jñānam and therefore his present question is what is the means of getting jñānam? So his question is what? What is the means of becoming Guṇathithaḥ. What we have to do? We have to redefine. Question is how to attain jñānam by which one can become guṇāthitha ha.

And Krishna says the means of jñānam is bhakthi. So bhakthi yōgaḥ consisting of karma and upasana, which we have seen in the 12th chapter, five levels of bhakthi. Do you remember? I do not want to get into that now. Five levels of bhakthi, Krishna talked about in the 12th chapter. That bhakthi yōga is the sādhanā. Therefore he says: मां भक्तियोगेन सेवते bhaktiyōgēna sēvatē. Suppose a person worships me with bhakthi yoga consisting of five levels explained in the 12th chapter, and what type of bhakthi yōga, अव्यभिचारेण भक्तियोगेन avyabhicāreṇa bhakthi yōgēna, unflinching bhakthi yōgēna, devotion

And what do you mean avyabhicāra bhakthi? For that you have to go to the 7th chapter, where he talked about arta bhakthi, artharthi bhakthi and jijñāsu bhakthi. That jijñāsu bhakthi is here called avyabhicāri bhakthi. A bhakthi through which I seek the Lord and Lord alone. And that is called here avyabhicāri bhakthi. Through that one who worships me saḥ ētan guṇān samatīthya. That person will certainly cross over the three guṇas, because he will be going all the levels of sādhanā consisting of karma, consisting of upāsana and the final level of bhakthi yōga is: vēdānta śravaṇa, manana, nidhidhyāsana. This should be kept in mind very importantly.

Going through all these levels, सः ब्रह्मभूयाय कल्पते saḥ brahmabhūyāya kalpatē, he becomes eligible to become one with Brahman. Brahma bhūya, means Brahma bhāvaḥ. Brahma bhāvaḥ means Brahma svarūpam. Brahma svarūp means nirguṇa svarūpam, because Brahman is nirguṇam. Nirguṇa svarūpam means guṇathithatvam. Such a person will attain jñāna and become guṇāthithaḥ.

With this all the three questions are answered. Now Krishna concludes the teaching:

ब्रह्मणो हि प्रतिष्ठाहम् अमृतस्याव्ययस्य च ।
शाश्वतस्य च धर्मस्य सुखस्यैकान्तिकस्य च ॥ १४.२७ ॥
brahmaṇō hi pratiṣṭhā'hamamṛtasyāvyayasya ca |
śāśvatasya ca dharmasya sukhasyaikāntikasya ca || 14.27 ||

अहं हि प्रतिष्ठा aham hi pratiṣṭhā I am indeed the basis, अव्ययस्य avyayasya of the changeless च अमृतस्य ca amṛtasya immortal ब्रह्मणः brahmaṇaḥ saguṇa) Brahman, च शाश्वतस्य धर्मस्य ca śāśvatasya dharmasya the eternal dharma च एकान्तिकस्य सुखस्य ca ekāntikasya sukhasya and unconditional Ananda.

27. I am indeed the basis of the changeless immortal (Saguṇa) Brahman, the eternal dharma, and unconditional Ananda.

Here Krishna says: Arjuna, that Brahman which you want to attain which is guṇāthitham is none other than I myself. So I am not a ordinary Devaki nandana Krishna, I myself am the embodiment of that Brahman. Aham eva brahmaṇa prathiṣṭa. I am the embodiment of Brahman; packed Brahman I am. packed in Krishna śarīra.

What type of Brahman I am? The description of his nature; Amruthasya?

which is immortal, avyayasya, which is decay free; which is free from jarā, avyaya means apakṣaya rahithasya; which is free from declensions or decay or jarā, etc.

and śāsvathasya, which is ever changeless, so the three words put together, amṛtasya, avyayasya, śāsvathasya, put together means ṣad vikāra rahithasya. One who is free from all forms of modifications.

kalathithasya iti artha; one who is beyond time, and dharmasya, Dharmasya in this context means the one who is reached through dharma. One who is the goal of dharma. And the word dharma means the vedic teaching. So dharmasya means vaidika dharma prapyasya, the one who is the destination of all the scriptural teachings and sādhanās, and एकान्तिकस्य सुखस्य ekāntikasya sukhasya; that which is ānanda svarūpa, which is unmingled with sorrow. ekāntikasya sukham means duḥkha rahitha sukham. Unalloyed ananda. Unlike the worldly pleasures which are mingled with pain; Brahman is ānandō Brahmeti vyajānāt. So such a changeless and ananda svarūpam Brahman I am, and that I you will reach by following this sādhanā.

So with this Krishna concludes the teaching.

Today I will give you a summary of the 14th chapter. The 14th chapter, like the previous chapter, falls within the third śadkam of the Bhagavat Gītā; the third group of six chapters and I had pointed out that in the third śadkam, Lord Krishna concentrates on jñāna yōga. And therefore we find the topic of jñāna yōga, the essential teachings of the upaniṣads condensed in these chapters; especially the 13th, 14th and 15th chapters. In the 16th and 17th chapters, we will see later, Krishna deals with jñāna-yōga friendly virtues. This friendly word is very very common now. Environment friendly paper, etc. 16th and 17th chapter will deal with jñāna-yōga friendly virtues whereas these three chapters 13, 14 and 15; deal with Jñāna yōga the pursuit of self-knowledge or ātma jñānam. Though, these three chapters are relatively small, they are very very significant chapters and this is known as Guṇathraya vibhāga yōga, in this chapter, Krishna deals with the three guṇas as the stepping stones, through these three guṇas, Lord Krishna takes us to the guṇāthitha ātma. Guṇa thraya dvāra. Through the three guṇas as stepping stone, going to the guṇāthitha ātma, is the subject matter of this chapter and therefore, it is called guṇa thraya vibhāga yōga.

And in the first four verses of this chapter, Krishna gives an introduction in which he mentions the subject matter of ātma jñānam as the liberating wisdom and therefore the greatest knowledge. All the other disciplines of knowledge are called aparā vidya; inferior knowledge; whereas this is the knowledge which is called parā vidya in the upaniṣad and rāja vidya in the 9th chapter and this knowledge is the greatest knowledge because this alone releases a person from samsāra. All the other disciplines of knowledge will make me only smaller and smaller because the more I study I come to know how little I know. So instead of growing bigger in terms of knowledge, I only feel smaller and smaller as I study more further. Therefore they make me smaller; and whereas this is the only wisdom which makes me own the fact that I am Brahman, the biggest. Therefore, Krishna says this is a liberating knowledge, which gives liberation while living called jīvan-muktiḥ and it is also gives liberation after death, which is called vidēḥ muktiḥ. And by vidēḥ muktiḥ we mean freedom from punarjanma. सर्गेऽपि नोपजायन्ते प्रलये न व्यथन्ति च. sargē'pi nōpajāyantē pralayē na vyathanti ca (14.2). Cycles of births and death.

Thus having introduced the subject matter, later Krishna gives the foundation for the teaching and in that foundation he briefly mentions the process of creation. While pointing out that God is the cause of the creation, and God consists of two aspects, one is the consciousness aspect and the other is the matter aspect. Cētana acētana tatva dvaya vilithaha Isvaraḥ.

In the 7th chapter, Cētana tatvam was called para prakṛti, acētana tatvam was called apara prakṛti.

In the 13th chapter, Cētana tatvam was called puruṣaḥ and acētana tatvam is called prakṛtiḥ.

And in the upaniṣads, the generally the cētana tatvam is called brahman and the acētana tatvam is called Māya;

These two principles together is called and this Isvara is anādi and from this Cētana - acētana misram alone the entire universe has originated, including every individual also. And from this we can easily infer that every individual also must be a mixture of Cētana - acētana tatvam because the cause is, so the effect will be. As the parents are, (very difficult to assimilate, but the truth is), so the children will be. That is why when the children are very wayward, they ask the question: Whose child is this? So based on the same principle, I, the individual, AM also is the mixture of puruṣa and prakṛti, brahman and māya; cētanam and acētanam. Otherwise technically called ātma-anātma misraḥ I am.

And from this we can infer another aspect also. And that is the anātma part of mind which is born out of prakṛti will have the three guṇas which belong to prakṛti. So prakṛti is responsible for the origination of my anātma part and therefore my anātma part will have three guṇas and what is anātma part; the body-mind complex; Otherwise we can call the ahamkāra part. So the body-mind complex is equal to the anātma part is equal to the ahamkāra part is saḡuṇaḡ, endowed with the three guṇas, because it is a product; originating from the prakṛti.

And similarly I have got a puruṣa aspect also; the cētana aspect also; which is called the ātma aspect; which is nirguṇam in nature and this nirguṇa ātma is technically called sākṣi. Therefore saḡuṇa ahamkāra plus nirguṇa sākṣi. Saḡuṇa matter plus nirguṇa consciousness is the individual.

Do not ask me what is saḡuṇa; saḡuṇa means with guṇa or properties and nirguṇa means without guṇa, the properties or attributes. The pure ahamkāra also cannot interact in the world. Pure sākṣi also cannot interact in the world. All the interactions are done by the mixture sākṣi + ahamkāra.

And the whole aim of this teaching is I should learn to own up more and more of my higher sākṣi svarūpam, which is the persistent and permanent nature of mine and I should not be over obsessed with my inferior ahamkāra materialistic nature. Not that ahamkāra should be neglected; because without ahamkāra, pure sākṣi cannot transact. So ahamkāra is needed; but over-importance and undue importance, obsession with ahamkāra will lead to all types of problem. And therefore instead of seeing myself as ahamkāra, I should learn to see myself as sākṣi, now transacting through ahamkāra kanchukam; ahamkāra overcoat. For this purpose, the Krishna talked about the creation and the essence of this topic is I am also a mixture of saḡuṇa and nirguṇa aspect.

And having presented this foundation, Lord Krishna begins the teaching from the 5th verse onwards. He talks about the three guṇas of ahamkāra, to show that all the three guṇas are causes of bondage, if we do not know how to make use of them properly, like anything in the creation. If I know how to handle things, it can help me grow; if I do not know how to handle, the very same thing will cause problems. You take fire, it is a blessing or a curse; it depends upon whether I know how to handle fire. Electricity is a blessing or curse? By itself it is neither; but if I do not know how to handle, it becomes a curse. Similarly, the three guṇas also. If I do not know how to make use of, they can become guṇa. Guṇa has got a second meaning, they can become 'ropes' or chains to bind me.

And therefore I should have a thorough understanding of the three guṇas. So from 5th verse, up to 18th verse, we get an analysis of the three guṇas which is essentially an analysis of the ahamkāra. Because ahamkāra has the three guṇas.

And for the convenience of our study, Krishna classifies this analysis into five parts. What are those five parts?

First he gives the lakṣaṇam or definition of the three guṇas; and he gives the mode of bondage; how each guṇa binds. If we do not know how to handle ~ that is always to be supplied ~ if we do not know how to handle; bandana prākaraḥ;

then he gives the liṅgam, indication to find out which guṇa is dominant in me; thereafterwards, Gatiḥ, gathi means post-death travel; the travel after life; and then finally phalam, the consequences of the predominance of each guṇa.

First he gives the definition, we have got a chart in our books; we can refer to the chart later, he gives the definition, satvaḥ prakāśātmakam; rajas is rāghātmakam, tamas is mohanātmakam.

Satva is that disposition of the mind which makes the mind knowledge friendly. Today I am in the friendly mood. So satva makes the mind endowed with that disposition, which is knowledge friendly, which makes the mind a bright mind; In Sanskrit, jñāninonmukha anthakaraṇam. So disposed to the acquisition of knowledge; whereas rajō guṇa makes the mind karma friendly; activity friendly; a disposition which is suited for dynamism; lot of work.

Whereas tamō guṇa makes the mind unfit for, inimical to both, not inimical to one, neither knowledge friendly nor activity friendly. Such a disposition of mind is called satva, rajas or tamas. Propensity based definition.

Then the next one is the mode of bondage. How does it bind? When my mind is knowledge friendly, naturally I become a pusthaka pūchi, a bookworm; all the time interested in operating the jñānēndriyas; not karmēndriya-active person; and therefore I look for an infrastructure which is conducive to more and more study. A library atmosphere; with lot of books around, bright light; in modern house, very very unfriendly for reading; only one small bulb in the corner; seems that is the fashion; most unfit for reading; and if you put bright tube light, they say is it a shop or what? They think that shop should only be bright; and not homes; So it is a knowledge-unfriendly lighting/atmosphere, whenever you go to such a place.

And therefore the mind seeks books, people who can teach, quiet atmosphere, ideally a desk and a table, pen. In many houses, they would not even have a pen, pencil, rubber, paper, etc. and they will go and buy if I request.

After the school life is over, they use the pen only for taking down the phone nos.!! And generally that pen would not work also. So stationeries would not be there. A learning person will first look for those things. And it become a bondage, and if such a conducive atmosphere is not there; this person becomes restless and unhappy. That is the bondage caused by satva guṇa. So jñāna saṅgēna badnāti. By creating attachment to a knowledge-infrastructure.

Whereas rajō guṇa creates attachment to what? It does not like library; library if you say it gets angry. It wants to do lot of things; and therefore it looks for activity friendly atmosphere; And when such an atmosphere is there; that mind is very happy; if that is not there; if you want to punish him, leave him in an āśramam. In three days he will become mad; Not only he will become mad, he will also make others mad. So therefore, jñāna saṅgēna satvam satvam badnāti, karma saṅgēna rajaḥ badnāti,

And tama ḥ; it will look for what? nidrā saṅgēna, this is the three types of bandana prakāraḥ. This the three types of bandana prakāraḥ.

Then the liṅgam, the indication of the three guṇas; this is a corollary we get from the previous discussions.

When is satva dominant? When is jñānam increases. Reading increases; study increases; thinking increases; it is in the indication of satva vritti; whereas when lot of activity increases, it is an indication of rajō vritti and when sleep and sleepy condition increases, it is an indication of tamō vritti.

And then next Krishna talked about the gathi after death. When a person dies when satva is predominant, one goes to higher lokas; when a person dies with rajas predominant; he is born in the manuṣya lōkā; because manuṣya lōka is meant for karma; so karmāṇu bandini manuṣya lōkē; we will soon see in the 15th chapter. When tamō guṇa is predominant after death, that person goes down. So urdhva gathi, madhyama gathi and adhō gathi.

And finally, the consequences of these three guṇas were also pointed out; that is the phalam; the consequences in this life. That also we can easily derive. When satva guṇa increase, jñāna vridhhi takes place; when rajō guṇa increases, the ambition and activities increase; and when tamō guṇa increases, nidrā, pramādhā, means negligence; that the life will be closer to the animal. So thus, lakṣaṇam, bandanam prakāraḥ, lingam, gathi and phalam. all these five topics Krishna discusses from the 5th verse up to 18th.

And then comes the crucial two verses. 19 and 20, in which Krishna talks about transcending the three guṇas. And for transcending the three guṇas one will have to make use of the three guṇas. Just as a fruit requires skin and also the stem of whatever it is to connect it to the mother tree, for ripening and once it is ripened, it does not require this skin and that is why naturally the skin comes out. So skin is required for ripening and after ripening, you cannot say, skin was very much useful, and therefore I should be grateful to the skin also, I should not peel the skin and throw away; that is ingratitude and therefore I will eat the banana along with the skin. I do not know whether naturopathy would recommend that. They will say, eat with the skin.

Normally we do not do, that does not mean, I disrespect the skin. Skin is required up to a particular time and then it has to peel off. Similarly, the entire spiritual sādhanā a gradual journey from tama pradhāna life to raja pradhāna life to satva pradhāna life to guṇāthitha life.

And how does the scripture accomplish that? The scripture prescribes lot of karma to a person who is now tama pradhāna. And what type of karmas. Sakāma karma. Selfish activities to fulfil worldly materialistic desires; In fact scriptures encourage desires; just as we have got advertisement now, to generate desires, Vēda itself has itself commercials. Vēda pūrva bhaga is full of advertisement. Because it wants to inject desires in the tamō guṇa person, who is always sleepy and refuses to get up and make him rajō guṇi. So therefore karma, what type of karma? Sakāma karma, selfish activity, the scriptures recommend for the initial step.

And once a person has got into sakāma karma, then the scriptures gradually changes his status, rajō guṇa should be maintained and it should be a different type of rajō guṇa. The first rajō guṇa is tamō guṇa tainted rajō guṇa is the first phase, satva guṇa tainted rajō guṇa should be the next stage. Śankarācārya calls it tamaḥ upasarjana rajaḥ is first stage; satva upasarjana rajaḥ is the second stage; What is the difference these two? Both rajō guṇas will activate a person. It will make the person extremely ambitious; it will whip up the ambition but the difference will be initially all desires are personal selfish-oriented; that means the beneficiary of my activity will be only, i.e. I am the beneficiary or maximum my family. That will be the first stage; whereas when that rajō guṇa is converted to the higher rajō guṇa, sakāma karma will be converted into niṣkāma karma which means the beneficiaries of my activity will be more and more. Not my family alone; there is a wider circle, neighbours benefit, the entire community benefit; the temples around benefit, the educational institutions around benefit; Not myself only; as the beneficiaries increase, sakāma karma is getting converted into niṣkāma karma. This is travel from tamō guṇa from lower rajō guṇa to higher rajō guṇa. To use the 4th chapter language, guṇa sūdra to guṇa vaiśya to guṇa kṣatriyaḥ. Guṇa kṣatriyaḥ is a person whose life and activities will benefit the entire community; nation-wide community, whole universe itself.

Once a person has lived a guṇa kṣatriyaḥ life, which is otherwise called karma yōga, then the scriptures ask you to graduate you to the next stage, satva guṇa pradhāna life; after the peak of activity, gradually one has to withdraw. Grihastha āśrama to vānaprastha āśrama, you may not physically leave home, but in the life style, the orientation is gradually changed.

And at this stage alone, the scriptures talk about more of upāsana and less of karma. So upāsana is the sādhanā which makes an extroverted active person into a quiet and withdrawn and self'/ātma oriented person. Thus upāsana sādhanā makes me a satva pradhāna puruṣaḥ.

When I become a satva prādhanā puruṣa, the activities are gradually dropped, and one does not feel any guilt because he has contributed to the society sufficiently. He is not a selfish person because of so many years he has contributed. Now he can turn to concentrated spirituality. And not only that, physically also, this person becomes incapable of more activity; when for him getting up and sitting down itself become a project. No other project is required. Sitting is a project and getting up is a project. What work he will do. He requires people to help him out. Therefore even physically it is more conducive for inward directed life. Thus tama pradhāna to raja pradhāna to satva pradhāna he has come; by following karma yōga and upāsana.

Then satva guṇa to nirguṇa travel alone is a totally different type of travel. There is no corridor connecting satva guṇa and nirguṇa. Tamō guṇa can be changed to rajō guṇa, rajō guṇa can be changed to satva guṇa; satva guṇa can never be converted into nirguṇa. If satva guṇa is converted, it will again become tamō guṇa or rajō guṇa only. There is no corridor connecting guṇa thraya and Nirguṇa, or guṇathitaḥ and therefore the sādhanā is jñānam.

So after a person becomes a satva guṇa pradhānaḥ, karma yōga is dropped, upasana is dropped, because they have done their job by making me satva guṇa pradhānaḥ. In fact satva guṇa pradhāna person is called sādhanā catuṣṭaya sampanna adhikari. Then what is the sadhana? Jñāna yōga. That Krishna tells clearly.

नान्यं गुणेभ्यःकर्तारं यदा द्रष्टानुपश्यति ।

गुणेभ्यश्च परं वेत्ति मद्भावं सोऽधिगच्छति ॥ १४.१९ ॥

nānyaṃ guṇēbhyaḥ kartāraṃ yadā draṣṭā'nupaśyati |

guṇēbhyaśca paraṃ vētti madbhāvaṃ sō'dhigacchati || 14.19 ||

As I said the crucial word in that 19th verse is Vetti, he comes to know. And Krishna does not say how to get the knowledge, because he has already said that in the 4th chapter. Knowledge does not automatically happen. Whether your mind is a noisy mind or whether your mind silent mind, ignorant mind will be ignorant, no knowledge. No knowledge, for that matter, can happen naturally. That's why Dayananda swami beautifully says: If you sit quietly what would have happened is; previously noisy ignorant mind, to quiet ignorant mind; so by stilling the mind or quietly sitting in meditation, knowledge does not happen. What should you do:

तद्विद्धि प्रणिपातेन परिप्रश्नेन सेवया ।

उपदेक्ष्यन्ति ते ज्ञानं जानिन्स्तत्त्वदर्शिनः ॥४.३४॥

tadviddhi praṇipātēna paripraśnēna sēvayā |
upadēkṣyanti tē jñānaṃ jñānīnastattvadarśinaḥ || 4.34 ||

Jñānina yōga means going to a guru. sthrothriya brahmaniṣṭa guru and systematic study of the Vēdanta. Not a casual now and then listening to some satsaṅga here and there, and all of them are meant to inspire you, inspiration is different; teaching is different. Dayananda Swamiji says: Preaching is different; teaching is different. And systematic study includes śravaṇam, mananam and nidhidyāsanam, study of the scriptures for a length of time, and thereafter removing all the doubts by proper mananam or analysis and thereafter internalisation of the teaching. So śravaṇam, manana and nidhidhyāsana, I become guṇāthitha.

Now the question is: How do I become guṇāthitha, by śravaṇam? As I said, the body, mind complex will be eternally saḡuṇa, it would not become nirguṇa. Then what do I do through jñāna yōga? I learn to dis-identify from the body by knowing the fact that body is only an incidental instrument I am using for worldly transaction exactly like the spectacle and when I remove the spectacles, what happens: I am not gone, but I am not able to see the people, similarly when the body mind complex is not there, I do not disappear, I do not have the medium to interact with the people; and we do experience such a situation daily, When? during the deep sleep state. And therefore, body mind complex is temporarily used and then it will be dropped, I should take the instrument as myself.

Then if I am not the body mind complex, who am I? For that alone, Krishna gave the answer:

क्षेत्रज्ञं चापि मां विद्धि सर्वक्षेत्रेषु भारत ॥
क्षेत्रक्षेत्रज्ञयोर्ज्ञानं यत्तज्ज्ञानं मतं मम ॥ १३.३ ॥
kṣētrajñam cāpi māṃ viddhi sarvaksētrēṣu bhārata |
kṣētrakṣētrajñayōrjñānaṃ yattajjñānaṃ mataṃ mama || 13.3 ||

I am not the body, but I am the experiencer of the body; I am not the mind; I am the experiencer of the mind; and therefore, all the known attributes belong to the known body mind complex only. This is a very important law. You should remember. Any experienced attribute, belong to the experienced object. If I see green colour, the colour belong to the eye or the object. The seen colour belongs to the seen object; does not belong to the seer eye. Whatever colour I am seeing, all those belong to what? The objectified-attribute belong to the objectified-substances; no attribute belongs to the objectifier-I. And therefore all the guṇas belong to the body, mind complex. I am free from all the three guṇas. So you do not contact the guṇāthitha ātma, you do not become the guṇāthitha ātma, you own up the fact that I was guṇāthitha; I am guṇāthitha, and I will be guṇatita. For how many days? I am incapable of becoming saṅuṇa. So this transformation in the I, takes place and this knowledge based transformation is called mōkṣaḥ or jīvan muktiḥ.

नान्यं गुणेभ्यःकर्तारं यदा द्रष्टानुपश्यति ।
गुणेभ्यश्च परं वेत्ति मद्भावं सोऽधिगच्छति ॥ १४.१९ ॥
nānyaṃ guṇēbhyaḥ kartāraṃ yadā draṣṭā'nupaśyati |
guṇēbhyaśca paraṃ vētti madbhāvaṃ sō'dhigacchati || 14.19 ||

गुणानेतानतीत्य त्रीन् देही देहसमुद्भवान् ।
जन्ममृत्युजरादुःखैर्ह विमुक्तोऽमृतमश्नुते ॥ १४.२० ॥
guṇānētānatītya trīn dēhī dēhasamudbhavān |
janmamṛtyujarādūḥkhairvimuktō'mṛtamaśnutē || 14.20 ||

So after death, will I have urdhva gathi or madhyama gathi or atho gathi? If I have satva guṇa I will have urdhva gathi; if I have rajō guṇa I will have madhya gathi; tamō guṇa I will have atho gathi. If I am Nirguṇa, what gathi? No gathi. Aham agathiḥ asmi. Not Tamil 'agathi' (refugee). I am agathiḥ, because I cannot move from one place to another, because I am the ātma, the caitanyam which is all-pervading, in Me the consciousness, the saṅuṇa matter appears and in Me the consciousness the saṅuṇa matter resolves. And I am never affected by the three guṇas. This is called mōkṣa.

And naturally Arjuna is curious to know what will be the lifestyle of such a guṇāthitha person, and therefore he asked three questions in the 21st verse,

अर्जुन उवाच --
केलिङ्गोऽस्मीन्गुणानेतान् अतीतो भवति प्रभो ।
किमाचारः कथं चैतान् त्रिन्गुणानतिवर्तते ॥ १४.२१ ॥
arjuna uvāca
kairliṅgaistrīn guṇānētānatītō bhavati prabhō |
kimācāraḥ kathaṃ caitāṃstrīn guṇānativartatē || 14.21 ||

The three questions are: What are the indications of the guṇāthitha? characteristics of guṇāthitha and then what is the conduct of the guṇāthitha: ācāraḥ, and the method of becoming guṇāthithaḥ.

And Krishna gives the answer, the indication is the very knowledge makes the mind less and less reactive to the situation because the mind has become an enlightened mind and an enlightened mind learns to have the right attitude towards the saṅga creation. And what is the right attitude? The creation will be different. Why different? because the proportion of the guṇas varies from individual to individual therefore no human being can be like me. And therefore there is no question of compatibility. So looking for compatibility is the worst that you can do and even if by chance there is any compatibility between two persons, it cannot be for long, because both have dynamic changing mind; and therefore differences are natural in anātmā. Changes are natural in anātmā. Association and dissociation are natural in anātmā. Birth, growth, declension and death are natural in anātmā. And therefore I cannot change the anātmā, I should only change my attitude. And this changing of the attitude takes place gradually only because the old behaviour continues.

And through Nidhidhyāsanam, which is called dwelling upon the teaching; I reduce my reactions gradually. And when the reactions reduce, knowledge does not improve. Knowledge does not become brighter, but knowledge seems to improve, because the reactions are decreasing. Just like on a purnami day, the moon seems to be brighter and brighter in the evening, but you know that moon is not becoming brighter but as the sunlight recedes, sunlight is an obstacle to the brightness of the moon; As the sun light recedes, the moon seems to be brighter and brighter; similarly my reactions come down as a result of the assimilation; as a result nidhidhyāsanam.

And as I had said before, we can see the decrease in reaction at three levels; frequency of unhealthy reactions, like frustration, like fear, like insecurity, anger, etc. the frequency comes down. Not that today you got knowledge, tomorrow you are all gems. No: even after study of Gītā, it will continue, because habits have to be gradually changed. So do not expect a flashy transformation. It is not going to happen. It is a gradual assimilation.

Not only frequency comes down, the intensity of the reactions also come down; and how do you know; the decrease in the intensity; the most intense reaction is at three levels; mānasam, vāchikam, and kāyikam. That is why when there is extreme reaction, there is butterfly in the stomach.

Before writing examination, the stomach upset; therefore, mental, verbal, physical. Therefore Arjuna got

सीदन्ति मम गात्राणि मुखम् च परिशुष्यति॥१. २९॥
sīdanti mama gātrāṇi mukhaṃ ca pariśuṣyati|| 1.29||

as the intensity comes down, it will be at two levels; physical reactions will come down; but mental and verbal will be there; constantly grumbling and making others also upset. And thereafter further reduction intensity, verbal reactions are gone, even physical reactions are gone but in the mind reactions do arise; even after studying Vēdānta for years. But the greatness is that nobody else will know, because there is no physical or verbal reaction; but that person knows the rising of reaction.

So this is reduction in intensity and finally there is a reduction in the recovery period also; previous once I get angry it continues for days; and then it comes down to hours; then it comes down to minutes; then it comes down to seconds; so I get a mental resilience to bounce back, even though I violently reacted, I am able to forget that and continue with my life. So thus nidhidhyāsanam, converts jñānam into jñāna niṣṭa, reducing the violent reaction. But we should remember, reactions can never become zero. Zero reactions are only in the case of a table, the chair, etc. they do not have it. they do not get angry. So our mind is live mind; therefore we can reduce the FIR, not the police report, frequency, intensity, recovery period, these three we can bring down, but it can never become zero. It will be there; but what happens is once I bring it down sufficiently, thereafter; my meditation or nidhidhyāsanam becomes slightly different; and that nidhidhyāsanam is that I should not be too much obsessed with the mind and its reactions; because to be over obsessed with the mind, is again identification with the mind. That is ahankāra. and therefore, I reduce the reaction and thereafterwards, I learn to distance from my mind, and I do not worry too much about the reacting mind. That is reaction to the reaction. Do you understand. First we will react. Then I remember that I am a Gītā student; and I react a second time.

So every Gītā student has to face two reactions; one is the natural reaction to the situation; and the second is reaction to the fact that I reacted, leading to depression.

that I am not progressing at all. I need not come to the class, etc. What is the use. Even if we do not get depression, family members will create. What is the use of going to Gītā class. Without attending Gītā classes I am better, they will say. That hurts your ego more. This is called the secondary reaction. So after a particular time, I drop my secondary reactions; I am not over-obsessed with the reaction of the mind. And I say that I do not have any reaction because I am the witness of the reacting mind. You should not start it now. Only in the last. First reduce the reactions, then give up the reactions to the reactions.

This is called jñāna niṣṭa and that Krishna tells in the last few beautiful verses 22 to 27. In the 22nd verses, Krishna is talking about the absence of reaction to the reaction. In one of the guru purnima talks, I have dealt with this topic very elaborately. Reaction to the reaction is a greater saṁsāra; a jñāni does not react to the reaction. And thereafter, this is the definition or this is the indication of jñāna niṣṭa; I am not obsessed with my mind and its tendencies.

And then the second question was how does he conduct himself in life. Krishna emphasis one main point, sarvatra samatvam.

तुल्यप्रियाप्रियो धीरः तुल्यनिन्दात्मसंस्तुतिः ॥ १४.२४ ॥
samaduḥkhasukhaḥ svasthaḥ samaloṣṭāśmakāñcanaḥ |
tulyapriyāpriyō dhīrastulyanindātmasaṁstutiḥ || 14.24 ||

There is an equanimity of the mind; mind is free from violent reactions. and even if there are little bit reactions, he does not react to those reactions. So samatvam is his ācāraḥ.

Final question is how to become guṇāthitha. And what is the answer? Knowledge gained with the bhakthi of the Lord? Surrender to the Lord and by the grace of the Lord, may you get jñānam and that jñānam is the only solution.

मां च योऽव्यभिचारेण भक्तियोगेन सेवते ।
स गुणान्समतीत्यैतान् ब्रह्मभूयाय कल्पते ॥ १४. २६ ॥
māṁ ca yō'avyabhicāreṇa bhaktiyōgēna sēvatē |
sa guṇān samatītyaitān brahmabhūyāya kalpatē || 14.26 ||

Through Bhakthi you do not get liberation. Through bhakthi you get conducive atmosphere for knowledge and a conducive personality also; and then through knowledge you will attain mōkṣaḥ. So with the answers to Arjuna's question, the 14th chapter is over.

Having completed the 14th chapter, now we will enter into the 15th chapter, one of the smallest chapters in the Gītā, with only 20 verses; but one of the most important and popular chapters of the Gītā, and it is often used as a prayer verse before taking food; therefore generally, when this chapter is chanted, people remember the food, rather than the Lord, but it is a very important Vēdāntic chapter.

And since it occurs in the last ṣatkam of the Gītā, all the three important topics of the last ṣatkam are dealt with in this chapter. The three important themes of the last ṣatkam, if you remember is jñāna yōga as the sādhanā, jīvātma paramātma aikyam as the subject matter, and the importance of values are sadguṇaḥ as a preparatory step for the aikya jñānam. Jñāna yōgaḥ, aikyam and sad guṇaḥ, these three are the main theme of the last ṣatkam and all these three topics have been well dealt with in this chapter. And this chapter is titled Puruṣōttama yōga and in the 15th chapter, the word Puruṣōttama means Nirguṇa caitanyam. It does not refer to saḡuṇa Isvara, neither it refers to saḡuṇa Viṣṇu, nor saḡuṇa Krishna, and of course not saḡuṇa Śiva; it refers to Nirguṇam Brahma or Nirguṇa caitanyam and this meaning Lord himself gives at the end of the chapter, so there can be no controversy, because Krishna himself says Puruṣōttama means attributeless consciousness and yōgaḥ a means the subject matter in this contact. So Puruṣōttama yōgaḥ means the topic of Nirguṇam brahma, which is the main teaching of this chapter.

With this background we will enter into the Chapter proper.

श्री भगवान् उवाच śrī Bhagavān uvāca the Lord said ---प्राहुः prāhuḥ They speak of अव्ययम् अश्वत्थम् avyayam asvattham the eternal fig-tree (of Samsara), ऊर्ध्वमूलम् ūrdhvamūlam whose tap root is above, अधः शाखम् adhaḥ śākham whose branches are below, यस्य पर्णानि yasya parṇāni and whose leaves छन्दांसि chandāṃsi are the Vēdās सः यः वेद saḥ yaḥ veda He who knows तम् tam it वेदवित् vedavit is the knower of the Vēdās.

1. The Lord said --- They speak of the eternal peepal-tree (of Samsāra) whose tap root is above, whose branches are below, and whose leaves are the Vēdās. He who knows it is the knower of the Vēdās.

As the very title of this chapter shows, the topic is Nirguṇa Brahma and by the study of this chapter, one will get Nirguṇa Brahma jñānam. And naturally a person will have a question, why should I get nirguṇa brahma jñānam at all, because a person would not go after any knowledge, unless he expects some benefit out of it: prayojanam anudisya, mandopi na pravarthathe.

The subject we study in the college is from the standpoint of employment and the employment is from the standpoint of, udara nimitham bahukrita vēśa. So the question will come, why should I get Brahma jñānam. We should remember Krishna is giving here Brahma jñānam as a means of mōkṣa or freedom. So Mōkṣa sādhanam, Brahma jñānam.

Then the next question will come, what do you mean by mōkṣa. What is the price per kilo is Mōkṣa? So we say Mōkṣa is samsāra nivṛttiḥ; freedom from samsāra. And naturally, the next question will be what? What is samsāra? Samsāra is the varieties of problems that a human being continuously faces, and to get out of the problem he continuously runs about. I have told you before, autobiography of an individual is like the biography of an auto. Means what, running about from one place to another; not only he runs about in this life; but the travel continues (பயணங்கள் முடிவதில்லை) in the next janma also. So samsāra means continuously facing problems and running about to get rid of the problem. And this struggle is called samsāra. And freedom from that samsāra is called Mōkṣaḥ and Brahma jñānam is the remedy for that mōkṣa. And according to the Vēdānta, Brahma jñānam is not one of the remedies, it is the only remedy available. And even if we make use of some other remedies, they may or will work for sometime; they will serve only a palliative, but they will never serve as a curative; it will not solve the problem. And therefore, Brahma jñānam is for mōkṣa; mōkṣa is freedom from samsāra.

Now the thing is: I would like to get rid of samsāra, only I think samsāra is a problem. Only a person who looks upon samsāra as a problem; he alone would love to get rid of this; if a person says I am very very comfortable as a samsāri. In fact many people laughingly they say: I am a big samsāri. So therefore as long as a person loves samsāra, he would not like mōkṣa and as long as he does not like mōkṣa, for him Brahma jñānam is irrelevant. And therefore Brahma jñānam is relevant only for those people who have seen and discerned the problems of samsāra. So Samsāra dōṣa darśanam is required for Mōkṣa iccha. Samsāra dōṣa darśanam is a pre-requisite for mōkṣa iccha (are you understanding, since I was using Sanskrit words?) Samsāra dōṣa darśanam means seeing the problem of samsāra is the pre-requisite for the desire of mōkṣa, and mōkṣa iccha is a pre-requisite to develop interest in Brahma jñānam. And interest in Brahma jñānam is a pre-requisite for continuously attending the class. So therefore Krishna wants the students to continue and that is possible only if they have diagnosed the problem. Without diagnosing the disease, I will never attempt an appropriate treatment. And everybody has got this basic disease called bhava rōgāḥ.

pava rokam aṛa vēru maruntētu

paḷa viṇaikal tuṭarātu unṇai pajikka?

Bhava rōgāḥ, samsāra rōgāḥ, I have to see. And that is why they prescribe after 40 years of 50 years, they say, once in a while you should go for a master check up. Whether you benefit or not, the hospital benefit; Doctors do not misunderstand me; What is the purpose of master check up; doing all the scans; the idea is what? If I have a problem I should know what problem I have. And unless I know, how will I attempt to remedy the problem. Similarly, we have a scanning of our life to discover the disease called bhava rōgāḥ; then we can go through a treatment programme jñānam course and therefore Krishna begins the 15th chapter with a description of samsāra. Samsāra means the whole life of change. The whole life of birth and death; the old age, disease and death; association and disassociation; this whole transforming life He talks about in the first 2-1/2 verses. That is the first two verses and the half verse of the third one. And in the 15th chapter, we do not find Arjuna asking any question. Therefore Krishna himself volunteers to continue the teaching.

Arjuna உனக்கு பிடிச்சதோ பிடிக்கலயோ (whether you like it or not), I love teaching, and therefore I would like to clarify further. And to give a description of this samsāra, the changing universe, the changing beings, the changing life, Krishna compares this samsāra to a huge tree called अश्वत्थ वृक्षः aśvattha vṛkṣaḥ. aśvattha means a peepal tree. In Tamil it is called அரசு மரம் araśa maram. There is another tree called ஆல மரம் āla maram, that is banyan tree; or vata vṛkṣaḥ; we are not talking about the banyan trees here, which has got the secondary hanging stems; We are not talking about about we are talking about the peepal tree; aśvattha vṛkṣaḥ, which is very very huge tree. And this comparative study is not Krishna's own original version but this has been already done in Kathōpaniṣad. And somehow it appears that Krishna loves Kathōpaniṣad, and so He collects or quotes maximum verses from Kathōpaniṣad and in Kathōpaniṣad in the last section, last valli, the first mantra is

तदेव शुक्रं तद्ब्रह्म तदेवामृतमुच्यते ।
तस्मिँल्लोकाः श्रिताः सर्वे तदु नात्येति कश्चन । एतद्वै तत् ॥ १॥ ūrdhvamūlō:'vākṣākha eṣō:'śvatthaḥ sanātanah |
tadēva śukraṁ tadbrahma tadēvāmṛtamucyatē |
tasmiँllōkāḥ śritāḥ sarvē tadu nātyēti kaścana | ētadvai tat || 2.3.1||

Kathōpaniṣad, second chapter, third section, first mantra.

Of course, does not bodily quote. He takes some portion of that mantra and in that mantra, the universe; the changing universe and life; is compared to a huge aśvatha tree. And Śankarācārya gives a very very elaborate commentary on this, both in his Kathōpaniṣad Bhāṣyam as well as the Gītā Bhāṣyam. Śankarācārya gives an elaborate commentary, in which he studies the common features between the samsāra and the aśvatha tree. Because a comparison is possible only when two things have got common features. If you say somebody looks like murungakai, and the you look like pushanikai, some common features must be there; in Sanskrit it is called sadharmyam, means common features. At least there must be minimum one common feature to compare. If it is said 'Murungakai' it is not that you can eat him; idea is, one common feature is there; that both are slim. But an example becomes a very very significant germane example if there are many common features; the more the common features, better is the example.

And Śankarācārya brings out several common features between the universe and the aśvatha vṛkṣaḥ. I will just tell you some of the common features just to appreciate.

The first common feature is mahatvam. Mahatvam means both of them are very very huge; very very vast; vastness is the common feature. The universe is also very huge and vast; and the aśvatha vṛkṣaḥ also; not a small plant, it is a huge tree. hugeness is common feature No.1.

The second common feature is ādyanta rahithatvam. You cannot trace the beginning of both, which is one of the fundamental questions please ask. When did the universe start? Is an invariable question. Why am I born, they ask. What answer can I give? to give me problems. What can I say. Anyway jokes apart, I have to tell the simple answer, because of your karma, because my karma is there; because of your karma you are born. And I think I have answered your question but if you are intelligent you will ask how did that karma come. Then I will say, of course because of your previous janma. Then you will not leave, you will ask the next question; How did the previous janma come; of course because of the previous karma, and then you get irritated and ask me how did the first janma come.

Every thinking-intellect will ask this question; how did the first karma come or how did the first janma come. And then the next question will be why did Bhagavān give me the first janma. என்னை ஏன் படைத்தான்?; நான் ஏன் பிறந்தேன்? ennai ēṇ paṭaittān?; nāṇ ēṇ piṛantēn? Why did Bhagavān create. All these questions are natural. Here he says there is no beginning for the creation. Therefore never ask the question how did the first karma or first janma come. It never came; the universe ever was. So you cannot talk about the beginning and also you cannot therefore talk about the end; it is an eternal cycle of karma to janma; janma to karma. And the same thing you can see in a tree also. If somebody ask how did the tree come; what will be my answer; of course because of the seed; then you will ask, how did the seed come; of course because of the previous tree; how did the previous tree, because of its previous seed; தென்ன மரமா? தேங்யா? கோழியா? முட்டயா? tenna maramā? tēnyā? kōḷiyā? muṭṭayā? Therefore never ask this question because creation is a cyclic phenomenon, and for a cyclic phenomenon, ādi/anta cannot be talked about. Therefore what is the second common feature. World is also ādiantarahitham/tree is also ādiantarahitham. ādiantarahitham is the second feature.

Third feature is anivarcaniyatvam. Inexplicability. Logically uncategorisable. In what sense? You can never say a thing is a cause or an effect. You can never pinpoint a thing is a cause or an effect, because from a standpoint a thing is a cause, the very same is an effect, from another standpoint. So today is cause or effect. What reply you would give. From yesterday's standpoint it is an effect. From tomorrow's standpoint it is a cause. An person is an effect from the standpoint of his parents and the cause from the standpoint of his children. And that is why fate/freewill question also is eternally unresolved; because you can take any point of time and you can call it, fate or you can call it freewill also. If you look at a particular point and see as an effect of the cause, you will call it fate. And if the very same point is seen as the cause of the future, you will call it what? Freewill. You can never pinpoint whether a thing is absolutely freewill or absolutely fate; absolutely cause or absolutely effect; or absolutely parent or absolutely children; nobody is absolute parent. And similarly am I guru or śiṣya? From the standpoint of my students, I am guru, from the standpoint of my guru, I am śiṣya. So thus nothing is clearly categorisable. Logically classifiable. And therefore the tree is also anirvacaniyam. The universe is also anirvacaniyam. That is why we use the word, Māya. It is a magic. The more you probe into the creation, the more mysterious it becomes. And scientists will say: we are about to solve the mystery of this creation. They have been telling this for several decades. When they solve a mystery, it is replaced by a bigger mystery. Therefore what is the third common feature. Anivarcaniyatvam.

Then the fourth common feature is Mūlavatvam. The tree has got a root. You can never have a tree without a root below. But the peculiar thing is the tree is visible; pramāṇa gōcaram; whereas the root is underneath; it is not visible to you. But even if you do not see the root, you certainly know that there is a root; because without a root, there cannot be tree. Extending the same principle, we say that the universal tree also must have a mulam, a root. And that root is called Bhagavān. Īśvaraḥ. And if you ask Bhagavān is not seen, I will tell you that you do not see the root also. Root is also invisible; the root of the universe is also invisible. But one thing, even though I do not see the root, I know that without the root, the tree cannot stand. Similarly, I do not see Bhagavān around, but I know that the universe cannot stand without a mūlam and that is Bhagavān's Viśvādhāram. And therefore tree has an invisible root and the World also has got an invisible root called Bhagavān. That is why in Viṣṇu sahasranama, one of the names of the Lord is Adōkṣajaḥ. Akṣajaḥ means sensory knowledge. Akṣa means sense organs. jaḥ means born out of. Adhaḥ means beneath or beyond. Not falling within. So Adōkṣajaḥ means the one who is beyond the sensory knowledge. And therefore the invisible root of the universe is Bhagavān and this root is common to both, we call it mūlavathvam. This is the 4th common feature.

Then the fifth common feature is śākāvatvam. A huge tree has got many branches; spreading far and wide and some branches are on the top. உச்சாணி கோம்பு; Ucāṇi kōmbū, and some branches are in the bottom, and some branches are in the middle. So top, middle and bottom branches are there; many for this tree. Similarly, the universe also has got several branches called the higher, middle and lower lōkās. So the higher lōkās and the higher bodies; dēva śārīram represents urdhva śākās, the upper branches; manuṣya lōkās comes under the middle branch and the athala, vithala, suthala, rasātala mahātala, talatala, pātala paryanthm, all the lower lōkās will come under the lower branches. Thus the universe is a vast tree with the fourteen lokahs as its branches. So śākāvatvam is the next common feature.

Then the sixth common feature is parṇavatvam. The tree is full of leaves. The tree is full of leaves. And so thick foliage that you do not even see the trunk and branches; So many leaves are there; and similarly, the universal tree has got the leaves in the form of karmani or karma kāndā of the vēdās are compared to the leaves of the samsāra tree. So here you will require a slight explanation. Why do we compare karma kāndā to the leaves of the tree? The leaves are very important for the perpetuation and the growth of the tree. In fact, leaves protect the tree; helps the tree survive. And you know the leave alone have got the chlorophyll; that is why it is green, and it does photosynthesis and it cooks food and because of that alone, the tree survives. And through osmotic pressure, it absorbs the water. You have all learned and forgotten this in the school. In Sanskrit it is called; chadanāt chandhāmsi. The karma kāndā of the vēdās is called chandas because it protects the samsāra tree like the leaves of the original tree.

Now the question is: How does the karma kāndā protect, perpetuate and help the growth of the tree? You must have inferred by now. Karma kāndā talks about varieties of karmas and also tempts all the people to do those karmas by promising varieties of results. You do this karma, you will get children. You do that karma, you will get money. You do that karma, you will go to heaven. Full of advertisements. And naturally a person is attracted by karma kanda; In fact jñāna kāndā is never appealing. If I ask how is mandukya upaniṣad? How is it? you will say it is very very dry. You had it, you choose to come! So jñāna kāndā is generally not appealing, whereas karma kāndā is the most appealing thing because he asks you to do varieties of karma to get varieties of results. And therefore this person will take to varieties of karmas and karmas will produce what? Karma phalam. And karma phalam means what puṇya pāpam. Puṇya pāpas as they increase, they will lead to punarapi jananam, punarapi maraṇam. Thus the samsāra cycle of birth and death is perpetuated by karma kanda; by tempting the people to do varieties of karma. Urdhavam gacchanti satvasta; puṇya karma you will go up. madhye thishtanti rajasa; middle karmi, you will be in the middle; jaganya guṇavrittistha, adhō gachhanti tāmasa. While jñāna kāndā puts an end to the samsāra tree, karma kāndā nourishes the samsāra tree. And therefore they are like the leaves of a tree. Therefore parṇavatvam.

Then the seventh common feature is phalavatvam. Any tree or most of the trees will have fruits, because they have to attract the birds for the perpetuation. Therefore, the tree means phalam or the fruit will be there; and fruits are of three types, some of them are sweet; some of them are sour, and some of them are khatta-metta; it is a mixture. Some mangoes, sweet this side and other side is sour. Similarly, the whole samsāra vṛkṣaḥ also gives us three types of fruit; sukham phalam, majā, you are very very happy, you glorify God, World is wonderful, because the son got the admission. Only this has happened. You are jumping non stop. And then comes some news. Another son lost the job and returning from America. Gone, and you are flat. Then you begin to curse the world. Why this life at all. I do not want anything. Samsāra is misery. Why should Bhagavān create this world? Now only criticism. So thus all the time what were you doing; Jumping up and falling flat. One is called sukha phalam and another is called duḥkha phalam; sometime misra phalam. I have told you. சிலர் அழுவார்; சிலர் சிரிப்பார்; சிலர் அழுதுகொண்டே சிரிப்பார். So, therefore crying and laughing together. Misram. Thus sukha duḥkha misra phalavatvam for the samsāra tree. That is the seventh common feature.

Then the eighth common feature is asrayavathavam (two more: I will give and stop, do not worry ~ do not say that this itself has become samsāra!, because Śankarācārya has given many, therefore I thought that I should tell 10 out of it). If you read the original Śankarācārya's work, you will enjoy the highly poetical work also. Huge compounds, ha ham hu hu, munja munja, people are shouting, very interesting poetry there; I thought I will tell you something. Put up with me for two more.

So the eighth feature is pakṣi asrayavathavam. The tree becomes the support for the nest of the birds. So the trees serves as the nesting site for the birds, which alone would eat the fruit. The tree is not going to eat; only the birds which occupy the tree, they alone enjoy this sukha duḥkha phalam; Similarly in the vast universe, who are the birds; all the jīvā are the birds. Some jīvās are the higher branches, means svarga lōkās, dēva śarīram, some of them are in the middle branch, means manuṣya lōkās, manuṣya śarīram, some of them are in the lower branches, means adho lōkā and adhō śarīram and therefore pakṣi asraya means the support. The tree supports the birds. Similarly the samsāra tree supports the jiva world. And when I say jiva bird, the upaniṣadic student should remember, the well known Mundaka upaniṣadic mantra.

दवा सुपर्णा सयुजा सखाया समानं वृक्षं परिषस्वजाते ।
तयोरन्यः पिप्पलं स्वाद्वत्त्यनश्नन्नन्यो अभिचाकशीति ॥III.1.१ ॥

dvā suparṇā sayujā sakhāyā samānaṁ vṛkṣaṁ pariśasvajātē |
tayōranyaḥ pippalaṁ svādvattyanaśnannanyō abhicākaśīti || III.1.1 ||

The jīvātma bird perched on the samsāra tree, experiences the sweet and bitter fruits. So pakṣi asrayatvam is the eighth feature.

The ninth feature is chalanavathvam. The huge tree moves because of the wind; especially when there is powerful cyclonic wind. Even though it is a huge tree, it moves up and down, here and there. In the same way, the whole samsāra tree along with all the jīvas are taken here and there by the wind of prārabdha karma. So we are all taken to various conditions, various places, various situation, lashed by the wind of prārabdha. People say: wanted to be in Madras, transferred. goes elsewhere and gets transferred elsewhere and our life is governed by the prārabdha wind and therefore chalanatvam is the ninth common feature.

The 10th and final common feature (final for us!) is cēdyathvam. Even though the tree is very very huge, by appropriate effort, this tree can be uprooted. It is possible to put an end to this tree and the cycle by using the appropriate axe. Similarly, the huge samsāra chakram also can be uprooted by the special axe called jñānam. In fact the very word vrikṣaḥ means that which can be uprooted. It is derived from the root vrasch; vraschanam means cēdanam. Śankarācārya gives in his commentary on vraschu chedane. So Dhathu pata, the quotes and vraschanāth, vrikṣa, it is possible to uproot; not easy. If it is a small plant, we can effortlessly remove, but if it is asvatta tree, not that easy.

These are the common features, because of which samsāra is compared to the tree. And Krishna mentions many of the common features and Krishna also adds a few more common features, which we will see as the verse come.

With this background, we look into the first verse.

अश्वत्थम् प्राहुः aśvattham prāhuḥ.. You have to supply the word samsāram. So this entire samsāra; the life of change is considered to be similar to aśvattha vṛkṣaḥ. Samsāram aśvatta tulyam prāhuḥ. Is comparable to aśvattha vṛkṣaḥ. What type of aśvattha tree? The description comes. ऊर्ध्वमूलम् ūrdhvamūlam. which has got a root called ūrdvam.

The word ūrdvam has two meaning; one meaning is that which is superior; therefore sacred. And the Lord is superior and sacred because the Lord is the cause; the parent of the universe, and the entire universe is the child of the Lord and therefore Bhagavān, the cause the universal father; is superior father; therefore ūrdvam. Superior.

You should not take the literal meaning of the word here. Literal meaning of the word urdhvam means physically or spacially above. It does not mean Bhagavān is spacially sitting on the ceiling. So we are not talking about spacial aboveness, because the very word above is a relative word. What is above for us is different and for the Americans is below. So therefore here ūrdvam means superior. Utkrstvathavam. ūrdvathvam.

And the second meaning ūrdvam means that which is beyond our comprehension. And that is why, if you do not understand a talk; Manduykam, take for example, you say today's class went above my head! So above my ahead, what is meaning? So there, 'went above my head', it was incomprehensible. Therefore one meaning is superiority, the second meaning is incomprehensibility. In Sanskrit, dhurvijñēyatvam. Utkrstvatvam and dhurvijñēyatvam are the two meaning of the word urdhvam and what is superior and incomprehensible is Brahman or paramātmā. And this superior incomprehensible Brahman is the Mūlam of this samsāra tree. This superior incomprehensible Brahman or Bhagavān is the mūlam. Mūlam means the root of the samsāra tree, which I have already talked about.

Then the next is adha śākām. All the branches in the form of the fourteen lōkās are adaha means below, and here the word below also has got two figurative meanings. There 'above' I told you superior and therefore 'below' means what? Inferior. So the inferior lōkās are the branches of this samsāra tree and the second meaning of the word below is there we said incomprehensible, what is the opposite of incomprehensible? Comprehensible. Visible. The perceptible lokah is comparable to the branches. The imperceptible God is compared to the root. Inferior world is comparable to the branches, superior God is comparable to the root. And this asvatha vrikṣa is avyayam. Avyayam means eternal whose beginning and end cannot be traced, because it flows in the form of a chain; the tree producing the seed and the seed producing the tree. So in the form of tree/seed cycle or chain, it is anādi and anathaḥ. And similarly, the human life also is a cyclic chain. You can never talk about the beginning of the jiva. Because this janma is because of previous karma, previous karma is because of previous janma, previous janma of its previous karma, and karma-janma-chakra rūpēṇa avyayam. It is eternal.

Then छन्दांसि यस्य पर्णानि chandāṃsi yasya parṇāni. So the protecting sustaining leaves of the samsāra tree are none other than the vēdā prescribed karmas. chandāṃsi means vēdāsyā karma kāndām. And karma kāndā always make the people to always remain in the field of rituals. There are many who love the rituals by they never like Gītā, Upaniṣads; those topics they do not like at all. They are highly religious people. They go from temple to temple; abhiṣekams to abhiṣekams. Athirudrams to maharudrams, etc. Love the ritualistic portion, they never come to the Vēdānta. That means what? The successfully perpetuate the samsāra.

Then does it mean that karma kāndā should be thrown away? very careful. it does not mean that karma kāndā is our enemy to be thrown away; what we say is, karma kāndā must be used up to a particular limit and sooner or later, one should transcend the ritualistic portion and spend more time in philosophical portion. Generally, people tend to go to two extremes. One extreme is people never like religious poojas or rituals. One extreme. And their problem is what: they have no way of purifying the mind. Pooja is the only method of purification. Therefore some people get into one extreme. And there is another extreme. They love pooja, abhisheka, etc. and there problem is what, they permanently remain there; like saying I love the 5th standard so well, the teacher is also is compassionate, I will sit here itself. That is also not correct. Enter karma kāndā, purify and come to jñāna kanda. So which alone you have done successfully I think.

chandāṃsi yasya parṇāni. यः तम् वेद yaḥ tam veda. So the one who understands this universal tree. with many branches, leaves, fruits etc. the one who knows this universal tree and Śankarācārya adds; along with the root of Brahman; you should know the tree of this universe along with the root of Bhagavān or Brahman. Samūlam vṛkṣam yaha vēda, saha vēdavit. He alone is a wise person, who has understood the scriptures properly. Vēdavit means vēdārtha vith. The one who is a jñāni.

The details in the next verse which we will see in the next class.

Om

In the beginning of the 15th chapter, Lord Krishna gives a description of Samsāra, so that a seeker will know what is mōkṣaḥ. Because mōkṣaḥ is defined as samsāra nivṛttiḥ; freedom from samsāra. So if I do not know, what samsāra is, I will not know what is samsāra nivṛtti. Especially Tamilians are to be told what is samsāra, otherwise they will think that it is wife. And only when I know what is samsāra, I can understand samsāra nivṛtti rūpa mōkṣa and only when I value mōkṣa, I will turn my attention to the mōkṣa sādhanām, the means of attaining mōkṣa. If I do not have a value for the end; the destination, I will never have the value for the means, because the value for the means is directly proportional to the value for the end and therefore we will be committed to this spiritual sādhanā only when we clearly know what is the sādhyam, the destination which we are attempting to reach. And therefore we get the description of samsāra in the first 2-1/2 verses of this chapter, of which we have covered the first verse, in which Lord Krishna compared samsāra to a huge eternal tree of birth and death. And this tree comparison continues in the next verse also which we will see now.

अधश्चोर्ध्वं प्रसृतास्तस्य शाखाः गुणप्रवृद्धा विषयप्रवालाः ।

अधश्च मूलान्यनुसन्ततानि कर्मानुबन्धीनि मनुष्यलोके ॥ १५.२॥

adhaścōrdhvaṁ prasṛtāstasya śākhā

guṇapravṛddhā viṣayapравālāḥ |

adhaśca mūlānyanusantatāni

karmānubandhīni manuṣyalōkē || 15.2 ||

तस्य शाखाः tasya śākhāḥ its branches, गुणप्रवृद्धाः guṇapravṛddhāḥ which are nourished by the 'gūṇas', विषयप्रवालाः viṣayapравālāḥ and whose shoots are the sense-objects, प्रसृताः prasṛtāḥ are spread अधः च ऊर्ध्वम् adhaḥ ca ūrdhvam below and above च ca further मूलानि mūlāni (its) roots अनुसन्ततानि अधः anusantatāni adhaḥ are stretched below, कर्मानुबन्धीनि karmānubandhīni causing actions मनुष्यलोके manuṣyaloke in the world of men.

2. Its branches, which are nourished by the gūṇas and whose shoots are the sense-objects, are spread below and above. Further, (its) roots are stretched below, causing actions in the world of men.

In the previous verse Lord Krishna has mentioned that God or Brahman is the primary root of the samsāra tree and the entire visible universe is the trunk as well as the branches and all the karma kāndā or the ritualistic portions of the veda are to be taken as the leaves of the tree, which sustain the samsāra vṛkṣa.

Now in this verse, more details about the branches of the samsāra tree we get. He says: तस्य शाखाः प्रसृताः tasya śākhāḥ prasṛtāḥ; the branches of the huge samsāra tree, the tree of life are spread far and wide. And where are they spread? अधः च ऊर्ध्वम् adhaḥ ca ūrdhvam, some of the branches are up above, and some of them are down below; and some of them are in the centre or middle. In short all the 14 lōkāḥ are the branches of the huge samsāra tree. There bhūr lōkā and sūvar lōkā are the upper branches; and then, athala, vithala, suthala, rasatala, etc. are the lower branches; and the bhū lōkā is the middle branch and therefore Krishna says; adhaḥ ca ūrdhvam. Down and up. The branches are spread.

And not only that, in every lōkā, in every world; there is a corresponding body also to experience the world. Higher lōkāḥ means the superior body. So Dēva śārīram, gandharva śārīram, pithṛ śārīram, etc. are the superior, more refined physical bodies, and these bodies also can be equated to the higher branches. So higher lōkāḥ and the superior bodies are the higher branches of the tree. And similarly bhu lōkā and the middle body, the human body is neither superior, like that of the Dēvas, nor it is inferior like the asūras or animals, and therefore human body is madhyama śārīram. So uttama śārīram is higher branches, along with uttam lōkāḥ. Madhyama loka and madhyama śārīram, śārīram means the bodies, are the middle branches; adho lōkāḥ and adama śārīram, inferior bodies like the animal body, the plant body etc. are compared to the lower śārīram. And the jīva is not the body itself because we have seen body is not the individual or jīva; body is the location in which or the tenement or house in which the jīva comes for occupation. And therefore jīva is consisting of what? the definition of jīva you should remember. The sūkṣma śārīram, the subtle body, with the reflected consciousness is the jīva. And this physical body is madhyama branch; mediocre branch, and this jīva the sūkṣma śārīram is now occupying the middle branch of samsāra and occupying this branch the jīva is experiencing pleasures and pain. And when the karmas change, the jīva leaves this branch. So the body becomes a dead; means what, Jīva bird has left the madhyama śāka, the middle branch called manuṣya śārīram; and the jīva can go to uttama śāka, uttam śāka means what?; a finer body. Indra, agni, varūna, those śārīrams or bodies or tenements are the superior branches. So Indra śārīram is not the Indra, Indra śārīram is only an abode or tenement, even I can occupy the Indra śārīram, a body which is superior. So thus the jīva can go to the higher lōkās and get a higher body, or if the papam is going to be predominant, the jīva leaves this middle branch and takes the lower branch called animal śārīram or plant śārīram. So we saw in Kathōpaniṣad,

स्थाणुमन्येऽनुसंयन्ति यथाकर्म यथाश्रुतम् ॥ 2.11.७॥

yōnimanyē prapadyantē śārīratvāya dēhinaḥ |

sthāṇumanyē:'nusamyanti yathākarma yathāśrutam || 2.11.7 ||

A very important mantra in Kathōpaniṣad. A human being need not always progress. It is not uniform linear evolution. It is not that a jīva should always go higher and higher. According to vēda, after manuṣya janma, a person can come down to lower janma also; a slip is also possible. And that is why the life is compared to the game of snake and ladder; whereas theories like the theory of evolution, they say the jīva only goes from upper to upper ranges and then after manuṣya janma it is still higher. They think of uniform progress but vēda does not accept the linear progress. If we do not lead a proper life, there is a chance of slipping also. Slipping means what, instead of going through the ladder, (I do not know whether you remember) Manuṣya janma means you have reached the No.94 and the dice you have to put the number 6. 94 plus 6. Home, you have reached Home. Home means வீடு; Veedu in Tamil means Mōkṣam. அறம்; பொருள்; இன்பம்; வீடு; Aram Porul Inpam Veedu. But the problem is what? After 94 three snakes are there in 95, 97, 99. So if you put 5, from 99 you slip to 56 through the snake. There if you put 3, if 59 to 1, another snake. So there is no guarantee that we will go upwards only. We have to be responsible. A very big responsibility it is. And therefore each type of body is also compared to a branch. Now I am occupying manuṣya śārīram branch; in the next janma which śārīram will be the branch I will perch on, I do not know. But our attempt is what? Not going to higher branches or lower branch, leave the tree itself and fly sky high, to freedom. We want to be free birds and therefore do not think upper branch or lower branch; no branches; we hope we will succeed in becoming a free bird and therefore, adhaścōrdhvaṃ prasṛtā. uttama madhyama adama śārīra rūpēna śāka prasṛtāḥ.

And how are these branches, which include the three forms of bodies, how are they generated; how are the dēva śārīram generated; manuṣya śārīram generated or animal śārīram generated. Bhagavān creates different types of body, not according to His whim and fancy, we ourselves give our order to Bhagavān. So whatever order we give, accordingly Bhagavān will produce the body. If my life is sātvic way of life, I am giving an order to the Lord: Oh Lord, give me sātvetica śārīram. What is sātvetica śārīram? Uttama śārīram called dēva śārīram. What will be my next body is not decided by Bhagavān not decided by fate, but decided by my freewill which I can use or abuse or misuse. So therefore He says: Gūṇa pravṛddha. Each body is determined by the three gūṇas. Sātvika jivithena uttama śārīram, rājasa karmaṇa madhyama śārīram; tamasa karmaṇa, adama śārīram. We saw in the 14th chapter.

jaghanyaguṇavṛttisthā adhō gacchanti tāmasāḥ ||14.18 ||

And therefore गुणप्रवृद्धा guṇappravṛddhā. All the sense objects are like all the shoots which are responsible for the branch. Before a full fledged branch comes on the tree from the trunk of the tree, initially the branches emerge in the form of a small shoot and that shoot alone, it is called shoot, because it shoots forth, and this shoot is the rudimentary form of the branch and the shoot alone is gradually nourished and will become a full fledged branch.

Similarly here also, my next body must exist in this janma itself, in the form of a shoot. I am preparing my next body, now itself. By what? A type of activity and now who is responsible for the type of activity. Krishna says the sense objects of the world are responsible for the type of activity I choose. Because these objects alone create a desire in me. Every sense object is the producer of a desire. That is why we have advertisement overkill. Everytime they show something, they want to generate a want in you. And therefore sense objects are responsible for kāmah; kāma means desire. Every sense organ is a potential kāma. And Kāma desire leads to what? Karma, because desires can be fulfilled only by activity. If you see a particular brand of car, and you develop a desire, local Maruti, or Benz, or some other expensive car, he has to start saving now itself. I do not know the cost of the benz, how many lakhs. So I should start earning and saving. That means Viṣaya leads to kāma; kāma leads to karma; karma leads to karma phalam called puṇya pāpa; puṇya pāpa determines next śarīram. See the grand connection: Objects to desire, to action; to puṇya pāpa ; to next śarīram. And once you get the next body, do we keep quiet. There also we do the mischief. Then in the next body also, I am exposed to the world, and kāma and karma and phalam and śarīram. puṇyē na puṇyam lōkam nayathi, papēna pāpam vabhya manuṣya janma.

And therefore विषयप्रवालाः viṣayappravālāḥ; sense objects are the shoots which are responsible for the next śarīram, by what path? Remember the step: objects to desire, to action, to puṇya pāpa to next śarīram. Therefore, viṣayappravālāḥ.
